His speaking schedule this year will include talks at the Second Plenary Session of the International Conference on Parasitology at Rio de Janerio, the International Zoology Congress in Washington, D.C., and American Institute of Biological Sciences.

Hull has lectured at many universities, including University of California, Stanford, University of Kansas, University of Arizona, University of Colorado, and Loyola University of Chicago.

The new FSU departmental head received his BS degree from the University of Illinois in 1949, majoring in chemistry and minoring in zoology. In 1953 he was awarded a Ph.D. in zoology, biochemistry and physiology by the university. Since that time he has served on the faculty of Northwestern University and has received wide recognition in protozoology and parasitology and for his modern approaches to biology.

Dr. Robert Godfrey of the Biological Science Dept. served as acting chairman for FSU until Hull was announced for the post.

Chemistry Professors Put Out New Books

Several faculty members of the Chemistry Dept. have been mysteriously occupied during the summer months, and the fruits of their labors have resulted in two books on chemistry, one of which will be used as a textbook for beginning students.

The second edition of a textbook entitled 'Chemistry," by Dr. James V. Quagliano has been published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. Principal aim of the book is to present a text for the student novice in terms he can understand, while maintaining an accurate and logical development of the subject at the same time.

Quagliano came to FSU in 1958, after teaching for two years at the University of Maryland and 10 years at the University of Notre Dame.

He has published some 50 articles in scientific journals and is contributing editor of "The Chemistry of the Coordination Compounds," an American Chemical Society Monograph. His research has been supported by the National Institutes of Health and the Atomic Energy Commission.

The second book is new in the chemistry field, and has been published by John Wiley and Sons. Written by Dr. John E. Leffler of the Chemistry Dept. and former FSU professor of chemistry Dr. Ernest Grunwald, the new book is called "Rates and Equilibria of Organic Reactions."

Leffler received his Ph.D. in organic chemistry in 1948 from Harvard University. He served as a duPont Fellow at Cornell University and as an instructor at Brown University prior to joining the FSU faculty in 1950.

Grunwald has been a research chemist at Bell Telephone Laboratories since 1961. He served on the faculty at FSU from 1949 until 1961.

Series Tickets Are On Sale

Artist Series season tickets are on sale for the winter season's attractions--opening with the Broadway play, "A Thousand Clowns" starring John Ireland on Oct. 23 and 24.

Winter season tickets, priced at $9, will be available in Westcott Ticket Office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday until Friday, Oct. 4.

Ballet Folklorico of Mexico, 75-member troupe of dancers, singers and native instrumentalists which created a sensation at the Paris Festival of Nations, will be one of the Artist Series productions. Scheduled for Jan. 21 and 22, the ballet is the most expensive single attraction ever brought to the campus, according to Mrs. Kathryn Vernon director of special events.

Another Artist Series production will be the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William Steinberg, March 11 and 12. Founded in 1895, the orchestra has built a reputation as an outstanding musical force. It has toured cities from New York to California and from Maine to Mexico.

Faculty Members Attend Summer Study Programs

Many of the faculty members gave up a carefree summer of swimming and relaxing in the sun in exchange for more scholarly activities.

* * * * *

Two members of the Philosophy Dept. returned this fall from summer study programs.

Dr. James A. Gould, associate professor of philosophy, studied the philosophy of law in England for two months, while Dr. Grace E. Cairns studied Indian and Chinese philosophies and civilizations at the University of Chicago during the summer.

* * * * *

Dr. Homer A. Black, professor of accounting, was a speaker at the American Accounting Association Convention held this summer at Stanford University.

Accountants and educators from across the country attended the convention. Black spoke on "Tax Incentives and Their Implications of Finance and Accounting."

* * * * *

Miss Sarah Moore Robinson, former counselor of women day students and Panhellenic adviser, has recently been appointed assistant dean of women.

Miss Robinson joined the staff of the Dean of Women, Katherine Warren, in 1959 as head adviser of the fine arts program, counselor of Magnolia Hall and assistant professor.

* * * * *

Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, professor of chemistry and physics, has been appointed consultant to the Physical Sciences Facilities Division of the National Science Foundation.

The NSF program provides supporting grants for undergraduate and graduate science facilities. Sheline will review and evaluate proposals for grants and visit institutions applying for grants.

* * * * *

Twenty-one art works by William Walmsley, instructor of art, were shown in an exhibit at Louisville, Ky. during the summer.

Shown at the display were lithographs, oils, collages and pencil and ink drawings by Walmsley. He has exhibited widely and his work has won awards in Kentucky and in other parts of the country.

* * * * *

Dr. James Walters, specialist in child development, has been named head of the Home and Family Life Dept. at FSU.

As head of Home and Family Life he will direct a department which includes child development and family relations, housing and interior design and home management and family economics.

Four Doctorates Given By History Department

Four students of history, three of whom did their doctoral research on Florida subjects, received Ph.D. degrees in August.

FSU previously has awarded only one doctorate in history, a year ago. Those who received the doctorate in August all will be teaching history in a college or university this fall. They are Joe Martin Richardson, who will teach at the University of Mississippi; Richard Conrad Lukas Tennessee Polytechnic Institute; Richard J. Amundson, Clemson College and Jerrell H. Shofner Georgia Southern College.

Those surveying Florida historical subjects all studied under the direction of Dr. Weymouth T. Jordan, head of the History Dept. Richardson wrote his dissertation on the subject "The Negro In The Reconstruction of Florida"; Amundson on "The American Life of Henry Shelton Sanford"; and Shofner on "Florida's Political Reconstruction and the Presidential Election of 1876."

Lukas, studying under the direction of Dr. Earl R. Beck, wrote on "Air Force Aspects of American Aid To The Soviet Union: The Crucial Years, 1941-1942."

Richardson received his BS degree from Southwest Missouri State College in 1958 and his MA from FSU in 1959. He already is teaching in the History Dept. at Mississippi. Lukas received his BA degree in 1957 and his MA degree in 1960, both from FSU.

Amundson received his bachelor's degree from Augustana College in 1959 and his MA from FSU in 1960. Shofner received his BS degree in 1960 and his MS degree in 1961, both from FSU.

Rushee Parties In Full Swing

By ELLEN THOMPSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

1040 women and 498 men had signed up for formal rush, according to last Friday's official count.

For the first sorority parties, there are approximately 60 coeds in each of the 18 groups. These are accompanied by a sorority woman serving as a rush counselor, who conducts them to all 19 houses, Clyda Stokes, president of Panehllenic Assn., said.

According to Bob Foss, secretary of Inter-Fraternity Council, the fraternities have a new system this year which includes 16 platoons with 25 to 30 boys in each.

Sorority invitation parties will begin next Saturday morning at 9 a.m. and end Sunday evening. These parties will be 45 minutes in length, and usually will have skits designed to entertain the rushees as well as introduce them to the different facets of the individual sororities.

A rushee may go to the same house twice if she schedules a party in the afternoon and one for the night.

Monday night are preferential parties and the rushees will be allowed to attend three parties at three different houses. The coeds who attend these are requested to sign preferentials on Tuesday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Rushees are asked to pick up sorority bids in the Longmire Student Lounge on Sept. 19 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Pledging will take place after 5 p.m.

Fraternity invitations to pledge should be picked up in the Suwannee room on Saturday, Sept. 15, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

FSU Begins FM Series

Beginning this Thursday evening, at 8 p.m. WFSU-FM will present a new series of programs to supplement the university course in Humanities 201.

The programs are prepared by Dr. Allan Thomson of the English Dept.

In September, the programs will be devoted to Greek poetry, drama and philosophy. Other topics to be covered during the trimester are Chaucer, medieval plays and philosophy, Renaissance music, 17th century poetry, Bible readings, and Shakespeare.

This is the fourth year this series of programs has been broadcast for students and general listeners. The programs will be repeated on Mondays at 4 p.m.

Rush, Blackwell To Head Fund Drive

President Gordon W. Blackwell has appointed N. Orwin Rush, director of libraries, to serve with him as co-chairman of FSU's 1963 campaign for the Leon County United Fund.

A. Worley Brown, general chairman of the general United Fund drive which opened yesterday, was a recent visitor to the office of President Blackwell to discuss the University's plans in the campaign.

FSU employees have a distinguished record of surpassing their quota in every previous United Fund drive. The Leon County quota this year is $149,500.

After the appointment of Rush, Blackwell named a 15-member University Steering Committee for the UF campaign. Serving on this committee are Hugh Adams, Homer Black, Eugene Boyce, Robert Brewer, William Cullom, Hortense Glenn, Edwin Hartz, Patrick Hogan, Joseph Hooten, Robert Lawton, Thomas Lewis, Ralph Richard, Charles Rovetta, Owen Sellers, and Richard Tritschler.

The Leon County United Fund provides funds for the American Red Cross, Boy and Girl Scouts, Leon County Associated Charities.

Massing strategy for Florida State University's 1963 Leon County United Fund campaign are, left to right, General Chairman A. Worley Brown; N. Orwin Rush, director of libraries, and FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell. FSU employees have a distinguished past record of United Fund participation. President Blackwell and Rush will serve as co-chairmen of FSU's 1963 drive.

Progress Seen In University Union Construction

By MAX COURTNEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

ground has been broken for the lion dollar four building Stu- nion complex.

n four years the union has from a "dream" stage to , with careful planning and ration in between.

nal members working with anc for the complex were , Mr. Bell, Lynette Thom- Sally Ingham, Ivan John- William Randel, Robert d, R.K. Shaw, Bobby Byrd, Carl Butler, Harvey P. Tshirgi, William O. Cullum, Zachary Skokes, Jask Haskins, and Charles A. Rovetta.

Several of the original members still work with the Student Center project, Dean R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Students; Dr. Reid Montgomery, Director of Student Activities; Dr. Jack W. Rollow, first committee chairman; Dr. H.P. Day, chairman of the Executive committee; and Dr. Ray E. Green Jr., present chairman of the planning committee.

The FSU student center, an outgrowth of the earliest college unions which were debating societies in English universities, will be ready for use in November, 1964. Unlike the first union founded in 1815 in a dingy back room of an inn in Cambridge, the new union will house an auditorium for 400, a two-story food building, student store, recreation center, post office, publicatins and student government offices, and many other facilities.

Historically, the first union in America was founded in 1832 at Harvard based on the idea of a gentleman's club. The first student union building to be administered and planned by a university itself was built in 1896 by the University of Pennsylvania. The union was to be a place where all could meet on common ground. The union idea did not grow extremely fast and at the close of World War I there were approximately a dozen unions.

Eventually they evolved into general out-of-class meeting places. During the 30's a new trend was started, the addition of music rooms, theaters, browsing rooms, art facilities, and craft and hobby shops. The present day union is a combination of social and cultural life.

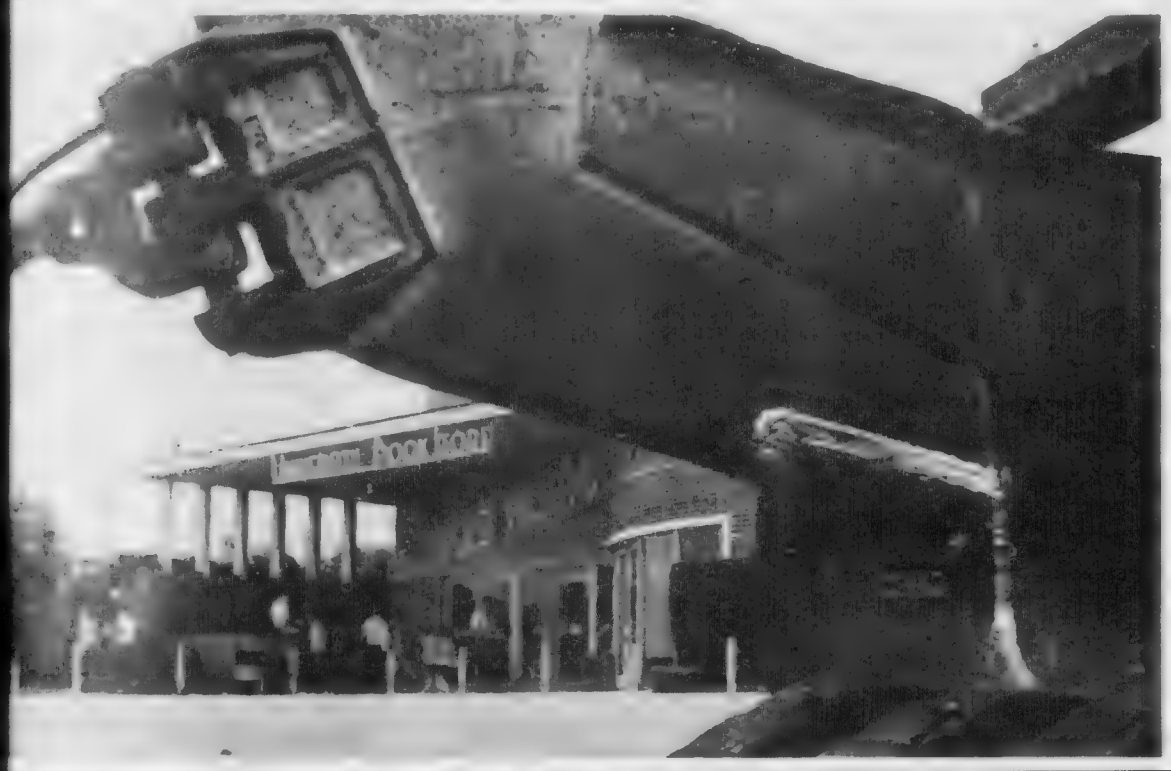
According to the Association of College Unions, the purpose of a union is:

1. To serve as a community center of the college, for all members of the college family -- students, faculty, administration, alumni, and guests. It is an organization, a building and a program which together represent a well-considered plan for the community life of the college.
2. To provide for the services, amenities and conveniences for members of the college family.
3. To become a part of the educational program of the college.

"As the center of college community life, its serves as a laboratory of citizenship, training students in social responsibility and for leadership in our democracy."

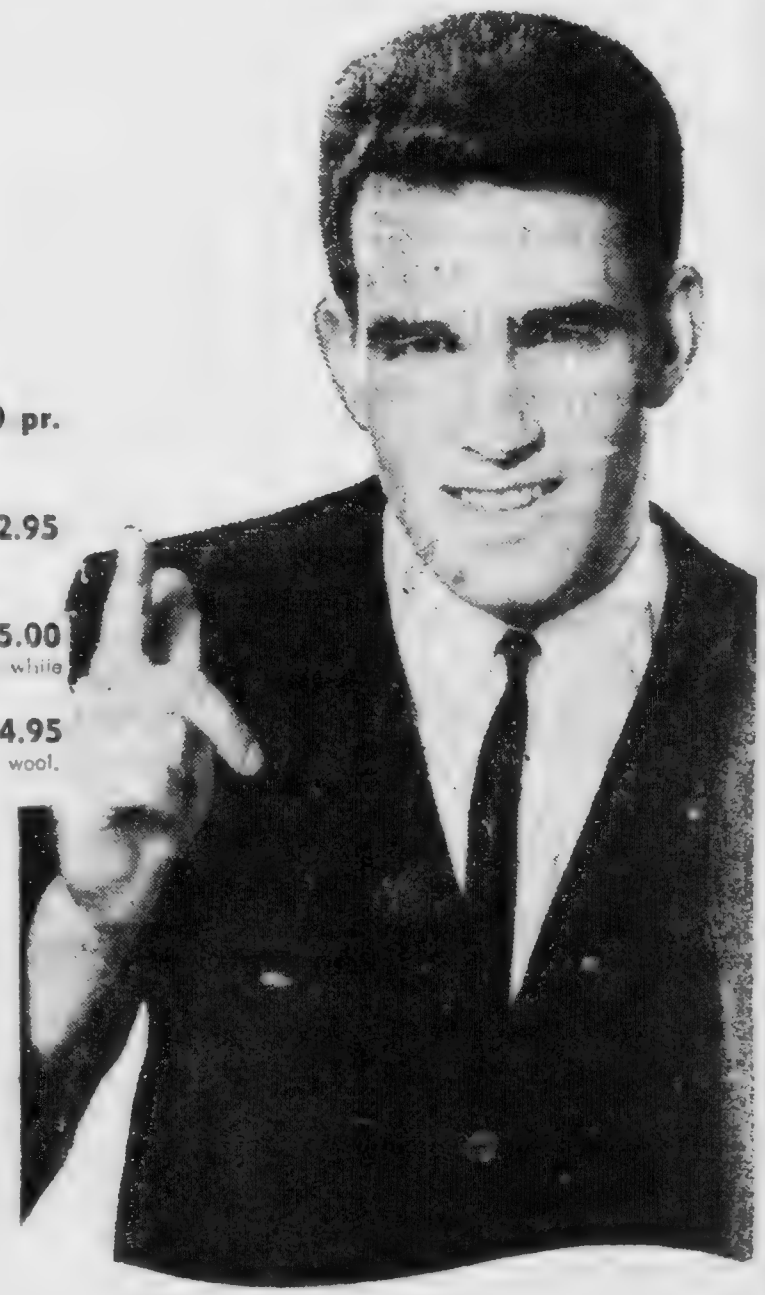
Through its various boards, committees, and staff, it provides a cultural, social and recreational program, aiming to make free time activity a cooperative factor with study in education.

In all its processes it encourages self-directed activity, giving maximum opportunity for self-realization and for growth in individual social competency and group effectiveness. Its goal is the development of persons as well as intellects."



4. To serve as a unifying force in the life of the college, cultivating enduring regard for and loyalty to the college.

There are some 300 unions throughout the United States. Such countries as Norway, Sweden, Lebanon, Iran, Israel, Mexico, Malaya, India, Germany, Britain and many more have built student centers.



Small and large colleges both here and abroad have become concerned with the living problems of their students. They now recognize that the campus environment furthers the fruitful use of student time and the process of learning, from students and faculty through informal association.

Representative statements of union objectives, by unions and those who have studied unions are:

1. "To provide a common life and a cultivated social program for the students, faculty and alumni of the University."
2. "To serve as an informal educational medium for supplementing the academic education of students insofar as possible, for relating the academic and non-academic factors of education — that the student's total training and experience may be well-rounded and complete."
3. "To carry out the meaning implied by the word 'union' by centralizing, integrating and democratizing university community effort and activity."
4. "To provide an education in human relationships."

Foldes Retires After 34 Years

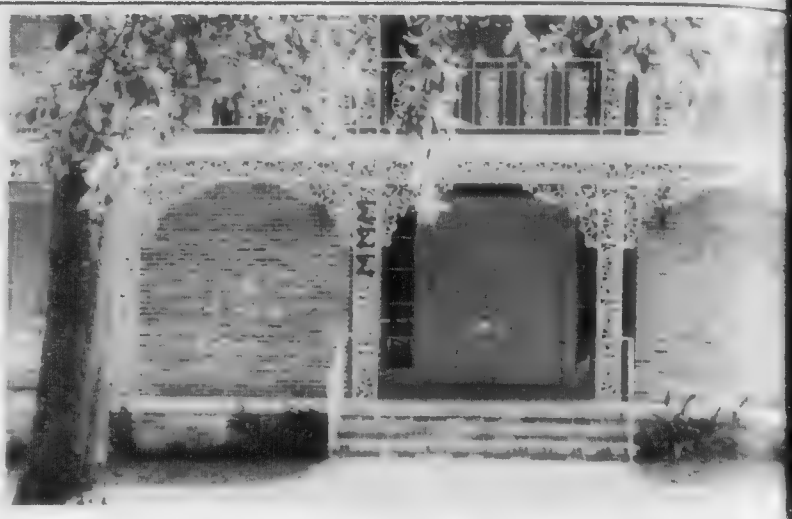
Patrolman Henry M. Foldes retired Aug. 31 from FSU after a 34 year career which began with milking 18 cows a day at the FSCW dairy farm.

For the past 17 years he has been a campus patrolman, but he started out milking cows which were pastured where some of the university's most impressive buildings devoted to scientific advancement of the space age now stand. From 1931 to 1944 he served as assistant to the superintendent and herdsman on the university farm, and since has seen modern buildings spring up where chicken yard and mule barn were located.

Henry M. Foldes

In 1946, a year before FSU became co-educational, he became a patrolman. One of his duties in those days was to supervise the weiner roasts the students held out at the farm. He would prepare the pit and watch the fire to see that it did not spread to surrounding timber. When everything was ready he would send a couple of wagons padded down with straw to bring the girls out to the picnic site.

"There was really a binder on the girls in those days," Foldes said, "They didn't get out like they do now."



In the dining hall where the women students were seated ten at a table, Foldes said it was an impressive sight to watch them as they would all stand up and sing the blessing before they ate. Food was served family style and the scraps were cleaned from the plates and taken out to the farm to be fed to a herd of hogs. These hogs provided pork for the table and plenty besides. They usually managed to sell one or two freight car loads to a packing house in Jacksonville, he added.

As a patrolman, he's been making the bank deposits and "handling the money back and forth," for the past 17 years. When FSU first began to play football, one of his duties was to escort the money back to the campus vault after the games which were then held at Centennial Field.

"I'd rather guard the money -- didn't have as many fellows to run off as around the girls," Foldes said. He never at any time had an attempted hold-up while he was on money escort duty.

During the school rush he has made frequent trips to and from banks in town to deposit and pick up money. "I believe that the quicker you get shut of money, the better it is," he remarked.

Reared on a farm in Colquitt, Georgia, Foldes plans to do a little farming after he catches up on his fishing. He has a half-acre vegetable and flower garden at his home at 913 South Boulevard. He and his wife Corrie also plan visits to their seven children.

Fulbright Deadline Nears

Only a few more weeks remain in whch to apply for a 1964-65 U.S. Government grant for graduate study or research abroad.

Competition for the scholarships, available to qualified graduate students under the Fulbright-Hays Act, is administered by the Institute of International Education.

In addition to full grants, which provide round-trip transportation to any one of 51 countries, as well as tuition and maintenance for one academic year, two other types of grant are available: Joint U.S./other government grants offered cooperatively by the U.S. (which provides travel) and a foreign country (which provides tuition and maintenance); and Travel-Only awards which supplement maintenance and tuition scholarships awarded by a university, private donor or foreign government.

General eligibility requirements are: U.S. citizenship, a bachelor's degree or its equivalent in professional training, language ability commensurate with the demands of the proposed study project, and good health. Preference is given to applicants under 35 years of age.

Application forms and further information may be obtained from the campus Fulbight adviser, Dr. George Lensen, 215 History. Individual department heads also have lists of countries offering opportunities in particular fields. The deadline for filing applications through the campus Fulbright adviser on this campus is Oct. 10. Seniors may apply.

FSU Awarded Geology Grant

FSU has been awarded a grant of $4,920 from the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey for a study of marine geology of the continental shelf off Choctawhatchee Bay.

The grant is the first FSU has received from the agency, Dr. B. F. Buie, chairman of the Geology Dept., said. Under the direction of Dr. H. G. Goodell, the research will involve a study of cores taken from bottom sediments.

Games Too Early?

For the first time in Florida State football history, all the home football games, with the exception of the first one against TCU September 28, will be played in the early afternoon. Like every innovation, this new policy of beginning the action at 2 p.m. will have its good and bad points and bugs to be ironed out.

Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha, the man responsible for ironing these bugs out, is very enthusiastic and optimistic about the new policy. He states, "After a thorough study on out part into such factors as ticket sales, public interest, and the times of games, and after discussions with the alumni and boosters groups, we have decided to make this bold experiment."

What are the advantages of this "bold experiment?" Will an afternoon game really pull more people than an evening game? According to Mancha, "we are getting most of the people from this community, so we can now direct our attention to other cities." This policy will allow out-of-town alumni and boosters to attend the game without worrying about driving and keep them from getting ack home in the wee small hours of the morning.

But, just as important as the alumni are the newspaper reporters who can now cover the game and get their story in without rushing to meet deadlines. The importance of this aspect can not be stressed enough. Most of the state's newspapers have a 10 p.m. deadline and reporters must sacrifice clarity and interest in the story in order to beat this copy deadline.

DON'T FORGET THE SUNGLASSES

The only disadvantage to this policy is the heat problem. At 2 p.m. in the afternoon, the sun is just past its summit and is still capable of wearing out the football players. Fair skinned spectators may find themselves with a sunburn after an afternoon of looking into the sun.

Mancha, however, tends to discount the disadvantage. "The heat problem will not be too much," he states. The first game is at night to avoid the heat wearing down the players.

He continued, "I think most of the people, once they experience an afternoon game will like it. The students back from last year will just have to get used to it. We feel the students will have more fun and the game will be more colorful with a chance for parties after the game gets over."

Weather permitting, this new policy will be an improvement.

Seminoles Eye Miami

Once they get over a feeling of rejection, the 1963 Florida State University Seminoles could turn into the best team FSU has fielded since Bill Peterson took the head coaching reins back in 1960. That's the consensus as the Tribe opens practice for the Sept. 20 opener with Miami in the Orange Bowl.

Snubbed by most of the national pre-season publications, the Seminoles begin this campaign with 26 returning lettermen from last year's 4-4-3 team, which tied Kentucky, Georgia Tech and Auburn. Peterson, who has spent the summer trying to decide whether the recent NCAA rules changes will allow him to keep his three-team system, says his 1963 team will have more speed, size and depth than the '62 team.

Pete contends that this team, despite chronic problems at tackle and halfback, is "deeper at all positions than any team we've had here at FSU.

"Before spring training," he adds, "We thought the tackle position would be one of our strong points, but injuries there have hurt us."

It appears that Peterson will open with his three-team system intact but will probably use the Chiefs (two-way) much or most of the time. His task, then, is to turn the specialists into two-way football players, since the NCAA rules change discourages rampant substitution of whole teams at will.

Brightest star in the FSU camp is 6-foot-5 quarterback Steve Tensi, junior from Cincinnati, O., who outpassed veteran Eddie Feely last season, completing 60 of 121 attempts for 49.6 per cent.

Peterson says flatly that Tensi "has the strongest arm of any football player in the country."

Backing up the lanky blond is Charlie Calhoun, FSU's Mr. Everything. Now a senior, Calhoun will handle punting chores and fill in for Tensi occasionally on the offense, in addition to his normal duties with the defense. He has been a standout there for two seasons.

The fullback position is currently a tossup between two seniors, Larry Brinkley, 195-pounder who was a defensive halfback last year but turned into a fine runner in the spring, and Marion Roberts, 191, a veteran ball carrier.

The halfback corps is light but loaded with talent. Dave Snyder, 175-pound Jacksonville flash who was voted Most Outstanding in spring practice and whose 24-yard TD run tied Georgia Tech last year, is the best of the lot.

The other starter is Fred Biletnikoff, ex-end turned flanker back (right half in the FSU pro T offense) who caught six passes for 118 yards as a sophomore end.

Up front there are no less than six lettermen at end, comprising what Peterson calls the finest group ever at FSU. Two specialists, Bill "Red" Dawson and Don Floyd, are the leaders. Dawson, 6-3 and 220, is a hard worker and good blocker who also makes the big play on defense. Floyd, 6-1 and 200, caught 14 passes last year.

Peterson had to move Jerry Bruner, 5-10, 229, from guard to fill the gap at tackle. The best blocker on the team, Bruner is a time-tested veteran. On the other side, Avery Sumner, 6-2, 212, is by Peterson's estimation the best tackle at FSU in years. Very fast for a big man (he was a high school fullback), Avery starred as a defensive tackle last year.

There's no letup at guard, either. Third-team All-America Gene McDowell is gone, but the Seminoles will hardly miss him. Dick Hermann, 6-0, 195, and Chuck Robinson, 5-11, 220 are hard-nosed vets who will man the guard and linebacker posts admirably. Robinson, two-time starter, has made 139 career tackles and will call de sive signals. Hermann is calle most agressive player on the s he made 81 tackles last year, se best to McDowell.

Senior Bill Daly, 6-1 and 19 the call to replace the de Bruce Darsey at center. Dal voted the most improved lin during spring drills.

The '63 Seminoles encounter usual treacherous schedule. Miami they open at home with as Christian (first meeting w Southwest Conference team night game September 28th. An date on October 5th follows after that Peterson's team Wake Forest, Southern Missis Virginia Tech, Furman, Geo Tech, Noth Carolina State (Ho coming), Auburn, and Florida der.

Seniors Charley Calhoun (left) and Chuck Robinson were elected Captains for the coming season last Wednesday by the players a Tallahassee Boosters Club kickoff luncheon.

Calhoun is the Renegades Quarterback and hails from Tallahas Robinson, from East Palestine, Ohio, is the top returning letterm the line, weighing in at 217 pounds.

Reynolds Fire Causes Panic

By WALT MARTINDALE

There are 11,000 stories in Florida State and this isn't even one of them.

On a lazy Sunday, just before classes started and just after a hectic registration, there was as much commotion at Reynolds as Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

There was the thrill of sirens and clank of bells as a bright red fire engine roared to a stop followed by four more. Frantic freshmen ran and a crowd gathered in front of the hall. All were looking for smoke, waiting for action and expecting bellows of smoke to pour out of the windows and girls to jump from the building with pincurls in their hair.

Many thoughts ran through their minds and their curiosity arose. What could have happened? Did a freshman coed try to smoke for the first time? Maybe, she tried to iron her clothes on the bed. Then again, maybe she was striking matches and throwing them on the floor and her roommate was using hairspray and it exploded.

What really happened? A dryer shorted out and burned a blouse. Many still have one question. Was it madras?

Students File For Offices

Barbara McDonald, Marie Vale, Gretchen Schmaltz, Cindy Lou Skelton, Mack Mackinow and Susan Wharton made their binds from precincts 10, 5, 3, 1, 14 and 14 respectively.

Nancy Warren applied for the Freshmen's Womens Senate and Susie Ghiselin for the social chairman of the Freshman class.

Students wishing to participate in the elections are requested to file their applications at the main desk of Longmire Bldg.

The deadline for all applicants is Friday.

More Scholarship Winners Enroll For Fall Trimester

Three winners of National Merit Scholarships have joined one scholarship-holder already on campus to enroll for the fall trimester.

The three new students, all from Florida, are among 1500 winners of National Merit Scholarships selected from testing last spring's high school seniors all over the United States.

Of these scholarship winners 423, or 27 per cent, are from the South and of the southern winners 224 chose to use their awards for study in Southern universities and colleges.

Lowell Turner, 18, attended FSU as a Merit Scholar in 1962-63 and has registered for her sophomore year. She's in the School of Music and is majoring in voice but is taking piano and music theory and is quite interested also in French.

Miss Turner and the three freshman Merit Scholars have several things in common in addition to being among the "cream of the crop" of high school graduates. All have a wide field of intellectual interests, all play the piano and all have participated in many extra-curricular activities.

The three new scholarship-holders, all registered for their freshman year, are Martha E. Grant, 18, Sue Dicus, 18, and Maria Mullinaux, 18. Miss Dicus and Miss Mullinaux are in the Basic Studies Honors Program.

Miss Grant is considering majoring in science, possibly chemistry.

Miss Dicus is considering majoring in mathematics.

Miss Mullinaux is majoring in English and political science, and she has been an intern on the St. Petersburg Times during the summer.

Convocation To Be Held

The traditional Upperclassmen Women's Convocation will take place at 2 p.m. tomorrow in Westcott Auditorium with Dean Warren as the featured speaker.

This year's meeting will be unique in that it will be presented with a theme. Watch the posters saying, "It's Coming" for more details.

All upperclassmen women are urged to attend.

City Court To Try Campus Violators

Campus police have been authorized this year to use the city court as a means of enforcement of traffic regulations, according to Lt. James Lewis of the Security Division.

Violations which create hazards will be issued summons to appear before the judge in city court. There will be no appeals through the university at all from a summons.

Violations which warrant a summons are driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated; permitting an unlawful use of a driver's license; reckless driving; leaving the scene of an accident resulting in property damage of more than $50; unlawful speeding; passing a stopped school bus; improper equipment; and all other moving violations.

Citations will be written for other violations, such as parking appeals. Any student receiving a citation ticket should come to the traffic office to pay a fine, or to seek advice about appealing it to the Student Traffic Court.

Any student receiving a summons must appear in city court, or make arrangements through the City Court Clerk not to attend court (this might entail posting a bond and forfeiting it). Failing to appear will constitute an additional charge in city court.

In addition, new traffic regulations are being enforced in an attempt to alleviate traffic jams occuring when people are trying to get on and off campus.

Parking is now allowed on only one side of Magnolia Way. This is a result of seven accidents which have occurred there.

No undergraduates will be permitted to drive or park on campus between 7:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

It is advised that all students driving a car, or other vehicle, on campus go by the Traffic and Security Office in room 1 and room 2 of Westcott to pick up a booklet enlarging the parking and traffic regulations.

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE. . . NO PLACE LIKE HOME

... or is there, ask students who gaze wonderingly at the unusual architectural style on the site of the new Gamma Phi Beta House. Members have insisted that the present structure will be torn down, however--so worried rushees can relax. (Photo by Richard Newman)

Felines Adopt Frosh

Two coeds emerge from the Seminole carrying mysterious bottles of a liquid white substance, then make a mad dash to one of the freshman dorms before the prying eyes of an upperclassman can notice the absence of their rat caps.

Once in the semi-security of the dorm's shadows, the two young ladies furtively begin to prowl around the remote niches of dorm drainpipes. They are obviously looking for something lurking about but why all the secrecy?

A high-pitched whistle is heard from a second story window and a moment later a third coed appears, bearing an empty container resembling a deep saucer. Now the hunters begin to emit curious sounds at short intervals. In the distance one can hear a faint cry.

Suddenly the hunters become aware of two eyes gleaming forth from a flower patch. "Here, kitt-kitty-kitty. . . .here, kitty." A dignified looking Mrs. Cat performs a long, luxurious stretch before calling for her children, who have been playing in the rocks around the drainpipe.

The sacrifice is poured after a brief oblation has duly (if accidentally) been observed, and the cat family accepts with solemn mien the meal they have received.

Thus a long established tradition of students adopting campus kittens (or is it vice verse) is continued in style, with a knowing wink from tors and maintenance men "stumble" onto these "secrets" students, as they have been ling onto similar secrets for the p 50 years.

A wistful look on the part of Tabby, Jr. could mean that he is remembering all the fun the kitten clan had back in the "good ole days" summer. . .when there were no people around. Blackie is more interest in the photographer.

Community Cooperates

400 Coeds Move Off-Campus

A lot of hard work on the part of university personnel and community residents has paved the way for 400 grateful girls to finally attend FSU this fall.

As early as March, all women residence halls were filled in advance for the fall trimester and the University Housing Office and director of admissions began rejecting eligible applicants due to lack of rooms.

Each applicant was informed she could re-apply to the Off-Campus Housing Office on the chance that a room in a private residence could be found, if she was interested--there were 499 interested.

Last year some 270 women were placed in housing off campus, and it was no easy talk. Single women undergraduates under 21 must be placed in residence where all FSU regulations applying to women students in this category can be observed. Dormitory rules must exist for these students in off campus housing.

In the past few years FSU has solved the housing problem of a few women students by allowing them to live off-campus in the homes of close friends of the family or relatives, under strict supervision. This year places of this kind were found only for 90 women, leaving 409 still unhoused.

Mrs. Millicent K. Cook, assistant supervisor of off-campus housing, began to try to find what other possible means could be found for housing the overflow from women's residence halls.

This challenge spurred her to get owners of houses to renovate the interiors completely and to provide the additional spaces necessary. The renovated houses each would then have a supervisor who would serve in a similar capacity to the chief counselor of a women's dormitory.

"We wrote each girl and pledged that we would find a place for her to live, if there was any way humanly possible," related Mrs. Cook.

First, she knew her church, The First Christian Church, was close to the University and had an older building in back that was being used as an annex but which with renovation could be used as a "multiple housing unit." She took her problem to the church board and received complete cooperation.

The church board borrowed $3,000 from a Tallahassee bank and called on members to help with the work of making the annex into a housing unit for FSU women students. Board members stressed that ti would be a non profit operation.

Labor Day found the minister and many members of his congregation still busily engaged in last-minute touches to meet the University's deadline for housing women, when all residence halls opened.

The church cottage is nicely furnished and will house eight women and one supervisor. The First Christian Church board has named it the "Chi Rho" house, or Christhouse. Regardless of denominations, women students will be welcomed.

Mrs. Cook next toured the residential sections surrounding the campus and "sold" her "multiple housing" plan to 15 house owners. She has found a place to live for more than 400 of the 499 applicants up to date.

Students must sign for two trimesters with house woners who have rebuilt the inside of their homes to accommodate girl students. Maximum rent per student is $179.50, minimum $130, per trimester. Students can choose where they want to live, to some extent.

The University furnishes a supervisor from the Housing Office, usually a graduate student, who will get her apartment free and in cases of large units a small salary.

The largest multiple unit will house 36 women. All students are supervised under the same regulations as apply to residence halls on campus.

All units must meet safety standards of the State Restaurant and Hotel Commission. Housing units have living rooms, sufficient bathrooms, closet space, and study rooms. Each will have a bed, chest of drawers, table or desk, book shelf and study chair. There is maid service and telephone service. The University Housing Office will make periodic inspections to insure safety, cleanliness, and attractiveness.

Community house owners who have cooperated with the FSU Off-Campus Housing Office in re-modeling the inside of the homes for multiple housing have all given names to their units.

Mrs. Mabel Wells of 619 W. Jefferson calls her house "Bellis House"; Robert H. Maybin owns the "Campus Inn Cottage" on 529 1/2 West College; Mrs. Norman McPeak has "Campus Side" at 610 W. Pensacola Street; Thomas Alston will manage the First Christian Church's "Chi Rho House"; "Dedge House" is owned by Eugene Dedge of the purchasing department at FSU and is located at 309 Hayden Road; Mrs. C. R. Horne owns "Horne House" at 2401 West Tennessee; "Park Avenue House" is owned by John C. Moore, 537 Park Avenue.

"Norman House" at 108 and 110 Edwards Street is managed by Mrs. C. H. Hickman; Mrs. M. J. Woods, 515 W. Park Avenue, owns "Park Terrace House"; "Richardson House" at 530 W. College is owned by Mrs. Bessie Gramling; "Sandy's House" at 441 W. College is owned by Miss Sandy K. Woods; and "Heimer House" at 545 Bryan Street is owned by Mrs. Marina Heimer.

However, not all of the multiple unit owners are residents of Tallahassee. Some out-of-town property owners came forward to cooperate with the University and to provide a home for 400 women students at FSU.

Greek Column Deadline Set

Sororities and fraternities wishing to contribute articles to the Flambeau for "Greek Columns" must submit releases by 5 p.m. on the Wednesday prior to the Friday of desired publication.

All articles should be typed and kept as brief as possible. Material should be left in 213 Longmire, with the name of the sorority or fraternity at the top.

Spend a dime and save a life seems to be the newest motto of the "Campus Parking Meter Society" as a recent army of the time expired bandits is now located between the Psychology Bldg. and Westcott. Those 60 minute limits may be fine for Mon.-Wed.-Fri. classes, but what will happen on Tues.-Thurs. classes when time runs out?

Miss Gymkana Contest Scheduled For Next Week

assport" may well signify a sport to beauty and first-class ertainment at the Miss Gymkana test, coming up Sept. 20 in Tully nasium.

this contest the members of the rt of Honor will be chosen, and s Gymkana will be selected from . Miss Gymkana and her court be featured in "Passport," this 's Gymkana production which be presented on Oct. 23-26. ntestants will be judged on the s of beauty, charm and poise, Hartley Price of the Physical ation Dept. said. Price enraged all campus organizations sponsor entrants for this test, but added that it isn't nesary for an entrant to have a nsor. The deadline for entries is t. 19 at 5 p.m.

ter the Court of Honor has been selected, two more factors will be considered in making the final selection of Miss Gymkana: cooperation and costume design. Miss Gymkana will be responsible for her own costume in the show and will work closely with the Gymkana troupe throughout the year.

Contest judges will be Dr. Florence Cole, Eddie Cubbon, Pat Hogan, Fernando Lecuona, Robert Leigh, Keith Pitchford and Dr. and Mrs. Hartley Price.

Organizing and coordinating the event is the Miss Gymkana Committee, composed of Mary Ellen Yaggy (last year's Miss Gymkana), Janet Rodebaugh, Carol Ann Luck, Patty Henderson, Larry Aaron, Tracey Torry and Mitch Weinstock.

Price pointed out that last year's contest had over 325 contestants, and urged all faculty and students to attend.

Bradley Attends Conference

Dr. Ralph A. Bradley, professor and head of the Statistics Dept., will attend the Fifth International Biometric Conference at Cambridge University through Saturday.

The Conference is being sponsored by the Biometric Society, an international society devoted to research in the mathematical and statistical aspects of biology.

Bradley will present a paper before the Conference entitled, "Sequential Rank Tests," a manuscript based on a continuing program of joint research with Dr. Frank Wilcoxon of FSU.

While at the session, Bradley will participate in meetings of the Council of the Scoelty as one of the members of the council from the U.S. He was also editor of the society journal, "Biometrics," from 1957 to 1962.

Following the Fifth International Biometric Conference, he will attend meetings of the Royal Statistics Society in Southampton, England. His plans include visits to Oxford University and to the Rothamsted Experimental Station in Harpenden. Bradley returns to FSU next week.

Yearbook On Sale

All 1963-64 Tally Ho's will be sold in Room 18 Longmire Tuesday through Friday this week.

The price for all students will be $3 report Patty Childs and Beth Ann Legate, co-editors of the Tally Ho.

Senior picture appointments will also be made at this place. Senior pictures will be taken Monday through Friday during the 2nd and 3rd weeks of classes, Sept. 17-Sept. 20, and Sept. 23-Sept. 27, from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; from 1:30 p.m.-5 p.m. and on Mon.-Thurs. evenings from 7-9.

Any student graduating by August, 1964, must have a picture taken during this time, or he WILL NOT BE PICTURED in the Tally Ho. Boys should wear white shirts and ties. Graduation gown, cap and formal collar are provided.

ABSOLUTELY NO SENIOR PICTURES WILL BE TAKEN AFTER SEPT. 27.

'Free' Camera Costs Plenty

(ACP)--Members of the Physics Dept. at Montana State College, Bozeman, Mont., were browsing through a federal surplus catalog and read about a camera they felt might be of some use.

"The Exponent," campus newspaper, said the "ground camera" could be had for the asking, in line with a government practice of making some surplus items available to federal or stte institutions.

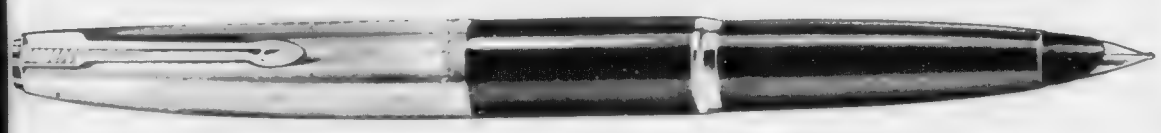
The catalog gave little of the details, but a free camera certainly isn't anything to scoff at. The order went in and the Physics Dept. sat back and waited for the arrival by parcel post or express.

Finally the camera arrived. . . all 4,400 pounds of it.

A truck rolled up to the Math-Physics Bldg., loaded with huge crates. The camera had arrived in pieces. The shipping charges: $200.

The camera became a monster, cluttering up the halls and defying students attempting to get by. The question of the hour: What to do with it?

Paul F. Jesswein of the Information Office felt they could use it over at the Montana Hall Annex, although this would mean knocking out a portion of wall in a basement room to fit the total length of the "beast."



The Physics Dept. breathed a sigh of relief and sent the beast over to the annex. There she lies in pieces, anxiously awaiting the moment when she can earn her freight.

WFSU-TV Resumes Schedule

WFSU-TV resumed a full schedule this week with a varied offering of telecourses, TV features, plays, operas and musical productions for TV watchers.

Telecourses which began this week include one in English, two in Spanish, one in French, and one in Americanism versus Communism. Also being shown is "Operation Alphabet," an adult education course designed to teach reading and writing.

Featured on tomorrow's viewing schedule will be "Parent and the Preschooler" at 9:15 a.m. One of a series produced in cooperation with the FSU Institute of Human Development, it is designed to give insight into the problems of the young child. Other programs include "The Evening Edition," a regular summary of news at 5:55 p.m.; a children's show at 6 p.m.; "Writers of Today" at 8 p.m. Patsy Gilliam's dance group will be featured on 'Directors Workshop" at 8:30 p.m.

"FSU Football Preview" is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday. A season preview, it will feature coaches, players, scouts and game films. At 8:30 p.m. "The Importance of Being Earnest" will be shown on "Classic Cinema."

An archeological quiz game, "What In the World?" will be a highlight of Friday's viewing schedule. It will be at 1 p.m. followed at 1:30 p.m. by a telecourse in fifth grade social studies, "Our Nation's Story." A roundup of cooking tips will provide the topic of a 2 p.m. show on "Homemaking Today." On "Reading Out Loud" at 7 p.m., the late Eleanor Roosevelt may be seen and heard reading Rudyard Kipling's "The Butterfly Who Stamped."

Floyd's "Susannah" To Return Here

The opera "Susannah" which won for its FSU composer, Carlisle Floyd, the New York Music Critics Award for 1956 will be shown to audiences in Tallahassee and seven other Florida communities beginning in October.

The world premiere of "Susannah" was at FSU in 1955, and its return here is slated for Oct. 17-19. Dean Karl O. Kuersteiner of the School of Music will announce at a later date the names of seven of the communities.

Since the opening in 1955, the opera has been presented about 100 times. It is included by the New York City Opera company as a standard part of their repertory.

"Susannah," an opera which provides a Tennessee mountain setting for a new version of the story of Susannah and the Elders, was performed at the Brussels Worlds Fair in 1958 and has also been performed in several other cities of this country.

The FSU production will be by the newly formed state Opera Association of Florida, an organization created by the 1963 Legislature. Richard Collins of the music faculty is opera director.

The State Symphony of Florida under the baton of Robert Sedore, also created at the recent legislative session, will present two concerts in Westcott Auditorium this fall. Richard Burgin will be violin so for the first performance on O 30, the other on March 24 will f ture Henryk Szeryng as violin s ist.

According to Kuersteiner, c man of the executive committee the State Symphony-Opera Asso tion, tickets for all three e will be available on a season basis.

Benefactor season tickets are (for two season tickets); sp season tickets are $10; and season tickets are $5. Sing mission tickets, if available will be $2 and go on sale tw before each concert.

Club To Present Foreign Films

e FSU foreign film club will ent ten films to the student body g trimesters I and II.

ission to the films will be ricted to people holding season ts. These may be obtained at Westcott Ticket Office through 4 and at the entrance to West- Auditorium on the night of the performance.

s also possible to get season s from Mrs. Doris Oglesby, Ivanhoe Road, Tallahassee. All rmances are scheduled for day evenings at 8 p.m.

e first film to be presented will n English film, "The Kitchen," Sept. 24. The film is an allegory e peoples of the world, per- ted in a polyglot culinary staff r pressure.

ct. 1, an Indian film, "Devi," be presented. The story takes e in present day India where a r dreams of his daughter's n. The dream is proclaimed gradually accepted. As a result, ries of tragedies occur in the

The Street of Shame," a Japan- film, will be presented on Oct. This is a social document of ern Japan exploring the prob- s of legalized prostitution. Not a cheap, sensationalized thriller by any means, this is an expertly photographed, poignant drama.

A Norwegian film, "My Nine Lives," will be presented on Nov. 12. The film is based on the Book-of-the-Month Club best-seller "We Die Alone," by David Haworth. It is the story of a Norwegian patriot whose struggles with the Nazis, first as a soldier, later as a spy and finally as a saboteur amid the beauties of a winter wonderland.

"The Awakening," an Italian film, will be presented on Dec. 10. Anna Magnani stars in a compelling and touching story of a nun torn between her religious vows and maternal instinct.

"The Law is the Law," a French film, will be presented on Jan. 7. This is a hilarious border dispute involving smuggling. bigamy, and national loyalties of the French-Italian border.

A Polish film, "Eve Wants to Sleep," will be presented on Jan. 14. This film is a combination of comedy, satire and fantasy. Eve is a young girl who has just arrived, penniless, from the provinces to begin her schooling in Warsaw. As the film progresses one is rather reminded of Buster Keaton tragedies, occuring in a bygone film era.

"Jonas," a German film, will be presented on Feb. 4. This film was voted the "Best Film of the Year" by the German film critics and was the winner of seven other awards. Unorthodox in all aspects the film reveals the actions and thoughts of an extreme conformist tormented by strong feelings of guilt.

An unusual Swedish film, "The Magician," will be shown March 10, featuring a tour-de-force of Gothic cinema. Bearing the title role of the magician is Max von Sydow as Dr. Vogler, who may or may not be unable to speak or be a hypnotist of horrifying skill, or possess supernatural powers.

The final movie of the year will be a British film entitled "I'm All Right, Jack," starring Peter Sellers as a bumbling union steward unhappily entangled in a situation beyond his control. The action and laughter in this clever satire are triggered when a scheming industrialist employs a hare-brained nephew in his missiles factory.

Broadcasters Dread Governmental Reprisal

The broadcasting industry hesitates to report fully on all aspects of public affairs because it fears possible Government reprisal.

This conclusion is reflected in statements of Congressional leaders published recently by TV Guide.

"Many officials there (Washington) believe that anxiety and fear of the Government's latent power over the industry inhibits broadcasters from digging more deeply into public-affairs subjects," the magazine said in the second of a two-part series by Edith Efron on broadcasting public-affairs coverage. Government, business and labor are regarded as the key areas in national life, she said.

Both Democratic and Republican lawmakers alike agree that broadcasters are apprehensive about Government regulations. "I've been around here since 1947, and I've never gotten so much mail from communications people expressing general apprehension, anxiety and concern over the FCC as today," Sen. Thruston Morton (R-Ky.), former chairman of the Republican National Committee, said.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of the Committee on Inter-state and Foreign Commerce, said, "The broadcasters are afraid of Government regulation. They're fearful of the FCC. They're even more fearful of the individual members of the FCC, of the power of the FCC over license renewal.

"The broadcasters are a regulated industry. They know that the people who control them can hurt them--and hurt them badly.

"Right now, if the industry has fear, it would be of Bobby Kennedy and of President Kennedy. It is the Administration which names the FCC commissioners. When anybody is in a position to cut your jugular vein... well, naturally, it causes concern," Harris said.

Several members of the FCC, while acknowledging that some broadcasters may be uneasy about regulation, feel there is no basis for this feeling. E. William Henry, newly-appointed chairman, regards the fears as "unjustified" and related to the profit factor.

"I think the fear is healthy. It's better than complacency. We are their conscience. Maybe they have an uneasy conscience. That's more their fault than ours," he said.

Commissioner Kenneth Cox said the broadcasters have no reason to worry about losing their license. He said that no broadcaster who operates his station in the public interest has yet lost his license. "I don't think this is fear at all. It is economic resentment," Cox declared.

Newton Minow, who resigned recently as FCC chairman, said while in office, "The broadcasters' fear is based on misinformation. Just show me one that ever got into trouble since I have been here. Show me one. This really has irritated me. If we're interfering with their free speech, why don't they tell us to go to hell and take us to court?"

Bus Schedule Announced

The FSU bus service will once again offer intra-campus transportation to students for the fall and spring trimesters.

The schedule of departures has been arranged to coincide with class schedule to facilitate reaching classes on opposite sides of the campus without being late.

The bus departs from Westcott beginning at 7:50 a.m. alternating every 40 and then 30 minutes. It leaves Smith Hall beginning at 7:40 a.m. alternating every 40 and then 30 minutes Monday through Friday.

A complete run takes from five to seven minutes.

Many student requested additional buses and more variety in departure times, but a count on the passenger load has indicated that more buses were not needed.

A new stop has been added at the Women's Gym and the Home Economics Building.

"Students are urged to take advantage of the bus system, as it is for the benefit of the students," according to Lt. James Lewis, Security Division.

Detail schedules are posted on dormitory bulletin boards.

Frats Charge 'Look' Unfair

(ACP)--Fraternity leaders at Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich., criticized as unfair a recent magazine article charging fraternity authoritarianism. "The Daily Collegian" said the article in "Look" magazine state that "Fraternities must prove they belong on campus - or get off." The picture report focused on the life of a Phi Gamma Delta pledge at the University of Illinois.

Bernie LeMieux, president of Tau Kappa Epsilon at Wayne State, said that, unlike the pledges at Illinois, "We want our pledges to know us, and we want to get to know them."

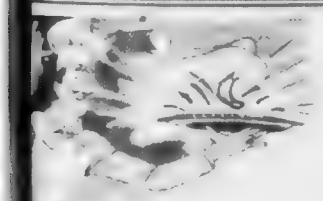
Commented TKE Social Chairman Bob Diehl: "A gross generalization. They have based their report on one man in one chapter; of one fraternity on one campus. Of course, fraternities on all campuses are undergoing a change, as is the entire educational process. I feel a well-rounded education needs outside activities."

"A pledge is in no position to judge the true aspects of fraternity life," said Tom Carter of Delta Chi fraternity. "The article is not valid in its criticism."

The "Look" report claimed that most fraternities are "citadels of snobbism and racial bigotry."

"This is not so at Wayne," Carter said. "Here, everyone expreses himself as an individual and in a democratic manner. Usually, we pick the best route to travel."

Also commenting on the article was director of student activities Dr. J. Don Marsh. "They've pulled out the old bromide that fraternal activity is incompatible with scholarship," he said. "The academic average of fraternity men at the University has always been above the all-male average.



"But fraternities, of course, are not paragons of virtue. They are normal members of society and a credit to the University."

Pete Has Problems

As FSU Head Football Coach Bill Peterson watched his Seminole gridders kick off the third week of practice for the Miami tilt yesterday, he had little to be thankful for. This looks it will be one of those trying seasons.

To begin with, the schedule will be one of the toughest the gridders from Florida State will ever face. When the athletes reported August 24, five lettermen were missing from the ranks.

Phil Spooner, fourth leading rusher last year with a 4.4 yard average, injured his kidney in last year's spring Garnet-Gold game and it hasn't healed yet. Steve Slay, a 207 pound junior guard from Atlanta, and Dick Hasselbart, a 6-4, 241 pounder from Genoa, Ohio, decided they did not want to play college football. Cliff Gunter, a junior end from Dothan, Ala., and Hank Sytsma of Sarasota quit school to go to work.

"These losses hurt us tremendously depthwise," Pete said. "Now we'll have to play too many sophomores. We had counted a whole lot on Spooner and Sytsma caught 18 passes for us last year."

As the first week of practice rolled by, it became apparent that the team needed a re-introduction to the fundamentals of blocking, tackling, and hustling. The second week of preparation was devoted to the mastering of these fundamentals and attempts to find players capable of playing two-way (offense and defense) football.

These two trying weeks ended Saturday in a scrimmage between the varsity candidates and the new freshmen, which was anything but encouraging.

The pass defense showed up with gaps and was penetrated for a TD by the freshman quarterback. The varsity linemen occasionally allowed frosh front wallers to slip into the backfield. The first teamers also managed to incur almost 200 yards of penalties.

"The big disappointment in this game," Peterson sighed when confronted in his office, "was that we just weren't getting after people the way we did in the past. There just wasn't any hitting Saturday."

His plans for this third week of practice will emphasize a "lot of close contact and hitting, especially line drills, pass defense and pass offense. Our fundamental techniques are adequate now, for we can never completely master them."

He continued, "This is our critical week. Now we've worked on fundamentals and we must smooth everything out.

Chiefs Quarterback Steve Tensi patiently awaits his turn at directing the varsity in Saturday's scrimmage with the freshmen which the varsity won 41-7 in six quarters of play.

Tensi went 10 for 14 in the day's action, including a 45-yard TD pass to Right Halfback Fred Bil[illegible]nikoff. Coach Bill Peterson (in white hat) is in the background.

Michigan State Takes Litwhiler

Contrary to all previous reports, FSU Head Baseball Coach Danny Litwhiler was not signed to a similar position at Michigan State University until yesterday, September 9. No salary figures were released.

Litwhiler built FSU into one of the major collegiate baseball powers and took Seminole baseball teams to three College World Series since 1957. FSU reportedly had been negotiating a week to keep Litwhiler, but couldn't match the more than $15,000 he would be expected to make at MSU.

University President Gordon Blackwell and Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha "bemoan the loss" and give Litwhiler nothing but praise, but his best compliment comes from Biggie Munn, Athletic Director at Michigan State who thinks he has the best college coach in the country.

Since Litwhiler came to FSU in 1948, five of his players have become All-Americans including Dick Howser of the Cleveland Indians and more recently catcher Buddy Teagle. He himself still holds a National League record for fewest errors in 150 or more games, with none in 151 games as an outfielder for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1942. This also is a NL record for the most consecutive errorless games.

63 - '64 Student Government Activities Underway

JOHNNY SMITH

By BEN THORNAL and SHEILA APPLEBY

Flambeau Staff Writers

The student government activities for '63 - '64 are now well underway and appear to be on a very successful road.

The executive branch, headed by President Johnny Smith, has announced a new policy for keeping the student body better informed on the activities of their government. By informing students of the future plans of student government and then to let them know when these plans have been accomplished it is his hope that students will take a more active interest in student government.

The new administration very effectively used the past summer for planning and organizing activities for the coming year. This early period was especially helpful in familiarizing governmental officials with their respective jobs. It allowed President Smith's administration to be in full operation by the time classes began this trimester.

"For the past 4 or 5 years student government has been expending effort toward perfecting its internal workings. Now we have reached the point where our own organization is effective enough so that we can use this effort and direct it externally, resulting in more direct benefits for the student body," related President Smith.

Some of the numerous projects the executive branch has planned for the coming year include:

A stronger revision of the academic honor system will be submitted in the hope that the faculty senate will approve it.

All cabinet members have been requested to propose legislation affecting their areas in recommending better changes.

There is to be published a pamphlet dealing with the court systems to inform students of their individual rights in court.

Likewise to be published soon is a student government pamphlet which will describe completely the operations of student government and which, added Smith, is "to be used as a guide for acquainting all the new people who enter student government with its workings." It will also answer a great demand on the part of other student governments about how our student government system works.

The student government will be working closely with the faculty in planning the administration of the new University Union. The Union should be completed by May of 1964.

Formerly there was no organized international student exchange program but one is being planned under the direction of Carol Stuyverson. Also student government intends to help the international students on campus build up their program.

A host bureau consisting of 20 student government officials has been formed and will be at the disposal of university administration to entertain and guide campus visitors and dignitaries.

A community - student relations bureau has been organized to establish a better relationship between university students and downtown merchants. This bureau will exist

New Campus Tour Given By Seniors

By AL GALBRAITH

Campus Tour signs, shown all over campus, have been placed as a guide to visitors, parents and legislators, and to provide a concise, well-rounded tour which can easily be followed.

The tour is a project of the Senior Class has printed tour maps to accompany the signs. The maps are available at the lobby in Longmire, the information center in Westcott, and eventually at a distribution box in front of Westcott. They also have been distributed to the information booth at the State Capitol, the Chamber of Commerce, and motels located near the campus in order to help campus visitors.

Freshmen and transfer students are encouraged to mail a copy of the tour to their parents.

The tour route is marked with fifteen permanent metal signs set in concrete.

The signs and maps were financed almost entirely from the proceeds of the "Trimester Stomp" dance sponsored by the Senior Class last spring.

"We are proud of the Florida State University and the many achievements which have brought national recognition to our campus. We are equally proud of our vigorous building program and the many modern facilities. The campus tour project of the senior class is the result of our pride in Florida State," emphasized Senior Class President Tom Haney.

"We feel that the tour will serve as a welcome to campus visitors as well as an indication of our pride. We hope that the tour and accompanying maps will be an invitation to all our visitors to make a complete tour of our beautiful campus."

The route begins at the main gate on College Avenue, passes the freshman women's dormitories, follows Palmetto Drive past the Student Center and the site of the new Student Union Building and swimming pool, and swings past the men's dormitories and Tully Gym. The route returns to the main campus past Magnolia Hall, the library, and the older buildings to the main gate. (Map shown on page 3.)

ONE WAY TO SEE THE CAMPUS, GANG

...maintains Tom Hainey, president of the senior class as he directs all comers on the newly posted FSU Campus Tour route with signs provided by the Senior Class of '64. Maps giving the highlights of the tour and the route to be followed may be picked up in Longmire at the main desk.

Students File For Elections

By WALT MARTINDALE

Twenty-nine students had filed declarations of candidacy in the Freshman Class and Precinct Senator elections, as of noon yesterday, according to Commissioner of Elections John Kaney.

Of these 29 students 23 have filed for precinct senator, leaving 12 precincts with no candidates declared and only four offices contested. The deadline for filing for an office ends promptly at 5:00 p.m. Friday.

Any precinct for which no one files forfeits the right to representation in Senate this year. Kaney strongly urged that all interested students file and that all freshmen participate in the elections. He emphasized that no active campaigning or campaign literature will be permitted before 5 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 17.

A compulsory meeting for all candidates who have filed at that time will be held tomorrow in Longmire Auditorium from 6 to 6:30 p.m. This meeting will cover election rules and serve to clarify any questions concerning the campaign. Those who cannot attend should make arrangement with the Elections Bureau.

Filing for declarations of candidacy since Tuesday are:

Senate Precincts: 1. Cindy Lou Skelton; 2. Judy Booze; 3. Gretchen Schmaltz; 5. Marie Vale, 10. Sarah Jane Carter, and Barbara MacDonald; 12. Pete Dowling, G.R. Neie; 13. Bill Caldwell, Richard Nichols, and Curt Smith, 14. (off campus) Walter B. Dickson, Michael F. Fakey, Carol Ann Gresimer, Larry E. Lake, Mack McKinnon, Bill McQuinn, Thomas Riggins, Ed Scott, Susan Wharton; 16. Bruce Robinson; 19. Bonnilu Lair and Mimi McGaw.

Cabinet Notice

There will be a compulsory meeting of all cabinet members in room 210 of Longmire Wednesday.

The meeting will be from 3:30 to 4 p.m. and will not interfere with any rush parties.

Get Movie Tickets Early

Tickets for campus movies will be available all day Friday, Rm. 102 Westcott, for those students who wish to avoid the rush Friday and Saturday night.

Students, University personnel and their families are invited to attend all of the movies planned for the coming trimester.

Admission is 25 cents for all movies. Any profit made on movies will be applied toward payment for new projectors.

Movies to be shown this trimester are: "Don't Go Near the Water," Fri. and Sat. Sept. 13, and 14, starring Glenn Ford and Anne Francis; "Sweet Bird of Youth," Fri. and Sat., Sept. 20 and 21, Paul Newman and Geraldine Page; "Boys Night Out," Thurs. and Fri., Sept. 26 and 27, Kim Novak and James Garner.

"Butterfield 8," Thurs. and Fri., Oct. 3 and 4, Elizabeth Taylor and Laurence Harvey; "War and Peace," Fri. and Sat., Oct. 11 and 12, Audrey Hepburn and Mel Ferrer; "Rally Round the Flag Boys," Fri. and Sat., Oct. 18 and 19, Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward; "The Student Prince," Sat. and Sun., Oct. 27 and 27, Anny Blyth and Edmund Purdum.

"Francis of Assissi," Thurs. and Fri. Oct. 31, and Nov. 1, Stuart Whitman and Dolores Hart; "The Time Machine," Sat. and Sun., Nov. 23 and 24, Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux.

"The Innocents," Thurs. and Sat. Dec. 5 and 7, Deborah Kerr, Michael Redgrave; "The Hustler," Fri. and Sat., Dec. 13 and 14, Paul Newman and Jackie Gleason.

Library Hours

The recent decision to extend the hours of the Strozier Library to encompass a 100-hour work week should be welcome news to all students.

The need for longer hours has been apparent for a long time, but has become especially noticeable during the past year, as the trimester has forced midnight researchers into an even tighter schedule. Assignments for research papers and parallel readings mounted, but the doors to the fount of knowledge closed on schedule.

We can appreciate the problems of expense and personnel which Library officials met in making their decision to keep those doors open later. We think, however, that the advantages to students will far outweigh the added cost and inconvenience. It is now up to the students to show that these changes were really necessary, by taking advantage of the late hours to crack down on their Library work.

We are especially pleased that the Library is to remain open Saturday evenings until 10 p.m. In particular, the Saturday hours should give working students more opportunity to complete assignments requiring use of the Library.

Though many social butterflies may never "find time" to take advantage of the Library on weekends, we feel confident there are enough students on campus who will be more than grateful for the Saturday night extension. And despite the fact that University regulations for undergraduate women on campus will keep them from using the Library until midnight Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings, the extra hour of research time should be helpful to those who do not have curfews to meet.

Because the "Flambeau" has editorialized on the obvious need for such an extension, we wish to commend the officials of the Library for their action in meeting student complaints. It is inevitable that this is just one of many changes which will have to be made as FSU continues to grow.

'Equality' Demands Conformity

BY ROBERT B. LINDEN

While reading Eric Fromm's book "The Art of Loving," I came upon an idea of his which has a remarkable pertinence to today's civil rights struggle.

As one who has read anything of Fromm's quickly realizes, his main theme concerns man's constant struggle not to be alone and that man has a great need thereby to conform.

He feels that this drive towards conformity leads towards the inevitable elimination of differences and that this tendency "is closely related to the concept and the experience of equality, as it is developing in the most advanced industrial societies."

Equality has meant since Biblical times that we are all one in that we share the same human-divine substance under God. It also meant that individual differences must be respected and not condemned for the sake of conformity.

Kant has said that "all men are equal inasmuch as they are ends, and only ends and never means to each other." This shows the philosophic idea that equality is a term which has been traditionally defined to mean a condition wherein individuality can be best developed.

However, today we find our western world and particularly the United States having transformed this term's meaning. Equality now refers to the "automatons" or those who have given up individuality for the security brought through conformity. Equality today has still the color and enthusiasm of individual ruggedness, thinking, and freedom, but when used by those leading the civil rights movement and others, it is a perverted use for they only mean uniformity and conformity, not individuality.

Today equality means not development of the individual but its destruction so that we may all be the same.

Do not misunderstand me; I am not speaking out against the civil rights of the colored or any other group, I am merely trying to show that anytime the word equality can be used, the word "sameness" should be substituted because equality means not oneness as it originally intended to mean sameness.

U.S. Backing Despotism In South Viet Nam Stand

The position of the United States in South Viet Nam raises many interesting questions as to what we are called upon to fight for, or against.

Traditionally the U.S. has reacted negatively to aggressive totalitarianism in any of its forms--or so we are taught. Our conflicts with Germany and Japan, our opposition to Soviet expansion, and more recently our dread of Communist China appear as the natural consequences of the democratic mind in its relation with authoritarian and anti-democratic mentalities.

I think we should bear in mind the fact that it is not Communism which repels us, nor is Communism particularly an evil or repulsive political philosophy. It is Communist totalitarianism that we are fighting, just as we fought German and Japanese totalitarianism. I do not think that Communism inevitably leads to totalitarianism, neither does democracy always guarantee freedom.

South Viet Nam is essentially a totalitarian state, or fast becoming one. Traditional Catholic conservatism merged with a zealous anti-Communism has produced a regime which, if recent news reports can be trusted, is hated by the vast majority of its people and oppressive to them.

The United States, though outwardly disturbed by the actions of the Viet Nam regime, is still supporting it and is co-responsible for i[t] tions. That the Diem gover[n] has been unpopular is not [n]ew[s]. United States has, however, [p]re[f]er red to back a "puppet" because [o]f almost fanatic concern to defe[at] Viet Cong guerrillas.

It is a classic case of diplom[atic] blunder for us to be supporting [a] type of totalitarianism over an[d] Both socialists and liberals h[ave] long objected to this feature [of] American policy which also inclu[des] American policy which als[o in]cludes aid to Portugal, South [Afri]ca, Formosa and Spain. Does [any]one really believe that we are [serv]ing the cause of freedom and hu[man] dignity by aiding local despots [to] tyrannize their subjects and d[eny] them the rights under the prete[nse] of being anti-Communist?

Lambda Chi Gets Award

Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity, Zeta Rho Chapter, has won the IFC Scholarship Award for the spring trimester of 1963.

The award is presented to the fraternity having the highest average on campus each trimester. The overall average for Lambda Chi Alpha was 2.6003, compared with the average among all undergraduate men which was 2.4223, according to figures released from the Office of Admissions.

The Lambda Chi Alpha average set a new record among fraternities on campus.

The chapter also received a trophy from its national headquarters in Indianapolis for placing first among fraternities on campus in scholarship. The trophy was presented to the chapter on Monday night by Clay Gooch, scholarship chairman.

FSU To Host Law Institute

More than 200 police officers and administrators from law enforcement agencies will be attending the First Annual Southern Institute for Law Enforcement to be held at FSU Nov. 7 and 8.

The two-day institute will be conducted by the Department of Criminology at FSU with the cooperation of the Division of General Extension, Florida Institute for Continuing University Studies.

Sponsoring agencies include Florida Chiefs of Police Association, The Florida Peace Officers Association, Florida Highway Patrol, Fraternal Order of Police, Florida Advisory Council for Law Enforcement Education, Governor's Council for In-Service Law Enforcement Training, and the Florida Sheriff's Association. It is endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Washington, D.C.

Norman E. Pomrenke, instructor in the Department of Criminology, will direct the institute, and Harry Hughey of FICUS will be program administrator.

Speakers will include E. Wilson Purdy, former chief of police in St. Petersburg who is now commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police; Glen Murphy, director of planning and research, St. Louis, Mo., Metropolitan Police Dept., L.B. Sullivan, commissioner of public affairs, Montgomery, Ala.; Dale Carson, sheriff of Duval County; and Chief William Barnes of West Palm Beach Police Dept.

Overseas Jobs Offered

"Round the world in less than 80 days" is a new low-cost Seminar Travel Supplement available to members of the International Student Information Service - International Student Travel Center, an organization which arranges jobs in the European Common Market.

These jobs are available for students or recent graduates, 16 to 30 years of age, wishing to work abroad two to 12 months or more.

Until now jobs had been offered only in the European Common Market countries. With the new "Round the world in less than 80 days" plan students will be able to obtain jobs in Japan and Russia. These trips, worth $1,530 each, will be available in 1964 to the members of ISIS/ISTC.

The four most popular countries under the present plan are Belgium, France, Switzerland, and Germany. Nine categories of jobs are offered, among them: Factory, Child Care, Hospital, and Work Camps.

Average wage is over $120 per month. Some jobs include free meals, some include both board and room. Permanent jobs offered pay more.

More than 200 jobs are available this fall, winter and spring. To encourage early applications, students are offered a saving of up to 25% of the total program price, if they enroll before Dec. 10, 1963. The best choice of jobs go to those who apply early.

FSU Students Abroad On Fulbright Grants

We are happy to announce that two FSU graduate students are now studying abroad as Fulbright grantees. Miss Mignon Champion, a government major, is in India, and Miss Doreen Goyer is studying in Spain in the field of modern languages.

During the 1964-65 academic year more than 800 United States government awards will be available to qualified American graduate students for study or research in any one of 49 countries. The graduate fellowships, granted under the Fulbright-Hays Act of 1961, are administered by the Institute of International Education as part of the educational exchange program of the Department of State.

General eligibility requirements for all types of grants are: U.S. citizenship, a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant, language proficiency sufficient to carry out the proposed study project and for general communication, and good health. A good academic record (a 3.2 average or better) and a demonstrated capacity for independent study are also necessary. Preference is given to applicants under 35 years of age who have not previously lived or studied abroad.

Students now enrolled at the Florida State University should consult Professor George A. Lensen, Fulbright Advisor, Room 215 History, about applying for the 1964-65 scholarships. Enrolled students must submit applications to the campus Fulbright Advisor by October 10, 1963. Seniors may apply.

The awards are grouped in three classifications: U.S. government travel-only grants; U.S. government full grants; and joint U.S.-other government grants. Full grants provide round-trip transportation, tuition, books and maintenance for study in the Americas, Europe and Scandinavia, the Middle and Far East, and the United Kingdom.

A joint U.S. - other government grant is offered cooperatively by the U.S. government (which provides travel) and a foreign government (which provides tuition and maintenance). Joint awards are available for study in Central and South America, Poland and Rumania.

Travel-only grants are intended to supplement maintenance and tuition scholarships received from a university, a private donor, or a foreign government. Travel-only awards are available for study in Austria, Brazil, Denmark, France, Germany, Israel, Italy and the Netherlands.

The Institute of International Education seeks to encourage international understanding and educational development through programs of international educational exchange. It calls special attention to the opportunities available in Ceylon, Iceland, Iran, Pakistan, Poland, Rumania, Turkey, and the United Arab Republic. Special opportunities are also open to graduate students who are interested in teaching English as a foreign language at universities in India, and to those interested in teaching American language and literature, history, philosophy or law at Italian universities.

Since the academic year 1948-49, approximately 12,000 American graduate students have studied abroad under the programs which are now covered by the new Fulbright Act, and FSU is proud to add two more to the list.

Attention!
All Opportunity or Adventure Seeker

The chance of a lifetime is being offered to any student who wishes to be (1) a success in life, (2) a guy who knows all the inside lines and (3) a "MMOC."

The Florida Flambeau invites students interested in writing news, sports, features, columns or working on page layouts, rewrites, or just pushing the broom to fill out the form below and drop it into any of the innumerable campus mail boxes (in an envelope, please... no postage necessary) and we will take care of the rest.

No experience is necessary... what we really want is company (it's lonely up here), but we are willing to accept people with experience gleefully.

Survey Finds Students Approve Of Ratted Hair

(ACP)--"The Daily O'Collegian," Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, took a survey and decided most students on campus are in favor of girls' hair styles, including that special curl, flare or ratting.

Most of the girls said they are in favor of the "bad habit" of backcombing or ratting, even though they wish it were not in style because of the trouble this ratting causes.

Some coeds believed the ratting was going out. At least, they had stopped it, and instead had time to catch a few extra minutes of sleep in the morning.

Hair dressers at the Union Beauty shop say that most of the hair styled there still is done with ratted hair. The "flip" and bouffant page-boy look were the styles most asked for by the girls, a lot of whom have standing weekly appointments to get that "natural look."

A senior Doug Elgin noted that it's important for girls to have enough "hair to be able to tell them from the boys."

Tim Banner, junior, felt that hair and hair styles are the most noticeable and most attractive thing about a girl.

Summing up a majority opinion, senior James Rahe stressed: "Sharp girls always look good in their hair styles, and it's really what's under the hair style that counts."

Box yourself in.

The Volkswagen Station Wagon looks like a box because it's built like a box.

It lets you store the most possible stuff in the least possible space.

(The fact is, the VW carries more than the biggest regular wagons, and it's 4 feet shorter.)

The VW's floor plan looks like any nice little room, except it has 8 chairs, 21 windows, 5 doors and a high ceiling.

You can't see the engine because it's in the back, out of the way.

(If you aren't the curious type, you may never see the engine. No reason to. It rarely uses oil between changes. And it's air-cooled, so there's no water or antifreeze.)

But the real fun comes when you climb into the box and get behind the wheel.

Ahead of you, there's nothing but view; it's head and shoulders above other cars.

Behind you, there's nothing but space. It looks a mile long, but it's really only 9 inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan.

So you can park it like the Sedan.

And like the Sedan, you get a lot of extras (fresh-air heater/defroster, 4-speed stick shift, etc.) at no extra cost.

Volkswagen's put everything they could think of into it. So will you.

having completed the Red Cross Standard First Aid Course. First-aid procedure was taught from Jan. 7 through Feb. 25, 1963. Practice in first-aid is being continued in regular Tuesday night classes attended by patrolmen. No drugs or medication are carried by the police ambulance or administered by its crew.

Under the direction of security director Tanner and Lt. James M. Lewis, Jr., a force of 16 men is responsible for traffic, security and investigations. Patrolmen's duties on the campus are comparable with those in any city or community. The campus is divided into four areas, or posts and a man is assigned to those areas in eight hour shifts 24 hours a day. He is responsible for patrolling the area, enforcing the traffic laws, securing his area looking for suspicious persons cases of breaking and entering, and observation for fire.

During the daytime "our primary problem is traffic control," Lt. Lewis said. He estimates that it takes up two-thirds of the patrolmen's time during the daylight hours. "After dark, when the university has closed down, the work shifts to one of pure security," he added.

Cases handled run the gamut of police work from petty larceny to physical assault. During the past year 10,365 traffic tickets were given out. There were 106 traffic accidents resulting in $8,549.95 worth of property damage on the campus. Busy times for the campus police force occur when the public converges on the campus for events such as football games when both car and foot traffic have to be carefully channeled for the safety of all concerned.

The traffic problem continues to grow even though FSU bans more cars on the campus. There were 10,065 cars registered for operation on the campu the past year. During the class day, only graduate student faculty and staff may have cars on the campus. Beginning this fall, any persons committing violations which constitute a hazard to life and limb will be referred directly to the municipal court for disposition.

On call day and night on the Florida State University campus is this ambulance operated by campus police.

Faculty Notes

Dr. Frank Wilcoxon and Dr. Ralph A. Bradley have returned to FSU after attending the Gordon Research Conference on Statistics in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering in New Hampton.

Wilcoxon presented new material on the design of experiments in chemical engineering that are free from biases due to process change in time.

Bradley acted as chairman of a session on psychometric scaling. He also was elected chairman of the Conference on Statistics in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering for 1965.

Students Win NASA Grants

National Aeronautics and Space Administration predoctoral grants have been awarded to eight Florida State University students, with each traineeship providing a stipend of $2400 for 12 months of training.

There is an additional allowance up to $1000 a year, for dependents. The recipient is assured three years of graduate study, providing he maintains a satisfactory record.

The students, whose studies will be space oriented, are Wallace Joseph Guillaume of New Orleans, La., a chemistry major; Richard Gardner Zepp of Greenville, S.C., a chemistry major; Rilla McCubbins of Enid, Okla., biology major; Herman Terry Fortune of Ramer, Tenn. mathematics and physics major; Rex Eugene Kerstetter of Ashland, Kansas, biology and botany major; John Skipwith Hyams of Natchitoches La., mathematics and physics major; Jerry F. O'Donnell of Durant, Okla., chemistry major; and Robert Clyde Whisonant of Gaffney, S.C., geology major.

as a liaison between the student government office and the downtown Chamber of Commerce.

Smith remarked that "our student government is willing to do what we can to promote the state-wide bond raising program for acceptance by Florida residents. A program which will result in more building facilities for universities and colleges in Florida." Also soon to be ready are the results of a questionnaire sent to the parents of FSU students asking their opinion on what type of commencement services should be held under the new trimester system.

A contact commission headed by Sandy Gay will "poll the student body on certain key issues to give student government a true picture about how the student body feels on different issues," continued Smith.

A housing bureau will be established to work with the director of housing and keep her informed on current student opinion concerning housing.

Thru the efforts of the Smith administration the facilities of the University Depository remained open for students to use this past summer and in the future."

Under the supervision of Attorney General Arnie Gibbs, a defense council and prosecution staff, whose activities will be regulated by the honor court have been put into operation. Smith explained that "the purpose of the revision in the courts procedure is to guarantee the rights of an innocent person and strengthen the prosecution of the guilty."

President Smith ended by saying that he was very impressed with the work the people in student government and the cabinet did this summer and feels confident they will continue to live up to expectations. Certainly if just these tentative aims are carried out, it will be a great year.

Teachers Study Modern Math

Over 150 Florida secondary school teachers are getting oriented to modern mathematics this fall through an In-Service Institute given by Florida State University.

Dr. Eugene D. Nichols, head of the FSU Institute, said that a grant from the National Science Foundation made the studies possible and that all of the teachers taking courses are from junior and senior high schools offering some degree of modern mathematics.

"The Institute is to aid teachers at the secondary school level to make the transition from traditional mathematics to modern mathematics," Dr. Nichols said.

Classes have started in Ft. Lauderdale, Pensacola, Tampa and West Palm Beach with the coordination of the Florida Institute for Continuing University Studies.

In Tampa and Pensacola the courses are geared to the junior high school level. In West Palm Beach and Ft. Lauderdale, the courses are set up for second year high school algebra teachers. Classes are being held in the classrooms of the local high schools. Teachers get a chance to earn four trimester hours of graduate credit in mathematics at FSU. The state also recognizes credit for certification.

In addition to enabling teachers to incorporate new mathematical content into their classroom work, the Institute aims to aid teachers in developing talent, imagination, and enthusiasm for mathematics in their students.

Teachers participating in the Institute pay no tuition or fees, receive travel allowance, and are allowed $10 each for purchase of textbooks.

Litwhiler Leaves A Gap

On a warm January day at St. Petersburg's Al Lang field in 1959, former baseball greats from all corners of the nation gathered for the fourth annual Oldtimers' game.

It was a scoreless duel until the bottom of the sixth inning when a husky National League outfield standout of bygone days stepped to the plate. He was Florida State's Danny Litwhiler, who promptly put a stop to the scoreless business with a booming drive out of the park.

That game winning smash was typical of Litwhiler's determination as a player and as a molder of players. Unfortunately that determination will no longer be seen on the fields of FSU. The Tallahassee version of John McGraw has relocated himself and his family to East Lansing, Michigan, where he will begin his duties immediately as the new Head Baseball Coach of the Michigan State University.

Danny, who serves on the Executive Committee of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches, has been described as one of college baseball's most imaginative and dynamic coaches. When he came to Florida State seven years ago, it was his expressed desire to put the Seminoles out front in the collegiate baseball scramble.

In nine seasons, Litwhiler's Seminoles have won 19 games while losing only 81, appearing in seven NCAA District playoffs and three college World Series. This adds up to a .700 percentage, truly championship pace in anyone's league.

These have been extra measures of success. During the past few seasons, scores of Seminole players have signed with major league clubs. The latest two were shortstop Woody Woodward, who signed with the Milwaukee Braves for $50,000 and is currently pacing the Denver club of the Pacific Coast League, and pitcher Allen Thomas who inked a contract with the Boston Red Sox after compiling a 14-4 record in two seasons at FSU.

One of Litwhiler's prodigies, 145 pound shortstop Dick Howser of West Palm Beach, was named to the NCAA's All-America squad in both 1957 and 1958. Howser is now with the Cleveland Indians after being runner-up in the American League honors in 1961 while being captain of the Kansas City Athletics. Howser had the highest batting average for regular shortstops in the league, and he is the first rookie ever to be named captain of a major league club.

Other Litwhiler coached players to make the grade were now graduated Buddy Teagle who was an All-America catcher and cover boy for the National Collegiate Baseball guide in 1962, and Centerfielder Mike Augustine who was All-American last season.

Litwhiler has the perfect background to be a solid baseball coach. He built up a storehouse of ideas during his major league playing career with the St. Louis Cards, Philadelphia Phils, Cincinnati Reds and old Boston Braves.

Danny went down in the books for several outstanding performances before retiring as an active player in 1950. In 1942 he became the first major league player to play a complete errorless season.

Frosh Pack Power

A 55-member squad of Florida State University freshman football players loaded with fleet-footed halfbacks, talented quarterbacks and big, fast linemen came to the close of their first week of fall practice Saturday.

Their coach, Ken MacLean, who compiled a 61-17-4 record in eight years at neighboring Florida High School, the university training school, said enthusiastically that his first team of FSU yearlings "gives every indication that it will do well."

"FSU certainly did a fine job of recruiting last year," MacLean said. "This team should be a fine group of sophomores in 1964."

Right now, however, they are preparing for a four-game schedule beginning with the Florida Freshmen here in Campbell Stadium Oct. 5. Games with Miami at Tampa Oct. 12, Southern Mississippi at Pensacola Oct. 31, and N. C. State at Daytona Beach Nov. 14 follow.

Pressed to cite outstanding individuals after the first week, MacLean said he could tell more about them after full-scale scrimmages get underway.

"I believe," he said, "that two very fine units will come out of this team. Right now we are at least two-deep at every position. All of the 11 jobs are still wide open."

MacLean said that competition is most keen at the backfield positions, particularly at the halves and quarterback.

Battling for the starting quarterback job are Kim Hammond, 182, from Melbourne and a brother of varsity halfback Bill; H. T. Waller, 177, from Vernon; Jim Perry, 178, from Logan, W. Va.; and Wayne Giardino, 189, from West Palm Beach's Forest Hills High.

Behind them are Tom Allen, 169, of New Martinsville, W. Va.; Billy Richardson, 173 of Jesup, Ga.; and Jim Berry, 173, of Atlanta's Murphy High.

Perry, all-state in three sports at Logan, was West Virginia's most sought-after high school athlete last year.

Still another quarterback, all-stater Vernon Korhn of Tampa's Plant High, contracted pneumonia after five practices and entered the infirmary. He is expected back midway of next week.

Competition is also fierce at halfback. Speedsters Bill Campbell, 170, of Tampa, Larry Green, 177, of Cairo, Ga. and Allen LaMarche, 185, of Hollywood all were timed in 5.5 for the 50-yard dash and 9.9 for the 100 at the opening session. Bob Menendez, 176, of Key West is the fourth figure on the halfback scene.

MacLean said that it is still too early to single out individuals on the line, but you can't help det... center Tom Thompson, 6-3 a... from Waycross, Ga., tackle R... Lancaster, 6-2 and 244 from ... Freshmen Get New Mentor

By BOB DENSMORE
Flambeau Assistant Sports Editor

Some new faces will be seen around Tully Gymn this fall when the Seminole cagers begin practice October 15. Not only will there be over a dozen new freshmen out there auditioning for the starting Frosh quintet, but also a new freshman coach and assistant coach.

The new freshman coach is Lake Kelly, former assistant coach at Morehead Kentucky State and now studying for his doctorate at FSU. Kelly replaces Joe Williams as the frosh mentor. Williams left the Seminoles in August to accept the job of assistant basketball and head golf coach at Furman.

Aiding Coach Kelly will be John Dewar who comes highly recommended from the University of Alberta Calgary, where he was head coach.

If height is any indication of ability, the new coaches should have one of the finest freshman squads in many moons. Tall men on the Baby Seminoles are Dick Danford 6-10, and Ken Doyle 6-9 1/2.

President's Cabinet Plans Coming Year

By BETTY LYNN GRISSOM
Flambeau Staff Writer

Seating of students at football games and the annual Student Government retreat were among the topics discussed at the first official meeting of the members of the Student Body President's Cabinet yesterday.

President Johnny Smith explained to the cabinet members that mandatory reports were required of them in order for him to have a working knowledge of how the different SG projects are progressing.

Block seating at football games will again be sponsored by Student Government. The organizational functions will be carried out through Attorney General Arnie Gibbs.

Another topic of discussion was the Student Government retreat to be held Oct. 18 and 19. It was brought out that this will be the largest retreat ever held at FSU and that more faculty members will be present than in the past. Representatives from all Florida's junior colleges have been invited to attend.

The members of the cabinet serve as advisors to the Student Body President in the many areas of student body participation. The cabinet meetings, which are usually held once a week, serve the purpose of letting each member of the cabinet know what the rest of Student Government is doing. The meetings operate from a pre-planned agenda worked up by the Student Body President each week.

Attorney General Arnie Gibbs is an advisor, primarily in legal affairs, to the Student Body President and the student body.

Secretary of State John Hones supervises the promotion of FSU to the public.

Secretary of Finance Bill Branch coordinates the work of the budget and the finance committees and presents the proposed budget for Student and University Activity fees to the Student Body President, who presents it to the Student Senate.

Commissioner of Elections Jon Kaney supervises all campus elections and heads the Elections Bureau.

Secretary for Inter-Collegiate and Public Affairs Joyce Killian supervises all relations and communications with other universities and colleges and is responsbile for all SG publications. Secretary of University Union George Miller is responsible for working with the administration in planning the proposed University Union and in charge of University Recreation.

Convocation Comes, Goes, Is Gone

"It's Coming, It's Coming, It's [illegible] it's Gone" was the theme [illegible] for upperclass-[illegible]t women, presided over by Cly-[illegible]kes, women's vice president, [illegible] Auditorium Tuesday evening.

Traditionally the upperclassmen women's convocation has had no theme except to familiarize the upperclassmen women with the FSU Student Government.

Betsy Boote, the Chairman of the University Court, was the first speaker. Betsy chose as her theme, "It's Gone." She said that "we live in a university community and that we must take advantage of this opportunity as FSU coeds not only to abide by our rules but to attempt to change the rules that we feel are unjust."

The Chief Justice of the Honor Court, Kelly Reid, was the second speaker. Reid reacquainted the upperclassmen women with the Honor Court statutes. He reminded the coeds that each was bound to the honor pledge and that they must report any violation of the honor code within 24 hours.

Reid also reminded the coeds that student ID's were not transferable. If this is done, it is considered as academic dishonesty and will have to go before the Honor Court.

Dean Katherine Warren's theme was that mob demostration is opposed to democratic government. She stated that "as tyranny and anarchy come in the front door; democracy goes out the window."

Dean Warren also said that a democratic government exists for the good of its people and that mobs, demonstrations and violence are undermining the very ideals for which a democracy stands.

She urged the FSU women as young citizens to accept their responsibility to protect and to uphold our democratic government.

In her closing remarks, Miss Stokes dedicated the convocation to Sherrod Campbell. Miss Campbell, a former FSU coed, was president of Sophomore Council, very active in Student Government and a sweetheart of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. Miss Stokes pointed out that Miss Campbell, who was killed in an accident this past summer, as a recent graduate of FSU had much "coming," but suddenly, "it was gone."

WFSU-TV To Begin New Fall Schedule

By ELLEN THOMPSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

After hours of preparation, WFSU-TV is ready to start the new school year with some old programs and many new ventures such as music, drama, public service and documentaries.

Leading the basic network programming are ten hours weekly from National Educational Television, with such highlights as Net Drama Festival, Science Reporter, On Hearing Music and What's New.

Adding to programming provided by basic network affiliation, WFSU will again present fine evening cultural and entertaining fare. Heading the list this year will be FSU's Seminole football game replays.

"Forum: Tallahassee," produced with the cooperation of the Tallahassee Jay Cees and the Florida Bar examines local questions on a weekly basis, each Tuesday night at 8:00, beginning Sept. 10.

Returning this year is Classic Cinema, WFSU's Thursday night feature film. Host for the series is Mike Shaara, creative writing professor at FSU.

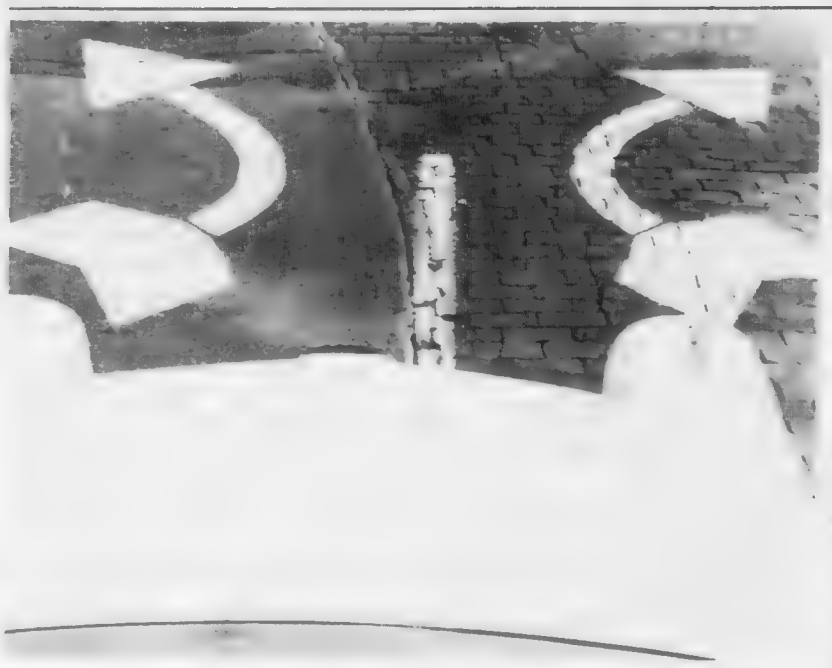
WFSU reports on the air at 9:15 a.m. and signs off at 10:30 p.m.

There has been a slight change in personnel at the station with Richard Heuer, formerly producer-director at WMSB, Michigan State University, joining the station as production manager.

Ron Whittaker, producer-director of CHSJ in New Brunswick, Canada is named as staff producer-director, along with D. Keith Carlson, formerly WFSU studio supervisor.

Ron Bissland, former FSU graduate in Radio and Television, has returned to Florida State this year as film director.

Ann Turner is traffic and continuity director and Mary Walker executive secretary.



"A unique feature of FSU's television station is that it serves the community as well as FSU's educational purposes," according to Charlie Gilmore, promotion and publicity chairman.

"By combining outstanding NET programs with polished local productions, WFSU-TV, channel 11 is looking forward to serving its audience with another outstanding year of fine fare," reports Gilmore.

. . .shout frantic backseat drivers as a moment of truth nears in the life of an FSU motorist. Many have suggested that a course entitled "Driving on Campus" be initiated at FSU as a Basic Divisions requirement, while older and sager students have wryly requested that only tricycles be permitted on the highways of FSU. Roll Out 'The Keg'

By NANCY ZLATIN
Flambeau Feature Writer

Relax, put down that copy of "The Iliad" or the old calculus book and pick up a different type of "intellectual" stimulation, namely, the new off-campus magazine, the "Keg."

No, you won't learn who won the Trojan War by reading the "Keg," but you will be kept up-to-date with the latest happenings on Florida campuses, big name stars such as Dave Gardner who will appear in this month's issue, movie reviews and fiction stories by Don Dughi, the literary editor.

For those who want to take a break from chemical formuli and mathematical solutions, the "Keg" presents some "real spicy" cartoons and the traditional feature girl guaranteed to take any guy's mind off his studies.

Ron Chenoweth, one of the magazine's executive editors, announced that the first issue will be sold off campus the middle of next week for $.50 a copy.

He added that the aim of the magazine is to "tie in the activities of the universities in Florida and nearby states and provide entertainment for college students."

The University of South Florida will be featured in this month's copy. Also there will be a three page section of fall sweaters for men displayed on outstanding young ladies.

The "Keg" will be published monthly and sold all over the state. Future issues will present the Highwaymen and happenings at Daytona Beach.

Anyone interested in contributing art work, photography or literary work is asked to contact Ron Chenoweth in the Publications lab in Longmire, extension 3334.

REJOICE, DEAR KEG O' MY HEART

Complaint Dept. Needed

By BOB FOSS

As upperclassmen do, according to some antiquated mandate, so do the freshmen.

Perhaps one of the most prolific of all pastimes of upperclassmen (and henceforth freshmen) is. . . . complaining. Let's face it--how many people have anything nice to say about the food plan, women's rules, parking regulations, and classes. Actually there's nothing good to say about these above-mentioned evils. Let's face it.

Through the past year those of us who really enjoy the old art of complaining have experienced a true stagnation--a real lack of things to complain about.

Hearken, things are looking up, fellow devotees of the order of the barbed complaint. We finally have something to work on. Again, we may complain.

Undoubtedly you must have noticed that the parking lot in front of the Stupid Center isn't there anymore. On top of this, the whole area around the Stupid Center is a disaster area--a true eyesore on our beautiful campus.

Now listen, if this isn't enough, there is one more thing that may be a boon to those of us who really love to complain. Not only do we have to comply with the fact that some industrial, tin-hatted furriners have made our campus an eyesore, but they have made us walk all the way around the Business Bldg., and all the way back to Seminole Way. Catch that! They really have their intestinal fortitude.

The mystic little boardwalk provided, I suppose for our convenience, just doesn't peak it. The boardwalk is only four feet wide at the most; and the passageway is barely wide enough to squeeze two eager booklade freshmen through at once. What kind of planning is this for a great university? How can they expect us to live with these deplorable conditions?

Fellow students, it's time we took this matter into our own hands. Stick up for your rights, let the responsible people know you exist, stand straight, chest out and go forth with anger in your eye. Go forth. . .and complain.

A live oak-shaded playground of 78 acres and 23-acre Lake Bradford are available at the Reservation five miles from campus for FSU students who want to relax after their studies.

The Reservation will be open for waterfront activities including swimming and sunbathing from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily except Monday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, until late October. Throughout the year the Reservation will remain open for other activities such as picnics and games.

Greek Column Deadline Set

Sororities and fraternities wishing to contribute articles to the Flambeau for "Greek Columns" must submit releases by 5 p.m. on the Wednesday prior to the Friday of desired publication.

All articles should be typed and kept as brief as possible. Material should be left in 213 Longmire, with the name of the sorority or fraternity at the top.

Kissing

(ACP)—You can pat him, kiss him or rub his shiny nose, but please don't use his tail for an ashtray, pleads "Northeastern News," Northeastern University, Boston, Mass.

That, in a nutshell, is the administration's attitude on the care and affection that should be offered the beloved Husky statue.

For months now, students have been patting the stern-looking statue's nose. It now shines glowingly, a symbol of the student body's high regard.

The University has no objection to the nose rubbing but it is less than enthusiastic about the disrespect shown the 700-pound bronze mascot by students who use him for a coat hanger or flip cigarette ashes in his tail.

The beginning of a new fad, with coeds planting kisses on the dog's nose, failed to stun Gilbert G. MacDonald, dean of students.

"I long ago gave up trying to control who Northeastern students kiss," he said.

Dean MacDonald did feel, however, that coeds who want to kiss a husky "should kiss Mr. Husky."

Dave O'Donnell, the reigning Mr. Husky, was all for the dean's idea. Even his wife approved.

Angelo Casciere, the sculptor who created the statue, had a comment on its treatment, but he confined his remarks to the nose rubbing and left decisions on kissing to higher authority.

Casciere said rubbing the nose could cause it to be worn away like the feet of the famed statue of St. Peter in Rome. "I don't really think the nose-patters will wear through metal," he said, "but I can't guarantee it."

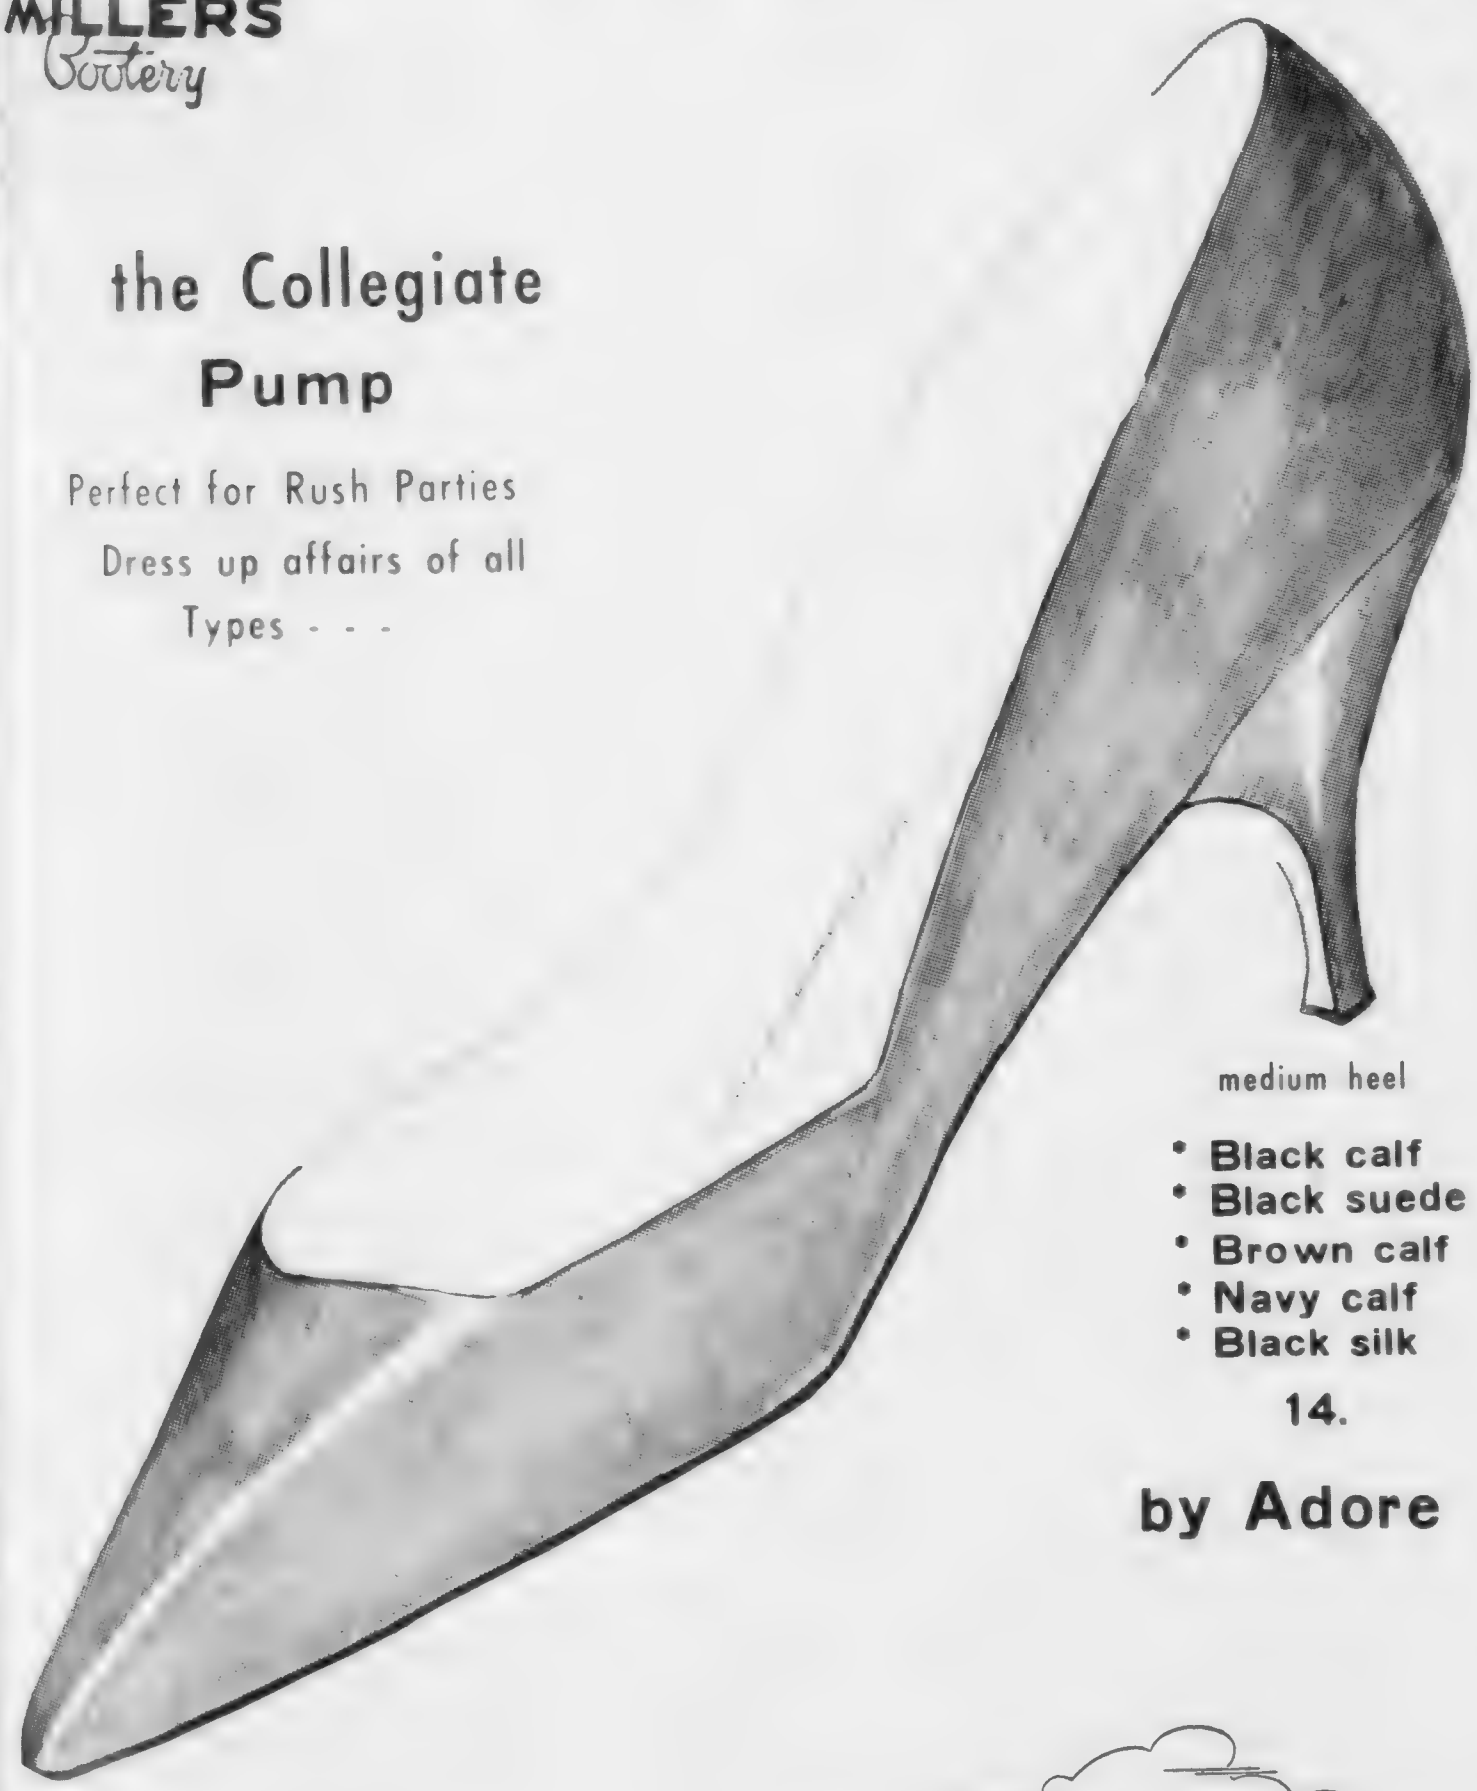
A quick check of student opinion found most in favor of a tradition of nose rubbing. Some compared it to the Annapolis tradition of throwing coins at the statue of Techumseh. Others felt it would bring good luck before an exam. One timid coed approved of the nose rubbing but felt that kissing the nose would spread germs. Her boy friend just grinned.

ROTC Begins

The cadet corps of the FSU Army ROTC program began classes and drill this week.

Commanding the brigade of 638 cadets is Cadet Col. Michael R. Odum. Assisting Col. Odum is Cadet Major Bruce Black, executive officer. Don Magness, Peyton Wynns, Lewis Dennard and David Cumming are serving as staff officers. The brigade contains two battalions which are commanded by Cadet Major Bob O'Donnell and Cadet Major Richard Dean.

The cadets begin their first drill today after an address by Lt. Col. Milton J. Tankersley, the new Professor of Military Science. He will be welcoming over 300 incoming freshmen.



Cadet Col. Russ Blumenthal will represent the Army ROTC as deputy chief of the joint staff. Cadet Lt. Col. Walter Abstein and Cadet Lt. Col. Charles Adams will serve as assistant deputy chiefs of staff. The joint staff will coordiante activities of the Army and Air Force ROTC units at Florida State.

Marines Land At FSU

General Ronald Van Stockum, director of The Marine Corps Reserve in Washington, D.C., was on campus yesterday for a visit with Vice President John E. Champion, Charles A. Rovetta, dean of the School of Business and other members of the FSU faculty after an inspection tour of the Third Tank Company of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve in Tallahassee.

Gen. Van Stockum will return in April for the dedication of a new Reserve building for the Third Tank Co. to be located on 2600 Roberts Ave. The building is being financed by a grant given to the Reserve unit as a recognition of the Company's high ranking in the Sixth Marine Corps Reserve District, which comprises the whole Southeastern area of the United States.

The Third Tank Co., which has ranked second or third in the area in performance and attendance for several years, presently has 43 FSU students assigned. Two of these have distinguished accomplishments in the Marine Reserve.

Each year some 1800 college students in the Marine Corps Reserve attend the Marine Corps schools held in Quantico, Va., for Reserve Officers commissions awarded on a competitive basis. Out of these 1800 candidates, five men are selected from the Sixth Marine Corps District to receive a Regular Officer's commission, and two of the five this year are FSU students.

Stewart James Mock and Charles Calhoun, both of FSU, will receive an officer's commission in the regular Marine Corps at commencement exercises in June.

Gen. Van Stockum praised the Third Tank Co. for its outstanding record of achievement in the military world, and added that Col. James D. McBrayer, director of the Sixth Marine Corps District, had attributed the Tallahassee unit's successes mainly to the quality of men attending college who are members of the Reserve.

The general also payed tribute to the men responsible for "the outstanding R.O.T.C. and A.R.O.T.C. programs which have been developed at FSU." He told Champion and Rovetta that the "tremendous reserve which is being built up in Reserve units such as the one here will provide an insurance program for America." Van Stockum added that the 'achievement of FSU students in the Reserve speaks for the quality of leadership being developed."

After attending a luncheon in honor at the Country Club, Captain Jamison, Intelligence Officer of the Third Tank Co. introduced Van Stockum at FSU's dignitaries on his campus visit.

Gen. Van Stockum told officers and faculty members before leaving that FSU has "an excellent military program underway, with marked progress being made from year to year."

FSU Gets Grant

A $6,000 grant for support of research in "Native North American Species of Lespedeza" has been made available to FSU by the National Science Foundation.

The research grant will be administered under the direction of Dr. Andre F. Clewell, Biological Sciences Dept., for a period of two years.

Secretary of Internal Affairs Luther Kramer is responsible for the Rally Committee and supervises Student Government participation in International Student affairs.

Executive assistant Ben Thornal is in charge of public relations for the Student Body President and cabinet and coordinates all press releases.

Student Body President Smith is very pleased with the cabinet and says, "The members of the cabinet this year begin the fall term better trained, better prepared, and more experienced than any cabinet group in the past."

Weale Wins Fellowship

A doctoral student in the School of Home Economics at Florida State University, Mrs. W. Bruce Weale, has received the Effie I. Riatt Fellowship of the American Home Economics Association, one of four fellowships given annually throughout the United States by that organization.

The fellowship is for $2000 and Mrs. Weale plans to use for studies in the field of housing and interior design. Her studies are under the direction of Dr. James Walters, head of the department of home and family life.

Mrs. Weale received a master's degree at FSU in August. She majored in clothing and textiles and Dr. Hazel Stevens of the School of Home Economics directed her work. A member of Phi Kappa Phi, honorary, she held a Delta Delta Delta social sorority fellowship while studying for her master's degree. The former Mary Jo Whitehouse Danford of Lexington, Ky., Mrs. Weale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Whitehouse, 148 Cherokee Park, Lexington, Ky.

Mrs. Weale is the fourth student at FSU to receive one of the nationally distributed fellowships of the American Home Economics Association. Others were Mrs. Jane K. Shearer, professor of home and family life; Phil McQueen of Boise, Idaho and Mrs. Valerie Chamberlain of Jamaica, New York.

Off-Campus Parties To Get Approval

Off-campus parties will be sanctioned by the university again this year under the rules set up last year. Such parties, forbidden until last year, are "legal" when registered with Miss Marie Williams, Director of Social Activities. As with all other "approved" parties, chaperones must attend.

Acceptable chaperones now include not only faculty and staff, but also reliable senior women in good standing and possibly their dates. All designated chaperones must get in touch with Miss Williams to be informed of their duties and responsibilities prior to final approval of the party.

"A group in excess of five couples will be treated as any other organized party," stated Miss Williams, "and must be approved by 4 p.m. Tuesday preceding the weekend of the party.

"A group of five couples or less will need to be cleared by noon the day of the party," she added. "However, it would be well to plan your parties well in advance to insure that there will be time for necessary clearance and details to be attended to," she concluded.

Also in the case of a party of five couples or less, a list of the coeds attending must be submitted to the social director. This rule is to enable the social director to notify the residence counselors of the girls and tell them that the party has been approved.

Private off-campus parties must comply with the same rules that have been set for University sponsored off-campus parties. Parties may last no later than midnight on Friday and Saturday nights and no later than 9 p.m. on all other nights.

A chaperone will have the authority to ask anyone who becomes disorderly to leave.

Chaperones will fill out card-forms giving their appraisal of the conduct of the party. These forms will be used as a guide for approving further parties sponsored by the same persons.

Mosquitoes Are Doomed

Research by a State Board of Health scientist on a chemical to kill mosquitoes is expected to save the state and counties about $300,000 a year.

John Mulrennan, director of the board's Bureau of Entomology, said the scientist is Dr. A.J. Rogers, director of the Control Research Section of the board's mosquito research laboratory at Vero Beach.

In addition to the saving, Florida benefitted by obtaining free the chemical for the entire year while the tests were going on.

Mulrennan said Rogers now is at work on a new adulticide and if the present experiments are successful, even more money may be saved on its purchase. An adulticide is an insecticide which can be used in residential areas. It does not harm humans but kills mosquitoes and other small insects. Mulrennan stressed that it has no effect on birds or insects upon which they feed.

Mulrennan said the $300,000 wouldn't be funds which could be put in the bank, and added that "the state's mosquito control program has been barely getting by in some areas and has been much less than what is needed in many others. We've been faced with a money problem and now since demands are increasing, due to Florida's growth, this saving is a windfall which will help us fill some of the holes and put us in a better position to make much needed improvements in various areas."

He said Florida would benefit from Rogers' work because it provides "an effective chemical much cheaper than ones which were being used previously."

Let's Back Team!

If there is one thing that is absolutely necessary before a football team, no matter how well it is coached or equipped, can have a winning season, it is support. Otherwise it can serve no purpose and will exist only as eleven individual men, each playing for himself. It tends to make a man more conscious of his actions if 70,000 people are watching his moves and pulling for him to make the play successfully.

BANNER YEAR FOR SPIRIT

A Head Football Coach must not only develophis playing material, he must also seek to magnify the spectator's awareness of and interest in his team's fortunes. Bill Peterson is doing a quite adequate job of keeping his players in the spotlight of this campus. It is up to the individual students to provide the missing link -- support.

A good case in point as to how beneficial widespread student support is to a gridiron group is last year's season for the Seminoles. After an easy victory over the Citadel, the team was heading to Lexington, Kentucky, for their first big test of the season, a small but dedicated University of Kentucky team. To prepare them a spirited Pep Rally was thrown for the team the night before they left. -- As a result the team played brilliant defensive ball, but had to settle for a 0-0 tie.

However, the surprise of the season awaited them when their plane set down the same night at 2 a.m.

The weary players were greeted by a cheering crowd of about 100 students. As the bewildered team members passed through the crowd, sheepish grins lit up their faces as they realized all the commotion and backslapping was intended for them, the owners of a moral victory.

Needless to say, this team was genuinely touched and went on to dedicate ties with Georgia Tech, Auburn and a win over the University of Georgia to their supporters.

This year there is more material of good quality on the football squad. With support such as was exhibited last season, this could develop into the finest team ever fielded by FSU.

It seems to me that a mammoth pep rally next week urging the men to "Mangle Mira" and Miami would be a step in the right direction, and would make acceptance of FSU as a true football power one step closer.

Tensi. . . . . looks to Miami

Hurricane's Watchful

Wild passing and running is certain to bring down the stadium with hilarious bedlam the night of Sept. 20 in the Orange Bowl when Andy Gustafson's University of Miami opens up against Florida State University.

Two of the great quarterbacks of the nation will be pitted against each other--Al. American George Mira of Miami and giant six foot, five inch Steve Tensi of Florida State, a man the pros are already drooling over.

Coach Andy Gustafson is making no secret of it that he's greatly concerned about the brilliance of Tensi and some of the FSU running backs.

"Tensi will be as good a quarterback as we'll meet all year," Gustafson said.

Tensi was one of two quarterbacks causing the Hurricanes so much trouble last year as UM barely eked out a one-point victory.

"We were fortunate to beat Florida State last year--and they're better this year," Gustafson said.

As for the Hurricanes, Gustafson hopes to present a stronger offense than the force which last year piled up a brilliant 3,524 yards, or an average of 320.3 yards per game.

Names like Russell Smith, Peter Banaszak and Robert Barth--to go along with All-American George Mira are some of the big reasons Hurricane coaches hope to come up with a stronger offense this fall--one with greater balance in running and passing.

Tickets for the Miami-Florida State game are still going at a brisk pace. Already 38,000 have been taken for the game.

Ends

This is the first in a series of six articles on the '63 Seminoles, position by position.

Two converted specialists are helping to make the ends one of the strongest positions of Florida State's 1963 football team.

Junior Don Floyd, 200 pounder from Madison and Jim (Red) Dawson, a 210 pounder from Valdosta, Georgia, are presently running with the Seminole's No. 1 unit.

Floyd, a member of the Warrior offensive unit in last season's three platoon days, and Dawson, from the Renegade defensive platoon, are described by Coach Bill Peterson as two of the major surprises of the spring.

Fourth leading receiver with 14 pasees for 230 yards and two touchdowns, Floyd's showing has moved him ahead of Jim Causey at the left end slot.

Dawson, up to his heaviest playing weight (210 on a 6 foot 3 frame) has been showing well offensively to nudge out such competitors as George D'Allesandro and Dale Twitchell at the right flank.

"Both Floyd and Dawson have been receiving the ball well and had a fine spring," Peterson says.

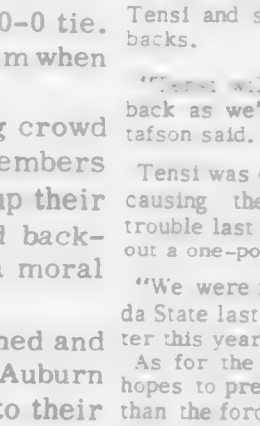
Their ability to adapt to other's specialties -- offense and defense--plus the experience present with Causey, Wachtel, Sophomores Max Wettstein and Dale Twitchell, and former tackle D'Allesandro's switch to the end position have the Seminoles optimistic at the position.

Missed from last year's squad will be John McConnaughhay, who was FSU's top two way performer in 1962. He's departed, along with 12 other mongram winners from the club that went 4-3-3 with the aid of three platoons.

Wachtel. . . . Senior Flanker

"This new substitute system, Peterson says, "is going to make some changes."

The emergence of Floyd and Dawson on the first team could lead to those changes. Both have the ability as two-way players. Pete must come up with a way to convert the Tribe's strength.



Three years of planning and operating with three lefts the Seminoles stressed in that philosophy.

A big improvement to the team came when George D'Allesandro moved from tackle to end. The 205 pound sophomore turned in outstanding performances last Saturday in the varsity-frosh game.

[illegible] chairman of the University golf [illegible] watches as golf instructor Keith Pitch- [illegible] Secretary of State Johnny Jones to tee off on the first hole of the new University Golf Course. The course is now open for all FSU faculty, students and staff.

Golf Course Opens For Students, Faculty

Over 160 students and faculty teed off at the new FSU golf course located on Lake Bradford, three miles from campus last Saturday.

Florida State has now joined the more than 200 other colleges and universities in the U.S. with their own golf courses.

The regulation course, which will have nine holes (two par 5 holes, two par 3 holes, and five par 4 holes) was designed by R. Albert Anderson, who is rated among the top 10 golf course designers by the National Golf Foundation.

Dr. Don Veller, chairman of the University Golf Committee, said that the addition of the golf course will "make FSU more attractive to students and faculty alike, as well as serving as a needed recreational outlet.

"In the past three years golf has moved up in popularity from tenth to sixth place as a sport among high-schoolers, being exceeded by football, baseball, basketball, track and wrestling," Dr. Veller explained. "Golf is becoming a part of our culture as firmly as baseball is."

The FSU golf course is open to students, faculty, staff and their out-of-town visitors. It is not open to the general public.

The old golf course near Doak Campbell Stadium will continue to be open, but will be used more for golf teaching classes than recreation. It will be open to students when there are no classes.

The new course will be open at 8 a.m., seven days a week and will close at dusk.

Parking facilities are available, and a shuttle-bus can take students who don't have transportation of their own.

One of the Dale Mabry houses has been set up as a "clubhouse." It will have such facilities as restrooms, refreshments and skeleton golf sets for rent, and will sell such items as golf balls and tees. There will also be golf carts (non-electric) for rent.

Charges for the use of the course are as follows:

For faculty and staff: yearly family membership, $75; yearly individual membership, $50; one trimester family membership, $30; one trimester individual membership, $25; greens fees Monday-Friday, $1.25; Saturdays, Sundays and holidays $1.75.

For students: yearly family membership, $50; yearly individual membership, $35; one trimester family membership, $20; one trimester individual membership, $15; greens fees Monday-Friday, 75¢; Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, $1.25.

Dr. Veller expressed the hope that the new golf course will be financially self-staining. The primary objective is to offer greater recreational facilities to FSU students and faculty. It is hoped that more people will use the course in the future.

More information on the new golf course may be obtained by calling the Physical Education Dept.

Candidate Filing Ends Today In Freshmen Senate Elections

By SUE BOYLE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Students seeking Freshman Class offices and precinct senate seats face a 5 p.m. filing deadline today.

Seven precinct seats and the office of Freshman Class Treasurer remain open. This could mean that seven seats will be vacant in the Senate this year. Under provisions set down in the Student Body Statutes: "Any precinct failing to have qualified for the office Senatorial candidates equal to the number of Senators provided for that precinct shall forfeit for the year, their right to have a senator."

As of noon Thursday 71 candidates had filed for office, as compared to 110 last year. The precincts that have not filed any candidates are 7-Florida, 9-Magnolia, 11-DeGraff, 15-fraternity, 20-sorority, 21-Dale Mabry, University Trailer Park and 23-Alumni Village.

Six other precincts having only one declared candidate are 6-West Landis, 8-Dorman, 16-fraternity, 17-fraternity, 18-sorority, 22-FSO housing.

The number of candidates running for Freshman Class offices is also well below the norm. The office of treasurer is still open.

Declaration of candidacy for Freshman Class offices or senate seats have been filed by the following people:

Freshman Women's Senate, Nancy Warren, Livvie Hicks, Cecilia Jones, and Joy Dickinson; Freshman Men's Senate, Larry Jordan, Bill Dane, and Phil Watkins; Precinct 1, Cindy Lou Skelton, Virginia Reddick, Marian Weeks, Darie Miller, Vicki Hils, and Janie Keeneth; Precinct 2, Judy Booze, Nancy Ashley, Pamela Pierson and Susan Keglovich.

Precinct 3, Jan Cashell, Lyde Eastridge, Gretchen Schmaltz; Precinct 4, La Verne Turner Betty Body and Cissy Dixon; Precinct 5, Marie Vale and Sharon Spindel; Precinct 6, Lucy Bland; Precinct 7, open; Precinct 8, Joan Hunter; Precinct 9, open; Precinct 10, Sara Jane Carter and Barbara McDonald; Precinct 11, open.

Precinct 12, Luther Beauchamp, Gray Cowart, Walt Deese, Preston McGee, Jonathan Whitney, Pete Dowling, and G. R. Nele; Precinct 13, Curt Smith, Bill Caldwell, Richard Nichols, Charles Albritton, Stan Bennett, David Coldwell Calvin Eddy, and Ken Nelson.

Precinct 14, John Thomas Riggins, Ed Scott, Mack McKinnon, Bill Mc-

File Today

With the deadline for filing declarations of candidacy in the upcoming freshman class and precinct senator elections set for today at 5 p.m., the number of contested races is disappointingly few.

Considering the tremendous amount of responsibility entrusted to Student Government officials, and their positions as spokesmen for the student body, competent and knowledgeable office-holders are desperately needed. A wide selection of candidateswould allow students to choose their representatives with an eye to their ability, not merely because there is only one name on the ballot.

The apparent apathy that is demonstrated in this poor candidate turnout, if it continues to be the general trend in campus elections, could result in the gradual weakening of Student Government and the loss to students of many of the rights of self-government. These rights (although to some students there may seem to be too few of them) are not easy to obtain and keep.

Student Government this year is in a position to accomplish many things for students, but there is much work to do. It will be a shame if, through lack of student interest and participation, SG is unable to fulfill its expectations. Worse than that; it will be a disaster for FSU students.

We feel certain that FSU is not deficient in students capable of being outstanding SG leaders in the future years. For personal reasons, many of these prospective candidates may hesitate to take too much upon themselves, preferring to put off their initial plunge into campus politics until some later date.

Those with high aspirations and ambitions should not wait, however, Those who express their interest early will be those who will get the most experience, the most "know-how," and the most enjoyment from their extracurricular activities.

It is not yet too late to file. But the deadline is near; no declarations of candidacy will be accepted after 5 p.m. today. It is to be hoped that when filing closes this afternoon, each position will be a hotly contested race.

Then we will be able to sit back and relish a good fight. And may the best qualified candidate win.

Letters To Be Accepted

Letters from candidates in the Sept. 24 election will be accepted for publication next week. Letters from freshman class officer candidates will be published Thursday, Sept. 19; those from precinct senator candidates, Friday, Sept. 20 and Monday, Sept. 23. Letters must be kept to a maximum length of 150 to 200 words, and none which are received after Wednesday at 10 a.m. will be printed.

States Rights - Northern Viewpoi

To the Editor:

As a native Pennsylvanian enjoying his first week of bright Florida sunshine, I recently had occasion to read the article by Sandy Turner, "What are States Rights?" I agree wholeheartedly with her first and last sentences, the facts that the issue of states rights has always existed and that many of the rebellious acts of governors are point blank arguments over states rights. Between these two sentences, Sandy and I have our differences over the structure of our federal system of government.

The issue of states rights brings to mind the tale of two Negroes who entered a polling station in Louisiana to register to vote. They were not too surprised when the clerk explained that it would be necessary to take a literacy test before they could register. Con... that they could pass any te... reading. (since they h... degrees at Florida A. & M... enthused applicants burst... ferous--Yes, Sir! A half-... registration clerk retreated ... back room, opened a file ma... But the other Negro had ... judge the situation more ad... and unhesitantly (after a gla... "Le scambio di memoirali ... varie sfumatre etc., etc.") said ... sarcasm, "This paper says th... Negroes can vote in Louisi...

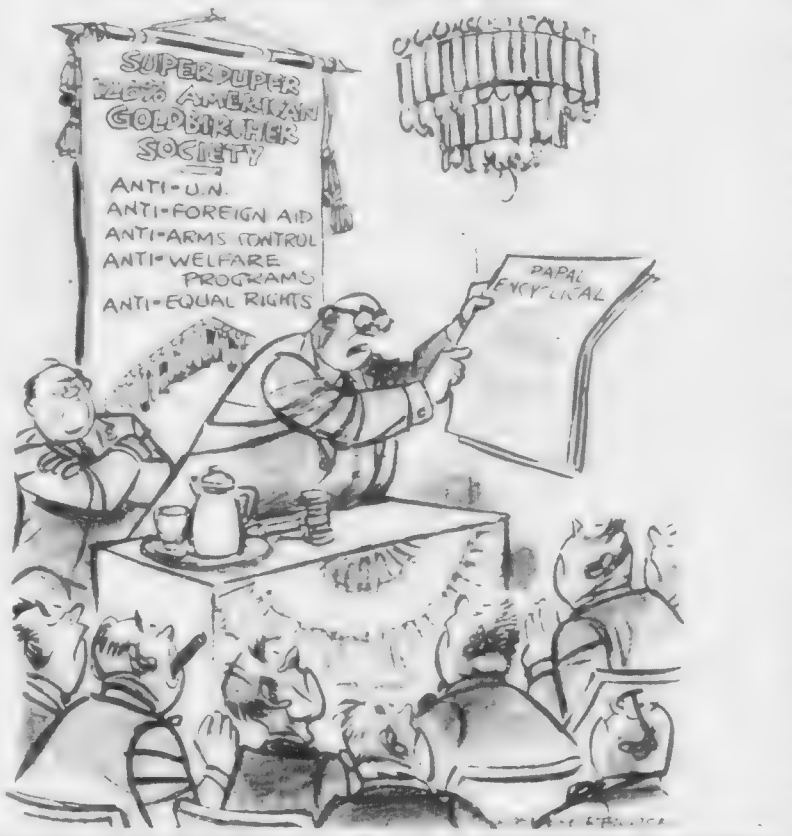
The issue involved here cou... put succinctly in a few ... "Under the protective shield ... states rights, are the liberties ... anteed to all Americans to ... lated by such injustices." Gra... this was only a story but the ... cumstances of the story are pre... iously close to reality.



If the implications that Miss Tu... wants to create in her article ... Five Steps To Freedom

Forty years ago, the Communist strategy for conquest of the world was laid out in three basic steps: (1) take Eastern Europe; (2) next take the masses of Asia; (3) then take the rest of the world, including the United States.

They completed their first step in 1950; the second step is about four-fifths accomplished; and the third step is nearly one-half completed. This means that the Communist Conspiracy is about three-fourths of the way towards world-wide domination and the momentum and speed of its progress are steadily increasing.

How can we stop this menace? Below I have listed five proposals which, if enacted, will be a tremendous deterence to their machinations...

(1) Elect Barry Goldwater as President--Unless you are satisfied with the way Kennedy has handled the integration question, labor-management disputes, the Cuban situation, and countless other problems such as news-management and our gold overflow.

(2) Strengthen our internal security--This should begin with a complete investigation of the State Dept. In the past 17 years the U.S. and the free world have suffered numerous diplomatic defeats by the worldwide Communist Conspiracy and have sanctioned many acts of appeasement of international communism. The State Dept. is primarily responsible for these failures and setbacks.

(3) Adopt the Liberty Amendment--This amendment will accomplish cutting the cost of government, ending the farm mess, abolishing foreign aid, helping to stop inflaction and many more.

(4) Stop all negotiations and dealings with Communists--On top of this list is U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations. What have we ever gained from participation in the U.N.? We have lost a lot--prestige, money, our sovereignty, and most important, American lives. We must also stop such conferences as those held at Yalta, Potsdam, and Geneva which have been so detrimental to the cause of freedom.

(5) A change in the Supreme Court--Two courses of action available to the people are (a) support the movement to impeach Earl Warren, and (b) adoption of the Court of the Union.

Students Get Commissions

Two outstanding FSU students have received officer's commissions in the regular Marine Corps, Charles Calhoun and Jim Mock.

Out of the some 1800 college students attending the Marine Corps schools this past summer in Quantico, Va., only five were chosen, from the Sixth Marine Corps District, to receive officer's commissions.

Charles, a senior majoring in accounting, has establish an outstanding record while attending FSU. He is an active member in the ODK, Gold Key, Beta Alpha Chi, Phi Delta Theta, and Delta Sigma Pi. Charles is also senior justice on the Honor Court and has recently been chosen co-captain of the varsity football team.

Jim Mock, a senior majoring in Criminology, has also established a fine record at FSU. Jim has taken a strong interest in his studies and military life. Jim is a member of the Semper Fi, a military organization, and is President of the PLC, Platoon Leaders Class.

The requirements for the commissions given at Quantico were divided into three parts: one third on classes and tests, one third on physical fitness, and one third on leadership grade. In addition, various tactical problems relating to modern warfare techniques had to be solved by the students.

Club Mixer To Be Held

The Dames Club for wives cordially invites new and former married students to come to their organizational meeting, this Saturday, Sept. 14, at 8 p.m.

'Operation Trackdown'

Florida Highway Patrol Comdr. H.N. Kirkman said today that beginning September 15, the patrol will initiate a program known as "Operation Trackdown" in an effort to curb Florida's rising death toll on the highways.

In announcing the program, Comdr. Kirkman said: "During the first eight months of this year the Florida Highway Patrol arrested over 106,000 traffic violators and issued over 200,000 written warnings for traffic offenses and equipment violations.

"Our enforcement effort this year is running better than 13 per cent over the comparable period of 1962 and yet accidents in our rural areas have increased by more than 7 per cent and our highway death toll is in excess of a comparable period of 1962."

Field Inspector H. Lee Simmons, who will be in charge of "Operation Trackdown" program, indicated that extensive use of highway patrol planes, radar and speed timing devices will continue and plans are being made to include extensive use of plain patrol cars manned by uniformed men in areas which have developed a high accident frequency.

"Although we have increased our enforcement efforts substantially during the past year, it is our intention to saturate every section of Florida with an even greater intensified drive against traffic violators," Simmons declared.

"We are soliciting the aid and assistance of all law enforcement agencies in every city and county of this state in an effort to stem our increasing highway accident toll Simmons said.

The Patrol said that "this intensification of traffic law enforcement by all police agencies will not be entirely successful without the full co-operation of the driving public. We urgently request the public's co-operation in our traffic safety efforst."

Newcomers Club To Hold Picnic

The Newcomers Club, for wives of new faculty and staff members and for new single faculty women, will hold a family picnic tomorrow, from 5 to 8 p.m., at Lake Bradford.

Each family is to bring one main dish plus either a salad, vegetable, or dessert. The featured entertainment will be group singing led by Dr. Wildred Mears of the Department of Music. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Paul at 385-3268.

The club is organized to help introduce women newcomers to campus life and activities. Tours are held, familiarizing the women with FSU's campus. The members belong to the club for two years.

Other events this year include a tea to be held at President Blackwell's home on September 24th. A nursery will be provided for small children. On October 1st members of the FSU Student Government will serve as guides for the Campus Tours. During the tours, information on Tallahassee Clubs will be made available and coffee will be served at the Faculty Club.

At the October meeting, October 17th, Dr. Joseph G. Cushman will speak on "Interesting Insights About the Growth and History of Tallahassee." Featured at the November 21st meeting will be a cookie and Christmas idea exchange.

Mr. James E. Hadaway will present on January 16th a program entitled "Recreation in Tallahassee." The February 20th meeting will be held in Conradi Theatre on campus with Dr. Arthur H. Dorlag speaking about "Broadway a la University Theatre."

Husbands will be entertained at the March 19th meeting. Instead of the April meeting, the Newcomers Club will give a morning coffee for the entire University Woman's Club. The meeting will feature delicacies from other countries. Nancy Reid Gunn, local artist, will speak on "Enchantment with Encaustics" at the final meeting on May 21st.

——Articles Saved——

(ACP)--William Lee, columnnist for "The Daily Universe," Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, checked around on campus to learn about reader acceptance of his labors.

"I'll have you know," he reported "that my articles are cut out saved by many students. I personally know of one student who cut out one of my articles, folded into a neat package and stuffed in the hole in his shoe.

"I guess that's one way to save your soul."

Statistics Department Adds Two Professors

Department of Statistics at Florida State University today announced two new faculty members, Dr. I. Richard Savage, professor of statistics, and Dr. W.A. Thompson Jr., associate professor.

Dr. Ralph A. Bradley, head of the department, said Savage will have major responsibility in advanced teaching programs and research.

He is well-known for his research in mathematical statistics, has authored numerous articles on the mathematical theory of nonparametrical theory of nonparametric statistics, and is currently carrying on research in this area. A recent Harvard University Press book release is "Bibliography of Nonparametric Statistics."

DR. RICHARD SAVAGE

He holds the bachelor of science degree from University of Chicage, master of science from University of Michigan, and doctor of philosophy from Columbia University. He was formerly professor of statistics at University of Minnesota.

Professor Savage is a Fellow of the Institute of Mathematical Statistics and American Statistical Association. Currently, he is a member of the Committee on Committees of the ASA and adviser to the National Research Council on research proposals to the U.S. Army for research in statistics.

DR. W. A. THOMPSON

Dr. and Mrs. Savage will reside at 519 Vinnedge Ride, with daughters Martha and Donna.

Dr. Thompson is author of numerous research papers on design of experiments, with particular emphasis on estimation of components of variability and their applications. He has published in "Journal of Operations Research," "Journal of Research of National Bureau of Standards," and "Annals of Mathematical Statistics."

Professor Thompson holds the bachelor of science from University of Illinois and doctor of philosophy from University of North Carolina. He was formerly associate professor at University of Delaware, and head of the Computing Branch of the U.S. Air Defense Board at Ft. Bliss, Texas.

Dr. and Mrs. Thompson are residing at 2808 St. Leonard St., with children Scott, Bruce and Barbara.

Quinn, Susan Wharton, Walter B. Dickson, Michael Francis Fahey, Carol Gresimer, Larry Lake, Rick Carta, Buddy Cure, Ken Kennedy and Jeanie Williamson; Precinct 15, open; Precinct 16, Bruce Robinson; Precinct 17, William Treitler; Precinct 18, Sharon Soden; Precinct 19, Mimi McGaw and Bonnilu Lair; Precincts 20 and 21, open; Precinct 22, Norbert Martin.

Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections, had this to say about the deadline today: "There are entirely too many offices for which either no candidate or only one candidate has filed. I am disappointed that there have not been more candidates seeking these offices. If the leaders of the student government are chosen by default, then the quality of leadership is left to chance. I do hope that before 5 p.m. today, there will be a contest in every race."

A compulsory meeting of all candidates took place last night at 6 p.m. Any candidate filing today or any candidate who missed Thursday's meeting must contact a member of the election commission in 210 Longmire, ext. 2397. Candidates may be disqualified if this step is not taken Friday or Monday afternoon.

Elections will be September 24. No active campaigning is to take place before Tuesday, September 17 at 5 p.m. Violations of this rule will subject candidates to fines.

'Talking Seminoles' Plan Active Year

"Talking Seminoles," FSU Debate Squad, open to those with no debate experience as well as experienced debaters, will hold their first meeting at 7 p.m. in room 208 History.

FSU Debate Squad have plans for an active year of forensic activities. They will debate on the national intercollegiate debate proposition, "Resolved that Federal Government should guarantee an opportunity for higher education to all qualified high school graduates."

Events tentatively scheduled include trips to tournaments at Mercer, Emory, Agnes Scott, University of South Florida, University of Tennessee, Mississippi College, Millsaps, Spring Hill, West Georgia College, Mississippi State College for Women, and the North-South Tournament in West Virginia.

In addition to attending tournaments FSU will again host the FSU Invitational Debate Tournament during Trimester II. Dr. Gregg Phifer is Director of Forensics; Thomas King is the new Director of Debate; and Harold Mixon is Graduate Assistant in Forensics.

Thank Heaven—

...for little girls, they grow up in the most delightful way. And nowhere is there more ample evidence of the delightful way in which they grow than at FSU. The many and varied ways the lines become curves, the haystacks - hair, and the exultant screeches - seductive whispers show up all around. Yet, it's amazing just how much sex-appeal this little number can muster with her hair in a mess and only three years experience to go on. Maybe it's just because she knows how to use that secret weapon that even a lot of big girls don't know about -- smile.

New University Singers Chosen

Members of the 1963-64 University Singers, have been announced by Dr. Wiley Housewright after three days of auditions.

Dr. Housewright was well pleased with the auditions. He was especially delighted with the new freshmen members, stating that "They are of a higher quality than usual."

The new officers for '63-'64 University Singers are: Ken Schwartz, President; Byron Smith, Vice President; Katherine Hendry, Secretary-Treasurer; and Terry Schreckengost, Librarian. Lou Mize, graduate assistant, will be the assistant director. Mary Carol Warwick will be the accompanist.

Activities of the University Singers for the year include a concert in Moultrie, Ga., Dec. 5, and a concert in the Westcott Auditorium Dec. 6. The concerts will be composed of Chorus's from Bach, featuring his "Magnificat," a chorus from "Solemn Vespers," by Mozart and "Christmas Cantata," by by Daniel Pinkham. According to Dr. Housewright, Mr. Pinkham is one of the most promising composers in America. Mr. Pinkham was commissioned to write a new work for the opening of the Lincoln Center of Performing Art in New York City last year.

Beginning in March and lasting one week, the University Singers will tour North and South Florida. The Stephen Foster Memorial, Manatee Junior College, and St. John's Junior College are scheduled stops on the tour. The tour will end with a concert at FSU, March 6.

On the tour the Singers will use a set of French Chansons by Francis Poulenc, a group of Madrigals by Jean Berger and an arrangement of Negro Spirituals by Saboda.

Tackles

Avery Sumner...
All—America?

Ferrell Henry...
Senior Lettermen

This is the second in our series of articles covering the '63 Seminoles.

The tackles, according to Coach Bill Peterson, present the biggest problems in the Florida State attack. Although 6'-2" 212 lb. Avery Sumner, tabbed by many as possible All-America material, is firmly implanted in the starboard side, it seems that finding a more-than-adequate placement for the correlating position will prove taxing. To date, 229 lb. former guard Jerry Bruner figures to be the starting left tackle, but is receiving stiff competition from Ohio State transfer Frank Pennie. Pennie is out of action until the opener with Miami while recovering from spring injuries.

Sumner finished second overall in individual tackles last season to the graduated Gene McDowell. He is, like Dawson, another of last year's redshirts who has, through his great speed and agility, probed his way into the Chiefs, FSU starting lineup. Coach Peterson rates Avery very highly, and rightfully so. Thusfar, he seems to be the mainstay of the Seminole interior line.

Reimbursing Sumner on the right side of the line is senior letterman Ferrell Henry who, like Pennie, is out till the Miami opener recovering from early season injuries. Switching back to the left tackle position, Tom West, moved from end earlies this season, offers more than adequate reinforcement to Frank Pennie. Tom, weighing in at an impressive 205 pounds, is a member of last year's monogram winners. Along with West, 246 lb. Bob Mangan is another redshirt who is fighting for a first team berth this season. Bob was transferred from guard to tackle during spring practice.

At present, sophomore Steve Watson of Rossford, Ohio, is subbing for Pennie and Henry until they are ready for action.

Coach Peterson was quoted as saying, "This is a position at which I thought we'd be in pretty good shape when spring practice started, but two of our starting tackles are out with injuries. We'll be in good shape if we can get these injured boys back."

Looking ahead to the September 20th. tilt with the Hurricanes of Miami, a major duel is expected to evolve between possible All-America Avery Sumner of FSU and possible All-America Dan Conners of Miami, a 6'-2", 235 lb. senior from Pennsylvania. Both are rated on a parallel with each other, as far as potentialities and abilities go, and both are the mainstays of their respective interior lines. We expect this rivalry to be almost as much of a battle at the tackle positions as we do between our Tensi and Miami's Mira at the quarterbacks.

Pete Shuffles Dawson, Ehler

Coach Bill Peterson has been doing a considerable amount of juggling with the Seminole grid roster for the past few days. Peterson, not satisfied with the caliber thus far demonstrated by his charges, is looking for "people who want to play football." The apparent impetus for the changes is the results of last Saturday's scrimmage coupled with shome minor injuries.

The practice tilt last weekend was filmed, in order to better evaluate the performances at all positions. Evidently, hidden talents were revealed.

One of Peterson's surprise moves was the placement of George D'Aleessandro, from Fort Myers, at left end position on the first unit. D'Alessandro, who, according to the coaches, played a good all-round game replaces Bill Dawson. Dawson will return to the defensive end position where he saw action last season.

Ed Pritchett, formerly troubled by knee injuries, was brought up to replace Jim Loftin as right halfback on the offensive squad.

Howard Ehler, a sophomore, will run alternate positions of halfback and fullback on the offense. Until now, Ehler had been strictly a fullback.

'63 Quarterbacks Are Stylish

(UPI).

A flourishing crop of quarterbacks across the nation is likely to dominate college football in 1963.

With rare exceptions, the big teams with a chance to bounce Southern California out of the top spot in the national rankings are set at quarterback with a gifted lad to run the show.

So, of course, are the mighty Trojans. They still have their famed passing combo of quarterback Pete Beathard to end Hal Bedsole that keyed the team to a perfect season last year including that wild west show in the Rose Bowl against Wisconsin, 42-37.

Wisconsin, No. 2 last year, lost the spectacular Ron VanderKelen but Northwestern returns the equally spectacular Tom Myers and rates as a leading threat in the midwest football belt.

Alabama, Georgia Tech and Miami all have quarterbacks of All-America caliber. Mississippi, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, leading contenders for the top slot, are displaying great confidence in the young men who'll be handling the controls.

In the East, which isn't likely to come up with anything better than a berth in the second division of the top 10, there are plenty of nifty quarterbacks.

Roger Staubach of Navy, only a junior, has the best potential. He's a runner as well as a passer. Pete Liske is back at Penn State, Wally Mahle at Syracuse, Jack Concannon at Holy Cross and a real genius in Gary Wood of Cornell, who'd be a national headliner anywhere but in the Ivy League.

Joe Namath makes Alabama a threat in the Southeastern Conference and ditto the handy Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech, who runs, passes and boots placements. Down Miami way, they feel their George Mira is in a class by himself.

Mississippi, which lost Glynn Griffing, comes up with a converted fullback Perry Lee Dunn, and expects him to get the job done with dispatch. Louisiana State may go with Pat Screen, who should be dandy on a screen pass.

In the southwest, where Texas and Arkansas are facing a battle for conference honors and a high spot nationally, the top two apparently aren't concerned about the quarterback department.

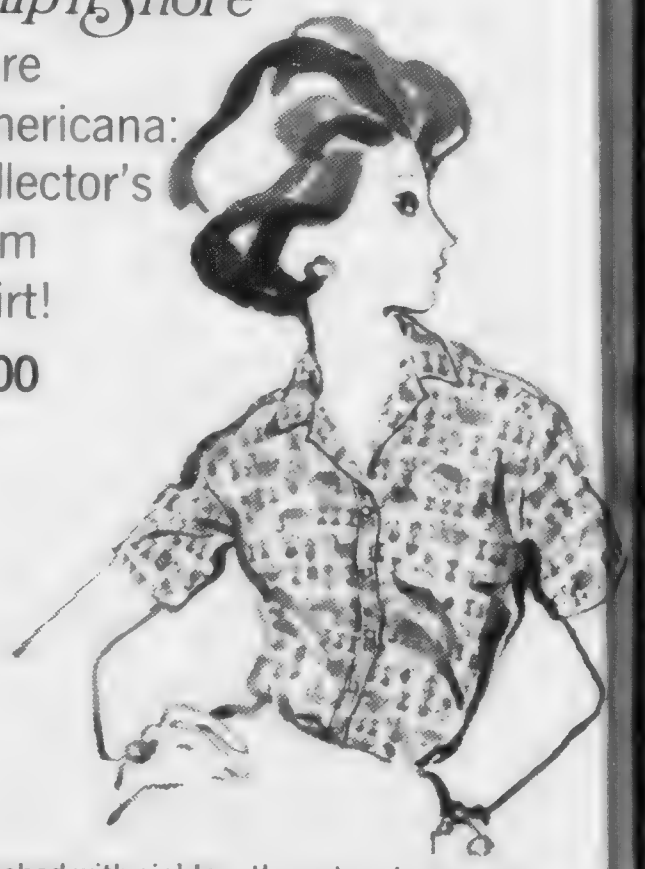
Arkansas has junior Billy Gray, who filled in for the injured Billy Moore in the Sugar Bowl game against Mississippi and set a Sugar Bowl record with a 68-yard touchdown pass in a 17-13 loser. Gray is okay.

Texas-style quarterbacks in Coach Darrell Royal's scheme of things are cast in slightly different roles than most but Royal has three to pick from, including Duke Carlisle.

Oklahoma, rated highly, may be more dangerous on the ground than in the air but quarterback Tommy Pennell, who missed most of the action with an ankle injury last year, could pull a few surprises. Dennis Claridge of Nebraska is another dandy.

In the far west, Craig Morton of California and Dave Mathieson of Washington State are quarterback whizzes but Washington, Southern Cal's top threat, may be moving mostly on the ground.

The boom in quarterbacks, a long-time coming to college football, blossomed in force last season as more and more coaches adopted pro-style offenses and passpatterns.



Upstairs, the university presidents and collegiate purists cringe at the mention of the word "pro" in any phase of athletics. To the coaches, "pro" is a synonym for success.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

Vol. 50, No 6 — Published Daily By The Students Of Florida State University — Monday, September 16, 1963

O PROMISE ME

... that I will get a part when I try out for "The Three-Penny Opera" tonight and tomorrow night, sings one FSU coed. The tradition of "only the best will do" is a long-standing one at FSU where dramatic arts have been concerned. Past performances by students have demonstrated the effectiveness of the "best one" method at FSU.

'Three Penny Opera' Tryouts Start Today

Tryouts for "The Three-Penny Opera," a contemporary musical play, will be held tonight and Thursday night in the History Bldg. at 7 p.m.

"This play presents an easy way for beginners with little or no experience in singing or acting to enter the theater" stated Dr. Dorlag, director.

The music from this play does not have to have a professional or trained voice to sing it. The style is natural or sometimes rauchous. One of the songs has recently become a number one seller, "Mack the Knife.'

"Three Penny Opera," written by Bart Brecht, is a contemporary play originally written to be used as propaganda for the Communist party. It failed in this purpose, but did succeed to be good theater entertainment.

The play takes place in London with chief characters Mack the Knife, the leader of a group of thieves; Polly Peachum, a girl of high status with whom Mack hopes to elope; and many other colorful characters. The script calls for thirty-two players, but is adaptable to almost any situation.

"Three Penny Opera" has had a great influence on the popular music of Europe and America today.

The show is to be produced jointly by the University Theater and the Opera Guild. Scores and scripts are now available in the music library.

"Three Penny Opera" will be presented on November 8 and 9 and rehearsal shcedule will be worked out between now and then to fit the convenience of all concerned.

"One indication of how different 'Three Penny Opera' is that it is scored for banjo, piano and saxaphone," stated Dorlag. It has a continental cafe style jazz combo on stage instead of an orchestra.

Dr. Dorlag urges all those interested in entering or rejoining the theater to attend tryouts. He feels it would be a most rewarding experience and well worth the time.

Fear Business Loss

Restaurant Owners Refuse To Serve Negro Students

BY LANA MURRAY
Flambeau Editor

Owners of four eating establishments immediately adjacent to the FSU campus declined again last week to attend a meeting to discuss their policy of refusing service to FSU's Negro students.

Since the peaceful integration of FSU in the fall of 1962, the four restaurants--the Mecca, the Corner, the University Inn and the Sweet Shop--repeatedly have refused to serve the Negro student. This fall, 10 Negroes have registered with the University.

Members of a University Religious Council committee, set up to try to persuade the restaurants to open their doors to FSU's Negro students, contacted the owners, suggesting a meeting Saturday morning. Two of the restauranteurs declined immediately, and one said she had not yet decided what to do about the problem. The fourth commented, "I think we should talk about it. But I'll do what the others do."

The restaurant managers have indicated that they fear loss of business and economic reprisal if they serve the Negroes. Members of the URC committee have maintained that they have not requested total desegregation of the eating establishments, only service for FSU's Negro students.

The Council committee, consisting of students, faculty, and denominational chaplains, was established Feb. 28 of this year to handle negotiations with the restaurant owners to open the eating places to FSU Negroes. Several attempts were made during the spring and summer trimesters to come to an agreement with the owners, but there has been no change in policy for any of the four restaurants.

To date, the following overtures have been made to the restauranteurs, according to the URC committee:

On March 14--two of the restaurant owners were personally contacted and indicated they would meet with the committee on March 21. They did not appear for the meeting, and no explanation was given.

--All four owners were invited to another meeting, set at their request for April 6, and again all failed to appear.

--At a meeting with leaders of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce on June 4, the committee suggested that the Chamber's influence and experience might be helpful in persuading the restaurant owners to meet together and talk over the situation. The Chamber members felt they could do nothing, since the restaurant owners are not members of the C of C organization.

--Other voluntary efforts were being made at the same time the committee was seeking negotiation.

Ask The Lion

By CHARLES DEFOOR
Flambeau Staff Writer

Fire trucks, police cars and highway patrolmen converged on the SAE house Saturday night in response to a fire alarm and reports of mass disturbances, fighting, stolen fire axes and congregated officials, including President Blackwell and the Deans of Students.

That was Saturday night. Sunday morning, however, the incident appeared to be just a collective bad dream. President Blackwell and Dean Oglesby didn't know anything about it; no one at the KA house, "The Home of True Southern Gentlemen," knew anything about it; and the ATO's weren't even answering their phone.

The SAE's admitted a fire truck visited their house during the night, but they surely didn't know about any kind of a disturbance, and neither did anyone else.

Whether or not there was a riot, only the lion knows--and he isn't telling!

Tally-Ho

The 1963 Tally Ho is now at the bindery and will be arriving around October 1st.

"To clear up many misconceptions, the Tally Ho is not late in its distribution," reported Beth Ann Le Gate and Pati Childs co-editors.

As adopted by the Board of Publications on March 28, 1962 the "Tally Ho is to be printed in the summer months and distributed in the fall of the following year."

Those wishing to reserve a 1964 Tally Ho may do so in Room 18 Longmire between two and five p.m. September 16-20. Seniors may sign up for their class picture at this time.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Students, Too

The refusal of owners and managers of restaurants immediately adjacent to campus to serve Negro members of FSU's student body is an excellent example of senseless discrimination.

FSU has admitted these Negroes without unpleasant publicity and the student body has accepted them without incident of violence. With the exception of a handful of personal indignities, which were to be expected, the Negroes has been treated as "just students," and the university has quietly gone about its business. Enrollment has not dropped off, but has increased; and, far from suffering for its action, FSU has been praised for its mature handling of an explosive issue.

The restaurant owners, however, have refused to serve the Negroes, to treat them as "just students." Indications are that they are basing their refusal not upon moral beliefs, but upon their fear of economic reprisal should they serve the Negro students. They claim they would lose a large volume of customers who would object to eating in the same restaurant with the Negroes.

We recognize the fact that the owners have property rights, and we are not suggesting that these eating facilities be immediately and completely desegregated. The fact is, however, that all these restaurants draw their income almost entirely from the FSU student body. It is obvious that the University is their sole reason for being, since they are shut down during student vacations.

The Negro students are as much a part of Florida State University as any other students, and should be treated as such. They have shown that they are here to receive an education, not to cause trouble. That there has been no violence involved in FSU's integration is accreditable to the calm and reasoning attitude of both administration and students.

This is no time to blot the clean record FSU has gained. Yet should picketing and demonstrating occur at the off-campus restaurants in question, the black mark would be ascribed not to Florida, nor to Tallahassee, nor even to the restaurants and owners themselves; it would be FSU which would be publicized. It is to be hoped that the restauranteers will be amenable to the views of the student body, which is, after all, their sole customer. Student opinions in this matter, as in all others, are certain to vary widely; but the peaceful acceptance of the Negro students is an indication of majority opinion. These beliefs should be made known to the restaurant owners, to advise them that the student body is concerned about the treatment of ALL FSU students, and to assure them that their fears of economic reprisal are unfounded.

These restaurants must be opened to ALL FSU students, before any untoward event occurs to tarnish the mature image in which FSU has deservingly taken great pride.

Protest Not Always Anti-Democrati

According to an article I read in the Flambeau last Thursday, FSU coeds were urged by Dean Warren to refrain from mob action and mass demonstrations. Dean Warren's contention, according to this article, was that mass demonstrations are "anti-democratic."

No one, I hope, would disagree with the view that mob violence and mob rule could be, in some cases, anti-democratic but the view that protest demonstrations are anti-democratic is, if I may use the expression, anti-democratic.

Democracy is theoretically rule by the people by which minority rights are protected. It is certainly within the best interests of freedom, equality, and our democratic traditions to participate in mass demonstrations against abusive and immoral governments and laws.

The Boston Tea Party was a protest, union strikes are demonstrations, so was the French Revolution and The March on Washington. Protest demonstrations are one of the "sine qua non's" of democracy.

Who is, or was, the more democratic, James Meredith or Gov. Barnett, the Hungarian Freedom Fighters or Premier Khr[illegible] the Buddhist discontents or Pres[illegible] ident Diem? Hall Needs Leaders

To the Editor:

The success in the activities in Kellum Hall for this coming school year will depend largely on the capability and leadership of whom the residents will elect on September 24 to represent them as presidents, vice president and social director besides the other important positions of unit governors, athletic director, secretary and treasurer.

Having the largest air-conditioned dance floor on campus, this dormitory has much to offer its residents; but such dances will depend almost wholly upon the abilities of Kellum's new leaders.

The deadline for filing for all these positions is tomorrow, September 17, at 5:00 p.m. It is the hope of this writer, as president last year, that the men of Kellum will not let a wonderful year of dances, guest speakers, etc. slip through their fingers.

May the potential candidates file before five o'clock tomorrow and campaign with great "vigar." May the other men evaluate their leadership abilities and vote accordingly on September 24.

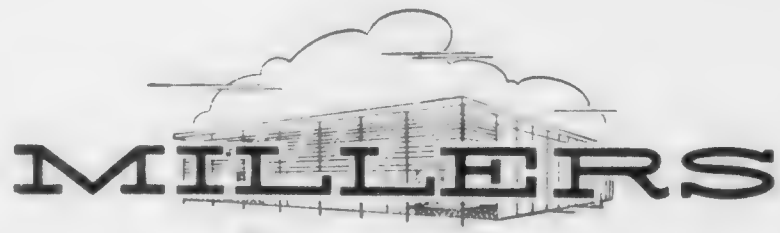
Hazing Deplored

To the Editor:

As an upperclassman, I would like to raise a few questions as to the present state of Freshman Orientation. I do not feel that there is a feasible way of conducting the hazing of such a large group of "rats."

First, there are only so may upperclassmen who have the time or the inclination for such pursuits. The vast majority are either too pre-occupied with classes or dating, or have no desire to properly indoctrinate them.

Second, the freshmen are aware of this state of affairs, and would be amazed and annoyed by the few who tried. Rather than deriving any genuine "esprit de corps" from these occasional encounters, they relate the practice to senseless bullying by a minority.



The result is that hazing rarely occurs, the rat cap sale becomes only a minor annoyance, degenerating into a half-hearted fund raising scheme. Such disregard of the program leads the new students to become apathetic and disinterested in campus affairs as their pred-

Monroe At College

On Campus with Max Shulman

By the Author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" and, "Barefoot Boy With Cheek."

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I begin my tenth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. Ten years is a long time; it is, in fact, what people like to call a decade from the Latin word meaning the floor of a ship. It is, to my mind, remarkable that the Romans had such a word as decume when you consider that ships did not exist until 1620 when John Alden invented the Mayflower. Alden, a prodigiously ingenious man, also invented the ear lobe and Pocahontas.

Ships were a very popular mode of travel especially over water until 1912 when the Swede, Ivar Krueger, invented the iceberg. Krueger also invented the match, which is a good thing, too, for without the match, how would you light your Marlboro Cigarettes? I cannot overstress the importance of Marlboro Cigarettes, for Marlboro Cigarettes, regrettably, at best, only limited smoking pleasure.

You'll even call it the limp or Spongy sell

I smoke Marlboros because this column is an advertisement, brought to you through the school year by the makers of Marlboros. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top box. Marlboros come in dark suits with thin lapels on weekends when they come in yoke-neck jerseys with buck trousers. White ducks come in flocks. They are water dwellers, although they have been successful in salt water too. Another salt water denizen you will find enjoyable is plankton—a mess of tiny diatoms and algae and like that which float on the surface of the sea. It is ironic that these microscopic in size, should supply the principal food for the earth's largest animal, the whale. Whales, however, are not at all pleased with this arrangement, because the average whale, eating steadily, 48 hours to get enough meal. This leaves them almost no time for water sports or reading Melville. It is a lucky thing for all of us that whales are unaware they are mammals, not fish, and that, if tried, live just as well on land as in water. I mean, you add ten or twelve million whales to our Sunday traffic and you would have congestion that makes the mind boggle.

But I digress. Today, I was saying, I begin my tenth year of writing this column for Marlboro Cigarettes, the cigarette for your campus. I ask, in each column, say a few kind words about Marlboros—just as you will, once you try that fine tobacco, that genuine white filter, that supple soft pack, that tangible Flip-Top box. These references to Marlboro will be brief and unobtrusive, for I do not believe in the hard sell. Neither is the soft sell—you might even call it the limp sell. I hasten to state that the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes have not once complained about my desultory approach. Neither have they paid me.

The reason is small consequence. Aside from fleeting mentions of Marlboros, this column has another, and more urgent, mission: to shine the hot white light of free inquiry upon the vexing questions that trouble college America—questions like "Should the Student Council have the power to levy tariffs?" and "Are our dormitories sanitary?" and "Should housemothers be compelled to retire upon reaching the age of 26?"

Perhaps by reasoning together, we can find the answers. Perhaps not. But if we fail, let it never be said that it was for lack of trying.

ecessors, the exact opposite of what is intended.

Admittedly, FSU has outgrown the practice of formalized hazing. What is needed is to give them advice and assistance in entering campus affairs; to make them feel they are one of us; in short, some method that is practical to serve the purpose of indoctrination, which cannot be fulfilled by calling them rats for only an hour.

. . .Arrested

The officers obeyed. The Negroes and whites were hauled bodily from before the theater and dumped into the cars. Few would walk after the officers grabbed them, forcing the officers to drag them. One Negro got out of squad car on the opposite side and had to be arrested again.

Among the first arrested were Mrs. Patricia Due and Reuben Kennon, both leaders of the demonstration sponsoring Congress of Racial Equality.

Mrs. Due took notes on the way she was handled after being thrown into the car by two officers.

One girl hit her head on the pavement after she was thrown by officers. They picked up her limp body and tossed her into a patrol van apparently unconscious.

The Negro and white demonstrators marched to the theater from Florida A&M (Negro) University about seven blocks away. They were in groups of 50 walking under orders from separate leaders.

As they walked, they chanted their song "Freedom."

After arriving before the theater on the city's main street, five blocks from the Capitol, they broke into other songs, "We Shall Overcome," "We Are Not Afraid," and "Black and White Together.".

Fourteen pickets carrying signs marched in an oval before the theater entrance.

Asked whether the demonstration violated the court injunction issued last spring, Mrs. Due declined to answer.

She did say:

"We have the whole city before us. The whole city is segregated.

"Governor Farris Bryant can say there is no problem here, no discrimination. But here are those (and she swept her hand toward the crowd of demonstrators) who don't believe him."

. . .Restaurants

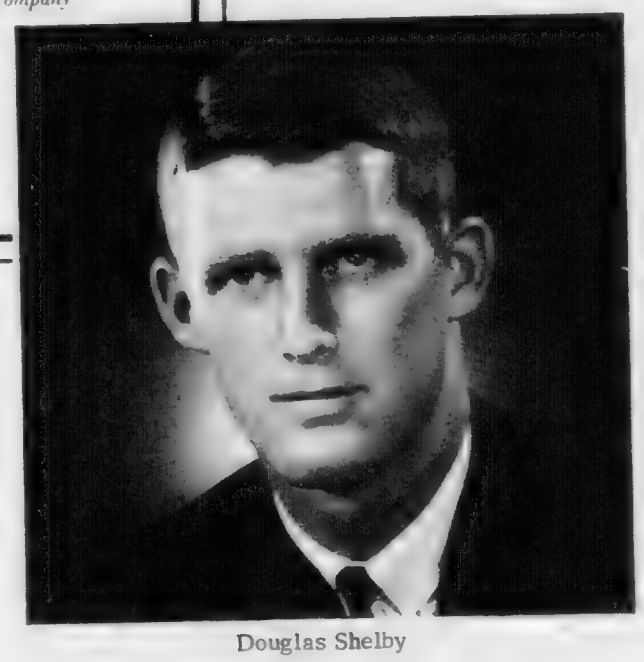
Student government leaders also were concerned about the problem and met with the committee. Two student opinion polls were taken, in which the great majority of responses indicated the students would continued to support the restaurants if they began to serve all FSU students. Some students voluntarily approached the restaurant owners indicating their continued support if the FSU Negro students were served.

--The restaurant owners approached FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell, and two meetings were held with him. As a result of his mediation, a proposal that the Council and the restaurant owners agree to the quiet and gradual opening of the restaurants to all FSU students was drawn up. Both the Council and the owners were asked to consider the proposal and decide within a week if they would enter the agreement. The Council voted June 12 to accept the agreement. Restaurant owners rejected it.



--The URC committee decided little else could be done to postpone further action until the fall trimester.

--The committee met again Sept. 5 and agreed to release an account of the above transactions in an attempt to inform the FSU student body of the situation, as it presently exists.

Government Orientation

A student government orientation assembly, sponsored by the University Party, will be held tomorrow evening, at 7 p.m., in Longmire Auditorium, according to Louis Barnett, party chairman.

"The purpose of this assembly is to assist in bridging the gap between student government and the student body, and to provide vital information, not only to those interested in becoming student government officers, but to every member of the student body as well," said Barnett.

The speakers will include Johnny Smith, president of the student government, who will speak on the executive branch in an effort to relate its important functions and duties. Vice President Julian Proctor will speak on the legislative branch, while Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections, will discuss the importance of elections and the two-party system to the student government and the student body.

"The assembly will be held for the benefit of all the candidates and other interested students, old and new alike," Barnett said.

Birmingham Bomb Claims 4 Lives

BIRMINGHAM--A powerful explosion has wrecked a Negro church in Birmingham, killing four Negro children and injuring more than 20 other persons. All of the victims were young girls. The blast went off during Sunday School at the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church--a building often used as headquarters in the integration drive by such leaders as the Rev. Martin Luther King.

Birmingham police fired shotguns and rifles into the air to break up angry crowds of Negroes that gathered after the explosion. A few rocks were thrown at police. Police rushed a riot squad and a riot tank to the scene but they were not used, since the crowd dispersed.

An intensive investigation has been launched into the explosion. A clue is out for a 1960 model car occupied by two men seen near the church. Police said the men are dark-skinned and could be either white Mexican, or Negro. The U.S. Justice Dept. asked the FBI to make an investigation. Gov. George Wallace offered a $5,000 reward for capture of the bombers and offered state police to assist in the probe.

The force of the explosion tore chunks of concrete loose and hurled them outward. Police said a white woman, sitting in her car a few blocks away, was injured when a rock shattered the windshield. Cars parked by the church were wrecked. The rumble of the explosion was heard throughout the downtown Birmingham area.

Afterward, an odor that smelled like dynamite hung in the air as a pall of gloom hung over the survivors. They wandered around aimlessly and wordlessly.

As the survivors surveyed the scene of the destruction, a white man with a confederate flag drove his car into the area. Police quickly took him into custody.

There have been more than 40 bombings in Birmingham in recent years and there never has been a single conviction. This is the first time one of the bombings has claimed a life.

BOC Approves Buying Research Site

The state Board of Control voted last week to try to buy the former Maritime Service Training Center at St. Petersburg from the Government for "higher education."

One possibility would be installation of an oceanography research project jointly sponsored by the University of South Florida in Tampa and Florida State University in Tallahassee.

Another would be for the use of the Continuing Studies Institute, which already has one class at the center and which could be "expanded."

No long range use of the center was discussed but it was considered suitable as a site for a branch of the University of South Florida or the nucleus of a state college for graduate studies.

The Maritime Service Training Center is now occupied by departments of Florida Presbyterian College which will be moved to the new Presbyterian college campus Jan. 1.

Also quartered at the maritime base in Bayboro Harbor is a State Board of Conservation unit studying the Red Tide and a State Board of Health group performing research on problems of the aged.

The resolution authorized the board's staff to negotiate to actually acquire title. Meanwhile, efforts will be made either to sublease the 11-acre property from the City of St. Petersburg or negotiate for a direct lease from the Maritime Commission.

The board deferred approval of a recreation swimming pool at the University of South Florida because it would be too shallow for diving.

Increased enrollment at three state universities also was reported at the BOC meeting. Dr. Wayne Reitz reported the University of Florida at Gainesville has registered 14,678 students, 500 more than forecast by the budget commission; Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, president of Florida State University at Tallahassee, reported an enrollment of 10,952 compared to 10,391 at the beginning of the fall trimester last year; Dr. John Allen, president of the University of South Florida in Tampa, reported enrollment at 4,554--900 more than last year.

Dr. George W. Gore, Jr., president of Florida A&M at Tallahassee, reported a 200 drop in enrollment from the 2,794 of last year. He attributed this to lack of finances of students, lack of housing and poor showing of many potential students in 12th grade state tests for college entrance.

Dorm To Elect New Officers

Elections for dorm officers of Kellum Hall will be held Tuesday, September 24th.

The deadline for candidates to file for their desired offices is September 17th.

Many offices are vacant and available to those residents of Kellum, sophomore level or above, who have been at FSU at least one trimester and have a 2.0 grade average. Offices vacant include President, Secretary, Treasurer, Unit Governors, and other positions.

Candidates may file for the office of their choice at the switchboard in Kellum Hall. When filing candidates must give their name, classification, grade average and the office sought.

TV To Start Film Series

Handicapped children and their educational problems is the subject of the first of a seven-film public service television series which begins over WFSU-TV, channel 11, at 10 p.m. tomorrow evening.

The series, "Project Four" was filmed in cooperation with WJXT, commercial channel 4 in Jacksonville. The Tuesday evening program is entitled, "These Too, Are Ours."

On Sept. 24, the program will be a special report on the Yerkes Laboratories of Primate Biology in Orange Park.

"Countdown for College" is scheduled for Oct. 1. It provides an appraisal of the crisis facing Florida's institutions of higher learning. The report deals with the role of the junior colleges, deficiencies in faculty salaries, and the quality the diploma will represent as enrollment in Florida's universities climbs from the present 68,000 to 155,000 by 1970.

Other film titles will be: "The Perilous Years," a survey of the status of the elderly person; "Profile of a Cancer."

Brinkley, Huxel To Miss Miami

Hard running fullback Larry Brinkley and fourth team halfback Joe Huxel have been sidelined for the Friday night game with Miami with identical injuries, a dislocated shoulder. Huxel, who played with the Freshmen in a sneak preview Friday night of the Miami game, was injured in the first quarter of play. Brinkley did not see action in the scrimmage.

Head Football Coach Bill Peterson termed the scrimmage, which was moved up from its scheduled playing Saturday, a "full-dress rehearsal, including even the pre-game and half time locker-room activities."

Pete was "much better pleased with the overall performance." The scrimmage was played behind closed doors and pitted the freshman team, with quarterbacks Ken Hammond and Jim Perry alternating and throwing the pass patterns usually employed by Miami's Mr. Everything, George Mira, against the first three units of the Seminoles.

Starting Tribe Quarterback Steve Tensi played three-quarters of the game, directing all three units at one time or another, and completed 12 of his 16 pass attempts. Other sterling varsity performances were turned in by Sophomore backs Howard Ehler and Joe Petko, and by fullbacks Gene Roberts and Marion Roberts who will fill in for Brinkley in the Orange Bowl clash with Miami. Sharp-looking Freshmen were Halfback Baggett and Quarterback Perry.

After the game, Coach Peterson admitted that, "This performance tonight indicated that we can use the three-team attack, with modifications." He continued, "We had too many penalties (128 yards), which indicates a little over-aggressiveness on our part which will have to be worked out in practice. The pass defense was leaky this week and we also have to work on that. On the whole, I think our two-way players are coming along nicely. We are definitely improving.

"We've started to come along now, but whether we've come far enough to be as good a team as Miami, remains to be seen. Everything was as good as I had hoped it would be at this stage. We're right on schedule. Brinkley is a veteran, and this will hurt us, but if I had to lose a player at any position, I would rather it be fullback."

He paused to think before continuing, "Snyder had a good night with several long runs, and Ehler ran hard for a sophomore. I was also pleased to see Tensi run for some long gainers.

Faculty Will Eye Gridders

Coach Bill Peterson has sent out an invitation to the faculty of FSU for Monday's and Tuesday's practice sessions. The drills will commence at 4 p.m. at the practice field located between Campbell Stadium and Tully Gym.

The faculty will have the players introduced to them and witness the training procedure the coaching staff uses to turn out a football team.

Drills this week will be centered about pass defense and the reduction of penalties, weaknesses encountered in last Friday night's scrimmage.

Record Crowd Anticipated

By BOB DENSMORE
Flambeau Assistant Sports Editor

Tickets are fast vanishing for the FSU-Miami opener. At the present time, over 60,000 have been gobbled up by football hungry Floridians. Tickets went on sale last Tuesday at 18 locations, and the sellers were immediately swamped.

At the present rate of sales, the clash promises to provide the largest crowd ever to assemble for a Miami debut. The top opening day crowd for an Orange Bowl tilt was recorded in 1958, when Miami-Wisconsin drew 62,087. Orange Bowl capacity at present is 72,880.

The large draw for FSU-Miami is, no doubt, due to the fierce contest the two teams waged last year. The rematch promises to be even more blood curdling this year with the added flavor of a passing duel between Tensi the Seminole and Mira the Hurricane. Both quarterbacks have been mentioned as "possibles" for an all-American berth.

Tickets for the game will be on sale at Tully Gymnasium until Wednesday noon.

Notice

There will be a meeting this Wednesday for all persons interested in going out for the Seminole tennis team. Varsity candidates should come to room 212 of the Men's Gym at 4 p.m. Freshmen will meet at 4:30 p.m. in the same room.

Ha, Ha, Ha!

The vaunted Florida Gators, picked to be sixth nationally in some of the pre-season polls, made liars out of their believers by lossing a 9-0 decision to an under-rated Georgia Tech team in a swampy Grant Stadium in Atlanta.

The overall Gator offense was lucky to gain minus nine yards against the Tech line which spent most of the time in the Florida backfield. Florida's line, on the other hand, turned in an off and on performance, occasionally slipping into Tech's backyard.

The game saw the shattering of the myth of Larry DuPree, picked as All-American by Playboy magazine among others, who was held to 38 yards in 11 carries. The Tech defense was set for him and the passing of Quarterback Tom Shannon who gained minus 69 yards r[illegible] ing a[illegible] yards passing.

Reinke Gives Faculty Recital

The first faculty recital of the semester was presented by Miss Jeanette Reinke last night at 8:15 in Westcott Auditorium.

Accompanied by Miss Mary Ester Miss Reinke sang Wagner's "Five Wesendonck Songs"; Debussy's "Beau Soir," "Madolin," "Le Chevaure" and "Romance"; Faure's "Mai" "Nuit Troubled," "Les Plaideurs" and "Somi Del"; "The Deep Sea," an American folk song and "The Nightingale," an English folk song.

Miss Reinke has been soloist in Haydn's "Elijah" with the Orlando Symphony, soloist with the University of Minnesota Summer Symphony, and has given recitals at New York Times Hall, the International Summer School at Kufstein, Austria, and in Western Germany. She has sung with the Florida University Opera Workshop and the Northwest Grand Opera Company. In 1956, she was selected by representatives of the Metropolitan Opera and the American Broadcasting Co. to sing on The Auditions of the Air in New York City.

Miss Reinke's music education began at home with her mother as teacher. She has studied with Ruth Emerton, Cornell College; Lowell Wallace, Syracuse University; Paul Lemmon and known Leider and Alexander Bruechkner-Theodorowicz at the opera workshop.

BOC Approves Coble Bid For Swimming Pool

By SUE BOYLE

Flambeau Staff Writer

The State Board of Control approved Coble Construction Company's bid for construction of the new swimming pool at a meeting Thursday in Tampa.

Coble's bid of $201,442 covers the cost of the pool and the deck. Bidding will open later for building of the locker facilities. Also under contract to Coble at this time is the new Student Union and a men's dorm.

Changing the pool from a "Z" shape to a "U" shape has been the only variance made in the original plans. The pool will be built at the site of the present hockey field, across from the Student Union.

Diving boards will be one, three and 10 meters in length. The pool measures 75 meters in length and 75 yards in width. To comply with Olympic regulations, the entire swimming area of the pool will be four feet in depth. The diving area will be about 13 feet deep.

Special features of the outdoor pool include heated water, a heated deck, lights for night, and a water cooling system. To make it easier to calculate distance when diving, a bubbler, which agitates the water will be installed in the diving area.

Students, faculty and members of their families will be able to use the pool at certain times during the day and the night. The swimming team will practice and swim meets will take place at the new pool.

Dean Oglesby Issues Warning

In connection with the demonstrations in Tallahassee Saturday night, Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby announced, "In view of the University's responsibility to support law and order and our responsibility for the safety of our students, the university reaffirms its position taken last spring. All Florida State University students are enjoined from any action violating the court orders issued by Judge Ben C. Willis pertaining to the picketing of local theatres. Students also are enjoined from participating in any action which may lead to violence, including participation in meetings which may lead to such actions. Failure to observe these injunctions will subject a student to University discipline."

Races Start Today

Election campaigning begins at 5 p.m. today for all candidates running for precinct senator and freshman class offices.

Precinct senator candidates total 105, with 48 freshmen seeking class offices.

No active campaigning is to begin prior to 5 p.m. Students should pay attention to the regulation which states: "Active campaigning shall be defined as the dissemination of literature of any type, the posting of signs, or any other tangible construction, all which is to be displayed for the purpose of advocating or urging the election of any candidate or group of candidates."

Campaign regulations governing off-campus business establishments and special regulations governing campaigning of candidates in fall elections of 1963 should be reviewed by all candidates, according to Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections.

Election primaries will be held Tuesday, Sept. 24, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The election returns will be broadcast over radio station WTNT. No results of the runoffs will be posted or broadcast until all campaign materials are taken off campus.

Dr. James Dillinger Dies Suddenly Here

Dr. James Edward Dillinger, 46, head of FSU's Risk and Insurance department in the School of Business died suddenly of a heart attack at his home Friday night.

James Edward Dillinger

Memorial services were held yesterday afternoon in the Starry Room of the School of Business. The body lay in state at Culley's Chapel yesterday afternoon, and is now being taken to South Bend, Ind. for burial. The family has expressed a preference for contributions to the James Edward Dillinger Scholarship Memorial Fund which will be handled by Dean Charles Rovetta, of the Business School.

Dillinger received degrees from Indiana University, University of Florida and the University of Wisconsin. He came to FSU in 1956 as professor and head of the department of risk insurance and real estate, in the School of Business. Before that time he had taught at the Universities of Florida and Wisconsin and was the author of numerous articles and several textbooks.

He was president of the J. Edwin Larson Foundation, which he helped organize, and which helps students entering the field of insurance. He served on numerous university committees.

Survivors include his widow and one son, James III; one daughter, Connie; his mother, Mrs. James Dillinger of Lakeland; and a brother C. Kenneth Dillenger of Lakeland.

Election Withdrawls

All candidates desiring to withdraw their names should check with Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections at 210 Longmire from 12 to 5 p.m.

Student, Former Student Among Three Arrested

An FSU student and a former FSU student were among three youths arrested Friday morning for a public disturbance at the Dobbs House, a local all-night diner.

George Archie Crain and FSU student Don W. Carlson were charged by the Tallahassee Police Dept. with disturbing the peace by the use of vulgar and obscene language. The former student, Robert Lee Hewitt, was charged with disturbing the peace by using vulgar and obscene language and disorderly conduct by indecent exposure.

Bill Cox, Dobbs House manager, called police at about 2:30 a.m. and complained that three patrons were cursing loudly and disturbing other customers.

Cox said they were "using dirty and filthy language and refused to settle down when restaurant employees warned them." The three youths had paid their check and were leaving the diner when Hewitt took down his trousers and, with his back to other patrons, bent over.

Cox complained that Hewitt had caused disturbances in the diner before, and had barred him from there, warning his employees not to serve him.

Carlson and Crain pleaded innocent before Municipal Judge John Rudd and was ordered to stand trial Sept. 10. Hewitt pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and innocent to indecent exposure. He was also ordered to appear in court Sept. 19.

They were placed in jail Friday night and Carlson released to the custody of Robert G. Brewer, Asst. Dean of Men. Bond was set at $50 each for Carlson and Crain, and $75 for Hewitt.

All new students and those interested in Student Government may attend.

Chiefs Boast New Sound

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Feature Writer

The FSU Marching Chiefs have never lost a half-time show and according to Robert T. Braunagel, director of the well-known band, they don't intend to break such a long-standing tradition of victories this year, either.

From information given by Braunagel, FSU can look forward to having the best marching band in its history. Experimentation will be the password for the Chiefs this season, the new director added.

With an all new pre-game entrance, the band will be using music arranged by Charles Carter designed to give the Chiefs a richer, fuller sound through the use of high sustained trumpet parts.

In the modern pre-game shows, drums will be placed in the center of the football field and four bass drums will be featured in place of the usual two. This is expected to add further depth and color to drum cadences. The Chief's renowned "GO" cadence will still be used, while a newer cadence has been created which is designed to lend a sophisticated note of excitement to pre-game showings.

A musical cheer for the fans will be played just prior to the band's exit after the pre-game show, and the words "Go, Seminoles," "Fight, Team, Fight" and "Scalp 'em" will be shouted by FSU supporters during pauses in the music.

Something for the Seminole braves this fall are the twirling beauties. The Chiefs' Feature Baton Artist, Cookie Winchester, will demonstrate her skills with the baton, while Janice Eddins will lead the majorette corps in snappy routines. Majorettes will have new uniforms for the shows, but they are keeping them top secret until the first game.

First appearance for the Marching Chiefs will be in Miami, Sept. 20, when they will present an appropriate theme: "Echoes of Spain." The Miami show will be performed in the Chiefs' fast-paced style, with main numbers being "Siboney" and "Espania Cani," which will feature the trumpet section.

When asked about his plans for the Chiefs this year, Braunagel said that "the Chiefs have always been a fine group and we intend to maintain and improve those qualities which have made them great. In my opinion, the Marching Chiefs are the best around."

The band will attend two away football games this season. They head for Miami first, where the Chiefs' show last year inspired a Miami Herald writer to praise their performance and style highly. The second safari will be to "friendly" University of Florida in November, when they will "show the music-starved Gators what a marching band looks like," as one Chief member put it.

GET A BOOM OUT OF LIFE, GANG

Practice has been fast and furious in preparation for the game of the season, and the Chiefs will leave Thursday for enemy tertory in Miami. (Photo by Richard Newman)

Ceylon Student Pleased With FSU

By MARKIE ROBBINS
Flambeau Feature Writer

Every year, FSU has an increasing number of students who come to study from far distant corners of the world for the purposes of seeing what America is really like as well as furthering academic progress.

This fall, FSU has the first student from Ceylon ever to study in a Florida University, for "Senie," or G. Seniveratne, has come to work on a master's degree in meteorology.

When asked why he chose FSU, Seniveratne answered that "although there are other universities in the world dealing with tropical meteorology, this is the only school located under tropical or semi-tropical skies."

Senie maintained that in this country, "American schools are apt to be thought of as rather easy." Although he has studied at Cambridge, Senie says that he "has found FSU to be quite difficult... it takes a lot of work to make a good grade here." As a matter of fact, he feels that "FSU is comparable to the top colleges and universities of Europe."

Being a student from a country over 12,000 miles distant, he emphasized the importance of the international reputation FSU is getting.

Senie thinks FSU is ideal for foreign students because "it is located in a small town, where there are fewer distractions for students to indulge in."

Like most of the international students, Senie lives in Alumni Village, which is three miles from campus.

The Jitney Bus affords transportation to Alumni Village between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., thereby limiting the amount of university functions students in the Village without cars can hope to attend.

The Foreign Film Club is of great interest to Senie, but knowledge of all the special trips he'll have to make diminishes much of his first glow of enthusiasm over the program. He remarked that "those of us who live in the Village see campus life and activities only between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. due to limited transportation facilities."

Senie also proposed the idea of an International House, which would be built close to campus and where American and foreign students could live together for a better understanding of one another's customs. He added that this was being done on many of the "Ivy League" and "Big Ten" campuses with great acceptance by their student bodies.

ACROSS THE NATION

BIRMINGHAM--Negro leaders led by Dr. Martin Luther King have called for occupation of Birmingham, Alabama, by regular army troops. King says a direct appeal will be made to President Kennedy for troops. This came after nearly 200 Negroes and representatives of the white community met. The group also calls for removal of 300 state troopers sent to Birmingham after the church bombings Sunday which killed four young Negro girls.

King says Birmingham's 125,000 Negroes are still under control. But the Negro minister says if violence continues, he fears the Negroes will retaliate. A Birmingham Negro leader, the Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, says no Negro is safe in the city. He and other Negroes complain about what they term police brutality.

A federal grand jury in Birmingham has been ordered to investigate the city's racial troubles. U.S. District Judge Clarence Allgood, a native of Birmingham, called the grand jury into special session to indict anyone obstructing court-ordered integration of schools.

Of the church bombing, the judge said there was no greater heresy or more blackening sin against humanity.

NEW YORK--A U.S. spokesman says the U.S. will support demands by Asian and African countries for U.N. assembly debate on South Viet Nam's treatment of Buddhists. The statement was made in New York as diplomats converged on U.S. headquarters for the assembly opening today.

LONDON--In Britain, the impending birth of just one baby makes news. The mother is Queen Elizabeth. A Buckingham Palace spokesman reports the Queen is expecting her fourth child... some time next year.

ABERDEEN, SOUTH DAKOTA--The Fischer qunituplets remain in good condition at an Aberdeen, S.D., hospital. Dr. James Berbos, who delivered the four girls and one boy Saturday, says "They are still in danger but chances are good for the survival of all five."

Jordan Appointed Chairman

Dr. Charles L. Jordan has been appointed chairman of the FSU Meteorology Dept., succeeding Dr. Seymour L. Hess, who relinquished the chairmanship to devote more attention to teaching and research.

Jordan, who joined the faculty in 1957 as associate professor, has become the third head of the department. It was organized in 1949 and has become one of the best known meteorology departments in the nation and the only one in the Southeast.

Hess, who is known for his work in planetary atmosphere, especially Mars, will continue as a professor and one of the principal participating scientists in FSU's Institute for Space Biosciences.

Jordan, 41, is a specialist in tropical meteorology and for three years has participated in on-the-spot observation of hurricanes, flying into them in Naval planes. He observed Hurricane Ester in 1961.

Prior to joining the faculty he was with the U.S. Weather Bureau's Hurricane Research Project in West Palm Beach in 1956-57 and in 1954-55 he was a civilian employee of the Air Force in Washington. He is vice chairman of the committee on hurricanes of the American Meteorological Society and is a member of the committee on tropical meteorology of the American Geophysical Union.

Currently he is directing a three-year study under a $58,393 grant from the National Science Foundation of the associations between the warmth of the sea surface in the tropics and the character of weather patterns.

Special Dinner To Be Offered

The Hotel and Restaurant Management Dept. will once again offer dinners on Tuesday and Thursday at 6 p.m. in th Regency Room on second floor of the Seminole Club.

Each meal will cost $1 and will consist of appetizer, entree, two vegetables, salad, drink and dessert.

The quality and reputation of these dinners plus the limited capacity of the Regency Room requires advance reservations which may be phoned into the department office.

This project was begun 10 years ago as a practice lab for Hotel and Restaurant Management majors. Each student varies his job every meal to encompass the many facets of hotel and restaurant dining. The student who manages the dining room one week may toss salads the next.

In the spring the department will offer an international touch by again providing dinners of various nations.

Keg Is Off-Campus

The Keg, reported in Thursday's Flambeau as a new off-campus magazine, has no connection with FSU and is not a student publication.

Dr. Reid Montgomery, adviser of student publications, said that one of the publishers is a student at FSU, but that there is no other connection with the University.

The two student publications in this field, supported in part by student fees are a general interest magazine, Smoke Signals, and a literary review. The Legend.

Hurricane Return Four '62 Starters

CORAL GABLES, FLA. Sept.--Only two football teams outgained the University of Miami both on the ground and in the air last year. University of Alabama was one and the Hurricanes' opening game foe of Sept. 20, Florida State University was the other.

The Seminoles outgained Miami 144-104 on the ground and 178 to 122 in the air. Miami won the game 7-6 by recovering six of seven FSU fumbles. One recovery was at midfield, two on the Miami 26 and 28 yard line and the other three, between the Miami 10 and 19. Two successive long passes, George Mira to Nick Spinelli, gave Miami its lone TD.

While Florida State football coach Bill Peterson is fretting over how the new rules will affect his three team system, Coach Andy Gustafson is worrying considerably more over trying to get an experienced first eleven together to represent University of Miami against the Seminoles in the Orange Bowl the night of Sept. 20.

Only four men, two on the line and two in the backfield, will be in the UM lineup Sept. 20 from the team which opened for Miami against University of Pittsburgh in the 1962 opener. One of them, Joe Smerdel, will be appearing in a strange position.

Smerdel, a tackle in 1962, is now playing tackle and guard. Even Bob Hart, who started at center a year ago and is due to be in the same position Sept. 20th will have somewhat different assignments on defense. He will be given the roving line backing spot handled so brilliantly by Jim O'Mahony a year ago.

George Mira at quarterback and Nick Spinelli at flanker back are the other starters from 1962 returning for the Sept. 20 tussle.

Graduation took Ben Rizzo and Jim Simon, ends; Stan Maluty, tackle Jim O'Mahony and Jerry Reynolds, guards; Van Parsons, halfback and Nick Ryder, fullback.

At least two sophomores will open for Miami in the backfield against Florida State, Russell Smith at left back and Pete Banaszak at right back, so the running attack for the Hurricanes will rest upon the efforts of two untried rookies.

Tom Coughlin, a sophomore, is making a strong bid to get a starting call at left end. He's battling Bob Werl, a junior who was hurt and out of much of last season.

Florida State's Seminoles will come into Miami the day of the ball game. The team will come on a special Eastern Air Line charter, leaving Tallahassee at 10 a.m. They're scheduled to arrive in Miami shortly after 11 a.m. and will headquarter at the Montmartre Hotel on Miami Beach. The team will not workout in Miami.

The Hurricanes go into their regular routine of one-a-day workouts the week of the ball game. The team will take the field approximately at 3:30 p.m.

A crowd well over 60,000 is expected to see the red hot rival battle

Guards Again Little, Quick

This is the third of a series of six articles on the 1963 Seminole football team by position.

Amazingly quick players, hardly big enough to qualify as light heavyweights have become a trademark at guard for Florida State for the past few years.

Both as team leaders and defensive standouts, Al Ulmer and Gene McDowell have been big "little" men for the Tribe. It's no accident, Coach Bill Peterson says, that the agile fellows with the quickness afoot wind up at guard. "We like to have that speed there because these are the men that usually do our linebacking," he says.

With McDowell, the 190 pound third team All-America and the team's leading tackler graduated, Dick Herman and Chuck Robinson appear leading candidates to follow in his shoes. "I'd say we're in really good shape at this position," Peterson said. "Right now, it's our best position."

Hermann, a 6-foot, 195 pound junior from Marianna, moves to a starting berth after a big year on the Renegades defensive unit. "In addition to having fine speed, he loves to play the game. He has tremendous potential."

Assistant Coach Bob Harbison, when asked last season who'd be most likely to take McDowell's place in '63 answered without hesitation, "Hermann. He's as fast as a deer and I mean reindeer."

Robinson, moving to guard after a season at pivot in '61 is providing the leadership expected from seniors. The 217 pounder is expected to start at right guard with Hermann at left.

Budget Commission Delays Teaching Contracts

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Staff Writers

...er 500 FSU faculty and administration personnel ...e not yet received employment contracts for the ...63-64 fiscal year.

...he reason for this delay is due to the State Budget ...mmission's refusal to approve this year's budget ... Florida universities, reported Dr. E. Laurence ...almers, dean of the faculties, and George E. Fortin, ...versity comptroller.

...particular, the commission has ...ed to approve about $100,000 ... ... approximately ... ... universities' top ed... ... $5,000 in raises ... ... faculty members and administrators is affected.

The budget commission, which is made up of the State Budget Director and members of the State Cabinet and has the power to review the annual budgets of the state universities, is now deliberating on the proposed salary raises.

The apparent reason for their questioning of the raises is that the commission feels that top educators should not receive more pay tha the university presidents, who in turn should not receive more than cabinet members.

Although FSU administrative and faculty personnel are without contracts, Chalmers said that there is only a slim chance that they won't be paid this month, since FSU has already received about 25% of this year's operating fund. In addition, Fortin announced that all personnel will receive their salary as based on the raises in the new budget, since this is the accepted practice and he has not received instructions from the budget director to the contrary.

Describing the events leading up to this situation, Chalmers said that contracts for administrators start on July 1 and run for 12 months, while faculty contracts start September 1 and run for 10 months. Normally the budget is sent to and approved by the budget commission in late June, in time for the new fiscal year.

This year, however, the budget was not approved by the Board of Control until July 18, because of the 30-day extra session of the Legislature. The Legislature also usually waits until the end of its session before approving university budgets.

In commenting on the reasoning of the budget commission, Chalmers stated that to set an arbitrary ceiling on the salaries of top educators is inconsistent with the merit system presently used by Florida universities to attract and keep excellent personnel. He saw the possibility that this would hurt FSU's efforts to compete with other universities which offer higher salaries to top educators.

Chalmers also showed concern with the present situation, since he felt that the delay with contracts could only hurt a university system. He stated that a faculty couldn't continue indefinitely without contracts and not knowing its status. This situation also damages Florida's competitive standing in relation to other universities.

Fortin was confident that the budget commission would approve the proposed salaries this week, except for those of top administrators (with salaries over $12,500) and faculty members (with salaries over $15,000). In commenting on the commission's ceiling on faculty salaries, Fortin said it seemed ironic that only one of the proposed salaries exceeds that of the university president.

Chalmers expressed the hope that the contract situation would not occur again, but warned that it could if the present system continued to be used.

To prevent reoccurences of this type in the future, Chalmers suggested that the Legislature meet earlier in the year, as in other states, so that the budget could be deliberated on with more time to spare. In addition, he felt that it is unfortunate that individual salaries for university personnel are determined by high state officials, instead of the universities' governing bodies.

Block Seating Available For Fall Athletic Events

By MELODIE BETTS

...k seating will be available for ... events this year as in ...

Block seating is a privilege not to be abused. The rules will be rigidly enforced and are as follows: Any organization violating their specific block limits will lose privileges for the season. In addition, any organization not represented at the meetings for block drawing will lose privileges for that event. Then too, any organization failing to visibly mark their block will not have enforcement. The maximum block will obtain 175 seats.

General admission seats will cover 60 yards while block seating only covers 40.

"Block seating is the result of cooperation between the students and Ron Melton of the Athletic Business Office. It is our hope that this cooperation will continue," stressed Arnie Gibbs, who is in charge of the ushers for the games.

There will be a compulsory meeting of all representatives on Friday at 3:30 p.m. in 210 Longmire for any fraternity or other organization wishing to obtain a block

FSU Gets Alpha Chapter Of New Sigma Gamma Pi

By SHEILA WEXLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Sigma Gamma Pi, a new academic-social fraternity, has moved into its new residence at 428 West College Avenue.

Sigma Gamma Pi is an independent fraternity whose purpose is to provide its members with an intellectual and social environment. The fraternity emphasizes individualism and non-discrimination. Its academic atmosphere requires all members to maintain a 3.0 average in all studies attempted.

The officers for this year at the FSU chapter are: George Parker, president; Richard Erikson, vice president; Jack Upton, Jr., secretary; Eugene Aeizel, treasurer; and William R. Lawrence, recorder.

An open rush will be held at the Sigma Gamma Pi House, Wednesday, September 25, at 8 p.m. "Any student interested in achieving academic success, broadening his social outlook, and maintaining his individuality may attend," according to George Parker.

The initial plans for Sigma Gamma Pi were made last January by a group of six FSU students, who now constitute the National Council for Sigma Gamma Pi Fraternity, Inc. The Alpha Chapter at FSU was inducted into the national last Monday night at the Sigma Gamma Pi House.

Although the fraternity has only been in existence since last January, plans are already being made for chapters at other colleges and universities, with the advice and support of a board of FSU deans and professors.

Flu Shots Available

Students wishing to be protected from flu this year will be able to receive their flu vaccinations in the University Hospital within a few days, according to Dr. C. R. Gentry, director of the University Hospital.

"Although the vaccine was delayed in delivery by the drug company, it is hoped the injections can be given by Friday," reports Dr. Gentry. The injections will cost $1.00 each. If a student has had the flu vaccine within the past year, it will be necessary for him to have only one injection. If the student has not had the flu vaccine within the past year, he will be given two injections, a month apart.

Former FSU Math Instructor Charged

Charles Holmes Baumgardner, 30, 1862 West Pensacola Street, who was arrested last week on charges of disorderly conduct for soliciting of lewd and lascivious action with a 16 year old boy, is a former FSU instructor.

Baumgardner appeared in court last Thursday and sentenced to $200 or 60 days in jail. He paid the fine and now is in North Carolina.

He was a graduate instructor in the FSU Mathematics Dept. He resigned from his contract with the University immediately.

We Are Not Afraid

To the Editor:

A [illegible] in a yellow [illegible] shirt [illegible] and shouted, "[illegible] stepped out in space and said, 'Let there be Man,' not white man or black man, but Man." He was too far away from the theatre lights to take a picture of, but I'll never forget the expression on his face. He knew that within minutes both he and his girlfriend would be arrested but, "HE WAS NOT AFRAID." All he seemed to worry about was whether he would be able to smoke in jail. This black boy's courage seemed to typify the feeling of all the demonstrators.

"WE ARE CLIMBING FREEDOMS LADDER," the sound seemed to swell and roll till suddenly it would end in an ominous silence. When they stopped singing, for a moment, I walked over and talked to a couple of the demonstrators.

"[illegible] in the daytime so that I could get some good pictures."

"Things?"

"Demonstrations!"

"Thank you," he smiled.

A policeman in a white battle helmet ordered the demonstrators to disperse, because they were violating a court injunction. The only affect of this order was a slight increase in the volume of the singing. As the demonstrators were being pushed and dragged into police cars, I began taking more pictures. A policeman, who had warned me earlier about not taking any pictures, began walking toward me. Just as he did, a young negro girl, who was being carried away, somehow fell and was knocked unconscious. I jumped up on a fence to take her picture as she lay face down in the gutter. With all the astuteness of a typical policeman he asked me, "Are you taking a picture?" I started to say something funny, but then decided against it. He said if I took one more [illegible] with the rest of those crazy b-----'s. Fortunately, I guess for me there were no more pictures to be taken (all the crazy b-----'s had been hauled off to the jail).

So here I am now, safe in my apartment; while over one hundred young people (white and black alike) have been jailed for doing something that as Americans they should have never had to do; protesting for their natural rights as human beings. I am humbly writing this letter for them, THEIR COURAGE AND CONVICTION MUST NOT GO UNNOTICED!

"God is one our side"

"We are climbing freedoms ladder"

Besides all this they are right.

Susie Leads Protest

Susie slithered silently through the seasonal multitudes of misfits and non-belongers, aiming well directed kicks at the madras clad clan, who sporadically infest the premises of the Soda Shoppe, and finally spied her chair occupied by an undistinguished member of the "Know Nothing, Plan All" crew (friends of the Tweed Ring). 'Equality Demands Conformity' Is Distortion

Although pretending that he is "not speaking out against the civil rights of the colored or any other group," Robert B. Linden in his recent essay, "Equality Demands Conformity," makes a curious attempt to discredit "those leading the civil rights movement and others."

If I have understood Linden's essay correctly, his argument goes something like this: Equality and sameness are two different things. Those who advocate civil rights want sameness, not equality. Therefore, they are giving a perverted use to the word equality. The sameness that these people want will eliminate individual differences, and this will result in "an even more sorry world in which to live."

This argument, however, is rather weak. To begin with, while arguing that equality and sameness are different things, Linden fails to make a clear distinction between the two. Not that he does not try! He defines equality as oneness in God "with respect for individual differences," and sameness, as the destruction of those differences. Thus Linden believes that he has proven his point when, in effect, he has only demonstrated his lack of acquaintance with elementary logic. If we stick to the accepted definitions of the words "equal" and "different," things cannot be equal and different at the same time, simply because contradictory propositions about things cannot be both true at the same time. Things that are equal cannot be different, and things that are different cannot be equal.

However, if one resorts to arbitrary definitions, then all sorts of playful possibilities may be realized. And resorting to such definitions is precisely what Linden has done. Thus, when he says that equality is oneness with differences, he practically maintains the absurdity that North can be South, that yes can be no, that black can be white, and that up can be down. How can anybody define equality seriously without using the word "same"? Does oneness in a class exclude sameness among its members, when the oneness is derived from the sameness? We may quibble for all eternity; still A plus B is equal to, and the same B plus A.

Linden says that his definition of equality dates back to Biblical times, but this claim is hard to understand since Biblical times were notoriously intolerant of individual differences, especially in matters of religious practice and belief. Because religion was so closely ingrained in the social and political life of the community, the intolerance of the times extended to these areas also. The predominate belief in early Biblical times was that the whole community was responsible for the actions of each individual member. When King David sinned by taking a census, the whole kingdom was punished with a pestilence. Under such conditions, individual differences in behavior, in thought, and in belief were actively discouraged, if not prohibited altogether. People in those days had to conform or else.

In support of his definition, Linden also mentions Kant. However, if Kant were alive today, he would probably shudder at the way men are treated as means and not as ends "in the most industrial societies." In the Soviet Union men are the means by which a powerful state is accomplished. In the Western World the majority of men are the means by which the holders of power achieve their ends. If Kant saw Negroes chased down by police dogs, hosed down, treated like animals for the crime of demanding decent treatment, if he saw little Negro girls jeered by white adults, Sunday schools bombed, white faces distorted by hate in Louisiana and in Mississippi, and if he saw practically every section of this nation insisting that "the colored or any other group" stay in his inferior place, Kant, who founded an ethi[illegible] on the rationality of the Golden Rule, would sicken to the stomach at the sight.

As proof that the leaders of the civil rights movement want sameness instead of equality, Linden mentions the fact that they do not want "the equal opportunity to a decent education through the betterment of their educational system" but instead they want to attend the same schools that everyone else does. The nerve of them, wanting sameness when they already have equality!

Obviously, Linden is still under the happy illusion that one can have separate but equal facilities for colored and white. This is possible; yet until 1954 [illegible] facilities [illegible] as separate and as unequal as they could be. Those facilities for colored built after [illegible] were deliberately constructed in order to belie the findings of the Supreme Court and to stall the civil rights movement. Nobody can honestly deny that this nation had ample time and opportunity during the last fifty years to do justice to the Negro. The question, after all, is not one of having equal but separate facilities.

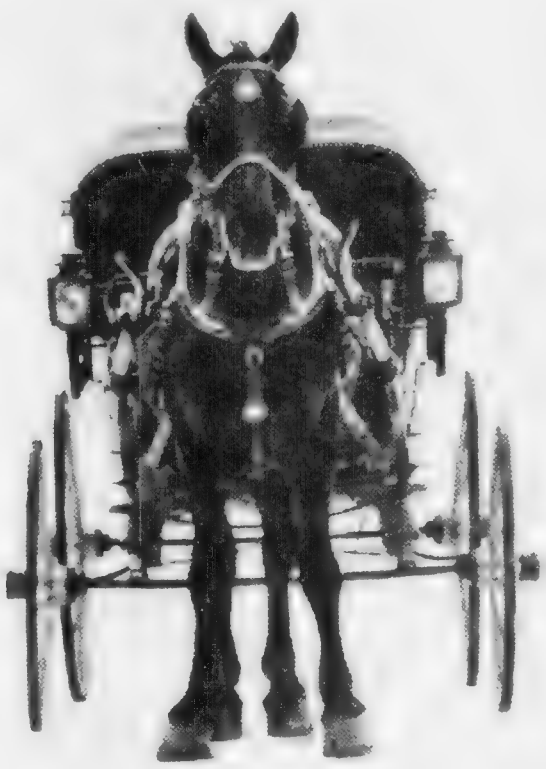
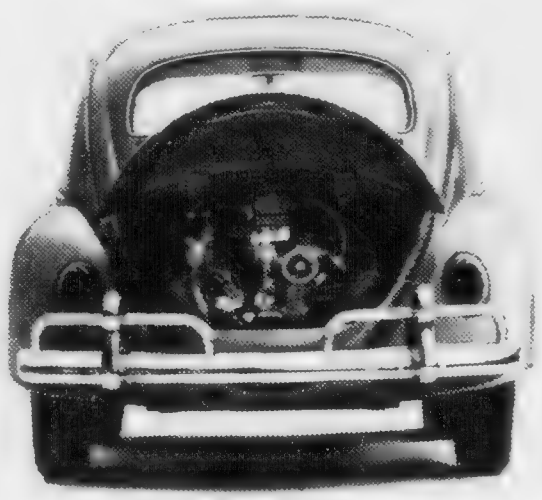
Final Registration Figures Tallied



The office of FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell announced that 11,102 students have registered for the first trimester.



Men students numbered 5809; women 5293. Out of the total number of students 9391 are undergraduates and 1711 are graduate students. Last fall's figures showed 1577 graduate and 8814 undergraduate students.

This is an increase of 711 students. Registrar Murray Kenna had expected approximately 378 to register during the late registration period, but 480 had registered before the period ended last Friday. The increase was in the graduate and transfer levels because there are about the same number of freshmen as last year.

The increased number of cards delayed registration, so plans are being made to reduce the number of cards by combining two or three. This will make the registration process faster and more efficient Kenna said. Next trimester the student directory and selective service cards will not be used. The class alphabetic system was again used in registration, and the Registrar's office said that despite the delay, registration was kept on schedule.

Summer registration totaled 4,309 students who attend Trimester III-A and/or III-B. Kenna said the number students attending the summer sessions was anticipated by the Registrar's office.

most engines still aren't in back?

So VW felt free to put the engine over the rear wheels, the ones that drive the car.

That way, you don't spin your wheels getting power from the front to the back.

Or horse around with heavy driveshafts.

You also get more weight over the drive wheels for firm traction when the going gets sloppy.

Actually, the VW's air-cooled aluminum engine would have been a sensation, even in front.

But the big idea was moving it to the rear.

It was a great step backward in the world of automobile design.

Tournament To Be Held

An all expense paid trip to New York for the US inter-collegiate Chess Tournament will await the winner of the Florida State Chess Team sponsored Chess Tournament which will be held Friday at 7:00 p.m. in room 120 of the Business Building.

The Tournament is open to all students and members of the faculty although only undergraduate students may compete for the first prize. There will be book prizes for all contestants with plus scores. A $1.50 entrance fee will be required for all participants.

Anyone wishing further information should contact Dr. Froemke in the School of Business.

Girls! NNC Wants You

If you're at least five feet five and one half inches tall and between the ages of 19 and 25, and a native born cotton belt beauty who's never been married, you may be the next "Maid of Cotton."

If you fit the above qualifications and are interested applications can be obtained by writing the National Cotton Council (NCC), 1918 North Parkway, Memphis 12, Tenn. Deadline for qualifying is midnight, December 1.

A high fashion wardrobe created in cotton especially for the "Maid of Cotton," by America's leading designers, a fabulous round-the-world journey as King Cotton's good will emissary, and numerous other prizes await the winner.

The Cotton Council sponsors this contest annually, along with the Memphis Cotton Carnical Association, and the Cotton Exchanges of Memphis, New Orleans, and New York.

Why Not?

(ACP)--The Final examination in a psychology course at the University of Oklahoma, Norman, consisted of only one question. "The Oklahoma Daily" said the professor wrote on the blackboard: "Why?"

The professor refused to explain the question, leaving students to their own imagination. One student received an "A" with a one-word answer: "Because."

. . .Distortion

for the colored but one of treating human beings as human beings and not as animals.

That some people in our society are being mistreated because of their color does not seem to disturb Linden very much. No! What disturbs him is that Negroes by attending the same schools as every one else "are thereby eliminating individual differences which would be spawned under the former program." I guess he means by this that the Negroes will no longer be black as night and that they will lose their spontaneity, their sense of rhythm, their music, and their sense of humor. The white people, I imagine, will no longer remain lily-white, punctual, tense, serious, domineering, and sour-faced.

There will no longer be a vast supply of cheap labor to do the menial jobs on which so much of our comfort depends. Nor will there remain a master race to lord it proudly and imperiously over an inferior race. How ghastly! "Those leading the civil rights movement and others" hardly know how much they are harming themselves with this integration thing!

Linden values "individual differences" so highly that he will have them at any cost. Thus he naively fails to discriminate between desirable and undesirable differences. In particular, he seems blissfully unaware of the fact that, as desirable as individual differences may be, those "differences which would be spawned under the former program" would unfortunately be very undersirable indeed from any point of view that there might be.

To say that a world without "individuality" will be even more sorry to live in betrays a foolish pessimism about the future, a profound ignorance about the nature of the world in which we live, and a faulty comprehension of the social history of our planet. The world may be in sad shape now, as Linden's statement inplies, but I do not think that more "individuality" will make this a better world, not if by individuality is meant the maintenance of odious differences between people.

If anything is needed to make this a better world, it is more similarities, especially, in our capacity to understand, to love, and to respect our fellow man.

The problem of civil rights is not a verbal problem that can be solved, or whose complexity can be diminished, but a not so clever manipulation of words as Linden has tried. This is a real problem, the solution of which demands more good will and more and better intelligence than some people in positions of responsibility and leadership are now showing. And this problem must be solved if this nation of ours is really to become "one nation indivisible with Liberty and Justice for all."

APO To Hold Rush Tonight

Alpha Phi Omega, Iota Rho chapter, service fraternity will hold rush tonight and tomorrow night, September 18 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the large lounge of the Longmire Building.

Alpha Phi Omega is a national fraternity for men interested in upholding the principles of leadership, friendship, and service. It is presently the largest Greek-letter organization in the world, with over 400 chapters in the United States and abroad.

Anyone interested may attend.

The men of Alpha Phi Omega here on campus have recently completed two major projects. While assisting the stations and acting as guides during the four hectic days of registration, they prepared the 1963-64 student directory by a new process involving the operation of IBM key-punch machines. By this process, the student directories will be available a month earlier than usual.

Pledges in the fraternity this semester will have the opportunity to participate in such projects as assisting in the count of Homecoming Queen ballots, and other Homecoming activities, operating a travel service supplying weekend rides and riders, and many others.

Flambeau Meeting

There will be a meeting of those students interested in working on the Flambeau as a staff reporter tonight at 7 p.m. in 213 Longmire. Positions are open for all those interested.

Young Democrats

A planning and organizational meeting of the Young Democrats will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Room 208 of the History Bldg. All members and interested parties are invited to attend.

Adams Appointed Personnel Director

Arthur S. (Art) Adams, a Florida State University graduate with eight years of service in personnel and training programs of the Florida Industrial Commission, will become director of university personnel at Florida State on Nov. 1.

Adams, 38, succeeds Wesley P. Vordenburg, who has accepted a teaching position in his native Cincinnati, Ohio.

FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell, in announcing the appointment of Adams, said "We are pleased to welcome to the University a person with such splendid background in personnel administration. As a graduate of Florida State, Mr. Adams is familiar with the campus and will be a valuable addition to our professional staff.'

Adams, active in Tallahassee civic affairs, has been chief of personnel and training for the Florida Industrial Commission since 1959.

He received the B.S. degree in business administration at Florida State in 1949 and the M.S. degree in personnel and business administration in 1950. His master's thesis concerned "How Colleges and Universities Can Better Prepare Students to Enter the Field of Business Within the State of Florida."

A former captain of the FSU varsity basketball team (1949-50), he is president of the Seminole Tipoff Club. As executive secretary of the Industrial Commission's "19-Safety-3" program, he planned and developed six regional safety conferences. He is co-chairman of the 1963 Leon County United Fund Drive.

From 1952 to 1954, as a special investigator with the U.S. Civil Service Commission, he conducted investigations relative to th security and loyalty inve of persons under consider employment with the Atomi Commission, United Nati Department, and other gove agencies.

The new exemption test was prepared by the National Educational Testihg Service. Professional organizations such as the American Mathematical Society and the Mathematical Association of America, as well as top mathematicians in all fields, are interested in mathematics instruction in the schools from kindergarten on up and are supporting the move to show the true nature and beauty of mathematics.

The main purpose of the test is to fit the new student to a suitable mathematics course for basic requirements toward graduation for a major in mathematics or allied fields supoorted by math.

Of the 2,200 taking the test, 151 scored high enough to gain 3 credits and satisfy the basic requirement ... were privileged to take higher courses. Out of this number 61 showed they were ready for calculus, normally a 2nd or 3rd trimester course. There were 988 sufficiently prepared to go into an advanced freshman mathematics course and 1,061 were placed in the basic course. Some 55 per cent showed preparedness for a level of math above the most elementary basic course.

Tarpon Tryouts

Tryouts for the Tarpon Club, women's synchronized swimming organization, will be held Sept. 24 (for last names A-M) and Sept. 25 (for last names N-Z) at 7:30 p.m. at the Women's Gym Pool. These tryouts are open to all women students. Today and tomorrow there will be help sessions conducted at the Women's Gym Pool at 7:30 p.m.

Make Knit Group

Team spirit isn't only for athletics, but it may be given many different names -- "esprit de corps," togetherness, common fulfillment of goals -- and the fact remains that team spirit through group activity is one of the most important factors in a student's life.

Whether a member of a social club, religious organization, fraternal or business association, there is much that the student can do to unify his group -- improve the team spirit -- and thus, increase the benefits shared by all.

You must, however, understand your group's functions as they relate to members' needs. Remember that each member not only has something different to give to a group, but each may expect different things in return as related to other members' needs.

Your problem is to unify your group's activities and at the same time make sure that everybody puts his best into the project and gets his own brand of personal satisfaction out of it.

Plan for pleasure. The motive of personal pleasure is one of the strongest you have working for you. Planning a group activity "just for the fun to it" will help make your group more closely knit in other more routine projects. A dinner-dance, picnic, or evening together at the theatre or bowling alley are always good ideas.

A long-range project that is really different also will help to sustain members' enthusiasm, give them something to really work for as a group. Put such a plan into action, and you'll be surprised how enthusiastic your group's members will become... in all phases of the organization's activities.

Be a good listener. This applies not only to the more social side of your club's activities (coffee hours, etc.) but also to informal group discussions and committee meetings. Show interest in what the other person has to say. Intelligent questions or sympathetic remarks can do this.

Don't jump in and completely take over the conversation. If you've listened attentively, it will be easy to remember something that will interest or please a person when you comment on it later. If each member of your group feels that he is understood -- that his particular view or opinions are being examined -- he'll be more likely to participate enthusiastically when called upon to perform some task.

Help your members to help themselves. Encourage them to examine the results of what they do in the group, then show them ways to improve. Be careful not to give the impression that you're finding fault with their work; constructive criticism is a real art

EXTRA HELP NEEDED

I need 3 young students to assist me in Public Relations work.

Requirements:
1. 2.0 overall average. (1st trimester freshmen exempt)
2. Be able to maintain neat businesslike appearance at all times
3. Must enjoy meeting and talking to the public
4. Can work 20 hours per week without injuring scholastic average

Call Mr. Michaels at 224-2014 between 9:00 and 1:00 for full particulars.

Robinson, Adams Appointed Deans

Dr. Hugh Adams has been appointed assistant dean of men and Miss Sarah Robinson assistant dean of women, with both seving in a special capacity for fraternities, sororities and day students.

Adams received his BS in mathematics and social studies education from FSU and a doctorate in education administration and supervision. After extensive naval service, he returned to FSU in 1955 as assistant varsity football coach and assistant director of housing in 1958.

Robinson, a graduate of Northwestern College with a masters in music, taught at Wesleyan College, Ga., and at Hendrix College, Ark., before coming to FSU in 1959. She then served as residence counselor of Dorman Hall for 3 years and last year became the first Panhellenic advisor.

In addition, Adams is a professor of education and Robinson, as assistant professor of music, still finds time to give individual piano lessons.

As for future Panhellenic objectives, Robinson commented that the sororities intend to place "greater emphasis on community services and on maintaining high scholastic record."

Both professors welcome day students and Adams, stressing the new position as a counseling service rather than a disciplinary agency, is striving "to improve and develop a program for off-campus students which has previously been limited to university residents."

Mandelkern Leads Course

Professor Leo Mandelkern of Florida State's Institute of Molecular Biophysics conducted a course at the Humble Oil and Refining Company's 1963-64 Lectures in Science and Engineering.

Professor Mandelkern instructed one course in Crystallinity and Crystallization of Polymers.

These Humble Lectures were established in 1946 and brings from only five to eight educators to Baytown each year, at company expense, to instruct the technical personnel. These lecturers are eminent scientists and engineers who have done outstanding work.

Starters Named To Miami Game

The opening line-ups have been announced for both the Seminoles and Hurricanes, and all is in readiness for Friday night's clash. For both teams, the game will be the catalyst that makes them into the team of '63.

In the Seminoles roster a few last minute changes have been made. Bill Dawson has moved back into the right end slot on the Chiefs. Dawson gained back the berth from George D'Alessandro. D'Allessandro had gained the right end job from Dawson just last week as the reward for a fine job done in scrimmage. Dawson steps back into the slot, in like manner, by virtue of his performance in last Friday's game.

Gene Roberts has been moved in to fill the fullback spot left vacant by the untimely injury of Larry Brinkley. The 200 pound senior from High Springs has been doing a fine job this fall. Plagued in the past by a knee injury, Roberts had an operation on the injured limb last year and has the coaches crossing their fingers. Roberts has the potential to become one of the better power runners in FSU's history.

Replacing Roberts on the Warrior squad will be Howard Ehler of Tavares. Ehler, a sophomore, has looked exceptionally good in drills this fall, and is expected to see plenty of action.

Coach Peterson has elected to retain Marion Roberts on the defensive Renegades. Both Roberts' played a lot off offensive fullback last year, but Coach "Pete" feels that he needs Marion Roberts' experience on the Warriors.

At the present time, Miami's Coach Gustafon is still looking for a suitable replacement in the place kicking department. Gustafson's regular booter, Don Cifra, got a bump on the knew Monday which was later diagnosed as a torn ligament.

Rookies To Debut In Orange Bowl

Three weeks ago no one would have believed that several relative newcomers might shoulder the load for the Florida State Seminoles in their 1963 football opener against Miami in the Orange Bowl Sept. 20. Twenty-six lettermen returning from the '62 team were due to be around, allowing sophomores and former redshirts little chance to shine.

That's all changed now. The usual dropouts, plus the loss of halfback Phil Spooner to injury have cut the official Seminole roster to 58 players. From that number a faithful 44 will likely be gleaned to dress for games.

Scattered among those 44 are eleven young men, five of them ex-redshirts and the rest up from last season's freshman team, who will figure prominently in any success the 1963 Seminoles have. Under Coach Bill Peterson's new "integrated three-team system," they will probably see plenty of action.

You have to start off with four redshirts who are rushing veterans for a place on the Chiefs two-way unit that will start against Miami's Hurricanes.

Chief among those is tackle Frank Pennie, who is currently listed with the Renegade unit after holding down a Chiefs position for a short while. One of the largest tackles in the FSU camp at 6-4, 242, aggressive Pennie will be the first to spell veterans Avery Sumner and Jerry Bruner. Pennie, out of Hollywood's South Broward High, originally attended Ohio State on a swimming scholarship before transferring to FSU.

A small and well-traveled Fort Myers native, end George D'Allesandro, has also evoked smiles from Seminole Coaches in fall practice. A high school fullback, George was moved to guard in the spring and then out to an end slot in the first week of pre-season workouts. At 5-10 and 205, he makes up for any height deficinecy with rugged defensive play. D'Allesandro took a first team berth ahead of Bill Dawson on the Chiefs unit this week.

Another ex-redshirt in contention for a place in the Chiefs lineup is Maury Bibent, 185-pound halfback from Cincinatti, O. A well-balanced, shifty runner who is also one of the top FSU defensive backs, Bibent is pushing Dave Snyder for the left halfback job.

Then there's Ed Pritchett, a versatile play-anywhere back with a long history of injuries. Ed is the oldest player on the team at 22 but he's never played a minute of varsity action. A highly-regarded prep quarterback at Avondale High in Decatur, Ga., he played that position for the 1961 frosh team but missed all of the 1962 season with a bad knee. After being moved to fullback then back to quarterback, he is now stationed at right halfback with the Warriors (offensive specialists). If he stays healthy, he could have a fine year.

The 1962 freshman team turned out at least six promising new faces, best of whom may be a pair of guards, Bill McDowell and Jerry Wooten.

McDowell is a Tallahassee boy (Leon High) currently running with the Renegade team. Claiming cousin kinship to last year's FSU guard great, Gene McDowell, Bill is touted by his coaches to be potentially as good as Gene. He's 6-1, 191.

Wooten, 6-1 and 195, is a rugged South Alabama (Geneva) lad who impressed coaches at FSU so much early in practice drills that he saw limited time on the Chiefs unit, replacing Chuck Robinson for two days while Robinson was injured. A strong blocker, Wooten should see much offensive service in the Miami game.

50, No. 9 — Published Daily By The Students Of Florida State University — Thursday, September 19, 1963

DR. GROVER L. ROGERS, left, is the dean of FSU's new School of Engineering Science which will stress graduate study. Rogers and Harold Hosack, who is completing his work toward a master's degree in engineering science and is an instructor, are pictured here with an oscilloscope in an engineering science laboratory. Hosack received his bachelor's degree in the Engineering Science Dept., which was organized by [illegible].

Rogers Appointed Dean

Engineering Science School To Fill Needs Of Southeast

FSU announced the creation of a new School of Engineering Science, the first school to be established in thirteen years at FSU, with a program cutting across the conventional areas of civil, mechanical, electrical and chemical engineering and emphasizing graduate education.

Dr. Grover L. Rogers, who has been appointed dean of the school, said it is expected that about half the students in the school will be undergraduates and the other half graduate engineers working toward a master's or Ph.D. degree.

Unlike traditional engineering schools, Dr. Rogers said FSU's School of Engineering Science will stress such new fields as these four which will be developed immediately: engineering systems, engineering mechanics, engineering electronics, and engineering materials.

Rogers said the new approach to engineering, unique in the Southeast, follows a trend which has gained acceptance in such institutions as Johns Hopkins, Columbia, Princeton, Yale and Harvard.

The emphasis in such schools "is on a broad science-oriented undergraduate curriculum followed by specialized study at the graduate level in newly evolving professional engineering fields," Rogers said. "This approach is particularly suited to a university such as FSU with its great strength in graduate teaching and reasearch and to the needs of a rapidly growing industrial state such as Florida."

The emphasis on graduate education will "fit the needs of the Southeast very well," Rogers said. In 1961 the states of Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina graduated only 26 Ph.D. engineers and 250 M.S. degree engineers compared to 3,000 B.S. engineers. "FSU's accent on graduate study will help correct this imbalance," he emphasized.

The undergraduate program, for which only superior students will be selected, will have a common core program for three years with electives in engineering and science in the fourth year. The 130-hour curriculum will require 30 trimester hours in the humanities and social sciences, 30 in the natural sciences, 23 in mathematics beginning with analytic geometry and 47 hours in engineering. A senior thesis will be required before award of the degree of bachelor of science with a major in engineering science.

An average of B (2.75) or better will be required for admission to the junior year and those students with a B average or higher on their total undergraduate program will be encouraged to go into graduate work.

The new school will continue a program begun last year by the Dept. of Engineering Science which enables undergraduates to spend one trimester of the school year working in an industrial establishment such as the space centers at Huntsville, Ala., and Cape Canaveral. A student can complete his undergraduate course requirements in four calendar years while earning a large part of his expense in this cooperative work-study program.

The new dean of the school, Dr. Rogers, is 37. Since 1959, he has been head of the department of engineering science in the college of arts and sciences at FSU.

Contracts Approved, Pay Raises Delayed

BY BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Staff Writer

The State Cabinet approved Tuesday the contracts of [illegible] 660 FSU teaching and administrative personnel, but delayed action on pay raises for 39 key personnel.

[illegible] E. Laurence Chalmers, Dean [illegible] the Faculties, announced that the [illegible] which have been before the cabinet for nearly a month, are now being sent out to the personnel affected by this.

The Cabinet will be considering an increase of $35,000 in pay raises [illegible] FSU's key teachers and administrators next Tuesday in order to [illegible] Board of Control re-evaluates its recommendations. The cabinet has questioned the merit of these raises, contending that the salaries of university personnel should be scaled down in relation to the salary of the university president.

[illegible] Fortin, University [illegible] reported that 39 key personnel are still without contracts. Fortin [illegible] that the university was instructed by the Business Manager of the Board of Control to pay these personnel for September according to last year's contracts, instead of including their proposed salary raises. Fortin explained that including proposed raises in salaries before they are approved has been the normal practice for Florida universities.

Usually, contracts are issued to university personnel at the beginning of each fiscal year, which starts July 1. Because of a 30-day extra session of the state legislature this year, the Board of Control was not able to approve the budget until July 18. There were additional delays due to questioning by the Budget Director, Harry Smith, of raises for 151 key teachers and administrators in the state universities.

Chalmers showed considerable concern that situations like this are allowed to occur, and warned they could happen again if the present system continues to be used. He suggested that the legislature meet earlier in the year so that university budgets could be prepared and deliberated less hurriedly. He added that individual salaries for university personnel should be determined by university governing bodies, instead of high state officials.

Situations such as the present delay in contracts can only hurt Florida's position in competing for quality educators with other universities, Chalmers commented.

The cabinet has sent back to the Board of Control its recommendations on proposed raises for administrators earning over $12,500 and teachers earning over $15,000.

Chalmers said that the arbitrary ceiling on faculty salaries used by the cabinet is inconsistent with FSU's present merit system, which seeks to reward its outstanding educators and attract new ones.

Miss Gymkana Contest Contest

Deadline for entries for the "Miss Gymkana Contest" has been extended till tomorrow evening, announced Dr. Hartley Price.

The contest preliminaries will begin promptly at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Tully Gym and is open to all women on campus.

Participants in the preliminary are to wear short shorts, sweaters and heels. Women will be judged on beauty, charm, and poise.

Judging the preliminaries will be Dr. and Mrs. Hartley Price, Dr. Florence Cole, Malcolm Collins, Cliff Paisley, Fernando Lecuona, Harmer Wickel, and Barnie Groves.

Also judging in the final competition to be held in October will be Eddie Cubbon, Pat Hogan, and Robert Leigh. The women will be judged for costume design and cooperation in the finals.

"Miss Gymkana" will reign for the entire year, and participate in all the gymkana shows.

Chief Justice Reid Announces New Counselor Appointments

Chief Justice Kelly Reid announced the appointment of six defense counselors and five prosecution counselors to serve on Honor Court for the coming year.

Students serving must be approved by faculty and Student Government members.

Chief Defense Counselor, Hines Boyd, will be assited by Paul M. Brady, Ralph Epperson, Everett A. Steadman, Thomas Valerius and Charles Wilson. Prosecution Counselors are Barbara McDonald, Aron Brumm, William Falck, Ray Hays, Tim Kerns and Allen W. Lindsay, Jr.

These counselors are all undergraduates with a 2.0 average and in good standing with the university. They will serve for the same period as members of the Court.

"This is the first year that the Chief Justice has been relieved of his burdens of investigation and prosecution," Reid said. "In addition, the accused is allowed the help of defense counsel."

When the accused reports to Chief Justice Reid, he pleads "not guilty" or "guilty." If the plea is "guilty," then the case is handled as prescribed by the Court's rules. But if the plea is ' not guilty," then a whole set of operations gets underway.

The defendant prepares his case with the help of his defense counsel. Most of the investigation and preparation is done by the latter. This is to the advantage of the accused, Reid said, since it gives him the benefit of an experienced aid who can do the necessary work better than can the emotionally involved student. A written brief is drawn up by the defense counselor with the defendant's approval.

A staff to investigate, prepare and present cases to the court is made up of the prosecution counsels and the Attorney General. The staff member assigned to a particular case is charged with making a thorough investigation, and he too prepares a brief.

All counselors are under the direction and supervision of the Chief Justice and it is to him that the briefs are presented.

When the hearing convenes, the major action of the defense counsel comes to an end. Since it is the honor of the accused which is in question, it is he who conducts his defense. Of course, his counselor can sit by him and call to his attention information that they may wish to bring before the court. "Thus Perry Mason style dramatics are not involved and the court can give a just decision in an unprejudiced manner without becoming involved in defense counselor versus prosecution counselor disputes," said Reid.

Commenting on the new procedure, Reid said, I am quite certain that this system of utilizing counselors to assist Honor Court defendants serves as a positive innovation, both in the operation of the Honor Court and in enforcing the inviolable rights of the accused."

Student Insurance

Student Insurance will be sold this week and next week, Monday-Friday, between the hours of 1 and 3 p.m. in room 210 of the Longmire Building.

The price of the policy is $13.00 and covers the student from the time the policy is purchased until September 1, 1964.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

News Is News

In view of comments which have been made recently, concerning the subject of several articles which have appeared on the news pages of the "Flambeau," it seems imperative that something be said about the philosophy of a campus newspaper's functions.

It must first of all be made clear that the policy of this paper, as any other, is determined to a great extent by the journalistic philosophy of its editor. In the case of the "Flambeau," the Student Board of Publications has a say-so in formulating some basic principles; however, in 1956 the BOP adopted a judicious policy stating, "the decision to print material shall be that of the editor, and he shall be responsible for what he publishes."

The following, then, is a statement of our belief as a journalist and as editor of the "Flambeau."

1. Anything that happen to, or is done by, the students, the faculty and the staff of this University is news which should be publicized in this newspaper. Not all the actions and events of the University and people associated with it make pleasant reading; but the unpleasant facets of University life also are newsworthy.

2. It is the duty of this newspaper to print both the good and the bad, in order to keep FSU students informed. To suppress unpleasant truth is to destroy one of the main avenues open to the press in educating its readers to recognize and correct undesirable aspects.

3. At the same time, such stories should be treated according to their intrinsic news value, not blazoned across the page for the mere sake of sensationalism. Their value is determined by the editors in charge of news and those in charge of page make-up.

If FSU students are to continue to read the "Flambeau" with interest and concern, we believe it is our responsibility to let them know what is happening on campus, insofar as we are able. We regret as much as anyone the type of occurrence which would bring the least discredit to Florida State University. But we cannot concur in the belief that news of these happenings should be hidden.

Not to print all the truth is in itself a sort of lie.

Letters From Candidates

— Freshmen Women's Senate —

Although every passing day since our arrival at Florida State has been a very vital one for each of us, next Tuesday, September 24, marks a day whose success depends more upon our participation than any previous event. This is the day we may voice our choice for the student senators and class officers who will be acting as our representative "voice" for the coming year.

Our student government is highly esteemed nationally for its responsible leadership--it is an organization functioning solely for the benefit of us, the student body. Its effectiveness depends largely upon the caliber of men and women which we elect to serve us in its ranks. I have declared myself as a candidate for Freshmen Women's Senator because I am highly concerned with the legislative process by which our campus laws are made; because I am eager to represent my class in the best possible capacity for service; because I feel that my experience and my enthusiasm qualify me for the confidence I hope you will place in me.

I am looking forward to meeting you in the near future, not only in the capacity of a candidate, but as a new FSU friend.

Joy Dickinson

Dear Students:

Please consider this as a request for your vote. All I can say at this point is that I will surely work hard at the office and will do the very best I can as one of your Freshman class senators.

Praeco Simplici

This is a relatively new edition to the editorial pages of the Flambeau, having been in only since the summer. Its purpose is to serve the student body through critical and congratulatory comment on pertinent and sometimes otherwise undisclosed aspects of student activities, in particularly, student government. It is the opinion of this writer that, because of the very nature of student government, many things should be known to the student body which aren't. A government has the tendency to relate only that which will be favorable to its own policies and leadership. There are other events around campus that deserve some spoofing.

During the summer the editor of this paper was threatened with Board of Publication action unless the editor either disclosed the writer or discontinued the column. Some skins are sensitive indeed, in the upper ranks of student government leadership.

Every year at FSU there comes a season in which ALL activity ceases or at the very least slows to a crippling pace. That is, any activity which depends on students who are sorority or fraternity members. This is a period of worship and conversion dedicated to the Greek god of RUSH. Pagan gods such as "previous engagements" or "prior appointments" are ignored for the time being. Meetings have to be rescheduled if they have been unwisely scheduled in the first place; nothing stands in the way of the member hungry Greek groups. Student Government or religious houses included.

Perhaps Panhellenic or IFC could arrange these sacred two weeks in such a manner that their congregations could have some time available when they could attend to other things outside of the fraternity or sorority. I'm sure that even the Greeks themselves would appreciate some sort of arrangement for this purpose.

* * * * *

It would appear from the news in last week's Flambeau that Student Government is mounting a massive public relations campaign. This drive will be headed up by Ben Thornal, administrative assistant to the student body president for public relations. Several pamphlets are in the works to explain StuGov to the StuBody. In addition every last ounce of mileage (pardon the mixed metaphor) will be squeezed out of all noteworthy activities and some that are not noteworthy.

All this publicity reminds me of the poem of the Ancient Mariner by S. T. Coleridge, in which he says, "Words, words, words everywhere and not a bit to read."

Foundation Sponsors FSU Work - Study Plan

By KIM VOELZ
Flambeau Feature Writer

In such a prosperous and forward-looking land as America, one fact stares many citizens in the face--only half of America's intellectually gifted young people go on to fulfill their higher education in colleges and universities.

Why? It's very simple, they don't have adequate financial resources (known as money) to continue.

Here at FSU, the problem is being solved quite successfully through the work of the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation.

The Foundation is under the guidance of a Board of Directors consisting of Dean Mode L. Stone, School of Education; Dr. Samuel T. Lastinger, director of Counseling and Personnel Services; Dr. Hazen A. Curtis, head of Educational Research and Testing; and Dr. Ralph L. Eyman. The Foundation is rapidly expanding, and this year is sponsoring 240 students (as compared to 140 last year).

To accommodate these new additions to the "family," four new houses were opened September. Sharing the wealth equally, there are two houses for women and two for men.

As with many of the eight older Foundation houses, each of the new residences has been underwritten by various state and local organizations. The William G. Selby Foundation of Sarasota has taken a third house under its wing; this time a men's residence at 921 W. Jefferson.

The Lions clubs of the Jacksonville area have picked up the option on the other men's house at 916 W. College. New women's residences at 528 W. Palm Court and 919 W. College are being sponsored by the teachers of Florida (FEA) and Pilot Clubs International, respectively.

Other assistance is obtained through voluntary contributions, civic groups such as the Tallahassee Rotarians, and such business concerns as W. S. Badcock of Mulberry, Fla., who furnished all equipment for the new houses at a special discount.

Now for the most important element in the Foundation, the students themselves. Academically, they stand in the upper echelons; personally, "they are hard working and co-operative;" financially, they are 'unable to continue in higher education without outside assistance.'

It is vital to the success of the Foundation program that the houses within themselves work efficiently and with harmony, therefore Foundation students must also exhibit a willingness to share in the various household chores such as cleaning and cocking, buying food and supplies and planning menus.

This "extra-curricular" participation is the main reason why Foundation students are able to live in the houses rent-free. Ask any member--he'll tell you it's well worth it.

Due largely to the tremendous success of the Foundation's program at FSU in the nine years of its operation, the possibility of expansion to other campuses in Florida and the Southern States is now being considered.

Students who need help and possess the academic ability (backed up by honor grades and a Florida Twelfth Grade placement score of 425 or better), who are willing to work, may contact Dr. Samuel Lastinger, Rm. 208 of the Education Bldg. for an application.

Powell Named Commander

Colonel Edwin E. Powell assumed command as Cadet Commander of the 145th AFROTC Wing Detachment as he addressed the cadet wing at ceremonies on last Thursday at the first drill period of the 1963 first trimester.

Powell, past Operations Officer of the Wing, graduated from Lake Wales High School and attended Florida Southern College 3 semesters before transferring to FSU. Designated as a "Distinguished Cadet" by the PAS, Powell will graduate in December with a degree in Criminology and Corrections and will receive a regular commission as a second lieutenant, USAF.

Having attended the MacDill Summer Training Unit at Tampa, in June, Powell comments that his stay and experiences there enabled him to get a "working knowledge of the Air Force and its operations."

"The Air Force offers a career of unequaled opportunity and benefits," says Powell, "and those who investigate such a career will find that the efforts spent in AFROTC will be rewarding. For those who have the perseverance and desire, the basic and advanced programs offer training for a position in the USAF and America's Aerospace Age. The challenge is what you can offer the Air Force and what you can expect in return: the decision is yours."

SG Holds Assembly

Student Government leaders sponsored an informal orientation assembly for candidates and other interested students Tuesday night.

Orientation began with the introduction of the President of the Student Body, Johnny Smith, who presented an overall view of Student Government and the executive branch. Smith pointed out that FSU's Student Government was rated first in the South-Southeast and Midwest at last year's SUSGA convention.

Smith also stated that it is an elaborated and complicated system, and that the freshman year marked the beginning of a long training period for those who take an interest in Student Government activities. He stressed that lessons in human relations and training in administrative processes are invaluable in college and later life.

The second speaker, Vice President Julian Proctor, spoke on the legislative branch of the Student Government, explaining its structure, processes and responsibilities.

Commissioner of Elections, Jon Kaney, explained the two-party system of the university and expressed the opinion that parties must take the responsibility of people elected on their platforms.

After the speakers had delivered their messages, a question and answer period followed, during which the participants introduced themselves and discussed questions and criticisms they had about Student Government.

Smith stated that there were about 200 people in Student Government, a large number of whom were appointed. He asked that anyone interested in Student Government activities inquire at 210 Longmire for more information.

WASHINGTON--The Senate has agreed to vote next Tuesday on the limited nuclear test ban treaty. Under a unanimous consent agreement, the senators will devote Monday to any reservations, understandings and similar motions with respect to the pact. Debate on each will be limited to one hour. Several have been proposed.

WASHINGTON- Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges has indicated the government will look into the question of easing its embargo on exports to communist countries. A group of 400 businessmen and industrialists attending a White House conference on export trake recommended a re-examination of American policy. Hodges told reporters at the close of the two-day conference, "I should think we would take very seriously what has been suggested."

The Hodges statement follows Monday's announcement in Ottawa that Canada is selling $500 million worth of wheat and flour to the Soviet Union. Some of the wheat and flour will go to Cuba and other Soviet satellites.

MIAMI--The U.S. has refused to admit 25 Haitians who came into Miami from the Bahamas last week seeking asylum in this country. Edward Ahrens, director of the Immigration Service, says their admission request was rejected after a hearing today because they lacked proper documents. The exiles appealed the decision to the Board of Immigration in Washington. Meanwhile, they remained in custody of immigration officials at Miami.

The Haitians say they are members of the Haitian Revolutionary Party.

Music School Offers Degree

A new program in the School of Music enables FSU to become one of five universities in the United States to be able to offer a master of music degree in opera production.

In announcing the new master's degree Dean Karl O. Kuersteiner said it will help meet the demands of more than 800 opera producing groups for performers and directors of opera.

Other universities which offer a master's degree in Opera Production are Indiana University, the University of Southern California, Boston University and the New England Conservatory. FSU will be the only university in the Southeastern area to offer the degree, Kuersteiner said.

Richard Collins, vice-president of the National Opera Association and director of the State Opera Association recently created by the Legislature, will coordinate the master's degree program. A former member of the National Opera Company, Collins has performed leading roles with opera companies in recent years.

Chess Meet To Be Held

Seminole Flyers Elect New Slate

The Seminole Flyers, the FSU flying club, recently elected a new slate of officers. The new president is Duane Franceschi, Program Director at FSU-TV. Other officers are Dr. Kenneth Miller, treasurer; Dave George, vice-president; and Charles H. Gilmore, secretary.

In addition to electing new officers, the club also made an important change in its by-laws. "It is now possible," Franceschi stated, "for families of students, staff or faculty members at FSU to jointly belong to the club, at a reduced initiation fee."

Instead of the regular fee of $50 per new member, the second member of an immediate family may now join the club at a fifty percent reduction, or $25.

A fall membership drive is underway; anyone interested in flying may call Franceschi at ext. 3406.

WFSU To Televise Fall Football Games

Highlighting the 1963 Fall season on WFSU-TV will be replays of the Seminole football games on channel 11 at 10 p.m., Monday nights.

Home football games will be presented on video-tape, each approximately two hours long. Away games will be presented on film.

In addition, there will be the NET Drama Festival premiering Friday night at 9 p.m. As in the past seasons NET Drama Festival once again combines various dramatic forms in a series that ranges from the great Shakespearean classics, both comic and tragic, to the experimental work of such modern writers as Jean Cocteau. Twelve dramas will be featured this season.

Returning to channel 11 after an absense of three months is Classic Cinema, WFSU's Thursday night feature film. Classic Cinema begins on September 5 at 8:30 and will be hosted by Mike Shaara, creative writing professor at FSU. Some of the films to be presented are: "The Seventh Veil," starring James Mason; "The Importance of Being Earnest" with Michael Redgrave; and "Black Narcissus" with Deborah Kerr and Jean Simmons.

According to John F. White, president of NET, the 1963-64 schedule is the very best ever offered

Coaches Pessimistic

Coach Bill Peterson polled his starting Chiefs unit the other day to see whether the line or the backfield play would be the determining factor in tomorrow night's clash with Miami in a packed Orange Bowl.

Oddly enough, the vote was 7-4 in favor of the line.

There are so many ifs in this UM-FSU game, it would take a grammarian to figure out the odds. To listen to either of the coaches, it will be a scoreless tie.

GUSTAFSON GIVES OUT WITH POOR MOUTH

Miami's Andy Gustafson, who will move up to Athletic Director of Miami after this season of play, claims that the Hurricanes look sick in practice and tries to create the impression that he is scared stiff of Peterson's charges.

Peterson, not to be outdone, remarked the other day at the faculty practice that, "I guess I'll have to tell these boys that we have got a game Friday night. The way they're playing out there, they must not know it. Our pass defense is leaky, and we're just not hitting the way we should." Which one of these trouble besought men should we believe? Neither--certainly not Gustafson.

Both teams have a lot going for them and against them, for neither team is as bad as the coach claims. No one can say how good or bad they are at this time, because there are just too many question marks.

Can the threat of Mira's passing, Smith's end sweeps, Banaszak's power plays, and Spinelli's gluey fingers be overcome by the Seminole defense, which has been the forte of past Peterson coached teams?

On the other hand, how potent is Miami's defense? Can they cope with the Tribe's running attack, powered by Roberts and Snyder, and passing game, depending on the right arm of Tensi?

Tune in Friday night and find out.

BOOZE IT UP!

If the average observer thinks he sees the players on the Florida State and University of Florida football teams boozing it up with beer on the bench during their games this fall, he shouldn't believe it. Both teams are carrying Weeki Wachee canned water to all of their away games this season to provide the athletes with more energy.

Who's Better -- MIRAculous Mira Or Slinging Steve?

Is Steve Tensi of Florida State University a more effective quarterback than America George Mira of the University of Miami? Them's fighting words ar Hurricane football territory but the Seminole followers insist that the stat prove their point. They base their claims on the figures just released by the N on the 1962 records of players returning for the 1963 wars.

Tensi was half of the Florid quarterbacking team last sharing the chores with ey -- and hence in finished far behind Mira.

When the figures are broke into gains per play, however, has the better of it. Mira's passes and runs average out yards per play while Tensi' accounted for 5.7 yards per t Florida State.

In passing, Mira had a .469 pletion percentage and had terceptions while Tensi, comp .496 of his tries, had stolen.

For each pass play Mira the Hurricanes averaged of gain while Florid 6.6 yards on Tensi's attemp

The Seminoles assert tha an untried sophomore a yea should improve more than Mi is a senior this fal.

More than 60,000 fans to be in Miami's day night when the tw quarterbacks have a meeting.

Miami holds an 8-1 edge Florida State in their all-tim ball series. Florida State its only football victory ove in 1958 by a 17-6 count.

Hurricanes Stress Defensive Drills

If long, hard work on defense has any bearing on it, the University of Miami could come up with a more potent defense than the team has shown in recent years.

Offensively, with its great All-America quarterback George Mira, Miami was tough to top last year, but opponent teams punctured the Hurricane defense with an average of 286.7 yards per game or a grand total of 3,148 yards.

"Defense is still one of our greatest concerns as we get ready for 1963," Coach Andy Gustafson said. "We're working long and hard to overcome this weakness."

But Gustafson continued by saying, "there will be no neglect of the offense--We're spending more time on the field and we're using this additional time bolstering our defense."

Following 1963 spring practice, predictions were that the Miami offense will be improved over last year--at least the team would have stronger running and give the attack greater balance.

This has been obvious in fall work to date. Russell Smith, Peter Banaszak and Robert Barth are giving the squad the outside running it has lacked in the past several years. Smith and Banaszak, in particular indicate they will be tremendous running threats--meaning that opponent teams won't be able to pour all their concentration on stopping Miami's passing and inside running. Miami is certain to be a threat with outside running.

Some injuries have cropped up in the early workouts, but trainer Dave Ilke is hopeful that most of them will recuperate by the time the Hurricanes are ready to go against Florida State in the big rival opener, Sept. 20 in the Orange Bowl.

Leo Lillimagi, center and Goerge Andreadis, tackle, were among the other early injured men.

Gustafson has this to say about his first few days of work: "We're progressing as we hoped we would. The players know the type of schedule we have ahead--and know they have to pay the price of hard work to be able to stay on the same field with these teams," Gustafson said. "There's pride and tremendous enthusiasm on this squad."

Mira - Dangerous When Cornered

The result of Friday night's Seminole-Hurricane clash could be safely said to hinge on the right arm of one George Mira. He has been called "the most dangerous man in college football when he's cornered," by Coach Tom Nugent of Maryland, because one heave of that golden arm can win the game for UM.

Mira, who won All America honors last year as a junior and was fifth in the Heisman Trophy voting, looked better than ever in Spring Practice--poised, confident and wise in game tactics. The 6-foot, 180-pound ice man's son from Key West has broken all Miami's offensive records for a single game, season, and career. In two years he has completed 227 passes for 2,893 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Vote For Him – He's Cute!

Freshman residents of Jennie Murphree conduct a lively discussion of who should their leaders for the coming year. If these girls are supporting different candidates, it could turn into another War of the Roses.

Spirit High In Campaign

By WALT MARTINDALE

Campaigning is in full swing with 131 candidates running for precinct senators and Freshman Class offices.

Of the 148 candidates filed, 17 candidates had withdrawn at noon Thursday. No disqualifications have yet been made. The number of candidates seeking precinct senator totals 95, while 36 candidates are running for positions in the Freshman Class.

The Elections Commission reported that 25 candidates have been fined for illegal campaigning. Jon Kaney, commissioner of elections, stated, "Winning candidates owing campaign fines will not receive a certificate of elections from the Election Commission and will not be able to take office until that fine is paid.

"Other candidates with fines outstanding will be turned over to the University's Business Manager and their grades may be withheld," he continued. "Those candidates who owe campaign fines should pay them by 5 p.m. next Friday."

Students are to observe campaign regulations and to be cautious in campaigning as they might impose a fine on the candidate they are supporting, according to the Elections Commission.

The primary elections will take place Tuesday, from 9 to 5 p.m. Run off elections will be held next Friday, from 9 to 5 p.m.

Election returns from both contests will be broadcast over radio station WTNT.

The official ballot listing compiled by the Elections Commission of all candidates are as follows:

Precinct Senator: 1. Vicki Hils, Judi Jarboe, Virginia Reddick, Cindy Lou Skelton, Liz Waters, and Marion Weeks. 2. Nancy Sue Ashley, Judy Booze, Susan Keglovich, and Pamela Pierson. 3. Jan Cashell, Lyda May Eastridge, and Gretchen Schmaltz.

Minus Leaving FSU For Ohio

By BILL KENT

Doctor Paul Minus, FSU chaplain, will terminate his duties here Dec. 31.

A native of Charleston, S.C., Minus received his education at Yale University. There he received his BA, MA, Bachelor of Divinity, and finally his Ph. D. last June.

Following graduation he began serving as university chaplain here July 1, 1962. While at Yale, Minus served as assistant to the chaplain for two years and as a Methodist minister throughout Connecticut during the summer months.

Recipient of a Fulbright scholarship in 1961, Minus spent that year in Europe doing extensive research on his dissertation for his Ph. D. degree. He spent six weeks in Latin America in 1956 gaining background and experience toward his theological degree.

Minus now is looking toward the future, anticipating a visit to the Vatican Council in Rome in November. He then will return for his final month at FSU in December. In January the chaplain will assume the position of assistant professor of church history at the Methodist Theological School of Ohio. He will deal primarily with one of his principal interests, church responsibility in the modern world.

Chalmers Opens Lecture Series

Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers, Jr., assistant dean of the faculties, will deliver the first lecture in the Mortar Board Last Lecture Series at FSU Wednesday night, September 25.

Chalmers, a psychologist, will speak on "Behaviorial Determinism" at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The public is invited.

Former director of FSU's Honors Program, Chalmers joined the faculty as assistant professor of psychology in 1957. He was appointed dean of the faculties last year.

A native of New Jersey, Chalmers received all three of his degrees, including the Ph. D. from Princeton University. He has since served as an instructor at Princeton, as a research psychologist and as task scientist for the US Air Force. For five years he was research psychologist with the Air Force Personnel and Training Research Center.

The Last Lecture Series sponsored by Mortar Board, an honorary for women students features talks by faculty members of the kind they would give to a class if it were their last.

Other lecturers will be Dr. Stephen Winters, associate professor of geology; Dr. Allan Thomson, assistant professor of English, and Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, professor of modern languages and Distinguished Professor of the Year.

Glasses Save In Chem Lab

Safety glasses saved the eyesight of a graduate student in a chemistry lab at FSU yesterday, but the student Harry Gibson Jr., suffered second degree burns in both hands and a servered artery in his left hand in the explosion.

Gibson's eyes were saved due to lab regulations which require the wearing of safety glasses. One of the lenses was shattered in the safety glasses but the student's eyes were uninjured.

The chemistry department has had the safety glass rule in effect for about a year for all students working in a laboratory.

Gibson is from Spartanburg, S.C. He was treated at the University Hospital and released.

The investigation was conducted by W. H. Watson, safety coordinator, and Jess Wilson, assistant coordinator.

Football Coffee

'The University Union will sponsor a Football Coffee hour in the Main Lounge of Longmire tonight at 8 o'clock.

Everyone may attend and hear FSU "scalp" the University of Miami.

Federal Government Is Stealing State Power

The arguments over states rights started as soon as the Constitution was ratified. The argument between the States and the Federal government as to who controls what sphere of activity existed before the Constitution was ratified. In fact, some States ratified the Constitution only with the understanding that the Tenth Amendment would be submitted by the First Congress to the States for approval.

The Constitution spells out what the powers of Congress are. These powers are necessarily stated in a flexible manner. It was realized that the law would have to be flexible to meet the changing times. It actually states that Congress shall have power "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers..." All other powers are reserved to the States by the Tenth Amendment.

The unfortunate truth is that Congress, aided by the Supreme Court, has interpreted the Constitution so liberally that the Federal government has stripped the States of almost all power, and it continues to do so at will. The advocates of states rights see that this wanton lust for power is removing the government farther and farther from the individual citizen. In fact, it's removing the power to Washington, D.C.

Who knows what is best for Florida, the State legislature or a bureaucrat in Washington? Who is directly responsible to the people of this State, the Washington bureaucrat or the State legislator? The answers to these questions can only point to the need for a strong and independent State government. Florida knows what is best for Florida. Not a conglomeration of States each with a hand slashing and grabbing in the Federal pork barrel.

Why have State legislatures on the whole done such a poor job with the powers they have now? There is only one answer--the people let them do a poor job and accepted it. This is the people of Florida's fault, not the State legislatures. Our democratic form of government is "by the people and for the people."

The present acceptance of increasing Federal control is only the result of the individual's "passing the buck" irresponsibility and worry to Washington where he hopes it won't bother him so much. This can only lead to socialism and then to communism. The government should be close to the people, not in Washington, D.C.

'Castro's Prisoner' To Speak Tuesday

On Tuesday, September 24, the citizens of Tallahassee and the students of FSU will be offered a wonderful opportunity to hear a first-hand account of what life is like in Cuba today.

John Martino, author of the book "I Was Castro's Prisoner," will be here to speak at the Tallahassee Federal Savings and Loan Assoc.

Mr. Martino is an American citizen who took a business trip to Cuba in July, 1959, and was arrested by Castro's terroristG-2 men. They had the wrong man and the charges were false, but that did not prevent him from staying in the Cuban prisons for more than three years.

Blessed with an almost photographic memory, he began to be interested in the incredible stories told him by fellow prisoners, many of them betrayed members of Castro's own revolutionary forces. He saw a secret Russian radio communications system set up and informed the American Embassy through a minor member of its staff, only to learn, while still in jail that the information was never passed along. He endured the excitement and subsequent disillusion and despair of the Bay of Pigs invasion and talked to many of the participants. He knew of the installation of Russian rockets and the takeover of government and militia by the USSR.

This is the first eye-witness story of Castro's Cuba, by a man who wasn't supposed to be there.

The Federal Savings and Loan Assoc. is located at 440 North Monroe Street. You can also have the opportunity to meet and talk with him at the Americanism Center and Book Store Tuesday afternoon where he will be on hand to autograph copies of his book.

Be sure not to miss this authentic story of the Russian takeover in Cuba and of Fidel Castro's "people's republic."

Letters From Candidates

Day Student Senator

For too long a time the Student Senate at FSU has had many features which have limited its ability to perform effectively. Its innate conservatism, for example, has prevented it from actively supporting, and committing, the Student Government to many reform measures.

It has failed to provide for the interests of FSU's Negro students by working for their acceptance to the off-campus eating houses and the town theatres, it has failed to work towards the abolition of the restrictive and undemocratic control of FSU coeds by the Dean of Women's office, it has failed to set up a committee with Florida A & M students to provide joint projects of understanding between the races and it has failed to uphold democratic life at FSU by not recognizing all student organizations, even those of a controversial nature.

It is for these reasons that the Young People's Socialist League has decided to nominate and sponsor three off-campus senators, me Larry Lake, and M. F. Fahy (an independent). The Socialist ticket for precinct 14 proposes to add many liberal, radical and liberating debates to the Student Senate, debates consonate with our purpose of building a society at the service of human needs. We are forced to reject all conceptions of minority social rule, such as capitalism and Communism, and we believe that the voluntary, conscious participation of the people is the only way to the society we seek.

To this end we will sponsor any and all bills which provide for the enrichment of life at FSU and which delegates to the student body more power over its intellectual and moral inclinations.

Thomas Riggins
Michael F. Fahy

Cawthon Hall Senator

The Student Senate of Florida State University is one of the most important of our student organizations. Student Senate acts as a sounding board between the students and administration of this campus. It acts upon the numerous small details pertaining to FSU regulations, sending only the more important on to be discussed by the Faculty Senate.

Student Senate needs the backing of each and every person on this campus. When people are uninterested in the workings of their Student Government the calibre of their government naturally goes down. It is hopeless to advance projects of benefits to students without the confidence and respect of those being served. I urge you to please consider the qualifications of both candidates in this election for your Dorm Senator and then VOTE for the one you think best.

I hope I have conveyed to you the sincere desire I have to represent Cawthon Hall as your Senator and the interest I have in Student Government. Last year I volunteered to work on numerous phases of government. Many hours of my time were spent working on the Trimester Committee and the International Student Relations Committee. I am currently secretary to the Attorney General and handle correspondence in the Cabinet Office.

Thank you for reading this letter and considering me for your Dorm Senator. I hope you will agree with me in that I am the best qualified for this job and the most interested.

Barbara McDonald

Day Student Senator

I would like to avail myself of this opportunity to announce my candidacy for the position of Day Student Senator. Having lived off campus since I entered FSU in September of 1960, I feel qualified to deal with the special problems of off campus students.

My background as a government major, as an officer in several organizations in the past, and as an interested observer of student government politics on this campus (I have seen how the student government politics works from the inside), these experiences qualify me, I believe, to represent all off campus students in the Student Senate.

In the election on September 24, off campus students will be privileged to elect four persons to represent them in the FSU Student Senate. Be sure to cast your votes for three qualified people and cast your fourth vote for another qualified individual, Max Gelders. Every vote will be appreciated.

Max Gelders

Kellum Hall

Dear Students:

Elections are here again! This approaching election will not only give us a chance to improve our percentage of voters but it will give us a chance to exercise at least these four principles of voting:

1. Verify what a man says he is.
2. Obtain information concerning each candidate.
3. Tell others about the candidate you choose.
4. Elect your candidate by making sure you VOTE.

Letters Policy

The "Flambeau" has received several unsigned letters to the editor in the past week.

None of these letters can be printed unless they bear the signature of the contributor. The writers may have their opinions published by coming to 211 Longmire and signing the letters.

Fellow residents of Kellum [illegible] let's challenge all other precincts to match our voting percentage.

Dear Students,

A ballot represents the [illegible] to select your representatives [illegible] dent Government. Individuals trusted with this responsibility should be outstanding. [illegible] agree. Yet each year [illegible] show a similar pattern; [illegible] mark their choice on [illegible]

No terribly serious damage [illegible] every candidate is somewhat capable, if this is all you want. Or do you want people of highest caliber?

Your Student Government [illegible] main capably staffed only if [illegible] sider future officials carefully, [illegible] advantage of their campaigning [illegible] opportunity to meet each one. Judge your candidates for what they have done as well as for what they will do. Look for responsibility, which is the prerequisite for office holding. Then, do not miss the opportunity to indicate your decision.

Florida State University's [illegible] Government is outstanding in the Southeast. The continuance of high standards rests directly on you this Tuesday. If Student Government is to always function excellently, its growth must parallel that of our university's. Thus we must elect able people.

Choose carefully. And please, mark your ballot Tuesday.

Flu Shots

Flu vaccinations are now available in the infirmary according to Dr. C. R. Gentry, Director of Student Health and Chief Physician.

The shots cost $1. and should be taken at one month intervals. Two shots are recommended for those who have not had them before; otherwise one booster is advised.

"All those with health problems are urged to get the vaccinations, and all others, too, as long as the supply lasts," emphasized Dr. Gentry.

Gentry says he believes that the yearly 1500 vaccinations given last year headed off a major epidemic.

FSU Gets Science Grant

A $230,000 grant from the National Science Foundation announced today by Florida State University will provide for a building to house and study cores from the ocean bottom being brought back from Antarctic waters.

The building will be called an Antarctic Marine Geological Research Facility and Antarctic Core Library. No matching funds are required.

Administration of the grant is under the direction of Dr. H.G. Goodell of the FSU Geology Dept.

Dr. Goodell said the new building will be used to store an accumulation of [illegible] Antarctic waters by an oceanographic research vessel, USNS Eltanin, also sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

The ship will be operating for the next 14 years under NSF sponsorship. The Department of Geology at FSU has the coring grant aboard the Eltanin. There are six FSU graduate students acti[illegible] gram.

Mrs. Svendsen sang in the role as an undergraduate at Converse College and since coming to FSU has starred in "The Consul" and other productions. Miss Donaldson and Mrs. Svendsen shared the lead role in the FSU production of "The Cloak" by Pucinni last April.

Following the presentation in Brussels on June 25, 1958, Harold Taubman wrote for the New York Times: "In its first great premiere "Susannah scored a resounding success. There was no question that the opera stirred the gathering. Throughout the performance there were spontaneous outbursts of approval. At the end of the second act, which packs a potent dramatic punch, the applause was loud. At the close of the opera it was prolonged."

The State Opera Association of Florida, which is staffed at FSU has begun rehearsals for the production in October and in other Florida communities between Nov. 21 and 23.

"Susannah" will be shown throughout the Northeast part of Florida in the coming weeks. Approximately ten showings will be held, including three here at FSU.

The two-act 105 minute music drama, composed 10 years ago by Floyd, who is a professor in the School of Music, places the Apocryphal story of Susana and the Elders in the Tennessee Mountain setting of New Hope Valley.

Phyllis Curtin and Mack Harrell appeared in the world premiere of the opera, which otherwise had a cast made up principally of students. It was presented in FSU's Westcott Auditorium in February 1955. Harrell and Miss Curtin also were in a series of production the next year by the New York Opera Company.

The New York production won for Floyd the New York Music Critics Circle Award for the best opera of the year and the opera was presented again and again in New York and in cities across the country.

Floyd will direct the FSU productions in October. He will have just returned from San Antonio, where the opera is opening a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the San Antonio Symphony on Oct. 12.

Collins will take the role of the Rev. Olin Blitch, an itinterant evangelist, and Walter James of the music faculty, will sing the role he had in the original production, that of Sam, the brother of Susannah.

FSU Parking Problem Not Unique

Nearly two million automobiles will work their way through college this year.

A survey of the college parking problem by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company indicates that 44 percent of the nation's 4.5 million undergraduates will report to classes on wheels later this month.

Questionnaires sent by Goodyear to colleges, both large and small, in all sections of the nation, revealed that the increase since pre World War II days in the number of student autos parked on campus ranges from 300 to 1,000 per cent.

Understandably, the daytime parking problem -- not to be confused with its midnight counterpart -- poses a problem for campus police chiefs as well as deans.

Parking facilities are virtually non-existant at many colleges in metropolitan areas, the study found. For example, the 10,000 daytime students and 14,000 night scholars at the College of the City of New York either ride the subway or race parking meters. A handful of daring faculty members commute through Manhattan streets on motor bikes.

In contrast the University of Minnesota will park automobiles 1,900,000 times in the course of the school year. Minnesota has a "self-supporting" parking set-up where everyone on campus pays to park. Most colleges have an annual fee, ranging up to $10.

Some of the Ivy League schools, notably Yale and Princeton, do not allow on-campus parking. Columbia does, but has no parking facilities. Both faculty and students park on Manhattan streets on a 'catch as catch can'' basis.

Most colleges are tough on student auto violations. Last year Dartmouth suspended a star halfback because he was caught owning a car while attending the school as a financial aid student. The player lost all-east recognition while the football team won nine straight.

Estimates of the number of used cars on campus varied widely from 45 to 90 percent of the total number. Surprisingly, the highest percentage of used cars was found at Harvard, generally considered the richest university in the country.

College police chiefs, deans and others concerned with parking problems disagreed widely on one question posed by the Goodyear survey: "Is today's student a better driver than his father?"

The Northwestern respondent said, "We doubt it." Dartmouth replied, "About the same at comparable age.' Columbia answered "Unlikely." "Yes, but less cautious," said Maine. Wisconsin and Harvard gave an unqualified "Yes," while Tennessee wrote, ' ?''

Perhaps the most succinct observation came from Northwestern's manager of parking and traffic. At the bottom of his questionnaire he wrote, "Cars are still unnecessary to a college education."

University Court

Office hours for the University Court are 4:30-5:30 p.m., Mon.-Thurs. Miss Betsy Boote, Chairman of the Court, can be contacted at 224-4731 or ext. 3004, or in 404 Longmire.

Parking Lot To Be Closed

Weather permitting, the constuctors of the Physics Bldg., Monday may begin on the new parking lot, immediately west of the Education Bldg. Parking will be barricaded from that lot and students may use the parking lot west of the Circus where there is ample parking.

Counselor Meeting

There will be a meeting of the defense and prosecution counselors in the office of Chief Justice Kelley Reid, 404 Longmire, on Monday between 3 and 4:15 p.m.

Today's News Roundup

WASHINGTON-- President Kennedy has named a two-man public com-mittee to work with White and Negro leaders in an effort to ease the racial tensions in Birmingham, Alabama. The two men are Earl (Red) Blaik, the former Army Football coach, and Kenneth Royall, former Secretary of the Army. A White House announcement said the two men will work with the community leaders in Birmingham, and will get started immediately.

NEW YORK -- Western leaders at the United Nations have said they will give careful consideration to the new disarmament proposals put forth today by Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko. Gromyko's proposed an 18-nation Moscow summit meeting before next June 30th. His major foreign policy speech was devoid of cold war language so far as the big western powers are concerned. But he was vitriolic in regard to West Germany and Chancellor Adenauer, whom he accused of trying to poison relations between states.

US delegate Adlai Stevenson said Gromyko's emphasis on further steps to reduce tensions, especially in disarmament, was very welcome to the United States. Today President Kennedy will address the General Assem-bly.

Seminoles To Sink Or Swim Tonight

Miami's Hurricanes led by All-American quarterback George Mira, host the Seminoles of Florida State tonight in the Orange Bowl, kicking off the first full-fledged college football weekend of 1963.

Getting a head start on the rest of the nation's collegiate elevens, the Seminoles and Hurricanes take the field for an 8:15 kickoff before what is expected to be a crowd of 65,000 fans. Reports out of Miami indicate that the sales for the game are the largest ever for a Miami season opener, and a sellout is practically insured. Rennovation of the stadium during the summer months reduced its capacity to 65,000, but a general beautification has been effected. Concrete seats have replaced the old steel bleachers in the west end, creating a more wrap-around effect.

The burden of proof rests more with Bill Peterson's Seminoles in this one. Miami has been picked by the consensus of post-season forecasts to place among the country's top 10 teams this season, while FSU has not appeared in any rankings.

"Preparing this team for Miami has been the toughest job I've ever had," Peterson said last week. "Getting ready for them has been very hard. They do so many things so well.

"We've had to get ready for anything: the I formation (rumored to be a Miami surprise in the making), the option run and pass, the split end, and Mira's passing," he continued. "It's kept us way behind.

"Our defense is lagging behind," he said. "I just don't think we're ready to play a great team like Miami."

Only one recent injury contributed to the Seminoles' woes. Senior fullback Larry Brinkley, a first unit member set to start the game, was injured in a scrimmage ending last week's practice and will not see action.

"Brinkley's shoulder separation will hurt us," Peterson says. "He's been playing good defense for us the last two years."

Gene Roberts, senior and leading rusher on the 1962 FSU team, moved into the starting fullback position.

Roberts will operate with a backfield that also lists senior Dave Snyder of Jacksonville and junior Fred Biletnikoff of Erie, Pa., at the halves and Steve Tensi, junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, at quarterback.

Jack Edwards, junior from Tampa, gets the starting call at center. He will be flanked by two rugged veterans, Chuck Robinson of East Palestine, O. and Dick Hermann of Marianna at guards.

Tackle will be manned by Avery Sumner, 216-pound junior from Adel, Ga. and Jerry Bruner, 232 pounds from Evansville, Ind. Starting at end will be Don Floyd, junior from Madison, and Bill Dawson, junior from Valdosta, Ga.

Tensi will look to Floyd, Biletnikoff and junior flanker back Winfred Bailey of Atlanta, Ga. for pass receiving duty. As a sophomore last year, Tensi completed 60 of 121 passes.

Miami will counter with one of America's best, one George Mira, who in two seasons has thrown 20 touchdown passes. Now a senior, he has his top three receivers of 1962, halfbacks Nick Spinelli and Jack Sims and end Bill Sparks, back for more action.

Two newcomers will see more than their share of backfield action. Halfback Russell Smith is a speedster who runs, passes, and catches, while Tony Salardino is a fullback workhorse. Both are likely to draw starting assignments. Salardino was moved from guard.

Dan Conners, 225-pound tackle, is the leading operator the UM line. Rowland Benson is the other tackle, while guard starting positions will be manned by Bob Hart and Bob Streiter with Leo Lillimagi at center.

Miami leads the series 8-1 and took the 1962 contest 7-6.

The History Of A Hassle

By BOB DENSMORE
Assistant Sports Editor

Before the Seminole - Hurricane kickoff tonight, broadcast on WTAL at 8:15, a bit of history seems due.

The FSU-Miami series began in 1951. In that game FSU, who's "big game" the year before had been with Tampa, did exactly what could have been expected of them. The Seminoles lost by the lopsided score of 35-13. In '51 the 'Canes could well afford to call the clash a breather.

The first game was a sign of more things to come in the series. In '53 it was 27-0 for Miami, '55 34-0 Miami, '56 20-7 Miami, '57 40-13 Miami. The 'Canes were right. Playing FSU was a week of rest.

Then the dawn broke. In Anno Domini 1958, a sleepy Hurricane squad looked up from their bench to note, with mild interest, that Florida State was leading at half time. They work up too late. The score board read FSU 17 Miami 6 when the final buzzer sounded.

After squeaking by the Seminoles in '59 by a score of 7-6, the 'Canes came back with blood in their eye in '60. They trounced the Seminoles 25-7 under the leadership of a quarterback named Curci. By this time, Miami was well aware of the fact that FSU was no longer a pushover.

Alas, we come to last year's heart breaker. Both teams entered the fray with records unblemished. FSU with 49-0 and 42-0 wins over Citadel and Furman plus a scoreless tie with Kentucky, and Miami with 23-14 and 21-20 victories over Pitt and TCU.

the game barely under way, George Mira hit flanker back Nick Spinella with a 39 yard TD pass. It was Mira and company's last glimpse of the FSU goal. While the Seminole defense kept Mira on his back, FSU's offense mounted drive after drive toward the Miami goal, only to be frustrated by a rash of fumbles the most costly of which came with less than a minute to go on the ten yard line.

24-0: They Said It Couldn't Be Done!

By BOB DENSMORE
Assistant Flambeau Sports Editor

FIGHTING SEMINOLES GET ROUSING WELCOME

The English language has again proven inadequate. How do you describe an event that makes the entire student body of a great university burst into a wild fever of emotion, careening about campus shouting to everything and everybody, including themselves? No adjective no matter how superlative, could begin to match the eloquence of the hoarse cries bubbling forth from an ecstatic FSU student body last Friday night. The Seminoles had beaten Miami by the impossible score of 24-0, the Miami team rated tenth in the nation by the pre-season pollsters. It was like an opiate injected into the tired veins of a school long weary of the monicker "second class."

The men directly responsible for the momentous victory are scarcely more easy to make comment on.

Coach Bill Peterson, even before the game, called Fred Biletnikoff the finest pass receiver he had ever coached. What can be said about Biletnikoff now?

Biletnikoff caught two touchdown passes of 23 and 17 yards respectively in the first and second quarter. Then in the fourth quarter, operating as defensive corner man for the Seminoles, he snagged an All-American pass from "All-American" George Mira on the one yard line and sprinted back 99 yards for another Seminole TD. Due to an excellent impromptu interference, Biletnikoff faced only two tacklers on his run back. Smith and Mira. Biletnikoff ran through Smith and outran Mira.

On both of his TD receptions the FSU back out-maneuvered Miami's Spinelli. Perhaps Spinelli is the only true authority on how good Biletnikoff really is.

There doesn't seem to be much doubt in most people's minds about the aptitude of FSU quarterback Steve Tensi.

The rangy Seminole slinger, who has been likened to the former TCU quarterback Sonny Gibbs, fired two touchdown passes and walked away from the game with a .650 completion tally. George Mira called the Seminole Chief "great." Who should know better than "The Matador?"

As an example of the poise exhibited by Tensi during Friday's blockbuster, take his second touchdown toss into account. As Tensi leaped for a jump pass, his halfbacks collided and his receiver didn't get to the spot. Did this faze Tensi? Not in the least.

Tensi landed on his feet only to discover that Biletnikoff had again eluded Miami's Spinelli in the end zone. Tensi whipped the pig skin through 17 yards of Miami air to Biletnikoff just as if it were all in the plans. Tensi turned a "busted" play into a touchdown.

All the while Tensi and Biletnikoff were demolishing the Miami secondary, the Seminole line was doing things to the Miami defense. The forward wall continually poked holes into the touted Miami line, holes which were used to full advantage by the entire corps of FSU backs. Standouts on the offensive line prove too numerous to give sufficient coverage to their individual efforts. Sumner, Dawson, Robinson, Edwards, Hermann, Floyd, the list goes on. Heroics became common as they protected Tensi like a burnished shield. Only twice was Tensi thrown for a loss.

Perhaps the most shocking part of the game to all concerned was the performance of the Seminole defense. The same defense which looked like a sieve during pre-season scrimmages welded suddenly into a brick wall. Time after time Miami's Mira saw his receivers vanish behind a charging line of white jersies and gold helmets. After the first kickoff, the Miami quarterback spent more time in the company of FSU's defensive line than with his team mates.

State Sportswriters Sing FSU's Praises

Sportswriters around the state had only the highest praise for the FSU team which, Friday night, made Miami's "Dream Team" wake up.

Tom McEwen of the "Tampa Tribune" said, "The time has come, I think, to cease and desist from reminders that Florida State University was once a girls' school. With the Seminole disenchantment of the Magic City, the University of Miami and George Mira, FSU seated itself at the head table among collegiate football teams. The miracle of Miami Friday was not Mira. In fact there was no miracle at all. FSU was a better team..."

Jacksonville's "Florida Times-Union" said, "Mira had to content himself with merely being the best passer on Miami's squad -- not in the nation, not in the Southeast, not even in this game. This very probably could be the year of the big break-through for Bill Peterson's Seminoles."

The "Miami Herald" was probably the most candid and the most humorous. "And by now blokes who had given FSU and eight points were on their feet pleading, 'Will the real Miami defensive team please stand up?' Their Jimmy Burns stated, "Fast charging, hard hitting Florida State lines working in relays man handled the Hurricans shamefully, both on offense and defense. Make no mistake about it -- the figures, 24-0, do not lie."

In another article, "Florida State's perfectly - prepared, gallantly - dedicated football team butchered the Hurricanes, 24-0. In their shocking uprising, the Seminoles not only shut out the supposedly greatest offensive team in UM history, they made it look ridiculously easy."

Miami's coach Andy Gustafson seemed to be having a trauma. He said, "I've never been so shocked at a game in my life. I didn't expect them to play a perfect game. They beat us in all departments -- everything. We simply were outplayed at every turn."

When asked why Mira didn't throw more, Gustafson sagely replied, "In order to throw the football, you have to be in possession of the football. We couldn't get the football because we couldn't stop the great drive by FSU. I am only guessing but I will bet you that we didn't have the football more than 8 plays the first half."

The "Herald" judged FSU's Biletnikoff to have turned in "an All-World performance." One of the stories was headlined by a stunned remark of Miami end Hoyt Sparks. "How can eleven guys have an off night at the same time?" Miami's "Sports Illustrated cover boy," George Mira, received his most stinging comment when the Herald stated, "Biletnikoff caught three touchdown passes -- two from Tensi and one from Mira."

The most apt summary of the game was made quite unintentionally before the game by "Sports Illustrated," "Miami opens with Florida State this weekend. This should decide right off who is the best independent in the South." It certainly did.

Restaurant Editorial

For. . .

Writing as a "daughter of the South," I am appealing to the students who desire the neighboring restaurant proprietors not to serve the Negro students enrolled at FSU.

I have been brought up to consider the Negro race to be inferior to my own race, in every respect. However, there is a time when a person "becomes a man" and must "put away childish things." Cer- independent thinking of this kind. The student must think for himself and acknowledge the fact that each person represents not a race but a portion of mankind. Likewise, an injury to any person--be it little or large--is an injury to all of mankind.

When a man is denied the right to eat with other members of mankind, injury is a fact--an ugly fact. This fact can be easily ascertained by independent thinkers, by those who will break with their pasts, by

Yes, I am a Southerner with twenty years of prejudice drilled into my entire being. I am also a thinker who has recognized the grave problem facing the United States and wishes to combat it with the assistance of mankind, regardless of color.

Why must we idly let it glare at us in our very own community? Why must we deny to all of mankind its privilege to live the life we desire to live? There is no valid answer.

Against. . .

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the owners and managers of the four restaurants who so bravely are standing up for their rights as citizens by refusing to serve Negroes in their establishments.

All persons are entitled to the pursuit of their own choice of actions as long as they, in so doing, don't interfere with the rights of others. The management has the right to hire whom it pleases sell what it pleases, and charge the price it pleases in accordance with Fair Trade Laws. It is my belief that management should also be allowed to serve whom it pleases. The Negroes here at FSU won't starve if they aren't served at these establishments. There are several places on campus for them to eat (plus a few at Fla. A&M).

We, as Americans, in order to remain free, are going to have to stand up and prevent the rule of a minority group of people.

Our Supreme Court has recently banned the reading of the Bible in our classrooms. This is another mistake. Now they are trying to take God out of our lives. Believe me, this can't be done, but there are those who will try.

America, wake up! Are we going to simply fall prey to these small minority groups of communists and atheists--or are we going to pre-

T. Mike Tucker

To the Editor:

Having read your recent editorial concerning the proposed integration of the four eating establishments adjoining the campus, I beg to differ with two of your statements.

1. "... and we are not suggesting that these eating facilities be immediately and completely desegregated."

Does the implication which I receive from this statement mean that the unethical desire of the university is to be imposed on these businesses in the future in spite of the fact that the owners have a constitutional right to serve whom they please just because they are the owners of a private enterprise? Those who seem to want to disrupt the institutions of many years only when a few demanding (not asking) students and faculty and professionally religious persons start pushing for a change seem to have forgotten the inherent principles of free enterprise.

2. "... But the peaceful acceptance of the Negro students is an indication of majority opinion."

This is not necessarily a true assumption. Many of FSU's students have come to the university to acquire an education rather than try to start a social upheaval for those of us who make this city our home to have to live with after the tem- have left.

3. "These restaurants must be opened to ALL FSU students..."

This type of statement is getting increasingly popular with those who who want no part of them and have so. If the free enterprise system which is the backbone of this retime that some of you students learn of the rights of businessmen as provided in the U.S. Constitution. You have apprised yourselves of a few of the rights afforded to you, assumed some which are non-existent, and ignored those of the men who disagree with you.

As a graduate of FSU, and a recipient of two degrees from the university, I am not pleased with the attitudes of some of the students who speak as if they spoke for the entire student body. I feel that Tallahassee's permanent residents resent being told that they must do this and they must do that by a few of the temporary occupants of the . We, the real citizens of Tallahassee handle the domestic affairs of our city.

What we saw was an exhibition of disorderly and shameful conduct by the CORE group which included five students from FSU. These FSU students were not Negroes. The demonstrators attempted to forcefully enter the theatre lobby after being ordered to disperse and violence occurred.

Who will suffer from such demonstrations? The good name of FSU shall suffer. Yet, do the students of think not, yet five students have appointed themselves as representatives of this campus.

Students, let not this small antagonistic group belittle the name of FSU. FSU is integrated, but let's not de-grade it.

ROTC Too?

To the Editor:

The University, because it is responsible for student welfare, has renewed its policy of prohibiting FSU students from participating in activities which might lead to violence. The creators of this policy should be congratulated for their boldness and initiative.

Of the many wonderful implications of this policy is that we are now prohibited from participating in ROTC, one of the aspects of our environment which most certainly leads to violence.

Visitor Speaks

To the Editor:

As a visitor to your campus I find myself compelled to applaud the Flambeau for its genuine liberality in printing the views of young Keith R. Garner. I think he is dangerously misled, representing a position of blind alley extremism, but nevertheless he does speak for a vocal sector of political opinion, and should be heard.

I trust FSU's Young Democrats will not let Mr. Garner go unchallenged.

Letters From Candidates

Tomorrow you will be called upon to make a very important decision. You will be asking yourself, who should I vote for? Or perhaps you have even asked yourself, is it worth the time and trouble to vote?

No one can possibly overrate the importance of voting and making the best possible choice. Our student government is one of the most outstanding and responsible organizations on our (or any) campus. These are thestudents people associate you with.

It is our privilege and duty to choose leaders who will not only be leaders but who will be willing to work along with fellow students to reach the best possible decision for you as a student body. As your day student senator this will be my goal.

I am asking for your vote of confidence.

Cheryl Thompson

V.P. Freshman Class

"There are friends I haven't met yet." This quotation fits with my feelings this past week. By campaigning for vice president of the freshman class, I have had the wonderful opportunity of meeting many of you either directly or indirectly.

Through this contact with you, I have observed the potential of our class. We have the necessary ingredients for greatness: dependability, sincerity, and friendliness. All that is needed is a means to channel this potential... that means is through class organization. I want to be a part of this organization so that I may give my every and best efforts towards serving you. Please place your trust in me by voting Barb Hackworth--Freshman Vice President.

Barb Hackworth

Smith Hall Senator

Promises, promises, and more promises are not in order, but qualifications for the office of Senator are. My qualifications are as follows:

Past Student Government Representative and President
Member of State Champion Parliamentary Procedure team
Member of Phi Rho Pi--National Honorary Forensic Fraternity
Candidate for this year's Debate Squad

I encourage you to consider the qualifications of all the candidates and then vote for the candidate of your choice. I have a sincere desire to serve you and will be happy to discuss any questions you might have. I invite anyone with any questions to stop by my room, 722 at any time.

Your vote and support will be greatly appreciated.

Wilderness Sheep

It's an enlightening, if not comical experience to encounter a flock of wilderness sheep. By shouting a reasonable facsimile of "Baa!" you can instantly gain the attention of a thousand stereotypes. One sheep will boldly venture your way. All of a sudden every other beast will also. They're all one big fluffy mass of follow the leader, an interesting experiment in simple psychology.

By equating the simple with the complex, I see Florida State students wearing Indian Madras (guaranteed to bleed), driving a Cheve Impala and rising, whistling and shouting for Dixie even though they may be from Pennsylvania.

I see 40,000 sheep shouting for beer at Ft. Lauderdale or any nameless place. I see thousands of woolyminded teenage sheep filling the pockets of Davie Crockett exploiters, hula hoop makers and users of every other bygone farce since the days of Ringling Brothers.

I can't say 'grow up" because I see hundreds of adults piling onto a "Florida for Goldwater" train without even knowing what state he's from. I see a nation suckered in by every new cigarette that comes along using a "springtime" theme with a different phrase tagged on.

I can't even say, "Look at me." I wear button down and tab collars for no more plausible reason than "they look good," a socially ingrained thought.

What can I say then? "Figure out, rationalizations aside, where and why you are..."

Driving around campus last Sunday was an interesting if not disheartening experience. The Chi Omegas were just ending one of the "Join Us Friendly Southern Girls" bashes. The whole house was singing a good-bye song to the departing rushees. Everyone was dolled up sporting toothy four inch smiles. All during the song, girls were waving good-bye to other girls. Then at the end, all the Chi O's were waving good-bye together. From the distance it looked like a Broadway musical!

Heaven help the girl who takes this at face value.

She, or anyone who would make a categorization of all her relationships and see through and into this one of many situations instead of merely at it, would be far ahead in the game. Then, they could at least be an individual within the mass.

'Kiddie Rules'

For gripes sake, why are "no smoking signs" but everywhere? Time was when in a little girls' school such rules might have been in keeping with the student body. FSU has graduated into a full grown university. The students should be considered men and women and able to smoke or not in the various classes (with the possible exception of some art or biology rooms where substances used could possibly be a fire hazard) as the desire moves them.

Faculty too are imposed upon by this grammar school rule and I suggest to the "powers that be" that a poll be taken from both student body and faculty to determine if this is a majority decision or something left over from a forgotten mimeo sheet sent home to Susie's ma.

Guerilla patrol in Vietnam jungle? No, just the Counter Guerilla patrol of FSU on exercises in the woods.

CG's Are At It Again

By LARRY COX
Flambeau Staff Writer

FSU's Counter Guerillas, better known as the C.G.'s, have banded together again to learn the hard fighting tactics of Guerilla warfare.

The C.G. unit was born in the second trimester of last year as an aggressor force against the juniors in the Army ROTC.

The C.G. forces are composed of forty-five volunteers from Army ROTC cadets. They are trained in marksmanship, hand-to-hand fighting, bayonet practice, long-range patrolling, demolitions, first aid, and various methods of killing, capturing, and deceiving an enemy.

"To be a member of this hard hitting group, a man must have the ability to endure the rigors of battle and exhaustive training. Obedience and responsiveness to commands is also necessary," reported Lt. Mike Flint, in charge of the C.G. force. "Starting out as an unorganized, unsupported, and ill-equipped group of men, it had by March become an efficient and hard-hitting fighting unit," reported Flint. "During the March exercises against the junior forces of the Army, led by Captain Morris, the C.G. platoon proved to be more than enough of an aggressor unit."

According to Lt. Flint, the C.G. platoon can develop the above qualities in any man willing to cooperate and learn. The ranks of the C.G.'s are filled, but any man with fighting spirit can be a reserve member. He may be from either Army or Air Force ROTC. He is under no obligation to go on Field Training Exercises or train with the Guerillas. All he has to do is contact Mike Flint or Fred Sheldon. If this is impossible, he may sign the roster posted in the bulletin board in the ROTC building.

Vance Opens Coffee Hour

"George Sarton and the History of Science" was discussed by Mr. Maurice M Vance at the Phi Alpha Theta coffee hour Friday.

Sarton is the primary figure in the historiography of science, which Vance defined as "a systematized positive knowledge." Others had traced the development of the branches of physical science, but, Vance told the history honorary, "Sarton was the first one interested in the interrelationship between science and the rest of civilization."

In his meticulously researched volumes he tried to bring science and the humanities together. He believed that science provided as much knowledge about man's worth, abilities and potentialities as did the traditional disciplines. The best way to bridge the gap between the two fields, he felt, was to study the history of civilization with emphasis on the influence of science.

Born in Belgium in 1884, Sarton took degrees in chemistry and mathematics, but was never a victim of specialization. When war broke out he moved to the United States. Here he gained financial support and a study in the Harvard library. Blessed with a remarkable mind, he added in middle age Arabic and Turkish to his store of languages, which included a command of 10 European tongues and a working knowledge of Hebrew, Sanskrit and Chinese. He wrote constantly until his death a few years after World War II.

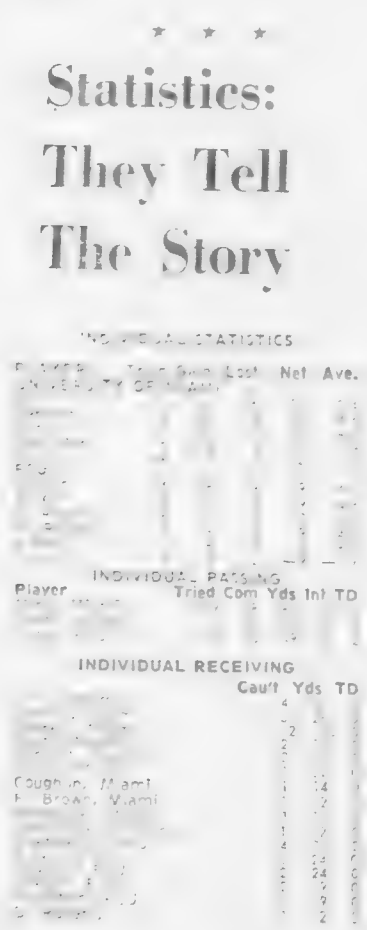
The Wood Pile

The Airport Scene

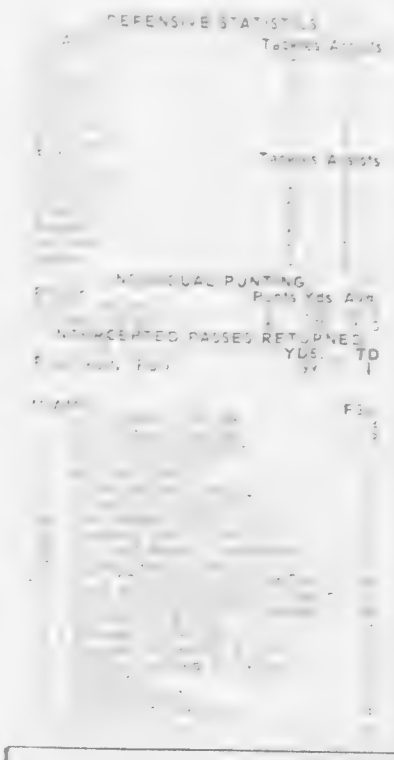
Saturday afternoon at twelve o'clock, Tallahassee's Municipal Airport began to come to life. Weary travelers were roused by a small group of FSU students filtering into the airport. One in particular noticed with disinterest that the tide of happy students who were milling around was growing, then went back to his nap. His slumber, however, was cut short at 1:18 p.m. when a chartered Eastern Airliner banked over the airport from the east and a tremendous roar rose up from the small group which had now grown to over 2,200 persons.

The roar died down momentarily as the big DC-7 disappeared from view as it continued its circling. It soon reappeared through the clouds and touched down on the long runway and taxied down to the ramp where the crowd was waiting.

The noise was unbearable at this ramp as the plane slowly faced around to discharge its passengers. Students on the roof, in the passageway to the main lounge, on the grass and on the ramp itself were applauding, waving, cheering, chanting, jumping up and down to see, or sitting on their buddies' shoulders to wave their banners.



All eyes were on the big plane and the small windows in the back of the plane, except those of Tallahassee policemen assigned to keep the students in line. These poor souls had earlier tried to use persuasion, pleading and threats with their motorcycles to keep a small band of students off the ramp, but the stubborn students laughingly held their ground, chanting "hold that line."



However, all efforts to keep the cheering students off the ramp went for nought as the engines of the plane were switched off and the door opened to disclose the two stewardesses. The crowd had a mind of its own and surged out to the steps of the airliner, led by a small group of students from Kellum Hall with a red crepe paper carpet, and a lovely group of Village Vamps, official University hostesses, who were there to add their words of welcome. One distraught cop tried to stem the flow by holding up his hands, but he too soon joined the flow of people to the plane steps.

Thus, the victorious Seminoles were welcomed home royally by the largest crowd ever to assemble at the Municipal Airport. The Airport approach road was lined for one mile with cars parked on both sides of the road.

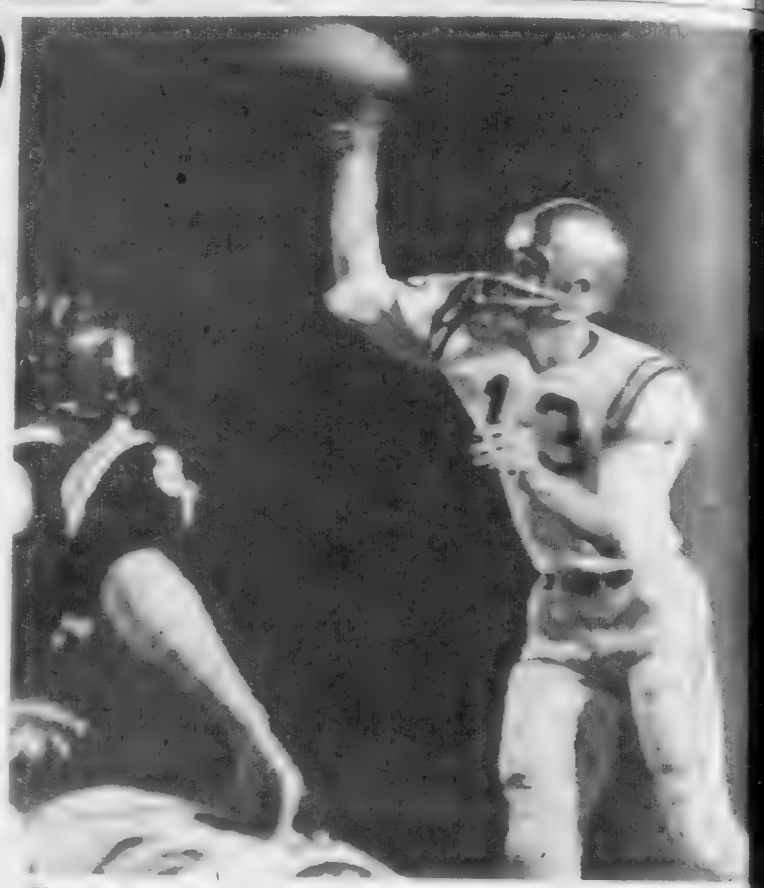
Protecting against the long gain, the Seminole defense conceded yardage to within their own five yard line twice during the melee. Each time they dug in and frustrated the scoreless 'Canes.

Standouts on defense included a number of sophomores. In fact, four out of the top five on the tackles and assists charts were playing varsity football for the first time. The first year men were: guard Bill McDowell, halfback Maury Bibent, guard Joe Parrish, and tackle Frank Pennie. The old pro on the defense was Charlie Calhoun, a senior quarterback.

Calhoun also contributed an important part of the FSU punch through his booming punts. Calhoun averaged 46.3 yards per kick and kept the 'Canes continually pinned in their own backyard.



The Seminole kicking game was superb all the way around. FSU kicking specialist Doug Messer recorded a perfect evening. The tribe toe artist hit for three extra points and threw in an extra field goal with 10:16 left in the fourth quarter.

Nothing should be taken away from the Seminole running [illegible] though overshadowed by the FSU air assault. The hard charging of the backs made the air attack possible.

Leading ground gainer for the Tallahassee terriors was junior Dave Snyder. Snyder was probably the fiercest competitor on the field Friday night, rolling 59 yards on the ground at an average of 4.2 yards per carry.

A surprise [illegible] in the Tribe's running game was introduced during the last half of the fourth quarter. The surprise was Howard Ehler, a sophomore. Ehler gained 19 yards on four carries for an average of 4.8 yards per carry.

Looking over the team statistics, [illegible]uld almost say that Miami had won statistically. Miami garnered five first downs to the Seminoles four in the rushing department. Mira got eleven first downs in the air as compared to Tensi's nine.

By JOHN GATES

Major college football teams across the country have now completed the first full weekend of gridiron action. As usual, many of these teams made a complete mockery of preseason prognostications.

Some of the major wins were recorded by future Seminole opponents. Texas Christian, who is the Seminoles' next adversary this Saturday night, whipped Kansas 10-6 in their hard-fought opener. Kansas was picked to finish third in the Big Eight behind Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Wake Forest, who will be here on October 12, lost to East Carolina 20-10. VPI was soundly thrashed by Kentucky 33-14. FSU plays the Gobblers on the 26th of October. Georgia Tech, manhandled the Gators of Florida last week 9-0. The Seminoles play Tech on November 9 and the Gators on November 30.

North Carolina State, who is to be our Homecoming game on November 16, trounced a fine Maryland squad 36-14.

Scores are not yet available on the Auburn-Houston game. Tribe opponents who had an open date were Mississippi Southern and Furman.

Students Cast Ballots For Officers, Senators

Primary elections for freshman class officers, senators and precinct senators are today, with 131 candidates contesting for office.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Smith Hall, the Seminole Club, in front of the library, across from Bryan Hall, in the lobby of Westcott Auditorium and a double poll at the Student Center. Student I.D. cards must be presented before voting. There will be no campaigning within 50 feet of the polls.

Votes will be cast for freshman class officers, senators and precinct senators. Freshmen may vote for freshman officers and senators, as well as precinct senators. Upperclassmen may vote for precinct senators and graduates vote for graduate and precinct senators.

Voting will be done on two IBM ballots. One ballot is for freshman class officers and senators in precinct 1. Ballot two will be used for precincts 2-24. Students must use the special IBM pencils when voting and no ballots should be folded.

"Students are cautioned to pay close attention for the right precinct ballot when casting their vote," said Commissioner of Elections Jon Kaney.

Precincts are numbered on the ballot sheets as follows: precinct 1, Jennie Murphree; 2, Reynolds; 3, Bryan-Broward; 4, Gilchrist; 5, East Landis; 6, West Landis; 7, Florida; 8, Dorman; 9, Magnolia; 10, Cawthon; 11, DeGraff; 12, Smith; 13, Kellum; 14, day students; 15, FSO houses; 16-22 fraternity precincts; 23, Alumni Village; 24, graduate student. All girls living in supervised off campus houses vote in precinct 14.

"This year we have more candidates running in the election than we have had before on the trimester system," reported Kaney. "This indicates heightened interest from people who are willing to serve. I hope that interest on the part of the student body whom these people wish to serve will also be higher than it has been before. I also hope the democratic process will be respected," he concluded.

Partial returns will be announced after 5 p.m. and will be posted in Longmire as soon as possible after 6 p.m. Radio station WTNT will broadcast the election returns.

Housing Bureau To Be Formed

A discussion of a new housing bureau to assist the director of housing opened the President's cabinet meeting yesterday.

This will be a five-man bureau set up to inform Miss Edith McCollum, director of Housing, of students' problems in university housing. The members of the bureau will be chosen from different areas of housing.

President Smith announced that Mr Lindy Martin, president of SUSGA, will be the main speaker for the Student Government Banquet.

The Bond Issue, which is in brief a program to give added financial support to state universities, was explained and discussed. Student Government plans to support this issue and aid it in anyway possible.

Are You Accident Prone? Get Student Insurance

Florida State University's Student Government is offering an Accident and Health insurance program to all full time students and their dependents.

This insurance is being sold in 210 Longmire from 1:00 until 3:00 p.m. today through Friday. Students are covered from Sept. 1, 1963, tunil Sept. 1, 1964, whether you are in Tallahassee or not.

Some of the benefits of the policy include payments of $12.00 per day while in the hospital, $3.00 per doctor's visit, $225.00 surgical schedule, $3.00 per day while in the infirmary, and $120.00 miscellaneour expenses. Coverage is year round and includes trips to and from the university.

Sherman Henderson, undersecretary of student insurance, stated, "It is not necessary for you to be insured by any other company while under this insurance policy." Married students are also eligible for this insurance."

If anyone is unable to buy the insurance during the hours it is being sold, contact Sherman Henderson at the Phi Delta Theta House, ext. 22-49. No insurance policies will be sold after Friday.

TCU Game Date Tickets

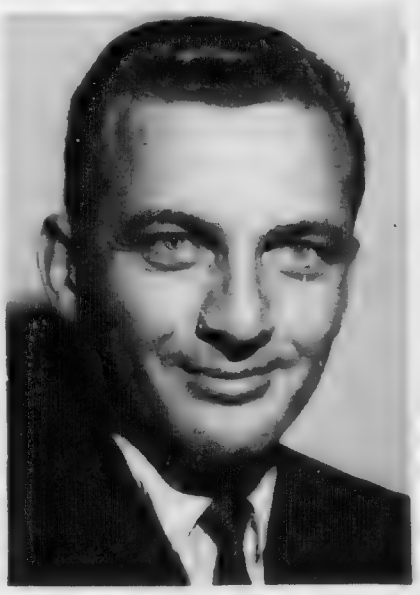
Date tickets for the FSU-TCU football game will go on sale at 9 a.m. Saturday on the east side of Campbeel Stadium, it was announced today.

Price of date tickets is $2. (half price) One of the couple must be an FSU student.

FSU students must show I.D. cards at the gate to be admitted to home football games.

Misuse of an I.D. card constitutes an Honor Court offense, and violators are subject to prosecution.

Fleming Appointed Development Head



Florida State University announced today the appointment of Philip J. Fleming of Bradenton as director development, a job placing him in charge of the university's efforts to obtain private financial support.

In announcing that Fleming has joined the staff FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell said that state universities found it necessary to obtain private support.

"I know of no really great state university which has not developed very considerable private support," Blackwell said, "and where state universities have become active in fund-raising the contributions to private institutions have increased commensurately."

Fleming, 39, is an alumnus of FSU, having received a B.S. degree in public administration in 1950. He was president of the FSU Alumni Association in 1961-62.

Since 1958 he has been general sales manager of the Florida Nitrogen Company. The company's sales increased from $200,000 to more than $5 million a year while he was sales manager.

ID's To Be Distributed

Photo identification cards will be distributed by the Office of the Registrar, to full time students, in the Suwannee Room Wednesday through Friday, September 25-27, according to the following alphabetical sequences:

On Wednesday, A-C, 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; D-F, 12:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m. will be distributed.

On Thursday, G-K, 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; L-O, 12:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m.

On Friday, P-S, 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m." T-Z, 12:30 p.m.-4:30 p.m.

Photo I.D. cards will be released only upon presentation of the Temporary I.D. card obtained at registration. The new cards will be required for admission to the FSU-TCU game on September 28.

Football Tickets

Football tickets for all home games can be obtained just before the game at the stadium box office. Student tickets will only require an ID, date tickets may then be purchased, and adult tickets may be purchased during the week at Tully Gym.

Threat To Freedom

By SAMUEL S. TALBERT

(Reprinted by permission of the Emporia, Kan., "Gazette')

Concern of Sigma Delta Chi about threats to freedom of the press is centered on policies and efforts of government officials and bureaus to withhold information from the public. There is evidence, however, that this is the wrong point of focus. A review of trends during the past 15 years indicates that the public itself might be a better target for concentration.

Apathy, timidity, fear and a desire for popularity on the part of the individual citizen are probably greater threats to freedom of expression than orders and policies issued by bureau officials. In fact, the policies of governmental agencies could well be a reflection of more deep-seated attitudes of the public.

Twelve years ago an intensive survey of editors made by this writer indicated a conviction of the part of editors that practically no responsible citizen was willing to connect his name with controversy, however shound his stand might be.

Nearly every daily newspaper in the United States has a wide open forum column. With exception of large metropolitan newspapers, which are limited by space, editors carry any comment from a reader which does not breach libel laws and is in good taste. Yet forum columns, except in a few communities, are used only by chronic letter-writers and neurotics. The more responsible citizenry of the community -- doctors, lawyers, merchants teachers, and other professional people -- refuse to comment on public affairs even when they are requested to do so. The causes given by editors are that such citizens wish to avoid conflict, they fear some loss of business, or that they do not wish to publicize themselves. The latter objections seems a strange one, since the same individuals often overtly seek publicity in the news columns and certainly cort extensive publicity if a daughter is given a coming out party or is married.

For three years the Department of Journalism at the University of Mississippi has been conducting a freedom of the press essay contest among high school seniors. The essays entered in the contest are revealing and even shocking to a person familiar with the philosophy which inspired the first Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Emphasis in the essays is given to the responsibilities of the press, with no defense of the right to dissent from majority opinion. There is no indication in the essays that the high school seniors recognize that freedom of expression was obtained as the result of struggle and bloodshed and that it might be lost by peoples who take it for granted. In general the tone of the essays reflects drill in the importance of social conformity and the maintenance of institutional order at the sacrifice of individual expression.

Relative to historical trends in law and traditions of the press, four factors seem to be responsible for present attitudes on freedom of the press:

1. A widespread ignorance in the legal profession concerning law of the press and the historical background concerning the development of the law. With the exception of relatively few specialists in larger cities, attorneys are able to provide only vague advice relative to the rights and privileges of the reporter.

2. Gradual extension of criminal libel laws to include larger and more indefinite groups. Since World War II this trend has extended further than during the previous century. Such a trend could eventually lead to restrictive libel laws which would undermine the right of free comment and criticism.

3. A similar tendency by courts to find in favor of the plaintiff in rights of privacy suits. A larger and larger percentage of journalists and public officials seem willing to ignore convenience or a peaceful compromise.

4. The success of the modern American educational system in establishing respect for majority rule, existing authority, the status quo, and group action. Criticism, experimentation, deviations from the norm, and even truth when it is unpleasant, are regarded as anti-social diseases. Not only have our schools created a generation of young fogies, they have also graduated a generation of middle-aged fogies who are now guiding our commercial, professional and governmental activities. And in increasing numbers, they are editing our information media.

The Anglo-American laws effecting freedom of the press were established and always defended by a relatively small part of the citizenry. The guardianship has fallen largely upon the press itself, and if the press begins to abdicate responsibility, there will remain little force to resist any tyrannical restrictive efforts.

Restrictive efforts are likely to increase in the future because of the strength and cohesion of a growing number of special interest groups in business labor, among the professions, and in government who attempt to manage the laws.

In this situation if the citizen, without theleadership of the press, begins to value free expression only when it touches his personal interests, the entire right could disappear from our society.

We might even conclude that the people and the press will have received what they deserved and lost what they were unwilling to make a small sacrifice to safeguard.

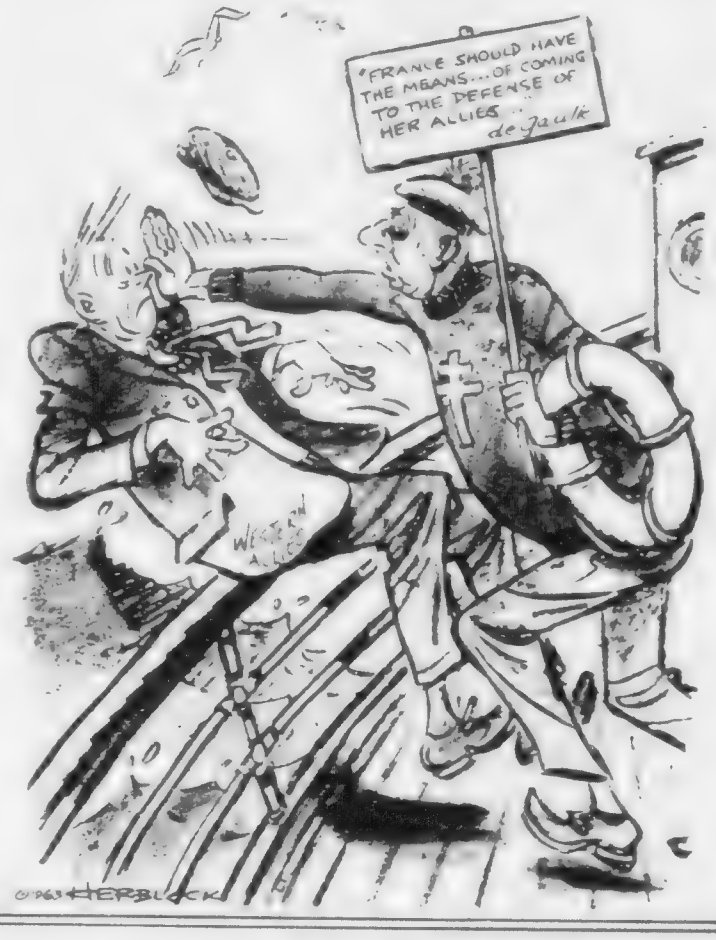
Government Change Meets Need

Surely it is praiseworthy of Mr. Sandy Turner to propose that FSU students think through a "healthy re-examination of the various relationships that exist between the States and the Federal government' of the United States.

Major social, political, and economic changes taking place today are of considerable consequence in determining the nature of these relationships and the general structure of our government. Growth and change in the values, needs, and attitudes of a society such as ours will inevitably affect that society's government. It is important that young men and women seeking a college education in order to be better leaders for their country should understand changing events and their effect upon government.

In this regard, let us take a second look at this matter of "States rights" which was fought out a hundred years ago. People are forever arguing this matter of 'just how much government control?' It seems easier and far more reliable to delegate "these" powers and rights to "this" part of the government and "those" powers and rights to "that" part of the government.

But the problem is not that simple. Certainly the drying of a mill pond in Imaburg, Florida should not require the concern and action of our national lobbyists in Washington. But when human rights get stepped on, even on the local scene, then there most certainly should be a higher power to which people may turn to get the help and justice they deserve.



Such is the case in many [illegible] issues of segregation – integra[illegible] Certainly this whole area of c[illegible] to our nation involves cha[illegible] needs, values, and attitudes [illegible] are subsequently altering our f[illegible] of government. Clarifies Conception Of Equality

It is evident that Ray Berenguer has missed the whole point of my article, " 'EQUALITY' DEMANDS CONFORMITY," but this is understandable if one only looks at the title and then reads the rest of the essay keeping the title in mind.

However, I wish to make clear that the title was not mine and is in itself a distortion. When submitted to the Flambeau for publication the title was simply, "EQUALITY." When published it was as Mr. Berenguer read it.

Berenguer has interpreted what I have said only superficially and somewhat incorrectly. Equality and sameness are two different things, yes, but only in quality. Two men who possess the same, identical material objects, who read the same publications, participate in the same activities and have alike vocations can be said to be equal but a better term would be, "same."

This type of "equality" is quite a bit less dramatic than two other men who possess material objects which are the same in type but different in kind (i.e. each owns a car but one is a Jaguar and one is a Ferrari), who may be well read but having read different literature, who participate in activities, one in the sphere of politics, one in the sphere of sports. Each of these two men are equal in their own uniqueness but are vastly different.

Mr. Berenguer misinterprets some of what I have to say to mean "those who advocate civil rights want sameness, not equality." He is right in that sameness is desired by those advocating civil right. He is not right by saying that I feel they do not want equality. They want the equality that is brought through sameness not that which is brought through individuality as illustrated above.

To clarify my feelings and to somewhat pacify Berenguer I will expand this thought somewhat. I personally think that the sameness which is sought after by the colored is, as Mr. Wade Hitzing says in his article "WE ARE NOT AFRAID," "something that as Americans they should have never had to do; protesting for their natural rights as human beings." These rights they are certainly entitled to and should have had throughout their history.

But my basic premise, that [illegible] misuse the term equality, i[illegible] the same. Equality in popular t[illegible] seems to have somewhat of a[illegible] tical connotation in that it is [illegible] concrete object or something [illegible] can be perceived by the [illegible] senses. Maybe the manifestatio[illegible] of being observed directly.

What is meant by civil rights [illegible] cates, (I being one of ther[illegible] sameness, uniformity or con[illegible] ity. I am sure Berenguer wou[illegible] be dissatisfied if at the end of t[illegible] movement he could say that [illegible] rights of the negro conform

Informal Rush Begins Thursday

Over 500 men and women pledged fraternities and sororities during formal rush.

Out of the 1042 women rushees, 369 have pledged sororities. At this time there are 70 places open in the sororities for new pledges.

Informal rush for new rushees will begin Thursday, September 26. Those who are registered for formal rush do not have to register.

Men's rush shows that out of 475 rushees, 194 have pledged to fraternities. Henry Land, President of the Inter-Fraternity Council, says that he is "very pleased with the results obtained from rush." He states that 41% of the 475 rushees have pledged.

Rush for the men was simplified this year and each fraternity was given the opportunity of greeting a larger majority of rushees than last year. A platoon system was instigated to lessen confusion and simplify the rush activities. The platoon system is similar to Panhellenic's.

Informal rush for the men will last the remainder of the year. New rushees are required to register in room 16 of Longmire.

Today's News Roundup

Flambeau News Services

WASHINGTON--The Senate has refused to attach to the nuclear test ban treaty an understanding that it does not inhibit use by the U.S. of nuclear weapons in armed conflict. The vote was 61-33. Earlier, the Senate rejected, 75 to 17, a proposal by Republican Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona to require Soviet removal of troops and weapons from Cuba in exchange for Senate ratification of the treaty.

MISSISSIPPI--Negro Student Cleve McDoweel has been arrested at the University of Mississippi on a charge of illegally carrying a pistol. Sheriff Joe Ford says he found the gun in the graduate student's inside coat pocket when he picked him up at the Ole Miss Law School. The sheriff says he acted after receiving a complaint that McDowell was armed. The 21-year-old student was jailed and has refused to make any statement.

BIRMINGHAM--Five white civic leaders of Birmingham have talked with President Kennedy at the White House. They asked him to stop racial demonstrations in the city and bring about a peaceful atmosphere so they can try to ease racial tensions on their own. A city councilman, Don Hawkins, said the President did not indicate he had any influence in the matter, but offered to help as much as he could.

WASHINGTON--Defense Secretary McNamara and General Maxwell Taylor have departed by plane on a trouble-shooting mission to South Viet Nam. Before leaving, they conferred for a half hour with President Kennedy. Their job--a thorough one-week study of South Viet Nam's war against Communist Guerrillas, and the big part the U.S. is playing in that struggle.

CARIBBEAN--The Dominican Republic claims Haitian forces have machinegunned the border village of Dajabon. And it's said President Juan Bosch threatens to bomb the palace of Haiti President Duvalier in retaliation. The ultimatum sets down three conditions if Haiti's capital is not to be bombed--an immediate ceasefire, punishment of the guilty, including Duvalier, and reparation for damages.

Gamma Sigma Sigma States Sorority Rush

The FSU probationary chapter of Gamma Sigma Sigma, national service sorority will hold its rush on Oct. 1 and 2 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the large lounge of Longmire.

Women interested in rushing may sign up today through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the lobby of Longmire. There will be two parties the first night from 7 to 7:45 p.m. and 8 to 8:45 p.m. Interested women are requested to sign up for the one most convenient to them. Invitations for the second party may be picked up at Longmire Wed. from 8 a.m. to 12 noon.

Requirements for Gamma Sigma Sigma include the necessity of a 2.0 overall average while carrying 12 academic hours. Freshmen must have had a "C" average in high school.

The officers elected for 1963 were Sharon Starr, president; Bonnie Tapp and Eileen Floyd, vice presidents; Sandy Hoff, recording secretary; Charlotte Soucy, treasurer; Gayla Reed, historian; Ann Straughn, chaplain; Shirley Falck, alumni secretary and Pat Mendes, parliamentarian.

Projects of the sorority for trimester I include ushering at the Campus Movies, co-distribution of Pow Wow with APO, working at the infirmary, working in Student Government office, handing out movie cards at registration, selling tickets for the foreign film club, ushering at Circus, taking needy children to Circus and working with Student activities.

Gamma Sigma Sigma, formerly Circle K-Ettes, became affiliated with the national organization Jan. 15, 1963. The club is currently serving a probation period of not less than one year or more than two.

By attending the National Convention at the University of Maryland June 14-16, and writing letters to all chapters of the organization, the FSU chapter was able to pass an amendment concerning the status of Probationary Chapters.

Previous to this time, the probationary chapter could wear ribbons as their only sign of national recognition. The convention, however, passed an amendment allowing active members of probationary chapters to wear pledge pins or to become National Pledges. The FSU chapter is the first probationary chapter to have this honor. They were also the first probationary chapter in the 11 years of national organization to have a representative at a national convention. Miss Jan Walker attended the convention this summer.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE PEOPLE GONE

... and what's going on in Westcott, ask students who stumble onto the major rennovations now being constructed where the offices of President Gordon W. Blackwell and other administrative officers used to be located.

Work began this summer when the Student Depository was moved from Second floor Westcott to the ground floor of Longmire Bldg. (Photo by Wayne Cowart)

What's Going On?

By SHEILA APPLEBY

Interested in knowing the whereabouts of the administrative offices? Well, to put it simply -- and without ambiguity -- they are scattered from one end of campus to the other until the renovation of the second floor, north wing of Westcott is completed.

The main purpose of this construction is not only to provide more space, but also to have offices of administrative personnel who work closely with the president nearby. Previously these offices were at opposite ends of the building.

Under the present plan there will be a central reception area with the offices surrounding it and therefore, the main hall itself will terminate with the reception room.

Administrative offices destined for new rooms are the ones of President Gordon W. Blackwell; Vice President John Champion; Dean of the Faculties; Assistant Dean of Faculties; University Relations; Director of Development (a newly created position whose main function is to solicit donations for the school. This position is employed more by private colleges.) The office of the Director of Development is temporarily in the TV room on the first floor of Longmire. Other temporary changes account for the President's and Vice President's office in the School of Business.

The Dean of Faculties' old office will be taken by the Business Manager and the Institutional Research and Service will be in University Relations' old room. The Campus Western Union is now located in Room 20 of the Student Alumni Bldg.

Thoroughly confused? Consider all the moving the administrative officials must do!

The information desk in Westcott is permanently closed -- not moved-- so if you have difficulty in locating the offices now, the sane thing to do is wait until "all is well" and the administration of FSU is back in Westcott once again.

To Park Or Not To Park

By MARCI ROBBINS

Students who hoof it all over campus have a lot of useless envy for those few fortunates who either own or have access to cars.

These characters don't know the half of it. For one thing, undergraduates aren't allowed to drive on campus between the hours of 8 and 5 on class days. Even if they could chances are they'd have to walk further from their parking places than if they'd walked in the first place.

As of Wednesday noon, thre were 2,550 campus permits issued to undergraduates, 1,200 to graduates, 47 to handicapped students, 1,566 to staff personnel, and 1,598 to members of the faculty.

Dorman is the only dormitory on campus which had parking facilities in mind when it was built. However, there are parking facilities in the vicinity of all the dorms. Kellum and Smith have facilities surrounding them; while Florida and Magnolia have a parking lot located between them, which Landis uses as well.

Another parking lot is located next to Cawthon (across from the library); a parking lot is directly across from Broward for poor lost students from Landis (who couldn't make it into Magnolia's parking lot), besides all the parking spaces along sides of streets, cowpaths and the like.

From Woodward east to Copeland St. there are approximately 1,200 spaces for cars, and 65 scooter spaces. West from Woodward there are 25 scooter spaces, and from Woodward to Copeland, there are 391 "congested" faculty spaces, 56 tormented staff spaces, leaving 616 unrestricted spaces for the students to scramble to (grads, that is) during specified hours.

Parking spaces marked particularly for the handicapped, have been reduced to eight. These students, like members of Student Government have access to any parking place on campus.

Visitors frequenting the campus may use any parking place. If ticketed, they may come to the office of the police and security department (located in Westcott), or write a short note of explanation (with the ticket enclosed), and all will be forgotten. This is, of course, if no FSU rule has been broken.

Good luck and happy hunting to all you poor people with cars. If bad fortune befalls your car while it is parked, try to understand that this is only one more of the minor blessings bestowed upon a growing campus such as FSU.

Water Music . . . Sweet

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

If Ottorino Respighi were alive today and a member of the FSU School of Music faculty, I am sure that he might someday, while hopping from one dry spot to another, be inspired to compose a tone-poem and it is just as likely that he would title this tone-poem "The Pains and or Fountains of FSU."

It would be dedicated (of course) to those tireless individuals who have been trying for years to breed new sidewalks by constantly watering the old ones.

I mean, you've got to open up your mind for a minute and imagine what a genius such as Respighi could do with material such as is available on FSU's campus.

Ah yes, It's almost possible to hear the opening section now. It could possibly be titled, "Warm Water Fountains of Westcott at Mid-Day." That would be followed by a particularly universal passage marked "Water Sprinklers, Campus Wide, 12:40 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday." This section would be played with a water sprinkler on stage and the orchestra would perform while trying to keep out of this monster's watery reach.

Respighi (naturally) would polish off his musical gem (pun) with an immensely moving passage: "Westcott Fountain at Dusk." This closing section is opened by the majestic brass section crying over the constant booming of the timpanis as the entire orchestra builds slowly to a musical climax. (This is just the opening.)

The real impression of Westcott Fountain would come in the last measure when the orchestra members would lay down their instruments, and sticking their tongues out, would produce the very unmusical sould of "phfffgh."

But--oh well, all this is daydreaming. We definitely don't have Respighi so FSU will just have to until one of our campus posers" recognizes the ins which lies all hallowed walks.

standards of rights as set by and given to all Americans.

When those who lead the civil rights movement speak or write of equality they should make the distinction plain that they want that type of equality which is brought through acquiring the same rights as the whites and not the equality of individuality. This they already have for their unique individuality is that they are part of and yet separated (through prejudice and bigotry) from a whole which at least pays lip service to the inalienable right of man.

Before Mr. Berenguer can point it up, I wish to say that this difference imposed by prejudice is not the only facet of the negro individuality. In the abstract, the loss of individual differences implies neither good nor bad.

If the negro does not make the distinction between equality and sameness, but only tries to emulate the white man he may lose many of his individual differences which have contributed to the growth of American culture. An example would be the negro folk music or gospel singing.

Mr. Berenguer goes on to make the absurd statement that ". . .things cannot be equal and different at the same time. . ." To illustrate his incorrect assumption merely think of a magnet with one end having a north pole and the other having a south pole.

Surely the strength of these two poles may be equal but they will at the same time be opposite or, if you like, different.

Berenguer infers that I am under the ". . .happy illusion that one can have separate but equal facilities for the colored and white." This inference would be justified had I not said later in my article that "I do not feel that the colored man should be denied an education in a white school. . ."

Also, had Mr. Berenguer read more carefully he would have seen that my using the fact that the colored wants to go to the same schools as the white and asks not to improve his own facilities is but an illustration pointing up the misuse of the word equality. I said nothing of whether or not they were justified in asking for this same right to education.

By my concept of individuality I did not mean to imply ". . .the maintenance of odious differences between people," rather those individualities which make for variety, productivity and self satisfaction.

Freshmen Eye Florida Opener

It's a good thing that Florida State's Baby Seminoles don't open their 1963 season until October 5th in a home game with the Florida freshmen. Coach Ken MacLean reported this week that he is still having difficulty selecting a first team.

"We hope to name a starting unit some time next week," MacLean said. "Right now, there's not much difference in our first two teams."

MacLean still sees an all-out dogfight for the starting backfield positions.

"Kim Hammond of Melbourne and Jim Perry of Logan, W.V., are leading the field at quarterback at this point," he said, adding that "we can't see a shade of difference in them now."

Formerly coach at Tallahassee's Florida High, MacLean said that each of the first four frosh backfields could displace any of the others on a given day.

"We could use some reserve strength in the line, however," he said.

One major personnel shift, that of former fullback Paul Williams to a first team berth at left end, has been a pleasing one for MacLean and his staff.

Williams, a solid-blocking 205-pounder from Hollywood's South Broward High, caught a touchdown pass in a scrimmage with the varsity at the close of the second week of practice.

The Frosh three-deep scheme through September 11:

Right Guard-Tom Yates, 214, Atlanta, Ga. Murphy; Bill Betts, 223 Birmingham, Ala. Jones Valley; Bill Sizemore, 230, Daytona Beach Seabreeze.

Right Tackle-Charlie Pennie, 222, Hollywood South Broward; Bob Patterson, 216, Tampa Hillsborough; Scott McCord, 218, Atlanta, Ga. Marist Prep.

Frosh Quarterback Jim Perry took the part of George Mira in scrimmages with the varsity.

New Coaches Take Over

(UPI)

Another big batch of coaches lost their seats for 1963 in college football's annual game of musical chairs.

At Notre Dame, at Stanford, at Tennessee and at 91 others affiliated with the NCAA there'll be new coaches on the scene this fall as a result of firings, resignations and retirements.

That's 10 more than last year but about average for a hazardous profession in which "building character' is important but not quite as vital as a winning season. Thirty-seven of the new jobholders are rookies on their first head-coaching assignments.

Hughie Devore of Notre Dame, John Ralston of Stanford, Jim McDonald of Tennessee, Eddie Crowde of Colorado, Phil Cutchin of Oklahoma State Jack Green of Vanderbilt and Johnny Pot of Yale head the list of coaches who wound up seated when the music stopped.

The lucky ones also included men in a wide assortment of jobs from Charles Marvin at Adrian, Mich., College through the alphabet to Wilmington, Ohio, College where Don Pinhey has taken over.

Dayton, Toledo and Miami, Ohio, all came up with new coaches. So did Hardin-Simmons, Lafayette, Utah State and Texas Western for a total of 14 among the major group.

Devore, soft-spoken veteran of several college and pro chores, took over for the second time as an interim coach at Notre Dame when Joe Kuharich stepped down after four seasons to join the National Football League as superviser of officials. Hughie was interim Irish coach in 1945 while Frank Leahy was in the Navy. He won't seek the permanent post this time either but will "take it if it's offered at the end of the year."

Ralston replaced Jack Curtice, long time mentor at Stanford. Highly successful at Utah State, Ralston moved in after Jack posted a 5-5 record in 1962. Tony Knapp took over at Utah State and Curtice moved down to the Santa Barbara branch of the University of California.

Bowden Wyatt went out at Tennessee and was replaced suddenly by McDonald, an assistant. Crowder came in to lend a more experienced touch to the situation at Colorado where William E. Davis was the emergency coach last season. Cutchin replaced Cliff Speegle who had a 4-6 record at Oklahoma State last year.

Collegiates Still Not Off The Hook?

Commenting on the conclusion of the Wally Butts trial this summer, Sports Illustrated says that the verdict must not be viewed as a "vindication" of the sport of college football. The magazine suggests that "the whole pattern of the sport cries out for preventive action."

Sports Illustrated points out that since the accusations against Butts were not directed at the sport in general, the current feeling of relief over the verdict in many quarters is not realistic.

"Conditions remain as before," the magazine says. "The sport is a multi-million-dollar business and a subject of absorbing interest to vast numbers of bookmakers and heavy gamblers. Money of this magnitude makes for greed, and greed often makes for crooked dealing. Yet the colleges have done precious little to protect themselves against scandal. Their recuiting practices have, in fact, stretched the moral principles of amateur sport beyond recognition. And it was shocking to learn that the major effort of the Southeastern Conference to investigate the Butts-Bryant allegations was to assign a man to attend the trial.

FSU Marching Chiefs Defeather Miami Mascott

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

ttle did the FSU Marching Chiefs know as they ar-ed unheralded in Miami last Friday that they would ome so well known as to receive a police escort on ir way out Sunday.

did everything else, the wheels ate started turning at the game Friday night. When the FSU took the field at half-time the inole team was mauling the mi Hurricanes and the March-Chiefs were determined to do same thing to Miami's "Band of Hour.' Evidently all this hum-tion in one night was just too for the Miami mascot, the s,' and he decided to take mat-into his own hands.

the uninformed, the Miami is a student dressed up to look like a seagull, but looks more like a deranged canary. This personification of Miami's school spirit took to the field at the height of the Marching Chiefs' program, which was the presentation of a bullfight.

The band was something less than happy over this addition to the group, and mental notes were made to inform the "bird" about uninvited personnel. During the rest of the game ominous cries of "We want the bird" could be heard coming from the FSU side of the stands.

That night and the next day plans were made and all preperations were carried out. By 9:30 Saturday night everything was ready. The "Miami Dirty Bird" had been informed that a sports writer wished to do an article on the Miami cheerleaders and mascot and wanted to take some pictures.

The picture appointment was set for between 9:30 and 10:30 at the Fontainbleu Hotel. What happened after that could have come straight out of a grade B cloack and dagger movie. To the passerby the Fontainbleu seemed normal enough for a Saturday night.

Even the doorman was unaware that 90 to 100 Marching Chiefs lurked in the shadows, behind bushes, across the street and even masqueraded as pedestrians strolling down the sidewalk. On the steps stood one band member impersonating a sports writer, complete with suit and camera.

At 10:15 the "Ibis" arrived and was greeted by the band's "Sports writer" who suggested that he change into his seagull costume for pictures outside in front of the fountain, where water cascaded down several levels into the main pool at the bottom.

When the now costumed mascot arrived at the pool so did the group of Marching Chiefs who had been

Chalmers Opens Lecture Series

The Last Lecture Series opens tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall with Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers, Jr. speaking on "Behavioral Determinism."

Chalmers, a psychologist, is the assistant dean of faculties. His topic, "Behavioral Determinism," is the theory that all behavior is determined by prior genetic and environmental events. He states, "Behavioral determinism is a point of view, a philosophy, and by some criteria, a religion."

Since receiving three degrees from Princeton University Chalmers has served as an instructor in that university, as a research psychologyist and as a task scientist for the US Air Force. He joined the FSU faculty as assistant professor of psychology in 1957 and was appointed assistant dean of faculties last year.

The Last Lecture Series, sponsored by Mortar Board, an honorary for women students, features talks by faculty members of the kind they would give to a class if it were their last lecture.

Other lecturers for the series will be Dr. Stephen Winters, associate professor of geology; Dr. Allan Thomson, assistant professor of English, and Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, professor of modern langues and Distinguished Professor of the Year.

Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers looks over the notes for his lecture tonight as he opens the Last Lecture Series with "Behavioral Determinism."

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

International House

Despite FSU's continuous record of improvement in programs for the adjustment of international students to their new way of life, the immediate need for an International Student House has been unfortunately neglected.

During the summer, Student Body President Johnny Smith outlined several plans for making international students "feel more at home." He indicated at that time that an international house was just an idea, and we have seen no recent developments to move the house from the idea stage to the planning stage at any time in the near future.

International students have themselves suggested such a facility, where they could form close relationships with American students and students from other nations. They have pointed out that student bodies at other universities have accepted enthusiastically their International Houses, recognizing the tremendous educational and cultural advantages of personal contact between individuals of different nations.

The lack of specified housing near campus sometimes increases the problems which international students face in a new country. At present, they are strewn throughout Alumni Village and Tallahassee, outside the normal social life of the university. They experience transportation difficulties, and have very little contact with American students after class.

Most regrettable of all is the loss of educational experience to both International and American students. Since a part of their education in this country is gained by participation in our cultural and social activities, to know Americans as they really are, it seems particularly shameful to isolate them in their living conditions.

The American students, many of whom may never visit another country, also are losing a valuable opportunity to know their counterparts from many nations. International students have the cultural and social backgrounds of centuries to contribute in their personal relations with Americans.

No matter how many conscientious efforts are made to ease their adjustment problems, there can be only limited understanding between international and American students until an International House provides them the opportunity to share everyday living activities.

Election Of Goldwater Spells Trouble

It appears that the same people who voted for Nixon are already voting for Goldwater. People have and are giving their wright to these two men not because of the men's respective merits but only as a protest against Kennedy.

In 1960, the first of these two situations, most every Nixon man had a bad word for KENNEDY. Most every Kennedy man had a good word for Kennedy. Nixon didn't even enter the race on his own merits. This is, of course, disregarding Eisenhower's grandfather image peering over Nixon's shoulder.

The thing that is bad in this newer of the two situations is that the loud minority group of Goldwater followers is trying to launch us on a completely new and untried course of policy, an act of national suicide highlighted by the features of the policy itself.

Nixon's policy would have only been a continuation of Eisenhower's "brinksmanship" policy. Mr. Goldwater wants us to withdraw from the world in all capacities except that of "all powerful military watchdog against the dirty Commies."

Mr. Goldwater would have us stop foreign aid from all countries, even those now just barely creeping above the level of substandard living and just now getting their balance in government. Goldwater would have us withdraw from the U.N., taking with us our political weight and acumen, and leave the Africo-Asian nations at the mercy of Communist advances in a world of foggy diplomatic relations. Sure, I don't trust the Communists either, but we have to be civilized if we expect them to be.

Goldwater would have us removed from the higher level of diplomacy (with its necessarily concomitant good and bad fortunes) and placed solely on the lower level of war (there is only one fortune in war), shivering with self righteousness as we rattle our useless H-bombs at such obscure things [illegible] Communist Party or [illegible] economic move against grain-producing Thailand.

We should, to the contrary, preserve the first of these two evils by all means short of retreat appeasement. This sounds [illegible] too easy to say.

The town where my [illegible] was born is a little Black [illegible] town near Munich, Germany, quite a pretty little [illegible] thing known in the region [illegible] unter der Eichelberg. [illegible] tion of 1,300 farmers in 1914 [illegible] 200 were killed on Russian [illegible] fields in World War [illegible] immediately shocking [illegible] er lady mentions in her [illegible] that her 18-year-old boy [illegible] one of many local boys [illegible] "unbekannt in Russland" (unknown in Russia) during Hitler's disastrous winter retreat from Moscow in 1943. I would prefer not to [illegible] at my age of being dead for [illegible] three years already.

It is for these reasons that Americans should find out what Goldwater's "solutions" are and [illegible] weigh in their minds [illegible] come of such a course would be.

It's time that we discredit happenings at Yalta (as seen in our 20-20 hindsight) and foreign [illegible] all in one mad mess. The American people need to realize that they no longer play with other lives but with their own now.

Young Democrats Speak Out

To the Editor:

In an organizational meeting of the Young Democrats of FSU held on September 19, the following resolution was presented and passed:

Whereas FSU now has an enrollment of more than 11,000 students and

Whereas certain establishments on the fringe areas of the FSU campus derive their main income from patronage by FSU students, and

Whereas we feel that these establishments will maintain the same volume of business they now enjoy by opening their doors to all FSU students;

Be it therefore resolved that those facilities should be made available to all FSU students.

New Spirit For FSU

To the Editor:

NEVER. Never, never, never, never have I been as proud of this school as I was Friday night and Saturday afternoon. Who says FSU doesn't have spirit?

Okay. Who? Surely not anyone who was trying to sleep between the end of the first quarter of the Miami game and 1:30 Saturday morning; I mean, who really CARED about sleeping with all of the excitement going on? Horns blatting and boys bellowing have never sounded so good before. For the first time in four years, it seemed to me that students of FSU really cared out loud about something.

Who else says "no spirit"? NOBODY who was present at the Tallahassee Airport at 1:15 Saturday afternoon. I don't know what the official count was, but it seemed like literally thousands of students and Tallahassee residents were standing by to greet the home-bound team. And, as if that display of enthusiasm weren't enough, there were numerous sings, the Old Reliable Cannon, and even a red "carpet" on hand to add color and additional evidence of the pride shared by everyone there. AND, ALSO, IN ADDITION TO, I must say: for once, FSU students were just that—no fraternity gave a fraternity yell, people didn't split up into cliques—if you were there, you were just another proud FSU student or FSU friend. Such unity I have never seen before at this school. And a final note: no one was rowdy; everyone cooperated with the officials, the boys were complete gentlemen (unlike certain male students at another Florida university south of here).

One word to those who are in the habit of poo-pahing college football and the to-do thereof: you can sit around and be negative until the day you're buried and feel very smug about it. And you can talk of This Generation and Apathy and Irresoluteness. But this school got EXCITED about something. REALLY excited and in a big way. No apathy here. Doesn't it follow that un-apathy (to coin a phrase) spreads just like apathy? Let's call it Enthusiasm—all right, football foes—enthusiasm, once born, can be generated from football to concerts to Zoology to dorm teas to Lecture Series to almost anywhere. We have it—let's keep it—and let it escape... NEVER.

Where Is Great University?

To the Editor:

FSU is not a great university. FSU caters to any two-bit politician who has his fingers in an appropriations bill. FSU cringes at the thought of displeasing the administration or BOC. For fear of public condemnation, FSU restricts individual expression and denies the individual the right to practice what he believes to be true.

FSU quivers lest it acquire a bad name which at this point seems to by synonymous with honesty and forthrightness. FSU carefully screens all speakers lest they say something which would not concur with the local attitudes and prejudices. In short, FSU seems only eager to sacrifice the most sacred principle of a university so long as it does not displease those who control the purse strings.

Matters of principle as well as moral and ethical values have been superceded by materialistic concerns. This lack of academic freedom is disgraceful and inexcusable in a university.

Ironically enough, this policy can only bring FSU a reputation for notoriety, not greatness.

A great university cannot exist where there is a lack of moral fiber and courage. Nor can if flourish where there is intellectual cowardice or methods, subtle or overt, used to coerce persons from expressing and expounding on their beliefs.

FSU is not a great university, nor under present policies will it ever be.

Birchers Veto Test Treaty

I recently came across the official public statement of the [illegible] Society stating their position [illegible] Test Ban Treaty. In it, they [illegible] out some very interesting and [illegible] points; some points which I [illegible] our senators should consider before they vote.

The statement said: "[illegible] Birch Society takes the [illegible] it is both immoral and stupid [illegible] ter into any treaty with [illegible] who have no respect [illegible]

"The Communists say [illegible] mises, like pie crusts, [illegible] be broken; that they enter [illegible] ties only for the advantage [illegible] selves, and with no exp[illegible] abiding by such treaties. [illegible] have proven by their act[illegible] olating dozens of solemn [illegible] before the ink was hardly dry [illegible] they are just as unscrupulous [illegible] they claim to be.

"Amid the infinite confusion [illegible] us today, the only safe guide is [illegible] moral standard. The important question about any proposed action by man or by a nation, is [illegible] smart?' but 'Is it right?' [illegible] into the Test-Ban Treaty [illegible] murderers is morally wrong. [illegible] that very reason it is assuredly unwise."

Furthermore, as Doctor Teller (father of the H-[illegible] others have pointed out, we are playing with danger when [illegible] Soviet Russia another period of relaxation in which to gain the advantage. American policy makers have repeatedly told us that [illegible] does need a period of relaxations. They believe the Khrushchev wants a test ban pact because their ideological differences with Red China, their strained economic conditions caused by their military budget, and their people are clamoring for consumer goods.

There are other reasons also, but they all emanate from selfish interests. One thing for sure they do not have the welfare of the U.S. or the free world in mind.

Anthropologist Joins Faculty

Dr. Dorothy Libby, foremost scholar in the West on Paleo-Siberian culture, has recently joined the Department of Anthropology and Archaeology. In addition to pursuing her principle field of interest, the cultures of native peoples in the northern latitudes, she will continue as associate editor of the journal "Ethnohistory."

Her work is not bound by geographical limits. She has studied the Eskimos and Athabaskans in Alaska and Canada; natives of the north of Asia, especially those of Siberia; and American Indians of the Middle West. Because of her knowledge of American Indians she will appear late this month before a government claims commission as an expert witness.

Next August, Dr. Libby will go to Moscow for the International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences. There she will meet with Russian scientists and is scheduled to read a paper on "Sir John Franklin and Northern Ethnography."

"Soviet Russian scholars," she said, "have built up a formidable body of knowledge in recent years about the primitive people of Siberia."

To take advantage of this Dr. Libby has learned Russian and much of her research in recent years has been in this language. One of her primary interests is the similiarities between the northern peoples of Asia and America. They are very much alike in their habitations, clothing, hunting techniques, myths and legends.

A native of Hawii, Dr. Libby studied at Berkeley where she received her Ph.D. in 1952. She has done field work in California and in the Yukon. From 1952 to 1955 she served as a research analyst for the Central Intelligence Agency at Washington. After this she did research on Northern Asian cultures in the Library of Congress and the British Museum.

From 1957 until joining the FSU faculty, Dr. Libby was a research associate for the Great Lakes-Ohio Valley Research Project at Indiana University. She has published extensively in academic journals.

Dolsen Returns After Management Congress

Dr. Dolsen participated in a symposium session on "The Conceptual and Institutional Foundation of Business."

Save 3½¢. Buy a Volkswagen.

We save you that on every mile.

Most trucks cost about 6c a mile to run. Ours [illegible]s for 2½c.

You put the difference in your pocket.

Owners who do 24,000 miles a year say the VW only takes $300 worth of gas.

Against $600 for their former truck.

Tires last about 35,000 miles where most trucks only get 20,000.

You save another $100 there.

Parts? A rear corner panel costs $22.15.* The same panel on a similar truck would run about $70.00.

A difference of $47.85.

Even our new engine saves you money. It's 25% more powerful than last year's, yet it burns about the same gas.

(You should get 20 mpg on regular or better.)

Surprisingly, the 2½c-a-mile Volkswagen only costs $2026.63 in the first place.

So you're a few hundred ahead before you drive an inch.

Religion In Life Lectures Feature 'Sex In Context'

The Presbyterian campus pastor of the University of North Carolina, the Rev. Harry E. Smith, will be FSU Religion - In - Life series speaker next Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. "Sex in Context' is the topic on which Rev. Smith will deliver three lectures on the campus. Two of the lectures will be at night and the public is especially invited to these, according to university chaplain, Dr. Paul M. Minus, Jr.

Minus said the lecture on Monday night, Sept. 30, will be on "Being Male and Female in American Culture," and the one the following night will be on "Sex and Selfhood on the Campus.' Both will be at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

In addition the lecturer will address a campus group of students, professors and staff at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 1 in the Library Lecture Hall. His topic will be "The Religious Perspective on Sex."

A former national chairman of student YMCA, Smith was elected a Kent Fellow of the National Council of Religion in Higher Education in 1960. He was a Drew Fellow for 1960-61 and was awarded a Danforth Campus Christain Worker Fellowship for 1961-62.

He has had articles published in "Intercollegian," "Motive.' "The Student World," "The Christian Scholar," "Presbyterian Survey" "Encounter" "Frontiers' and in "A Basis for Study," Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, Philadelphia.

From 1951-52 he served as youth director of Old Stone Congregational East Haven, Conn. He has also been acting associate secretary for the United Student Christain Council, graduate secretary of the Yale University Christian Association, New Haven; and assistant to the director of field work of Drew Theological School, Madison, N.J.

Smith is a graduate of the University of Texas and holds the Bachelor of Divinity degree from Yale University Divinity School.

waiting at previously mentioned points. At this point the sportswriter completely demoralized the "Ibis', "We're the Marching Chiefs." The poor bird, having no place to go, stepped backwards, into the fountain. Meanwhile a companion of the Miami mascot had left the Chiefs and was screaming at an uncomprehending doorman to call the police.

The Chiefs at this point made an orderly exodus, as is their tradition, leaving the University of Miami's mascot perched precariously upon the Fontainbleu Fountain minus a tailfeather and his pride. Thus ended the epic of the Ibis and so everyone thought the excitement of the weekend.

However, the four buses that were carrying the Chiefs had not even gotten out of Miami when one of the buses developed mechanical trouble and it was found that it would have to be replaced. As the fates would have it, the bus had broken down in front of a drive-in thater which just happened to have a marquee out front. In less than 30 minutes the marquee had been enveloped by Marching Chiefs, who immediately replaced the existing movie ad with 'FSU one time.'

Unfortunately the owner of the theater arrived before the new bus did and he unpatriotically demanded that the band take down their message to the world and replace his advertisement. The Marching Chiefs were glad to oblige, but for some reason they couldn't seem to get the letters right side up and in the proper order. The owner meanwhile had disappeared and after a few minutes the band was greeted by the Miami police.

The police were greeted by wild cheers and were soon surrounded by 120 band members who were chanting "Freedom" and singingu "We shall overcome." The owner of the drive-in was trying valiantly to tell the police what the FSU band had done, but by the time he could get through to the police his marquee had been restored.

The police went through the routine procedures and made out a report which somehow wound up in someone's economics notebook.

University System To Be Discussed

Baya M. Harrison, Jr., of St. Petersburg, chairman of the Board of Control, will speak to the Florida State University chapter of the American Association of University Professors at 8 p.m. tonight in the Strozier Library Lecture Hall.

Harrison has been asked to speak on the Board of Control's plans for the university system. Richard Fallon, president of the chapter, said the talk is open to faculty and staff. There will be no business meeting and a reception will be held in the Lectur Hall following the address.

The result was the revolution, or evolution, of campus wear that we know today. Casual clothing became firmly favored for campus activities--and clearly will remain so."

For dates and other social events at college, however, a new man appears, according to a recent survey. He may still wear slacks, but with these is a sports jacket. If not this, he'll be in a business suit, usually with a vest.

Loafers will give way to cordovan or black wing-tip shoes (the white buck shoes are now provincial), depending on the clothing worn.

The sports shirt is replaced, in most instances, by a white oxford button-down, worn with a regimental stripe, knitted solid or small repeat pattern tie. Socks are coordinated with the tie, and most students' wardrobes run the gamut from argyles to solids.

The survey also shows a different pattern of dress between men studying in or near large cities and those in the hinterlands. The latter tend to prefer the more casual type throughout--meaning that while they spend as much for their clothing, sports jackets and slacks are preferred to suits.

As one fashion expert states, "Students today may dress differently from their dads, but the bills amount to the same."

FSU Gallery Opens First Art Exhibit

An exhibition of 32 paintings by contemporary artists opened Monday night at the FSU Gallery.

The paintings are representative of the new trends, according to Charles S. McGee, new curator of the Gallery. Most of the canvases in the exhibition are large. They range from a color-geometric painting and several large and brilliantly colored hard-edge canvases to other styles.

The Gallery will be open to the public between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. today through Friday. Saturday and Sunday hours have not as yet been set, McGee said.

Selected from the 1963 Corcoran Biennial, the exhibition is touring museums and university art galleries throughout the U.S. under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts. The works include both invited and juried entries chosen for circulation from the 146 works shown in Washington.

Artists throughout the U.S. submitted 4000 entries in the Biennial, in the form of color slides of their paintings.

McGee, a native of St. Louis, served for three years as industrial adviser with the U.S. State Dept. in Ecuador, S.A., under the Foreign Aid Program before joining the FSU faculty this year.

Bartlett Opens Smoker Series

Dr. Richard A. Bartlett, associate professor of history, will lead the discussion at Kellum Hall's first Smoker Series of the year at 8 p.m. in the Kellum Lounge.

Dr. Bartlett, a noted scholar of the history of the American West, will present an informal program on the topic of the American West and its development.

The Smoker Series, an informal student-facutly discussion period, is open to all students interested in the topic discussed. The Series is sponsored by the dorm government of Kellum Hall.

Richard Collins In Next Faculty Music Recital

Richard Collins, baritone, will be presented by the School of Music in a faculty recital Friday, Sept. 27, with Sophia Melvin, pianist, Ralph Andrews, flutist and Harry Dunscombe, cellist.

Part of the faculty recital series, the program is free and open to the public. It will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. Mrs. Melvin will also be accompanist for the solo numbers by Collins.

Opening the program will be Bach's "Merke mein Herze" and Purcell's "We Sing to Him," by Collins, Andrews and Dunscombe.

Collins, director of opera for the newly formed State Opera Association, has sung leading roles in opera with Punch Opera, Mobile Opera Association and Birmingham Civic Opera Association.

Mrs. Melvin, wife of Dr. M.A. Melvin, professor of theoretical physics, is a graduate student in piano at Cadek Conservatory, Chattanooga, Tenn., and holds the bachelor of music degree from the University of Chattanooga and a master's degree from FSU.

Dr. Dunscombe has concertized on tours in Brazil (1960), and through the United States, (1961-63). He served as musical director of the Alumni Players of Grand Rapids, Mich., prior to joining the FSU music faculty in June of this year.

Student Nurses Association Holds Discussion Tonight

The Student Nurses Association of FSU will have their frst meeting tonight in Longmire Lounge at 7 p.m.

A panel discussion to orient the new students to the activities and courses they will participate in during their years as student nurses will highlight the opening meeting.

Future meetings will be involved with opportunities in the nursing field available upon graduation. Speakers will be heard from the armed forces, other countries, special hospitals and in special fields of medicine.

During the coming year, the SNA has planned a varied program which aims both to broaden the student's knowledge on nursing as well as create a unity of those working together. It also plans to do this with programs and social functions throughout the coming year.

Miss Kay Gluesenkamp, president of the SNA, said, "The Student Nurse Association would like to extend an invitation to freshmen and new students to attend the first meeting and become acquainted with their fellow students and the nursing program."

Also, at this time, plans will be made for the Reservation Party to be held October 25 and 26.

Gluesenkamp commented that "The School of Nursing at FSU has as its goal to creat a good nurse and an effective citizen."

The SNA hopes throught the participation in its program that the ideals of student nursing will become a reality and will be carried over into the lives of students when they become professional nurses.

Guest Lecturers Will Be Ciardi, Wadsworth, Drury

A Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist, a statesman, and a poet are to appear in the Florida State University Lecture Series for 1963-64.

Lecture Series Committee Chairman Dr. A. Gib DeBusk said today that novelist Allen Drury, former US ambassador to the United Nations James J. Wadsworth, and poet John Ciardi will be on the program.

Aldous Huxley, one of the most widely read and discussed novelists of the century, was scheduled as a speaker for Thursday, October 17, but will be unable to appear because of illness. Dr. DeBusk said the date will be filled and the speaker announced later.

Allen Drury, to appear in Opperman Music Hall on Nov. 25, wrote the highly successful political novel "Advise and Consent," followed by "A Shade of Difference," "Capable of Honor" and "Preserve and Protect."

Wadsworth's lecture will honor the December FSU graduates on Dec. 4 in Westcott Auditorium.

Poet Ciardi is known also as a teacher, editor, lecturer and translator. He hosts a CBS TV network weekly show and is widely known as a columnist in Saturday Review. He is scheduled for May 6, 1964, in Westcott Auditorium.

Tensi Makes National News

--A couple of names from nowhere boomed to national prominence last weekend when Florida State's Seminoles pulled off a modern day uprising by trouncing the University of Miami, 24-0, before 57,596 people in the Orange Bowl Friday night.

The two who had the FSU following on its feet throughout were quarterback Steve Tensi and flanker Fred Biletnikoff, a passing combination which promises to be one of the nation's best this season.

Steve Tensi

As an unheralded sophomore last year, Tensi completed 60 of 121 passes for 796 yards and had only two intercepted. Friday night the nation's largest quarterback -- he's 6-5, 200 -- drilled Miami's defense 13 out of 20 times for 149 yards and two touchdowns. He had 11 for 14 and both touchdowns in the first half.

Florida State Coach Bill Peterson says bluntly: "Steve Tensi has the strongest passing arm in the country."

Biletnikoff, as graceful as they come on a football field, hauled in three touchdown passes -- the two from Tensi and one from Miami's All-American quarterback George Mira. The Florida State speedster intercepted a Mira pass on the FSU one-yard line and sprinted 99 yards for the third Seminole touchdown.

In all, Biletnikoff caught four passes for 71 yards to lead the rout of what had been called "Miami's Dream Team."

Although this pair has leaped suddenly on the national scene, warning signs were displayed last year when both were sophomores.

Tensi, a former high school star for Elder High School of Cincinnati, Ohio turned down 70 college scholarships to come to Florida State. In his first varsity game he completed seven out of 108 yards and three touchdowns against the Citadel. FSU won it, 49-0.

Biletnikoff, a nifty 6-1, 186 pound native of Erie, Pa., didn't come into the picture until later. A broken ankle kept him sidelined until the seventh game of the season, and that against Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

"The Bullet," as he's called by FSU players and coaches entered the game for a spot play -- a Tensi pass covering 63 yards for a touchdown which gave Florida State an upset tie with the Yellow Jackets, 14-14.

Tribe Buckles Down For Horned Frogs

"We were very good when we beat Miami, but we're going to have to be great to beat TCU" were the comments of Coach Bill Peterson at the first team practice after Seminoles' opening game victory over the Hurricanes. "I'm very proud of Tensi, Biletnikoff, and Cainoun, as well as the entire squad. They really put out a tremendous effort and it really paid off.'

When asked if the team considered itself "cocky" after their upset win, the coach returned with ,"No, these are men. and they know what they're doing." The Seminoles looked as if they had just knocked off USC from the way they were butting heads in practice. Their enthusiasm appeared "boundless," and the team spirit obviously ran high, and rightfully so.

When asked who contributed most to the FSU win, Coach Peterson said, "Without a doubt, the coaches had as much to do with our winning as the players themselves did. I would like to put special emphasis on our offensive and defensive line, end, and backfield coaches. They did an excellent job and it paid off with a very important win."

In expectation of Saturday's contest against Texas Christian University, Coach Peterson is preparing the Seminoles for a tough defensive game. "TCU has a great line, but we'll have to be greater to let Tensi get off his passes. They play a ground game, while we're more of a passing team."

Based on his performance in Friday's game against Mimai, guard Bill McDowell won the Savage Award for his brilliant tackling and rushing.

Crutcher Seen As All-American

Tommy Joe Crutcher, Texas Christian's powerful fullback, closed the 1962 season in grand style with a 125-yard outburst in the Horned Frogs's 14-9 victory over SMU.

Saturday, the 210-pound McKinney senior continued his rampage against Kansas, as he paced the Purple to a 10-6 triumph in the season opener. He scored the touchdown, led all ground gainers with 90 paces on 19 stabs, and caught two passes. He also was the big Frob gun in the field-goal march, and played an outstanding game defensively from the left linebacker slot.

"Crutch had a great night,' said the Frogs' Abe Martin. "He made the big plays for us. Just as I've always said, he's a football player. If I had ten more like him, coaching wouldn't be a problem."

The big co-captain has been a thorn in he Jayhawkers' side for the past three seasons. In 1961, he was the star of the 17-16 upset. His 69-yard scamper set up one TD, and then Quarterback Sonny Gibbs made up a screen pass to set the stage for the winning field goal.

Last season at Lawrence, the big fellow had another good day. He gained 57 net yards, including one big gainer on the winning TD drive in the 6-3 verdict.

The 1963 Kansas team had lavish praise for Crutcher Saturday night.

"Crutcher is good as any fullback I've ever played against," reminded Fullback Ken Coleman. "He hits hard and gives everything he's got on every down. He's a good guy out there, too. If you do anything good, he compliments you."

"TCU hit harder than last year," said End Jay Roberts. "And Crutcher had a great night. He seemed to do everything well."

KU Coach Jack Mitchell had some words also.

"Crutcher is very good,' he explained. "Good on defense, too. At times I though he had made only a couple of yards. Then the scoreboard would show at least a ain of four.

The SWC's No. 2 ground gainer the past two seasons, many believe Crutcher is headed for his greatest season.

"Tommy has to be one of our all-time fullbacks," continued Martin. "He isn't fast, but he's got quickness. Not only a fine runner, he can block, catch a pass- just everything."

With the Frogs trailing 6-0 at halftime against Kansas, Crutcher started the Purple machine rolling in the third period. He took a pass from Quarterback Gray Mills for 11 yards, and then added 15 more to the total when a KU player was charged with a foul. From the KU 41, he carried four more times, including a great effort of three yards for a first down on a fourth down and one situation at the Jayhawk 8. Two plays later, he rode the Frog middle the final two yards.

Then on the 82-yard field goal drive, the big fellow got things going with a 24-yard blast.

Run-Off Elections Needed To Fill Twenty Positions

By LYNN BISSLAND

John Mixon (453) and Dan Bagley (196) will vie for the presidency of the freshman class in Friday's run off.

There was a total of 2,589 students voting in the election Tuesday. Approximately 1,000 freshmen voted. Due to the high number of candidates and low voter turnout there will be 20 contested races in Friday's election, according to Jon Kaney, commissioner of elections.

"There was a general feeling of apathy pervading the election on the part of the candidates as well as the student body, resulting in many run-offs with 2,589 students voting out of 11,000," Kaney stated.

Defeated in the race for the presidency were Jimmy Cramer (101), Tom Marcy (170) and Larry Moore (48).

Hugh Buerke (255) and Barbara Hackworth (385), running for vice president, are in the run-offs after defeating Richard Casper (238).

In the run-offs for secretary are Maureen McClellan (206) and Joy McConkey (160), topping Marissa Allison (81), Marcia Blementhal (128), Jane Dennis (89), Alice Douglass (21), Rita Figueroa (80), Sharon Johnson (111) and Mary Winston (64).

For the office of treasurer Pam Goodman (300) and Sharon Mixon (203) are in the run-offs, defeating Sanne Dinkle (112), Carol Lynn Dorethy (59), Jay Herrington (51) and Bill Zimmerman (163).

Winning the office of social chairman was Connie Angel (541) defeating Suzy Chiselin (129) and Judi Snelling (195).

Larry (Speedy) Gonzalez won, leading all other candidates by a margin of 963 votes for Men's Senate. Contesting for the other position on Men's Senate are Ray Costello (221), Kirk Smith (266) and Phil Watkiss (381). Bill Dane (135) was defeated.

Winning in Women's Senate was Joy Dickinson (615). Still in the run-offs for Women's Senate are Sue De Shazo (336), Livvie Hicks (224) and Cecilia Jones (225). M.J. Keeneth (127) was defeated.

The Precinct Senatorial results are as follows:

Precinct 1: Vicki Hils (80), Liz Waters (37) and Marian Weeks (37) will be in the run-offs defeating Judi Jarboe (28), Virginia Reddick (14) and Cindy Lou Skelton (33).

Precinct 2: Nancy Sue Ashley (59) and Judy Booze (39) are in the run-offs defeating Susan Keglovich (29) and Pamela Pierson (16).

Precinct 3: Jan Cashell (54) and Lyda May Eastridge (83) are in the run-offs, defeating Gretchen Schmaltz (37).

In the run-offs from precinct 4 are Norma Jeanne Bell (28) and Betty Cody (44) defeating Cissy Dixon (26), Elizabeth Gardner (26), Gale Jenkins (9), Surelle Smiley (25) and LaVerne Turner (22).

Precinct 5 will hold run-offs between Sharon Spindel (39) and Marie Yale (34). Mary McCarthy (20) was defeated.

Representing precinct 6 as senator will be Lucy Bland (49) who won over Nancy McMillan (23). Precinct 7 will hold run-offs between Carole Moody (32) and Pam Mozur (30). Pat Sauer (15) was defeated.

FSU's Library School Offers 'Information Science' Study

By MARCI ROBBINS

One new field of study offered for the first time this trimester is in the field of information retrieval.

The Library School has obtained the services of Dr. Gerald Jahoda, a specialist who has headed the Esso Research and Engineering Company's library and information systems research, and who has begun a program in information science -- various systems of information storage and retrieval.

With the extensive data being made available to the scientist of today, he finds it impossible to even attempt to wade his way through all the scientific journals, magazines and reports which he must sort out, digest, and store for further usage.

Jahoda, with this in mind, has come to FSU to establish a training program for information scientists to assist in handling the large numbers of technical publications which are continually being produced, sort out the pertinent information and relay this to the scientists.

In other words, to develop a science to organize a particular type of technology. The scientist then will be less likely to repeat experiments, do needless research, and come out with false conclusions.

Jahoda is currently developing a number of research projects in this area. One of his pet projects is "personal indexes." Here the scientist will type out a card stating information needed, received, whether or not it is pertinent, and why it is wanted. This way the information scientist can learn more about the scientists' needs, and he can learn of his own shortcomings, for future purposes.

Strangely enough, although the computer is of enormous help, it has its limitations in this field. For one thing, "the computers are not sufficient for storing entire documents," which would be necessary in some research -- they're simply too expensive! Magnetic tapes, microfilm and supermicrofilm takes the lead in this area.

As a matter of fact, the only organization to use microfilm for an entire library is the CIA, which has spent millions gathering information.

Most libraries today use various methods of condensation, along with microfilm, magnetic tape and dictaphones. Jahoda feels that libraries won't advance toward computers to any great extent for the next five years or so.

While at FSU Jahoda hopes to enlist the forces of the professors in the fields of philosophy, psychology, statistics, business, engineering, and the sciences, so that they may aid in relating to the students the great opportunities awaiting them in information science in their particular fields.

Jahoda feels that women too have their place in information research. "A good degree in science would offer women a very interesting career. In this area, women can retire, do work at home and then at a later date, come back to active work."

Choppin Returns To FSU After European Teaching Tour

A nuclear scientist at FSU has returned from a year in Europe as an atomic laboratory consultant and graduate professor.

Dr. Gregory R. Choppin, professor of chemistry, left with his family July 13, 1962, for Mol, Belgium, to serve as adviser with Centre d'Etude de l'Energie Nucleaire in setting up a program for study of heavier transplutonium elements or actinides.

He also held a temporary chair in the department of chemistry at the University of Liege, Belgium, being the first foreigner to do so. His teaching was in the graduate field on "Selected Topics in Nuclear Chemistry."

While in Europe Dr. Choppin lectured throughout Belgium, Sweden and The Netherlands.

Funds to finance Dr. Choppin's work came from EURATOM, European Atomic Energy Agency.

With his assistance, the Belgians set up laboratory techniques to chemically purify the products of reactor irradiation of plutonium to form ultra small amounts of the elements from Americum (Atomic No. 95) to Fermium (Atomic No. 100).

One of the few academic scientists working with reactor-produced elements, Professor Choppin is co-discoverer of one of the transplutonium elements, Mendelevium No. 101, and for this is best known in the scientific field.

Two papers resulting from research with a Dutch scientist during the year's stay in Europe are being published this month in the Journal of Chemical Physics, Dr. Choppin said. Two others are in preparation.

In addition to teaching, lecturing and working as a consultant, Dr. Choppin gave short courses to technical persons in CEN (Centre d'-Etude de l'Energie Nucleaire) on the basic theory and techniques involved in the use of radioisotopes in scientific research, using his own publication, "Experimental Nuclear Chemistry," as a textbook.

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Always Late

When courses were scheduled, and 15 minutes was to be allowed for students and teachers between classes, someone should have considered cases where teachers hold classes overtime.

Reasons for holding students after the bell has rung are many and varied. At times, a professor has one more pertinent point which he feels must be made to illustrate the lesson. Some professors have developed a system of timing thelast person's entrance, then holding the class exactly that many minutes over the regular time of dismissal. Other instructors arrive late for some reason, valid or otherwise, and insist that the class be held for 55 minutes or 95 minutes beginning at the moment of the teacher's arrival.

Whatever the reason, teachers of the consecutive classes look somewhat askance at students who arrive as much as 20 minutes late after crossing campus at a dogtrot when a teacher holds his class 10 minutes after the bell has rung.

Students need not bolt out of their seats upon hearing the bell, but teachers should begin to make that final observation or remark so all may reach the next front of learning at a reasonable hour.

PF

Vote Again

The light voter turnout for Tuesday's election was disappointing to those concerned with competency in Student Government, although in truth it was expected.

Because of the last-minute rush to file declarations of candidacy, we had hoped the predictions of sparse voting would not hold true. But the election returns Tuesday night doused hopes that student interest in SG affairs would increase.

Several candidates already have been elected (some by a shamefully small tally of votes), but there are many more positions which must be filled in the runoff election. Those who voted Tuesday, and those who didn't, will have another chance Friday to display their concern for the way their government is run.

Each eligible student should take the time to vote, if only to give himself the right to complain when he doesn't like the way SG is being operated.

Coach Litwhiler Bids Farewell

To the Editor:

We are leaving Florida State University with very mixed emotions, knowing that we have been enriched and reinforced by the associations and professional experiences we have enjoyed with the students during our service here.

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the Sophomore Class and Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority for allowing us to be their faculty advisor. It was a privilege and a pleasure to serve them. This gave us a better look at college life.

We would also like to thank all the students, faculty, administrators and staff and the Flambeau for making our stay in Tallahassee and Florida State University the most [illegible] we [illegible]. We look forward to this same experience at Michigan State University.

We know the students will continue [illegible] athletics and we will look forward to continuing personal and professional contracts with them in the years ahead. Florida State University is advancing in athletics and will continue to develop with the support of the student body, and the leadership [illegible] Director Mancha and the staff.

Good luck to each of you and to the University.

Racial Policy Hurts U.S.

To the Editor:

As a student from abroad, I want to say a few things about the refusal of restaurants near our campus to serve colored students.

Back home we get the picture of the United States as being the greatest nation in the world, full of men of clear thinking and intelligence. We are told that this is the bountiful land of opportunity where everybody has a chance to get ahead in the world, where nobody can take away from you what you have achieved through your personal effort. We learn that this is the land of equality and freedom. We get the picture that this is a noble nation. Materially, it has the highest standard of living in the world.

Why should this great nation, then destroy this image that [illegible] in the rest of the world has? Why destroy it by denying service and freedom to some on the basis of racial difference?

In my estimation and in the estimation of many people abroad, this is a great and noble nation. Racial differences should be a small issue for it. I am not accusing the United States, but the less prosperous and less advanced nations in the world don't give that much importance to racial differences. Why then, should this great nation give it that much importance?

By stopping this fight over race, I hope that the United States will not let down those abroad who hold her in such high estimation.

A Non-Smoker Rebel

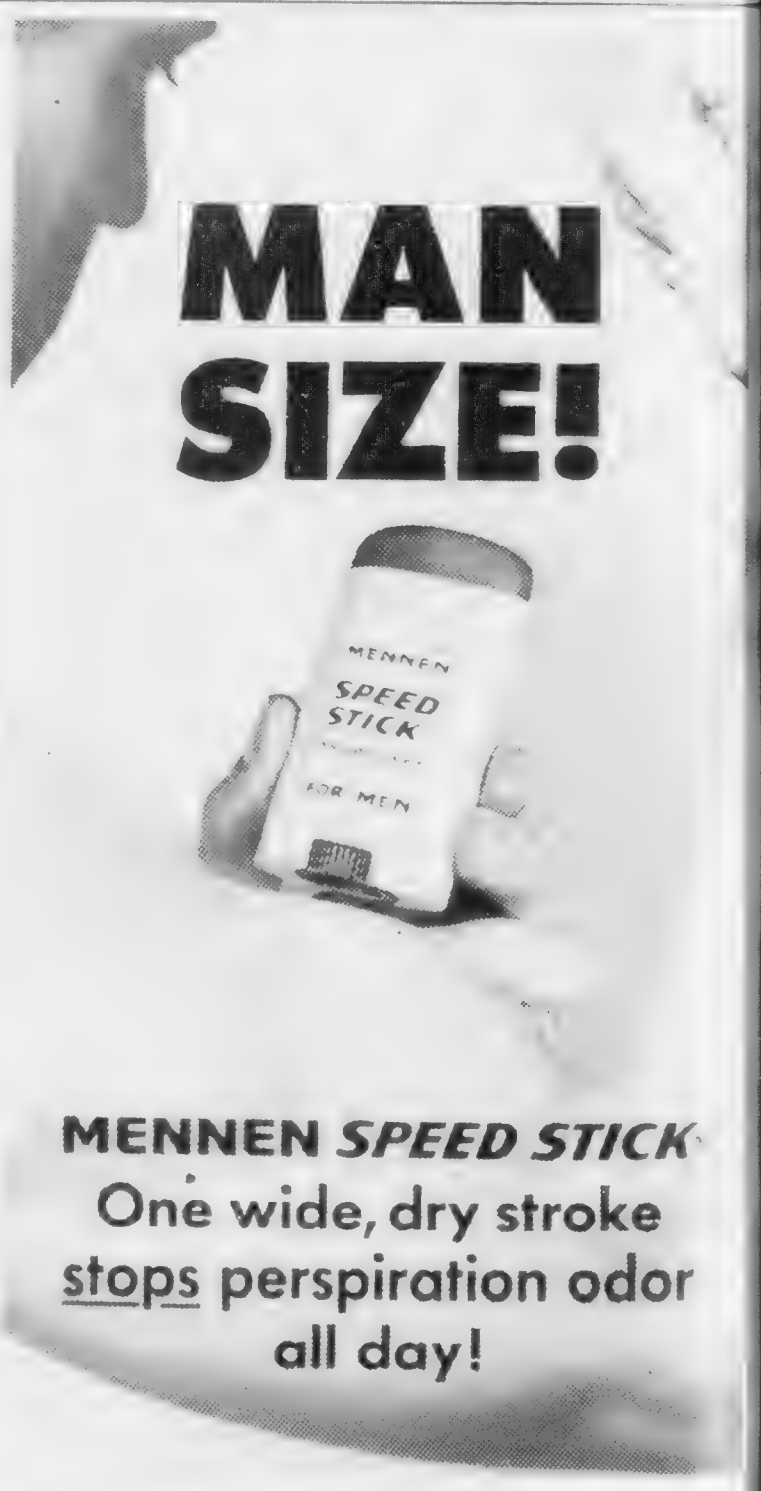
To the Editor:

I noticed an article in the Flambeau the other day written by some student who was complaining about the apparently unbearable number of "NO SMOKING" signs posted helter-skelter in every nook and cranny on our campus.

He referred to the rules as being more appropriate to grammar school. He called for a poll to be taken to see whether the students and faculty as a whole really favor the highly undemocratic, childish, un-he-man-like rules which make it a crime to "have a smoke" during class. Fie on the mean ole University.

Poor old Anon (that's his name); he has the habit so bad that he can't go for an hour without a fag.

Why not let the students smoke in class? The reason is non-smokers; at least that is my big reason. I don't actually care if the girl sitting next to me smokes cigars and the boy sitting behind me chews tobacco, as long as she can guarantee that I won't have to smell, taste or have my eyes smart from the smoke, and he spits in his pocket or something. But she can't and he won't.



Give the non-smokers the right to pour a bucket of water over every [illegible] who allows his smoke to drift to areas of the room not directly above him, and I think that the non-smokers would vote in gleeful acquiescence.

Kasha Returns After Meets

Dr. Michael Kasha has returned to the campus as professor of chemistry and director of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics at Florida State University after attending symposia in Australia, Italy and The Netherlands during the summer.

Internationally known for his research in spectroscopy, Kasha directs interdisciplinary studies in health-related sciences in the Institute supported by a $3 million grant from the Atomic Energy Commission.

He began his summer tour in Canberra, Australia, speaking before the Australian Academy of Sciences at the Fourth Australian Spectroscopy Conference. He and Dr. Gerhard Herzberg, director of the Physical Laboratory of the National Research Council of Canada, were the only foreign guest speakers before the 300 society members.

After visiting several Australian universities, Kasha attended the NATO Conference on Molecular Biology in Ravello, Italy.

Graduate Scholarship Applications Available

Applications for scholarships for graduate study in Asia are available through Professor George Lensen, the Fulbright Program Adviser, in 215 History.

Deadline for applications for 1964-65 scholarships is October 10.

Scholarship awards in most cases cover tuition, books, travel and maintenance. For eligibility requirements and details regarding application, students should consult Dr. Lensen.

Opportunities in various countries include:

Ceylon: Anthropology, Buddhism, Folk Art, Oriental languages and philosophy, sociology and social sciences. There are especially good opportunities for research in Singhalese studies and British Colonial history and administration. Placement of American students is possible at all three universities in Ceylon.

Republic of China: Archaeology, Anthropology, Chinese history, language and literature. Knowledge of Chinese is a prerequisite. Grantees should have done some graduate work leading to an advanced degree in the field of Chinese and or other Oriental studies.

India: Agriculture, Anthropology, Art history, botany, dance geography, geology Indian history and civilization, Indian literature and philosophy, Indian music, mathematics, painting, physics, political science, Sanskritic studies, tropical medicine, zoology.

Candidates for India under the age of 24 are at a disadvantage. Preference is given to those who have experience in the use of research methods. Graduating seniors interested in applying to India in the humanities and social sciences may apply for a number of tutorships in English available at Indian universities.

Japan: Anthropology, applied mathematics, architecture, art history, astronomy, biology, botany, chemistry, economics, geography, geology, geophysics, history, meteorology, oceanography, Oriental religions, painting, philosophy, physics political science, Sinology, sociology, theatre and zoology.

Grantees for Japan will be expected to have done some graduate work leading to an advanced degree. Applicants should have sufficient knowledge of Japanese to allow them to carry on reasonable discussion with Japanese specialists in their fields.

Korea: Anthropology, archaeology, economics, entomology, geology, history, languages, law literature, music, Oriental painting, sociology.

Any serious student of Asian studies who is interested in studying Korean language, literature and history may apply even through he has had no previous knowledge of the language.

Tomorrow the Flambeau will carry scholarship information on Malaya, Nepal, Pakistan, Philippines and Thailand.

Cooper Conducts Teen Voice Clinic

Dr. Irvin Cooper, professor of music education at FSU, has been conducting a clinic on the voice problems of the adolescent at West Palm Beach yesterday and today.

Dr. Cooper, whose research in music for teen-agers has been made over a 16-year period, will illustrate vocal ranges in early adolescents, set up a system for classifying these voices and show how they can be formed into a choral unit. The appearance is before Catholic Diocesan School.

On Nov. 5 and 6, Cooper will conduct a similar clinic demonstration at Clemson University. In January he will direct an all-state Junior High Chorus for the Florida Music Educators Association, at Daytona Beach.

Dr. Cooper recently returned from England where he directed a research project on adolescent voices.

Horned Frog Defense To Be Strongest Point

Despite the presence of All-American candidate Tommy Crutcher, TCU's defense will have to be their strongest point.

All but two first-stringers return. Three of the top four linebackers return along with the entire deep secondary which had the Southwest Conference's top pass defense. Overall, the Frogs ran 3rd in 1962 with a defense of 252.4. Rushing, they were 4th with 163.9, while the passing average of 88.5 yards was tops.

TCU uses a 6-2-3 defense. The center will be middle-guard, and the fullback and left guard will be linebackers. Three halfbacks will make up the deep secondary, as Martin plans to rest his quarterbacks.

The line averages 6-3 in height and 214 pounds in weight. The ends are team captain Lynn Morrison (6-4, 215) and Tom Magoffin (6-4, 200). The tackles are Rick Williams (6-2, 205) and Jim Fox (6-1, 205). Rounding out the line are Ken Hensen (6-6, 255) and Steve Garmon (6-0, 205). Garmon, Hensen and Williams are juniors with one letter each, while the rest are senior two-lettermen. Chief subs are seniors Joe Owens and Larry McElroy. Owens, 6-3, 225, was a regular on last year's team, and McElroy, 6-2, 230, also has two letters.

The linebackers are 6-3 Tommy Crutcher, who weighs 205, and Bob Mangum, 6-0, 210. They are the co-captains of the team and have two letters each. Crutcher, more noted for his ball-carrying ability, is a very hard tackle and is really effective on pass defense. Mangum is especially good against the ground game. He has a good chance at All-American. The reserves are Harvey Reeves (5-10, 185), a junior with one letter and Cliff Taft (6-0, 195), a senior with two year's experience.

Miami Prepares For Boilermakers

Whatever bolstering Coach Andy Gustafson and his aides can do for the University of Miami's pass defense will come in for a quick test.

Purdue University, Miami's next foe, not only has a pair of veteran passers in quarterbacks Ron DiGravio and Gary Hogan, but plans to use them more than ever before.

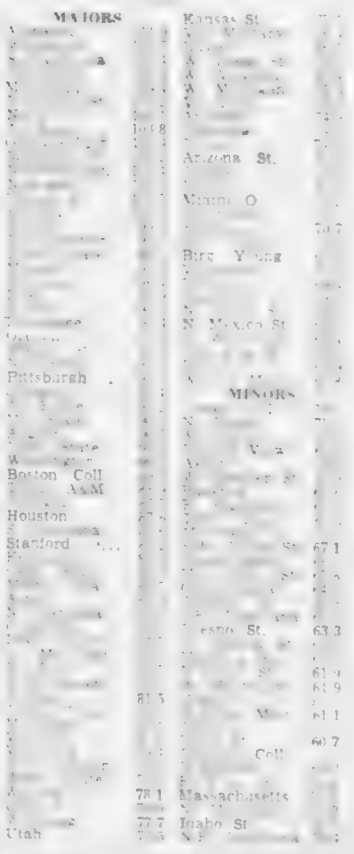
"We've a much lighter line this year," asserts Purdue Coach Jack Mollenkopf, "but I feel it is much more mobile. We're going to try to open up our game and use more action and running passes. Joe Morel, our fastest back, and the kids we have at end, can catch that ball."

Basically, Mollenkopf has expressed satisfaction with his backs but wishes his line was a little bigger. However, some of these linemen have trimmed as much as 30 pounds off their 1962 weights and hence are much faster.

The current Purdue squad is rated one of the best conditioned in the school's history--and the game plan generally will call for 20 to 25 passes.

Florida State's Steve Tensi unleased but 20 in taming the Hurricanes in Miami's opener.

DiGravio has thrown 13 touchdown passes and netted 1,490 aerial yards in two years. He seems headed for a great year in his finale. In 1962, he was slow at 196 pounds but now he has trimmed down to 172. Now he matches the running which makes Hogan dangerous both in running and passing.



Purdue, which hasn't been beaten by as much as seven points since it lost 21-14 to Iowa in 1960, has 21 lettermen around whom to build. Two or three of them are ailing and may not play here. Chief possible loss is Gene Donaldson, 219-pound fullback who is recovering from a shoulder injury.

Purdue still will field a line which averages 207 pounds to the man--and one which is considerably faster than recent Purdue forwards. The Boilermakers are drawing heavily on one of their better crops of sophomores and several will start.

The game here opens Purdue's season and will renew a series which has lapsed since 1951. Purdue was the first Big Ten team to meet the Hurricanes, rapping Miami 14-6 in 1949. The following year roughhouse of the most historic Miami victories ever. Purdue had snapped a long Notre Dame winning streak a week earlier, was rated No. 1 in the land by many--but an inspired Miami team wrested a 21-14 decision from Purdue in Lafayette.

Beauty Contest To Open 'Greek Week' Activities

By ROBIN STALCUP
Flambeau Staff Writer

The "Greek Goddess" Contest, to be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. in Westcott Auditorium, will officially open Greek Week activities at FSU.

Contestants will be judged on beauty, poise and personality in two phases in long formals and then short shorts, sweaters, and heels. At the end of the judging, five finalists will be announced. A Goddess will be selected from these finalists, and the winner will be announced during halftime at the FSU-TCU game Saturday night.

The "Greek Goddess" for 1963-64 will be automatically entered in the "Miss Tallahassee" Contest by the IFC.

"The purpose of Greek Week is to emphasize Greek life on campus, in religion and in the community," said contest director Arnie Gibbs, "and the active support on the part of all fraternities at this initial event would be appreciated."

Other activities will include Greeks hosting independents at a reception to be held in Weichelt Lounge in the Business Bldg. from 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday afternoon.

"It is hoped that the week's activities will help foster closer relationships between Greeks and independents at FSU," emphasized Lynn Anthertz, Panhellenic Publicity Chairman.

In addition, Monday night chapter meetings will be dismissed early so that all may attend the Religion and Life series in the Library Lecture Hall at 8 p.m. The final session of this series will be held Tuesday night at the same time.

Friday night the Greeks will sponsor a Hottenanny in Westcott Auditorium. Tickets for the event will be on sale for independents beginning Monday at the ticket office in Westcott.

All Greeks will participate in a beautification project for the city of Tallahassee to climax the week's events.

Entries and sponsors in the Greek Goddess Contest are Charlotte McClaren, Delta Chi; Terry Ford, Phi Kappa Psi; Carol Davis, Pi Kappa Phi; Dana Kahn, Tau Epsilon Phi; Tessie Sajardo, Sigma Chi; Sara Godfrey, Sigma Nu; Lottie Kohlman, Alpha Tau Omega; Patsy Burnham, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Gail Novak, Phi Kappa Tau; Fran All, Phi Delta Theta; Ruby Watson, Theta Chi; Martha Carter, Lambda Chi Alpha; Sheila Clark, Delta Tau Delta; Sara Fain, Pi Kappa Alpha; Maggie Wiley, Kappa Sigma; Mina Crawford, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Linda Goldsmith, Kappa Alpha.

Judges for the contest will be Dean Hugh Adams, assistant dean of men, Johnny Smith, president of the student body, Dr. Joseph Cushman of the history department, Mrs. Vernon, administrative assistant in the student activities office and Mother Lloyd, Kappa Sigma house mother.

Polls Open 9 To 5

Voting Ends Today With Runoffs

Runoff elections are today for all candidates in the final running for freshmen class officers and precinct senators.

Voting can be done with temporary or permanent ID.'S.

If the temporary I.D. card is used, the permanent I.D. also must be punched. This will be done by a student stationed in the Suwannee Room. Then students may pick up their permenent cards.

Expense statements for all candidates can be obtained in Longmire today. These statements are to be turned in if possible by Wednesday, but final deadline is Friday. Winning candidates will not receive certificates of election from the Elections Commission until this statement is turned in. Candidates whose expense statements show overexpenditure will be fined twice the excess amount.

Voting will take place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the ballot stations at Smith Hall, the Library, Westcott, Dyer Hall, the Seminole Club and the Student Center.

No results will be made public until all campaign literature is removed from the campus. Results will be broadcast over radio station WTNT.

The overall success of the spring elections has been questioned by Commissioner of Elections Jon Kaney. He stated, "Results compared to last year are down and the number of freshmen voting was extremely poor. Out of 2,600 freshmen, only 968 voted--less than half the class. Not even 25 percent of the entire student body voted."

Reasons for the poor turn-out at this spring election were offered by Kaney. He stated that campaign spirits were not the highest and that there seemed to be a lackadaisical attitude pervading the entire election.

According to Kaney, another reason for the apathy could be that elections are held too near the beginning of the year. This does not give future candidates nor voters the opportunity to orientate themselves with school or get settled before elections start.

He said he hoped that the Senate will take action to correct this situation before next year.

Tally-Ho's Are In

The Tally Ho's have arrived and are being distributed in the Student Lounge in the basement of Longmire through next week.

I.D. Cards

The Registrar's office has announced that those persons who have not picked up photo I.D. cards before Saturday may check at ticket window #1 at the stadium after 6:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Correction

Greek pictures will not be taken next week as printed in the Flambeau yesterday. They will be taken starting Oct. 7 through Oct. 25.

'Behavioral Determinism' Key To Future Human Worth

By SALLYANNE HUFFAKER AND SUE BOYLE

"Ah... I am not a machine," was the statement of a San Francisco computer, according to Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers, who spoke on "Behavioral Determinism" in the Last Lecture Series held in Opperman Music Hall Wednesday night.

Chalmers, who received his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. from Princeton University, is assistant dean of the faculties at FSU. He came to Tallahassee in 1957 after serving as an instructor at Princeton, a research psychologist and a task scientist for the U.S. Air Force.

No other concept is considered by Chalmers to be as important as behavioral determinism. He defines it as "a point of view, a philosophy, or even a religion that views the behavior of man as the sum total of all pre-conceptual and post-conceptual influences. Man is the reacting organism rather than the one who acts."

In explaining the course of behavioral determinism over the centuries, Chalmers began with early man's concept of gods and moved through Newtonian physics and evolution to the development of psychology.

Chalmers advanced several arguments in favor of the concept. One of these was that man has the ability to emulate or duplicate human determinism in an inanimate object. He gave examples of machines which can compose music, understand different languages and teach other machines.

The implications of behavioral determinism are many, according to Chalmers. This philosophy may seem to make life aimless, fatalistic, and predestined. Morals and ethics may be given a deeper meaning by determinism.

"Humans are more compact and efficient and less expensive than computors. Actually a better answer lies in the fact of individual uniqueness. This, I believe, is the key to human worth for the indefinite future," stated Chalmers. The implication is that machines like the one in San Francisco may replace man unless he escapes by being unique from his fellow men.

Chalmers left his audience with a challenge to reflect on the implied effect of behavioral determinism in government, religion, free enterprise, free press, academic freedom and the activities of university students.

FSU Chiefs Go Spanish For TCU Game

Florida State University's Marching Chiefs will put on their first home show of the season tomorrow night, taking the field at halftime as the Seminoles play TCU in Campbell Stadium.

On the theme "Echoes of Spain' the show will include lilting Spanish tunes precision routines by the Marching Chief majorettes and a solo twirling routine.

The 160-member band directed by Robert T. Braunagel will be led by drum major Roger McLendon. The opening formation will be a company front entrance to the tune of "Amparito Roco."

Featured on the show will be baton artist Cookie Winchester in a twirling routine to "Granada" and "Cielito Lindo" while the band forms the shape of a guitar.

In another formation, the Marching Chiefs will feature performing artistry of their trumpet section to the rhythm of "Siboney."

Machines Needed

The time has come for Student Government Elections personnel to abandon the Dark Age of hand-counted ballots in favor of the technology of the Electronic Age.

It seems unbelievable that a university replete with computers and other electronic equipment should have to revert to the tedious manual counting and recounting of ballots. There is no reason that voting machines should not be made available to this university for all its elections, so long as the dates of SG elections do not interfere with local election procedures.

In addition to saving the Elections Bureau hours of unnecessary slaving, voting booths would be more accurate and quicker in tabulating results. Students would be able to obtain statistical totals soon after the polls close, instead of having to wait around half the night and then leave without knowing half the results.

This early tabulation also would enable the "Flambeau" to publish election returns the next day, without having to hold the presses and guarantee a late paper.

Surely the cost of borrowing or renting booths (if there is any) is not prohibitive, since many high schools throughout the state are now using the machines in their own student elections. It may be that using the booths would in the long run cost less, as well as save many hours of work.

As many high schools also have discovered, the booths have an educational value, in providing pre-voting age citizens an opportunity to become familiar with actual voting processes. Certainly politicians throughout the state would be more than eager to have University students learn the mechanics of voting, since they probably would take more interest in elections and voting if they knew these procedures.

And, who knows, the mere novelty of being able to use voting machines might increase student participation in SG elections.

Apathy Fosters Lack Of Action

On our campus one may find a few students that will classify themselves as leftist and one may also find an equally small number of individuals that will tell you that they are rightest. I make this statement on the assumption that one discount those who just parrot political propaganda because it is "in" from those who have seriously adopted party ideals.

So now is it safe to assume that everyone else is conservative and stands in the middle of the political spectrum? I think it is clea[r] people that this is definitel[y]

University Controls Contact Of FSU, FA & M Campuses

Before some of our well meaning, progressive FSU integrationists make the mistake of extending the friendly hand of fellowship to our A & M scholastic brothers, perhaps they should be informed that their university is officially against such action--against it to the extent that there exists an FSU policy which rigidly regulates visitation between FSU and A & M campuses.

You see, it words this way: Negro FSU students may visit Negro A & M students, but A & M students may not return the call; not unless they obtain official permission and can show that their visit to FSU is for an "educational purpose." At the same time, white FSU students cannot visit their friends at A & M, nor may A & M students visit white FSU students without first obtaining permission on the basis that their visit has an educational purpose. True Negro A & M students do visit our campus, but only for educational events. Our white students, however, may not visit A & M for similar educational events. It is also understood, of course, that the administration determines by some mystical standard what constitutes an "educational purpose."

To me this sounds like "Big Brother" tactics. If you've been worried about Communism and Socialism, then take a look at this tyrannical attempt to regulate human relations, enforce a caste system predetermine friendships, block inter-racial communication on the level of the average citizen where integration must ultimately be resolved, and finally to effectively impede progress by staunch support of the status quo.

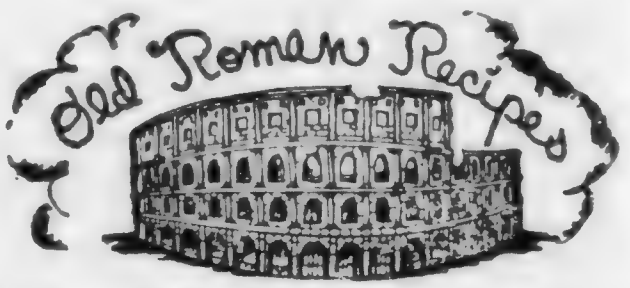
Yes, beware integrationists! Though this little ruling has been quietly withheld from the knowledge of the average student, unenforced save for those times when it becomes desirable to eliminate one who becomes too radical, nevertheless it hangs as an effective ax over your heads if you step out of line.

Our nice, quiet, integrated conservative, Southern school refuses to take anything more than a token stand on integration. In the true spirit of "academic freedom" it prefers to leave the question "open for debate." It prefers to support law over justice, in effect approving and maintaining the status quo, failing to take its rightful position of leadership in the march toward a better tomorrow, and resting secure in the belief that its policy of anonymity is unassailable.

Dear Antonio,

I want you should be advised that now for the first-a-time there is a real Mom & Dad's Restaurant here in Tallahassee!

Mom & Dad's invite you to come and try their real homemade, authentic, Italian food. They cook food like you used to eat at home.



Mom & Dad's is located five and one half miles from the Capitol Bldg. on the Perry Highway--or else-a-maybe you should try Rome!

Moma Barbara and Poppa Giuseppe have-a-been in this country only for a few years and they brought-a-with them a little bit of Italy. Like-a-for instance, pizza of any kind, spaghetti any way you like it fixed, lasagna, chicken cacciatore, real parmigiana, and many many more Italian (or American) dishes that you can choose from. Home made bread, even!

You-d-a-better get out there pretty soon!

Luigi

Today's News Roundup

Flambeau News Services

WASHINGTON -- President Kennedy has repeated that the US intends to cooperate with Russia in space efforts if cooperation is possible. He said so in a letter yesterday to Texas congressman Albert Thomas. He had asked for clarification of Kennedy's cooperation proposal, first made in a UN speech last Friday.

Meanwhile, Kennedy's proposal has come under attack from a man who was a pioneer in the US rocket program, Major General John Medaris. Medaris terms Kennedy's proposal for a joint US-Russian moon expedition as a good way to cut the ground out from under our space program.

WASHINGTON -- President Kennedy's proposal for an allied surface fleet armed with Polaris missiles was discussed in New York yesterday by Secretary of State Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Home. Britain has been studying the proposal. Home said after yesterday's meeting he'll discuss it with London and see Rusk again on the matter.

PHILADELPHIA -- In a speech for the Federal Bar Association convention at Philadelphia, Edward R. Murrow, head of the US Information Service, says racial violence is hurting us around the world, blackening our reputation and good name.

WASHINGTON -- Mobster Josephu Valachi spent two and one-half hours before Senate crime probers yesterday, testifying behind heavily curtained doors about crime syndicate operations. He's singing because, he says his former underworld bosses have threatened him with death. Valachi appears again today. This time in open session.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC -- The military forces which overthrew Dominican Republic President Juan Bosch announced they are setting up a three-man provisional government made up of civilians. The armed forces contend Bosch had to go because of the progress of Communism under his administration. The military has jailed 31 persons on charges of being Communists and say more are being sought.

In the wake of the ousting of Bosch, the US says it has word that Venezuela and Costa Rica may call for an inter-American foreign ministers meeting to consider threats of other military overthrows in Latin America.

Club To Offer Sailing Lessons

The newly formed FSU Sailing Association is offering a course in sailing fundamentals open to students, faculty and staff and their immediate families.

The course will include one hour of dry land instruction, one-half hour of sailing with an instructor in the first lesson and one hour of sailing with an instructor in subsequent lessons.

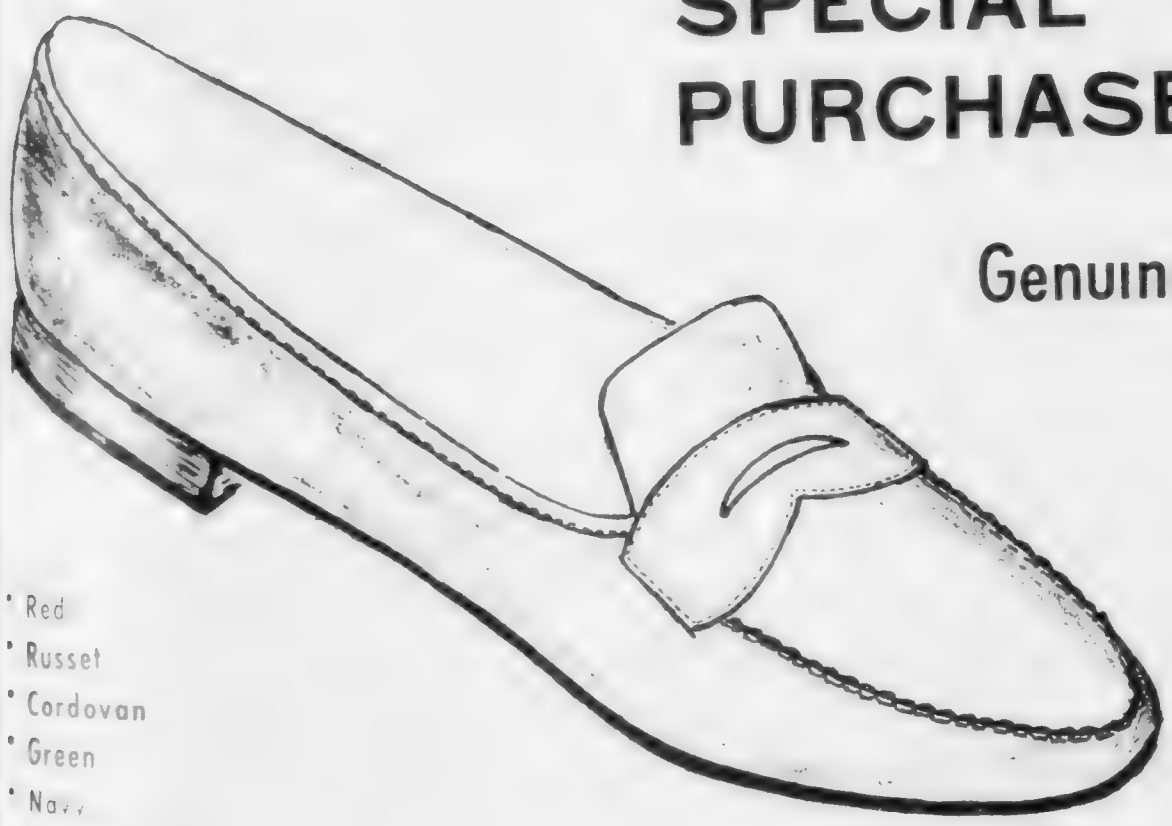
As part of the new Student Union Program, six "Flying Dutchman Jr." international one-design sailboats have been purchased.

The sailboats, part of the recreational equipment at the FSU reservation on Lake Bradford, may be used by any qualified member of the faculty, staff or student body.

All use of the sailboats and instruction will be provided free of charge through combined effort by the sailing association and the office of student activites in the month of October.

The FSU Sailing Association has been invited to compete in racing meets with the U of F and other schools in regattas sanctioned by the Southeastern Inter-collegiate Sailing Association.

Persons interested in learning to sail or who have prior sailing experience and are interested in racing and sport sailing, should contact Commodore (pro-temp) George Doughty at the campus security office or the Student Activities office in Room 20 Longmire.



SAILING, SAILING

... over the waves at Lake Bradford are the members of the new Sailing Association in their "Flying Dutchman, Jr." sailboats. The organization is offering a course in sailing to persons associated with the university.

Greeks Start Plans For Their Big Weekend, Oct. 5

By ARLENE WOS

Alpha Chi Omega--In honor of new pledges, Alpha Chi's will hold open house tonight from 8 to 12. Dress is casual, and entertainment will feature "The Wanderers."

Charlotte McClaren is a finalist in the Miss Gymkana Contest, and will also be Delta Chi's representative for the Greek Goddess contest. Gene Garvey was chosen social chairman of Magnolia Hall. Carol Mills and Janice Eddins have been selected members of the Landis Beauty Court. Annette B. Hannon will portray "Vernon" in "Summer and Smoke," and is understudying the lead role. Shannon Talbert will represent the chapter as Homecoming Queen contestant.

New pledge officers are Gene Garvery, president and Christie Walker, secretary.

Visiting the Alpha Chi's next week will be Mrs. John E. Weatherford, Province President, who will hold workshops with the actives and the pledges.

Alpha Chi's were guests of the Theta Chi's at a dessert social Wednesday night.

Alpha Gamma Delta--The Alpha Gams serenaded the Lambda Chi's after dinner Tuesday night. A dessert party was held with the Delta Chi's Wednesday night. Lucy Bland is a new precinct senator, and Connie Angel is freshman class social chairman. Betty Whitcomb of Miami is a transfer from Florida Southern.

Alpha Omicron Pi--The A O Pi's are happy to have as their new housemother Mrs. George Hadd. Mrs. Hadd is a former resident of Tallahassee. Two new chapter officers were elected this trimester... Irene Lopez as scholarship chairman and Patty Jenks as historian. Tuesday night the A O Pi's gave the Delta Gammas a surprise dessert.

Alpha Xi Delta--The following officers have been elected for the new pledge class: Ann Dible, president; Liz Cutler, vice president; Penny Ziegler, secretary-treasurer; Nancy Adams, projects chairman; and Maria Sartwell, chaplain. Janet Marcacci has been chosen for Racquettes.

This week the pre-initiates presented the chapter with gifts including an arrangement of artifical flowers, several record albums and a record rack. These gifts were used and were greatly appreciated at a dessert party with the Sigma Alpha Epsilon's Wednesday night.

Chi Omega--Chi Omega was presented with a trophy by the F Club for the best participation and sportsmanship for the intramural year 1962-1963. Flo Humphres was elected vice president of Jennie Murphree and Susan Smith was tapped into Racquettes.

Delta Delta Delta--New Tri Delt officers: Becky Ramer, chaplain; Sharon Dunn, scholarship chairman; Suzan Hill, assistant scholarship chairman and Marsha Mould, assistant treasurer. Sherri Chester was selected for the Miss Gymkana Court. The Tri Delt's enjoyed a dessert party with the Kappa Sigma's Wednesday night.

Delta Gamma--The DG's had a social with the ATO's Wednesday evening. DG's will be "At Home' Friday night from 8 to 12 in honor of their new pledges. Music will be provided by the Embers. JoEtta Lawrence and Jan Elman are Delta Gamma finalists in the Miss Gymkana contest.

Kappa Delta--KD's Fran All and Tessie Fajardo were chosen to be on the Miss Gymkana court. The KD's had a dessert with the Lambda Chi's Wednesday night. The dessert was in honor of the two new pledge classes.

Kappa Kappa Gamma--Three girls were omitted from the list of new Kappa pledges. They are Mary Ann Daley, Puggy Collins and Joty Davidson.

Kappa Sigma--New pledges are Jimmy Carter and Ed Wilson. Last Wednesday the Kappa Sig's enjoyed a dessert party with the Tri Delt's. After the game Saturday night there will be a combo party featuring the "Le Sabres."

Phi Delta Theta--Florida Gamma has just been cited by the National Fraternity for its Community Service Project for last spring. The project, judged one of the best in the nation, entailed cleaning up and improving a 30-acre tract of land at the Tallahassee Junior Museum. The tract has now taken its place in the museum's program as a nature park.

Phi Kappa Psi--Last week the Phi Psi's were visited by their national field secretary, Bruce Ewing.

Kay Alvarez, Pi Beta Phi, is representing Phi Kappa Psi in the Miss Gymkana contest.

After the TCU game, a combo party will be apparent to all Phi Psi neighbors.

Phi Kappa Tau--The newly initiated brothers of Phi Kappa Tau include John Ambrecht, Jim Gambill, Bill Goddard, Don Goddard, Fred Lamb, Bob Moon and John Witherspoon. Following the TCU game, the Phi Tau's will have a combo party featuring the "Sensations."

Phi Mu--Phi Mu welcomes their new housemother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hopkins. Thursday night the new pledges were honored with a banquet at the Silver Slipper. Chris McGlasson has one of the leads in "Summer and Smoke," a production of University Theatre.

Pi Beta Phi--The Pi Phi's had a dessert with the Phi Delt's Wednesday evening.

Pi Kappa Alpha--The victory over Miami witnessed by several Pikes won another skin from the Miami Pi Kappa Alpha's to decorate the Pike house's walls.

Pi Kappa Alpha has two more pledges... Jerry Angelotti and Ray Jones... bringing the total to 21.

Immediately following pledging last week, the Pikes held a pledging party with the "Sabres." This weekend the Pi Kappa Alpha's and their dates will enjoy the music of the "Velvets" after an expected victory over TCU.

Pi Kappa Phi--The Pi Kap's met the KA's at 5:30 yesterday in an opening football game. Saturday night brothers, pledges and guests will bring their dates to the FSU-TCU game and then will return to the house for a "Victory" combo party.

Sigma Kappa--Congratulations to Judy Register for being elected the new Sigma Kappa scholarship chairman. Tuesday night a group of Sigma Kappa's serenaded the Lambda Chi's at their dinner. The Sigma Kappa's will have an exchange dinner with the Delta Chi's next week.

Sigma Chi--The Sigma Chi's were honored wih a visit by Steve McCutcheon last Tuesday. After the game with TCU there will be a combo party at the Sigma Chi house.

Sigma Phi Epsilon--New committee chairmen are George Noga, pledge trainer; Jim Scoggins, assistant pledge trainer; and Jim Oliver, assistant comptroller.

Wednesday an exchange dinner was held with the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Following the game tomorrow night there will be a combo party at the house, music provided by "Lawyer Smith."

Sigma Sigma Sigma--Congratulations from the Tri Sig's to the football team for their fine playing against Miami last weekend, and good luck with TCU this weekend.

Thanks to the Sig Ep's for the wonderful Exchange Supper Wednesday night.

Tau Epsilon Phi--The TEP's recently pledged Bill Friedlander, Jeff Gorelick, Steve Winn and Joel Friedman, bringing their pledge class to a total of 10 men. The pledge class officers are Roger Getelman, president; Mike Robinson, vice president; Steve Horowitz, treasurer and Joel Friedman, scribe.

The TEP's are all proud of brother William Treitler's election as senator for precinct 17.

The TEP's are sponsoring Miss Dana Kahn in the Greek Goddess contest. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

This Saturday the TEP's will celebrate the TCU victory at a "Victory' combo party.

Theta Chi--The Theta Chi's will highlight this weekend with a barbeque steak dinner tomorrow afternoon. After the TCU-FSU game the "Chaotics' will entertain the Theta Chi's and dates during a combo party at the Theta Chi house. This past Wednesday the Alpha Omega's were guests of the Theta Chi's at a dessert party.

Angel Flights Serves In Air Force Program

Angel Flight, an honorary service organization, is composed of selected and dedicated women from leading colleges and universities across the nation.

According to Sandy Lewis, information services officer, the organization is sponsored by the Arnold Air Society, a selective Air Force ROTC organization.

Miss Lewis states that "the history of Angel Flight began at the University of Omaha in February of 1952, where a group known as the 'Sponsor Corps' was organized. This new concept quickly spread and by 1957 the 'Angel Flight' had become a national idea with many names, uniforms and activities."

The Angel Flight, with a history of a few short years, is now recognized by the United States Air Force and receives a great deal of support from the Air Force Association through Arnold Air Society sponsorship.

The purpose of Angel Flight is to further the cause of the United States Air Force by promoting the interest of the college man in the AFROTC program.

Angel Flights across the nation are gaining recognition through their many versatile and varied activities. These activities range from participation in parades and special ceremonies to serving as hostesses and co-sponsor the many Air Force ROTC, Arnold Air Society and university functions conducted on many campuses.

"The members of the FSU Angel Flight are very proud of the small part they play in this dynamic Air Force program, and are continuously appreciative of the new experience and friendships which they have gained through their memberships," states Miss Lewis.

Campbell To Address Patrol

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, former president of FSU, will deliver the commencement address tomorrow when the Florida Highway Patrol will graduate 41 new recruit patrolmen.

Dr. Campbell was president of the university at the time the Highway Patrol established a permanent training base here in 1954 and delivered the graduation day address before a group of trainees who attended classes during September and October of 1955.

The current class of trainees now rounding out their last week of a 12 week school which started on July 8, is the 23rd recruit class. Before the Patrol opened a school here, several other classes had been graduated in various parts of the state where schools were held prior to the location of a permanent site in the Capitol City.

Col. H. N. Kirkman, director of the Department of Public Safety, will give out diplomas on graduation day at the University School auditorium on FSU's main campus.

Weekend

Today

An informal AFROTC dance will be held at 8 p.m. in the Suwannee Room. There will not be a charge and uniforms will not be worn.

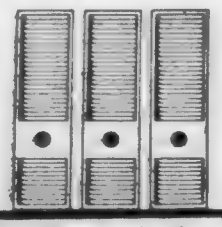
'Boys Night Out' To Show Tonight

Tickets for this week's campus movie to be shown only on Friday night, are available all day today at the ticket office in Westcott.

Office will remain open until 4 p.m. and will reopen at 6:45 p.m. until the movie begins.



Tonight's movie, "Boys Night Out" is the story of three married men and one bachelor who decide that life is too slow to suit any of them. They decide the best way to liven things up is to introduce a beautiful blond onto the scene (Kim Novak). Her intentions do not coincide with theirs, but the fun doesn't really begin until the wives invade the scene. The antics of the poor fellows when befronted with the beautiful girl are enough to keep one laughing the entire movie.

Maybe this is using a pretty face to get attention, but so be it. The Flambeau is announcing a photo contest and what more appropriate headline than a photography. There will be no prizes for this contest and the pictures won't even run in a national magazine (which means you can get away with more). The judges will be only as impartial as partial people can be. All any "arty" (pronounced ah-tee) student, staff or faculty member need do is have his masterpiece in the Flambeau office by 6 p.m. on any Friday. Weekly contests will be judged over the weekend and the winning picture printed in Monday's Flambeau. All weekly winners will be batched together in December and a trimester winner will be chosen. There might even be an annual winner but probably not a decade winner as everyone would have graduated by then anyway. To better fulfill it's responsibilities to the student body of FSU the Flambeau is now providing a soap box for photographers too (socialist or otherwise). (Photo by Frank Cabrera)

Heavy Smokers Cut Down By Using 'Group Therapy'

Heavy smokers are being helped to cut out cigarettes by the "group therapy" methods made famous by Alcoholics Anonymous.

Many of the ideas developed in the group approach can successfully be used by individuals who want to give up smoking on their own.

An October Reader's Digest article reports on the new method, which was developed by British doctors and is now being applied at 18 anti-smoking clinics throughout Great Britain. Author of the article is Glorida Emerson, an erstwhile two-and-a-half-pack-a-day smoker who has not had a cigarette in the last eight months.

First step in her battle against smoking was to list her reasons for wanting to give up the habit. "I wrote down eight reasons, beginning with a bad cough," she said. "For the first time I knew I really wanted to stop."

Other reasons might range from how much money you can save to how much longer you can live.

Another helpful idea is to buy the brand of cigarettes that you like least rather than your favorite kind. Also, delay smoking for as long as possible after meals and at other times when a cigarette is customary. Keeping cigarettes out of easy reach will help, too.

Following these rules will make it easy to cut down on cigarettes. Gloria Emerson went from 50 a day to just seven. But giving up entirely is another matter. "The prospect of never tasting another cigarette made me quake," she writes. "I couldn't bring myself to say I was ready to stop."

Here again the doctors have good advice. Select a date to quit when you have no pressing business or social engagements coming up, when life will be peaceful. Once the date is set--stick to it!

After you've stopped smoking, other tips can help you stay "on the wagon." Get plenty of fresh air. Don't let yourself get hungry; carrying a piece of dried fruit to munch on will help. Get up and do something active after meals when the urge to smoke is great.

thing active after meals when the urge to smoke is great.

Giving up smoking on your own is tougher than doing it with others in a "we're all in this together" atmosphere. But curing yourself of the habit can be a richly rewarding experience. Says Gloria Emerson: "The rust is gone from my throat, my hands and nerves are steadier, and my nose can really smell again."

And while it is not easy to stop, the total effect is "no more harrowing than a bad cold," wrote this confirmed non-smoker.

Piccard To Speak At FSO Meeting

Dr. Paul J. Piccard, director of the FSU Honors Program, will be guest speaker at the Foundation Scholarship Organization awards convocation Monday night.

Presiding at the 7:30 meeting in Longmire Auditorium will be Dr. Mode L. Stone, dean of the School of Education. Evelyn Jones, president of the F.S.O. Inter House Council, will present academic awards to outstanding Foundation students.

Honors students, Honors professors and other faculty members may attend.

The convocation is sponsored by the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation, Inc. and the F.S.O. Inter House Council. There will be a reception in the Club Room after the convocation.

Asian Scholarships Now Available

Applications for scholarships for graduate study in Asia are now available; for eligibility requirements and details regarding application, students should contact Prof. George Lensen, the Fulbright Program Adviser, in 219 History.

Opportunities in various countries include:

Malaya: Geography, Malay studies, Southeast Asian History. Students should be able to carry out independent research with little supervision.

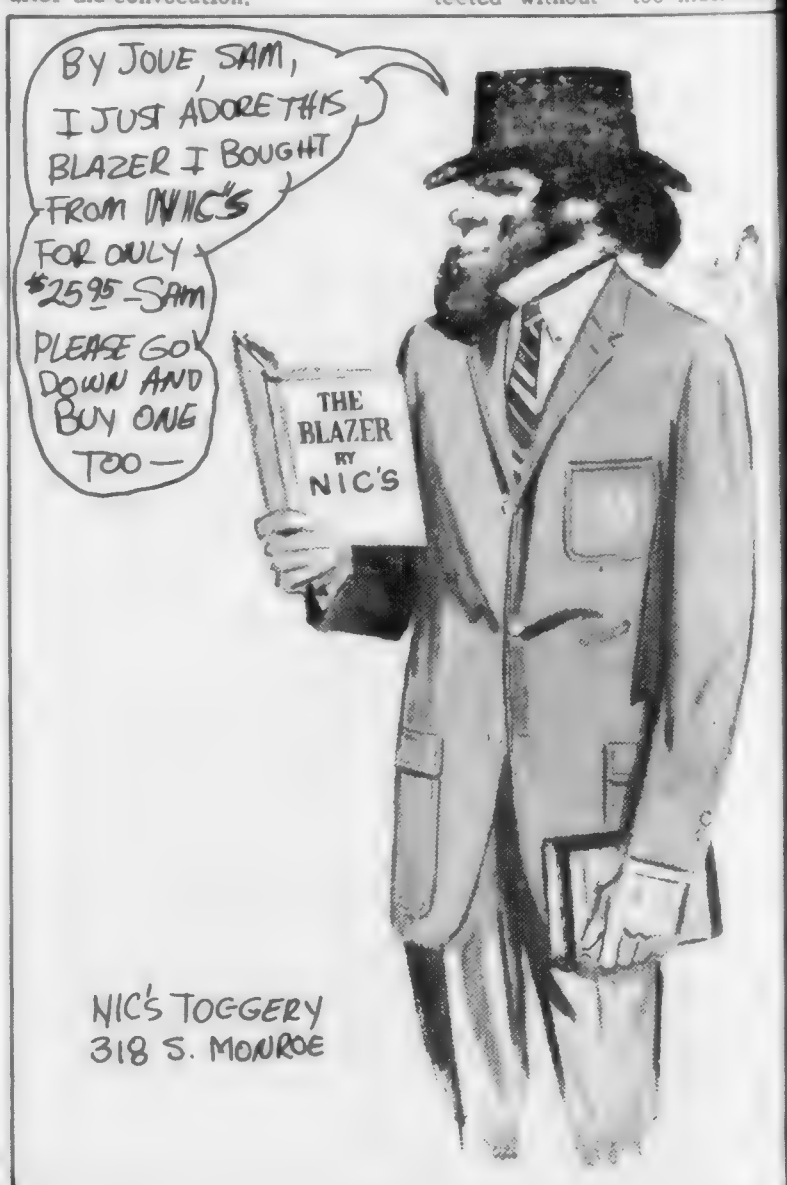
Nepal: Anthropology, Folklore, and Nepalese studies. English is sufficient, except in those fields or projects which require the use of a native language. Qualified students will spend from six months to a year in Nepal, attached to, but not restricted to, the University, and grantees will be put in touch with qualified experts in their fields.

Pakistan: Archaeology, Architecture, Art history, Bengali folklore, Economics, Engineering, Geography, History, Islamic studies, Linguistics (Bengali, Paschto, Urdu), Mathematics, Muslim art and architecture. First-year graduate students will be required to attend class regularly. It is preferable for such students to enroll in a program leading to a graduate degree from a Pakistani university, but this is not absolutely required. Training for the Master's and Doctoral degrees usually requires two years of study. Upon presentation of satisfactory academic progress, renewal for a second year may be given.

The Foundation in Pakistan will make whatdver arrangements seem most suitable to it for any students who have already done some graduate work in the United States, and students must abide by these arrangements.

Married students may now apply for Pakistan. Students who, upon arrival in Pakistan, can submit proof that they have received their doctoral degrees since applying, or have been admitted to doctoral candidacy and have completed all requirements except the writing of their dissertations, will receive a higher stipend.

Philippines: Anthropology, Archaeology, Asian arts and crafts, Botany, Chemistry, Comparative literature and folklore, Economics, Education, Ethnology, Geography, Geology, History, Industrial research, Law, Linguistics, Medical science, Meteorology, Musicology, Oceanography, Paleontology, Philosophy, Political science, Psychology, Sociology, Vocanology, and Zoology.



English fulfills the language requirement, except for historical research in the Spanish period of Philippine history which requires a reading knowledge of Spanish. Laboratory facilities for the natural sciences and technical fields are scarce. Students should be prepared to do original research rather than academic course work.

The deadline for application is October 10.

The firm puts the need of rehabilitation paramount over and above special skills of the individual. The fact that occasional relapses will be experienced by the alcoholic while in treatment is accepted. The worker is placed first on an unskilled job, but once rehabilitated he is aimed for skilled work, if possible.

There is an absence of a supervisory training program, but supervisors lend support to the individual in dealing with problems. Affiliation with Alcoholics Anonymous and Florida Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program is not required of employes, but encouraged. Alcohol is never served at company functions nor do the firm's salesmen use alcohol to entertain customers. Alcohol is not honored on expense accounts.

Dana's study quotes Ernest A. Shepherd, former administrator of the state's Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, as saying that two-thirds of the adult population drink alcoholic beverages and one out of every sixteen who drinks is an alcoholic. Number of alcoholics employed in Florida is about three per cent of the total working population.

The US Public Health Service rates alcoholism fourth as a health problem, below heart disease, cancer and mental health. Alcoholic employes lose 36 million working days and about $500 million in wages per year. About $500 for each of some two million problem drinkers is lost by industry yearly.

In the early and middle stages of alcoholism the problem drinker continues to work. He is often a long-time employee with skills, experience, and management know-how and he exists at all levels of employment.

Rehabilitation of alcoholics in Florida is supported by 20 per cent of the entire state tax on alcoholic beverages, as well as by gifts and grants. Direct cost of problem drinking in industry are man-hours lost, medical, replacing trained employes, and disability.

Indirect costs are maintaining public institutions with tax monies to deal with the problem, adverse effect on the morale of workers, reducing productivity, and increased waste and scrap.

Labor unions see the need for a joint labor-management approach to the problem of alcoholism. Labor already views the problem drinker as an afflicted human being and is interested in restoring him to usefulness in industry and to the community. If either labor or management goes it alone suspicion arises.

The alcoholic depends more on industry for his livelihood than he does upon society for acceptance of his drinking habits. So, rehabilitation attempts are more successful in industry than in any other segment of the population.

Numerous companies have included the alcoholic in their sickness and disability benefits. Companies such as Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co,, Eastman Kodak, Western Electric, Consolidated Edison Co., Standard Oil Co., Sperry, and Firestone have rehabilitation programs going that demand cooperation of the alcoholic and eventual dismissal. Pioneer in the field was E.I. DuPont de Nemours. Counseling, psychiatric treatment and cooperation with agencies round out the programs.

Florida's program plans for prevention, care, treatment, and rehabilitation at Avon Park, with outpatient clinics and education programs available.

Making use of one of the library's new docustats is Joan Kohne as she copies pages from a reference book for one of her calsses.

Library Gets Two Docustats

Two new photocopy machines, for quick duplication of books, magazines, and documents, have been installed on the first and third floors of the library.

The photocopy machines copy anything up to 10 inches by 14 inches placed on its glass top and delivers an 8 1/2 inches by 11 inches copy in 30 seconds for 25¢.

The machines were bought to help keep students from mutilating books and have been used heavily in their first week of operation.

Fund Raising Needs Approval

All student organizations or groups planning fund raising activities of any type are requied to get such projects approved by the student government funds committee.

This requirement is set by university regulations and by the Student Body statutes.

Bill Branch, Secretary of Finance, has reported that in the past there has been negligence in compliance with this regulation. Campus groups not complying with these regulations will be subject to punitive action.

The rules apply to social and honorary fraternities, departmental organizations, scholarship houses and religious groups when the sale of tickets is involved.

Information and necessary forms concerning compliance with these regulations may be obtained in room 210, Longmire.

Tom Adams Withdraws From Governor's Race

(This is the first of a weekly nonpartisan series on events in Florida government, provided by the FSU Political Union.)

By JACK BAIRD

The field of Democratic hopefuls for the position of governor of Florida has apparently been reduced to four with the withdrawal of Secretary of State Tom Adams from the race.

Adams in a formal statement is quoted as saying that he felt "sure he could win" but that it would take his "full time and attention' and this would "impair his office of Secretary of State."

Adams had earlier said that he would run if there was enough support behind him.

The withdrawal of Adams leaves four unannounced candidates--they are Rep. Fred Karl, Daytona Beach; Sen. Scott Kelly, Lakeland; Mayor Haydon Burns, Jacksonville; Attorney Fred Dickinson, West Palm Beach.

Sen. John Mathews, Jr., of Jacksonville, is now able to run for governor. This was the verdict of the State Supreme Court in a four to three decision. Mathews has said that he will run.

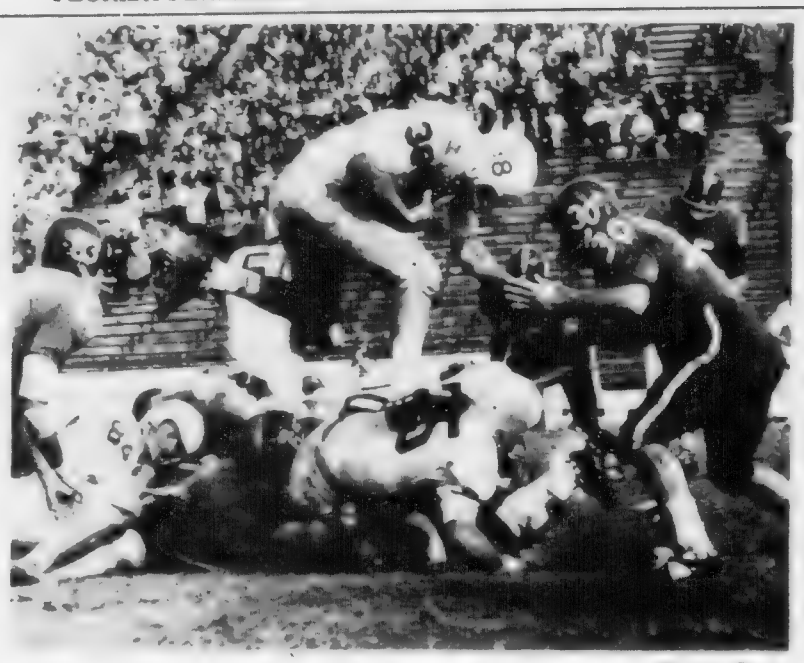
FAUVER

Horned Frogs To Be Hard Hitters

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer



Led by fullback Tommy Crutcher, the TCU offense is a grind-it-out offense. They play it "Texas Style."

The problem spot is quarterback. At quarterback Coach Abe Martin is faced with the task of finding a replacement of graduated Sonny Gibbs. Gibbs completed 52% of his passes for 1013 yards and nine TD's. He also ran for 247 yards third best on the team. His two replacements, Gary Mills and Ronnie Howard, ran for 47 yards and completed only two out of eleven for only twenty three years. A third quarterback Kent Nix, is up from the freshman team where he completed 48% of his passes for 685 yards and three TD's.

In the Kansas game Mills got the starting shot and handled it ably. Coach Don James said that he handled the team well and has a strong arm. He completed four out of nine for 53 yards. Howard also showed real well in the Kansas game. He ran for 20 yards and a 5.0 average and completed two out of two for 27 yards.

These fellows will have fine people to throw to however. Senior end Tom Magoffin led the Southwest Conference in receiving with 32 catches and 430 yards. Lynn Morris caught only one pass last year, but was schackled with injuries. He lead the team the year before. Reserve Bill Bowers caught six, and freshman Joe Ball and Larry Perry caught 15 and 13 respectively.

The fullback spot will be no problem so long as Joe Crutcher remains healthy. This lad averaged five yards a carry last year gaining 533 yards. He caught three passes for 16 more. In the Kansas game he ran for 90 yards and a 4.7 average. He also caught two passes for 23 yards and scored the only TD. The reserves are sophomores Carroll Dubose and Ernest Bayer. Dubors is a converted quarterback from Denver. He gained 14 yards in three carried against KU.

Harriers To Open Schedule Today

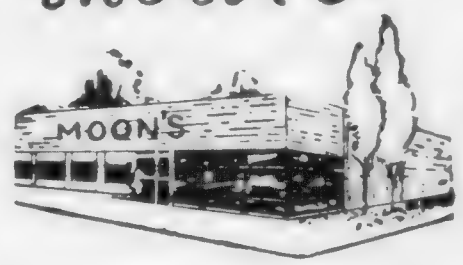
Florida State's young cross-country team, seeking its first win ever, kick off the 1963 season in a three-way meet here Friday (Sept. 27) with Central Florida Junior College of Ocala. The FSU varsity and freshman teams will run against Central Florida over a three-and-a-half mile course that winds through the University athletic plant.

It's the opener for all three teams involved. Coach Mike Long's FSU Seminoles enter their second year of intercollegiate competition; they dropped four meets in four outings last year.

Long, who has been tutoring Seminole cindermen for nine years, has two seniors, Jim Lankford of Shreveport, La., and Dick Roberts of St. Petersburg, back from last year's team.

"We didn't win a meet last year when we were just getting started," Long said this week, "and I think we will definitely be improved this season."

Long, whose FSU track teams have lost only seven of 46 dual meets, explained that the cross-country program is being instituted to strengthen the varsity distance runners, particularly those who will compete in the mile and two-mile runs when the track season rolls around in the Spring.



A schedule of eight meets, including home-and-home engagements with Florida, Miami, and Troy (Ala.) State have been arranged. Central Florida comes here again on Oct. 25.

The complete schedule includes Central Fla. JC, Fri., Sept. 27, Tallahassee; Miami, Sat., Oct. 12, Coral Gables; Florida, Mon., Oct. 14, Gainesville; Central Fla. JC, Fri., Oct. 25, Tallahassee; Troy State, Wed., Nov. 6, Tallahassee; Miami, Sat., Nov. 9, Tallahassee; Florida, Sat., Nov. 16, Tallahassee; Troy State, Sat., Dec. 7, Troy, Ala.

Also on the track scene, Al Williams, Florida State's 230-pound weight man, who heaved the shot 59 feet, 10 inches last year for the longest shot put in the South's history and fourth place finisher in last year's NCAA Track and Field Championships in the shot put, dropped a discus on his toe the other day. The cut required 11 stitches.

THIS IS WHAT THE PARENTS WANT

. . according to the commencement poll taken last summer. The parents voted have commencement exercises at each graduation.

Parents Want Exercise For Every Graduation

An overwhelming majority (441 to 144) of the parents of the Senior Class in a poll conducted this summer favored separate commencement exercises for their son or daughter regardless of the month of graduation.

Parents opinions were expressed in a poll originated by a committee on the commencement problem composed of Dr. R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Students; Tommy Waits, Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association; and Luther Kramer, Secretary of Internal Affairs.

The poll cost over $118 and was financed by Student Government. Parents returned 593 questionnaires out of 1800 sent out, or 33.7%

Parents commented that a ceremony is a deserved and traditional token of the sacrifice and hard work involved in a college education. 278 parents thought receiving a diploma by mail would be objectionable, while 308 found it acceptable.

Non-April graduates returning for an April ceremony was definitely ruled out when 451 parents said their son or daughter would be unwilling to return in that situation, while 131 said their son or daughter might return. 321 parents would be satisfied by a token ceremony without diplomas, while 242 wouldn't.

The most discussion was raised by the question of three separate commencement exercises. Secretary of Internal Affairs, Kramer commented, "This office will continue to do all within its power to obtain three ceremonies per year; that is, one per trimester."

Three ceremonies would involve considerable cost, Kramer noted. A ceremony in Westcott would cost $235; in Tully Gymnasium, it would cost $920; in Campbell Stadium, it would cost $1,125.

There are also speakers fees, which run from $1,500 to $3,000, and the reception at the President's home which costs $250. Three exercises would run from $1,500 to $13,200.

Dr. Mode L. Stone, dean of the FSU School of Education and president of the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation, accepted the key and presented it to Michael B. Phillips, a Lions Scholarship recipient.

Stone declared that the loss of human talent is one of the worst social maladies of our times, and stressed the need for providing opportunities for developing this talent. Phillips expressed the appreciation of the scholarship recipients.

Walter R. Lee, Jr., governor of Lions District 35L, presided over the ceremonies. Dr. Otis McBride delivered an invocation and David Kaden, coordinator of the Lions Scholarship Effort of Jacksonville, pronounced the benediction.

Special guests were the presidents of the five Jacksonville Lions Clubs which are sponsoring the scholarship house: James H. Scroggins, Jr., Arlington Club; Roy C. Kuhns, Downtown Club; George C. Bevis, Jr., Riverside Club; Jack M. Courtnay, Southside Club, and Thomas A. Cantlon , Springfield Club.

Lectures Start Tonight

'Sex In Context' To Open Series

The Religion in Life Series will present lectures on "Sex in Context" beginning tonight at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Each trimester the university committee on religious affairs chooses a distinguished religious leader from different parts of the United States. For the fall trimester Reverend Harry E. Smith, campus pastor at the University of North Carolina, was chosen to deliver a series of talks to FSU students.

The first one to be given is entitled "Being Male and Female in American Culture." It will be an analysis using recent movies, novels, and magazines to show the prevailing attitudes toward sex.

On Tuesday at 4 p.m. the topic will be "The Religious Perspective in Sex" and at 8 p.m. "Sex and Selfhood on the Campus" will be discussed.

Reverend Smith is a native of Austin, Texas, having received his B.A. from the University of Texas in 1950. Yale University conferred upon him the Bachelor of Divinity degree in 1953, and since that time he has received Kent, Drew and Danforth Fellowships for further graduate study.

Articles by Smith have appeared in Intercollegian Motive, Student World, the Christian Scholar, Encounter and Frontiers. Among the positions he has held are National Chairman, Student YMCA, chairman for the United Student Christian Council, delegate to Oslo Conference, Acting Associate Secretary, United Student Christian Council and chairman of the study committee, USCC.

"As Presbyterian Campus Pastor at the University of North Carolina, the Reverend Smith has demonstrated a keen understanding both of student life and of theology, and his effective linking of the two realms has earned him wide recognition as one of the ablest campus ministers in the country," said Dr. Paul Minus, university chaplain.

Control Board ReconsidersHike

The State Board of Control went into closed session in Gainesville Friday to reconsider recommendations for salary hikes for university personnel which state officials have rejected.

After a six hour meeting the board agreed to change it's position on 27 of the proposed pay increases but refused to alter 89 others.

The board originally proposed increases for 156 top ranking university personnel that amountcd to $214,000. However, State Budget Director Harry Smith cut this figure to $110,000 and refused to approve 116 of the boards proposed pay raises.

The State Cabinet suggested that the board reconsider it's proposed pay increases. Even after the changes made at the meeting Friday the board and Smith are still separated by $85,000. The matter is now in the state cabinet's hands.

Most of the changes made by the board will affect only administrative and non-academic personnel.

The board could not accept Smith's suggestion that FSU football coach Bill Peterson be given a raise of $1,000 and instead boosted his salary by $1,500 to $17,500.

There were two men absent from the board meeting leaving 5 men to vote on the changes.

Knowledge For College

Knowledge for College test will be given to all freshmen and new transfer women students tomorrow at Westcott Auditorium between 5 and 6:30 p.m.

Enliven Campaigns

In the midst of listening to another batch of routine, unexciting campaign speeches during the past two weeks, it was a welcome change to encounter a real live-wire campaign technique.

We are referring to the campaign of two candidates for day-student senators, Ed Scott and Lee Farmer. Both men are transfers from Daytona Beach Junior College, where they were active student leaders. When they decided to run for office at FSU, they had the idea of brightening up their campaigns by asking a folk-singing group they had known in Daytona to entertain the residents of various off-campus houses.

The entertainment was a tremendous success. The folk singers were good, and their audiences were receptive to the candidates as they gave out campaign literature. The senatorial candidates scored again in serenading several Foundation Scholarship houses, which they knew are not included in the day student precinct. Although unable to vote for Scott and Farmer, the scholarship students unknowingly did a fine job of publicizing the two, snowballing a word-of-mouth campaign.

Whether their unique campaign technique was instrumental in getting the two candidates elected is a moot point, but election results give at least a hint--Scott and Farmer polled the two highest vote totals.

We are not trying to imply by any means that the two candidates in question are the best qualified and most competent students who ran in this precinct. We certainly hope that the qualifications they were able to give justified their victory.

We also credit FSU's student voters with more sense than to be taken in completely by every eye-catching or ear-catching device candidates may employ. We hope each student attempts to acquaint himself at election time with the merits and abilities of each candidate running for whom he might vote.

But elections in general might be more enthusiastic and exciting if more candidates had the political savoir faire to use this sort of interest-stimulating campaign technique.

Atty. General Defends Block Seating

To the Editor:

A question has arisen concerning block seating at football games. I would like to begin by making known the original purpose of block seating.

The idea was conceived to promote spirit and enthusiasm, and I feel that no matter where a group may sit in the stadium, their being together and cheering together is more important than where they are located. The purpose is not to get a block as close to the midfield stripe as possible.

It must be quite evident to the students of this campus that the space given to block seating is quite limited. It is limited because of all intents and purposes these seats are for Greek organizations. Wanting to be fair to all student involved, we gave sixty yards of the choicest seats to general seating, and forty to the blocks. In effect, then, we have given a major portion of the best stadium seats to the general admission students.

The blocks were originated [illegible] Greek organizations, since they provide the larger part of spirit [illegible] support at athletic events. Because of their displayed spirit, other organizations were also given blocks from time to time. We were faced with the problem of which organizations would be allowed to have blocks and which ones would not. We consulted with the President of the Student Body and we decided to allow only those organizations that were on file as officially recognized student organizations that had registered for block seats.

I would like to add that the reason we limit the blocks to certain groups is due to a lack of space. If we could more seats for blocks, we would be glad to arrange blocks for all groups. But, since the problem of more space is not an easy task as first supposed, we will have to be content with the present situation until we can obtain more seats.

Poor Voter Turnout Is Indication Of Apathy

For anyone who is concerned in the political life of this campus or in trying to serve the student body through student government must surely be discouraged at the poor showing in the recent elections. If anyone things that student government is "mickey mouse" (and I don't think it is) then the blame must largely rest upon the entire student body for its poor, poor response in the recent election.

The class officer's race still attracts many honorable men, "so are they all honorable men" according to Shakespeare's Antony. Despite the fact that this is the last year of their reign on this campus the glory and glamour of these positions seems to attract noble, sacrificing, selfless individual. The Great Calling of "making their class great" by holding two or three dances and a few parties each year appears unresistable.

So we say, "good luck and may the 'good that you do not be interred with your bones.'"

Greek Week begins this Saturday and runs till next Saturday. Actually this is the beginning of the Rites of Bacchus celebrating the successful conclusion of two previous weeks of worship to the Greek God of Rush. Well, happy partying, Boys and Girls.

Student Government poll takers are at work in the dorms and other living areas, trying to determine the opinions and attitudes of the student body on the issue of whether off-campus restaurants should serve FSU Negro students. This is a good move and one that we hope will elicit the honest response of all those polled. We also hope that this means that student government is going to take a stand on this problem. Certainly this way is risky and there are probably reasons why nothing much has been said by student government. But they should realize that the issue is going to be kept alive, if only by the Negroes themselves, and that by not exercising any leadership they may be abdicating their responsibility to the entire student body.

The biggest guessing game around the second floor of Longmire these days is "When is Student Senate going to meet?" Traditionally senate has met at least once before the class and precinct elections. This year they haven't and to top it off opinions are in short order as to just when senate will meet. Even most senators don't seem to know.

Test Ban Is Morally Right

Mr. Garner's article "Birchers Veto Test Treaty" presents a classic example of the type of thinking that motivates the radical right. The arguments presented by the Birchers are contradictory and lack any logical development from premise to conclusion.

"The important question about any proposed action, by man or by a nation, is not 'Is it smart?' but 'Is it right?'" This is, I believe, the point of the Garner article. Certainly, I would have not objection to an ethical rule which stated that people should act in accordance to 'moral' propositions and judgments as opposed to selfish interests which are 'smart' only in respect to the amount of success that they bring to the few individuals that happen to perform the actions.

If this were what the Birchers were maintaining few would differ with them. However the main reasons that Garner cites against the Test Ban Treaty is that it is not 'smart.' He says that the Russians "...enter into treaties only for the advantages to themselves." Clearly he thinks that it is not 'smart' for us to help Russians since we are supposedly in some sort of cold war with them. He also says that they don't keep treaties--this implies that it is not 'smart' to trust Russians.

It is also pointed out that this Test Ban will aid the Soviets with respect to their 'strained economic conditions,' and with the 'ideological differences with Red China.' Clearly Garner is stating that it is not 'smart' to aid the enemy--surely it cannot be morally wrong to give aid and comfort to anyone, friend or foe.

What does he find 'morally' wrong with this treaty? It is wrong because Russians are 'murderers.' This is his whole point. If this is his reasoning then out go all treaties with Germans, French, English, Polish, Italians, Indians (including the American variety), Dutch and every other nationality.

I cannot find where the Russians have been any more prone to murder than any other large group of people, either in the present or in the past. I suggest that the Birchers have no good moral position against the Test Ban. Whether the treaty is 'smart' or not is another question which, I believe, has been answered by the Senate.

Branch Campuses Aid State Universities

State universities can't expand their main campuses much more, so they're moving their campuses to the students.

A new survey by the Joint Office of Institutional Research showed that 39 state-supported schools now operate 362 branches in 39 states. More than half the member schools are going all-out for what are called "Community Colleges" in Alaska, "Commonwealth Campuses" in Pennsylvania, "Off-Campus Centers" in Wisconsin, "Lower Division Centers" in Kentucky and "Regional Campuses" in Indiana.

No matter what they're called, they all are schools stripped of non-essentials to provide higher education to commuting students at the lowest possible cost.

They differ from junior colleges in that they are run by their parent universities and so must maintain high standards because they share academic staffs with their parent universities.

They also share teachers. Ohio State President Novice Fawcett, in discussing his school's branches recently, said young teachers "go to the branches for seasoning and then can be brought up to the main campus, much like rookies in big league baseball."

The poll found that on 139 undergraduate campuses, schools are offering at least two years of a regular four-year course to full-time students.

At 91 extension centers, schools are offering degree-credit courses, usually in late afternoon and evening to part-time students, many of whom are older than usual college students.

Two-year schools at technical institutes are offering technical courses to full-time students who get an associate (two-year) degree on graduation.

The branches' effect is typified in Wisconsin. There, eight freshmen-sophomore campuses' enrollment was up 71 percent from the fall of 1958 to the fall of 1962.

In comparison, enrollment of students in the first two years at the main Madison campus was up 35 percent.

State university officials say the branches let "slow blooming" students get to college, for if state schools had to raise their admission standards further, many "slow bloomers" might never go to college.

Tennessee Williams' provocative "Summer and Smoke" will be the first University Theatre production of the season on Oct. 9-13, and two Tallahassee children, Ricky Fallon and Delia Bell Shaw will have the roles of the principal characters in the play, Alma and John, when they were children. Here rehearsing a scene are (left to right) Ricky Fallon; Jo Stripling, the grown up Alma in the play; Delia Shaw; and Al Smelko who plays grown up John.

Agency To Offer Summer Employment Opportunities

The United States Information Agency again plans to offer trainee programs in its Broadcasting Service and Television Service during the summer of 1964.

Applicants for these summer programs should be pursuing college courses in such fields as communications, journalism, foreign affairs, government, foreign language and/or area studies or other relevant fields. Only persons who plan to return to school in the fall will be considered for the summer trainee programs.

Candidates for the agency's summer trainee program must first qualify on the Federal Service Entrance Examination, which conducted by the Civil Service Commission. Announcements of the examination are available at College Placement offices, first or second class Post offices and regional offices of the Civil Service Commission.

Applicants for the Radio Trainee Program must apply for the Federal Service Entrance Examination before Dec. 19, 1963, and must submit application materials to this agency with a copy of their notice of eligibility in the written examination no later than Feb. 21, 1964. Applicants for the Television Trainee Program must apply for the FSEE no later than Jan. 16, 1964, and must submit applications to the agency by March 1, 1964.

For complete information about application procedure, interested persons should write to:

NSA Applications Available

Applications are not available for National Security Agency's Professional Qualification Test, which is to be administered on the campus of FSU on Oct. 26, 1963.

Unusual and challenging careers to college graduates at all levels from the baccalaureate to the doctorate are offered by the National Security Agency. The wide variety of NSA duties and the changing needs for projects require specialists who are not only well trained but who also possess a high degree of flexibility and ingenuity. The Professional Qualification Test has been especially constructed to provide data to supplement other available information, such as college records, recommendation and interviews.

College graduates with majors from many liberal arts fields can be utilized by NSA. Any U.S. citizen and holder of, or candidate for, at least a bachelor's degree by September, 1964, is eligible to take the Professional Qualification Test. Engineering, mathematics and physics applicants need not take the PQT, but should contact the Placement Director for an appointment with a visiting NSA representative.

Deadline for receipt of applications is Oct. 16, 1963.

Club To Sponsor Mrs. FSU Contest

The Dames Club is sponsoring the Mrs. FSU contest again this year. It will be Friday, Oct. 25 in Longmire Auditorium. All girls married to a full-time student are eligible. She may be a student herself.

The deadline for entering is Wednesday, Oct. 9. For additional information contact Mrs. [illegible], 224-8906, after 5 p.m. weekdays, or anytime during the weekends.

Many prizes are in store for the winner. This contest is open to the public.

September May Lose Out As Opening School Month

June may eventually replace the traditional September entry date for incoming freshmen.

A Joint Office survey shows that growing numbers of freshmen are choosing to enter state universities immediately after high school graduation. Emphasis on year-round campus operation and a desire on the part of students to speed up their college course has resulted in a trend which is picking up momentum.

Of 54 state universities and land-grant institutions surveyed, voluntary freshmen enrollment in June increased at 19 institutions, remained unchanged at 21, and decreased at eight. Only six institutions admitted no freshmen in June. Some dozen institutions, which have been encouraging freshmen to enter in June, reported a gradual increase in numbers enrolling over the past several summers.

Four institutions reported that they planned to try to attract June entrants within the next few years. Two institutions reported offering small scholarships to stimulate June entry. Of fifteen institutions which distributed literature to high school students and briefed high school counselors in an effort to encourage qualified freshmen to enroll in June, seven were successful in increasing enrollments.

Although the actual numerical increase in 1963 over previous years ranged from a small one to 35 per cent. Five institutions which tried to attract freshmen in the summer found that a smaller number enrolled that year. One institution, which had never permitted freshmen to enroll in June, encouraged them to do so in 1963 and found that only a few responded. Two institutions which were geared for June enrollment saw no changed in the number of freshmen enrolling.

Freshmen summer enrollment was found to be related to economic conditions by several institutions. One, for example, asserted that a higher freshman enrollment in June was due to a lack of job opportunities

Faculty, Students To Meet Over Net

A faculty-student mixed doubles tennis tournament will be held by the Racquettes Oct. 1. The event is sponsored by the Racquettes to better acquaint faculty and student tennis enthusiasts.

A player need not be of Wimbledon quality to enter. Staff members and faculty wives are also eligible to play.

An entry fee of 25¢ per person can be paid at the Montgomery Gymnasium.

Players without partners will be assigned partners as long as the supply lasts. Each team should bring a new can of balls.

Gymkana Meeting

There will be a general meeting of all those interested in Gymkana Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Tully Gym. All those interested in working on the show may attend.

Trophies will be given again this year to the sorority and fraternity contributing the most work on the production. Tabulation of points for the trophies begins today. All Greeks interested in participating may contact Dr. Price at Tully Gym.

Music Recital To Be Friday

The School of Music will hold a certificate recital on Friday evening, at 8:15 p.m. in the studio of Ramona Beard, Opperman Music Hall.

Ann M. Balkcom and Richard L. Fleshren will be featured at the organ. Miss Balkcom is from Georgetown, Ga., and Fleshren is a graduating senior from Illinois.

The program will include Prelude in A Minor by Marcello, Basse et Dessus de Trompette by Clerambault, Prelude and Fugue in C Minor by Bach, Piece Heroique by Franck, Le Banquet Celeste by Messiaen, Christ ist Erstanden by Schroeder played by Fleshren. Miss Balkcom will play Passacaglia by Buxtehude, Prelude and Fugue in G Major by Bach, Desseins Eternals by Messiaen, Litanies by Alain.

Hess Speaks To Hillel On Changes In Judaism

Reform and adaptation to changing conditions characterize the history of the Jewish religion, Dr. Seymour Hess, of the Meteorology Dept., told members of Hillel student organization yesterday.

The speaker pointed out that, in spite of the great changes made in Judaism, two central themes ran through its monotheism, a belief in one God, and a code of ethics, which determined the behavior of man towards man.

Hess said that youth needs some traditional religion, but religion also needs youth, for its vitality and exuberance to keep religion alive and responsive.

"Each great period in the Jewish history has been known for its significant reforms. The Biblical period meant the era when a code of ethics was given to a savage world. Justice, mercy and ethics were to substitute for cruelty," Hess declared.

During the Talmudic period, the great reform was the application and interpretation of the laws to the life of the times. General principles had been laid down; now came the period of applying them to everyday life.

In the diaspora, or era of dispersion to all corners of the earth the problem was to select and emphasize certain of the laws. These tended to preserve the Jewish group as an entity.

In the modern era, the great reform was the development of Conservative and Reform Judaism. "The Orthodox group represent the direct ancestors of the previous periods. The orthodox believe that the laws ought to be adhered to strictly. Modifications are made by additions, not subtractions.

"The Conservative Jews take a middle course, contending that we must look carefully at each proposed change, before we take a step. The reform group say keep the basic spirit and idea but adapt religion to the times," the speaker asserted.

Hess made a plea for great tolerance among all the branches of Judaism, pointing out that each group has much to contribute."

Dr. Sidney Kobre, counselor, reported on the work of the FSU Religious Council in connection with the desegregation of nearby restaurants, referring to the article in the "Flambeau" by Editor Lana Murray. The Hillel group voted to support the Religious Council in seeking a peaceful solution to the restaurant problem.

Law Society

The Pre-Law Society of FSU will have a board meeting this Thursday evening in Room 202 of Longmire from 7 p.m. to 8:15.

This meeting will make plans for a general meeting to be held in the near future. Old members and new friends may attend.

Woodrow Wilson Applications Due

Nominations for the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowships should be made no later than Oct. 31, Weymouth T. Jordan, the representative of the Foundation on the FSU campus has announced.

Candidates may be nominated by any faculty member.

The purpose of the Fellowship Foundation is to attract men and women to the profession of college teaching. The Foundation annually awards fellowships to 1,000 prospective first-year graduate students, and honorable mention goes to another 1,500.

Woodraw Wilson Fellows are chosen from about 10,000 candidates nominated by college faculty members in the United States and Canada. Through funds granted by the Ford Foundation, a Fellow is fully supported for one academic year at a U.S. or Canadian graduate school.

Although the Foundation primarily supports candidates in the humanities and social sciences, science and mathematics majors with a clear interest in the teaching profession may be nominated.

Students seeking graduate study in law, medicine, engineering, education, home economics, journalism, business administration and the practicing arts may not be nominated.

Other guests introduced were Mrs. Barney Denise and Mrs. Charles Thompson, presidents of Lioness Clubs actively engaged in the scholarship program; Dr. Sam Lastinger, vice president of the Foundation; Bob Carter of Jacksonville and representatives of the other Foundation scholarship houses.

Following the ceremonies, Lions and their wives were luncheon guests of the students of the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation. After the luncheon, a meeting was held for the Lions with the officers and directors of the Foundation in the University High School Auditorium for a discussion of the Foundation and the Lions Scholarship Program.

. . . COMMENCEMENT

Another objection has come from the faculty, who object to preparing early tests and grades three times a year. However, almost half of the parents polled (271) came out in favor of three commencements, commenting that graduating seniors should have equal ceremonies regardless of the month of graduation.

Kramer stated. "There are sound arguments on both sides of the question, but I feel that FSU students deserve more than a nod and a pat on the back."

Tribe Sputters In Rain

By MIKE BRADY
Flambeau Sports Writer

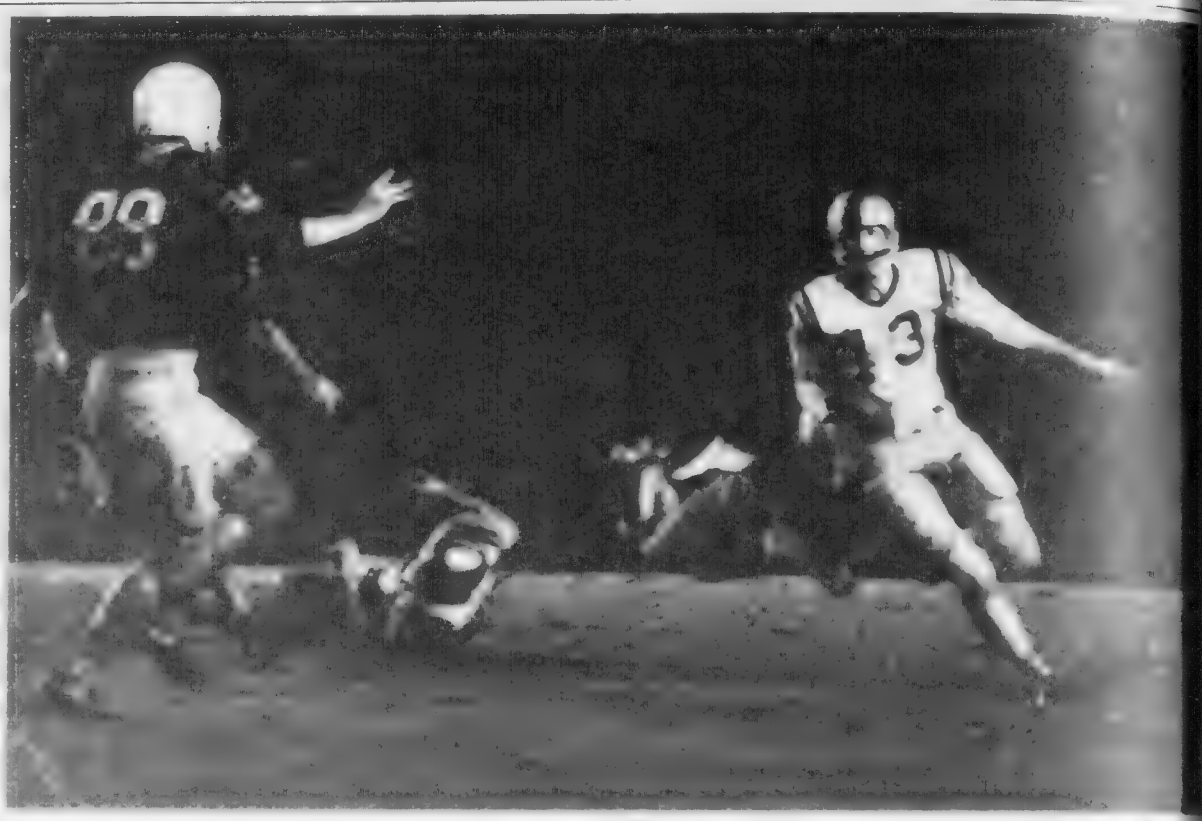
On the eve of September 28th, 16,000 avid Florida State fans turned out for a swimming meet between the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs and the Florida State Seminoles. After sloshing around in the rain and mud for an evening's entertainment, the Horned Frogs came out with a hard-earned 13-0 victory.

Jim Fauver's interception is what hurt the most, giving the Frogs a definite advantage over the Seminoles on the scoreboard as well as a morale letdown. It truly put the Tribe in a hole from which they never escaped. McAteer's conversion and field goals turned out to be mere added attractions.

Starting with the opening kickoff, the Seminoles began their 41-yard total of penalties, being penalized fifteen yards for clipping. This led to a punting situation with fourth-and-eight, [illegible] Frogs to their 39 from where they punted; a long, spiraling boot that covered all of nineteen yards to the fifty.

[illegible] the TCU thirty-nine, the Seminoles missed by inches for another first down and the Frogs took over once again. Once more they punted, and on the first play from scrimmage, Fauver intercepted Tensi's flat pass and sloshed the remaining 46 yards to the goal unmolested. McAteer's conversion made the score TCU 7, Florida State 0, at the end of the first quarter.

The second quarter opened favorably, with the Frogs punting to the Seminoles 17. State got a first down after a fifteen-yard, personal foul penalty assessed against TCU but couldn't manage a sustained drive, and once more Charlie Calhoun punted. TCU moved the ball for eight yards, lost six, then punted.



After an exchange of fumbles, State took over possession of the ball on the FSU 45. Yielding to precedent, Calhoun once more punted, to the Frog 28. The first half ended without further scoring and with little gaining with the score Texas Christian 7, Florida State 0.

Marion Roberts returned the second half kickoff to the Florida State 23, which is really remarkable, considering that he fumbled the ball before he ever got going. To keep things even, Steve Tensi dropped the ball, losing it to TCU's Magoffin to nullify a beautiful nineteen yard run by FSU's Dave Snyder. Here FSU's defense started to give, with TCU racking up three first down en route to the Seminole four; the Renegade's held there, forcing Jim McAteer to get up off the bench to boot a 24-yard field goal to up the Frog lead 10-0. The score remained the same through the remnant of the third quarter and 5:48 of the fourth until McAteer once more was forced to boot another 24-yard three-pointer.

Then, with the score 13-0 in favor of TCU, the rain stopped! Tensi and company proceeded to take fullest advantage of this opportunity by tearing up the Frog defense with three successive completions which [illegible] the Seminoles at the TCU six. But, the Horn Frog defense buckled down, stifling Pete[illegible] and Tensi for a total loss of twenty-three yards back to the State 29. Tensi attempted three last-ditch passes which fell incomplete, as did a fourth, and TCU killed all hopes of a State uprising by taking over the ball on their 29 with 39 seconds left in the game.

Overall, Steve Tensi had a very disappointing day on the ground, gaining only 30 yards; but things were different when he went airborne, where he gained 91 yards in completing 7 of 16 passes. As a team, the Seminoles gained 94 yards rushing, in comparison to TCU's 162. Charlie Calhoun dropped considerably in his punting average, booting 7 times for a 33.5 yards-per-punt average. FSU fumbled 8 times, losing 2 of them, and had one pass intercepted.

Coach Peterson had this to say about the team's performance: "There was one crucial first down which hurt us. Of course, the pass interception put us behind the eight ball at the outset of the game. I'm proud of our men; they had great desire and played good football."

Action in last Saturday's 13-0 loss to TCU: Steve Tensi gains against the [illegible] Players shown: Tensi (13), TCU's Darrell Mott (88), Ken Henson (diving) and Te[illegible] rell Taylor (85, behind Mott). Tensi completed 7 of 16 passes for 91 yards. He [illegible] one intercepted. The rain helped TCU in that it limited Tensi's passing attack to al[illegible] most nothing. Henson, shown in a diving tackle of Tensi, was a standout on defe[illegible] as well as offense. The above action happened in the third quarter of play with th[illegible] Seminoles losing at the time, 10-0.

Final date for filing e[illegible] tries into all campus i[illegible] tramurals is this Wedn[illegible] day, October 2.

College Football Action

Sooners Slap Trojans In Rose Bowl Clash

By GENE BALLARD

College football's second week was just as wild and woolly as the first with upsets, close ones, and not so close ones.

The team of the week if Oklahoma. Playing against the top ranked Trojans, the Sooners displayed a magnificent and versatile attack which destroyed the Trojan defense. Oklahoma racked up 307 yards in a splendid ball control game. The Sooner defense did a good job covering quarterback Pete Bathard. Bethard hit on 11 out of 23, but most were short on yardage.

The upset of the week will have to be Mississippi State 9, Florida 9, as Florida took another step in their bid to prove the experts wrong. But for a bobbled extra point and three field goal failures, State would have really sent the pollsters to the funny farm.

The Gators had no excuses this time. Not only could they not score from the four with a 20 pound per man advantage on the line, but on the final play of the game, Jack Harper ran into his own blocker with a clear field ahead.

In the East, the major independents, Navy, Army, Penn State, Pitt, Boston College, and Syracuse, took further strides. Army and Navy had the easiest time beating William and Mary and Cincinnati 28-0 and 22-0 respectively. Penn State and Pitt had to scramble to beat UCLA and Washington, 17-14 and 13-6. Boston College beat Wichita 22-16, and Syracuse lost to an eager Kansas 10-0.

In the Midwest's big games, Wisconsin beat Notre Dame 14-9; Northwestern 34, Indiana 21; Illinois rambled over California 10-0; Ohio State blanked Texas A&M 17-0; Minnesota was upset by Nebraska 14-7, and Washington State tied a surprised Iowa 14-14; Michigan and Michigan State beat North Carolina and SMU by scores of 31-0 and 27-16.

THE GRACIOUS GREEKS

Kohlman Selected FSU Greek Goddess

Dottie Kohlman sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega was selected by the fraternity men of FSU as the 1963-64 Greek Goddess.

Miss Kohlman was recognized at the Panhellenic-IFC tea given for independents, faculty, and Greeks Sunday in the business building lounge.

Finalists and their sponsors were Ruby Watson, Theta Chi; Sheila Clarke, Delta Tau Delta; Patsy Burnham, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Fran All, Phi Delta Theta.

Other activities scheduled for Greek Week include exchange dinners and a rally for all Greeks at Westcott fountain.

Highlighting the week will be a hootenanny held in Westcott auditorium, Friday night at 7:30 p.m. Louis Gottlieb, Doctor of Musicology, who sang with the Gateway singers and arranged for the Kingston Trio, will emcee the varied program for the nootenanny.

The Knob Lick Upper 10,000, a "bluegrass for moderns" group will perform. Knob Lick is a small town in Kentucky and Upper 10,000 is German meaning "upper crust" or "gentry." The group is much like other groups in that they feature singing, instruments, and comedy.

Bessie Griffin and the Gospel Pearls are included in the program. They sing spirituals and feature a piano and drums. In addition to several engagements in Los Angeles, the group has performed at Sugar Hill in San Francisco, The Bear in Chicago, and the Inquisition in Vancouver.

The Modern Folk Quartet, four singers who have recorded an album, will also be included.

Lynn Gold, who has sung on the ABC-TV "Hootenanny," will sing. She has recorded for Warner Brothers and appeared in several nightclubs.

Mixon Elected Frosh President In Runoffs

John Mixon (510) defeated Danny Bagley (289) for the office of Freshman Class president in Friday's run off elections.

The total vote was 1,817. Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections had this comment to make about the election. "The turn out was very poor for primary and run off elections. Considering the low turn out for the primaries and the weather, the run off totals were not too surprising."

Results of the other run offs are as follows:

Hugh "Buddy" Buerke (384) defeated Barbara Hackworth (381) for the office of Freshman Class vice president. Maureen McClellan (382), won the office of secretary over Joy McConkey (380). In the run off for treasurer Pam Goodman (406) defeated Sharon Mixon (341).

Phil Watkiss (340) is the winner of the second Men's Senate seat. Losers were Curt Smiht (274) and Ray Costello (145). For the second Women's Senate seat Sue DeShazo (250) defeated Livvie Hicks (233) and Cecilia Jones (222).

The precinct senatorial results are as follows:

In Precinct 1 Marian Weeks (64) won over Vick Hils (59) and Liz Waters (24). Nancy Sue Ashley (85) defeated Judy Booze (46) for Precinct senator. In Precinct 3 it was Lyda May Eastridge (94) over Jan Cashell (57).

Norma Jeanne Bell squeezed by Betty Body (56) in Precinct 4. Sharon Spindell (45) is the new Precinct 5 Senator, defeating Marie Vale (32). In another close race at Precinct 7 Pam Mozur (30) defeated Carole Moody (29). In Precinct 8 it was Bonnie Wiant (21) over Joan Hunter 13).

Karen Williams (21) won the Precinct 9 seat, defeating Valerie Duval (20). Pete Dowling (118) and Luther Beauchamp (107) are the Precinct 12 senators. Losers were Gray Cowart (73) and G.R. Neie (64). Hugh McElyea (90) was elected to represent Precinct 13. As a result of an extremely unusual tie between Ken Nelson (86) and Gene Stearns (86), a run off will be held in Smith Hall Friday from 9-5 p.m. Losing in this contest was Charles Albritton (30).

In Precinct 14, winners for the four seats were Lee Farmer (98), Mack McKinnon (130), Ed Scott (100), and Jeanie Williamson (79). Defeated in Precinct 14 were Carol Gresimer (66), Ken Kennedy (51), Cheryl Thompson (63) and Susan Wharton (45).

In Precinct 18, Margaret Lynn Patterson (41) bested Barbara Guidos (37). Mime McGaw took precinct 19 with 64 votes as opposed to Bonnilu Lair's 45. In Precinct 20, Cam Kilgroe (47) edged out "Stormy" Thurmond (430 in a close ballot.

By MARCI ROBBINS
beau Staff Writer

Scholars have long journeyed far and wide in search of wisdom and learning, as the proverb goes, and among such "international knowledge seekers" may be listed FSU graduate student from Egypt "Mak" Himaya, who hails from Cairo.

Mak is one of the few students on campus who has studied at the University of Moscow, having spent a winter and a summer in Russia while doing graduate work.

Noting unusual features of the country was one of Mak's pastimes while in Russia, such as a new type of shopping center located on the outskirts of Moscow. The super-duper market "covers 200 square acres (not feet) and is 33 stories high."

Asked if he used a map when shopping there, Mak kinda chuckled and let the subject drop. Another interesting feature of the mammoth arena is the fact that the entire building has central heating.

The weather in Russia was quite interesting. It went down to 60 below, yet Mak didn't feel it as much as he did FSU's little cool spell a few days ago. (It must be something to do with that chilling Russian air.) Mak said that his coat used in "the land of the Bear" resembled a mattress, and was about as heavy.

Books are "very cheap" throughout the Soviet Union, thus affording many the opportunity to read widely. As a matter of fact, something like a haircut would cost only around $.20 (U.S. equivalent is about $2).

Interestingly enough, Mak likes the Russian school system better than the typical U. S. methods. "In Russia, one is expected to do many themes, lab reports, research papers commentaries and the like. One asset with the Russian plan is that there is only one exam. . .there are no little quizzes which detract from the real conceptions of studying." The big exam is short, with 80% of it being oral. The entire test rarely lasts more than 45 minutes.

"The libraries at the University of Moscow are excellently stocked and are open 24 hours a day." Mak emphasizes this point because he has been trained to study "without looking at a clock."

Mak gets an enormous scholarship from his government, being a gradyate in nuclear physics may have much to do with it. He receives $200 per annum for each of the following: books, clothing and living expenses. This is in addition to his tuition.

He is quite disheartened at the conception most Americans have of Egypt. It seems that many think of Egypt either in terms of the days of Cleopatra. King Tut and other royal personages, or in terms of deserts. He hastens to point out that the Egypt of today is one of political upheaval and vast industries as well as architectural triumphs, beautiful villas and vast numbers of museums filled with ancient momentos of bygone eras.

WHEN IT RAINS---IT POURS

...or so must think this soggy Podocarpus, bashfully struggling to combat oncoming tides of water from this FSU staffer's hose. Even Tallahassee's famed "Aridness" fails to halt ancient orders for all FSU maintenance men to "daily water the verdant foliage gracing the campus."

BEHIND THESE DOORS

...are waiting many cultural and intellectual adventures, as habitual users of the library's Humanities Room are quick to confirm. Records, paintings and great works of literature are only a few of the educational opportunities avaiable to the interested student.

Room 200 Offers Culture

By VICKI RODRIGUEZ
Flambeau Staff Writer

The number was 200. The doors were frosted, so the interior remained a mystery from outside quarters. But the sign was reassuring--it said, "Pull this door please." So we did.

It was a comfortable-sized room, and the red chairs looked soft. Like Goldilocks we tried them. They passed. There were two round tables with record players on them. Several students were listening intently to the inner voices emanating from earphones attached to the record players. At the other end of the room were shelves of books, and cursory inspection revealed intelligent titles: "Etruscan Art." "Leaves of Grass," "The Lonely Crowd."

So this was what the mystery was all about. The inconspicuous frosted glass panels on the second floor of Robert Manning Strozier Library screened neither a smoking lounge for Ph.D's nor the archives of the former Florida State College for Women. Surprise--they were the introduction into a room where books on Greek art live in peaceful coexistence with volumes on Picasso; where a recording of "Oedipus Rex" lies by one of "Death of a Salesman."

Room 200 of the library, alias the Humanities Room, houses volumes, recordings and art prints designed to supplement the classroom activity of the approximately 1700 students taking Humanities 201 and 202. It's a kind of gift shop with Culture for sale. Shoppers who don't know where to begin when confronted with the department store of the entire library are relieved to find the cultural highlights since the B.C. era nicely concentrated in one room. And though the room is especially helpful--scholastically speaking--to humanities students, it is also helpful for anyone interested in browsing through its contents.

Books in the room are changed three times a year to concur with the humanities syllabus and supplement the assigned parallel readings which are in circulation in other parts of the library. Miss Helen Haines, head of the library's humanities division, and Mrs. Violet Cottingham keep a lookout for possible additions to the standing collection and work closely to keep other exhibits in the room up to date.

Records, which number in the forties, are one of the most popular features of the room and are played so often that they must be replaced by duplicates twice a year. Listeners can match their musical mood to composers ranging from Mozart to Gershwin, and language enthusiasts can ponder an Italian recording of "The Divine Comedy" or a Greek version of "Plato On the Death of Socrates."

Two bulletin boards with folding "pages" stand at another end of the room and on these are tacked clippings and pictures pertinent to the material being covered in class. A new addition to the room this year is a large wall-to-wall bulletin board containing art prints chosen by the humanities department.

The room number is 200 and the doors are frosted. The sign says, "Pull this door please." So do. The Cultural Gift Shop is open for business.

WASHINGTON--The Atomic Energy Commission reports the first U.S. satellite powered only by a nuclear generator is in orbit and sending radio signals back to earth. It was launched Saturday from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. The 27-pound nuclear power system is the prototype of a system needed for future space-ships.

WASHINGTON--The Senate has started debate on extending the life of the Civil Rights Commission for one year. Democratic Senator Richard Russell of Georgia lad the opposition, urging that Congress let the Commission die because he claims it is prejudiced against the South.

In the House, Democratic Representative Otto Passman of Louisiana said the quicker the Commission dies "the better off America will be." Passman said what he termed an 'obvious goal" of the Commission is to control the voting and electoral machinery.

The Civil Rights Commission issued a report today, urging that states refusing to grant voting rights to Negroes be penalized by having their membership in the U.S. House of Representatives reduced. And the Commission also calls for enactment of fair employment practices legislation for the first time. The recommendations were sent to President Kennedy and to Congress.

Cinematographer To Speak

Julien Bryan, a cinematographer who is widely known for his documentaries which include "Russia," used by the US Army in its training program, will speak at Florida State University's Longmire Auditorium at 4 p.m. today.

Presently the executive director of the International Film Bureau, New York, Bryan is on campus under the auspices of the Audio-Visual Department, according to William Quinly, director. Since 1930 he has made films of foreign lands and recent productions include "South Africa," "The Middle East," "Tropical Africa" and "The Amazon Family."

In addition to his film work he has written books including his wartime diary, "Ambulance 464" and "Warsaw." He was also a contributor to "This I Believe," compiled by Edward R. Murrow. Quinly said Bryan was the last foreign correspondent to leave Warsaw in 1939 before the Germans occupied the city. Motion picture footage of his experiences was incorporated in "Seige."

'27 Yank's Best

The 1963 edition of the major league season is all over now but the shouting. World Series tickets are going like wildfire, and people are already talking about the Ford-Koufax duel.

Once more, the New York Yankees have proven too much for the peons in the American league, as they usually do, sweeping the pennant by only 10 1/2 games.

The Yanks, whether you love or hate them, are one of the most astounding success stories in the history of sports.

And because their success is so monotonous, some of their newer fans tend to rate each succeeding edition of the Yanks better than the one before.

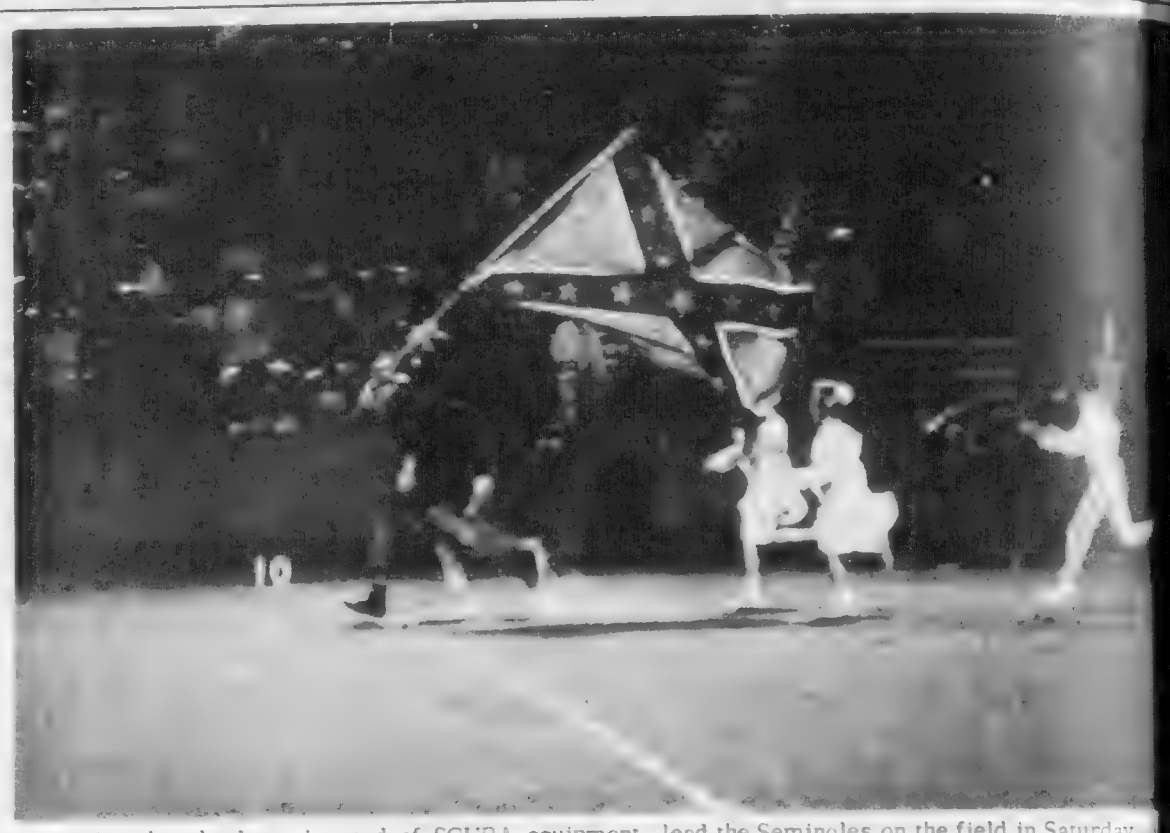
Some observers, noting the big lead this year's team has piled up, have gotten carried away to the extent that they're calling the '63 Yanks the best in history.

Let's stop right there a minute while I case one dissenting vote. Although none of us were around then to witness them, I would choose the 1927 Yankees from what I have heard, and here's why:

In 1927, the Yanks won 110 games and lost only 44. They won the pennant by 19 games and finished 59 lengths ahead of eighth place Boston.

That happened to be the year Babe Ruth smashed 60 home runs, drove in 164 runs and batted .356. In this day and age, he would have had the sports pages all to himself, but in '27 these accomplishments earned him an also-ran position for the most valuable player award.

The award went to Lou Gehrig, who hit 47 homers, drove in 175 runs and batted .373.



The Yankee outfield of Ruth, Earl Combs and Bob Meusel batted .356, .356, and .337 and drove in 331 runs, even though Combs and Meusal had nine home runs between them.

Four players -- Ruth, Gehrig, Tony Lazzeri and Meusel -- accounted for 544 runs batted in.

The pitching staff may not mean much to the present generation of fans, but any non-so-old timer can tell you about Wait Hoyt, Herb Pennock, George Pipgras, Wilcey Moore, Urban Shocker, and Dutch Reuther.

Without taking anything away from the '63 Yanks, which are a good club with a fine bench, I would have to guess that they aren't anywhere in the same class with the '27 bombers.

The closest resemblance between the '63 and '27 Yanks is in the ability of each to create a feeling of frustration among their rivals.

Series To Close Season

Tommy Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Carl Yastrzemski of the Boston Red Sox wound up as the batting champions of their respective leagues, Warren Spahn added his 27th win to his magnificent record, and the two pennant winning teams had anti-climactic finishes as the 1963 major league baseball season slammed shut yesterday.

In the attendance race, the National League smashed all baseball attendance records in 1963, surpassing the mark established last season when the circuit expanded to 10 clubs.

However, a drop of almost one million in the American League resulted in an over-all major league decline of 4.2 percent.

The Los Angeles Dodgers led both circuits with 2,538,602. San Francisco was next in the senior circuit with 1,571,316.

Minnesota led the American League with 1,406,652 paid while the New York Yanks had 1,308,920 customers.

Kellum Men To Vote Again

Kellum [illegible] will vote again this Friday from [illegible] p.m. in the Kellum lobby as a result of a tie between Ken Nelson (86) and Gene Stearns (86) for Kellum Senator.

"All residents of Kellum should take a definite interest in this election and express their opinions at the polls," stated Jon Kaney, commissioner of elections.

Kaney also warns that delinquent fines of $1.00 must be paid by Friday by the following people:

Jon McCubbey, Danny Bagley, Joy Dickinson, Bill Dane, Judy Snelling, Bill Casper, John Mixon, Phil Watkiss, Pete Dowling, Liz Waters, Sanne Dinkel, Ray Costello, Jane Dennis, Cecilia Jones, Ken Kennedy and Buddy Miller.

"Fines must be paid by Friday," urged Kaney. "Winning candidates must turn in their expense statements and pay fines or they will not be sworn into office. Losing candidates who fail to pay fines by Friday will receive additional fines and will not obtain their grades at the end of the trimester."

'Sex In Context'

Stereotypes Produce Tension - Rev. Smith

By RUSSELL GARVIN

Stereotypes of the two sexes imposed upon us by our culture have produced "tremendous tension between what we feel is demanded from us and what we desire to be," said Reverend Harry E. Smith, Monday night in the Library Lecture Hall.

Stereotypes of the two sexes imposed upon us by our culture have produced "tremendous tension between what we feel is demanded from us and what we desire to be," said Reverend Harry E. Smith Monday night in the Library Lecture Hall.

Speaking to a standing-room-only crowd, Smith began the Religion in Life Series' lectures with the topic "Being Male and Female in American Culture." He posed the question, "What is the meaning of our sex in American culture?" To answer this he analyzed the picture presented by two contemporary American institutions.

"Playboy" magazine was chosen as "the best reflection of the prevailing image of maleness in America." Six characteristics of the ideal man can be gleaned from its pages: studied casualness, enlightened sophistication, a recreational attitude toward sex, a view of women as desirable accessories, apprehensive one-up-manship and obsessive preoccupation for proving masculinity.

The Miss America Contest gives a clue on how the country views the other half. By watching the show on TV a few Saturdays ago the following common features could be seen: continual smiling at everything, an image that was "openly inviting... but officially innocent," and a presentation of the well-rounded (both meanings) American Girl. Smith commented that the female viewer could well say, "There, but for the grace of the Jaycees, go I."

Some common themes between the male and female definitions could be recognized. The most noticeable is the "close relationship between sex and selfhood" whereby a man's or a woman's concept of himself is tied up inextricably with his attitudes and actions toward sex.

Another point is that both men and women "can now say what they are free from, but not what they are free for." This leads to conformity and the plight of the college student today who longs for "an authentic selfhood."

These problems presented were discussed in relation to religion and to the campus in two separate talks given Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Student Senate To Open First Fall Session Today

By DICK SMITH
Assistant News Editor

Student Senate will open today with its first fall session in Longmire auditorium at 4 p.m. with Julian Proctor, vice president of the student body presiding.

Two bills and nine organization constitutions will come before the legislative body and Student Body President Johnny Smith will submit a proposal for the revision of the FSU academic honor code.

Bill VI, first submitted to the Senate last year by Arnie Gibbs, comes up for vote.

The bill provides for the combination of the offices of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, the Secretary of Student Events, and the Secretary of Student Welfare, into the new office of the Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Bill VII, introduced by men's vice president Frank Ryll, deletes chapters 103 and 110 from the constitution and adds chapter 106 establishing the duties of the Secretary of Intercollegiate and Public Affairs.

Smith said of his honor system revision that, "It is my hope that this proposed revision will be accepted not only by the Student Senate but also by the Faculty Senate.

"Our present system," Smith continued. "has been operating without the official recognition of Faculty Senate, which has accounted for much of its ineffectiveness. If both bodies will accept this revision I am confident our honor system will be strengthened."

Nine new organization constitutions will come before the senate and be presented by Attoryney General Arnie Gibbs for study. They will come up for vote at the next senate session.

The nine organizations are: the Equestrian Club, the Young People's Socialist League, the Collegiate Council for the UN, the American Meteorological Society, Beta Gamma Sigma (business honorary), Epsilon Pi Tau (industrial arts and vocational education society), the FSU Association for Computing Machinery, the FSU Sailing Association, and Phi Sigma Tau (national honor society for philosophy).

These constitutions will be referred to the Organizations and Finance Committee for evaluation.

Pam Cornely, Secretary of the Senate, commented that "from what I know of this year's senators individually, the Senate should have an outstanding year."

Notice From Dean Oglesby

Praising FSU students for using restraint during the demonstrations in downtown Tallahassee Dean Oglesby had this to say:

"As an emergency measure FSU students recently were asked by the University to avoid participation in action which might lead to violence in Tallahassee's existing racial crisis.

I wish to commend the students for their understanding of the University's position and for their careful observance of the request for caution. The student's restraint was no small factor in preventing violence in our community and enabling us to return to a more reasonable atmosphere in which hopefully the problems may be solved.

Even though the tensions have somewhat eased, the continuing policy is that students are enjoined from participating in demonstrations in violation of court orders and from participating in mob actions where violence may erupt."

'Dateline' Opens At Art Museum

An exhibit on archaeological dating methods will open in the Museum at FSU tomorrow and remain on view for the public and students through February 1.

The exhibit, called "Dateline," may be viewed from 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

A new technique of glass dating is the subject of one of the exhibits, according to Dr. Hale G. Smith, Museum director. Glass buried in the ground decomposes and the annual layers showing this can be measured microscopically from a cross-section of the glass.

One of the exhibits will provide an explanation of Carbon 14 dating of archaeological objects.

SOPHOMORE COUNCIL

There will be a Sophomore Council meeting tomorrow 9 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium. All council members should attend.

Idealism Needs Action

There are the apathetic ones. These are the people who basically don't care about integration at all. To them the issue is "old hat"; it fails to stimulate them intellectually; it fails to provide them with "kicks.' What's in it for them? Nothin'! So. what do they care? Such an attitude grown out of greed and self-centered egotism. The community of man may surely look forward to these "college leaders of tomorrow" for a significant contribution!

Then there are the anonymous ones. These are the people who believe in integration; who might go sit in a nice, white church to hear a "message' on the "subject"; but who find it "safer" not to declare themselves. Their's is a living lie--to themselves and to others. These may be counted upon to withdraw into their nice, warm shell of social acceptance and make a secure contribution to the upkeep of glass house society.

Lastly, there are the hypocrites. Need I say that we have entirely too many of this variety infesting our campus? Let us expose these people for what they are. These are the ones who sanction a demonstration on the steps of the Capitol in order to spur the football team to victory. but who won't sanction a demonstration in favor of the God-given rights of man for all. Interestingly enough, the same sheriff and megaphone that led cheers for FSU football players. only a few days before declared the arrest of courageous FSU students who selflessly sought freedom for their fellow men.

The hypocrites are the ones who want to make FSU a great university by adopting a policy of paternalphobia, by admitting to intellectual freedom only in the classroom, by declaring only the theory of social action and thus denying their very own teachings about this nation's first real American--Henry David Thoreau, by denying nice coeds their rights of freedom of assembly, freedom of expression, freedom to petition the government freedom to bear the peaceful arms of sign and song, freedom to turn truth. knowledge. and morality into active progress toward brotherhood!

Well, the eternal challenge of the ideals of man has been again poignantly presented to the people of this campus, and no one can turn away! The cry of our Negro brothers is being heard all over Tallahassee. Every man. woman. and child of this community; every student, every professor, every administrator who has any vestige of concern for the rights and needs of others is personally brought to the point of decision and action. We neither need or want the apathetic, the anonymous, the hypocrites Let us have FREEDOM NOW for all men in this nation dedicated to liberty; let us take courage and act!

History Proves That States Are Sovereign

One of the leading fallacies of our time is that the War Between the States settled the issue of state sovereignty and states rights. The War proved very little except that the North could beat the South in a war. Violence never nullifies reasoning in a civilized society.

What does sovereign mean? Simply stated. it is possessing independent authority or jurisdiction: the uncontrolled ability to build and destroy the same. Are the States sovereign? Yes. How can two sovereign States become involved in a "civil" war? They can't. It can only be a war between or among the States.

How do we know that the States are sovereign? The Declaration of Independence states: "That these United Colonies are. . .free and independent States." The colonies were [illegible] not "a" state. In the treaty which ended the Revolutionary War in 1783 "His Britannic Majesty" acknowledged "the said United States. . . to be free. sovereign and independent States; that he treats with them as such."

The States explicitly reaffirmed their sovereignty in the Articles of Confederation as stated in the second article, "Each State retains its sovereignty, freedom, and independence. . ."Again James Madison, so-called father of the Constitution, said that each State "is considered as a sovereign body. independent of all others, and only to be bound by its own voluntary act" in ratifying the Constitution. The States reaffirmed their sovereignty when they passed the Tenth Amendment.

When the States ratified the Constitution they did not surrender their [illegible] their sovereign powers to the Union. The states exercised their sovereignty when they delegated these powers to the Union. The power to levy taxes is a sovereign power, but it is not sovereignty. To be able to shoot a rabbit is one thing, to give the man the gun is another.

What does it all mean? For one thing it means that the States have the last word on what is constitutional and what isn't (not the Supreme Court). It also leads to the conclusion that the States can secede from the Union if they want to. What would happen if the North wanted to secede from the Union instead of the South? You can bet that secession would be Constitutional today. Does might make right?

Reduce Federal Spending

Taxes do have a legitimate function--to pay the cost of government. However, they have been too low in recent years to pay the costs despite the fact that they have put a tremendous burden on the American people. Therefore the only logical solution to the taxing problem is to reduce the cost of government and thus reduce the need for taxes.

The Liberty Amendment will accomplish this. It will do this [illegible] by adding to nor subtracting from the original Constitution, but by restoring it to its full force and effect. It will do it by plugging the loopholes through which power has been usurped.

The purpose of the Liberty Amendment is to restore to private enterprise and state jurisdiction those activities in which the government has overstepped its constitutional authority. When this is done the federal budget will be reduced enough to provide for the repeal of the income tax.

Over 700 federal agencies today compete with private enterprise without constitutional authority for doing so. They are involved in insurance, electric generation and transmission, railroads, warehouses, welfare programs. transportation, etc. They consume enormous quantities of our tax dollars and upset the natural factors at work in the various industries involved. Furthermore, these programs are not self-supporting. They operate on a rent-free, interest-free and tax-free basis (they pay no corporate taxes-local, state. or federal). Yet despite all of these advantages, these programs still lose more money every year than is collected by the personal income tax.

Taxes on business, duties, import, export and excise bring in more than $40 billion annually. This is more than sufficient to pay National Defense expense and all other government expenses authorized by the Constitution.

The Liberty Amendment is the one piece of pending legislation that can save our country from economic destruction and the triumph of Socialism and Communism. There are many benefactions to both government and people arising from the restoration of economic justice and fiscal balance. Therefore, support the Liberty Amendment (already approved by six states) pending in Congress and your state legislature.

Courts Protect Minorities

In two recent United States Supreme Court cases, Murray vs. Curlett and Abington Township vs. Schempp, decisions were rendered which maintained that state laws providing for reading of the Bible and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public education, are unconstitutional. Quite a formidable portion of the United States populace has approached this decision of the court with malice and scorn.

Briefly, the Supreme Court decided that bible readings are a religious ceremony and that the state laws requiring them are unconstitutional on the basis of the First and Fourteenth Amendments. Two major points of agreement encouraged the afore-mentioned decision. Firstly, the court accepted the thesis that the fostering of religious ideals in our youth is properly the perogative of church and home. Secondly, the court proposed that mandatory religious observances such as reading of the Bible and prayer-recitation are generally of such a watered-down nature as to be of positive benefit to no one.

Rather than viewing these two decisions as encroachments on our freedom, I submit that we guage them as attempts to protect the privileges of a minority.

Individuals who create the most disturbance over these two cases are not primarily those persons interested in a constructively critical evaluation of the present religious and political situation, but are "super-patriotic" Americans who maintain constant vigilance for any material that may be used to create antagonism toward the Institution of Federal Government.

Students Lack Unity

To the Editor:

In the past few days there has been in this newspaper, [illegible] amount of space devoted to off-campus restaurants [illegible] to their service to all FSU students. Obviously, then, the student body is concerned about this problem. However, the student body has lacked any sort of unified attempt to rectify it. What will become this unity? What organization claims to lead the student body on this campus?

The Student Government. It is the responsibility of the Student Government to determine the climate of opinion of the campus. If it is found that the majority believe that these restaurants should be open to all FSU students, then it is the responsibility of the student government to take the lead in finding means of elimination of the cause of dissatisfaction among the students.

This is a student problem and the Student Government is remiss in failing to take its responsibility to lead in the solution of this problem. If not, do we have such an organization?

Frosh To Face Gators

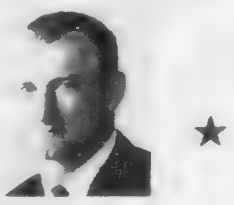
Florida State's Baby Seminoles, coached for the first time by Ken MacLean, get down to the business of preparing for their 1963 opener this week. MacLean's talent-laden 55-man squad hosts the University of Florida Baby Gators at Doak Campbell Stadium here Saturday.

The FSU frosh will display their talents before the hometown fans while the varsity takes the advantage of an open date. The varsity plays host to Wake Forest here on Oct. 12.

Much of the frosh practice time in recent weeks has been devoted to helping the varsity parepare for Miami and Texas Christian, but now MacLean will proceed to pick a starting lineup and work it into shape for the Saturday opener.

This may not be the easiest thing MacLean has done, however, even though he compiled a remarkable 61-17-4 record in eight years at Tallahassee's Florida High School. Fierce competition is underway at all the frosh positions, particularly in the backfield.

Kim Hammond of Melbourne and Jim Perry of Logan, West Virginia are running neck-and-neck at quarterback, while Greg Baggett, Panama City Bay, and Tom Delopez of Miami Hialeah are both considered fine fullbacks. The starting jobs at halfback might go to any of eight scatbacks, according to MacLean.



In the Florida Baby Gators, the frosh face a most formidable opponent. Florida already holds a 21-7 win over Auburn's freshmen and boast a big, quick backfield, led by 6-2, 190-pound QB Steve Spurrier, considered the best prospect at Gainesville in years.

Spurrier scored two touchdowns and rushed for 60 yards in 14 carried vs. Auburn.

David Hist, 210, and Jimmy Jordan, 190, are the halfbacks. Jordan prepped at Tampa's Chamberlain High with Bill Campbell, a halfback with the FSU frosh. Graham McKeel, former Lakeland High star, is the Gator fullback.

The Saturday game is being sponsored by the Capital City Kiwanis Club.

MARION ROBERTS

Coach Shakes Up FSU Roster

The late Oliver Cromwell was known to have said, before one of his glorious battles, 'If I falter, pick me up; if I stumble, push me on; if I retreat, shoot me.' These same heroic syllables are now inscribed in the Seminole grid lockers.

Coach Peterson has made no comment upon Mr. Cromwell's little speech. FSU's football mentor believes in action, and action has been the order of the day since a rather moist Sept. 28th, known in some circles as doom's day.

Right off the bat, the action commenced in a flurry of roster changes. Although many of the changes in position are classified as tentative, a good many Seminoles are going to be working hard to keep them permanent.

Avery Sumner has been moved from the two way unit, the Chiefs, into the Warrior tackle slot. Sumner needs work on offense and will get it with the Warriors, the offensive specialists.

Jerry Bruner has been switched to the tackle position on the Renegades, the defensive team, in order to polish up his defensive skills.

Jim Loftin has replaced Fred Biletnikoff at the Chief's right halfback position. Biletnikoff is in the infirmary with a case of strep throat.

Filling in for Sumner and Bruner at the Chief's tackle openings will be Frank Pennie, Dale MacKenzie and Ferrel Henry.

Marion Roberts, who made this week's Mr. Savage award for his play in the TCU game, had been moved to the Chief's fullback slot. Gene Roberts, the ex-Chief fullback, will move to the Warriors; and Larry Brinkley will fill Marion Roberts' shoes on the Renegade team.

Ed Pritchett has been shifted to right half with the Warriors.

The Seminoles have an extra week to practice for their next game, at home with Wake Forest. Doubtless, there will plenty more action before then.

'Pete' Praises Play

Few Florida State fans had anything favorable to say, if anything at all, about the Seminoles' performance against TCU in last Saturday night's tilt; that is, few people except for Coach Bill Peterson.

Pete was quoted by the Flambeau as stating: "That was a hard-hitting game, and I'm proud of our team. TCU had a good football team, and nothing can be taken away from them. Several key plays hurt us a great deal. The most important was our failure to make that first down in the first quarter. It was fourth and inches, and they stopped us at the line of scrimmage. Had we made that one, I think we would have gone on to score, and it might have been a different ball game.

"Another break was, of course, Jim Fauver's interception of Steve Tensi's pass which resulted in their only touchdown. He made a good play on that one. Our passing game was hurting, because our receivers can't run their proper pattern on a wet field like ours the other night. It's really hard to cut and hold on to the ball when it's thrown.

"That great, running punt Thomas made in the second q hurt us a lot. If we could have him for a loss, we'd have be much better shape.

"Despite the 13-0 loss I th improved overall. Our offe blocking was better, our ta was better, and we really m The Chiefs were outstan through the game, the Reneg defensively in the first half, an Warriors showed they could the ball. They'll be playing mo the season goes along.

"Chuck Robinson played one best games ever, and Red also was blocking well. Red made a nice catch of one Tensi's passes for 25 yards longest gain of the night.

"There was nothing really w with our defense. We stopped my Crutcher pretty well, a hard to. He only got 24 yards st us.

"In any event, we all go urday night bath!"

Tensi Trails Mira In Total

FSU's Tensi, stopped by TCU and inclement weather, lost ground to University of Miami's George Mira in the state's total yardage contest.

In two games, Mira has collected 311 yards in 65 plays, 124 yards ahead of Tensi. Mira picked up 128 yards passing against Purdue, while Tensi managed to garner only 77 yards in the air against a fine Texas Christian defense.

Mira also leads Tensi in pas with 300 yards in 31 comple Tensi has accrued 226 yards completions. Mira has attem and Tensi has attempted 34.

The Tribe's Dave Snyder and tor Larry Dupree are having a battle for the state rushing Snyder holds only an 8 yard and has five more ... than pree.

John Perry leads the state scoring department. The Ta back has rolled up 24 points f Spartans. Second in sc is Biletnikoff with 18 ; ... U of F player is in the top score makers.

Promotions Backs Building Program

"Because of the wave of students who will be entering Florida colleges, there will be an enormous increase in the number of qualified students. This number has increased because of the better quality of high school students who will be entering college."

The University Promotions Bureau was established to promote the best interest of the University through relations with the State legislature, local government and the citizens of the state.

The bureau is composed of a policy board with 14 members and representatives from each county in the state.

Al Milton will be chairman of the bureau for the 1963-64 year. Members of the policy board are Carol Peters, Chuck Beck, John Green, Boyce Ezell, Ted De LaVergne, Don Thigpen, Sharon Dunn, Clay Gooch, Margaret Lynn Patterson, Jo Dietrich, Ray Schroder and John Perry Thomas. Serving as ex-officio member will be Johnny Smith, president of the student body.

Proctor Stresses 'Think Big'

By JANE FRANZINO
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Your greatest responsibility as senators is to think big ideas and think in capital letters," stated Julian Proctor, vice president of the student body, in his welcoming statement yesterday to the first senate meeting of the fall.

Proctor also stressed his feelings that cooperation and constructive criticism are necessary for the 46 member senate to function effectively.

Bill LX, to establish the revision of the Florida State University academic honor system was then put up for the first reading. The bill was introduced by Men's Vice President Frank Ryll for Johnny Smith, student body president.

"The main reason for any ineffectiveness in our present honor system is that the faculty senate has never acknowledged its official existence," stated Johnny Smith, student body president. "By passing this revision of the system in the Student Senate, it is hoped that the Faculty Senate will also recognize it. This will mean that both faculty and students will be bound by the system rather than only students, as is presently the case."

Faculty objection to the present honor code in the constitution is that it is inconvenient for the instructor to leave the classroom. He has no place to go while the exam is in progress--there are usually many questions which students need to have answered during the course of the exam, and no matter what type of honor system is in effect, there will always be some cheating if the instructor is not in the room.

In the new revision of the honor code it is the option of the professor to leave the room or remain during the exam--there will be no questions asked during the exam, and if a student is found cheating, honor court will fit the punishment to the crime.

When asked to comment on the proposed bill, President Smith said, "I feel that the new system allows more flexibility for the honor court so that the punishment can be designed to fit the offense."

Final Religion Series Lecturers Given

Sex On Campus

"For students plagued by a sense of inferiority and a loss of personal significance sex becomes a panacea," said Reverend Harry E. Smith Tuesday night in the final lecture in the Religion in Life Series.

The topic of the talk, held in the Library Lecture Hall, was Sex and Selfhood on the Campus.'

Smith, Presbyterian Campus Pastor at the University of North Carolina, is a native of Austin.

In his lecture, Smith discussed the externalization of man--a shift from a secure, simple world to one which is highly complex. The individual tends to develop a sense of inferiority and a loss of personal significance.

The result is a formation of an emotional vacuum. Thus, as Smith stated, "Sex becomes a panacea." He emphasized the fact that this theory is ambiguous and paradoxical. Campus life presses students into conformity. Though many might look unfavorably on certain present practices, there is a hesitancy to question these practices. "Who am I to be a censor?" is the cry of many students.

Smith stated that "sex and selfhood are always related in the Biblical sense." Sex in normal life never stands alone, for it involves the whole personality of each individual.

Concerning intercourse during engagement, Smith had this to say: "The sex act expresses more than just love." Love may be best expressed by respecting the feelings of others. Refraining can be a sign of deeper love than indulging in the act.

In conclusion, Smith said, "It is the level of relationship that exists that justifies the symbols that are used."

Sex In Religion

"The problem existing for the individual is that of selecting one's life in perspective," said Reverend Harry E. Smith Tuesday afternoon.

Speaking at the second lecture on "Sex in Context' in the Religion in Life Series, the campus pastor of the University of North Carolina used an analogy of someone who owns different pairs of glasses. He might change these glasses at will; this is comparable to the person who alters his perspectives on world matters practically at will and with little thought.

A few of the perspective used, according to Smith, are Marxist, naturalist, humanistic and Freudian.

The Apostle Paul preferred celibacy to marriage. The early church felt that sex was designed only for marriage, and that sexual union was only for begetting children; hence the church's objection to birth control.

Sex is a profound way of expressing what is sincerely thought and meant for another. When in sexual contact with another, a person's whole self is involved--his mind, soul and flesh.

Smith explained the "I-it relationship found between many couples on the college campus. This relationship has no deep love and feeling, and the couples are merely using each other.

An "I-Thou' relationship indicates true love and deep emotion. To gain this relationship takes much time and a full knowledge of the loved one's thoughts, words and deeds.

Reverend Smith summarized his lecture by saying, "We are able to love because God first loved us.'

C'MON NOW, GET IN THE MOOD

. . . Director Richard Fallon coaxes his leading actors as well as the beginners during a backstage rehearsal of Tennessee Williams' play "Summer and Smoke." The FSU Theatre will present the play Wednesday through Sunday, Oct. 9-13, in the Augusta Conradi Theatre. (Photo by Wayne Cowart)

'Summer And Smoke': A Backstage Preview

"Suggestive, impressionistic, fragmentary"--three adjectives which describe the scenery for the coming production of "Summer and Smoke" by the FSU theatre.

Charles Reimer, technical director for the theatre, designs and builds all the scenery and is responsible for the set and hand props, the sound effects and the lighting.

For this play a simultaneous set (more than one locale on stage at any one time) will be used and there will be a total of four scenes on stage: the rectory, park, doctor's office and Moon Lake casino, but "each is simply suggestive of the place" says Reimer. Walls indicate a house. The front point of the stage is left wide open and lights focused mainly on one place at a time will center the attention of the audience.

"This contemporary play," continued Reimer, "concerns primarily a conflict between the spiritual and the physical side of man." Alma, the minister's daughter, and an angel (made of chicken wire and plaster bandages by Judy Hildebrand) represent the spiritual, whereas the doctor and his office anatomy chart represent matter.

Even the scenery suggests this conflict: the Victorian rectory with its Gothic spires and lavender-stained glass and the doctor's office with its very earthy yellow and brown shades.

Dr. John Buchanan is played by Al Smelko, a graduate student from Ohio University, who is working on his Ph.D. in theater. He has been in many plays and so is an "old-hand" at it. He has played in "The Taming of the Shrew," "Kiss Me Kate," Capt. Absolute in "The Arrivals," Creon in "Antigone," Macbeth in "Macbeth," "Time of Your Life," and "The Rainmaker." This past summer he acted at the Oslo Theater in Sarasota which is sponsored by FSU.

Jo Stripling, his leading lady who portrays Alma, graduated from Alabama State College with a major in painting. But she observed: "The same principles apply to painting and acting and therefore it was natural to go from one medium to another." For the past three years she was connected with the Tallahassee Little Theatre and last year played in FSU's production of "The Long Night." A list of her plays would include Lisa in "Pygmalion," "The Potting Shed," "Bus Stop," "The Mousetrap."

What about those who are embarking upon acting for the first time here at FSU? Sheri Vaughn, a transfer from the University of Miami with her goal a major in dramatics, is not really an amateur either. She has been in several plays: "A Lion In Love," "Peter Pan," "Helena's Husband," "Gypsy" and last summer did summer stock in Memphis. Sheri's only comment was that though "contemporary plays are more difficult to do, they can be so much more rewarding."

Lynn Darby, though only a freshman from Jacksonville, was in dramatics in high school and has worked in Little Theatre in her hometown. She plays Nellie, the piano student of Alma's who. . .no use telling you the story but do like Papa Gonzales says and "Kom see de shol Eets goin to be a good whon!"

Operators To Get 'DID'

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Ignorance of proper phone usage is the biggest trouble with the Campus telephone system according to several campus switchboard operators and Mrs. Clementine Hayes, chief operator at FSU.

Mrs. Hayes went on to say that students are just not aware of how the telephone system on campus works and that this is why there has been so much trouble of late with incompleted and disconnected phone calls.

To augment this problem even more, the campus telephone equipment is just not capable of handling the overload of calls which flood the campus switchboard and dialing equipment between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. every day.

Mrs. Hayes added that not only are the campus operators too few and overworked--they have been pestered lately by cable and equipment trouble, also.

The chief operator named a few ways in which students could help insure faster and more efficient service. The main problem seems to be with students who dial off-campus, then dial back in [illegible] the University switchboard [illegible] campus phones which they cou[ld] from their own phones.

Also most students don't [illegible] realize that they may reach campus operators by [illegible] "O", instead of dialing [illegible] and then calling 222-8000, which the University number.

According to Mrs. Hayes there hope among University officials th[at] a Direct-In-Dialing [illegible] clear up much of the present difficulty with the overloaded circuit[s]. A system of this type [illegible] stalled presently.

With the new DID system, [those] living off-campus may [illegible] campus phone directly [instead] ing to go through the Uni[versity] switchboard.

Mrs. Hayes stated that w[hile] was anxious to see how the ne[w] tem would work, she had d[oubts] to how many of our prese[nt] problems it would cure.

"The new system will c[ertainly] relieve campus operators of [the] den of having to answer [all] calls, but the basic proble[m] not enough outgoing lines [and] cuits will still be present."

The new system will [be] before the beginning [of the] trimester.

Blackwell Speaks To Educators

President Gordon W. Blackwell and three other administrators will represent FSU at a meeting of the American Council on Education in Washington today and tomorrow.

Dr. Blackwell is a member of the Commission on Administration of the Council. The Washington meeting will be on the subject, "National Commitments and Institutional Responsibilities."

Dr. Blackwell will attend the 75th anniversary celebration of Georgia Tech in Atlanta, Monday, and on Monday and Tuesday will attend a meeting of the Southern Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities in Atlanta.

Administrators accompanying Blackwell to the American Council on Education meeting will be Dr. John Champion, vice president for administration; Dr. Laurence Chalmers, assistant dean of the faculties, and Dr. John Folger, dean of the Graduate School.

KNIGHTS OF THE ROUND TABLE?

. . .No, guess again. These knights hail from the table musical, and are known throughout the state as the FSU Collegians. Past performances have been given by the Collegians on tour to major cities in Florida.

Collegian Contest Begins Today

The Collegian Composition Contest begins today and will continue until midnight January 7, 1964.

The Collegians, men's glee club at FSU, sponsors the contest for the composition of music for men's voices. The winning composition will be performed by the singers on the Collegians' 1964 spring campus concert and tour.

"All undergraduate and graduate students are eligible to enter the contest," announced Dr. Ramon Meyer, director of the 44 member group. "Manuscripts are to be turned in by midnight January 7, 1964."

The compositions are to be three to six minute choral works based on a sacred or secular text. The work may be unaccompanied or accompanied by piano, organ or small instrumental ensemble. Scores and parts must be in ink or ink reproduction and are to be submitted to Dr. Meyer at the FSU School of Music.

Serving as judge along with Dr. Meyer will be Dr. Lewis Pankaskie and Dr. Wiley Housewright.

Smoke Signals

If any student has a short story, article, poem, essay, joke, or cartoon of his own creation, submit it to the editors of the "Smoke Signals" for consideration for publication in the next issue of the "Smoke Signals." All material will receive careful and equal consideration. The deadline for contributions for the next issue of the "Smoke Signals" is October 22.

If there are any further questions, write or contact the "Smoke Signals," 410 Longmire, phone 2367.

Koufax Sets Record

Dodgers Catch Yanks Napping

(By The Associated Press)

New York--Fast-throwing and fast-working Sandy Koufax got the Los Angeles Dodgers off to a fast start in the World Series yesterday with a record-breaking strikeout performance against the New York Yankees. The fireballing 27-year-old left-hander set a World Series record of 15 strikeouts as he beat the the Yankees, 5 to 2, on a brilliant six-hitter. A three-run homer by Johnny Roseboro was all the support Koufax needed. Roseboro also set a series record for putouts by a catcher with 12.

Koufax and the Yankee pitchers combined to make this the greatest strikeout game in series history, by fanning a total of 25 victims.

A crowd of exactly 69,000 sat enthralled in New York's Yankee Stadium and watched Koufax weave his magic over the favored Yankees. The Dodgers scored four times in the second inning and once in the third off losing pitcher Whitey Ford. Backed by that early lead, Koufax mowed the Yankees down in order for four innings before yielding his first hit in the fifth.

He started the game by striking out the first five Yankee batters--Tony Kubek, Bobby Richardson, Tom Tresh, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris--to equal a record for the most strikeouts at the start of a World Series game, set by Mort Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals against the Yankees on Oct. 11th, 1943.

Koufax's strikeout pace slowed as the game progressed, but he tied the record of 14 by getting pinch-hitter Phil Linz and Bobby Richardson in the eighth. Then, he wound up the game in a blaze of glory, fanning pinch hitter Harry Bright for the final out of the game in the ninth, surpassing the total of 14 set by the Dodgers' Carl Erskine exactly ten years ago today--Oct. 2nd, 1953--against the Yankees.

During the 1963 season, Koufax struck out 306 national league batters to establish a league record. He compiled a dazzling record of 25 victories and only five losses. And he set a mark for shutouts by a left-hander--eleven.

Koufax allowed the Yanks but six hits and walked two. The only damaging blow off him was a two-run homer by Tresh in the eighth inning.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers had provided Koufax with all the runs he needed by pattering Ford in the early going. They picked up four runs in the second inning after Frank Howard got the game's first hit, a double to deep left centerfield. Ex-Yankee Bill Skowron drove in the first tally with a single. Dick Tracewski then singled and Roseboro drove his homer into the right field stands, close to the foul line.

The Dodgers picked up their final run in the third when Jim Gilliam singled, was forced to second, Tommy Davis singled and Skowron collected his second straight run-scoring single.

Ford was taken out for a pinch hitter in the fifth, and former Dodger Stan Williams and Steve Hamilton held Los Angeles scoreless the rest of the way. For Ford, it was his sixth World Series defeat, a record. He also has won ten, another record. It was his 20th start, his seventh opener and his tenth series, also World Series marks.

The series continues tomorrow in Yankee Stadium with left-handers Al Downing of the Yankees and Johnny Podres of the Dodgers scheduled to pitch.

Podres To Hurl No. 2

Los Angeles Dodger manager Walt Alston says he definitely will pitch left-hander Johnny Podres in today's second game of the World Series, despite an atrocious performance by Podres in his final tuneup. Last Saturday night, Podres was scheduled to go five innings against the Philadelphia Phillies but he lasted less than two and was tagged for eight runs and 12 hits.

Says Podres, "You can throw that game out. I've already forgotten it. The only game I've got time to think about now is tomorrow's.'

Podres says the more important a game is, the more keyed up he gets. He says he seems to find a little extra and throw a little harder.

He defeated the Yankees, 2-0, in the final game of the 1955 World Series. And he also beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1, in the first game of a crucial series with two weeks of the 1963 season remaining.

AP Sees Oklahoma As Nation's Top Team

After seven years of trying, the Oklahoma Sooners pushed up to the No. 1 spot in the nation by defeating Southern California 17-12 Saturday, according to the Associated Press Poll.

Southern Cal., last week's first place team, was shoved back into eighth place at the hands of Coach Bud Wilkinson's Sooners.

The Sooners play third place Texas a week from next Saturday for a struggle to hold on to their newly won title.

Alabama stayed where it was, in second place, while some slight shifting occured in the other eight places... Mississippi came roaring back into the top ten by defeating Kentucky 31-7, while the state's other power, Ole Miss, was dropped from the poll after a humbling scoreless tie with Memphis State.

In other college football news the NCAA service bureau announced that Penn State's Pete Liske has a slight edge over Navy's Roger Staubach among the nation's passers, but the sharpshooting Middle QB is the total offense leader after two games.

Pete Pekro of West Texas State leads in rushing with 319 yards in 39 rushes.

The top ten, with first-place votes in parentheses:

Team	points
1. Oklahoma (36)	495
2. Alabama (9)	402
3. Texas (2)	365
4. Wisconsin (1)	299
5. Northwestern (1)	264
6. Navy (2)	248
7. Georgia Tech (2)	220
8. So. Calif.	163
9. Pittsburgh	124
10. Mississippi	45

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Air Force, Arkansas Army, Baylor, Duke, Michigan State, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Oregon State, Penn State, Rice, Texas Christian, Washington.

Freshman starting Quarterback in the Saturday night clash with the Baby Gators will be Jim Perry of Logan, West Virginia. Perry, an all state at Senior High, was the most sought after athlete in West Virginia.

Perry, 5-11 and 178 pounds, took the part of "The Matador"--George Mira--in varsity preparations for the Miami game.

Hootenanny Comes To FSU As Greek Week Feature

By BETTY LYNN GRISSOM
Flambeau Staff Writer

Greek week will feature a hootenanny tonight in Westcott auditorium at 7:30 and 10 p.m. entertaining both Greeks and independents.

Singing in this relatively new kind of entertainment, the hootenanny, will be the Knob Lick Upper 10,000, Bessie Griffin and the Gospel Pearls, the Modern Folk Quartet and Louis Gottieb of the Limeliters.

The Kob Lick Upper 10,000 is a group of three singers who present "blue grass music for moderns." The music has been rearranged and the harmonies altered from traditional blue grass to appeal to a wide variety of tastes and the presentation in salted with a light tongue-in-cheek humor.

The members of the trio are Peter Childs from Boston, Mass., Dwain Story from Somerset, Ky. and Erik Jacobsen also from Kentucky.

Lou Gottlieb

The music that the group plays is in the tradition of the Kingston Trio, the Limeliters, etc., but the Knob Lick Upper 10,000 gives a new sound to a type of music which has existed for years in a more restricted form.

Bessie Griffin and the Gospel Pearls will also be on hand to stimulate the audience with their renditions of Gospel Songs. The group will be accompanied by a two-fisted piano player and a drummer.

Bessie and the Pearls have played engagements in Los Angeles at the Renaissance, the Ash-Grove the Insomniac and the Cloisters. They have also appeared at the Sugar Hill in San Francisco, the Bear in Chicago and the Inquistion in Vancouver.

The Negro spirituals which they will sing are the first distinctive product of the explosive meeting

Election Fines Due, Must Be In Today

By WALT MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Only two freshmen class officers have turned in expense statements for campaigning, whereas all 27 precinct senators have done so" state Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections.

No class officer or elected senator will be able to take office or receive a certificate of election until expense statemtnts are turned in and cleared by the Elections Commission.

"All expense statements and fines should be paid by today," stressed Kaney. People who owe fines are: Denny Bagley; Joy Dickinson; Bill Dane; Richard Casper; Phil Watkiss Pete Dowling; Liz Waters; Sanne Dinkel; Ray Costello; Jane Dennis; and Ken Kennedy.

Expense statements are not yet due for the runoffs of the Kellum Hall race for senator, precinct 13. The runoff is a result of a tie between Ken Nelson (86) and Gene Stearns (86). Voting will take place today from 9 to 5 p.m.

To counteract the apathy shown in the recent fall elections and in the past fall elections, Jon Kaney proposes that a Constitutional Amendment be introduced in the Senate.

This admendment will effect the date of the fall elections, making them one week later in September. If passed, this will mean that filing for office will begin the first Tuesday of September and the elections themselves will take place the following Tuesday. Kaney feels this will give new and old students more time to get settled and prepare for campaigning. It is hoped this will promote more active participation from the student body in the elections.

'Avon Calls' At SAE House

By ROBIN STALCUP
Flambeau Staff Writer

Bright and early at 6:15 a.m. Monday morning, two unknown girls went 'calling for Avon' at the SAE house.

They were selling fingernail polish, but it seems that only the lion was lying. (Just call him Rudolf, the red nosed lion.) According to SAE's, the mischief-makers had to be girls, because they did such a neat job on his paws and nose.

There is an unwritten law that says any unnatural deposits must be removed from the lion by sundown the same day. Therefore, all traces of nail enamel were duly removed Monday afternoon.

Some of the SAE's thought it was cute, but there are others who are still looking for the culprits.

Tarpon Taps New Members

...er weeks of rigorous try-outs ...ractice the Tarpon Club has announced its new members which were tapped Wednesday night.

Tapped as new members of Tarpon Club were: Frances Daniel, Shirley Hardison, Joan Hunter, Patty Ann Smith, Sandy Richards, Jenifer Rowland, Judy Tait, Patsy Temple, Mary Wadtke, and Ann Worsham. They were chosen from the finalists in the recent Tarpon try-outs for their ability to perform the basic skills of synchronized swimming.

Honoring the new Tarpon members on Thursday evening, the Club held a dessert party in the Lamplighter room at the Howard Johnson Restaurant. An official welcome was given to the new members by President Pat Anderson and plans for this year's show numbers were presented by the individual choreographers.

Tarpons have been holding weekly practice since the beginning of the trimester in preparation for their annual aquatic show, which this year will be held Feb. 5-8. The 1964 show will center on the theme of the Old South and will feature solos floating patterns and other intricate combinations interpreting the charm and traditions of the Old South.

Witt Elected New Director

A national honorary organization for women educators has honored an associate professor of education at FSU, Dr. Mary Witt, newly elected director for District One of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society.

The district to be served by Dr. Witt includes the section of North Florida encompassing Jefferson and Taylor counties and westward.

Dr. Witt has been designated to preside at the next district meeting in Tallahassee, February 15, 1964. The three chapters of Tallahassee will serve as hostesses.

Presently in the FSU Department of Elementary Education, Dr. Witt has served as a member of the University School Faculty and worked with the educational system of Colombia.

No Parking !

Students who are justly proud of their beautiful campus should rise up in arms against the encroachment of sneaky parkers, who threaten to turn FSU into a barren wastelend.

Any student, faculty or staff member who parks in grassy areas rather than in paved lots, without regard for the fact that he's helping to destroy one of the beauties of this university, should be placed on the "Most Wanted" list as Public Enemy Number One.

One such area which recently has become a prime target of these careless parkers is just south of the University Union's construction supply area, and just north of the steam plant. Each day sees an increase in the number of cars being parked there and the size of the area being misused.

As the grass is killed off, each rain erodes away quantities of top soil, until there is little more than a mudhole left. Immediate action is needed to restore this area.

That there are many too few parking spaces on campus is an acknowledged fact, and it is inevitable that huge sections of land will be appropriated to provide for future parking lots. Such is the case with the recent paving of a large part of the "green" at the northwest corner of West Call and Woodward Streets.

Further encroachments are now being made and will continue, as FSU's tremendous building expansion program is realized. Unfortunate as it may be that these buildings must be constructed in the heart of fertile green fields of grass, it is recognized that such losses are regretful side effects of progress.

It is therefore extremely important that areas which are NOT promised to the god of progress be protected from the ravages of careless parkers.

LM

Support Frosh

Tomorrow night, when the Baby Seminoles go into action against the frosh from That Other School, we hope school spirit is just as apparent as it has been for the past two games.

The spontaneous celebration that followed the Miami gane, and the crowd that turned out for the TCU game despite the rain, both have idicated great support for this year's varsity team. This support is also important for the freshman team, and a good crowd to cheer them on may provide an extra incentive for them to perform "better than their best."

The game promises to be a thriller. There's never any mercy shown by either side when the Seminoles go Gator Giggin', and we can expect a tough battle before the UF team bites the dust.

Demonstrator Demands Action

To the Editor:

Saturday night, September 14,th, I was a part of the events that occured in front of the Florida theater and which I shall here call a demonstration for lack of a better word. I have no regrets about being a part of the demonstration. My only regret is that I did not see more white faces among the black faces of my Negro friends in the basement of the Leon County jail that night.

Some people have called our actions Communistic or Communist inspired. Is it Communistic to believe in human dignity? Is it Communistic to believe that all men are created equal? As a professor I know said: "Why give the Communists all the credit for upholding civil right?"

This is our battle, as Americans. But the time is not now--the time is yesterday. We are late. My hope is that, perhaps, we are not too late. If we begin the battle for civil rights now and if we are lucky, per[illegible] we will come out with only sca[illegible]

This effort must be made if [illegible] man's freedom is to survive. I [illegible] not go into the atrocities that I s[illegible] during and after the demonstr[illegible] for lack of space. But before [illegible] demonstration occurred, I was [illegible] moderate; a mile believer in in[illegible] gration. Now I believe that it is [illegible] issue that, if not solved, may [illegible] troy the liberty of this country [illegible] if solved, save it for our chil[illegible] and their children to enjoy. Befo[illegible] I was willing to talk. Now, I [illegible] willing to fight. During the past t[illegible] weeks I have talked with ar[illegible] with many Negros. I have lived th[illegible] life for a brief moment and [illegible] seen "America" through their ey[illegible] I did not like what I saw.

Negros are people: biologically [illegible] tellectually, under God and in ev[illegible] other way. As people they are ap[illegible] of "the public." When a busi[illegible] throws its doors open to "the p[illegible] but denies entrance to a segment [illegible] that public it is calling that segm[illegible] less than public and therefore [illegible] than people. This is immoral as [illegible] as unAmerican and we who sit [illegible] by while it goes on are co[illegible] it. We, as Americans, ca[illegible] this immorality persist.

The time for action is not [illegible] but yesterday!

Students Deserve Graduation Exercise

To the Editor:

We graduating seniors certainly realize that it would be an inconvenience and a slight expense for our University to provide a commencement exercise for December and August graduates as well as for the April graduates. However, the fact that we pay the same fees as the "regular" April graduates, as well as the size of these graduating classes indicates to me that we merit a little more consideration than a five cent stamp.

It would seem as if the University, in not taking the appropriate action, is being quite partisan, an attitude which does not benefit itself.

Steven J. Schang, Jr.

'Apathy' Is Absurd

To the Editor:

I have noticed a number of editorials and columns dealing with elections, freshman elections in particular. The "Flambeau" has given me the impression that students who do not vote have no business criticizing class officers. The paper also says that there is apathy among the students in so far as voting is concerned.

Neither of these statements are completely correct. How can anyone expect the newly arrived freshmen to make an intelligent choice when voting for candidates they've never even heard of? They know absolutely nothing of the candidate's ability, personality, or former experience.

To tell someone they're being "apathetic" not to vote under these circumstances is absurd. I feel the reason more freshmen students didn't vote was because they realized they couldn't make an intelligent vote. With upperclassmen, the situation is changed, and one can look at their past record.

I contend, however, that the present class officer's positions were won not necessarily on the basis of former experience in student government, but on the basis of how hard he and his staff worked to obtain publicity. A catchy phrase, a showing of a sense of humor in posters, and meeting the students on the sidewalk gets the vote.

A student votes for so and so because he "seems nice," or is good looking, or he had met them briefly on the sidewalk or at the Seminole Club. In short, because he made an impression on them.

I'm not trying to make any implication that the people in student government are not nice people. They probably are. I am rather questioning the voter's ability to put them there.

Less Smoke Please

To the Editor:

What is the purpose of a nonsmoker paying tuition and buying books to sit in a room where smoke becomes so thick that eyes are made to run water. Actually I have had that experience. If some student or teacher cannot do without a cigarette for a 50 minute class without bad effects on his mental ability he should see his physician or psychiatrist. Minority rights involve a comfortable environment.

Cotton Gets First Ace

Florida State University senior Bill Cotton scored the first ace recorded on the new FSU golf course Saturday.

Playing with Jim Dye, Kit Tucker, and Bob Cunningham, Cotton made his ace on the 211 yard No. 6 hole.

A relative beginner at golf, Cotton scored his first ace after only a few months of play, while many golfers never make a hole-in-one after years at the sport. Bill's score for the round was 92.

Johnny Parsons, FSU Varsity golfer, holds the course record at the new FSU Golf Course with a round score of 69.

FSU Chiefs March Through Rain, Mud

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Through rain, hail, sleet, or now, just like the mailmen, only more spirited, the Marching Chiefs are always there to provide music in the stands and entertainment at half-time.

Such was the case last Saturday night at Campbell Stadium when FSU played TCU.

Very few of the loyal 16,000 Seminole supporters that showed up that night in the pouring rain were even aware that the band was present. However, as game time approached, the audience was somewhat surprised and pleased to note that the FSU band was lined up at the West end of the field and was preparing to present its all new pre-game show.

With a good part of the band marching without instruments because of the rain, the Chiefs took to the field with the "do it better than anyone else or die" attitude that has given them the reputation of being the best band in the South.

Even with pouring rain, the sticky mud and the lack of woodwind instruments, the Chiefs, as several FSU students put it, put on a pre-game show that would be the eny of most bands in drier conditions.

So it was before the game and at half-time. At the end of the second quarter the spectators were soaked by the rain and their spirits were dampened by the seven-point lead held by TCU.

Under these conditions the Chiefs took to the field. Several FSU freshmen expressed an almost campus-wide opinion of the band and its half-time show when they stated that they had never seen a college band anywhere under any conditions that could compete with the FSU Marching Chiefs.

It is a small consolation to say that the band is great but we lost the football game. However, it is still a point of pride with thousands of FSU students that along with a great football game they can always expect to see a tremendous half-time show.

Holley Begins Fund Raising

Rep. Charles R. Holley of St. Petersburg, unannounced Republican candidate for governor, is going into "stage two' of his search for a $250,000 campaign fund.

He plans to raise funds in a two week tour of the state. Holley predicted that Kennedyism will be the chief issue in the up and coming campaign for governor.

"In Florida it will be a matter of loss of individual freedom because of the Kennedy administration." Holley gained some notoriety in this past session of the Legislature with his proposed road from St. Marks to Clearwater to be built over the Gulf of Mexico. This was known as "Holley's Folly."

Ken "just plain" Folks, an Orlando School Board member, has said that he will also be pitching for the nomination of Republican candidate for governor.

To comply with the "letter and spirit" of election laws, a man should make his announcement of candidacy public as soon as he knows he is to be a candidate. And so Sen. John (Jack) E. Matthews, Jr. of Jacksonville become the first announced candidate for the Florida gubernatorial race. Sen. Scott Kelly is expected to make his announcement soon.

Two To Give Recital Tonight

Two student organists studying with Ramona C. Beard of the FSU music faculty will present a recital at 8:15 p.m. Friday, Oct. 4, in Opperman Music Hall.

Ann M. Balkcom of Georgetown, Ga., and Richard L. Fleshren of Belleville, Ill., will play alternating groups of organ selections on the four part program. Works will be by Bach, Buxtehude, Franck, Marcello and Schroeder.

Miss Balkcom is a senior majoring in music education. This summer she served as organist for the First Methodist Church in Dothan, Ala. Fleshren is a senior majoring in music education. Before coming to FSU he was organist at St. Cecelia's Catholic Church in Clearwater. He is vice president of the Guild Student Group of the American Guild of Organists.

of the African and European musical traditions in the New World.

For the folk singer enthusiasts, the Modern Folk Quartet will break forth with some of the most popular folk songs of our age. The Quartet takes bits of mid-twentieth century musical know how and brings the folk-ways up to date. But, in their own words, they "give away none of the guts, drive and excitement inherent in folk music." Members of the Quartet are Cyrus Faryar, Tad Diltz, Chip Douglas and Jerry Yester.

Perhaps the most famous of the performers to appear Friday night is Louis Gottlieb, bassist and comic spokesman for the Limeliters.

Gottlieb was an original member of the Gateway Singers, as well as arranger for the Kingston Trio. He left this group to return to academic life and in 1958 became Dr. Louis Gottlieb with a Ph. D. in Musicology. He then returned to show business as a single comic

OUR PURPOSE. . .FOR ALL TO SEE

Delta Sigma Pi is a professional fraternity organized to foster the study of business in universities; to encourage scholarship, social activity and the association of students for their mutual advancement by research and practice; to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and students of commerce, and to further a higher standard of commercial ethics and culture and the civic and commercial welfare of the community.

First Of A Series

Fraternity System , Position Clarified

By BOB RACKLEFF

The fraternity system at FSU, comprised of 17 national social fraternities with a total of about 1,100 members, is an integral part of campus life, and plays a dominant role in its activities.

However, it is apparent to both friends and foes that these objectives are many times not sufficiently realized. Criticism, much of which is valid, has been leveled at fraternities for many reasons--scholastic deficit, social discrimination, misplaced arrogance, and financial irresponsibility to cite just a few. To coordinate the efforts of the 17 individual chapters at FSU and to improve their quality is the Interfraternity Council (IFC), a central governing body representing all the chapters.

The IFC also serves to coordinate chapter activities with university policies. It operates as a self-governing body, and handles the majority of its own problems. An example of this is the IFC Judicial Committee, which disciplines chapters cited for misconduct.

Two key administrative personnel concerned with the fraternity system are Dr. Hugh Adams, assistant dean of men and fraternity counselor, and Steve McCutcheon, assistant fraternity counselor. Serving in advisory capacities, they help guide IFC policy and form a liason with the university.

In commenting on the quality of the FSU fraternity system, Adams said, "The fraternities on this campus are stong, and are striving to improve.' He was impressed with the efforts of IFC, citing the new requirement of a 2.1 for initiation grades as an example of IFC's concern for scholarship.

"We're all concerned with the criticism lodged against fraternities nationally and locally," Adams stated, "and particularly with our public 'image.' Fraternities are uniquely democratic and self-governing, and are very basic in the development of the good citizen. When a fraternity performs well, it can develop the individual socially, intellectually, morally and spiritually.'

Adams said thereis a definite need for fraternities on this campus if they follow their stated objectives. Fraternities are particularly unique in providing leadership training through participation in chapter operations, he continued. The place for strictly "social clubs" is questionable, although there is no reason why a good chapter should not stay on campus.

McCutcheon who works closely with the IFC, said that the public image of fraternities has been shaky, and requires a rechannelling of direction to improve this image. He stated he was impressed particularly with the quality of leadership found among te IFC representatives, even though the system here is relatively young when compared with other campuses.

Paradoxically, fraternities are many times the least understood of campus institutions. This is the first in a series of eight articles dealing with the fraternities on this campus in an attempt to clarify their position in relation to the students, university and community.

In the last decade, college fraternities have come into much criticism, nationally and locally, concerning their value to higher education. For many fraternity men, it has been a period of reevaluation and soul-searching. Fraternities are on the defensive, are striving to justify their existence and maintain a permanent role in the college community.

Established in the late 1940's when FSCW became FSU, the fraternity at FSU involves over 20% of the male undergraduates and forms a central group around which much of student life revolves. Fraternities also perform an educational function which is complementary to the classroom phase of higher education.

Ideally speaking, a fraternity member will receive a well-rounded education from his experience which consists of emphasis on scholarship, lasting friendships, social activities, participation in chapter operations and intramural athletics.

Diane Tinker is the Sigma Kappa representative for Homecoming Queen.

Congratulations to Trish Stalcup for being tapped a member of Theater Dance.

The Sigma Kappa volleyball team showed its skill by beating the Chi Omegas Tuesday.

Plans are now underway with the Pikes for a joint Homecoming float.

Thirteen pledges have volunteered to sell tickets to the FSU vs. U. of Florida freshman game Saturday. The girls are doing this for the Tallahassee Kiwanis Club.

Sigma Phi Epsilon--Newly elected vice president is Dennis Berry. A new pledge is Steve Dasheff. Officers for the fall pledge class are: Lynn Revell, president; Don Warren, vice president; Clark Kessel, secretary; and Dick Matus, treasurer.

Wednesday the Sig Eps held an exchange dinner with the Zetas. Working with the Sig Eps in the Greek Week community project will be the Alpha Chi Omegas Saturday morning. Tomorrow night a jukebox party will be held at the house.

Sigma Sigma Sigma--The newly elected pledge officers are: Paula Holliman, president; Sandy West, secretary; and Claudia Means, treasurer.

The Tri Sigs enjoyed an exchange dinner with the ATO's Wednesday night.

New pledges were shuffled out of bed at 8 a.m. Saturday and rushed down to the house where the actives had prepared a surprise breakfast. Here the girls learned who their Big Sisters were. Following the breakfast, there was a spirited hootenanny.

Tau Epsilon Phi--This past Wednesday, the TEP's hosted the Alpha Chi Omegas at an exchange dinner. This Saturday the TEPS will have a record party.

Theta Chi--Tomorrow night the Theta Chias will have dates over to the house for an outdoor dinner party. Following the dinner, the Theta Chis and dates will attend the FSU-Florida freshman game. This past Wednesday the Theta Chis and AOpis held an exchange dinner. Ruby Watson sponsored by Theta Chi was a finalist in the Greek Goddess contest.

Bums Sweep Second Game

(By the Associated Press)

New York -- The national league champions, the Los Angeles Dodgers took a commanding 20 to 0 lead in the 1963 World Series today by beating the American League pennant winners, the New York Yankees, 4 to 1, on the combined seven-hit pitching of Johnny Podres and Ron Perranoski. Thus, the Dodgers did something no team has done in several years in the World Series - win the first two games away from home. Andy they will take an overwhelming lead into Saturday's third game at Los Angeles.

The 31-year-old Podres, hero of the 1955 series victory over the Yankees, baffled the proud defending champions again with an assortment of curves, fast balls and change-ups. The veteran left-hander, 2 to 0 victor over the Yanks in the seventh game of the '55 series, blanked the New Yorkers today on six hits for eight and one-thirds innings.

He was taken out with one out in the ninth when Hector Lopez got his second ground rule double. Perranoski, the Dodgers' relief ace, came in and gave up a run-scoring single to Elston Howard. But then saved the Dodgers' second straight victory by getting Joe Pepitone on a force play and striking out Cletis Boyer.

Just like they did in game one, the Dodgers scored early. They picked up two runs in the first inning, one in the fourth and added one run in the eighth.

In the first, Maury Wills led off with a single against New York starter Al Downing. With Jim Gilliam at bat, Wills started for second and was trapped. However, he slid into second safely and was credited with a stolen base. Gilliam then lined up a sharp single to right, Wills stopping at third and Gilliam taking second on the throw to the plate. Willie Davis drove in both runners with a [illegible] right. Right fielder Roger Maris, who might have caught the ball, fell down chasing it.

In the fourth, Bill Skowron, continuing to haunt his former team-mates lined an opposite field homer into the right field stands, just past the foul pole. It was Skowron's eighth homer into the right field stands, just past the foul pole. It was Skowron's eighth homer in World Series competition.

Meanwhile, the Yankees could do little with the crafty Podres. After yielding a second inning single to Elston Howard and a walk to Joe Pepitone, Podres retired the next 13 batters before Tom Tresh singled with two out in the sixth.

Podres, 14 and 12 on the regular season, finished his work against the Yankees by allowing six hits, striking out four and walking one. It was his fourth world series victory in five decisions.

Downing, who was removed for a pinch hitter after the fifth inning, lost his first game in the first series appearance. He gave up three runs, seven hits, walked one and struck out six.

Maris had to leave the game in the third inning when he banged into the right field railing chasing Tommy Davis' first triple. He suffered a bruised right arm, but is expected to play in the third game at Chavez Ravine.

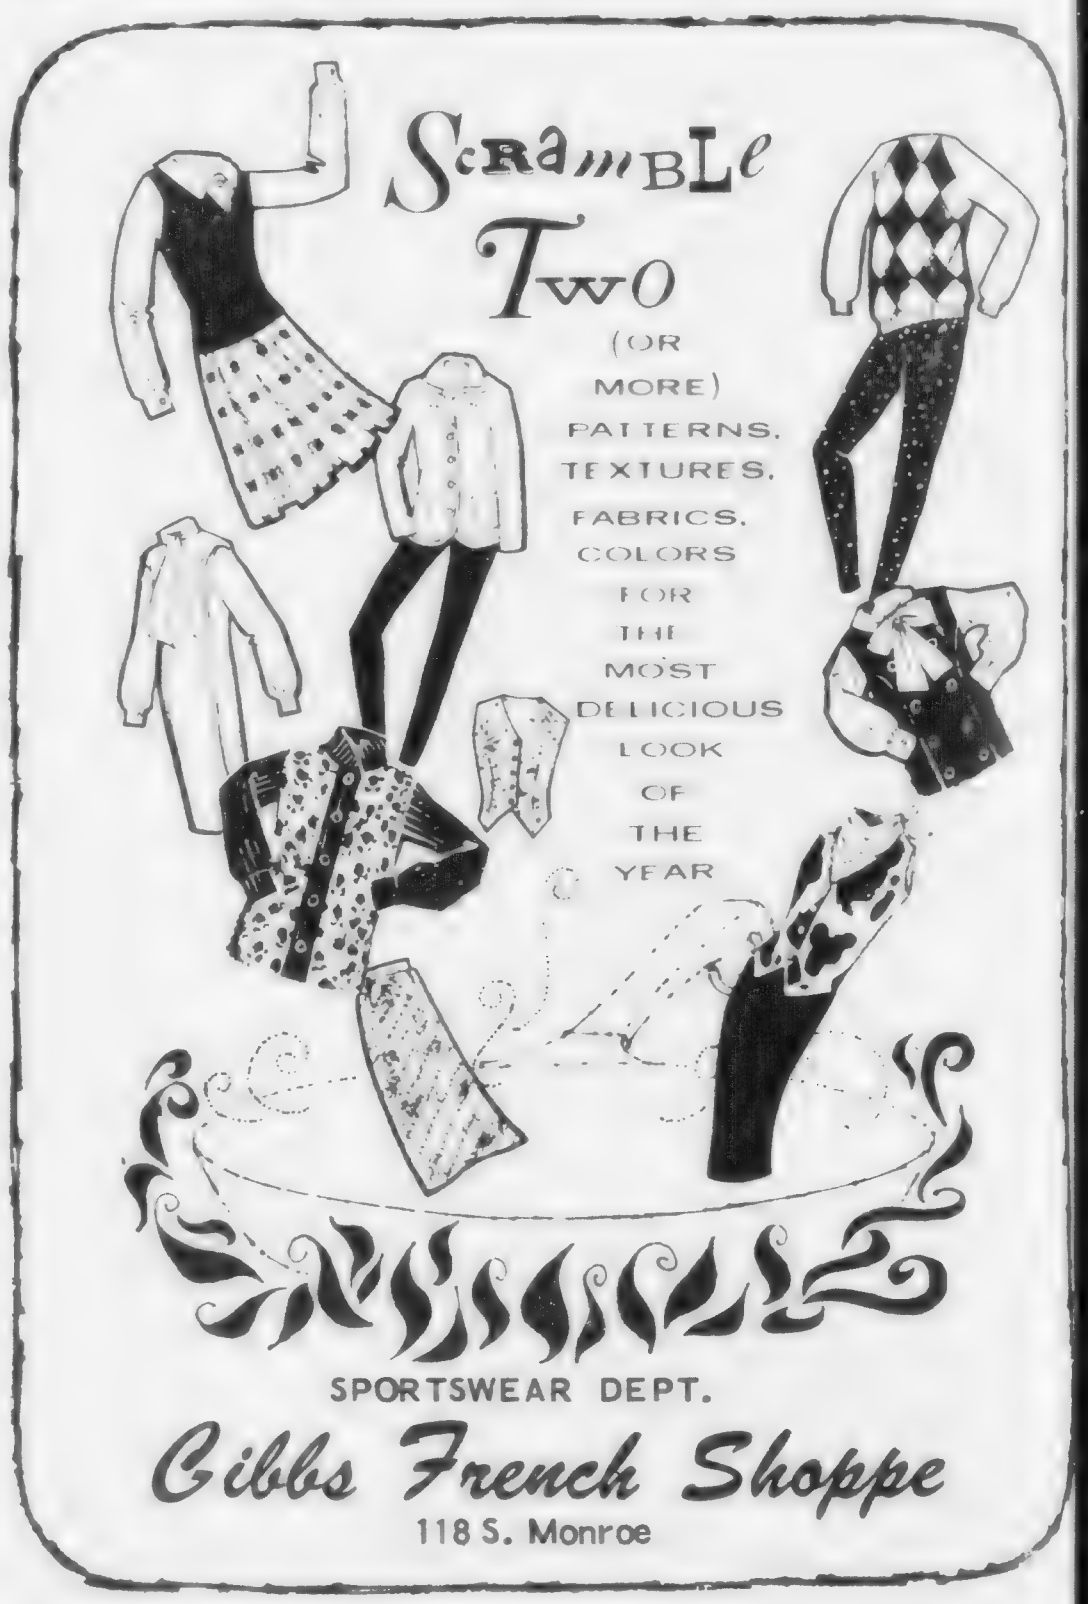
Baby Seminoles To Open Saturday

Coach Ken MacLean, whose Florida State freshmen Seminoles host the Florida Baby Gators in Campbell Stadium Saturday night, today announced a tentative starting lineup for his young team.

The game, set for 8 p.m., is expected to draw a large crowd since the Seminole varsity has an open date and will not be playing until Oct. 12, when they entertain Wake Forest.

Game proceeds go to the Capital City Kiwanis Club's Children's Charities, the Candle of Hope School, and the Florida State University student scholarship program. The game is sponsored by the Capital City Kiwanis Club.



FSU's Marching Chiefs 120-piece band under the direction of Robert Braunagel, will perform at halftime.

MacLean's starting lineup at this stage of the final week of practice has Charles Fuchs, 6-2, 209 from Homestead and Paul Williams, 6-2, 205 from Hollywood at ends; Del Williams, 6-2, 218 from Live Oak and Charlie Pennie, 6-4, and 222 from Hollywood at tackles; John Stephens, 6-1, 191 from Tallahassee and Tem Yates, 6-1 and 214 from Atlanta at guards; and Bill Meadows, 6-1 and 194 from Birmingham at center.

Jim Perry, a 5-11, 178 pounder from Logan, W. Va. gets the starting nod at quarterback, [illegible] Larry Green, 5-10, 177 from C[illegible] Ga. and Don Jones, 6-1 [illegible] Lakeland at halves and Tom D[illegible] pez, 6-2, 197 from Miami at [illegible] back.

MacLean sent his team th[illegible] a heavy contact drill Tuesda[illegible] a pass at scrimmage at full [illegible] Wednesday afternoon.

FSU'S GREEK MAN AND WOMAN

FSU Greeks Elect Man, Woman

By LYNN BISSLAND
Flambeau News Editor

Clyda Stokes, Delta Gamma Sorority, and Henry Land, Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, were chosen this week as Greek Woman and Greek Man of the Year respectively.

The Greek Woman was chosen at the Panhellenic Tea for Independents last Sunday and the Greek Man was selected at the mass meeting of the Greeks last Wednesday. Miss Stokes and Land were presented at the Hootenanny Friday night.

Miss Stokes was chosen by each sorority woman voting for one member of her sorority and one member outside of her respective sorority.

Miss Stokes has been active as a senator, member of Mortar Board and Garnet Kay. She is presently Women's Vice President and president of Panhellenic. She also served as president of Reynolds Hall last year.

Following graduation, Miss Stokes plans to be a field secretary for Delta Gamma Sorority and then go into administrative work.

Chosen by a committee of faculty members, Land has been president of Interfraternity Council, president of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, president of the FSU Junior Chamber of Commerce, varsity football trainer and a member of Lambda Alpha Epsilon, a law enforcement honorary.

Following April graduation, Land plans to go to law school at Stetson University. His present major is police administration and law enforcement.

Greek Week was officially closed Saturday by sorority and fraternity work parties.

1964-'65 Interns To Meet This Week

Meetings for all FSU students planning to intern in the 1964-65 school year will be held tomorrow and Wednesday in the Education Lecture Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Garth K. Blake, Director of the Education Placement and Internship Office, underlined the importance of the meetings to students by saying that, "Due to the increasing numbers of students in the intern program, it will become more and more difficult to place them at the school they desire at the time they want to intern if they do not attend one of these meetings."

The meeting tomorrow will be for elementary and exceptional childhood interns and the meeting Wednesday will be for art, music, physical education, library, and all secondary teaching field interns.

At the meetings, interns can fill out their registration cards indicating which location and when they would like to intern. The meetings will cover such topics as preparation for internship nature of courses to be taken during internship, and other general information.

Blake stressed the desire for any student who cannot make the meetings to drop by his office prior to them and fill out a registration card.

The director explained that even with the increasing number of college graduates going into education the demand exceeds the supply.

Association Announces New Committees

The State Opera-Symphony Association of Florida announced its 1963-64 organization committees.

Resulting from an enactment of a bill by the 1963 State Legislature of Florida, the State Opera-Symphony Association was formed.

Basically, the idea of the organization was implemented under the auspices of FSU School of Music and Dean Karl O. Kuersteiner.

Operas and symphonies originating at FSU will tour the state of Florida and surrounding states.

The committees announced are Executive Committee Honorary members, Gov. Farris Bryant, Gordon W. Blackwell, President of FSU, Senator F. Wilson Carraway, Rep. Mallory Horne, and Rep. Richard Mitchell. Executive Committee members, Dean K. O. Kuersteiner, chairman, Richard L. Collins, Opera director and Robert N. Sedore, Symphony Conductor.

Members of the State Symphony-Opera Association of Florida Society are Honorary Chairman; Gov. and Mrs. Farris Bryant, General Chairman; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Madigan, Jr. Benefactor Membership; Justice and Mrs. B. K. Roberts, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. John Ward Henderson, co-chairman; Sponsor membership; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Watkins, chairman, Dr. and Mrs. H. Lawrence Smith co-chairman; Patron Membership; Dr. and Mrs. Q. Judd Chapman chairman, Dr. and Mrs. John L. Lincoln, co-chairman.

Have Patience

The student at FSU is placed at a crossroads, asked to compromise principle with reality.

Genuine demonstrators, unworldly dreamers, professional agitators, and even Flambeau columnists have taken up the battle cry in the area of demonstrations in favor of equal rights for all Americans. Each urges the college student to get into action now, before the time is too late. They advocate personal involvement in demonstrations, organizational meetings, etc.

The university administration, on the other hand, has virtually ordered a ban on all such activity. They claim to be only protecting the students' health and safety and obeying the laws of Tallahassee. While not directly stating such, a dean has implied that any participation in protest meetings could possibly lead to expulsion.

What are we to do? If we as college students decide that a cause is just and deserves our support, are we to fight the power of the university? If we do believe in a cause such as this, wouldn't it be better to finish our college careers in order to be in a better position to carry on the fight? Can we justify risking suspension or lesser disciplinary action to our parents who in most cases have sacrificed their material happiness so that they could give us some of the things they lacked?

Obviously some conclusions are quickly evident. We cannot go against the wishes of the university. If we disagree with the administration we must try to change its opinion, not flagrantly disregard its rules in response to a "higher mission." Certainly the administration believes that it is doing what is best for the student.

Yet we must carry on the fight if we believe in the cause. We must find other ways to support the fight for human rights. We must try to bring public opinion to bear on the university. We can boycott but not picket; we can help financially and spiritually but not physically. As much as it hurts, we must stay out of the firing line for now. We must maintain a calm, rational approach to the problem and not become useless martyrs to a cause we could help more with indirect assistance now and direct assistance when we are able.

Our first mission is to get an education so that we can be the leaders of tomorrow. Our turn will come.

Student Senate Stumbles Forward

Student Body President Smith brought in the flag cradled in his arms, Men's Vice-President Ryl brought in the flagstaff and stand, and the President of the Senate immediately forgot the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, and the Senate was off the faltering.

Senate leaders are hard to find... there are none. It looks like a lean year for legislation. Who Are Student Leaders?

What is student leadership? Is it to see how many organizations you can hold office in and thus be listed in "Who's Who in the American Colleges and Universities?" Or is it to take a stand on something that means something to you?

Recently when several of the leaders of the student group which went to Cuba were asked why they went, they had the following answer -- to see what Cuba was really like and to test the State Department's ban on travel. The first answer is certainly logical considering all the propaganda that we are subject to for various reasons. One particularly good example of this propaganda was recently revealed in the Joseph Valachi hearings. The police found through wire tapping of certain gangsters that the underworld was actually considering the hiring of a public relations firm to counteract much of the testimony of Valachi.

Another older example is that of Castro hiring a public relations firm to build his image in the United States during the Cuban revolution. These tactics certainly aren't unique to Castro.

It surely appears logical that these students had a valid reason when they said they wanted to see what Cuba was really like. Their second reason, to test the State Department's ban also appears reasonable. They felt as American citizens that they had the right to travel anywhere that they would be received. They knew what they would be up against when they returned to the US but that didn't stop them.

All this leads to the place of leadership on our own campus in regard to demonstrations. The only organization that appears to be taking any kind of leadership position is the YPSL. The Young Democrats managed to pass a resolution that off-campus facilities should be made available to all FSU students but apparently went no further. There has been some talk that some religious groups are trying to do something -- but nothing concrete as of yet. This leaves the field of leadership to the YPSL which can't even get official recognition.

To make things worse, FSU students are prohibited from taking part in demonstrations. Mass demonstrations such as pep-rallies are then surely illegal! Something as obviously important as giving active support to the Negro in his time of desperate need is now an activity that possibly subjects the students to suspension.

The question that stands out blatantly is that if students can't take an active role of leadership who will? Will it be left to the Wallaces and Barnetts and other parties with vested interest to protect with concern of right and wrong?

Flambeau Forum

Integration Can Be Asset

Judging from reports in the Flambeau and elsewhere, there seems to be a comparatively widespread student concern with the problem of racial discrimination in the nearly-on-campus eating facilities. These establishments, while obviously remaining lucrative only because of FSU student business, have steadfastly refused to acknowledge that this university is attended by students of all races. The overt reason usually given for the continuation of segregation is that business would suffer if the practice were not followed.

For these to whom racial discrimination is either a personal affront or just a social nuisance, there is now a chance to express this dissatisfaction and, hopefully, to put it to constructive use. In view of the economic concern shown by the restaurant owners, a petition has been drawn up with the purpose of demonstrating that desegregation not only need not be harmful but can be an economic asset. The petition reads:

"The conditions now existing between the Florida State student body and the four eating establishments located immediately adjacent to the FSU campus, with regard to their desegreation of facilities, have for the undersigned created an affront to their beliefs in equality and justice. The undersigned further believe that although the situation is untenable and change is inevitable, the solution can be reached in a realistic and peaceful manner. Therefore:

IN THE EVENT THAT ANY OF THE AFOREMENTIONED EATING ESTABLISHMENTS WILL TAKE THE INITIATIVE IN ENDING RACIAL DISCRIMINATION, WE THE UNDERSIGNED WILL GIVE OUR EXCLUSIVE SUPPORT AND PATRONAGE TO THIS DESEGREGATED ESTABLISHMENT."

There will be tables located in front of the library and the Student Center on Tuesday for those who wish to sign the petition.

WASHINGTON--Testimony was made public yesterday that Defense Secretary McNamara gave before a house subcommittee last May 15, supporting the one billion, 400 million dollars asked for military aid in the administration's budget. McNamara told the group the one billion, 400 million for military aid would, in his words, provide more protection to this nation than any other one billion 400 million in the 50-odd billion dollar defense budget.

WASHINGTON--Treasury Secretary Dillon endorses the idea of selling wheat to the Soviet bloc. Dillon has told a newsman he wants to emphasize the importance of sales of wheat and other grains to the Soviet bloc as a means of helping handle the U.S. balance of payments problem.

HONDURAS--The new government of Honduras says Cuban communists were behind a big gun battle yesterday in Tegucigalpa, the capital. It's said two Cubans were killed, four captured. It's said six snipers in all were killed. Meanwhile, the new president, Colonel Oswaldo Lopez Arellano, who grabbed control last week--has moved special army forces into the capital to guard against future attacks.

SOUTH VIET NAM--South Viet Nam's government has tightened security again in Saigon, the capital. A young buddhist monk burned himself to death Saturday in protest against the government and it is apparently feared the buddhists are heading for another wave of demonstrations.

FSU Frosh Fall To Florida 21-7

By GENE BALLARD

The night was dark and the moon was yellow, and the leaves came tumbling down, and so did FSU's Baby Seminoles. They were routed by Florida's classy Baby Gators, 21-7.

Coach Ken MacLean was quoted in the "Tallahassee Democrat" as saying that one could get a fair idea of the FSU-Florida game two years from now by watching this game. If such is the case, Coach Peterson and his boys would be better off if they skipped that particular game. Florida outran the Baby Seminoles 255 yards to 145, outpassed them 180 to 14 for a 435 to 159 total yardage edge. The only statistical catagories in which the Seminoles lead were punting and kickoff returns.

The first half was one of the Seminoles stopping the Baby Gators in their own territory repeatedly. The Baby Gators were stopped at the 9, 29, 24, and 20 yard lines. Ironically their only score in the first half came on a 68 yard pass play.

With a minute and twenty-seven seconds left in the first quarter, Rick Saunders attempted a quick kick. Bill Holt came streaming in to block it for Florida. First and ten on the FSU 15. Steve Spurrier the Florida star field general, was thrown for a loss to the 18. He then hit Allen Kelley to the nine, but on fourth down he threw over Kelly's head.

The half then settled down to the Baby Gator running game. Brilliant running by George Grandy, Don Knapp, Dave Hiss, Larry Sammons, and Graham McKeel brough Florida repeatedly into FSU territory, only to be stopped by a tenacious FSU defense. They gained a total of 239 yards as opposed to FSU's 18 in the first half.

The Baby Seminoles could not get out of their own territory in the first half. They could only get started once, and that drive was killed by a costly penalty which lead to the Gator score. FSU had the ball on their own 37, first and ten. Rick Saunders sliced off tackle for four yards. On the next play Kim Hammond completed a pass to Fred Hudson in Florida Territory, but a costly penalty put the ball back to the FSU 15 and killed the drive.

After John Hosack punted to the Florida 38, Spurrier dropped back and threw a strike to swift Jimmy Jordan for a 68 yard touchdown. Spurrier kicked the point making the score 7-0 with 3:44 left in the half.

The Baby Seminoles took the second half kickoff and acted as if the first half had not even happened. Moving on the ground they gained 65 yards in eight plays to tie the score 7-7. Rick Saunders was the star, gaining 37 yards on some fine runs including a 22 yard sprint to set up the score and scoring the TD on a 2 1/2 yard run. The point was kicked by Jim Perry and the score stood 7-7.

Not to be outdone, the Baby Gators staged their own 65 yard march in an identical eight plays. With the ball at midfield on a crucial third and six, Spurrier tossed a pass to Jordan complete at the FSU 34. On the next play George Grandy broke through the center, angled to the outside and ran 34 yards for the touchdown. He then took a pass from Spurrier for the two point conversion. Florida 15, FSU 7 with 6:14 left in the third quarter.

The ball passed back and forth with Saunders making some great runs, and the Florida backfield doing the same. Saunders almost scored on a brilliant 43 yard run, but outran his blocker. Larry Sammons broke in the clear only to slip with no one in front of him.

Florida put it away in the closing minutes of the forth quarter. Graham McKeel and Grandy tore out the yardage chunk by chunk in an obvious effort to run out the clock. Then with a inute and fifty-one left on the clock Spurrier, while being pulled down, threw a 22 yard pass to Grandy for a first down at the FSU 26. Two plays later he eluded three men who had him trapped and scored from the 19. Ken Preston's kick failed. Final score Florida 21 - FSU 7.

The big difference in the game was passing. Florida could and FSU couldn't. On important third down plays Jim Perry, Kim Hammond, and Vernon Kohrn could not complete their passes while third down passes set up the final two Florida scores.

Big gainer for the night was George Grandy of Florida. He gained 56 yards rushing, caught three passes for 63 yards, and returned 5 punts for 72 yards. Rick Saunders of the Baby Seminoles was next with 98 yards rushing and caught one pass for eght yards. Spurrier threw for 170 yards, and ran for 54 more. He and Grandy each out-gained the whole FSU team. Another bright light for FSU was punter John Hosack. He punted eight times for a 40.0 yard average.

The Baby Seminoles' next game will be against the University of Miami Frosh at Tampa next week.

College Grid Roundup

Indiana Tops Northwestern

The ranks of major college unbeaten teams were thinned this weekend as Northwestern, Georgia Tech, Air Force, Army, Michigan State, Michigan, Rice, TCU, Wyoming, and Furman were all beaten for the first time.

The team of the week is Navy. Led by quarterback Roger "the Doger' Staubach, the nation's total offense leader, the Middies are yet to trail in a game this year. They decimated West Virginia 51-7 with Staubach leaving in the third quarter William and Mary 28-0 with Roger setting a single game Middie total offense record, and Michigan 26-13 with Roger breaking his new record. John Sai, Kip Pascowhich, and Pat Donnelly join with Roger to form a backfield which should lead Navy to dominance in the East.

The upset of the week was Illinois 10, Northwestern 9. Northwestern loaded up quarterback Tom Myers air arm but the Fighting Illini dampened the powder with a defense that wouldn't give. Myers' pass for a TD early in the second quarter. A high pass from center meant the difference in this tight ball game as kicker Pete Stamison missed the conversion. The Illini bounced back on a 32 yard pass from Ron Fearn to Jim Warren. Jim Plankenhorn added the point which meant victory. Both sides added field goals in the second half.

In the East, Navy, Pitt, and Penn State established themselves as the teams to beat as all won their third straight games. Army (2-1), Boston College (2-1) and Syracuse (2-1) all remained a game off the pace. All won except Army who was dumped from the unbeaten by Minnesota 24-8.

In the South, Alabama (3-0), Mississippi (2-1), Duke (3-0), North Carolina State (3-0), Mississippi State (2-0-1) and Memphis State (2-0-1) remained unbeaten. Alabama Mississippi and LSU (2-1), who upset Georgia Tech 7-6), lead in the ACC.

In the Midwest, Ohio State (2-0), Illinois (2-0), Wisconsin (2-0), Oklahoma (2-0), and Nebraska (3-0) all remain unbeaten and untied. Illinois and Ohio State lead in the Big Ten, and Oklahoma, Nebraska and Missouri (2-1) lead in the Big Eight. Notre Dame the class of the independents sports an 0-2 record.

In the Southwest, Texas (3-0) and Arkansas (2-1) have proved themselves to be the powers-to-be. Arkansas and Texas have identical conference records, but Texas beat Texas Tech (0-3) and Arkansas beat TCU from the ranks of the unbeaten at the hands of Penn State. SMU defeated Air Force 10-0 to give the flyers their first loss.

In the Far West, USC (2-1) is tops at this point. UCLA (1-2) [illegible] conference by benefit of a [illegible] victory over Stanford 91-2). California (1-2 and Washington (0-3) [illegible] biggest bust in college football, [illegible] lost to Pitt (3-0) and Iowa (1-0-[illegible]

Baby Seminoles To Shape Up

The feelings after the game Saturday night were, as is to be expected, those of disappointment and a determination to shape up. The Baby Gators led our own Little Indians in statistics and points. The ran through the line, around the line, and over the line.

Coach Peterson, who watched the game for possibilities for next year said, "We weren't aggressive. We just weren't hitting out there."

This was the Baby Seminole's first game situation and it was the first college game that the players had participated in.

Coach MacLean, the freshman coach, said about the game, "We learned a lot from this game. It was the first game situation for these boys and it brought out some good and bad points of the team as a whole. We'll shape up for next game."

FSU First Florida College To Install Direct-In-Dial

Starting Saturday, a person in Tallahassee desiring to call FSU will merely dial 599 plus the university extension and he will be connected with his party under the new direct-in-dial telephone service.

A long distance caller will use the area code number plus 599 and the extension number. On campus dialing will remain the same.

Ira Allen, district commercial manager for Southeastern Telephone Co., said FSU is the first university in Florida to have this service and there are only two others in the Southeast.

"This is another progressive step by FSU to have made available vast and efficient communications and at the same time reduce the cost for improved communications in the future," added Allen. "We are confident that the service will improve the present system for calls to FSU 100 per cent."

FSU will pay $20 per trunk for the 30 automatic trunk lines, or $600 a month. The in-dial equipment cost the telephone firm in excess of $50,000 Allen said.

Present incoming trunk lines to the switchborad will stay in service until the new telephone director for Tallahassee is issued on Dec. 1.

Three FSU Students Still In Jail

Three FSU students are still in jail following conviction Thursday of contempt of court and participation in segregation protests in downtown demonstrations.

The FSU students in addition to two U of F students and 23 Florida A & M students have refused to pay fines amounting to $250 and up.

The Board of Control is looking into the question of possible disciplinary action against students but will leave details to the University involved.

-BULLETIN-

The three remaining FSU students --Rosemary Dudley, Steven Humphrey Jones, and Elaine Simon-- have been released from the county jail, Sheriff Bill Joyce said last night.

Dean Oglesby stated that possible action will be left up to a disciplinary committee made up of faculty members.

One hundred fifty-eight students were convicted Thursday for taking part in the May and September demonstrations. Circuit Court Judge Ben C. Willis told the group that conviction was necessary to secure public respect for court and authority.

Out of the 158 students convicted, 30 Florida A & M demonstrators, five white students from FSU and two from U of F were jailed when they declined to pay fines. One hundred nineteen Negroes from Florida A & M were set free after they were handed sentences of $250 fine or 45 days in jail. Willis suspended sentence on condition of future good behavior. The group was tried separately as first offenders.

The 37 demonstrators who were tried Sept. 26 were divided into three groups, fixed according to the part played in the demonstrations. Mrs. Patricia Stevens Due and Ruben Kennon, Negro leaders of CORE, were fined $1,000 or six months in jail.

The first group took part in the May demonstrations in which injunction restricting demonstrations was issued. They were classified as second offenders and fined $500 or three months in jail.

Six Negroes and seven whites in the third group were handed sentences of $250 or 45 days in jail. Willis said they did not participate in the May demonstrations but were bent upon assisting in disorder Sept. 14.

The 37 students convicted Thursday were taken to jail when they refused to pay fines. Since they were put in jail Thursday, nine have paid fines and were out of jail yesterday.

Patricia Due, convicted of contempt of court, paid $972 out of $1,000 fined and was released. She was given credit for serving five days in jail.

Five other Negro and white demonstrators were released yesterday morning after paying fines from $250 to $500. Two white FSU students, Frank O'Neil, Jr., and Mary Ann Stevens, were fined $250 and three Negro A & M students were released yesterday after payment of fines.

Five FSU students were seen at the demonstrations last Friday and Saturday.

Upgrade College Rooms

Whether it's away to college or day-hopping from home, students want their "one room castle' to look like the all-purpose room it has to be -- a place for studying sleeping and entertaining.

It doesn't take much study to turn a drab dormitory room into an attractive one-room apartment the National Cotton Council advises. Students can do it with bold use of color, clever arrangement of furniture.

Since beds are the major pieces of furniture, build a decorating scheme around them. Keep in mind that they'll be doing double duty as couches -- so arrange them as you would couches, pushed up against the wall and preferably in a corner. Add a collection of toss pillows for comfortable lounging as well as important accents in the color scheme.

In choosing a bed covering look for a style that's not only attractive but sturdy and long-wearing too. Tailored all-cotton spreads look better and will survive wear and tear more satisfactorily than fussy types. Since the walls of most dorm rooms are painted a dull, uninteresting shade, try one of the new strong shock colors that are so "in" this fall. They won't show dirt as quickly as pastels and, when they do get soiled, they can be machine washed and dryed, then returned to the beds without ironing.

If dorm walls are a shade of institutional gray, for example, make "the old" bed the best dressed in the dormitory by covering it with spreads in fall's No. 1 fashion color -- cranberry. Add toss pillows and accent rugs in shades of pale pink or blue. Light green walls? Watch them come alive by using bedspreads in an exciting shade of avocado, pillows in lemon yel[illegible] gold. Add spice to tan walls with pumpkin-colored spreads, rich brown pillows.

Another bedcovering that wins collegiate honors is the cotton thermal blanket, new this fall in a bold block-printed design that's pretty enough to double as a bedspread. Based on the same principal as thermal underwear, these blankets provide warmth in winter, coolness in summer. Economical and lightwight, they can be washed and tumble-dried like a towel, no ironing needed.

Once bedcoverings and draperies have been selected some thought should be given to accessories. These are the little touches that can make or break the atmosphere. Best of all, they can be long on color and cleverness, short on cost. Students can use colorful travel posters, for example, that pick up other room colors. They're inexpensive and sometimes even free. Record collectors can make a handsome wall montage from record jackets at no additional cost. Floral prints, landscapes, or animal pictures can be dramatized with mats in bright accent colors by using a simple dime store frame and making mats from a desk blotter purchased at any bookstore.

VOTED MOST VERSATILE

. . .Based on the scientific concept of thermal insulation, this all-cotton blanket is warm in winter, cool in summer.

Economical and lightweight, it can be washed and tumble-dried like a towel. Called "Shadow Block," it's by Morgan-Jones,' and is used as an "eye-brightener" in dorm rooms across the country.

NEW LOOK IN COLLEGE ROOMS

. . .A sitting room look in a limited area is created [illegible] against the wall and covering them with subtly textured alo-cotton spreads. Toss pillows repeat the colors of the striped curtains and lounging comfortable.

Microfilm Section Features Past Records

By MARCI ROBBINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Hidden among all the paper documents, books and pamphlets is a revolutionary means of storing and studying rare or well-used materials (which would otherwise be unaccessible) in the form of the relatively new microfilm library.

Uniformly sized and labeled boxes line the shelves. Inside these are rolls of either 16 mm. or 35 mm. films.

Microcards, found in filing cabinets, often have as many as 160 pages on one card. This is accomplished by using both sides of the card.

The microcards are projected via "readers." These readers project the near microscopic prints of the microcards and films with little difficulty on the part of the user.

Besides adding to the library by use of its own duplicating machines, FSU's microfilm library is a member of the ACRL Microcard series [illegible] Relations Area Files. HRAF files are filmed at the rate of 100,000 pages per year.

The library specializes in newspapers and series, as well as certain doctorates and special collections. Over 91 periodicals are also on file. All issues of the London Times and the New York Times since their first publication are in the stacks.

Many issues of such novelty papers as "Pravda" and "Ivesta" are also on file (in Russian). Most publications and periodicals are kept up within one or two months.

Microfilms in German, Japanese, Russian, French, Spanish, as well as Colonial English are on file.

Issues of newspapers of historic interest include the "Charleston Gazette," which has a copy from the day Fort Sumter was fired upon in 1861; and copies of the East Florida Papers, some of which date back to Florida's statehood. Paralleling this are correspondences between the Governor of St. Augustine and the Vice Roy of Mexico.

There are vast civil war papers and documents in the micro-film library. Many diaries, letters and things of this nature are also recorded on microfilm or microcards.

In the early American Imprint Series are copies of all American prints since 1639. This is the date for the first publication in the United States: "The Oath of a Free Man" and the "Bay Psalm Book."

Mrs. Rush, the microfilm librarian, said that "we rarely have trouble with students taking materials, merely because they could be of no use whatsoever without the proper equipment for projection."

The proper equipment would cost the student anywhere from $100 to $1000.

"This type of library adds another dimension to information research," concluded librarian Rush.

Othello To Be Reviewed At Afternoon Coffee Hour

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER

"Othello" as an example of Shakespeare's mortality play tradition will be the topic of Dr. Francis Townsend's speech at Friday afternoon's English Coffee Hour.

The talk at 4 p.m. in the Presbyterian Student Center will mark the beginning of the English Coffee Hour's 11th year.

According to Townsend, chairman of the English Dept., "Most people contend that great works of literary art must deal in greys. Shakespeare reveals a splendid contradiction to this idea in "Othello,' where man is shown a clear choice between right and wrong."

The Coffee Hour was begun by Dr. Hudson Rogers when he was head of the English Dept. The department wanted to offer an open house where its faculty and students could come together informally.

The full range of topics has made the hour a permanent function of FSU life. Townsend stated. "When you attend, you are never quite sure what you will get. It can be funny one week, and serious the next.'

One program last year made use of local folk singers to illustrate a lecture on folklore.

Many prominent English experts such as Dr. Holly Hanford of Princeton as well as noted authors Philip Wylie and Frank Slaughter are brought to the Friday afternoon lectures with the financial aid of the National Defense Education Agency.

Summer And Smoke To Open Tomorrow

A stage setting representing a small Southern town with a stone angel drinking fountain as its center of activity is being made ready in Florida State University's Conradi Theatre for the University Theater production of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke" Wednesday through Sunday, Oct. 9-13.

The stone angel, symbolic figure of Eternity, broods over the course of the play which Williams prefaced by Rilke's words "Who, if I were to cry out, would hear me among the angelic order?'

An actual drinking fountain is used in the play, according to Charles Reimer, technical director. The angel was sculpted by Judy Hildebrand of Miami and Tom Seegers of Jacksonville.

A simultaneous setting of four scenes has been constructed for the play, Reimer said. This includes a doctor's office, a rectory, a park, and a casino. The Victorian rectory with Gothic spires contrasts with the yellow and brown earthy atmosphere of the doctor's office.

Alumnus Hamm Returns As Alumni Assistant

Ronald Hamm, a 28-year-old alumnus with ten years' experience as a newsman, has returned to FSU as assistant director of alumni affairs.

Hamm's duties will include editing the four times a year Alumni Bulletin and related publications and doing some of the alumni field work, according to Thomas A. Waits, director. The first issue of the Bulletin under Hamm's editorship will appear in November.

Hamm received his B. A. degree in journalism here in 1959 after doing some undergraduate work at Franklin College in his native Indiana and serving in the Marine Corps from 1953 to 1955. At FSU he was a member of Kappa Alpha social fraternity and was editor of Smoke Signals, campus magazine.

He joined the bureau of United Press International in Atlanta and served thereafter in the UPI bureaus at Richmond, Roanoke and Albuquerque. At Roanoke and Albuquerque he was bureau manager, in the latter bureau having charge of the New Mexico operation of UPI. He served subsequently with the Associated Press in Seattle. Hamm also has been a reporter on the Marion (Indiana) Leader-Tribune, the Franklin (Indiana) Evening Star and the Tallahassee Democrat.

Some Cold Facts About A Common Enemy

The common cold has produced [illegible] sensations.

[illegible] itching it led a tavern- [illegible] Arthur Gehrke to [illegible] ed, and induced [illegible] Luther Wetzel to [illegible] ts with inch- [illegible] the theory that germs enter the body through the [illegible].

[illegible] soul-searching led Can- [illegible] Peel to a different con- [illegible] bottoms off all [illegible] ks, believing that he stamped [illegible] ssible cold germs by allowing [illegible] breathe.

Modern medicine has evolved more practical ways of coping with colds—and a good thing, too. If you need any evidence that this widespread nuisance is not to be sneezed at, consider these statistics: according to J. B. Roerig and Company, makers of Coryban-D, a popular cold capsule, the average American's three colds a year cost him $30 and cause him to miss three to seven days of work within that 12-month span.

The cold cash paid by the whole nation: $5 billion a year in lost production, lost wages and medical expenses. And this whopping figure does not include the cost of more serious diseases which may develop in the wake of a cold: laryngitis, bronchitis, sinusitis, pneumonia. Financially and health-wise, it's bad business to neglect a cold.

What is a cold? Since history's first recorded sneeze (noted in Egyptian medical books some 3,000 years old) man has been seeking an answer, and scientists still aren't sure. Most of the available evidence points to tiny germs called "viruses" as the culprits causing the common cold. When "carriers" (people with colds) cough, sneeze, talk or touch anything at all, they spread battalions of viruses around.

The danger is particularly great in the months from January to March, when resistance is lowest and colds are most severe. Hopeful folklore to the contrary, there is no known cure for colds. But there are many medications that will minimize their effects, and some common sense rules to prevent the "family curse" from getting a foothold.

Keep in top physical condition. Three well-balanced meals a day, exercise to unwind tense muscles and keep you feeling fit, eight hours of sleep –or as much as you need to function at top efficienty. Don't omit the regular medical check-ups that pinpoint small health problems before they become big ones.

Avoid getting wet or chilled. Wearing raincoat, overshoes, etc. when the weather looks threatening--and having a spare set of these sniffle-preventers at the office in case the weather changes--will help. But if you're drenched despite all precautions, change to dry clothes as soon as possible.

Steer clear of carriers: Give crowds in general and cold sufferers in particular a wide berth, bearing in mind that one sneeze can blast 20,000 virus-laden droplets up to 12 feet at a speed of 150 feet per second--and that some of these droplets will still be lingering in the air after half an hour.

Be careful of contaminated objects. Anything that a cold sufferer has used--dishes, tableware, towels, chairs--can be virus laden. Wash your hands of cold sufferers you have met during the day by doing just that; scrub your hands thoroughly before each meal.

If, despite all precautions, you do come down with the sniffles, common sense is still your best ally. Begin by discarding some old folk superstitions. Alcoholic beverages, alas, don't help a cold one bit; rely on fruit juices and hot tea with lemon instead. You'll feet best if you partake lightly of simple, nourishing foods, concentrating on liquids, and staying away from gooey foods and sweets.

Rest, preferably bed rest, is your best weapon against these viruses. To make your stay there more comfortable, various decongestant cold capsules have been developed.

Lay in a supply of cold cream to keep the skin around your nostrils from becoming red and sore, soft handkerchiefs, and a supply of books and magazines you've been wanting to read. Get your mind off business and personal cares. Relaxation of both mind and body is essential if you're to marshal vital energy against cold germs and build your resistance against more serious ills.

Finley Lists Suggestions

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

Now that baseball season has ended with a bang in Los Angeles, attention is shifting from the "National Sport" to the gridirons of the land.

However, one last item about baseball is still drawing attention. It involves one Charles O. Finley, the much discussed and occasionally-cussed owner of the Kansas City Athletics, whose recent criticisms of the image of baseball still attract grumblings by the old faithful.

Unlike the other generally placid and unimaginative proprietors of the major leage baseball clubs, Finley has a suggestion for everything. His two most notable contributions to the game this season have been the decking out of his ball players in dazzling Kelly Green and Gold uniforms, and his toying with the idea of moving his baseball club to Oakland. In both cases he has encountered horrified opposition.

But anyone who thinks that mere iron-clad opposition by baseball's more conservative souls is going to discourage Finley has another thought coming.

The man has a few more ideas he'd like to see worked out, and recently in Cleveland he enumerated some of them:

1. Opening day should be held on Saturday.
2. Night games should be started earlier.
3. The All-Star game should be played at night.
4. The World Series should be played at night.
5. The game-of-the-week pot should be split, instead of the home club getting all the money.
6. Active players should be put in the Hall of Fame.

Finley also indicated that h plans to use more color in the Athletics uniforms next year -- not less. If you think our suits are lousy, wait until you see what we're going to wear next year. The high schools and colleges go in for splash. You don't seen them coming out in grey prison uniforms, do you?

Finley wants the TV game of the week moeny divided up for good reason. "The home club gets all the money and its ususally the Yankees," he said. "I'm happy to say it looks like we're going to have a change in this. The more money the Yanks get, the stronger they become."

On the subject of the Hall of Fame, Finely declared, "Why should we in baseball have to wait so many years before we take in outstanding players. Pin buttons on Spahn, Wynn and Musial today while they're still playing so the kids can see a Hall of Famer in action." The latest Hall of Famer, Elmer Flick, quit playing in 1911.

A busy man on campus is FSU quarterback Charlie Calhoun of Tallahassee, who 1) holds, 2) runs, 3) passes, and 4) punts for the Seminoles. Calho also regarded as one of Dixie's finest safety

- NOTICE -

Seminole Head Coach Bill Peterson has consented to answer any questions concerning the previous week's game, as long as the questions are not too long and are submitted to the Flambeau by midnight Monday after the game.

Anyone interested in "quizzing Pete" on a particular play or on any aspect of the overall season should submit the questions to the Flambeau Sports Desk, beginning next Monday.

Auction Tomorrow

Buy Mystery Man Or Favorite Prof

Going. . . . Going. . . . Gone!!! Will ring from the steps of Westcott, Oct. 10 at 4 p.m. when Pi Kappa Phi and Kappa Delta begin auctioning prominent members of the faculty to those with the highest bid.

The auction is open to all student and organizations. Proceeds from the auction will go to the Campus Chest for charity purposes.

The slaves to be auctioned off are: Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, Dr. W.W. Rogers, Dr. Claude Flory, Miss Marie Williams, Dr. S.S. Winters, Coach Addison Gilbert, Dr. Champion, Dr. Howard, Dean Oglesby, Captain Thompson, Dr. Shover, Dr. Hal, and there will be a "Mystery Man" for those who enjoy suspense.

In the past faculty slaves have had to stand on their heads in corners, serve tables, read and write poetry and give musical auditions or some other feasible stunt.

Bob Perkins, chairman for Pi Kappa Phi said that placards will be available for each Greek sorority and fraternity, for their blocks.

Last year, $250 was given to the Campus Chest from this event. "This year, we expect to top that sum by far," adds Bob Perkins.

Jon Kaney, commissioner of elections, will be the auctioneer.

Make-Up Test

The Knowledge for College make up test will be given to- day from to 6:30 p.m. in West- cott auditorium, announced Bet- Boote, chairman of Jud- iary.

Women's Senate Stresses Purpose

"To provide by living rules and campus atmosphere an opportunity for achievement of an FSU woman in all fields of development is the purpose of woman's senate," state Clyda Stokes, woman's vice president and head of the woman's senate at the introductory meeting held yesterday afternoon.

"In senate this year we are striving for quality not quantity in the bills we enact. We are most interested in the ideals carried through this organ of student government and in the welfare of the women students on this campus," she continued.

Miss Stokes introduced and appointed women to the Associated Women's Students' Executive Council. This organization was introduced to formally coordinate women's government and to give women not formerly represented in women's government a voice.

Representatives to the AWS Executive Council will be: a representative from the FSU houses, co-operatives, or off-campus houses (not represented before), two representatives from the President's Council (one president from the freshman dorms, one from the upper class dorms), the chairman of judiciary, the presidents of Freshman Flunkies and of Sophomore Council, a representative from panhellenic, women's senate, off-campus court, and the woman's vice president who will act as presiding officer.

This committee is now an administrated function but may be adopted into the constitution if it functions as proposed.

The following appointments were made during the meeting: Alice Marshall, chairman of the Rules and Procedures Committee, Dot Fish, chairman of the Social Regulations and codifying Committee; Madra Nelson, chairman of the Organizations and Finance Committe; Carol Renfroe, chairman of the Intercollegiate Association of Women Students; Alice Marshall, assistant editor of "Knowledge for College," Ruth Doyle, chairman of Appointments Committee; and Pam Doud, head of the "Senate Sens" test. Carol Renfroe was also accepted by acclamation to act as presiding officer in case of Miss Stoke's absence. Four bills were introduced to be studied.

New Alumni Bureau Opens

New Student – Alumni Relations Bureau will go into operation this week as result of Monday's Student Government Cabinet meeting.

The new bureau was formed by Student Body President Johnny Smith and will work closely with the University's Alumni Office. The purpose of the bureau is to foster better relations between present FSU students and alumni. This in turn will extend more support for the University and its activities.

The Student Alumni Relations Bureau will be under John Jones, secretary of state. Other measures to co-ordinate student government and University administration efforts in promoting better FSU public relations will be undertaken by the Director of Development, Phil Fleming and student leaders.

A policy decision was made concerning the sale of the humor magazine "The Keg" on campus.

The present policy preventing the sale and soliciting of any commercial item on the university campus was upheld and includes local and national magazines. The policy was upheld in general and not to discriminate against any particular publication, a Cabinet spokesman announced. Johnny Smith commented on the decision saying, "I have been impressed with the high quality of "The Keg" which is characteristic of any good magazine. However, our present policy against the selling and soliciting of any commercial items on campus includes "The Keg." There can be no exceptions to this rule. Then too, this policy is maintained for the protection of the students in general and not because of the content of the magazine itself."

In this scene from "Summer and Smoke" premiering at the University Theatre tonight Papa Gonzales (Bruce Fischer) shows Doctor John Buchanan (Al Smelko) why he should marry his daughter Rosa (Sheri Vaughn).

FSU To Host School Bands

Invitations have gone out to more than 40 high school bands from Florida, Georgia and Alabama to come to FSU on Saturday Nov. 2, for FSU's 13th annual Band Day.

They will all take part along with FSU's Marching Chiefs in a bigh half-time show at the Furman game. This time, however, there will be no downtown parade, according to Robert Braunagel, director, since this year's game is an afternoon game.

Applications are still being accepted for the annual Band Day, which begins with registration at 9 a.m. Rehearsals by bandsmen and majorettes will be held in the morning and at 1:15 p.m. massed bands will assemble for entrance into Campbell Stadium.

This year's show will be called "Hi-Fi Show." The Marching Chiefs will open the show with three formations and tunes, while all the bands are in position to enter the field. The massed bands will form two large speakers and perform the hi-fi arrangement of "Over the Rain Bow." The bands will then change from the hi-fi speakers to spell out "Hi-Fi" and feature the stereo sounds of Charles Carter's "Of Thee I Sing."

All the twirlers will present a twirling review as a pregame spectacle. The Band Day participants will learn this review from Janice Eddins, head majorette for the FSU Marching Chiefs.

Flambeau Editorials

It's The Law

From the tenor of several recent comments and criticisms of Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby's warning to FSU students participating in demonstrations in downtown Tallahassee, it is apparent that many students do not completely understand the University's situation.

Emotion has been allowed to cloud the actual facts, and statements warning students of the consequences involved in their actions have been exaggerated in their interpretation.

Dean Oglesby has become the scapegoat for student critics. He has been lambasted for attempting to prohibit student citizens from supporting causes in which they believe. His warning against students' violating the court orders of Judge Ben C. Willis has been labelled anti-American and undemocratic.

Since when has it been undemocratic to tell students they will be held responsible for their actions if they persist in breaking a law?

Much of the criticism the University administration has received has been fair and valid; the repercussions to the academic career of students involved in the demonstrations should be specified in no uncertain terms. Then, if a student makes a decision to continue to participate in illegal actions, fully aware of possible consequences, he must be prepared to accept those consequences.

The University can make no case against any student who remains within legal bounds while picketing the theatres. According to the ruling of Judge Willis, picketing is permissible "and will be considered peaceful with the normal flow of foot traffic on the sidewalk in front of the theatres; will not hamper the movement of patrons to or from automobiles temporarily parked in front of theatre; will not interfere with access of patrons to the ticket window, nor interfere with movement of patrons into or out of the doors of the theatre."

Numbers of pickets have been limited to 18 persons at once at the Florida Theatre, and 10 persons at the State Theatre. The pickets must be spaced about eight feet apart (they may walk in pairs at the Florida Theatre), and may stand or slowly walk in the area near the curb, carrying signs which are not defamatory to the theatre or its personnel.

Pickets have been enjoined to conduct themselves in an orderly manner, and not to seek to engage in conversation with patrons or prospective patrons of the theatre; all verbal communications are to be in normal conversational manner. They also are enjoined from entering or attempting to enter the theatre premises, without the permission, expressed or implied, of the manager of agent of the theatre owners.

This is the court ruling. Students who do not comply with these injunctions are subject to prosecution. They also are subject to University discipline.

It can hardly be stated any plainer.

Civil War Decided States Rights

To the Editor:

Sandy Turner in his column of Oct. 2nd, stated that the civil war did not decide the question of state sovereignty. Quite to the contrary, I believe it did. The Confederacy saw their enemy as the "federals," not the "northern states.' The federals won, establishing their power and authority over the defeated states.

Turner would have us believe that nothing was settled by this bloodest of all America's wars. I should hate to think that my southern ancestors died for nothing. That the issues which tore them away from their flag and their country are still not resolved. That not even the supreme sacrifice has brought peace to our land.

Turner holds that the states are still (as if they ever were) sovereign. To be sovereign a person or state, must be free of any higher secular authority than themselves. Or to quote the dictionary: to be "supreme in power or authority." Any eighth grade American history student knows that the Constitution is the "supreme law of the land." It is true that the Articles of Confederation were an organization of states; this concept was written into that document. The Constitution, on the other hand, was not, and was never intended to be, an organization of states. It was drawn up for the purpose of uniting "people" (not states), as can clearly be seen in its preamble.

Mr. Turner reaches the unfounded conclusion (based on the sovereignty of states) that it is the states who ought to decide on the constitutionality of laws, rather than the Supreme Court. Even if his premise were true the Constitution is quite specific as to who shall be the guardian or "interpreter," of the law.

In his eagerness to prove that the central government is the cause of all our problems, Turner has thrown reality and reason to the wind. His arguments are as the twitching of the flexes of a dying snake: "... sound and fury, signifying ..."

Give Voice By Vote

To the Editor:

Re Bob Mitchell's (guest editorial, Sept. 27) melancholic, however, none too exotic opinion of student socio-political apathy, he is cynically wrong. Student indifference is the product of inability of opportunities to express their view to an extent in which they feel they are a relevant voice in influencing public opinion.

Your understandable disappointment could have been alleviated by either of two invitations to a course of action.

First you might have made a stringent plea for a flood of brief, pithy letters delineating pro or negative opinion concerning present restaurant policies, or second, you might set up ballot petition boxes at the Flambeau desk for students to drop their vote concerning the restaurant equality issue.

To petition with vote, the student would have his I.D. card stamped with a small star or suitable mark, simply indicating he had voted, to prohibit abuses inherent in the ballot system. Non I. D. holders, of course, do not vote.

This would serve to generate public opinion. On the other hand, the results would not serve as a mandate for administrative authorities either way, but simply give them a better index of public opinion and assuredly they would reckon with this factor in their pursuit of (or non-pursuit of) restaurant policy change.

Additionally it would require less time and energy than a public-opinion poll and be less subject to the partisan interpretation of a public-opinion poll.

Give the student this opportunity and his "incurable" indifference will vanish. Otherwise eschew your plaintive bewailing of student apathy. In short, give the student a voice by vote to see how many compatriots each silent little partisan has.

Why No Madras?

To the Editor:

Baa, baa, Matt Straub, why have you no madras? As a member of the sheep herd I would like to know if the reason the colorful and often attractive Indian madras is resented by you is because you are unable to afford it.

This is better logic than assuming that the juvenile hundreds piling on the "Florida for Goldwater" train don't even know what state he's from. Even if this unbased generalization be true in a minute fraction of the cases, it seems that this is his least important qualification.

Anyway Matt, if the financial situation of yours does not permit this type of buying, we have much empathy for you. But, if you are resentful merely because it's a college trend, as you seem to be with Ft. Lauderdale, button-down collars, and fraternities, you're worse off than the blind college student who becomes a member of these usual types without even weighing comparative merits--something you assume nearly everyone does; for you seem to be oblivious in the opposite direction: you're dissenting just for dissenting's sake. There's no individuality in that, only stupidity.

Say the first instance of expense in the case. Perhaps then a local men's store would make a donation, provided of course, you wouldn't write any nasty articles in the future which might affect their business. And if no merchants will go along with this, there's still a chance. It won't be madras, but I could have some of my wool sheared and made into a shirt for you.

Please Have Pity

To the Editor:

Something's gotta give. When housemothers schedule firedrills for the witching hour, they have no feeling of sympathy for the poor students with 8:00 a.m. classes!

This isn't the principle behind by any means. Ever tried hiking up and down six stories, via the stair well, when awakened out of a sound sleep. . .before fully comprehending what in the world is going on? This is called group psychology by many. To the rest of us, it is just plain follow the leader, and then let's get back to the books. If these things were scheduled on weeks other than test weeks, this protest would not be here.

Student Bills Lack Depth

The opening of and the bills introduced into the Sixteenth Student Senate bring to mind a small but appropriate phrase, trite esoterica. Not only did the first meeting get off to a long-winded and unsure start, but the bills for the most part followed suit. Accepting the opening awkwardness as procedure, sans parliamentarian, and eagerness for the "swearing of the green" into officiality--one can then go on and get into the lack of depth and the uselessness, in the main, for the bills submitted to the Senate.

Obviously, someone up there in the top echelon of the executive branch wants a closing in and a thinning out of the ranks in that branch. Someone also wants the Attorney-General to have his hands in every plate of Student Government--sort of like the Kennedy's move to satisfy younger brother who could not have quite as much power as the President, but almost. It also seems the same someone sponsored several of the bills--legally, however.

It also seems the same party objects to the word committee and would prefer to insert Bureau or Commission--seems that these words have a better ring especially when one says he is the head of one, instead of the chairman.

Bill Number VI with seventy-eight words in the title, carries far less import than it seems to imply. General confusion is to be incorporated under one secretary--who will be in charge of dispatching people to the various "outposts" entitled Undersecretary to every facet of student events and welfare. Internal Affairs is a good name if it refers to the ulcers caused by Student Government. Image, nine Undersecretaries for Homecoming--plus unnumbered coordinators (for these Undersecretaries)--chairman and committee are really "out" words for the new order.

Ironically, this bill is specifically designed to eliminate disorder and the rolling of heads. But back to Undersecretaries--there are more, plus real live assistants and assistant ass'ts, and department assistants--in everything from Spring Calendars to Campus Chest (this one can have 8-17 members on a committee--hey! what about that word?) to Student Employment (this one will interpret this problem to the University Administration, represent the interests and betterment of working students, and also have an Undersecretary to regulate pro-

This bill has en dinged with the assumption on e part of some, Student Body Present included, that cheating will go with or without teachers present classrooms--a slam at the haracter and integrity of every stunt of this University, not to mention the affront to the capabilities of the teachers here. This, I feel, calls for a direct apology and a retracted statement by those who were the cause of it being made and those who made it. Everyone signs an Honor statement when entering this University and innumerable reaffirmations are required after entrance and as long as one is in attendance here. If this system does not work--or is not functioning effectively--or is not in effect--the student body might well be signing a statement which is in fact standing for nothing. Everytime students have to sign it, it seems to be forcing them into hypocrisy and untruthfulness. I think it is time to settle on an Honor System which is impeccable and workable--or throw its enforcement out of the realm of the students and leave its enforcement and interpretation up to the faculty and/or administration. This System is up for changes everytime someone gets the idea it needs it--and invariably when anything is definitely decided it is always to have a continuing committee to study it and make recommendations for change. It might be nice to sign the same honor statement with the same meaning for at least two years in succession. What is being proposed for change in the Honor System will not give it the respect and solidarity it is seeking--it only perpetuates the mockery of Honor.

The full import of these bills, I feel, cannot be easily grasped except through actual study of these proposals in the light of the Constitution for which they are intended to amend. Circumstances and reasons surrounding the necessity for these changes should be published in detail, explained by their sponsors, so that the Student Body will know what its Student Senate is about; particularly since there are so many new and inexperienced Senators who have little means of getting any kind of response from their constituents, especially if the constituents do not know what is going on.

Research Staff Is Expanded

Three additions to the staff of the Institute of Governmental Research at FSU were announced today by Dr. Albert L. Sturm, director.

Dr. Carl D. McMurray has moved from the Department of Government to the Institute, which also has added to its staff Dr. Harry A. Green and David G. Temple. All will be research associates and also will be assistant professors in the Department of Government.

A graduate of Middle Tennessee State College, Green holds an MS degree from FSU and the Ph. D. (1962) from the University of Colorado. He has been an assistant professor of political science at Middle Tennessee State College.

Temple received his BA and MA degrees from the University of Florida and is presently completing his work on a Ph. D. at the University of Virginia as a Thomas Jefferson Fellow. He has been a research assistant with the Central and South Florida Flood Control District, and an instructor at Chipola Junior College.

McMurray is a graduate of Augustana College with MA and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Illinois. Prior to coming to FSU faculty in 1961 he taught at Central Missouri State College and Illinois State Normal University.

Registration for open rush will be on Thursday, October 10, from 3-5 p.m.

The fee to sign up until January, 1964, is $2. All girls who registered for formal rush may participate in open rush this year. Girls who did not register for formal rush and wish to participate in open rush must register first.

Information on open bidding rules is available in the Panhellenic Office, 203 Longmire during registration. All girls out for open bidding will be held responsible for these rules.

SMOKEY NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD
... is what Fire Chief Earl Levy seems to be thinking as he crowns three alarm fire Miss Dolores Lord the Miss Flame for Fire Prevention Week.

Lord Chosen Miss Flame

Miss Dolores Lord, Kappa Alpha Theta, was crowned Miss Flame for Fire Prevention Week by Fire Chief Earl Levy at the Tallahassee Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon on Monday.

Each year in connection with Fire Prevention Week the Tallahassee Jaycees select a college girl to represent the chapter during the week's activities. This year the ladies were selected from the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Other contestants were Patsy Burnahm, Shiela Clarke, Connie Gowen and Hood Yeilding.

Miss Lord appeared on WFSU-TV's Tallahassee Forum yesterday. Her activities will also include visits to school assemblies throughout the week.

Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 6 - 12, is a nation-wide campaign held for the purpose of distributing information on the hazards of fire and how to prevent them. This information was distributed to school children, at civic luncheons, and with special stamps on mail.

The Thetas worked with the Jaycees in placing posters in stores around Tallahassee. Tom Ferguson, general chairman of the project, greatly appreciated the able support of the sorority in this campaign, and said, "This was one of the best Fire Prevention Weeks ever held."

Wildes To Appear In Singing Meet

Rose Wildes of Jacksonville, a junior at FSU has been selected to appear as soloist at the Southeastern Conference of the National Association of Teachers of Singing Oct. 11-12, at Charlotte.

Miss Wildes was selected soloist in competition last spring. She was winner of NATS Southeastern division.

A contralto, Miss Wildes is a student of Miss Betty Jane Grimm at FSU. She has appeared as soloist with the Collegians, men's glee club, the Women's Glee Club, and Choral Union. She sang the lead role in the Opera Guild production of "Kismet."

SOCIETY OF HOST

The Society of Host Meeting will take place tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Room 226 Dining Hall. Color slides of Western resorts will be shown. Dean Ashby will narrate the slides. All persons interested in Hotel and Restaurant management may attend.

Grimm Directs Groups

Betty Jane Grimm, associate professor of music at FSU will direct the Hillsborough County high schools' chorla groups in an all-day clinic at Tampa on Saturday.

Miss Grimm is director of the FSU Women's Glee Club which appeared in New York's Town Hall last year.

... of the famous Altoona, Pa., curve on the Pennsylvania Railroad was made in 1954 when 6,000 flashbulbs were fired as four separate trains rounded the curve.

How To Click With The Big Shots

How do you go about becoming a big shot?

One way, much admired in photographic circles, is to snap a "big shot" -- a sprawling scene which is as spectacular as it is difficult to capture on film. The tougher the big shot, the more of a big shot is the photoprapher who brings it off.

By any standards, one of the most "big shot" operations of all times is the famous photographic series sponsored by Sylvania Electric Products Inc., the world's leading producer of flashbulbs. To dramatize the possibilities of flash photography Sylvania in the past 12 years has worked with top photographers to produce a number of color "big shots.' Many were of subjects previously considered unphotographable.

Operation Big Shot began on July 24, 1951, with a spectacular still photo of nighttime Levittown, Long Island; row on row of closely packed houses, the geometric pattern of roofs and siding illuminated by the glow of 1,500 flashbulbs.

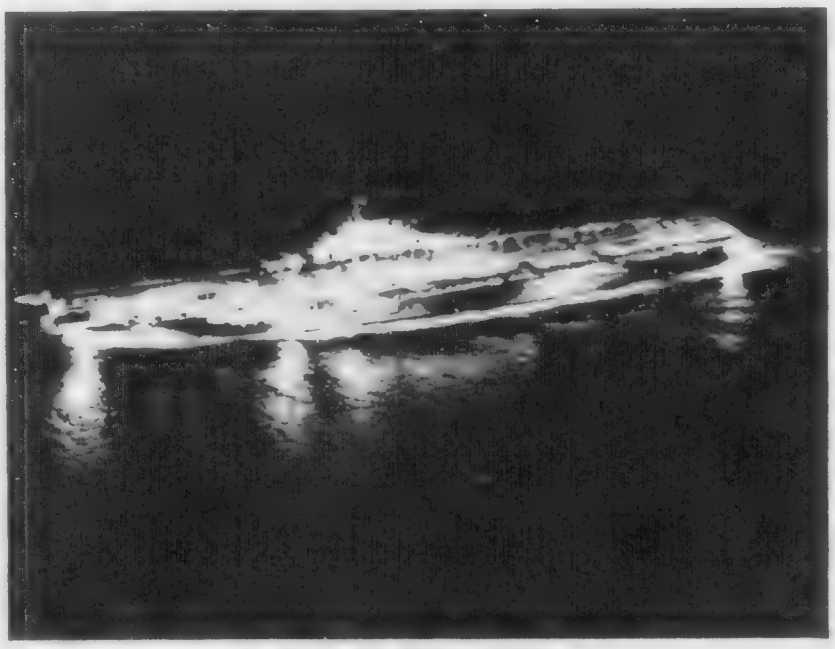
One of the most spectacular "big shots" was taken August 19, 1952 of the "Big Room" of Carlsbad Caverns N.M., when 2 400 flashbulbs provided the lighting for an "impossible" shot.

Many of the big shots have presented truly fantastic technical problems. To get the first night flash picture ever made of a Navy aircraft launching a jet plane required a burst of light equal to 3,250.000 60-watters. The USS Antietam became the first carrier ever to have a fence built on it, as 45 poles, 25 feet high, went around the port side to light it; additional flashbulbs were positioned along the vessel's sides.

Over 800 flashbulbs were fired by radio pulse which simultaneously tripped the shutters of four cameras mounted in a blimp overhead -- all this as a jet plane screamed over the carrier's bow. On the first try, the blimp's engines acted up; the second time around, an errant radio signal set off the 800 flashbulbs prematurely! Success came on the third try, on May 18, 1953.

Even more laborious were the preparations required for a flash photograph of the Pennsylvania Railroad's famous Horseshoe Curve at Altoona, Pa., the formidable Curve has a central loop of 220 degrees and an elevation of 1594 feet above sea level. Sylvania and "Pennsy" engineers worked together to insta 6,000 flashbulbs. In order to sn the picture on October 20, 1954 the Centennial of the Curve's struction -- six weeks of advan work were required to lay of wire leading to a control which fired the bulbs simulta eously.

But less than a week's time allotted for a big shot that people had thought impossible: stage and vaulted ceiling of N York's Metropolitan Opera Hous That was the time between final planning session and the pr ter's deadline imposed lishers of the opera house progra who wanted the big shot for a c photograph. It wasn't the first t that the historic "Met" had been shot material; in 1951, its Diamo Horseshoe had been successf photographed.



Hasn't the average amateur ph grapher even gotten a shot? Yes--and by the thousa

In 1953, when it was decided photograph the Museum and Industry in Chicag was invited to come and pic picture with the Museum and Sy vania. An estimated 50 bugs were on hand t address system blare out a secon by-second countdown, as well as rections for exposures and co filters.

Philadelphia photographers their chance in 1961, when the c fathers the Philadelphia and Sylvania co-spons of Independence Hall. Some 1800 ateurs mingled with the that night and got a unique pictur for their albums.

Other recent big shot have in the teeming floor of the New Stock Exchange (1957), the Great P ramid of Cheops spangled with 6,5 lamps which flash on the finish photograph like so many diam (1959), Lambert Munic ipa in St. Louis (1960), as well as two latest spectaculars: the Sea World's Fair Space Needle and C cago's McCormick Place.

What the next big shot will be a where it will be, is anybody's gues It may well be in a spot you can to by car, train or camel -- a dazzling possibility for the came fan who really wants to click.

A BLIMP WAS USED

... as the camera "platform" for this big shot of the U.S.S. Antietam in 1953. Weeks of preparatory work was involved and 800 flashbulbs, which made the night-time shot possible, were first by radio impulse from the blimp. A jet plane (left) leaves the carrier as the flashbulbs were fired.

City Court Decides Cases

Four traffic violations and one case of petty larceny involving FSU students were arraigned yesterday in city court before Municipal Judge John Rudd.

John W. Irwin, 21 1420 Nylic, pleaded guilty to charges of petty larceny involving an FSU traffic cone and was sentenced to $25 or 10 days in jail. He paid the fine.

Leonard Collins, 20, 1007 West Pensacola, appeared on charges of reckless driving, failure to have his vehicle under control, driving too fast for conditions, and causing an accident involving personal injury. He was involved in a two-car collision Sept. 28. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 20 days or $40. Judge Rudd suspended 10 days and $20 of the sentence and Collins paid the $20 fine.

Thomas E. Sisco, III, 1310 Golf Terrace, pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving, excessive speed and disregarding a red light. The arresting officer said that on Oct. 1, Sisco "roared through the intersection on Macomb and College Avenue. and through the red light. His sentence was 20 days or $40. also was reduced to 10 days or $20. and Sisco paid the $20 fine.

Lyndon R. Lewis, 21 820 West Tennessee Street, pleaded guilty to reckless driving by entering a one-way street in the wrong direction, and was fined $1.

Joe Ear Crum 23, 157 Herlong Drive, Apt. 13, pleaded guilty to cutting through private property to avoid a traffic light and was fined $5.

Women's Judiciary tried five cases and issued partial restrictions during the past week for each case.

Three days partial restrictions were given two women for not signing out correctly, and to one woman for signing out illegally for someone else.

These women received five days partial restrictions for failing to sign out for the weekend.

Three women missed a compulsory university House Meeting, and received five days partial restrictions.

One woman received five days partial restrictions for late entry from a weekend trip.

Mrs. FSU Deadline Is Today

All those interested in entering the Mrs. FSU contest are again reminded that the last day to enter is today. Those eligible are wives of students of FSU. The contest will be Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium, and it will be open to the public. Many stores in Tallahassee are donating prizes for the winner.

Anyone interested in entering may contact Mrs. George Allen, 224-8906 after 5:30 p.m. weekdays or anytime during the weekends.

FSU Gets Film Festival Winner

"Last Year at Marienbad," hailed as one of the significant films of the recent French "New Wave," will be brought to Tallahassee next Tuesday by Les Jongleurs, Drama Honorary at FSU.

Winner of the Golden Bear Award at the Venice Film Festival, Marienbad, directed by Alain Resnais, is without a doubt the most demanding film in many years.

Resnais has broken with all former tradition of cinema chronology in telling his story: the events, as they are protrayed, are not only shown as they happened, but also as the characters would have liked them to happen. The past is fused with the present and the future, and real scenes with those imaginary ones in the minds of the characters. Each frame of the film is composed as a magnificent picture in itself.

"Time Magazine" says that Marienbad is "Not a movie in the accepted sense of the word; it is an enigma, the most monstrously elaborately enigma ever conceived in terms of cinema...."

Marienbad will be shown at 8 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium of FSU. Tickets are seventy-five cents (and available at the door only).

Golf Tournament Being Planned

An all-campus golf tournament is being planned at the FSU Golf Course on October 19-20.

This will be a medal play, 18-hole affair in which students, faculty and staff will be eligible to compete.

A handicap tournament, it requires a competitor must register three 18 hole scores at the club house after September 23. Older scores will not be used in computing handicaps. Details of the handicapping will be posted at the club house.

Placement Schedule

The US Treasury Dept. - Internal Revenue Service will be on campus Friday, to interview interested students of the Administrative Intern Program.

The Program consists of a carefully supervised 18-month period of training; including about three months of class work and at least six different assignments in such areas as personnel, budget and training. The Federal Service Entrance Examination with its Management Intern option is used by college graduates to get interesting and challenging Federal Civil Service careers. Schedules are posted in Longmire, Placement Office.

The National Security Agency announces the Professional Qualifications Test for 1963-64 will be given October 26, 1963 on the FSU campus. Applications must be received in Princeton, New Jersey, by October 16.

Warren Re-Elected Angel Flight Head

Cadet Major Patty Warren has been elected the Commanding Officer of FSU's Angel Flight.

Miss Warren is originally from New York, but is a naturalized Floridian, having graduated from Landon High School in Jacksonville. She is a senior at FSU and is majoring in Spanish.

Miss Warren is a member of Honor Court, Garnet Key, Mortar Board, Spanish honorary and editor of her sorority. She also writes a column for FSU for the Florida Times Union.

Miss Warren said that her interests are horseback riding, her sorority, Kappa Delta, and of course Angel Flight. As C. O. of Angel Flight she leads the flight in all parades, coordinates the flight's activities with the Arnold Air Society and Air Force R.O.T.C., and presides over Angel Flight's business meetings.

Miss Warren became a member of Angel Flight the second semester of her sophomore year and this is the second time she has been elected Commanding Officer.

Angel Flight is an honorary auxiliary of the Arnold Air Society and joins them with many of their activities. Sophomore girls with a 2.5 average or better are eligible for membership in Angel Flight. This year members of the flight will usher all the Gymkana shows.

Today's News Roundup

Flambeau News Services

ACROSS THE NATION

WASHINGTON -- Mobster informer Joseph Valachi has told investigating senators the names of key figures in the New York underworld. And he said the manpower of the New York mobs runs into the thousands. Valachi told of operating for years as an underworld loan shark and said he won a reputation as "The best shylock around." He also testified that labor racketeers kept unions out of a dress shop in which he held an interest.

WASHINGTON -- In Washington the White House has announced President Kennedy is delaying today's scheduled news conference for two hours. He'll hold it at 6 p.m. EDT instead of 4 as announced earlier. This has strengthened speculation that he may announce to newsmen his decision on sale of US wheat to Soviet bloc countries. News Secretary Salinger would say only that the later time is more convenient for the president's schedule.

TALLAHASSEE -- University students convicted of contempt of court in boisterous racial demonstrations at Tallahassee are continuing to trickle out of jail upon payment of fines. All were made under protest. The latest group to pay fines and win freedom were Dan Harmeling and Judith Bettinger of the University of Florida; and Elain Simon, Rosemary Dudley and Stephen H. Jones of Florida State University.

All five were part of a group of 158 arrested the night of September 14th during a massive integrated demonstration protesting segregated movie theaters.

Leon County Sheriff William Joyce charged them with violating the May 31 circuit court injunction limiting such demonstrations. Circuit Judge Ben Willis convicted them Thursday after two trials and sentenced them to fines ranging from $250 to $1000 depending upon their parts in the demonstration.

Of the 158, two were turned over to juvenile authorities, 120 were given suspended fines for good behavior, two were fined $1000, 22 were fined $500, and 12 were fined $250.

AROUND THE WORLD

ALGERIA -- Algerian President Ben Bella says fighting has broken out near the Algerian-Moroccan frontier and about ten persons were killed. He did not specify on which side the losses were suffered, nor exactly who was involved. Ben Bella said that what he termed "uncontrolled elements" on the Moroccan side were in action against regular Algerian troops.

FSU Loses Stax Status

FSU's offensive leaders dropped back in the state's race for totals this week, due to an open date.

The hard charger this week was Gator Larry Dupree. Dupree scrambled from fifth to second place in total offense, garnering 97 yards rushing and 17 yards pass receiving against last Saturday's foe, Richmond. This brings his total offensive yardage to 243 yards in 47 plays.

George Mira, University of Miami, continues to hold a healthy lead over Dupree, however. The Hurricane has gained 412 yards in 90 plays.

Even with an open date last week, Steve Tensi still retains third spot in the state. The "Blond Bomber" has moved 187 yards in 43 plays, practically all in the air.

Rattlers Line Up. . . .

Top Two To Tangle

The Oklahoma Sooners and the Texas Longhorns, a couple of old Southwestern rivals, meet in football for the 58th time Saturday in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas and it will definitely settle one big argument.

The teams are ranked one-two in the third weekly nation-wide poll of the Associated Press special selection board.

Oklahoma, idle last week after defeating Clemson and then defending champion Southern California, was an overwhelming choice, while the Longhorns, third in last week's poll, displaced Alabama by the slim margin of 435 points to 430 on the basis of 10 for first, nine for second and so forth.

There were several other changes in the top ten, with Ohio State and Penn State moving into the select group replacing Northwestern and Georgia Tech.

The top ten, with first place votes in parentheses, season records, and total points on the 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

Team	Points
1. Oklahoma (40) 2-0	508
2. Texas (5) 3-0	435
3. Alabama (4) 3-0	430
4. Navy (3) 3-0	346
5. Wisconsin (1) 2-0	279
6. Pittsburgh (1) 3-0	228
7. Sou. Calif. 2-1	157
8. Ohio State 2-0	155
9. Penn State 3-0	120
10. Mississippi 2-0-1	88

Others receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Air Force, Arkansas, Auburn, Duke, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Louisiana State, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina State, Northwestern, Oregon, Oregon State, Purdue.

Wood Wins Summer Titles

By CAROL CHRISTENSEN

Lex Wood, of King Williamstown, South Africa, represented FSU in a series of 14 tennis tournaments around the eastern half of the U. S. this past summer.

Playing on both grass and clay court circuits throughout the 10,000 miles, [illegible] week tour, Lex won three of the 14 tournaments that he played: the Eastern Collegiate Championship, the Middle Atlantic States Championship, and the Eastern Clay Court Championship.

This last tournament Lex considers his biggest success, for he played against two Canadian Davis Cup players, Harry Fouquier and Francois Godbout, and also against Bill Tym, the University of Florida's number one player. Bill was Lex's traveling companion and doubles partner on the tour.

In addition to the tournaments, Lex also had some other very significant wins. He defeated the following nationally known tennis figures: Dave Reed, Junior Davis Cup player; Mike Belkin the University of Miami's outstanding tennis star; Alan Fox, the number four ranking national player; and John Powless, the former tennis coach of FSU.

Lex had a match-point with and eventually lost to Frank Froehling, the number two ranked player in the U. S. He also lost a close match with Wembleton Champion Chuck McKinnly, the player ranked number one in the U. S.

When asked what the long range results of his tour were, Lex answered "I gained experience, a chance to see America, and receiv[illegible] a high national ranking."

Cabinet Approves Most Teacher Pay Raises

By BOB RACKLEFF

The State Cabinet approved Tuesday most of the Board of Control's recommendations for raises in the salaries of 39 of FSU's top faculty and administrative personnel, bringing to a close a two-month hassle between the BOC and Harry Smith, State Budget Director.

However, Governor Farris Bryant criticized the BOC, saying it was unfortunate that they made the raises effective in many cases on July 1, presuming cabinet approval.

Claiming the board had no legal authority to do this, Bryant stated "It must be understood that it is the function of the budget commission (Cabinet) to act as a budget commission. No agency may be exempted from this. There is no fourth branch of the government that is immune from the budget commission."

The cabinet's action approved the BOC's revised recommendations on salary raises for 156 top personnel in the state university system. Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, BOC executive director, said the board originally asked for $270,000 in raises for these personnel, an average raise of about 12 percent.

Smith clipped $117,000 off this figure in his first recommendation to the cabinet, stating that top educators should not receive more pay than university presidents, and their salaries should be scaled downward in relation to the president's. The cabinet then sent the BOC's proposal back to them for re-evaluation.

The board at a Sept. 27 meeting in Gainesville subtracted $14,300 from its original request, modifying 27 of the 156 salary raises. This recommendation was still over $85,000 above Smith's recommendations. However, these figures met with the approval of the cabinet Tuesday.

What Bryant objected to was the accepted practice of state universities paying personnel according to proposed raises without waiting for cabinet approval. Although he was aware that the universities were trying to upgrade their personnel with salary increases, Bryant said salary decisions were in some cases being made by persons who don't know the overall picture of state finances.

Bryant then directed Culpepper to inform the rest of the board that he wants salary raises in the future to be handled through the proper channels.

Conflicting opinions among cabinet members became apparent when Atty. Gen. Richard Irvin said the budget commission should control only overall finances, and it was exercising BOC authority when it considered individual requests.

Irvin said, "There has to be a place to halt. This is getting out of hand. We are going to drive beyond the legislative appropriation (for salaries) if this keeps up."

Thomas D. Bailey, State School Supt., said the cabinet should not be placed in the position of judging

'Book Of Job' On TV Tonight

Dr. Allan Thomson of the English Department will present a program on the Book of Job on the Humanities Hour this evening at 8 p.m. over WFSU-FM.

Thomson will comment upon the Biblical story and its significance today. In the program, excerpts from the Book of Job will be heard, with Herbert Marshall playing the role of Job, Joseph Holland as the Lord, and Frederick Rolf as Satan.

The Book of Job is one of the landmarks of our civilization, combining myth and chronicle, revelation and parable, tragedy and, in the medieval sense, comedy. Above all, it is poetry. What happens to Job is the result, not of what he does, but of what he is.

The Humanities Hour is heard each Thursday evening at 8 p.m. over WFSU-FM radio and is repeated each Monday at 4 p.m.

Summer And Smoke Matinee Cancelled

The Saturday matinee performance of "Summer and Smoke," first University Theater production of the year, has been cancelled, Dr. Arthur Dorlag, director of University Theater, announced today.

Ticket holders for the 2:30 p.m. Saturday performance of the Tennessee Williams' play may exchange them and see any of the other performances, Dorlag said.

The play will be performed at 8:15 p.m. nightly through Saturday night, Oct. 12, with a matinee on Sunday. The Saturday afternoon matinee was cancelled because a number of the theater people have commitments in connection with Legislative Recognition Day.

ML Conference Starts Today

Textbooks and audio-visual materials in modern languagues will be demonstrated today at the opening of the Modern Languages Conference.

Dr. Paul Dickson, head of Foreign Language Education, will welcome modern language teachers from throughout Florida, at 9 a.m. in 201 Education.

The conference is open to members of the modern language faculty of FSU, students of modern languages and interested persons.

Grand Jury To Investigate

Tallahassee City Commissioners by resolution have requested the Leon County Circuit Court to impanel a Grand Jury to investigate activities of "certain students" at the two state universities.

The resolution refers to the "certain students' as those indicating they are not enrolled in the universities to get an education but to "disturb the peace and tranquillity of Tallahassee."

Leaflets distributed after the proceedings called the court judgment "mockery of the word justice.' These leaflets had been signed by the President of the A. and M. Student Government, Prince. J. McIntosh.

McIntosh said that he felt "that the Commission should go on record protesting this.' He went on to say that he felt that "the vast majority of students are not involved and we're proud to have these students in Tallahassee."

It was decided by the city commissioners that a grand jury probe would indeed be appropriate and just. ' This probe is only to be directed at a minority of students," said Commissioner Atkinson.

Atkinson made the statement that "we want the public to know that we are taking this action in what we believe to be the best interest of the big majority of students who are not involved in this question."

In regard to the students guilty of contempt of court for violating his theatre picket rules, Judge Willis said that "what these convictions really represent is an attempt to discourage and stifle the students of the university from any and all attempts to gain freedom and equality...

"Remember: you are a human being first and a student second. Your primary duty is not to get an education but to apply the education you already have...,' concluded Judge Willis.

Suicide Attempt By Coed Fails

Miss Elizabeth A. (Libby) Gentile, a senior majoring in history at FSU, was reported in good condition today at the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital after an apparent attempt at suicide in the backyard of the Pi Beta Phi sorority Tuesday night.

According to Sheriff's Deputy John Melton, the 20-year-old coed was rushed to the hospital Tuesday night with an apparently self-inflicted bullet wound in the head.

Melton said Miss Gentile, a member of Pi Beta Phi, apparently placed a 22-caliber pistol beneath her chin and pulled the trigger at approximately 8:15 p.m. The bullet entered the chin, then went through the nasal cavity and out without entering the head.

Sheriff's Deputy's Chief Investigator Jack Dawkins said it had been reported that the coed had been "depressed for several days."

Anyone who has read "1984" will know that an "Orwellian" concept has been introduced into Student Senate. At the opening session of senate last Wednesday the senators were constrained by their Leader to think Big, or Big Think, as the case may be and that this Big Think was their biggest responsibility.

I would disagree and state that the biggest responsibility of student senate is to the student body. This means that senators don't necessarily have to think big just so long as they Think. . .that is, of the students and the university.

The Religion in Life series committee should be complimented both for their choice of speakers and topic. Both were informative and religiously oriented. This program was even better when compared with Mr. Dillenberger, who was here last summer. Only about 15 students heard Dillenberger that first night as compared to several hundred this time.

I hope all this says something to the Religion in Life planning committee.

There is a vacancy on Honor Court this Fall. . .or was. John Systma, the justice elected last Spring, has moved out West this summer. A vacancy of this sort, according to Article IX, section 7:B of the Student Body constitution, is to be filled by Presidential appointment with confirmation of two-thirds of senate.

My only question is, "Who is replacing John Systma on The Honor Court." Perhaps this should be published in the "Flambeau."

A week or so ago the Board of Publications met to hear a complaint lodged against the "Flambeau" by the Chi Omega sorority. It seems Matt Straub had humorously mentioned them in his satire on the Greek God of Rush. No offense was intended but that didn't stop the girls.

I suppose the letter of complaint and the formal complaint lodged to the BOP about Matt Straub is proof indeed that, "Hell hath no fury like a Greek organization spoofed a little bit."

Despite all the pointed com...ents aimed at Student Government and on occasion, at the student body president, it is the honest opinion of this column that President Johnny Smith is the best president this school has had in years.

Birmingham - Before The Bomb

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles written by a former "Flambeau' staff member who is now working in Birmingham, Ala.)

By HOWARD DENSON

Before an unnamed maniac killed four girls in a church on Sept. 15, Birmingham's tensions were more akin to a frolicking football game than a struggle between the races.

The local school board, realizing it was futile to fight the federal government, and Gov. Wallace, who had just lost control of the activated state guard, were letting the city schools be integrated.

But local organizations, which supported segregation and conservative government, rallied their forces to fight the federal government. Their weapons were Confederate flags, automobiles, motorcades, and jeering students--and these weapons were insufficient against the federal "bayonets" for they couldn't "fight bayonets with their bare hands."

In fact, the city police and the state troopers wouldn't even let the motorcades get near the schools, and the crowds of students asking the integrated students to "come out, come out" had to stand behind police prescribed limits or face arrest.

So the students took to the road in their hopped-up autos or family cars and drove all over the 600,000-population metropolitan area, honking horns and shouting "Two, four, six, eight; we don't want to integrate" or "Eight, four, six two; we don't wanna jigaboo" or "Eight, four, six, two, Albert Boutwell (the mayor) is a Jew." (He's a Methodist.)

Holding periodic rallies, the teenage leaders would say, "We don't want the press to know where we're going next, so I'll just tell you we're going to a school whose initials are SV." Shades Valley, as everyone in the county knew.

Their automobiles might be filled with as many as 12 people each. And the cars, often flying as many as four Confederate flags, would display signs saying, "Boycott," or "Kennedy for King, Wallace for President," or "Wallace for President, Kennedy for Africa," or "We support West End."

Downtown the cars would form double lines of as many as 10 cars when stopped at traffic lights, and all drivers would honk their horns, shout their cheers, and jeer at passing Negroes.

When leaving one of their rallies, in which they might be told they were going to a school whose initial is "R" (Ramsay), they would snake across the city, ignoring traffic lights and road rules--and getting under the skins of many Magic City residents, who had also become fed up with the continual honking.

At the school houses, policemen no longer had need of their nightsticks. . .and could sit on their rumps, play touch football, listen to a youthful trumpeter playing a tinny version of "Dixie," or ride a high-seated and high-handle bar bicycle belonging to one of the students.

It was more like the atmosphere of a Mardi Gras, until that Sunday morn when the church was blasted at 10:20.

Since it was a Sunday morning, the radio stations were filled with religious services and the newspapers naturally had no mention of the 10:20 bombing, so for a while several youths drove around in their cars and flying the CSA flags, unaware of the bombing.

But the news eventually spread like a forest fire, and most youths heeded the call of the mayor to "stay at home." The flags came down, States Rights leaders and segregationist ministers even told the teenagers to go home.

Edward Fields, a chiropractor and editor of the States Rights Party newspaper, deplored the bombing, told the youths to cancel the mot cades until further notice, a lamented that the bomber was do the segregationists' cause m harm than good.

And the whites' protests stopp partly out of fear of the effect Confederate flag in a Negro d trict and partly out of respec four dead girls.

Flambeau Forum

Why Some Can't Sign Restaurant Petition . .

To the Editor:

During the past few weeks, I have watched the student body and the university as a whole split into two camps over the segregation issue.

I have never seen the law broken, hidden behind, then broken again until it has ceased to have meaning, and waited, as emotionalism drove demonstrations toward the point of mob action, but tonight I was forced to accept the fact that virtually all thought and communication between the two has been destroyed.

I watched as two people lost a friendship, because one felt he must sign the petitions now being circulated and the other, after serious thought, could not sign, and any explanation proved useless, all communication failed.

I have no intention of discussing the moral obligations of the owners of those off-campus establishments to serve Negro FSU students or whether or not the Negro is as good as the White. These are decisions which must be, and will be, (despite any legislation we may pass) decided by each individual.

I cannot in good conscience put my signature on these petitions even though I approve the basic idea. The attempt to provide some assurance of continued good business for these establishments in the event that they should desegregate, and thereby allow the owners to make their own decisions without the previous economic threat is, to my mind, the best and most constructive approach, presented to date.

Because there has been all too little constructive thought, the decision not to sign these petitions and thereby fail to show approval of the constructive original idea, has been very difficult for a number of people.

I can only explain my own decision and I apologize for no one; the people who refused to sign the petition seem, from my conversations to have given considerably more thought to their decisions than many who endorsed it.

Every shred of constructive thought has been aborted by the open threat of picketing if the owners fail to comply and despite any cries concerning "the rights of man,' trampling the rights of four businessmen in order to give rights to an equal number of students is, at very best, something less than progress and the destruction of the businesses which four men have worked to build in order to assure some other four men of the right to service in them, is anything but constructive.

Until and unless people quit thinking on the lines of "Do something, even if it's wrong" and "The end justifies the means," communication between the two sides will continue to decline until any progress achieved in the last hundred years will be negated by the growing intolerance and hate on both sides.

20-20 Vision

To the Editor:

As I think about the refusal of the four off-campus restaurants to serve the Negro population of our student body, I find these establishments in a not so peculiar, but interesting situation:

It doesn't take 20-20 vision to see the color of those who prepare the food, wash the dishes, and clear the tables. It would seem that the respective managements consider the Negro good enough to perform these tasks and harmless enough not to scare away any prospective customers.

But is he permitted to sit down at the table he has cleared, and eat the food he has prepared from the dishes he has washed? Of course not! That might drive away a few hypocrites and their money.

Yeah man the South will rise again--it had better, because right now it is pretty damn LOW.

Fred Glavin

All Not Welcome

To the Editor:

I saw a sign displayed in public just across the street from our campus. It said, "Welcome, FSU Students and Faculty." So I went in.

I asked the manager "Do you mean all FSU Students and Faculty?" The manager's eyes shifted away (Did I just imagine in embarrassment?) and a lowered voice said, "White."

"That's too bad," I said. "I'd feel more comfortable about coming in if you really meant all." And although I don't have very much melanin in my skin, I walked away saddened by this exchange between neighbors.

Approach Fresh

To the Editor:

It may have been only four pages, but Tuesday's "Flambeau" (Oct. 2) had something that has been on short order in the good ole "Flowerpot" for a while--originality.

This something was Vicki Rodriguez's "Room 200 Offers Culture," a feature about the Humanities Room in Robert Manning Strozier Library. But the real "feature" was the sparkling fresh approach of Miss Rodriguez.

Hooray for Vicki Rodriguez, Feature Editor Pat Freeman, and for the Flambeau--and for the nonpareil in "Room 200" individual professors. He criticized the BOC's action in cutting raises for two professors of education.

State Comptroller Ray Green contended that the legislature gave the cabinet final authority in pay raises so that all raises wouldn't go to top-level university personnel, leaving out persons who are doing the actual teaching.

In commenting on the cabinet's approval, Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers, FSU dean of faculties, termed it a "tainted victory" for Florida educators.

Although the reductions were "negligible," the effect was primarily psychological rather than financial for university personnel. Chalmers has expressed the fear that arbitrary ceilings on salaries would hurt Florida's efforts to compete with other states which offer higher pay to top educators.

University Comptroller George E. Fortin announced that he has received no official instructions about cabinet approval of certain raises, but anticipated that eight to ten administrative salary increases will be reduced.

The individual proposed raises ranged from $500 to $2,000 for each of the disputed personnel. According to the cabinet's action, reductions amounted to about $500 per position under the board's original requests.

Exchanging Pleasantries

By JOHN WOOD

One of the highlights of the summer, in more than one way for the members of the football staff at FSU, was the tenth annual Coaching clinic, held here from June 13-15. The edition for this year featured such names as Norm Van Brocklyn of the Minnesota Vikings, Ara Parseghian of Northwestern University, Frank Broyles of Arkansas and Tom Nugent of Maryland.

The only part of this invitational conference that holds any interest for students today is the lighthearted side, the "feud" between a participant, Nugent of Maryland who coached at FSU from 1953 to 1958, and an interested onlooker, coach Frank Howard of Clemson University.

Nugent, one of the sharpest thinkers and best talkers in the coaching profession, furnished a tip off on the widely publicized "feud" with Howard when he said, "When I first went to Maryland four years ago, Howard looked me up and said, "You give me the devil in the papers every chance you get and I'll do the same to you. It'll get all the fans stirred up and every time we play, there'll be a full stadium."

Since that time, these two wits have taken every opportunity to publicly blast each other. Now, every one of their games together is played before a packed house.

Their mutual lack of admiration society was a daily highlight of the clinic. Here are some of Howard's more recent public comments:

"Nugent's complaining because some of his players have to go to class nowadays. That's something new up at Maryland, I reckon. My Clemson players are all smart. Maryland's got some good players. They have to be good to beat us three times in four years, DESPITE Nugent's coaching."

"Ole Nugest is a real rascal. The three times Maryland beat us, he said, 'Well, I won.' Then last year, we beat Maryland and Nugent said, 'the BOYS lost.'

"These other coaches use fancy names when they talk about football. They say, "We insist on pursuit of the ball carrier.' I tell my boys, 'Everybody go catch that devil with the ball.' "

"Norm Van Brocklyn of the Vikings is okay. He came down to see me at Clemson last winter, and it really made me feel good. I thought I had a bad season until he started talking about all the games his team lost."

Nugent, not to be outdone, came up to the dais later and said. "Clemson should win all its games. You've heard Howard say how great his material is. Well, he should win 'em, but he won't. He's got the best material and he makes out his own schedule, but he won't win. I'm not going to say why Clemson isn't going to win all the games, I'll just leave you to draw your own conclusions."

As a final statement at one luncheon, Howard turned on the dais and said loudly to Nugent, "Good luck, Tom, I hope we beat the devil out of you."

Frosh Eye Hurricanes

Three Tampa lads, impressive Saturday night though their team lost 21-7 to Florida, will get a chance to shine for the hometown fans when the Florida State Freshmen meet Miami's Frosh Saturday night in Tampa.

One of the three - halfback Bill Campbell - rushed only once for no gain, but he still has a firm hold on a second team left halfback berth.

Meanwhile, quarterback Vernon Korhn and tackle Bob Patterson jumped from the third and second teams respectively, to the first unit as practice began Monday. Coach Ken MacLean, looking for remedies after his team's poor showing, made the changes pointing out that the first unit may change even once again before Saturday night.

The freshmen take on Miami's Baby Hurricanes at 8 p.m. in Tampa's Phillips Field. The game is sponsored by the Bayshore Optimist Club; Game Chairman is Nelson Italiano, a halfback on FSU elevens in 1950 and 1951, when he rushed for 761 yards.

And FSU fans in the crowd will note with interest the play of the Miami quarterback, Bob Biletnikoff of Erie, Pa., Bob, called "The Blitzer" by Miami fans and considered a possible successor to George Mira as varsity quarterback next season, is a younger brother of FSU's star varsity flanker back, Fred Biletnikoff. Fred caught two touchdown passes and intercepted a Mira pass and ran 99 yards for a third as the Seminoles downed Miami 24-0 two weeks ago.

Florida's classy freshmen, led by quarterback Steve Spurrier and halfbacks George Grandy and Jimmy Jordan, completely dominated play in Saturday night's game in Campbell Stadium here. The Baby Gators, a previous game's experience under their belt, ran up 435 total offense yards. Spurrier hit seven of 18 passes for 170 yards, one a 68 yard TD pass to Jordan, and ran for a 19-yard score.

Only halfbacks Donovan Jones of Lakeland, an All-Western Conference choice last year, end Wayne McDuffie, and fullback Tom Delopez of Miami remained on the first unit as practice opened Monday. Seven other members of Saturday night's starting team were demoted to second and third team slots, and left half Larry Green, who suffered an eye injury and ankle sprain is listed as doubtful for the Miami game.

Green was replaced by Rick Saunders, 181 pounder from Macon, Ga., who scored the lone touchdown on a three yard run and rushed for 98 yards on 10 carries, a fancy 9.8 average. Saunders turned in runs of 44 and 29 yards.

Four players who missed the Saturday game are given a chance to see action. End Charles Fuchs, sprained ankle and halfback Allan LaMarche, charley horse, are listed as question marks, while tackle Scott McCord, sprained ankle, and center Tom Thompson, concussion should be ready.

Tampa's Korhn, one time Plant High passing ace and winner of the Toph Trophy as the city's best prep player in 1962, didn't get into the game at quarterback until the third quarter but ran the team with authority and impressed the Seminole frosh coaches with his poise afield. He hit one of four passes for six yards.

Korhn missed a full week of practice in early September with a case of pnuemonia but is in shape now. He completed 74 of 132 passes for 1,172 yards at Plant High last year.

Halfback Campbell, one of the team's fastest, played quarterback for Chamberlain High's 1960, 19 and 1962 teams but was switched to a left halfback job on arrival at FSU.

Patterson, a 216-pound right tackle from Hillsborough High, played a superior game defensively for the Baby Seminoles. He "graded out" third best on the squad; frosh coaches gave him a sixty per cent grade after viewing game films.

The first team now has McDuffie and Fred Hudson of Milton at ends, Patterson and 245 pound Felton Larcaster of Cross Keys, Ga., are at tackles, Mike Brady of Coral Gables and Bill Betts of Birmingham, Ala., at guards, and Helge Swans of Milton at center. Behind Korhn in the backfield are halfbacks Saunders and Jones and fullback Delopez.

Ken MacLean, who coaches the freshman team was a triple-threat star at Florida State Back in 19 and 1949. A native of Quincy, Florida, he transferred to FSU in 19 when the school became co-educational. The previous football season MacLean was starting halfback at the University of Florida.

Roberts Gets Savage Award

By RICK ROSE
Flambeau Sports Writer

The FSU Seminoles came out on the practice field this past week determined to shine up some of the sparkle that was dimmed by the 13-0 defeat at the hands of Texas Christian's Horned Frogs.

This Saturday's opponent will be a team that has not scored a victory in its last 13 games, but coach Bill Peterson stated in a Tampa Tribune interview that the team will definitely be in the proper frame of mind for the game. There have been no signs of overconfidence among the players thus far.

After a shake-up in the team's lineup, all but one man, fullback Marion Roberts, were back on the units they started out on.

Marion was placed on the first team after winning the Savage of the Week award for the T.C.U. game. He replaced Gene Roberts who was moved to the offensive Warriors.

The return of two formerly injured men, fullback Larry Brinkley and defensive halfback Winfred Bailley should give added strength to the Tribe's defensive backfield.

The line will be considerably beefed up by tackles Avery Sumner and Jerry Bruner, who are returning to their former positions after being moved off the starting lineup last week.

Another lineman, Jack Edwards, 214 pound center from Tampa, is back on the two-way unit after playing on the defensive unit.

While the Seminoles worked on both offensive and defensive drills this week, they concentrated on their kicking game. The defense was turned mainly to defending against goal-line stands.

Cabinet Hikes Coaches' Salary

The head football coaches of two state universities received pay raises yesterday when the Cabinet approved 156 salary increases.

Coach Ray Graves of the University of Florida and Bill Peterson, head coach of F.S.U., received pay hikes of $1,000 and $1,500 respectively.

Vaughn Mancha, Florida State's Athletic Director, received an increase of $750 annually, raising his former salary of $12,700 to $13,450.

Auction Nets Over $450 For Campus Chest Drive

The annual Pi Kappa Phi-Kappa Delta Faculty Auction yesterday brought over $450 for the Campus Chest this year, more than doubling any previous year's amount.

The auction was preceded by a motorcade which started at Campbell Stadium and took a route around the fraternity and sorority houses, ending up at Westcott Circle.

Dr. Stephen S. Winters, geology professor, brought high price, selling for $64 to the Delta Zetas.

Dr. George C. Killinger, social welfare, was a close second, going for $59.75 to the Alpha Delta Pi's.

Sigma Phi Epsilon bought out the History Dept.'s two entries, Dr. William W. Rogers ($22.75) and Dr. James P. Jones ($30) in a spree costing $52.75.

The mystery man this year was Student Body President Johnny Smith, who went to the Alpha Phi's for $25.

Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby was auctioned to Pi Kappa Alpha's for $21, while FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell went for $30.25 to the Pi Kappa Phi's.

Dr. John E. Champion, vice president for administration, was purchased for $28 by the Kappa Sigma's.

From the Physical Education Dept. M.O. (Bud) Berringer, wrestling coach, was bought for $13, while Tom Martin, tennis, went to the Delta Delta Delta's for $21.

Prof. Donald D. Howard went to the Chi Omega's for $9.

Dr. W.G. (Shifty) Shover, marketing, was auctioned off for $21 to the Kappa Delta's, while Dr. Claude R. Flory, English, went for $37 to the Delta Delta Delta's and Pi Kappa Phi's.

Miss Marie Williams, social director, was sold for $13.75 to the Kappa Sigma's, and Dr. Stephen Schafer, social welfare, went to the Kappa Kappa Gamma's for $19.75.

Coach (Al) Addison Gilbert of the Circus was bought by the circus for $28.75.

Transportation for the retreat will leave Bryan Hall at 7:15 p.m. Friday night and return the following day at 3:00 p.m.

All students who plan to spend the night are reminded to bring sheets, blankets and a pillow. Students are also asked to bring questions, ideas and criticisms they wish to discuss.

Dorothy Jackson, Chairman of the retreat, expressed her feeling on the purpose of the retreat saying, "We are hoping this retreat will be a time when everyone can feel free to voice his ideas about student government and express any suggestions for improvement or change they may have. Then too, it should be a valuable and rewarding experience if only we will all be concerned enough to attend. After all, the students are Student Government and should lend their support."

The cost for students staying both days is $2.50 and registration will be extended through October 18 at both the desk in Longmire and the desk outside Kellum.

Dr. Mary Hood is equally at home in the lab or in the examination room as she administers examinations to all persons interested in practicing the healing arts in the State of Florida.

Two Prowlers Apprehended

Tallahassee police, answering a call made by the residence counselor at the FSO house on 609 W. Pensacola Street, arrested two peeping toms on Wednesday at 11:45 p.m.

Gerald Ray Shrewsbury, 20, and Michael Allen Vickers, 19, both FSU students, pleaded guilty to charges of being peeping toms before Municipal Judge John Rudd yesterday morning.

The men said they were out getting exercise after studying late and were cutting through some yards when they heard the chatter of women's voices and saw a lighted window. They decided to take a look.

"What did you see?" Rudd asked.

"Nothing,' the two replied.

"I am sorry ' Rudd said, and then after a pause, "That will be $50 or 25 days.'

Correction

Yesterday's Flambeau erroneously quoted A&M Student Body President Prince J. McIntosh as saying the Tallahassee Commission should go on record protesting activities of "certain students."

This statement was made by Commissioner Davis Atkinson.

McIntosh should have been quoted as signer of a leaflet saying that convictions of students in demonstration activities "is an attempt to discourage and stifle the students of the university from any and all attempts to gain freedom and equality..." Quotations from the leaflet were incorrectly attributed to Judge Ben C. Willis.

Dr. Hood Reappointed To Examination Board

By MAX COURTNEY

Dr. Mary N. Hood, in the bacteriology division of the Biology Dept., has recently been re-appointed by Governor Farris Bryant to the Board of Examiners in basic studies.

The Board administers examinations to all individuals who practice healing arts in the state of Florida, including medical doctors, osteopaths and chiropractors.

When persons have successfully completed the basic sciences exam, they become eligible for the state board in their own area. Everyone who practices the healing arts in Florida must take this exam.

According to Dr. Hood, "around 800 to 1000 persons take the exam twice yearly." Her duty is to administer the bacteriology portion of the examination. The other areas covered include, chemistry, anatomy, physiology and pathology.

In addition to her activities with the Board of Examiners, Dr. Hood is head of the bacteriology division of biological sciences. She received her Ph. D. degree from the University of Michigan after completing undergraduate studies at Western Kentucky State College.

she is a member of Sigma Xi, (scientific society), Phi Kappa Phi, (scholastic society), Phi Sigma (national biological honorary), Society of American Bacteriologists, Society of Southeastern Biologists, Florida Academy of Sciences, American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Institute of Biologists.

Back Bond Issue

(There is a vital need for Florida voters to support the proposed bond amendment in the Nov. 5 election. The following synopsis of arguments favoring the amendment's acceptance is reprinted from the "Florida Alligator."--Ed.)

There is one philosophy which says that there are no logical arguments necessary to push the amendment, because anything that will help the sad conditions of Florida's university system is automatically good and should be supported without reservation.

However there are some good, logical arguments in favor of the bond amendment, arguments which should convince almost anyone who thinks he is against the issue because of the amount of money involved which the state will have to pay back one day.

One of those arguments: the state in 1950 was 20th in population in the nation. Today it is ninth. In 1955, Florida had 32,000 college students. Today it has 92,000. And in 1970, there will be at least 180,000.

But the funds provided for the university system have not increased at the same rate not at all, and the trend continued in the last legislative session. A total of $13,042,000 was provided the state's universities for the 1963-65 biennium. The Board of Control, however, has placed the accumulated needs of the universities at more than $100 million.

In 1952, the state's voters approved an amendment to divert a portion of automobile tag receipts to back up board of education bonds for public school construction. The amendment was designed to meet the crop of "war babies' just entering the public school system. Time proved the move a good one. $160,480,000 worth of bonds have been issued to finance school buildings in 60 of the 67 Florida counties. Binterest charges have ranged from 2.38 per cent to 4 per cent.

Now those same war babies are ready to enter the state's colleges. It is for them, and future crops of freshmen, that the bond issue amendment was proposed. Bond experts have said the interest charges on the bond issue should be as low or lower than the auto tag receipt bonds.

Funds to pay interest and principal on the bonds are to come from the utilities gross receipts tax for a 50 year period, beginning in 1964. The tax was originally levied against public utility companies in 1931. In 1962-63, it produced revenues of more than $10 million.

Worried about the use of your dollars? Afraid some kind of ' rake-off" might slip into administration of such a large-scale program? Well, give a listen to these safeguards, built right into the amendment:

Interest on the bonds cannot exceed 4.5 per cent; bonds must be sold through public bidding; any discount must be less than 2 per cent; and the State Board of Administration will be fiscal adviser for the bond issue, saving about $1 million in fees.

Furthermore, no project can be financed under the bond program unless it is approved by a three-fifths vote of both legislative houses. The state bond review board must determine the bonds' fiscal soundness and make sure the financing has legislative approval.

Thomas Fleming, chairman of Citizens For Florida's Future, has said, "The need for technically skilled and highly trained specialists is increasing every day. Positions for college-educated people remain unfilled. There is room at the top, if we will but prepare our young people for the top.

"The very kind of industry which Florida is attempting to attract demands highly trained and skilled personnel, and those industries will not locate here unless we have the facilities to educate our young men and women to their standards.

What the automobile did for Detroit, what the airplane did for California, the space age can do for Florida--not will do, but can do--if we provide educational opportunities through the proper vocational schools, colleges, and universities."

In other words, the bond issue is a good and sound investment. Taxpayers' monies will be well-spent.

Any other questions?

Protect States Against Court

Ever since the case of Brown vs. Board of Education slapped the South in the face, Southerners--an unpopular minority--have been trying to devise a way to protect themselves from the illogical and whimsical decision of the Supreme Court.

The real issue is how does a State protect itself from the Supreme Court or from any branch of the Federal government which acts unconstitutionally against one of the States? Not whether integration is good or bad per se.

Who interprets the Constitution? The Supreme Court claims that power, but it is not given to them in the Constitution. When a State and the Federal government disagree over what is or isn't constitutional who should decide? This is an argument between the State and Federal government, and since the Supreme Court is one of the three branches of the Federal government it is inherently biased, and therefore unqualified to adjucicate the dispute.

For one thing, a State can interpose its sovereignty between the order of the Federal government and the people of the State. The State can then resolve the issue by amending the Constitution or by some other form of argument. The point is that the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction or power legally.

Ever since the inception of the Court its justices have been appointed with political considerations and used as a political force. No can deny this if they examine record. As the great John C. C houn said, "To confide the powe the judiciary to determine fi and conclusively what powers delegated and what reserved, w be, in reality, to confide it to majority, whose agents they are, by whom they can be controlle various ways: and of course, subject. . .the reserved powers the States, with all the local peculiar interests they were int ed to protect, to the will of very majority against which the tection was intended."

Interposition has been used s cessfully by the States before Little Rock the State of Arka was humiliated by the use of eral force. The issue there resolved by force, not by log reasoning.

What is the solution? One sim answer would be to set up a composed of one popularly ele justice from each State that decide disputes arising betwee States and the Federal governm A 3/4 majority would be need reaffirm the position of the eral government, or a similar portion.

Women Kept From Library

By AL GALBRAITH

Yes, Virginia, there is discrimination on this campus, but it isn't all based on epithelial pigmentation.

Women are being discriminated against in principle as much as any Freedom Rider. They are being deprived of one of the basic commodities which should be available to every student: study time in the library. There exists a discrepancy between library hours and the women's curfew, and the remedy lies entirely in the hands of the administration.

Library hours were extended substantially this fall in order to allow fuller use of the facilities by a greater number of students. You can now study in the library until midnight on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday--if you're a man, that is.

Women are still required to be in their dorms at eleven p.m. which is unfair to those who could make good use of the extra hour. Remember, too that almost half of the student body is involved, and it was for the good of the student body as a whole that the library hours were extended.

What possible solutions exist? There is only one sensible solution: extend the curfew to midnight in order to fit the library schedule. After all, if women are "allowed" to stay out late on weekends for social purposes, then why not on week nights for academic purposes?

Action in this case must come directly from the office of the Dean of Women. Student Government is powerless, which means that the student body has no outlet for action. We must appeal to the sense of justice of the administration.

Red China Does Exis

Let's play a game like some of our politicians do. First close your eyes and then pretend that over 700 million people don't exist. Now wasn't that easy, and it also solved a very grave problem.

Now let's face reality. Since 1949 Red China has been in very real existence. It appears that the main reason why the U. S. refuses to recognize Red China at the present time is because it has become a very touchy political problem with partisan politics involved. There is also the embarrassing problem as what to do with one Chiang Kai-shek.

A careful analysis shows th would be to our overall advan to recognize Red China. To with, she does exist and is in fective control of the mainlan also is apparent that the nume Chinese outside of China, in p like Singapore, support Red C One very simple reason mu because she promises the grea glorious position that China held in past centuries.

Next, Chiang is also a dictato because he is anti-Com we support him. We support and supported many dictators i world, and so that should invali ouw reason for not supporting talitarian government in Red C Some people feel that the lo American life in Korea wou made useless if we were to re nize Red China. But today we re nize Britain, Germany, Italy, Didn't we also lose American to these countries?

It would obviously be to our vantage to have some kind of tening post inside Red Chin would be more to the world's sa tage to have her in the United Na where she could be watched, would again be to our advanta as much as it would probably re Red China's inferiority comple resulting hostility.

Again facing reality, it is im sible for Nationalist China to cessfully invade Red China wi U.S. air and sea support. It w be just as well for us to dro A bomb on Red China and ha over with because we would i volved.

Will we continue to recogni nonentity while an entity con its apparent nonexistence i eyes? Let's stop playing poli games and face reality.

Phylloclady's Back!

Muck was the first Phylloclady major FSU had ever seen. He didn't mean to cause all the fuss but he had always wanted to a Phyllocladist every since he saw one as an infant.

Thus there was great confusion (I mean more than usual) when he marched into the Registrar's office and announced in his commanding, albeit squeaky voice that he declared his major to be Phylloclady and demanded a counselor immediately. As you can imagine, this threw the clerks into a terrible panic and they hastily tried to get him to settle for a couple of free class schedules instead. They even offered to let him drop and add any old time he wanted.

This would have broken the will of a lesser man, but not Muck--he yearned for the life of a Phyllocladist. Finally the Registrar stepped in and assigned him to the only qualified Phylloclady counselor on campus--after first checking with the Florida Senate to make certain that being a Phyllocladist was not lewd.

The office of Muck's counselor was located in a steam vent somewhere between Opperman and Longmire. The room was shabby, with unused copies of the "Flastacowo" stacked on the bookshelves. Cobwebs clung to everything, including a little old man in a now-too-large straw hat and striped blazer.

"Skiddoo kiddoo!" piped the old fellow in greeting. "Sir," said Muck, "I am a Phylloclady major and I need counsel." At this the old gentleman stared dumbly for a moment, then leaped right out of his brown and white saddle shoes (which were also too large). "Y-you're a what!", he screamed hysterically, "you mean you're actually. . .y-you're the first. . .oh my God!"

And with that he slumped across his roll-top desk. Muck calmly picked up a yellowed, brittle list of requirements for a Phylloclady degree and filled out his green trial schedule. He then picked up the antique telephone and called the dispensary. The desk nurse assured him that a police car loaded with aspirin was on the way.

With that Muck marched out of the steam vent and headed toward Tully Gym. The world steps aside for a man with a goal.

st weekend I was required to e home (less than a hundred es from Tallahassee) because of religious holiday. Friday morn-in a rush to get to a too-early s, I signed out for my weekend at my dorm. It had to be ap-ved by my housemother before ft and this would be the only ortunity available before I left campus. Sunday afternoon I returned, only to find a note on my sign-out card to see the housemother.

The complication? In my rush I had erroneously written the returning time as Saturday instead of Sunday. The housemother sent me to the dorm president, who said that there was a hazy line between house council and judiciary offenses, and that this would go to house council where it would probably be dismissed. Later I was informed I had to go to judiciary, instead.

I came before the "bar," and told them what had happened. I was put on three days of partial restriction (guess what days). In the approximate words of the chairman, "We realize it was a mistake, but we can't let something like that pass by. . .three days is the minimum judiciary gives to anyone."

She said because of my mistake in signing out I was out from the university jurisdiction for one night. But then again, I was under my parents'. She also said that the university had no way of knowing where I was or what had happened. If the university was so worried as to know my whereabouts and what had happened (and obviously they weren't), they could have called to see if I was still at home.

Do the members of this quasi-court have nothing better to do than delve out sentences for trivial items? This weekend when I should be in the library working on reports for my 18 hours of courses, I will be cozily stashed away in the solitude of my room. And all because of a simple, human error? How many of you write down the wrong date on homework and letters? Perhaps the young women at the university here are being required to be super-human! If you think I'm kidding, read over "Knowledge for College' one time.

Peace Movement Urged

Students of this campus may not realize what it is like to see buildings blown up in front of them; to see their husband or wife, one minute standing at their side, and the next minute dying from a bullet; And their children shot to bits before their own eyes.

This is WAR! This is what we as Americans know nothing about. But if there is another war, we will experience this same destruction of human lives.

Today the effects of nuclear warfare would be even worse than the horrifying wars of the past. Entire cities can be wiped out with one blast killing all forms of life within miles. The unlucky ones who would not be demolished in the initial explosion would be finished off by radiation. Those surviving would be, literally, human wrecks and their future children would be hideous.

Students of this campus, how would you feel if your children were born deformed or dead because of radiation fallout? You would feel awful! Well, this is what will happen if we do not achieve the goal of peace.

President Kennedy stated in his speech to the United Nations, "The long labor of peace is an undertaking for all nations. . .in this effort none of us can remain unaligned. To this goal none can be uncommitted." The President went on further to say, "I would say to the leaders of the Soviet Union and to their people, that if either of our countries is to be fully secure we need a much better weapon than the H-Bomb--a weapon better than ballistic missles or nuclear submarines; and that better weapon is peaceful co-operation."

If our President has dedicated himself to working toward peace and the abandonment of nuclear war, then it is now up to the citizens of the United States to work towards peace so that we may live in a world that is not plagued with the constant fear of being annihilated in a matter of hours by a nuclear war.

A peace organization should be established on this campus with the purpose of backing the President on his work for peace. This organization would be instrumental in acquainting people with the disasters of nuclear war, the effects of radiation upon human beings the world over, and the importance of peaceful cooperation among all nations of the world.

There will be an organizational meeting for those people who are interested in working toward peace. It will be Monday, at 7:30 p.m. in Longmire Club Room, Room 204. Peace is everyone's concern; Everyone is invited.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: OLIVER PORTER, JR.

"Will my first assignment really be a challenge?" is a question that haunts many young engineers.

An affirmative answer to the question was waiting for Oliver Porter, Jr. (B.S.C.E., 1959), when he reported to Southern Bell's Greenville, S. C., office July, 1962.

A week hadn't passed when Oliver became a full-fledged practicing member of the District Engineering group.

In addition to design duties, Oliver was immediately put to work directly serving customers – handling requests for service or facility rearrangements, advising architects, and acquiring public and private right-of-way.

Oliver found his challenge quickly, and at the same time impressed Southern Bell with his technical engineering proficiency and ability to represent the company.

Oliver Porter, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Turner Called Fuzzy Thinker

To the Editor:

I would like to give Mr. Turner the award for the leading fuzzy thinker of the day Oct. 2, 1963.

I'm curious as to whenever Mr. Turner is abroad, what he says when somebody asks where he is from. Does he say he is a Floridian, (or wherever he is from,) or does he say that he is a southerner or does he say that he is an American.

In reference to the little spiel on the tenth amendment, the states (as represented in Congress) "voted down an attempt to insert the word 'expressly' before the word delegated. Apparently then, the framers did not mean to limit national power only to those powers expressly delegated." The preceding passage was taken from the government 106 text in reference to the tenth amendment.

Perhaps Mr. Turner should study the Constitution. The Supreme Court does have the last word on what is Constitutional or not, in fact the Supreme Court was set up with this in mind. It is the rights of the states to amend the Constitution, but not to ignore it, or the authority that it places in the federal government.

As for the premise that states may still secede from the Union, this is not only assinine, but contrary to Mr. Turner's opening statement, that was settled by the bloodiest war we ever fought.

It seems inconceivable to me that an educated citizen can still think in terms of 18th century political thinking. We are no longer a nation of three million, having no influence whatsoever on world affairs. We are the leaders of the free world, we Americans are leaders.

Coffee Hour Starts Today

Dr. Francis G. Townsend, head of the English Department at FSU will be the opening speaker in this year's English Coffee Hour series, Friday, at Westminster House.

Townsend will speak on "Othello: A Morality Play." The public is invited to the lecture which is under the sponsorship of the Department of English. The coffee hour will begin this season at 4:10 p.m. giving students time to get there from classes ending at 4, Townsend said. Plans call for a completion of the coffee hour before 5 p.m. according to Townsend.

Townsend will read selected passages from Othello and discuss the play as it relates to choice between good and evil. He considers the issue in Othello clear cut, as in a medieval morality play.

Townsend has been a member of the FSU faculty since 1956. Prior to that he served on the faculties of the University of Illinois and of Ohio State University.

Liberal Forum

A strategy meeting for students wishing to participate in definite action to desegregate the off campus eating establishment, will be held in the Unitarian Chapel, Sunday night at 7:30.

'Some Pieces Don't Fit' In 'Summer And Smoke'

By WAYNE COWART
Flambeau Photo Editor

"The pieces don't fit" screams Alma, and sure enough some of the pieces don't fit in the current University Theatre production of Tennessee Williams' "Summer and Smoke."

Fortunately, however, most of these cantankerous pieces are relatively minor ones. Perhaps some that don't fit aren't supposed to.

Essentially, we see two human beings with two elementally different views toward life struggling to reconcile their differences and ultimately failing. In the course of the play, John enters as a sensual human being seeking to find himself within the world of his physical and temporal sensations.

He says he's looking for an intangible something which he feels but cannot recognize or define in Alma, while she is struggling to live with her humanity in a religious or 'spiritual" world superimposed on the real world about her. It is here the pieces fit least, in that John and Alma are unable to bring themselves and their ideas together. The result of the conflict between these two approaches to life is frustratingly absurd and at the same time frustratingly true.

As each sees the value in the other's point of view they tend to lose sight of the values of their own position demonstrating what monumental pains Western man has created for himself by insisting that there are always will be two diametrically opposed sides to each and every question and further insisting that these two sides be irreconsilable.

Williams' play would have little or no meaning to Oriental or Eastern man. Within the framework of Buddhism and other similar Eastern religions, man is seen as one being with and in his God rather than eternally divided from Him.

Nonetheless, we here live in a Western world and for us the answer to this enigma is yet to be found. Thus 'Summer and Smoke' is a valuable drama. University Theatre has done well in putting words to people to stage. The set is contributive to the movement and to the symbolism of the play without being the subject of too much attention by and for itself. Jo Stripling and Al Smelko range to great heights in the quiet sometimes violent caldrons within and around which Alma and John exist. The supporting cast performs well, but (along with the leads) under definite handicaps.

It was not intentional on anyone's part, but early in the opening performance certain elements of the play became a little unlikely and the result was a few faint ripples of laughter when perhaps a good-humored smile would have been more appropriate. These small chuckles were perhaps due to the child actors in the opening scene being a little too young or the music being of to little fidelity or felicity.

At any rate, there were instants that you would have, and should have been serious, that were laughed at. At that point the fault lies with the production -- beyond the point it lies with the audience.

It was not until mid-way in the second part that there was anything like a level approach to the play on the part of the audience. Provided the same phenomenon does not take hold again the first nighters have much to gain by seeing the play again.

On an American campus teeming with the human products and effects of the Victorian Age and busy carving out the atomic age -- 'Summer and Smoke' is a play worth considerably more than its salt.

FSU's Political Union To Take Part In Study

By MARY ANDERSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The FSU Political Union has been asked to participate in an interim election study.

This is to be a study and comparison of the election laws of the various states. The study will deal with all aspects of elections from registration to violations and penalties.

Representative Fred Karl of Daytona Beach will announce his candidacy for governor on Sunday. Karl said he had planned to announce before then, but had postponed doing so because of a "Fred Karl Appreciation Day" scheduled for tomorrow. Karl said, "I have agreed that I will not formally announce my candidacy for the office of governor until after that date.

I. Lee Porter, special assistant to the Republican national chairman, has stated that any top Republican presidential candidate would carry Florida next year against President Kennedy, but that Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona would draw more votes. He also said that there is a good chance of picking up several more congressional seats to go along with the two they already have.

The best areas for gaining new seats were seen by Porter as being the seventh District now represented by James Haley of Sarasota, and third District of Claude Pepper, and the fourth District of Dante Fascell. Pepper and Fascell, from Dade county have been strongly pro-Kennedy.

Prospective gubernatorial candidate Haydon Burns of Jacksonville and Jack Mathews also of Jacksonville are somewhat unenchanted with one another. Burns feels that Mathews has stabbed him in the back, so to speak, by becoming a gubernatorial candidate and running against him; indifferent to Burns' past support.

Registration Open For SG Retreat

The annual Student Government Retreat will be held on October 18-19 at the Reservation.

This is an orientation and planning retreat and is open to everyone. Registration begins today in Longmire Bldg., and the cost is $2.50. Buses will leave from Bryan at 7 p.m. on Oct. 18 and will return at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 19.

The guest speaker will be Mr. H.L. Martin from Howard College. He is the Executive Secretary for SUSCA.

There will be a hootenanny on Friday night for the enjoyment of the participating students.

MECHANIC ON DUTY

Deacs Can Be Deadly

Florida State takes on the "Deacons" from Wake Forest tomorrow in the first of a long string of afternoon games. Contrary to many predictions the clash could be a real donnybrook.

The Deacons have lost 13 in a row, but things like that don't count when Coach Hildebrand's squad sees FSU on the schedule. In the four previous Wake Forest vs. FSU tilts, both teams have walked off the field victors twice. The largest margin of victory either team has had is eight points.

Tomorrow's tilt is the first of the series that the Seminoles have ever been favored to win.

Coach Bill Peterson has stated, "We expect a rough football game. Few people realize that Wake Forest, despite their string of losses, has the potential to be a quite respectable team. Any outfit that hits as hard as they have been hitting this year can jell overnight."

Coach Pete's remarks can be taken with the amount of salt one uses for any coach's pre-game comments, but in this case all fears are not groundless. The Deacons can be good and usually are against the Tribe.

The thing the FSU eleven has to fear most is the jelling of the Wake Forest passing attack. Wake Forest's number one hurler, quarterback Karl Sweetan, missed spring practice last year and the first two games of the '63 season with recurring wrist injuries. Last week he was the only bright point of a sputtering Deacon attack.

Deacon Coach Hildebrand on Sweetan, "Karl's timing has been a little off, and this is to be expected. When you consider that he wasn't around for spring drills, and then missed three weeks this fall you have to give him credit for doing a pretty good job."

Coach Bill Peterson has said that Wake Forest will field a "physically stronger team" than the Seminoles tomorrow. This might be true for all positions except fullback. Here, the Deacons are really hurting.

Brian Piccolo, Wake Forest's starting fullback, suffered a bruised should in combat with Virginia Tech two weeks ago. Last week, Piccolo was only able to carry the ball three times against North Carolina. The shoulder is still giving him trouble.

Donald Davis, Piccolo's sophomore replacement, has also acquired a bum shoulder. As a result, the Deacons could turn up with a converted guard-quarterback, Ralph Bradewiede, at the tail abck slot.

Probably the strongest point on the Wake Forest list of assets is the kicking game. Karl Sweetan, the mending quarterback, has booted eight out of his last sixteen kicks over 45 yards. His longest was 56 yards against Virginia Tech. Only four punts have been under the forty yard mark. His present average is 42.1.

Notice

Wake Forest's travel plans for the trip to Tallahassee call for the squad to travel in two DC-3's. The team will leave Winston-Salem at 9:30 this morning, and expects to arrive in Tallahassee about three hours later. Headquarters will be in the Duval Hotel. A workout is planned for Campbell Stadium this afternoon.

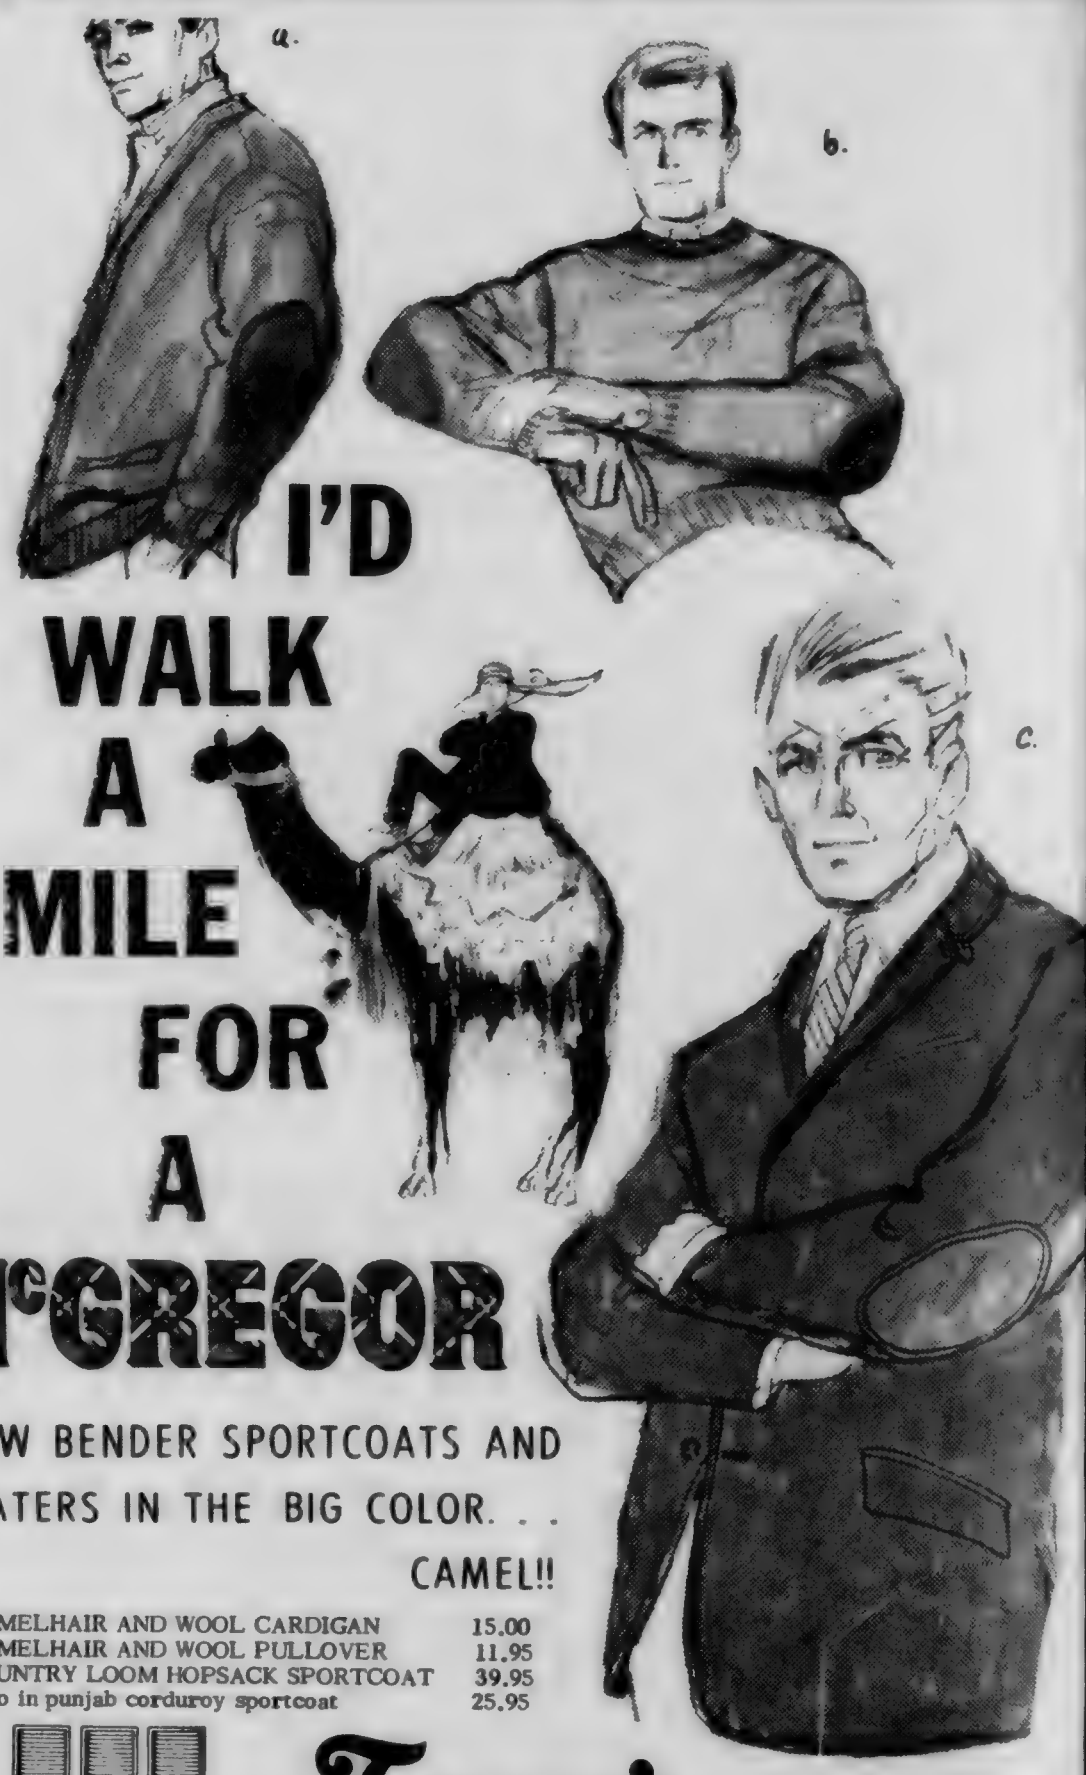
Tribe Set For Tomorrow's Tilt

Florida State will be in top shape for its tilt with Wake Forest Saturday. Fullback Larry Brinkley and defensive halfback Winfred Bailey will be at full speed for the game, with Brinkley playing for the first time this year. Another lineman, Jack Edwards, 214-pound center from Tampa, is back on the two-way unit after playing on the defensive unity.

Only change in the lineup that started against Miami three weeks ago will be Marion Roberts. He earned the starting berth after winning the Savage of the Week Award for the Texas Christian game. He replaced Gene Roberts who was moved to the offensive Warriors.



The Seminoles hope to show a more potent offense than they displayed against TCU. In their first afternoon game of this year the Seminoles will have to prove they are as good as they were against Miami. Though FSU moved the ball well against the Horned Frogs, they still weren't able to punch the ball across the goal.

FSU's tribe held a rough and spirited scrimmage Wednesday. Peterson was pleased with the overall look of the squad but was a bit disappointed with the passing game. Said the great Chief, "Our receivers are dropping too many they ought to catch. Wake Forest is a physically strong team, and we had better be ready to hold on to the ball when we catch 'em on Saturday."

Legislators Honored On Recognition Day

Florida State University President Gordon W. Blackwell thanked legislators Saturday for the work of the 1963 session which he called a "turning point for higher education."

Legislators, about 100 of whom accepted invitations to Legislative Recognition Day got a "sneak preview" of the opera "Susannah" composed by faculty member Carlisle Floyd and heard about a new approach to engineering education.

The day opened with a Coffee hour at 9:45 a.m. for the legislators, followed by three brief sequences from "Susannah" in Opperman Music Hall.

Against a stage backdrop in Opperman where the opera will be presented next Thursday through Saturday nights, student soprano Ethel Donaldson, playing the mountain girl Susannah, and faculty member Walter James, playing her brother Sam, did the scene in which both sing the 'Jaybird" song.

Miss Donaldson, a Metropolitan Opera Auditions' finalist last spring, then sang an aria describing her feeling after learning the community on New Hope Valley had ostracized her.

Finally nearly the entire cast appeared in a revival scene in which Susannah proudly rejected the false gossip about her. The itinerant minister, Olin Blitch was sung by Richard Collins, director of opera at FSU.

A barbecue at Tully Gymnasium followed the opera preview, after which the legislators watched FSU beat Wake Forest at Campbell Stadium.

To round off the day, the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce was host at a party and dinner at the Elks Club.

Both the capital city and FSU traditionally join forces to express appreciation to the legislators.

Blackwell, in addressing the legislators, touched on the College Building Amendment, whch he said ' will be recorded as a landmark in Florida higher education, if the voters support it at the polls."

The president summarized Legislative Recognition Day by saying it "provides an opportunity for us to recognize the role of the Legislature in our system of government. But more particularly, it provides an opportunity for us to appreciate and honor the men and women who make it work.'

"When their vision is great,' Blackwell continued, "the Legislature is great. When the Legislature is great the interests of the state are advanced -- higher education and all other facets of life in the state.'

Dr. Grover L. Rogers, dean of FSU's new School of Engineering Science, also spoke to the lawmakers. He characterized FSU as the seventh institution in the country to take a road toward engineering education emphasizing science rather than conventional fields and with an orientation toward graduate study.

FSU's is the first School of Engineering Science in a state supported university, Rogers continued.

Johnny Smith, president of the Student Body, and Bill Peterson, head football coach, also spoke to the legislators.

Commenting on "Susannah" Dr. Karl O. Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music said, "It is fitting that "Susannah" should be the first opera presented during a 'pilot season' of the State Opera Association of Florida created by the 1963 session, representing "a mature step forward for our state." Kuersteiner said, and when a scholarship-assistanceship program is established for FSU graduate students in music in connection with the organizations "the value of the state can be accurately figured in the hundreds of thousands of dollars annually."

Students Plan To Picket Today Unless Owners Serve Negroes

cketing of off-campus restaurants adjacent to campus has been scheduled to in at 11:30 a.m. today unless restaurant owners agree to serve FSU Negro stu-ts.

Skiff, chairman of the Social n Committee of Liberal Forum, that the owners of the four urants -- The Corner, Mecca, rsity Inn, and Sweet Shop -- een shown a petition signed by students and designed to dis- their feat of economic loss if begin to serve FSU Negro stu-.

petition said, in part, "In the that any of the aforementioned establishments will take the tive in ending racial discrimin-, we the undersigned will give xclusive support and patronage e desegregated establishment." said the owners had been asked eply by 12 noon yesterday, and a subsequent check with them shown no change. He added that, ld the owners agree before 11:30 today to abandon their discrim-ry practices, plans to picket be cancelled.

two of the owners could be reached yesterday for comment. Mrs. Jackie Harrington, owner of the Corner, said that at the present time she is not going to sign any agreement to change the policy of the restaurant. She said other business matters had kept her from deciding what to do about the petition.

The owner of the University Inn, Bob Mix, said he had no comment to make at this time.

Ifi a statement of student protest of segregation in the restaurants, the committee said, "This is the second year that FSU has been integrated, yet restaurants located adjacent to our campus are still refusing to serve the Negro members of our student body.

"Therefore, not only does an unjust form of discrimination exist, but furthermore, an affront to the character and integrity of our University, its students and faculty, and its administration.

"Numerous attempts to settle the problem with the restauranteurs have met with continued evasion and refusal to work out an acceptable solution.

"The chief argument for maintaining these businesses on a segregated basis has been supposedly economic -- that the restaurants would sustain financial losses if they were to desegregate. However, a petition circulated on Oct. 8 effectively undermined this excuse by promising support for whichever of the restaurants would first desegregate. It follows logically that, if the restauranteurs refuse to desegregate, their policy can only be based on racial prejudice, and not economic necessity.

"This being the case, if these eating establishments -- The Corner, Mecca, University Inn, and Sweet Shop -- have not desegregated their restaurants by the given deadline the students and faculty will be asked to be selective in their patronage, and one or more of these establishments will be picketed.

"It is felt that this action is a proper and peaceful exercise of civil liberty, and the concerned students do hope that their demonstration will be supported as such both by the administration and student body of Florida State University."

FSU Sends Ten Delegates To Publications Workshop

By BOB MITCHELL

The fourth annual Southern Universities Government Association Publications Workshop was held last week at the University of Florida.

College newspaper and yearbook staffs from all over the Southeast were represented at the two day conference in Gainesville.

Purpose of the annual publications workshop is for the exchange of ideas between the individual college publication organizations and so that staff members could have a chance to see how their publications are rated at other schools.

The workshop which began on Thursday consisted of panel discussions, informal coffee sessions and after hours gatherings of students to discuss common problems in organizing and publishing college newspapers and yearbooks.

Some of the problems that seemed to be found in most of the schools were lack of communication between the newspaper and students; misunderstanding between the administration and student editors; and the difficulty in organizing a good newspaper staff.

The panel discussions also covered such difficulties as finding news and features on the campus, editorial writing and financing and advertising in student publications.

One point that was widely discussed between the advisors and represen-

Probe Not Needed

The action taken last week by the Tallahassee City Commission, to request a Grand Jury investigation of "certain students" at Florida State University and Florida A & M University, is a lamentable interference into a situation which should be handled by the universities.

The recent decision of the Board of Control to leave discipline of state university students involved in racial demonstrations entirely up to the respective universities was heartening--but it has lessened only slightly the outside pressure being brought to "teach these students a lesson."

The Commissioners quite naturally are disturbed at the attention focused on Tallahassee by these demonstrations at downtown theatres, and no particular astuteness is needed to recognize that almost all the demonstrators are students. They seem to ignore, however, that these students are caught up in a social movement of national perspective.

They also have overlooked the extreme difference in intellectual atmosphere that universities have stood for. A university should be a place of change and exchange, of free thought and free expression. Students are idealists, trying to effect the establishment of their idea of a modern utopia. It is only in recent years that American students have joined the ranks of students in other nations, who have long been recognized as the leading force of change in their countries.

Commissioner Davis Atkinson indicated that "this probe would be directed at a minority of students," and that it is not intended as a "witch hunt." But the best of intentions sometimes go awry, and students whose names are blacklisted by the investigation may experience the same difficulties in later years as are many people who joined the Communist Party when it was "the thing to do," but who are suffering now.

Unfortunately, the Commission does not seem willing to give the University an opportunity to make its own decision, particularly in the case of the FSU students, whose discipline, if any, has not yet been announced.

If students violate the law, they are just as much subject to legal prosecution as any other citizen, and they are also subject to university discipline. If their actions are not illegal, they have the same rights to voice their protests against social injustices as any other citizen, without fear of personal reprisal.

A Grand Jury probe of these "certain students" may appear justifiable now, but once interference with free expression by students begins, there is no means of predicting where it will end, and no force to stop it if it gets out of control.

No, thank you, gentlemen, we'd rather handle our own problems.

Editor Raises 'Voice Of Escapism

To the Editor:

The voice of escapism has been heard again--this time in a Flambeau editorial: "Our first mission is to get an education so that we can be leaders of tomorrow. Our turn will come." (October 7th)

To express my feelings mildly, this sort of attitude from a person I know to be intelligent makes me sick. My first obligation is no[t] student at FSU. I am (1) a hu[man] being, (2) an American, and [(3)] student--in that order. And the [sac]rifices that I am willing to mak[e] in this order.

The cry of "I must get my de[gree] before I can be of use" is an es[cape]. That same person after gradu[ation] will marry and become a pare[nt], then the cry becomes "I have a f[am]ily to think of--I can't help [it]."

Of course we have to get an e[du]cation. In fact, the real student [is a] student of life and never [ceases] learning. But what are we doing [with] the education that we already h[ave]. Put the knowledge that you alr[eady] have into action NOW. Or else [we] come used to denying the dem[ands] of your intellect and become a [use]less, useless blob of education[al] protoplasm.

Ormar tells us sarcastically [to] "heed the rumble of a dr[um]drum.' We have let the rumb[le] of distant drums go unheeded too [long]. We are used to it. But one day [the] drum shall be screaming in [our] ears. Are we prepared to meet [that] day?

URC Should Continue Fight

The restaurant mess is getting out of hand. I refer of course to the problems of desegregating the immediately adjacent, off-campus eating establishments for the benefit of all FSU students. The University Religious Council has bogged down in its own disillusionment with the inevitable--the students appear apathetic.

Then too, the restaurant owners haven't been exactly cooperative; they aren't peachy keen about the idea of desegregating. They are quite certain that they will lose student business (their only business) if they desegregate, and they argue that their employees of long and fine standing will quit if they are forced to serve Negroes instead of just work with them.

Well, I'd like to know where the students would go to eat if the restaurants did desegregate, and what the difference is between the Negro working by one's side behind the counter and the Negro partaking of his rights in front of the counter. The restaurants' positions are tenable only because FSU people don't see fit to make them otherwise.

The University Religious Council can still make a significant contribution to the welfare of our oppressed brethren if only they will not give in to the slough of despond. As the leadership organization that can best continue to make a selfless, conscientious stand on this issue, I challenge the URC to stay in the fray!

Meanwhile, what is the Student Government doing? It has smiled becomingly, welcomed the Negro and international students to our campus, and made some blatant but noticeably vague promises about looking out for their welfare. Well it might interest the student body to know that to date the student government has done nothing in the way of constructive planning to provide this welfare. There has been no ACTION, just talk.

The trouble is that both the URC and Student Government have succumbed to the fallacy of poll taking. The student body is being 'felt out" Gallop fashion to ascertain its feelings and opinion on the problem. Dependent upon the outcome of this poll rests the action that each group will take. It doesn't take a major in sociology to know that student opinion will be registered as apathetic. This is partly because the students fear reprisals for taking a stand and partly because they are wrapped up in making a success of the trimester system. It is unfortunate indeed when the multiple factors of a university culminate in student inability to turn knowledge into action for society's benefit.

But no decision between two positions is in itself a form of decision, and unfortunately student apathy will be interpreted negatively for continuance of the segregationist status quo. That is, registered apathy will result in inaction which will produce continued segregation. Do great leaders wait to have their actions and attitudes determined by the slow moving conservative elements of society, or do leaders have a responsibility to their people to stimulate them to new action for social progress? My contention is that it is the latter.

Winston Churchill, ridiculed publicly as Willie the Pooh, nevertheless found the personal courage to barnstorm Europe with warnings of Nazi tyranny. Today we are engaged in no less a war--a revolution within our own borders, a civil strife that threatens to destroy the very structure of our society. In the face of apathy, we need leadership, not dalliance.

Pat On Head

To the Editor:

The praise FSU students re[ce]received from Dean Oglesby f[or] participating in the demonstra[tions] downtown is less a pat on the [back] than a pat on the head. This [re]straint demonstrated by FSU st[u]reflects not so much the succ[ess] his request as the success [of] police in eliminating demonstra[tions] that students may participat[e]. Demonstrations will probably [con]tinue and FSU students will pro[bably] continue to participate.

What concerns me the most is in repreating his "injunction" fails to realize the violence i[t] to the basic rights of studen[ts] citizens. If we assume we are [citi]zens before we are anything [else] cluding being a student--the[y] must be appalled, revolted, [and] down-right angry at him. Whe[re] the Constitution of these U[nited] States does it state that a Dean [of] University can enjoin a citizen [from] participation in what is essen[tially] a political activity? (I consider

Art Must Inspire Ideas About Lif

Last year a few of my columns stirred up an already-existing controversy of what constitutes art. I have been asked by several individuals to clarify my thoughts. In so doing, I will not say all should follow my views, but instead I will try to present my thoughts, which only are my opinions on the subject.

To me, art--literature, paintings, music, and so forth--is the artist's successful communication of some inspiring idea(s) about life to the one to whom the message is being transferred.

May I define what I mean by inspiring idea in this column. It is that thought of an artist who artistically presents it in his work so that the idea is movingly conveyed to some future reader, viewer, or listener, whichever it might be. This idea furthermore must be one which helps the reader gain some insight of or understanding of life and thus his own relationship with that inner force or soul. It is this unknown force or soul for which man constantly is struggling to understand so he can have an inner foundation on which to form and build his ideas. A piece of art is not necessarily limited to one inspiring idea, which may suddenly be revealed in a moment of joy overflowing in emotions recollected in tranquility, as is so evident in the poems of Wordsworth.

I know of no better summary of how true art operates than those words which that great American philosopher, William James, once wrote: "As Wordsworth walked, filled with his strange inner joy, responsive thus to the secret life of nature round about him, his rural neighbors, tightly and narrowly intent upon their own affairs, their crops and lambs and fences, must have thought him a very insignificant and foolish personage... It surely never occurred to any one of them to wonder what was going on inside of him or what it might be worth. And yet that inner life of his carried the burden of a significance that has fed the souls of others, and fills them to this day with inner joy."

To illustrate my point further I refer to Carson McCullers' masterpiece, "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter." In this novel we see a portion of life itself. Man is constantly seeking some inner foundation on which to build his thoughts. The communication of life in the story doesn't only reveal the literature as art, but also in the story we see an excellent example of how mus[ic] art. Mick Kelly is one of the [char]acters seeking an understandi[ng] life. She soon finds somethi[ng] music which gives her some [in]insight. One time we see her [lie] on the ground, looking at the s[ky] listening to a Beethoven symp[hony] and feeling some strong force[s] inspiration within her--as in [a] ment of joy which was ment[ioned] constantly by Wordsworth.

After one of my columns last [year] one young lady called me on the [tele]phone. During the conversati[on] asked me if I thought a dirge [could] be inspiring. I replied, "Certai[nly]" and illustrated by telling of the [time] King David sang at the death of [Abn]er. Here we see a king compl[etely] forgiving the man who built an [army] to destroy him. Instead of le[tting] hatred dwell in his heart, David [thought] of Abner's good qualities. Here [is a] lesson for all of us.

There is much inspiration [to be] gotten from paintings, also. The [joy] expressed in a scene of natur[e] children playing or in a portrait [may] prove uplifting. There is one [type] of art, however, which I feel [is] inspiring--that which is called esting social injustices just one as-ect of political activity.)

Well, you say, surely the quality of student's behavior is within the risdiction of the administration of University. I do not disagree with n when it is exercised AFTER a estionable act has been commit-d and when moral and ethical estions are involved. In this case an Oglesby has seen fit to enjoin from a political activity BE-ORE it has been performed.

Surely, this is a flagrant attempt deny the student his rights as a tizen. Surely, Dean Oglesby must derstand that a court of law would ver support this sort of denial. w then does he hope to succeed h his injunction?

Well most obviously by an implied reat of expulsion. Again, mustn't e as students be angered by this tempt at intimidation and is it not this? And is not his repetition the injunction a manifestation of his realization that for fear to be effective the threat must be repeated?

Finally, let me ask Dean Oglesby two questions: First, if we are not to participate in demonstrations what alternative do we as students have? To illustrate the failure of indirect action I have only to site the University's own attempts at adjusting the behavior of the local "candy store" owners. What alternative to direct action, within the context of the law, is there if we as citizens feel that social injustices exist? Second, is not one of the functions of an education institution to prepare its students to function as adequate citizens? Does the Dean honestly feel that issuing injunctions encourages student participation in political activity?

Praeco Gets Praise

To the Editor:

I would just like to say that I think that the column by "Praeco Simplici" is one of the most informative and entertaining articles on the editorial page. Certainly it is a welcomed relief from the all too frequent "Riggins-Garner" exchanges.

I suppose that a columnist that is critical of tender spots and anonymous besides would really be in the frying pan if his or her identity were known.

So, for the good of the students and the student government, I hope you keep the column going.

Extremists Can Put Tallahassee On Map

To the Editor:

I wonder if these local amateur players (on both sides of the question) who are attempting a cheap imitation of the national drama of racial unrest have given any thought to the terrific opportunity open to them to put Tallahassee on the map along with such famous bloodbaths as Oxford and Birmingham.

It could easily be done, crusaders, for every element is at your disposal--just the right combination of fanatical idiocy on either side, and a public atmosphere supercharged with frustrations from boredom. Last May's little sparring bout, oh defenders of your respectful causes, was greeted with a sort of weird elation. It's the same sort of morbid delight that motivated huge crowds to stand for hours at the scene of a particularly gory automobile collision.

Local teen-agers, long bored with the nightly routine of cruising from drive-in to drive-in, at last had some excitement--some reason to collect in keyed-up mobs. On the other hand, many socially underdeveloped university students saw their chance to identify themselves with a cause--the syruppy grandeur of the martyr image is a hard one to resist. Somehow it all managed to cool of, but it was a reluctant peace at best. Thank heaven for football season. It provides a fairly safe detonating ground for these little "beasty" tendencies that no one will admit.

A little angel stands on my right shoulder waving the stars 'n' bars and says, "Yer either fer us or agin us." On my left shoulder is perched another angel resembling Miss Liberty in leotards. "Thou canst not be above the fight for human dignity, you bourgeois fink," she says. But I am able to dismiss these voices with a shrug, because I know that the real battle in Tallahassee is not for human rights or states rights, but merely who can stay in the limelight the longest.

John McCotter

dern art. May I present the reasons of my opinion. Of course, the reader does not have to agree with me, and I respect his or her views.

William James once wrote, "I don't care how incorrect language may be if it only has fitness of epithet, energy and clearness." I hold that in respect to the meaning in this statement, "language" and "art" can be interchangeable. What is clear about abstract paintings except that the painter may have some visual use of colors? Aesthetic principles are not enough. Without some clarity of meaning to some aspect of life, there is not true art.

James furthermore stated, "All intellectual work is the same--the artist feeds the public on his own bleeding insides." The painter of modern art says, "Let your imagination dream up some meaning to help yourself." This painter is not feeding the public on his own thoughts and feelings. If he is feeding the public on his "bleeding insides," his insides must be one big mass of confusion.

L.S. Mansfield and H.P. Vincent wrote the following when discussing the art in "Moby Dick": "Art is a memorializing of life, of some particular way of life limited in space and time. Only this temporal quality, this concreteness and particularly, can lift it out of the temporary and the accidental." I contend that since abstract paintings do not memorialize life, they stay an accident.

That great American novelist Henry James, brother of the philosopher William, said, "To be completely great a work of art must lift up a man's heart; and it is the artist's secret to reconcile this condition with images of the barest and sternest reality." Last year a graduate student in the humanities department, in reprimanding me in the Flambeau, asked whoever said art had to be inspiring. I still hold that in order for something to be considered art it MUST be inspiring, that is, uplifting to a man's heart. If the imagination is to come up with something inspiring by looking at abstract paintings, I wonder what inspiring idea can come from as imagination working with such distorted "illustrations" of "life."

In this column I have not gone into all aspects of art, such as aesthetic principles. Instead I have concentrated on what I feel constitutes the main essence of art--the artist's successful communication of life to the reader, viewer, or listener. (Granted, the better the aesthestic principles are used the more the communication will be successful.) Turn to the masterpieces of the ages. Are not they great for their inspiring revealing of life to the thought of man? Here is true art, "as 'twere, the mirror up to nature."

... is the title of one of Arthur Deshaies' paintings. Another painting by Deshaies, who has recently joined the FSU Art Department, has just won one of the five major prizes in the Southeastern Annual Art Exhibition at Atlanta.

Deshaies Joins Art Department

There's something to be said for privacy and a quiet, remote place to work when your are a painter, and so Arthur Deshaies, a new member of FSU's Department of Art particularly values the several months he has stayed at the MacDowell Colony.

Deshaies, who teaches printmaking at FSU, spent four months in the colony, a wooded retreat in New Hampshire, before joining the faculty this fall. And an abstraction in oil painted by Deshaies during a previous stay there has just won one of the five major prizes in the Southeastern Annual Art Exhibition at Atlanta.

Painters, composers, writers and other creative artists stay at the colony, which has small widely spaced cottages where the occupants live. Breakfast and dinner are served in the main lodge but a basket lunch is left on the porch of each cottage at noon.

Deshaies said writers who have stayed at the colony report they have done two or three times the amount of work they could do at home and he has found a stay at the colony helps his creative work.

Versatile in many fields and media, Deshaies describes himself as "a self taught printmaker." He began at the age of ten to draw with drypoint on aluminum. He then printed these impressions by means of the wringer on his mother's washing-machine.

In later years while looking for a material that would respond to the demands of the wood engraver and to the process of the actual printing, he began working in lucite, clear plastic. He was successful in printing intaglio and in relief engraving lucite blocks of dimensions up to 28 by 36 inches. About three years ago he devised a new technique of plaster engraving which won for him a Guggenheim Foundation Grant for Creative Printmaking. This took him to Greece and France. Prior to that he painted in Paris under a Fullbright grant and in Mexico under a faculty research grant.

A teacher of print-making for 8 years at the University of Indiana, he has also taught at the Rhole Island School of Design and at Pratt Institute, New York. He holds the Tiffany Foundation Award for Printmaking (1960). His work has been exhibited in France, Italy and Australia; at Martha Jackson's Gallery in New York and in museums all over America.

His work is described in articles by well known writer and friend, Kay Boyle, in "Contact" magazine and in "Art Voices." The latter article, entitled "New Boldness and Freedom for the Print," said of Deshaies' 1961 prints, "They move without limitation or fixed horizon beyond anything he has attempted before. They are made of plaster blocks and they are as large as murals, and as bold and free and eloquent. In them one senses water falling and rivers running, the course they take not bound by any dimensions. Like his paintings, their refusal to be restricted is almost absurb."

Of his oils, the French critic Claude-Helene Sibert once wrote that: "In assigning to the hand the role of inventor, Deshaies has found his own material form."

A native of Providence, Rhode Island, Deshaies attended the Cooper Union Art School and received a Master of Fine Arts degree from Indiana University.

Philosophy Club Meets Tomorrow

The first meeting of the Philosophy Club for this trimester will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Club Room, Longmire.

Presented at the meeting will be, "The Mind-Body: Is It a Problem?" by James Tomberlin, and "Marx's Theory of Alienation' by Thomas Riggins. Discussions will follow each paper.

The philosophy club is sponsored by Phi Sigma Tau, National Honor Society for Philosophy. To be eligible for Phi Sigma Tau, a student must have completed the first trimester of his sophomore year, have taken at least nine hours work in philosophy with a 3.1 average, and have at least a 2.8 overall average.

Students who fulfill these requirements and who desire to be recognized as candidates for Phi Sigma Tau are encouraged to make themselves known to either James Martin, president, or Elinor Altes secretary, either by attending this meeting or by leaving their names with the Philosophy Dept. secretary in Reynolds Annex.

Fraternities Provide Opportunity

By BOB RACKLEFF
(Second of a Series)

Fraternities at FSU play a significant role in th realm of social and campus activities.

One of the major purposes in the existence of frater nities is to provide the college with a variety of soci opportunities with which he can broaden his interest Fraternities are essentially social organizations, a therefore attempt at FSU to present a well-rounde social calendar.

Probably more important than the purely social aspects of fraternities, particularly in relation to the student body as a whole, is the significant participation of fraternity members in campus activities.

Although fraternity members comprise about only 22 percent of undergraduate men (about 1100 out of 4500), they account for a much larger percentage of members in many campus wide organizations. Fraternity influence is probably most widely felt in student government.

Of the over 50 men students who hold high offices in student government, about 85 percent are fraternity members. Much of this is due to the emphasis which the FSU chapters place on being active in campus affairs and supporting worthwhile organizations.

Adding much color and tradition to FSU social life are the varied social activities held by fraternities. Among these are special events sponsored by greeks, such as the Sigma Chi Derby, the Pi Kappa Phi-Kappa Delta faculty auction, and the Sig Ep calendar. Events such as these fill an important function in establishing and maintaining campus traditions.

An important way that fraternities maintain cohesiveness is through group social functions, which serve to bring the members together in a recreational atmosphere.

Recognizing the importance of an active social life, fraternities provide functions ranging from formal dinner dances to informal weeknight "exchange" parties with sororities. Highlighting a chapter's social year is the spring weekend, a weekend which usually includes a formal dance, an informal dance, and a beach party.

Some other activities which border on social are football games, intramural athletics, and homecoming float projects.

In commenting on the importanc of social activities in fraternity li assistant fraternity counselor Ste McCutcheon stated that greeks FSU are socially oriented, and pe haps too much so.

Through the efforts of IFC McC cheon hopes to bring a more fa orable balance of social activit to scholastic efforts.

Probably most important in making of a good chapter, he state is to place an equal emphasis scholarship. Too many chapters t to have a very active social cale dar while trying to maintain go grade averages.

IFC is attempting to help adj the chapters to such a balance th ugh restrictions on weekday so functions. In addition, it enfor standards of good taste at parti in order to maintain constructi social programs.

McCutcheon noted fraternity se nades as being particularly constr ctive, and saw them as symbols fraternal spirit.

atives was just how friendly student editors and administration officials should be. Dean Oglesby, FSU Dean of Students stated that he was against such a policy because he felt that in some cases it would lead one of the two parties involved to take advantage of the other.

However, Miss Katherine Cater, Dean of Women at Auburn University was in favor of a friendlier relationship between publication advisors and the administration because she felt that it would lead to better understanding between the students and officials. Cater also stated that this would lead to greater efficiency in producing a paper and in gathering news.

Representing FSU were one of the FSGA advisors, Dean Oglesby, and Dr. Reid Montgomery, who gave the keynote address at the opening session. Representatives of the "Flambeau" staff were Erik Collins, associate editor; Lynn Bissland, news editor; John Wooed, sports editor; and Markie Robbins, Sandi Mills, and Bob Mitchell, staff writers. Susan Fincher, Susie Foxworth, Beth Peyraud, and Bobbie Haynie represented the Tally-Ho staff.

'Othello' Viewers Remember Strangling And Handkerchief

"Most people remember two things about Shakespeare's Othello; a strangling and a handkerchief," stated Dr. Francis Townsend at the first English Coffee Hour held Friday at 4 p.m. in the Presbyterian Student Center.

Combining humor and insight, Dr. Townsend began by reviewing the contents of the play.

The plot envolves the elopement of Desdemona, the daughter of a Venetian Senator, with Othello, a dark Moor who commands the army. Othello passes over one of his men, Iago, for promotion in favor of Cassio.

The sinister Iago plots with his dupe, Roderigo, to avenge this injustice. Iago creates in Othello's mind an illicit affair between the innocent Desdemona and Cassio.

Othello, enraged over finding Desdemona's handkerchief in Cassio's possession strangles her in her bed. Her innocence is revealed, Iago is taken prisoner and Othello is ruined and dejected.

Townsend feels that this play follows the morality play tradition of the 15th century where vices and virtues were personified. Desdemona signifies virtue, Iago, vice and Othello represents every man. "If Othello is incomprehensible, then so is mankind," stated Townsend.

The devil is mentioned frequently. According to Townsend there is an air of mystery about Iago, especially at the end of the play where Othello looks at Iago's feet (Satan is said to have a cleft foot).

The dimensions of the play are in black and white as pointed up by the staging which forms a pattern in the play. The first scene is set in darkness, but most of the remaining scenes are in light until Desdemona's death is portrayed. In this scene there is only one candle to provide light.

"This is Othello's last chance to have virtue by not inviting blackness in putting out the candle of Desdemona's life," quoted Townsend.

Townsend compared Othello's choice to that of the individual man. "Each of us has a little of Iago on our left shoulder," he stated.

Next Friday at 4 p.m. in the Presbyterian Student Center, the English Coffee Hour will present Michael Shaara of the English Department. Shaara, who teaches creative writing at FSU, has had several articles published in the Saturday Evening Post. He will speak on "Broken Place," the novel he is writing.

FSU Enzyme Research Pays Off In Health Grant

Research at Florida State University which has established the importance of an enzyme in the biological control of ascorbic acid (vitamin C) and which has discovered an inhibitor of this enzyme has been awarded a five-year grant of about $16,000 from the National Institutes of Health.

Dr. Earl Frieden, chairman of the Department of Chemistry and recipient of the grant, said the long range study concerns copper enzymes, copper containing proteins, and their biological activity. "In the normal human being," said Frieden, "it is known that virtually all of the copper in the body's circulation occurs in a serum protein called ceruloplasmin.

"Ceruloplasmin not only carries most of the copper of the blood," he said, "but also possesses catalytic activities which enables it to be identified as a serum enzyme. It catalyzes chemical modifications of ascorbic acid, adrenaline, serotonin and other important substances. Ceruloplasmin may be involved in a number of clinical conditions of great interest — for example, Wilson's disease an inherited pathological state in which copper salts accumulate in key tissues such as brain, liver, and kidney, resulting in acute copper toxicity. At one time ceruloplasmin activity was claimed to be increased in certain mental diseases such as schizophrenia. But more recent data has challenged this claim and the role of ceruloplasmin in mental illness is still not yet determined. Recently many functions for ceruloplasmin in the formation of red blood cells and consititents have been proposed."

Dr. Frieden, in collaboration with a former student, Dr. Charles Walter, and Dr. Shigemasa Osaki, research associate from the University of Tokyo, confirmed that this enzyme is important in the biological stability of ascorbic acid in serum and more recently Dr. Osaki, graduate student James McDermott and Dr. Frieden have discovered and identified the principal inhibitor of ceruloplasmin which blocks and regulates the activity of this copper enzyme in blood serum. The FSU researchers believe that it is possible if this ceruloplasmin inhibitor is absent or in very low concentration, disease states could result from the marked modifications of the circulatory amounts of Vitamin C, adrenalin and serotin.

Another copper enzyme being studied in Dr. Frieden's laboratory is tyrosinase, so named because it facilitates the oxidation of a common amino acid, tyrosine, to produce normal skin pigments called melanin. In excessive amounts, it produces black pigments associated with certain skin cancers, called melanoma.

This enzyme has the unique property of catalyzing chemical changes of the tyrosines in other protein molecules. Recently, for example, in collaboration with Dr. Joseph Cory, it was discovered that the tyrosine groups in the insulin molecule are oxidized with this copper enzyme. This may provide a simple and useful chemical modification of important protein hormones such as insulin.

In other research at the FSU laboratory, Mrs. Anne Wahlborg is studying simplified enzyme-like systems which are capable of simulating the action of enzymes. Copper compounds are particularly interesting in this regard because no metal ion or other catalyst excels copper as a catalyst for a variety of chemical reactions.

Newcomers To Meet

The Newcomers Club of University Women will meet at the home of Mrs. Dwight B. Goodner at 1317 Desmond this Thursday at 8 p.m. Dr. Joseph G. Cushman of the History Dept. will discuss "Interesting Sights About the History and Growth of Tallahassee." A social hour will conclude the evening's entertainment.

Members wishing transportation may call Mrs. Paul Whippo at 385-2068.

Choral Union Elects Officers

The Choral Union, FSU's all campus singing group elected its 1963-64 officers.

President of the group is Jim Haygood, vice president is Ted Shepherd, and secretary-treasurer is Bill Janiak.

The Choral Union will be giving its annaul Thanksgiving concert in Westcott Auditorium on Nov. 26.

Director Herman Gunter has chosen compositions from the works of Puccini, Vaughn-Williams, and Dr. Irvin Cooper, Prof. of Music Education at FSU.

Wake Forest Burned

By GEORGE PARTIN
Flambeau Sports Writer

Not getting warmed up until the last of the second quarter, Florida State's now sluggish, now spectacular Seminoles made the most of their good moments in blanking Wake Forest's visting Deacons Saturday, 35–0.

The FSU defense was the first to warm up, putting a tremendous rush on Karl Sweetan, who had to punt on the run and got off only a nine-yarder. The Seminoles took over on the Wake Forest 34 where they began a drive to paydirt. Tensi fired a 13-yard pass to halfback Jim Loftin to give the Indians a first down on the Wake Forest 13, only to have halfback Dave Snyder thrown for a HB Fred Biletnikoff, Tensi's favorite target in the Miami opener, then streaked into the open after a sharp cutback from the right corner and Tensi rifled it to him on the dead run for the payoff. Messer's kick was good and the Tribe led 7–0 with two minutes gone in the second period.

Wake Forest then made its first scoring threat of the afternoon by driving down to the FSU 32 yard line. Led by Karl Sweetan, whose passing tore up the Seminole secondary defense all afternoon, the Deacs' ripped off two successive first downs before the Tribe defense tightened up and the visitors had to go for a field goal which fell short of the mark.

Tensi then fired six straight complete passes, after an exchange of punts, driving from the WF 47 to the 2 yard line. He hit Biletnikoff for 18 and 13 yards, completed three to Soph End Max Wettstein for gains of 7, 8, and 5 yards, and end Red Dawson snagged one for 7 yards.

With 40 seconds left in the half, fullback Marion Roberts dove in from the two-yard stripe and Messer again connected to make it 14–0 at half time.

The Seminoles came out fired up in the second half ready to show the 15,000 fans what they could do. On the opening kickoff, they sprang the hand off pitch out play for a 58 yard runback.

Roberts started the razzle-dazzle action by taking the ball on the Seminole seven-yard line and chugging upfield. At the 20 he handed off to sub quarterback Charlie Calhoun. Calhoun kept the ball rolling by pitching out to Snyder who was racing wide under a full head of steam.

"Davey" went one way, most of the Deacon's players the other, and the bruising halfback raced from his 20 to the Wake Forest 35 before being hauled down.

Wettstein, who caught 8 passes in the game, took a pass from Tensi to the 23 for a first down. Dawson hauled in another aerial for a 15 yard gain and set up the next play, a bulldoze over three WF tacklers by Snyder for 2 yards. Mr. Automatic, Doug Messer, made it 21–0.

After the demon Deacons went from their 36 to the Tribe 13, their most serious threat of the afternoon, the Seminole defense again turned stingy and ground the attack to a halt.

With the fourth quarter, FSU started their longest march of the afternoon, starting from their own 5 yard line.

After passing to the FSU 31, Tensi dropped the 'Big Bomb" with a 55 yard pass-play to Marion Roberts that carried the ball all the way down to the visitor 14 yard line. Wettstein did the honors for the TD by plucking an 8-yard pass from the air-lanes to make it 27–0 with 12:53 left in the game.

The Deacons piddled around and failed to make a first down on the FSU 36. On the first play after the Seminoles got their hands on the ball Larry Brinkley, playing in his first game this season, cut through a hole broke back and went 43 yards to the Wake Forest 21.

Two plays later, Wettstein turned in the most sensational catch of the day on a 12 yarder from Tensi to score. The sophomore from Leesburgh, replacing Don Floyd who was out with a pinched nerve in his neck, took the ball off the back of one of the two Deacon defenders got through to stop Tensi's passes.

The Seminoles attempted rushing plays for 122 yards losing 30 yards.

Turning in creditable performances despite the erratic team play were back Snyder, Roberts and Brinkley who managed to be able to come up with the big play when it was needed, and defender Maury Bibeut and Chuck Robinson.

In a wild weekend five out of ten top college teams lost. Oklahoma, Alabama, Navy, Penn State, Oregon State, and Nebraska suffered initial defeats. In addition, Ohio State, Illinois and Duke were tied.

In the weekend's big game, Texas ousted Oklahoma from the number one slot. Lead by Tom Ford and Duke Carlisle, the Steers ran over, around, and under the famed Sooner team. It was a bad week for the Top Ten as Navy was upset by SMU, 32–28, Alabama was upset by Florida 10–7, Southern Cal was beaten by Notre Dame 17–14, Ohio State had to come from behind to tie Illinois 20–20, and Penn State lost to Army for the second year in a row, 10–7.

In the East, Navy and Penn State fell a step behind Pittsburgh (3–0) taking their first defeat. Boston College (3–1), Syracuse (3–1) and Army (3–1) kept pace. In the Ivy League, Dartmouth (3–0) and Princeton (3–0) took commanding leads.

Down South, Mississippi (2–0–1) and Auburn (4–0) took over the lead in the SEC with Mississippi State, Florida, Alabama and LSU in hot purusit.

In the ACC, North Carolina, N.C. State, and Duke all support 3–0 conference records. Memphis State (3–0–1) continues to lead the independents, with FSU right behind.

In the Big Ten, Wisconsin and Iowa lead with a 1–0 record. Ohio State and Illinois have identical (1–0–1) conference records. Northwestern follows with a 2–1 record. Notre Dame won its first against Southern Cal 17–14.

In the Southwest while Texas w ripping up the Sooners, Arkans prepared for next week's big ga with Texas by being upset by Ba lor's Don Trull. SMU upset Nav and Rice beat Stanford.

Picketers began marching outside the University Inn yesterday noon, in protest of discrimination against Negro FSU students. (Photo by Cowart)

Picketing Begins At Off-Campus Diners

Picketing of off-campus restaurants adjacent to the University began at 11:30 a.m. yesterday. The University Inn was the first target of the demonstrators.

University Can't Protect Picketers

According to the Director of Security Police, William Tanner, the university can take no action to provide for the safety of students engaged in picketing.

Tanner reported that since the picketing was taking place off University grounds, action could not be legally taken to prevent any acts of violence. He added that even if violence did erupt, the campus police could do nothing to restore order or to prevent students from continuing such actions.

Tanner went on to say that there is an unwritten agreement between the campus police and the city police that city police will not come on campus and that the university security force will not go out of the limits of university property.

Tanner said that the city police were responsible for insuring that order would be kept while the students were picketing.

Chief Maige of the Tallahassee City Police said that other than sending a patrol car by periodically the City Police department was not taking any precautionary measures.

Maige said, "We don't have time to go out and set guard over that bunch.'

Groups of from five to eight students marched in single file infront of the restaurant carrying anti-segregation placards. Spectators watch from the adjoining eating establishment and adjacent areas.

At press time, no reports of any serious incidents had been reported. Steve Baum, captain of one segment of demonstrators, said that several people had shouted insults and derrogatory remarks but as Baum expressed it, "This is to be expected.'

According to Tony Sciff, chairman of the Social Action Committee of Liberal Forum, the picketing will continue every day from 11:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. until the restaurant is desegregated. The demonstrators will be relieved at hourly intervals.

Earlier in the week the four owners of the off-campus establishments were given a petition signed by 700 FSU students. The petition stated that if any of the four restaurant owners would take the initiative in ending racial discrimination the signers would give this establishment their exclusive patronage.

William Milligan, manager of The University Inn, said that "We will stay just as we are. The picketing won't hurt business. In fact, business is better than ever."

Floyd's 'Susannah' To Open Thursday

The stage of Opperman Music Hall is set for the return of Carlisle Floyd's music drama "Susannah" next Thursday through Saturday nights, Oct. 17-19.

Curtain time will be 8:15 and practically all the seats are sold out for the production of the State Opera Association of Florida for which the composer, Floyd, is serving as stage director.

Folksong-like ditties such as the "Jaybird" song are sung through the two-hour opera, which has as its theme (in the words of one of the characters, Sam): "It's about the way people is made, I reckon, an' how they like to believe what's bad. How short they are on lovin' kindness. It must make the good Lord sad."

Ethel Donaldson will sing the part of Susannah on Thursday night and Hedi Svendsen will take the lead on Friday night. Richard Collins, opera director, will sing the role of the Rev. Olin Blitch.

The orchestra will be conducted by Robert Sedore.

Floyd wrote the libretto in 10 days and during the autumn and winter of 1953-54 he composed the music. At the Aspen, Col., Festival in 1954, he showed the score to singers Phyllis Curtin and Mack Herrell, who expressed great interest and subsequently agreed to appear in the first performance, in February, 1955, at FSU.

It was presented by the New York City Opera Co. in September, 1956, and won immediate fame for the young composer. Floyd won the New York Music Critics Award for the best new production of the year and the opera has been performed again and again in New York and in major cities of the country.

Student Insurance Reaches Top Figure

By SALLYANNE HUFFAKER
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Student Government-sponsored Accident and Sickness Insurance Plan grossed $68,000 for the first trimester, a figure which tops the entire previous year.

Participation of 62% to 65% of eligible students is expected by the end of the year. The expected total gross sales should be about $75,000 exceeding last year by $5,000. This indicates there will be an increase of 385 students.

Three benefits were added this year with no increase in cost to the student. These were an increase in room rate, in surgery scale, and miscellaneous benefits while in the hospital.

The plan underwritten by American United Life Insurance Company is administered by agent, Tom B. Overstreet.

Overstreet explains why some students do bot buy insurance by saying "Most students are laboring under the false illusion that their parents plan will cover them through college. Nearly all policies for children end at 18 years of age." He explained that in rare cases there are plans which extend until the student is through college. Usually this means a rider is placed on the parents plan.

Student insurance will be offered again second trimester at a lower rate. The coverage will run from January to Sept. 1, 1964. The cost will be $8.50 for a single student, $19 for a student and spouse, and $30.25 for student, spouse, and childre The plan will be offered third trimester as well.

Credit goes to Tom Overstreet, agent, Sherman Henderson Undersecretary for Student Insurance and Luther Kramer, Secretary of Internal Affairs for the effectiveness of the program.

Student Body President, Johnny Smith, said "I am pleased with the student participation in this program. The more students who participate, the more chance we in Student Government have to negotiate for better benefits in the plan for the coming year.'

Michel To Attend Music Conference

Dr. Donald Michel, director of the music therapy program at FSU, will preside at a special study session for college teachers at the fourteenth annual conference of the National Association of Music Therapists to be held Wednesday through Friday in Bloomington, Ind.

Immediate past president of the NAMT, Michel will serve as toastmaster of the conference's annual banquet. On Friday he will serve on a practicum in music therapy techniques for string instruments.

FSU students going to the conference include John Cooper, William Janiak, Martha Ann Martin, Virginia Peery, Ilene Levin and Sally Schoenberger.

Now They Walk

The success of the picketing which began yesterday morning at the University Inn depends entirely upon the response of the student body.

Repeated attempts have been made in the past few months to persuade the restaurant owners to serve FSU Negro students. All these attempts have come to nothing. FSU is well into the second year of peaceful integregation, yet some members of the FSU student body cannot walk into one of the campus-side restaurants and be served. After all these efforts to negotiate for a change in the discriminatory policy, the situation is just as it was at the beginning.

Sensing the futility of waiting for the restauranteurs to change their minds, several concerned students have decided the time is ripe for action. "We've talked; now we walk" is the legend of one sign, and it typifies the attitude of the picketeers--that the day has come for overt student protest.

Although spearheaded by the Social Action Committee of the Liberal Forum, the protest picket involves all FSU students, whatever their attitudes may be. All students are faced with the decision whether to support the pickets by refusing to cross their lines, or whether to ignore or oppose the objectives of the protesters by crossing their lines and patronizing the restaurant. Each student must make this choice for himself, and must bear the responsibility for his own action.

But the protest is no game, no picnic, and anyone who treats it or its purpose lightly is very foolish indeed. Thus far, picketing has been conducted in a dignified and organized manner, and with serious intent. Plans are to continue the protest until the discriminatory practices are abandoned by restaurant owners. And the students involved won't give up until they've accomplished their mission.

There have been minor incidents of unpleasantness, but the picketers have ignored them. An outbreak of violence could do immense damage to the University and the student body, and would tarnish FSU's record for peaceful integration and for handling its own problems.

It is extremely difficult to be reasonable about a situation of such emotional impact, yet this is what every student must try to do. Each student has been given the responsibility of supporting or declining to support the fight to end discrimination against FSU Negro students.

The issue involved is whether FSU students approve of the refusal of these businesses, supported almost entirely by the student body, to serve certain of their fellow students.

The full support of those in sympathy with the protest should be with the picketers.

Farm Joke Not Funny

Recently, a U.S. Congressman presented a letter to the Congress written by a Louisiana farmer. The lawmaker said the letter was "a devastating commentary" on the present system of farm subsidies. The letter says:

Dear Sir:

My friend over in Terrebonne Parish received a $1,000 check from the government this year for not raising hogs. So I am going into the not-raising-hogs business next year.

What I want to know is, in your opinion, what is the best kind of farm not to raise hogs on and the best kind of hogs not to raise? I would prefer not to raise razorbacks, but if that is not a good breed not to raise, I will just as gladly not raise any Berkshires or Durocs.

The hardest work in this business is going to be in keeping an inventory of how many hogs I haven't raised.

My friend is very joyful about the future of his business. He has been raising hogs for more than 20 years, and the best he ever made was $400, until this year, when he got $1,000 for not raising hogs.

If I can get $1,000 for not raising 50 hogs, then will I get $2,000 for not raising 100 hogs? I plan to operate on a small scale at first, holding myself down to 4,000 hogs which means I will have $80,000 coming from the government.

Now, another thing: these hogs I will not raise will not eat 100,000 bushels of corn. I understand that you also pay farmers for not raising corn. So will you pay me anything for not raising 100,000 bushels of corn not to feed the hogs I am not raising?

I want to get started as soon as possible as this seems to be a good time of the year for not raising hogs.

One thing more, can I raise 10 or 12 hogs on the side while I am in the not-raising-hogs business, just enough to get a few sides of bacon to eat?

Very truly yours,
Potential Hog Raiser

This humorous letter gives a small inkling of the stupidity of our present farm program. However, even more important is the constitutional argument surrounding it.

In our constitution, there is no grant of power to the federal government for any of its agricultural programs. And no matter how well intentioned a government program is, when our federal government does not have the constitutional power and still proceeds to carry it out, it has become a dictatorship.

Therefore, because there is no constitutional authority for them, all our federal government's agricultural programs should be abolished.

State Law Strict On Campus Posy Picker

To the Editor:

Contrary to the "Flambeau" headline and story by Nancy Zlatin of October 8, posy picking is a crime here at FSU. This may come as a shock to Miss Zlatin and Lt. James Lewis of our esteemed campus police, but, although the university may not prohibit the picking of posies, the State of Florida does.

According to "Florida Statues," section 821.25, "It is unlawful to injure, cut, interfere with, molest or disturb the forests, woodlands, ornamental plantings, orchards, groves, vegetable plantings, field crops, experimental plants, flowers, grounds, drives, roadways, and other property belonging to, leased by, operated by or under the control of. . .Florida State University. . .or to steal, pilfer, pick, break or otherwise molest any natural or cultivated trees, shrubs, vines, fruits, flowers, vegetables, grasses, plants, or parts thereof belong to. . .Florida State University. . .;except when authorized by the officials of the state board of control or the state plant board, state road department, or employees in charge of said property."

Section 822.03 of "Florida Statutes" fixes the penalty for the heinous crime of posy picking (without permission) at "imprisonment not exceeding twelve months, or by fine not exceeding $500.00."

These statutes are broad enough not only to put a person in jail for a year for picking posies but even for walking on the grass, if in doing so the grass should be disturbed or interfered with. Therefore, I would advise the staff of the "Flambeau" to henceforth check on the law without relying on an obviously uninformed source. I would also advise Lt. Lewis to read the laws he is paid to preserve.

I would advise FSU coed Keeneth to stop swiping unsuspe flowers and to stay away fro Lewis. And I would lastly Mrs. Whiting to keep the he the grass if she chases someon finds taking flowers in any f violation of the laws of Fl

Language Requisite Unfai

To the Editor:

I would like to express a gripe. It is concerned with the language requirement needed for a Bachelor's Degree in the Arts and Sciences.

It seems to me that there must be some way that the load can be reduced or at least revamped. As it stands now, we are required to take four trimesters of one foreign language. Since this is spread out over two years, this means that if we should fail one course (which isn't too hard for a science major who is not particularly gifted in the field of modern langauges), then an extra trimester must be spent making up this course.

When one looks at the other requirements, it can be seen that the rules are not nearly as stringent. For instance, mathematics is not easily grasped by all; however only one course is required. The s situation applies to most of the basic requirements.

Therefore, why should four trim ters of a modern language be requirement? Wouldn't it be pos to reduce the number of needed? Or as an alternative not create a modern language se geared toward those who are forced to take the courses, ins of making those majoring in m language take the same course as dis-interested tag-alongers.

My gripe can be summed up i sentence as follows. Why are required to take four trimesters course as a basic requirement the next highest basic in only trimesters. (For example -- H anities) is this fair?

Memory Doors-'Odds' vs'Evens'

By NANCY ZLATIN

"Should I cut Humanities today or not," you wonder as you leave Westcott, failing to notice the words "The Memory Doors, 1925, 1927, 1931."

Few students ever bother to look at the "Odd doors" at the front entrance to Westcott. Looking back at the dates on the doors gives some idea of the reason for the "Odd" title. Gone are the "good ol' days" of the friction and class rivalry between the Odds and Evens of FSCW.

The term "Odds" refers to the odd-dated graduating classes and the "Evens" of to the even-dated classes. The all-women college was thus divided and competition between the two groups was often fierce. (Students had pool parties at Westcott Fountain in those days, too.)

When the Evens donated Westcott Gate, (it was originally built for the horse and buggy and later had to be widened for the automobile), the Odds refused to be so easily outdone. with the advice of J.G. Kellum, business manager at the time, the Odds chose to contribute four elegant and shiny bronze doors, now neglected and black with age.

The restriction that the students were not to leave campus without permission had one advantage -- the Odds would have no competition from off-campus businesses in raising money for the doors by selling refreshments.

Another project the Odds undertook was the "Odd Demonstration," a play in which the cast warned their fellow students: "Remember girls, that a woman's only weapons are her virtues... and a hatpin!'

There they stand, welcoming the students of today. Their change in appearance from shiny bronze to black indicates that FSU too has had to make many changes since 1931. Yet as long as they stand, the Memory Doors will never let students forget "The Odds of FSUCW."

Meteorologist Returns From Hurricane Flights

Just back from eight quick airplane flights into hurricanes in the Caribbean, FSU meteorologist Edward Zipser, now is ready to study about 10,000 feet of film.

His principal objective during an eight-week period from Aug. 5 to Sept. 29 was making film of cloud formations from a plane to be compared with photographs made from the Tiros VI and VII satellites circling the earth 400 miles high.

Zipser, a 25-year-old doctoral student, was working on a research grant from the National Weather Satellite Center and his flights were in Navy Hurricane Hunter planes. He flew out of Puerto Rico.

On Aug. 22 and 23. he flew into Hurricane Beulah; September 21 he wrestled with Hurricane Debra; and five times braved the fury of Hurricane Edith, September 23,24,25,26 and 27. Because his research time ran out he missed the biggest storm of all, Flora.

Zipser says scientists hail the development of weather satellites as a most significant tool in meteorology. The Tiros series of seven successful launchings is a spectacular technological achievenment. As with any new basic tool the problem following this major breakthrough was learning how to use this new tool and utilize the information for operational purposes and also to learn how to better understand the atmosphere it was photographing.

The weather satellites send back routine photographs of cloud cover and storms from tropical and extra-tropical regions from 400 miles up that were sensational in a sense, but location accuracy, timeliness, and data formats could not be evaluated by simple inspection of the satellite photos.

Researchers have been hard at work since the first launching of Tiros I setting up a system of interpreting satellite data. The third anniversary of the weather satellites on April 1, 1963, found a store of 220,000 cloud cover and cloud pattern pictures from the Tiros series.

Tiros satellites have furnished support aspects for 10 hurricanes, 21 typhoons, 300 weather analyses improvements, and 712 special storm advisories in this short time as reported by NASA.

Zipser says the next step is the second planned series of weather satellites, the NIMBUS family.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the U.S. Weather Bureau plan to place a Nimbus in polar orbit in almost a year. A new picture system has already been flight-tested in a Tiros.

A Tiros satellite gets only 10 to 25 per cent of global cloud cover each day because camera axis is fixed in space and does not point toward earth at all times. The Nimbus will have a camera aimed directly down at the clouds on its polar orbit and will view every portion of the earth each day. One difficulty in Tiros photos was in rectifying the oblique angle photos and interpreting cloud patterns.

Zipser says the Nimbus automatic picture system will give direct local readout and may contribute to the meteorological satellite program by giving local meteorologists direct photos for operational use.

New equipment capable of receiving the Nimbus photos is to be installed at key forecast centers throughout the country including Miami. The Nimbus will transmit a could photo automatically every 208 seconds. Meteorologists expect to make immediate use of the photos for tracking frontal systems and as a valuable supplementary observation and analysis tool. Each orbital pass of the Nimbus should verify forecasts.

NASA anticipates that all weather forecast centers will eventually be provided with such ground station equipment.

Some of the first film systems in rocket nose cones showed the feasibility of getting cloud patterns from space and resulted in the decision to include instrumentation for taking cloud pictures in subsequent satellite shots.

Zipser said weather satellites and weather reconnaissance aircraft do not compete with each other. The satellite observes a broad area and the plane a relatively small area, but the plane can vary its mode of observing to suit particular circumstances and the satellites are bound by laws of celestial mechanics to move in fixed orbits.

The aircraft can be flown to the weather zone to get detailed information, such as wind measurement surface temperatures, humidity measurements, and can use radar to advantage over a wide range.

Satellites free aircraft from routine flights for the more important task of getting detailed data on the more important weather systems.

St. Angelo Joins FSU Faculty In Government Department

A new faculty member in government at FSU, Dr. Douglas St. Angelo, is a specialist on political behavior, and came to the university with realistic experience in the field.

St. Angelo was one of the key men in the successful campaign for governor of Karl. F. Rolvaag in Minnesota last year, serving as gubernatoral fund co-ordinator. Total vote cast was 1 1/2 million. Rolvaag, a Democrat-Farmer-Labor candidate wone by 91 votes in a recount. GOP incumbent Elmer L. Anderson was first declared the winner by the canvassing board, but a recount proved otherwise.

A number of public attitude surveys have been directed by St. Angelo for public office candidates and he has managed a Congressional campaign, also in Minnesota.

At FSU, St. Angelo has revived the course in "Public Opinion and Propaganda" in addition to teaching courses in "American Political Behavior.'

St. Angelo is from Huntingburg, Ind. He holds the MA and Ph D degrees from the University of Chicago.

He was a Fellow of the Ford Foundation Federalsim Project and recipient of a LaVerne Noyes Foundation Scholarship. He taught at Yongsan Junior College in Korea, Indiana University Calumet Center, East Chicago, and St. Olaf College before becoming actively engaged in Rolvaag's political campaign.

He holds memberships in the American Political Science Association American Academy Political and Social Science; Society for Social Research; and University of Chicago Political Science Association.

BOOM!

Enough, foregoing levity, let us turn our keen young minds to the principal problem facing American colleges today, the population explosion. Only last week four people exploded in Cleveland, Ohio—one of them while carrying a plate of soup. If you're thinking such a thing couldn't happen anywhere but in Cleveland, let me tell you about two other cases last week—a 45-year-old man in Provo, Utah, and a 19-year-old boy in Northfield, Minnesota. And, in addition, there was a near miss in High Point, North Carolina—an eight-year-old boy who was saved only by the quick thinking of his cat, Fred, who pushed the phone off the hook with his muzzle and dialed the department of weights and measures. (It would, perhaps, have been more logical for Fred to dial the fire department, but one can hardly expect a cat to summon a fire engine which is followed by a Dalmatian, can one?)

But I digress. The population explosion, I say, is upon us. Yes, of course, cause for concern but not for alarm, because I am sure that science will ultimately find an answer. After all, has not science in recent years brought us such marvels as the laser, the bevatron, and the Marlboro filter? Oh, what a saga of science was the discovery of the Marlboro filter! Oh, what a heart-rending epic of trial and error, of dedication and perseverance! And, in the end, what a triumph it was when the Marlboro research team, after years of testing and discarding one filter material after another—iron, nickel, tin, antimony, obsidian, poundcake—finally emerged, tired but happy, from their laboratory, carrying in their hands the perfect filter cigarette! Indeed, what rejoicing there still is whenever we get a Marlboro which comes to us in soft pack and Flip-Top Box in all fifty states and Cleveland!

Yes, science will ultimately solve the problems arising from the population explosion, but meanwhile America's colleges are in dire straits. Where can we find classrooms and teachers for today's gigantic influx of students?

Well sir, some say the solution is to adopt the trimester system. This system, already in use at many colleges, eliminates summer vacations, has three semesters per annum instead of two, and compresses a four-year-course into three years.

This is, of course, good, but is it good enough? Even under the trimester system the student has occasional days off. More-over, his nights are utterly wasted in sleeping. Is this the kind of all-out attack that is indicated?

I say no. I say desperate situations call for desperate remedies. I say that partial measures will not solve this crisis. I say we must do no less than go to school every single day of the year. But that is not all. I say we must go to school 24 hours every day!

The benefits of such a program are, as you can see, obvious. First of all, the classroom shortage will disappear because all the dormitories can be converted into classrooms. Second, the teacher shortage will disappear because all the night watchmen can be put to work teaching solid state physics and Restoration drama. And finally, overcrowding will disappear because everybody will quit school.

Any further questions?

Yes, one further question: the makers of Marlboro, who sponsor this column, would like to know whether you have tried a Marlboro lately. It's the filter cigarette with a man's world of flavor. Settle back and enjoy one soon

More Students Study Language

More students than ever before are studying foreign language, Florida State University reported today, with 2673 enrollments for course work in seven languages compared with 2294 a year ago.

Spanish, which has been the most popular language at FSU, has 992 enrolled compared with 875 a year ago, and French runs a close second with 929 enrolled compared with 784. FSU now has Ph.D. programs in both Spanish and French.

Dr. Victor R.B. Oelschlager, head of the Department of Modern Languages, said 620 are enrolled in German compared with 530 a year ago. Other comparative figures are Russian, 1963--65, 1962--60; Italian, 1963--36, 1962--19; Chinese, 1963--14, 1962--16; and Portuguese, 1963--5, 1962, 10.

Poetry Contest Deadline Given

Poetry written by college students is now being accepted as entries in the annual College Student's Poetry Anthology Contest.

The closing date for the submission of poems is Nov. 5.

There is no limitation to either form or theme, although shorter works are preferred because of space limitations.

Each poem must be typed or written on a single sheet, and must bear the name and home address of the student, as well as the name of the college attended.

All manuscripts should be sent to the offices of the National Poetry Press, 3210 Selby Ave., Los Angeles 34, California.

Basic Studies

Students who wish to change their major or advisor must contact Mrs. Ashburn, 105 Dodd Hall, between Oct. 14 and Nov. 12. If you plan to make a change, please do so no later than Nov. 12.

Preparing for the opening exhibit on archaeological dating methods, due to be opened today from 7 - 9 p.m. in the FSU Museum, are, left to right, Donna Wilt, Renee Hine, and Jon Marwitt. The exhibit, designed by Bill Valle, a graduate assistant, shows numerous methods of dating developed in recent years. The public may attend the opening, and the exhibit will run through Feb. 1, 1964.

Exchange Program Set Up Between FSU, U Of Mass.

In 1961 the departments of education at FSU and the University of Massachusetts have begun an exchange program for students majoring in elementary education.

The purpose of this program is to give students at the U. of Mass. an opportunity to broaden their educational experience by studying in several outstanding colleges and universities in various parts of the U.S.

FSU was chosen because of its geographic location and quality of its elementary education program. Another objective is to enrich the student's preparation in fields in which each institution has some special contribution to make.

Approximately ten students are exchanged each year, five from the U. of Mass. during FSU's trimester I and five from FSU during the U. of Mass.'s spring semester.

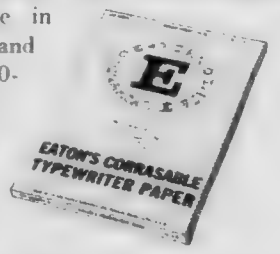
Selection is based upon such things as interest in and knowledge about the program, record as a student at FSU, interest in teaching as a career, year in college (sophomores and juniors are preferred) and willingness to secure the proper clearance from FSU authorities, parents and the U. of Mass.

Letters of application for this program may be sent to Dr. Gifford G. Hale, room 315, Education Bldg. by Nov. 1. The applications should include statements with reference to the qualifications listed previously. Further information may be obtained from Dr. Hale or Nancy Frazier.

Bradley Named President-Elect

Dr. Ralph A. Bradley, head of the Department of Statistics at FSU has been named president-elect of the Eastern North American Region of the Biometric Society.

The region, composed of the United States and Canada east of the Rockies, has about 1000 professional members. His election is for the year 1964, after which he will succeed to the presidency. Meetings of the region are tentatively planned to be held at FSU in the spring of 1965.



Bradley edited the Biometric Society's journal "Biometrics" from 1957 to 1962 and currently is a member of the editorial board.

Seminoles Spastic

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

Looking more like the pee-wees from the Tallahassee Recreation department than collegiate football players, Florida State's hot and cold Seminoles took only the first quarter of Saturday's game with Wake Forest to make liars out of their supporters who believed a 24-0 triumph over Miami was not luck.

The Spastic Seminoles, playing football in a jerky sort of way, should better be glad their opponent was Wake Forest and not Southern Mississippi or Florida. If it had been any other team on the schedule, the game would have been lost in the first quarter.

The offense showed less punch than a wet gunny sack, and spent the first quarter fumbling, tripping, and missing passes which were 5 yards wide of the target.

Quarterback Steve Tensi spent the longest 15 minutes of his life, failing to complete a pass until the quarter was half over The play-by-play of the first quarter reads like a broken love affair with missed passes galore.

The first time the Seminoles got the ball they lost one yard in four plays. "Tensi's pass to Biletnikoff is too short. Snyder at LG loses 1. Tensi's pass flies way over the head of the receiver."

The next set of downs was little better, with Tensi throwing too low to Dawson and too wide to Biletnikoff, and Marion Roberts getting one yard up the middle.

Luckily, the Defense remembered why all those people were sitting watching them and kept Wake Forest honest. They managed to rush Deacon passer Sweetan and make him hurry his aerials, but failed to block or intercept a one.

So what Happened? Was it a hangover from the TCU game or did the failure by the sleepy Seminole coaching staff to prepare the boys for the audacious Wake Forest attack cause the lackluster performance throughout the game?

Wake Forest Quarterback and Punter Karl Sweetan rushes to get his kick off in first quarter of action Saturday. The kick, made on the run, went for only nine ya to the Deacon 34 and set up the first Seminole touchdown.

Hurricanes Topple Freshmen

The University of Miami Freshman team, under the superb quarterbacking of Bob Biletnikoff, posted a 22-13 victory over the Baby Seminoles in Tampa last Saturday night.

Biletnikoff, who is the younger brother of the Seminole's star halfback Fred Biletnikoff, continuously evaded tacklers to pick up yardage on spoiled pass plays and directed all of Miami's scores which broke a four year domination by FSU.

Joe Mogulich scored twice on runs of three yards and Ray Sattler got the other on a 64-punt return.

Scoring Seminoles were Donovan Jones on a two-yard run and Fred baggett on a one-yarder. John Perry kicked the lone extra point for FSU while Biletnikoff teamed with Doaner for a couple of two-pointers for Miami.

Vernon Korhn, former Plant High star, led the Tribe attack at Quarterback. His passing was responsible for both touchdowns, although it took a Miami interception, then fumble for the first chance.

Both FSU scores came in the last quarter, climaxing a near even second half. The first half was dominated by Biletnikoff and company and was quite in contrast to the second half.

Korhn completed 8 out of 13 passes for 91 yards. Greg Baggett picked up 37 yards in 11 carries and Tom Delopez picked up nine yards in three carries. Rick Saunders, the big ground gainer against Florida last week was held to only 2 yards in 2 carries.

Jones caught seven passes for 56 yards and was a stand out on defense.

Baggett caught one pass for yards that set up a Seminole to down.

John Hosack of FSU had a nigt punting. He averaged 39.1 ya

Jax Lee Tops State Prep Poll

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Staff

Robert E. Lee High of Jacksonville remained in first place in the Miami Herald weekly poll. They finished 60 points ahead of second place Ft. Lauderdale. Both support 4-0 records. Friday night Lee smashed last year's winner Miami Senior 20-0, and must play Miami Edison (2-1) this weekend. Ft. Launderdale takes on Columbus (2-1).

St. Petersburg Dixie-Hollins (3-0) took third place with 123 votes. Tampa Robinson (3-0) took forth after beating Hillsbourgh (1-2). Miami Southwest, although leading in the Region 4 standings, dropped from fourth to fifth. Choctawhatchee (what!) took sixth, and Milton took seventh. Coral Gables, Winter Haven and Gainesville round out the Top Ten.

In the top twenty are: Jacksonville Fletcher Orlando Boone, Ft. Pierce, Dan McCarty, Jax Ribault, Key West, Daytona Mainland, Miami Edison, North Miami, Wildwood, and Orlando Edgewater.

In Region 1 Lee High has taken the lead with 40 points. Fletcher has beaten three AA teams and one A team for 34 points, and Choctawhatchee has beaten Bay, Pensacola, and Rutherford for 30 points. In key games this week, Lee plays Miami Edison and Choctawatchee takes on Milton (4-0).

In Region 2, Winter Haven holds a slim lead over Tampa Robinson. Winter Haven (4-0, 34 pts.) meets Manatee (1-1-1, 15 pts.), and Robinson 3-0, 30 pts.) meets Lakeland 1-1-1, 15 pts.).

Also unbeaten in Region 2 is King High with a 2-0-1 record.

In Region 3, Orlando (4-0, 34 pts.) is second and Gainsville (3-0-1, 32 pts.) is third. Edgewater (4-0), Mainland (3-0-1), Vero Beach (3-0-1) and Seacrest (3-0) are all unbeaten. Gainsville can take over the lead this week if they can defeat Melbourne (1-3) Friday. Boone takes the week off and McCarty plays a Class A team.

In Region 4, Southwest (4-0) is top dog for the moment. Ft. Lauderdale is also (4-0) and Coral Gables, Hialeah, and Pompano Beach are all 3-1. Edison, Stranahan, Columbus, and North Miami are all 2-1. Big games feature Lee at Edison, Southwest plays Hialeah, and Coral Gables plays South Broward.

Picketing Continues At Local Restaurant

Vowing to maintain their civil rights protest, integration picketers continued to demonstrate in front of the University Inn Monday night and all day yesterday.

Tony Sciff, chairman of the Social Action Committe of the Liberal Forum, announced yesterday afternoon that picketing would be discontinued at 8 p.m. instead of 10:30 p.m. as was done Monday.

Sciff said he was considering the possibility of filing a lawsuit against the city of Tallahassee. He said that he felt the picketers had not received "adequate surveillance" from the municipal police.

Sciff explained that several times during Monday's protest, the police had been contacted and that their response to requests for additional patrol car observation had not been answered.

Both county and city police were in the area. Campus police were seen near the south entrance.

The size of the crowd, which gathered near the south gate entrance to FSU, varied during the course of the eleven hour picket. It reached an estimated peak of about 200 persons at 9:30 p.m.

Traffic along Jefferson Street was slowed yesterday and Monday as curious motorists attempted to see what was happening.

The half-dozen picketers walked slowly from the corner of Dewey St. past the University Inn carrying signs in single file. They were periodically relieved by other Social Action Committee members in the area.

No serious incidents occurred before dark Monday. Monday night, groups of bystanders carrying Confederate flags obstructed the path of the demonstrators at various times.

Dean of Students, R.R. Oglesby, issued a statement yesterday on the situation. The dean said that "FSU students picketing an adjacent restaurant are exercising a time-honored constitutional right to express their views in regard to the policy of the restaurant.

"On Monday night the students seemed to be doing this in a way that was both peaceful and lawful. However, the many persons congregated on this corner (South Gate entrance) constituted a threatening situation. I am asking FSU students not to congregate there unless they are members of the picketing team or are going to and from the establishment."

Sciff said that picketing will continue until the off-campus restaurants alter their policy.

Smith Asks Students To Refrain From Gathering At Picket Line

...response to the picketing of the University Inn by FSU students, Student Body ...resident Johnny Smith had this to say:

...this moment our campus is ...between two sides of a moral ...e which, if improperly handled, ...d have a severely destructive ...ct upon the University.

...e eating establishments immed...y adjacent to the campus, al...gh dependent almost entirely upon university trade, have refused to honor the reasonable demands of the University Religious Council, Student Government, the Liberal Forum and other groups of interested and representative students. This is regrettable. The restaurants exist because of the University, yet they will not even consider its wishes.

Pickets have been organized and are in effect at the present time. My hope is that the picket line will be honored by those students who support the protest.

At the same time I feel compelled to say that the pickets will do little good in accomplishing the intended purposes. The restaurant owners have sworn they will never integrate unless by court order. The solution to the problem, therefore, will not be accomplished by picketing only.

The continued existence of the pickets could also mean the existence of elements of an explosive situation. As long as pickets remain, so will the immature, uneducated rebels and hecklers who will become more extreme in their threats and actions as each day goes by.

If picketing, then, is not the entire answer, what is? I do not presume to know. If I did, if anyone did, I'm sure the situation would not have progressed to this stage, either in Tallahassee or in the nation. Radical action is not the successful method of achieving desired ends. We have the welfare of the University at stake.

There is a good chance that violence may occur. However, it seems that this fact has been pushed into the background behind screams of "action" by Flambeau columnists, letterwriters and other students who have the undesirable knack of tearing down while never offering ways to build up. Many of these advocates of extreme radical action have impressed me with notion but their own stupidity, molded from facts born of misinformation.

As your Student Body President, I want to ask all students to refrain from collecting as spectators to the picket lines. Hecklers who disrupt the lines love an audience. They thrive off the "attention" their warped senses of values receive from merely having someone stand and watch them. When they have no audience, much of their "fun" becomes meaningless to them. Violence is much less apt to occur if the number of people in the area is smaller, so I urge you to refrain from crowding around the area of picketing.

I am asking that all groups having an interest in this situation send a representative to meet with me today at 4:30 in the Student Government Conference Room.

Retreat Registration Nears End

By WALT MARTINDALE

Final registration for the annual Student Government Retreat to be held Friday and Saturday at the reservation will be Thursday.

The retreat program will start at 7:30 p.m. Friday with a general meeting of introductions followed by a speech by guest speaker, H.L. Martin, Executive Secretary of the Southern University of Student Government Association.

Entertainment and dancing will follow during the remainder of the evening, featuring the "Mystics" and a "Hootenanny."

Breakfast and registration for late comers between 8:00 and 8:30 a.m. will begin Saturday's schedule. Panels, speakers and discussions concerning the three branches of student government, class officers and the Board of Publications will follow and continue throughout the day.

Dr. D. Parker, Government Department, will speak on legislation, while Dean Warren will speak on the judiciary. The speaker at the meeting for class officers is Mr. P. Hogan, Director of Public Relations. In addition, representatives from Bop, Tally-Ho, the Flambeau and other fields will speak. The retreat program will attempt to cover all fields of campus government.

There will also be a special meeting for freshmen from 9 to 10 a.m. in which Dr. Hartz will speak on "Value of Student Participation," followed by a general orientation to Student Government at FSU.

All students are reminded that registration for the retreat ends Thursday. The cost for both days is $2.50 and the students may register at the desk at Longmire and at the desk outside Kellum. Freshmen girls can register with the vice president of their respective dorms.

Student Body President Johnny Smith urges all students to attend the retreat saying, "I sincerely hope that all students in and out of student government will attend the retreat as it is an excellent opportunity to exchange ideas and better student government itself."

Dorothy Jackson, Chairman of the Retreat, went on to say that even though the students in general have appeared lately to have an apathetic attitude, there still has been much criticism of student government. This is the time for these students to express themselves, to ask questions, and to offer their suggestions on the FSU student government system.

Transportation will leave Bryan at 7:30 p.m. and there will be a bus leaving for the reservation Saturday at 8:15 a.m. also from Bryan. The return bus will leave the reservation at 3:00 p.m. Saturday.

Students who plan to spend the night are requested to bring pillows sheets and blankets besides ideas and questions.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

No Bias

We have heard reports that many FSU students consider the "Flambeau" as pro this or pro that. The editors of this newspaper, as well as any other, naturally have their own views and opinions on a great range of subjects. This does not mean, however, that the newspaper itself is prejudiced.

The "Flambeau" is not pro anything. Its job is to report things as they happen. If you have something to say the "Flambeau" will print it, providing of course that it is not libelous and is the truth.

If you disagree with a stand taken in the editorial page, write your own idea and submit it to us. If you do or do not believe in racial segregation, posy picking, or student government, let us know.

You will not find any bias in our newswriting. Any prejudice is your own.

EC

Disgusting!

The mob scene at the site of the University Inn picketing Monday night was disgustingly unworthy of supposedly mature university students.

Whether in agreement with the objectives of the picketers or not, there is no justification for the jeering and personal insults to which the protesting students were subjected. We deeply regret that those who do not agree with the pickets cannot conduct themselves with the dignity of the students who manned the picket line.

That no one was injured is a wonder in itself; but if these attacks continue, we cannot hope to get off so lightly. There is no good purpose to be gained by resorting to violence or personal vindictives.

We observed with shame the incidents of personal degradation that the picketers withstood, and we cannot help but believe that the student body is revolted by these underhanded tactics.

Greeks Praised For Faculty Auctio

There are several groups on campus that deserve the commendation of the entire student body. As a result of their efforts, Campus Chest (FSU's United Fund) has gotten off to its best start in years.

The Pi Kappa Phi's and the Kappa Delta's deserve special recognition for their sponsoring of and work on the annual faculty auction which this year netted $450. Many thanks should go to the Delta Zeta sorority for their $64 purchase. Two other Greek groups paid over $50. They were Alpha Delta Pi and the Sigma Phi Epsilon's.

Jon Kaney, the commissioner of elections, and Bob Perkins, (that lovable pair of Pi Kap's) also did fine work.

Court System Is Just

To the Editor:

May I take this opportunity to answer Miss Sheila Wexler's letter, published in the October 11 issue of the Flambeau.

The first two paragraphs were written in a supposedly satirical vein, however, I failed to see any wit displayed there. The statement that "the women making up this court have had no experience. . .to qualify them for judging what happens to others who happen to come under their grips," is obviously a rash one. Judiciary is not a professional court made up of professional counselors and has never professed to be that. It is simply a representative group of women: three from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes respectively. Surely you agree that nine women in your own peer group, who are under the same rules and regulations as every other female student on this campus, are more qualified to determine the seriousness of the offense in question and the penalty it warrants than any other "bar" as you so facetiously put it, would be.

It is apparent when one reads your remark about the "group of young ladies who run around disguised as Miss Justice with her scales and balances" that you are not familiar, as most students are not who anxiously await an opportunity to criticize student government, with the procedure of the court about which you are expounding.

Women's Judiciary is under the auspices of a faculty review committee which meets once a week. To this committee go all reports of cases of a serious nature and they must meet with the approval of the committee before the decision of the court is put into effect.

In your case, it being a less serious offense, the judiciary takes into consideration the particular circumstances involved and also what preceding courts have done in similar cases. More often than not Women's Judiciary is rebuked for not being more strict in its penalities. So may I ask you if you would like to be tried by a group of faculty members entirely or do you have in mind, and so it appears you do, a court made up of an attorney at law, an eminent psychologist who commutes from Harvard each Wednesday night, and a member of the Supreme Court of the United States thrown in for good measure?

There is another drop of the venom you secreted that I would like to sop up in my defense of Judiciary. Why didn't the University call your home if they were worried about your whereabouts? Even though that statement doesn't deserve consideration, let me say that when there are from 500 to 1,000 women leaving this campus each weekend that it would be just a little short of the impossible to expect the university to call the homes, relatives, fiancés and boy friends of every absent coed.

Do the members of this "quasi-court" have nothing better to do than delve out sentences for "trivial items"? May I remind you again that these women are students in this university just like yourself. Yes, I imagine they have far better things to do than handle what you call "trivial items". But I'm positive they have more important and better things to do than to write a trite criticism of something about which they know nothing.

Basis Questioned

To the Editor:

I should like to question the ethical basis of the discriminative policy adhered to by the owners of the four eating establishments immediately adjacent to the FSU campus.

The owners of these establishments without conducting any student opinion poll beforehand, have "assumed" that the majority of the students, especially their regular customers, favor segregation, and have adapted such a policy with regard to FSU's Negro students for fear of substantial loss of business from the rest of the student body.

Furthermore, all efforts to discuss with them their policy in a realistic and intelligent manner have been frustrated by their lack of interest and participation. They prefer instead to sit upon their moneybags and ignore all facets of the issue except the economic aspect.

What they are implying by their policy is that, in their own opinions, personal monetary gain, "selfish greed" to be more precise, should have a higher position on one's scale of values than a basic respect for the dignity of man. We must assume from their policy that this is indeed the arrangement of their own scales of values.

But such an attitude is understandable, although not justified, when we realize that they see the students of FSU as walking dollar bills rather than as human beings. Persons harboring such a distorted conception of humanity cannot be expected to have the decency to respect human dignity.

I should like to inform these unscrupulous, seemingly insatiable money-seekers that some values are in fact decidedly higher than selfish monetary gain, one of these being respect for the dignity of man, regardless of race, color or creed. They would certainly to well to seriously re-examine their scales of values.

War Photographs To Go On Exhibit

Seventy-two war photographs by the late news photographer Robert Capa will go on exhibit tomorrow evening from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Organized by Magnum Photos, Inc. and Life Magazine, the exhibition is being circulated throughout the United States under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

The exhibit at FSU will remain open from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday through Nov. 8.

Photographer Capa gained fame for his pictorial reporting and many of his photographs are known as classics in the field of war reporting.

Capa's photographs show the reaction of people in moments of emotional and physical stress, disaster and loneliness. Viewers see in them demonstrations of great courage and the brotherhood of man.

Included in the exhibit will be photographs showing the effect of war on participants and innocent victims. They were made in Spain, China, North Africa, Italy, England, France, Germany Indochina and Israel.

Capa was born in Hungary in 1913. As a Life photographer and as a free lance reporter, he spent 18 years photographing the participants of international crises from the Spanish Civil War in 1937 through World War II, the Korean conflict and finally the war in Indo-China where he met his death in 1954.

Capa was the recipient of a citation for the Medal of Freedom, the Croix de Guerre and many photo-journalism awards. He is the author of five books: "Death in the Making," "The Battle of Waterloo Road," "Slightly Out of Focus," "The Russian Journal" (with John Steinbeck), and "Report on Israel" (with Irwin Shaw).

The traveling exposition is the first posthumous retrospective of the work of Robert Capa to be organized.

Student Support Falls Through

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

One reason for the mediocre showing of the football team in the Wake Forest game was the atrocious student support exhibited.

The vaccum filling Campbell Stadium's East Side Saturday was not the same student body which showed up 2,000 strong at the airport to welcome a victorious team home from Miami. This group of "fans" just took up space and cheered only when the team scored.

At one point in the "game," I was nearly brought to tears by a pathetic sight. The Seminole Cheerleaders were seranading a silent stands with a chant of "Hold That Line" while on the field the team was busy falling all over themselves trying to block a field goal.

The immediate reaction of a student next to me was not to call the cheering squad's attention to the mistake but to yell: "Hey stupid, you've got the wrong cheer. Watch the game much?"

The Cheerleaders led only five cheers throughout the entire game. The rest of the time students were constantly reminded which fraternities were present and which were absent. Perhaps the game should have started an hour later to give our Greeks time to identify themselves. The Florida Legislators are demanding equal time in the next game.

Greeks are a necessary part of any cheering section, presenting solidarity of large numbers. However, after the mistakes in the first quarter became boring, they turned their attention toward razing each other. Verbal exchanges between various blocks was one of the more interesting parts of the game.

In view of the apathetic student support, the Tribe Cheerleaders should be commended for their patience. However, they gave up after listening to the echo of their first cheer and made only a half-hearted effort to lead any further chants.

One of the peculiar things about the Student Support was that as the game progressed and the margin of score became higher, support increased. Evidently, FSU students need a margin of at least 21 points before they wake up.

GUS HUNG THRICE

Speaking of student support, University of Miami Head Coach Andy Gustafson was hung in effigy three times following the Hurricanes' 3-0 loss to Louisianna State.

His Miami Offense, touted to be the best in years has yet to score a touchdown this season. After two sustained drives against the Bengal Tigers had put them in scoring position, "Gus" elected to go for the field goal, and missed both times.

Intramural Standings

The following is a summation of the Fraternity and Dorm Independent League touch football standings as of October 14th.

Heading the head in the "Gold" division of the Greek League is DTD wth a perfect 5-0 showing, closely pursued by SX with a like-wise perfect 4-0 record. SPE is third with a 3-1 slate, while KA and ATO close out the upper division with a2-2 deadlock. TC is 1-4, while PKPhi is 0-4.

In the "Garnet" division, PKT supports the winningest record of any team, 6-0, with SAE running a close second, 5-1. PDT places third with a 4-1 performance, while LX is in hot pursuit, boasting a 4-2 slate. DC is 3-3, KS shows a 1-4 record while Phi Psi is 1-4, SN is 1-5 and TEP is 0-5.

Foremost in the "Gold" division of the Dorm Independent League is Geology, 5-0, challanged by the Alumni Village (4-1 and BSU (3-2).

In the "Garnet" division, the El Rancho Chargers hold a slim, one win lead over the Majors, 3-0-1 as compared to 2-0-1. Third is Kellum #3 with a mediocre 2-2 record.

Tribe Trails In State Totals

The time has arrived to again post the weekly tally of the state's offensive leaders, and it looks as though the Seminoles have yet to make up the ground lost through an open date.

Miami's George Mira still leads, by a narrowing margin, FSU's Steve Tensi and Gator's Larry Dupree and Tom Shannon in the total offensive column.

Mira piled up his share of Miami yardage to 594 in 123 plays while giving opponent LSU a few anxious moments last Friday. The "Matador" from Miami has yet to score a TD, however.

Tensi, "the Blond Bomber," took a giant step toward narrowing the margin hied by Mira when the Seminoles defeated Wake Forest last Saturday. In the Wake Forest-Florida State tilt, Tensi rolled up 227 yards, bringing his total yardage for the season to the 396 mark.

Tom Shannon fought his way from the bottom of the list this week to the number three spot in total offense by virtue of his effort in the U of F-Alabama game. Shannon moved his teammate, Larry Dupree, back a notch. All but 21 of Dupree's yards have been earned on the ground.

In the rushing department, Dupree still holds the spotlight. The Gator back has accumulated 305 yards in only 65 runs to post the amazing average of 4.7 per carry.

Pete Banzak of Miami moved from fifth to displace Seminole Dave Snyder in the number two spot for rushing laurels. Snyder held the number one spot for the first two weeks of the season.

Tampa's Billy Howell continues to lead in pass receptions for the year. The glue-fingered man from Tampa managed to haul in five passes for a total of 65 yards last Saturday. This brings his totals to the state high of 201 yards with two TD's. Nick Spinelli runs number two with 13 receptions for 155 yards.

Even after last Saturday's splendid effort, Fred Biletnikoff holds the third place on the totem poll. Biletnikoff's reception from Mira early in the season is not figured in his totals, however.

Gridders Getting Geared

Coach Bill Peterson's Seminoles wind up heavy practice today in preparation for Saturday night's meeting with an under-rated Southern Mississippi.

The Tribe goes into the fray with a clean slate in the injury department. Coach Peterson, earlier this week, cleared both Charlie Calhoun and Don Floyd for Southern Mississippi action. Calhoun injured an ankle in last week's game with Wake Forest, and Floyd was sidelined entirely last week with a pinched nerve in his neck.

Preparations began for the Southerners in the Seminole camp immediately after last week's game. Peterson and staff began studying films of USM and laying plans for the trip to Mobile.

Coach Peterson said Sunday, "This may be out toughest game of the year." Coach "Pete" figures the Southern Mississippi game to be the pivot point of the Seminole's season. Reports have come in to the offices in Tully to the effect that USM had worked on FSU plays even previous to their game last week with Richmond. Peterson was warned, "This is Southern's key game."

The Tribe has defeated the Southern Mississippi squad only twice. Both FSU wins have been by a meager one point per game. The S erners have romped over the S inoles six times since the two te began to combat in 1952. F wins came in 1954 and 1956 by s of 19-18 and 20-19 respecti

'Susannah' Comes To FSU; Cast Prepares For Opening

By DOROTHEA HARRISON

"Susannah" has returned to Tallahassee and the State Opera Association of Florida is absorbed in last minute preparations for this week's productions of Carlisle Floyd's two-act musical drama.

According to stage director Floyd, the rehearsals have produced a minimum of frayed nerves and only the usual amount of "last minute jitters." Although "Susannah" has been produced over 100 times and this will be the fourth time Floyd has directed it, he says he is not bored as long as he is involved in the actual production.

He said the cast and chorus are all extremely responsive people to work with and the principals compare vary favorably with any of the professionals he has worked with.

Floyd, Richard Collins, Ethel Donaldson, Hedi Svendsen, Walter James, Herman Gunter, Betty Jane Grimm and Robert Sedore are by now familiar names as important people in the production. But there are also "unknown" people in the campany without which any production at all would be impossible.

One is Rose Mary Minihan, costime mistress. A graduate assistant in opera production, she has been working on costumes for "Susannah" for a month. Her "record performance" is 11 and 1/2 hours in one day.

Some of the costumes to be used in this week's productions were used in the first production at FSU in 1955. The City Center in New York borrowed them for their production and just returned them for this fall's performances.

Robert Swain supervises the construction of the stage set, while Ashley Ahl, Paul Hutchins, and David Brown make up the technical crew. However, designing a set in compact and transportable piecec which would be suitable for Opperman Music Hall as well as the other theatres which the State Opera Association will tour this fall presented additional problems.

Susan Jekel, a senior music major, has the impressive title of assistant prop mistress. This is her third opera as a prop assistant. The biggest prop problem in this one was finding the right sized shotgun for one of the scenes.

Picketing To Continue Every Night Until 10

"Picketing at the University Inn will continue until 10 each night as we feel it is our responsibility to do so," Tony Skiff, president of the Liberal Forum announced.

At present, he said, the forum's social action committee is attempting to obtain an injunction to prohibit mob violence and insure the safety of those picketing.

Tuesday night a group of spectators shouted insults and threw eggs at members of the picket line. A crowd estimated at 300 students looked on.

Three Tallahassee policemen were present to prevent violence and keep down the excitement. No arrests were made and the egg throwing continued until the picket line dispersed.

One of the picketers, Don Diamond, was hit in the eye by the elbow of a by-stander, but no definite identification was made. Diamond was quoted as saying, "This was a fine example of heroic action."

Tuesday afternoon a cherry bomb was thrown on the sidewalk in front of the University Inn. It was apparently thrown from a passing car, but the identification of the car was not released.

The picket line was set up by the Liberal Forum to discourage students from patronizing the campus-side eating establishments which refuse to serve Negroes. Milligan, manager of the University Inn, said that thus far the picketing had not hurt his business. He further added that business had picked up in the past three days.

Skiff said, "The picketing not only is for FSU Negro students to be allowed in these eating establishments, but A & M students as well."

SG MEETING

About 30 persons attended a meeting yesterday called by Student Body President Johnny Smith.

Smith put two proposals before the meeting. One was that the picketers stop their demonstrations at 8 p.m. on nights. The SG leader said that most people patronizing the restaurants would have finished supper by 8 p.m., and also that "there is a point where the effectiveness of picketing decreases and the probability of violence increases."

The question of when does a picket (which is legal) degenerate into an unlawful assembly or mob (illegal) and how to deal with such a situation were problems posed before the informal meeting.

All Bystanders Are Subject To University Action

In regard to the potential situation of violence involving the picketers and spectators, Dean Oglesby has issued the following statements:

"Because of the near violence which occurred on the corners of West Jefferson and Gray Streets Monday and Tuesday night, October 14 and 15, I am forced to invoke the rule which gives the University the power to prohibit student participation in mass demonstrations. These mass demonstrations were clearly unlawful. Therefore, students are hereby prohibited from congregating on and around the corners of West Jefferson and Gray Streets, except for the limited number engaged in lawful picketing. Students who violate this injunction will be subject to University discipline."

Calendar Sales Stop

Due to an error in printing, the sale of the 1963-64 Sigma Phi Epsilon Calendar have been postponed until the error can be corrected.

Sales will resume as soon as the corrected copies are received, and calendars will be sold at Bill's Bookstore, the Sweet Shop, and the University Bookstore.

Registration for the Student Government Retreat ends today at 5 P.M. Students may register until then at the desk in Longmire and cost is $2.50 for both days. Transportation leaves Bryan at 7:30 P.M. Friday and 8:15 A.M.Saturday. For further information contact Dorothy Jackson at 224-8550.

Honor Court Provision Bill Is Passed By Student Senate

By JANE FRANZINO
Flambeau Staff Writer

A bill revising the academic honor code with respect to the duties of the student and professor was passed unanimously in Student Senate yesterday.

The main revisions were that aid given or received is considered in violation of the honor code, and a student is expected to report himself to the professor or chief justice of the honor court. If the student does not report himself, it is not considered a dual violation of the honor code, and "if a faculty member wishes to modify the definition of plagiarism as set forth in this constitution, he shall explain his usage of the term to his classes each trimester.

When asked to comment on the passage of this bill, Julian Proctor, student body vice president, stated "It is my hope that the faculty senate and members of our student body will voice their approval of this bill. The academic honor system which we are now under does not have the official sanction of the faculty senate. To have a successful honor system, the students and faculty of this university must be in agreement on their various obligations and responsibilities. To be fair and effective, the academic honor system must be understood and endorsed by the entire university."

Another bill passed was that combining the offices of secretary of internal affairs, the secretary of student events, and the secretary of student welfare. These offices shall be combined into the title of secretary of internal affairs.

This bill also establishes the duties of the director of homecoming, the assistant secretary of student events, the undersecretary for the campus chest, the assistant secretary for student welfare, and additional undersecretaries. Also the function of the office of internal affairs with regard to the cheerleaders.

The revision to this bill changed the status of the head cheerleader to a position appointed by the president of the student body.

The third bill passed through Senate yesterday was concerned with the duties of the secretary of intercollegiate and public affairs.

'Susannah' Is Sold Out

Dean Karl Kuersteiner, producer, announced yesterday the opera "Susannah' has been sold out for the three performances this week.

By popular demand, an additional performance has been set for Monday night, October 21 in Opperman Music Hall. Season tickets will be available Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Single tickets to the Monday evening performance will be available to FSU students with I.D. cards at half price ($1) from 9 to 5 Monday. Single tickets will also be available Monday evening at 7:15 in the Opperman box office.

The audience for Saturday night's performance will be one of the most cosmopolitan ever to assemble here. Representatives from 45 of the 50 states will be in Tallahassee for a meeting of the National Association of Music Executives of State Universities on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

Kuersteiner, chairman of the group, says the "Susannah" performance will be part of their pre-convention activities.

Directories Go On Sale

Copies of the 1963-64 Student Directories will be on sale today at the Student Center and behind Westcott.

There is a price reduction from last year's 75 cents a copy to 25 cents a copy this year.

The directories will be sold by Alpha Phi Omega with the proceeds going to the Campus Religious Council.

The directory includes faculty and students addresses, organizations, departments, and Greeks.

Library Has Poetry

"A doleful place
this world would be
Were there no little people in it.

The Song of Life would lose its mirth
Were there no children to begin it."

Whittier

By CAROLYN CHRISTENSEN

In a small, secluded room in the Strozier Library basement there is a rare collection of over 4,000 volumes of American and English poetry, children's periodicals, and other literature relating to childhood.

The collection is a gift of John MacKay Shaw, who has spent some 30 years gathering together the books. He is now devoting his years in retirement to the development of a comprehensive catalog of this library, which includes everything from Eugene Fields' personal copy of a 1634 edition of Francis Quarles' "Emblemes," to well-known Dr. Suess.

Shaw first became interested in the power of poetry in the training of the minds of children and its influence on culture when he composed poetry for his own children. Discovering that no comprehensive record of this delightful means of family communication had been made he made it his hobby to bring together this material.

Many lifetime collections of books have been scattered or forgotten simply because they have not been described and recorded. To preserve and facilitate the use of his library, Shaw has devoted himself to the development of a comprehensive catalog of his well-loved books.

The catalog, the collection, and FSU all received national recognition when the first three volumes were placed on exhibition at the American Library Association Convention at Chicago in July.

Along with the catalog, he and the library staff have compiled a 100,000 entry "word" index, which will make any poem relating to childhood available to FSU Students. With this index, Shaw tracked down Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, the forgotten author of an old verse version of "The Three Little Pigs" for Viking Press.

The goal of the library staff and Shaw is to develop the finest collection of children's periodicals anywhere. In the collection there is a complete set of "Saint Nicholas", a nineteenth century children's magazine, which gives a good picture of the stories, games, poetry, music, customs, and general life of the child in that period.

Although nearly all the major English and American poets are represented in the collection, its interest and value extend beyond the limits of the English Dept. Bernard Linger, a student in the music department prepared a paper on music, using material from the bound volumes of "Saint Nicholas."

Dr. Clara Ryley wrote her doctoral dissertation on the books in the collection in relation to child development and the Home Economics Dept.

A small section of the library basement and the Home Economics Dept. ment has thus been set aside as a treasure house

FSU Nurses Don Green

By NANCY ZLATIN

"No, we aren't Girl Scouts!" torted the student nurses in respo to a just of a fellow student as walked out of the Soda Shop in forest-green uniforms.

Though often teased about the semblence of their uniform to green Girl Scout dress, FSU's s dent nurses feel an added dos dignity when they don the green, beginning student nurse can ha wait to begin her actual hosp experience at Tallahassee Memo Hospital in her sophomore y

It is during the fundamentals of nursing courses that the coeds introduced to Mrs. Chase, an a sized manikin, who sometimes willingly serves as a guinea pig many clinical procedures. M Chase even has a special hypod mic arm to use for injection pr ticing.

When told last week by Miss Be Thomas, the clinical instructor, t the "same day we practice inject of Mrs. Chase, we practice on e other," the students' enthusia turned to uncertainty.

Student nurses, in practicing s on each other, benefit in seve ways. Not only do they receive experience of actually giving t shot themselves but they also lea what it is like to be in the patie place. (Extra caution is usu taken in giving an injection to patient whom you know is going give you one back in the next f minutes.)

According to Miss Duxbury, d of nursing, the university schoo nursing is growing faster than m of the other departments. "Mo young women are beginning r ognize the need for a college ed cation for nursing.'

"The FSU School of Nursing p pares the student to assume p fessional nursing responsibili and to be a contributing member our dynamic society." Accord to the results of FSU students the 1962 nationwide state board t for registered nurses' licenses nursing students made the high average in Florida.

WFSU-TV Features Are For Students

By MARCI ROBBINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Dodd Hall, with its great metallic doors, offers the perfect camouflage, or outerwrapping for FSU's "on the air' television station, WFSU-TV, channel 11.

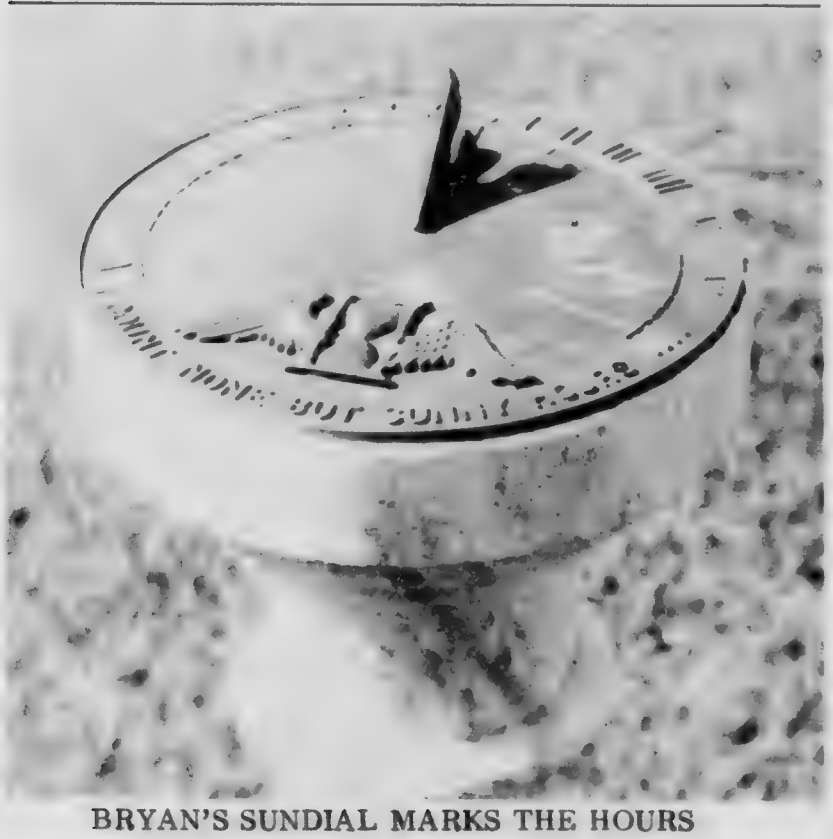
The station originated as a closed circuit station in 1957, when the Florida Education Commission and the Board of Control of the state of Florida approved its operation. The station continued in this capacity for two years. The fall of 1960 brought about the development of the "on the air" transmission, under which the station is currently functioning.

The radius of the station is approximately 75 miles, from the transmitter in appalachicola forest, 20 miles from the university. An estimated 10 county area is able to receive channel 11. Seven out of these 10 counties have TV's in their classrooms.

A limited professional staff is employed for the television studio, assisted by 35 students. Student personnel come in at various times during the week to serve in the capacities of announcing, to operate boom microphones, video and audio controls, as well as operating as floor managers.

The students do all the operational work with the main staff acting primarily as supervisory people and promoters. Edward Herp the director of the studio, says that "the student personnel is the backbone of our organization; without them, we would be unable to function in the capacity under which we now operate."

The station offers lectures on four educational levels: elementary, secondary junior college and college levels.



Direct teaching is given to two freshman English classes (60 sections of each) once a week, and supplementary lectures for Humanities 201 and 202, and Geology 107. A new course being offered this fall, is "Effective Speech," which parallels Speech 105.

"America vs. Communism" is a course being offered to the high schools in the Big Bend area. This course is an aid to the mandate of legislation requiring all senior high school students in the state of Florida to have at least six weeks of class dealing with problems of government involved between American and Communist countries. That is, to find out what each is about. Primary science is taught from the studio to the elementary schools in the area. Spanish on the Junior College level is also being taught.

Teachers from the University faculty are pulled in for class lectures if the class is directed toward FSU students. Otherwise, Leon County provides its own teaching personnel.

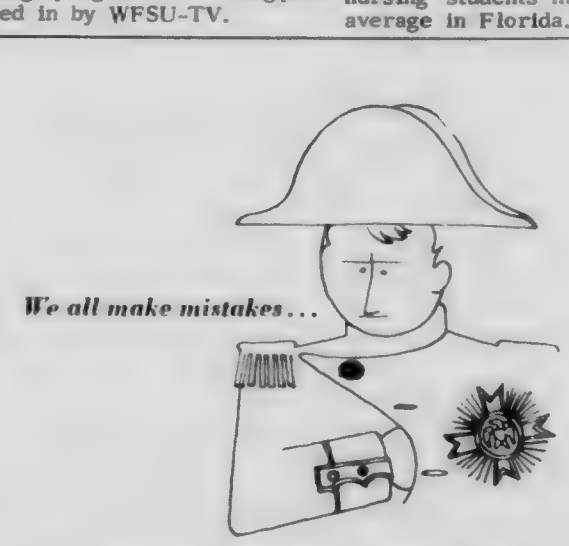
Dramas, recitals and other musical productions all are reproduced, by video tape; either in their entirety or in exerpts. These are used as promotional bits, as well as for later reference.

Exchange programs are being participated in by WFSU-TV.

BRYAN'S SUNDIAL MARKS THE HOURS

Sundial Counts Sunny Hours

By AVE DEAN

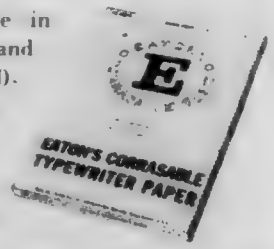


"I Count None But Sunny Hours," so declares the sundial in front of Bryan Hall.

Each person can apply this to himself; to count only the sunny hours, the pleasant things in life, and the blessings.

The sundial is like the rest of the world in thinking that time flys. On the bronze top of the dial is found an hour glass with wings.

This can also mean that life is not an eternity, to be sure and recognize the fact that time is fleeting. As it has been said, "Gather ye rosebuds, while ye may. . ."



The Class of '21 decided to place the sundial in front of Bryan Hall for classes in the years following 1921 to check their watches and see if the sundial was on time.

Waldby Serves On AID Project

Dr. H.O. Waldby, professor of government at FSU, has just returned from Nationalist China, where for 18 months he served as a government adviser and also set up a training school for future government administrators.

Waldby was part of a team of five advisers on a project administered by the University of Michigan and sponsored by the Agency for International Development (AID) sent to National Chengchi University in Taipei to aid in setting up academic programs in public and business administration and promote in-service training for public officials.

A Center for Public and Business Administration was to be created, curricula adopted and new staff members selected for advanced training in the United States to run the Center.

Ultimate goal of the whole program was to provide better administrators for government and business agencies and supply future replacements.

Professor Waldby said that in addition to seminars, institutes were held and courses set up in research and teaching methods, cost control and fiscal management, auditing, and government administration.

Mrs. Dolores Waldby, who accompanied her husband to Formosa, served on the University faculty. For three semesters she taught conversational English. Mrs. Waldby's entire salary was donated for a scholarship fund to aid worthy students in government.

Dr. Waldby also wrote and published in Chinese and English several papers on government. These included "The Responsibilities of the Finance Administrator," "Executive Governmental Expenditure Controls" and "Criteria for Organization in Finance Administration."

Cage Season Holds Promise

Shown at left is University of Southern Mississippi Coach Thad (Pie) Vann, who has compiled an 88-31-1 record in 25 years at the Hattiesburg, Miss., institution.

FSU is looking forward to a considerably better basketball season this year than it was this time a year ago. Although the prospects of a winning season were dim last year the cagers rolled to a 15-10 record even without aces Dave Fedor and Ray Swain.

Most of the same faces present a year ago are back again, a year older and wiser. Considering that their win total of 15 last year was a goodly number in anyone's book, improving that record is the 1963-64 team's major challenge. They face one of the toughest schedules in Florida State history.

Losses by graduation are not heavy --6-4 forward Charley Long, leading scorer and captain will be missed but can be replaced. Other departures: 6-7 reserve center Dale Reeves, who provided rebound strength and 6-6 Bill Giswold, reserve who played in only seven games. Guard Dale Ricketts and forward Faurest Coogle were lost after the first six games last year with career-ending injuries.

Eight talented lettermen return led by 6-5 Jerry Shirley, a burly Mobile, Ala. lad who stepped into a starting position at center and led the 1962-63 team in rebounding. Returning at forward are Cal Huge and Bob Ek. Huge, a 6-4 junior who also earned a starting job as a soph, is a rugged rebounder but sparse scorer. Ek is a senior with two letters.

Returning at the guard positions are four capable lettermen, including 6-4 Pete Rogers, transfer student and last year's No. 3 scorer. Seniors Wally Dale and Bobby Lovell alternated at Ricketts' vacated position with juniors Pete Gonzalez and Ross Winter. Dale, a veteran, will probably start although Gonzalez played an equal amount of time last year. Winter, out for all but 13 games last season with a knee injury, suffered a similar injury to his other knee in mid-October practice and may miss the entire 1963-64 season.

Five highly regarded grads of last year's Freshmen team join the varsity ranks. Bill Peacock, 6-4 guard with a keen outside shot, looks like the best of the lot. He and 6-0 Ken Leakey finished 1-2 in frosh scoring.

Three young giants up from the freshman team will add considerable height and style. Gary Schull, 6-6 Pompano Beach ace, could push the starters for a regular job at forward, while 6-8 Bill Phillips and 6-7 Jim Wallace will see considerable service.

Best of last year's redshirts is 6-2 guard Larry Bulger, who waited a year after playing for Pensacola Junior College 1960-62. Others are 6-0 Val Hinton and 6-3 Tony Blauvelt.

History Of A Hassle

Through the years under Coach Thad Vann, Mississippi Southern has established a tradition which many coaches strive for: they win. In 13 years under Coach Vann, USM has won 105 games lost 34 and tied one. His teams have posted one unbeaten season, and have gone to four Bowl Games. His worst season as a coach was a 6-4 season.

USM's speciality is beating the big boys. They have beaten such teams as N.C. State Alabama, FSU and Memphis State.

The history of the Southern Miss-FSU rivalry is an interesting one. Although USM holds a 6-2 edge in the series, it has been highlighted by several good games.

The first game between the two was played in 1952 and resulted in a lopsided 50-21 victory for USM. In 1953 the Southerners won again this time 21-0. In '54 FSU won their first game of the series in a thriller 19-18. The following year USM took revenge 21-6. In '56 FSU won another thriller 20-19. Once again the Southerners came roaring back to clobber the Seminoles 20-0.

After 1957, the series was discontinued for two years and resumed during Coach Peterson's first year as head coach. The Southerners took both games of that series 15-13 and 12-0. The latter was another of those Homecoming shutouts which have occurred recently.

The series will continue through 1964 with a game at Campbell

Gymkana To Open Next Week

Tickets are now on sale for the 1963 Gymkana show, "Passport," opening Wednesday in Tully Gym at 7:30 p.m.

A booth has been set up in front of the Home Economics Bldg. for sale of Gymkana tickets. Prices range from $1.25 for adults, $.75 for students with ID's to $.50 for children under 12.

Dr. Hartley Price, Gymkana Director, said the 90 minute show was planned on the theme of an airplane trip around the world.

Trampoline, acrobatics, balancing, drill, ring, and tumbling acts are just a few of the many features of "Passport." The show will have an international aura. Each act takes place in a different country.

Climaxing the Saturday night show is the crowning of the 1963-64 Miss Gymkana. She and her court are chosen not only on the basis of beauty, but on the hours worked at Gymkana and the originality of her costume.

Trophies will also be awarded to the fraternity and sorority who contributed the most to this year's Gymkana production at this time.

Mary Ellen Yaggy, 1962-63 Gymkana Queen will be present at the crowning of Miss Gymkana. Larry Aaron will be the Master of Ceremonies for each show.

Gail Sontgerath of the 1960 Olympic Team will be one of the leading performers. Mike Monroe will perform as a gymnast and will take charge of the art for the show.

Rick Miller, another of the stars, has charge of the men gymnasts.

Jazz dance routines 15 coeds have learned during a month and a half of brisk rehearsals will add a new note to the 1963 Gymkana show.

The 15 coeds have received no previous dance training. They have been learning jazz dancing under the direction of a professional, 26 year old graduate student Bill Henderson, who in 1962 served as choreographer for the Gary Moore show.

The coeds, learning difficult dance routines to very rapid music, have picked up the technique well. Henderson and the two dances should add to a program which is filled with expert gymnastics, clowning, pageantry and a nightly beauty review of Gymkana Court.

Henderson and one of the coeds, sophomore Kay Cameron, will do a duet jazz dance as part of the show.

FSU Students Favor RestaurantIntegration

By BOB MITCHELL

A survey taken by the Contact Commission, an executive instrument of student government, shows that a majority of FSU students are in favor of allowing FSU negro students to eat in restaurants surrounding the campus, Student Body President Johnny Smith announced yesterday.

This was the second survey made by student government in an effort to get student opinion on the restaurant issue.

Smith said that although the survey did not represent the student body as a whole, it did give student government the flavor of student opinion.

A total of 225 students were given questionaires to fill out. These students were picked by a system of percentages so as to give the most representative cross-section of the student body possible. Graduate students and off-campus students were not included.

The results showed that 63.1 % of students interviewed were in favor of allowing FSU negro students to use restaurants adjoining campus. Eight percent of the students thought it should be left up to the owners and two percent of the students questioneddid not answer.

An even larger percentage (78.2) said that they would eat at the restaurants if they were desegregated while only 17.3% said they would not. Five percent abstained.

When asked if they thought student government should take an active part in this issue a majority of 57.3% answered "no."

The Contact Commission which took the survey, is headed by Sandy Gay and is responsible for distributing questionaires in a random scientific manner.

Before making the survey, the commission found out what percentage of students lived on campus and what percentage lived in fraternities or sororities.

The commission then picked the students to be questioned in relation to these findings.

According to student government officials, these findings represent no official action to be taken on student government's part.

'Rally Round' Shows Tonight

"Rally Round the Flag, Boys" will be the Campus Movie presented in Westcott at 7:30 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night.

Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward, Joan Collins, Jack Carson, Dwayne Hickman and Tuesday Weld star in this comedy based on the novel by Max Shulman.

A harried young husband feels slighted because of his wife's civic activities becomes innocently (but embarrasingly) involved with a seductive neighbor who is neglected by her busy husband.

Integrationists Damage Freedom Of Enterprise

To the Editor:

I would like to commend Mr. P. S. Colee's letter to the editor which appeared in last Thursday's Flambeau. His letter, without a doubt, is one of the best worded and thought out letters concerning the segregation policy of restaurant owners. This more mature and moderate attitude is something all of us should try to develop.

I, too, would refuse to sign a petition which advocated integration if it were presented to me. My reason encompasses Mr. Colee's which is, "trampling the rights of four businessmen in order to give rights to an equal number of students, is at very best something less than progress. . ."

There has been talk of admitting only the colored FSU students. This is neither practical nor possible. How and for what reason can one draw the line in integrating a restaurant or any business for that matter? Once an owner of a business begins to integrate, he will not be expected to limit this integration to a particular group.

In discussing whether or not segregation is morally right or wrong, I fear that the question of the question of the legality of integration in certain cases has been overlooked or at least oversimplified. Many Federal court orders to integrate apply to that particular case only.

I am a firm believer in private enterprise. I respect the business man's decisions in running his own business. For government agencies or courts to have the right to limit, regulate, or encroach on private enterprise except in specific instances is to give them the right to back away at one of the cornerstones of our country. The exceptions to this would of course apply to monopolies, fine fixing, and other powers of regulation that the Constitution gives under conservative interpretation.

As it stands today our powerful centralized government is trying to control such businesses as hotels, otels, swimming pools, restaurants, theatres, and recreation facilities in general, all under the auspices of "interstate commerce." Such stretching of the meaning of the interstate commerce section is without warrant.

The fuzzy meanings of what the Constitution "might have" or "probably" implies, not what it says, is a foolhardy attempt to make this great document say something it doesn't. The time for Congressional action is long overdue.

Pickets Are Disgrace

To the Editor:

It is both disheartening and disgusting to note that some of FSU's supposedly mature students are participating in the picketing of an off-campus restaurant.

Unfortunately, under the guise of being "liberal fighters for individual rights," these people are violating in practice the very cause which they supposedly represent when they attempt to force the owner of a private business to cater to their own pseudo-idealistic whims.

Frankly, it is difficult to understand why these people feel that they have either the time or the energy to expend in such a manner when the issue is really not of direct personal concern to them. The pickets demand that the restaurant serve Negroes, and yet not one Negro has taken part in the demonstration.

I seriously question the motives of a group of people who seem so determined to gain a "right" for another group of people who seem rather indifferent, or at least reserved, about gaining such privileges for themselves.

If our Negro students feel they are suffering such a terrible injustice, and are determined to register some kind of protest, why couldn't they initiate and participate in the action they think necessary.

"Rebels without a cause" strikes me as a possible appropriate name for our outspoken freedom fighters, who have taken it upon themselves to say that they represent a majority of our student body with hardly a trace of evidence to support that they did so. Since they apparently have no "cause" of their own, they seem determined to make themselves a "parasite" of the cause--if such exists in this particular issue--of our Negro students.

It has always been my belief that mature people do not resort to childish tactics to "show" that they can get their way. If our displeased students cannot accept the policies of private business owners, then it is their great American privilege to patronize elsewhere and quietly mind their own business.

Certainly good common sense teaches that you don't gain a change of attitude by antagonizing or intimidating those with whom you are in disagreement.

Having thus suggested that our students attend to those things which come under the category of "their business," I now anxiously await the screams of "Bircher," "bigot," "racist," etc.

Campus Cops Criticized

To the Editor:

While the campus police remained conspicuously absent Wednesday night, eggs, firecrackers and insults were hurled at the integration demonstrators who courageously continued their march.

It took deputized members of our faculty to stop the ignorant actions of that herd of hooting animals who vainly tried to agitate the orderly demonstrators.

Whatever happened to our illustrious and august body of law enforcement officers when they were needed most by the people they are being payed to protect?

Although it has been pointed out that the campus police have a limit to their jurisdiction, we feel that their presence would have lessened considerably the heavy atmosphere surrounding the University Inn.

The rest of the nation has unfortunately been made aware that FSU has now joined ranks with Ole Miss and Alabama, ranks that are defamatory to the name of our university.

Would this notoriety have come about if the campus police were where they should have been? And if FSU students had reacted in a manner comparable to the integrationists?

Insults Shatter Southern Ideal

To the Editor:

Tuesday night I had the misfortune to witness a spectacle that seemed to make a mockery of the beliefs I hold dear about segregation, law and order, and Southern decency.

Several dozen FSU boys gathered in front of the University Inn and began yelling childish insults at the pickets, who were lapping it all up with a then deserved feeling of superiority. Soon, in the presence of about a half dozen city policemen, the boys began hurling eggs.

All of the picketers were hit and also several spectators. Finally a young upstanding policeman from Tallahassee asked, and I quote, "Who threw that egg?"

One of the young college men turned around and with an actor's poise and grandeur shouted, "Super Nigger up on the roof!" At that, the "future leaders of Florida" turned as one and pointed up shouting "He went that-a-way."

Naturally the policeman, putting his southern honor and sense of justice above his natural feelings, turned around and began an honest search for "Super Nigger."

Meanwhile, the boys took advantage of their "heaven sent opportunity" and threw eggs like mad, thus making martyrs of the poor, defenseless picketers.

Now I ask you, was that not typical of defenseless, badly beaten football player on a losing side, throwing his helmet to the ground and crying to the stands, "Look, everybody, we're getting beaten"?

I would ask these people, are you beaten so badly that you cannot simply patronize these restaurants? Are you beaten so badly that you want the student body, faculty, Southern citizens, and Americans to see you throwing eggs and suvinal insults at girls?

Instead I propose a plan of action. This (if carried out) will not only defeat the picket lines in a very positive way but it will help the restaurant owners when they need your help. They are doing their best for what you think is right, so help them now!

Every night at a predetermined time, say 9 p.m., everyone who is interested should form a line going into the restaurant, go in and buy something, and then get back in line for seconds. This, I promise you, will demoralize your "opposition" and will greatly aid your cause. You see, then you, too, will be organized.

Enforce The Law

To the Editor:

I appeal to all persons with a sense of moral integrity to stand up and make themselves known.

Especially, I speak to the many instructors who are seemingly unaware of the abominable injustices going on around them. Whether you believe in integration or segregation is at the moment not important. What is important is if you believe in an individual's right for honest and unbiased law enforcement and protection.

Incidents at Tuesday night's picketing were disgraceful. Besides the usual verbal obscenities directed at both male and female pickets there were rocks and eggs thrown, crowds blocked areas in which pickets were walking, and one picket was punched.

All of this was witnessed by the Tallahassee police force which nonchalantly and complacently stood by and watched. No one was arrested no one was questioned no one was even asked to disperse. One policeman could have prevented it all, that is if one policeman would have tried.

By their conspicuous lack of action they encouraged everything that took place. Seemingly, sitting in the police car, and exchanging jokes and wisecracks with the crowd, is as far as they will go in maintaining law and order.

I implore you, the faculty members, the Board of Control, the Administration, the student body, the religious leaders, and anyone else with a sense of integrity and moral responsibility to speak up and voice your indignation at such anti-American and undemocratic actions which are being perpetuated under your noses. Close your text books and open your eyes. You will see the things you believe in being degraded and debased. Come out of the classroom and into reality. You cannot pretend that you are not aware for the whole atmosphere is perverse with the stench of the past few days.

Please, do not turn your backs, your help is desperately needed. Only you can stop the inevitable beatings and unavoidable degradations.

Schools Must Continue Prayer

To the Editor:

In a recent Flambeau editorial entitled "Courts Protect Minorities" the author, Thomas Brooks, presented the Supreme Court's opinion that fostering religious ideals in our youth is the perogative of church and home and that Bible reading and prayer recitation are generally so watered down as to be of positive benefit to no one. Their intent is to discourage any sort of religious observance in school to which all students would be exposed.

This position should be challenged because it does not consider the fact that about 30% of Americans do not attend any church. Most of these people are in the lower socio-economic bracket; hence, the percentage of non-church attending children in a school located in a poor section of town would probably be higher. The only exposure to a higher being that most of these children receive is from the school.

True, morning exercises during the homeroom period are brief, but who is to say that this short experience of reverence will not awaken a child's desire to learn more about God in the neighborhood church which he has previously avoided? Perhaps even a turn toward God in later life will have had its inception during an earlier school experience. Even if religious awakening doesn't take place, participation in the daily readings of the Lord's Prayer during the formative years will induce an attitude of reverence during future occasions which call for such behavior.

Certainly, responsibility for molding the multidimensional aspects of a child's character is shared by agencies other than the school, e.g., the home and the church. However how can anyone logically say that a factor as important as the school must be 100% removed from influencing the development of a vital facet to one's personality?

I say that a child must not be penalized for coming from a religiously impoverished home simply because of intolerant liberals whose love embraces mankind but forgets the man next door.

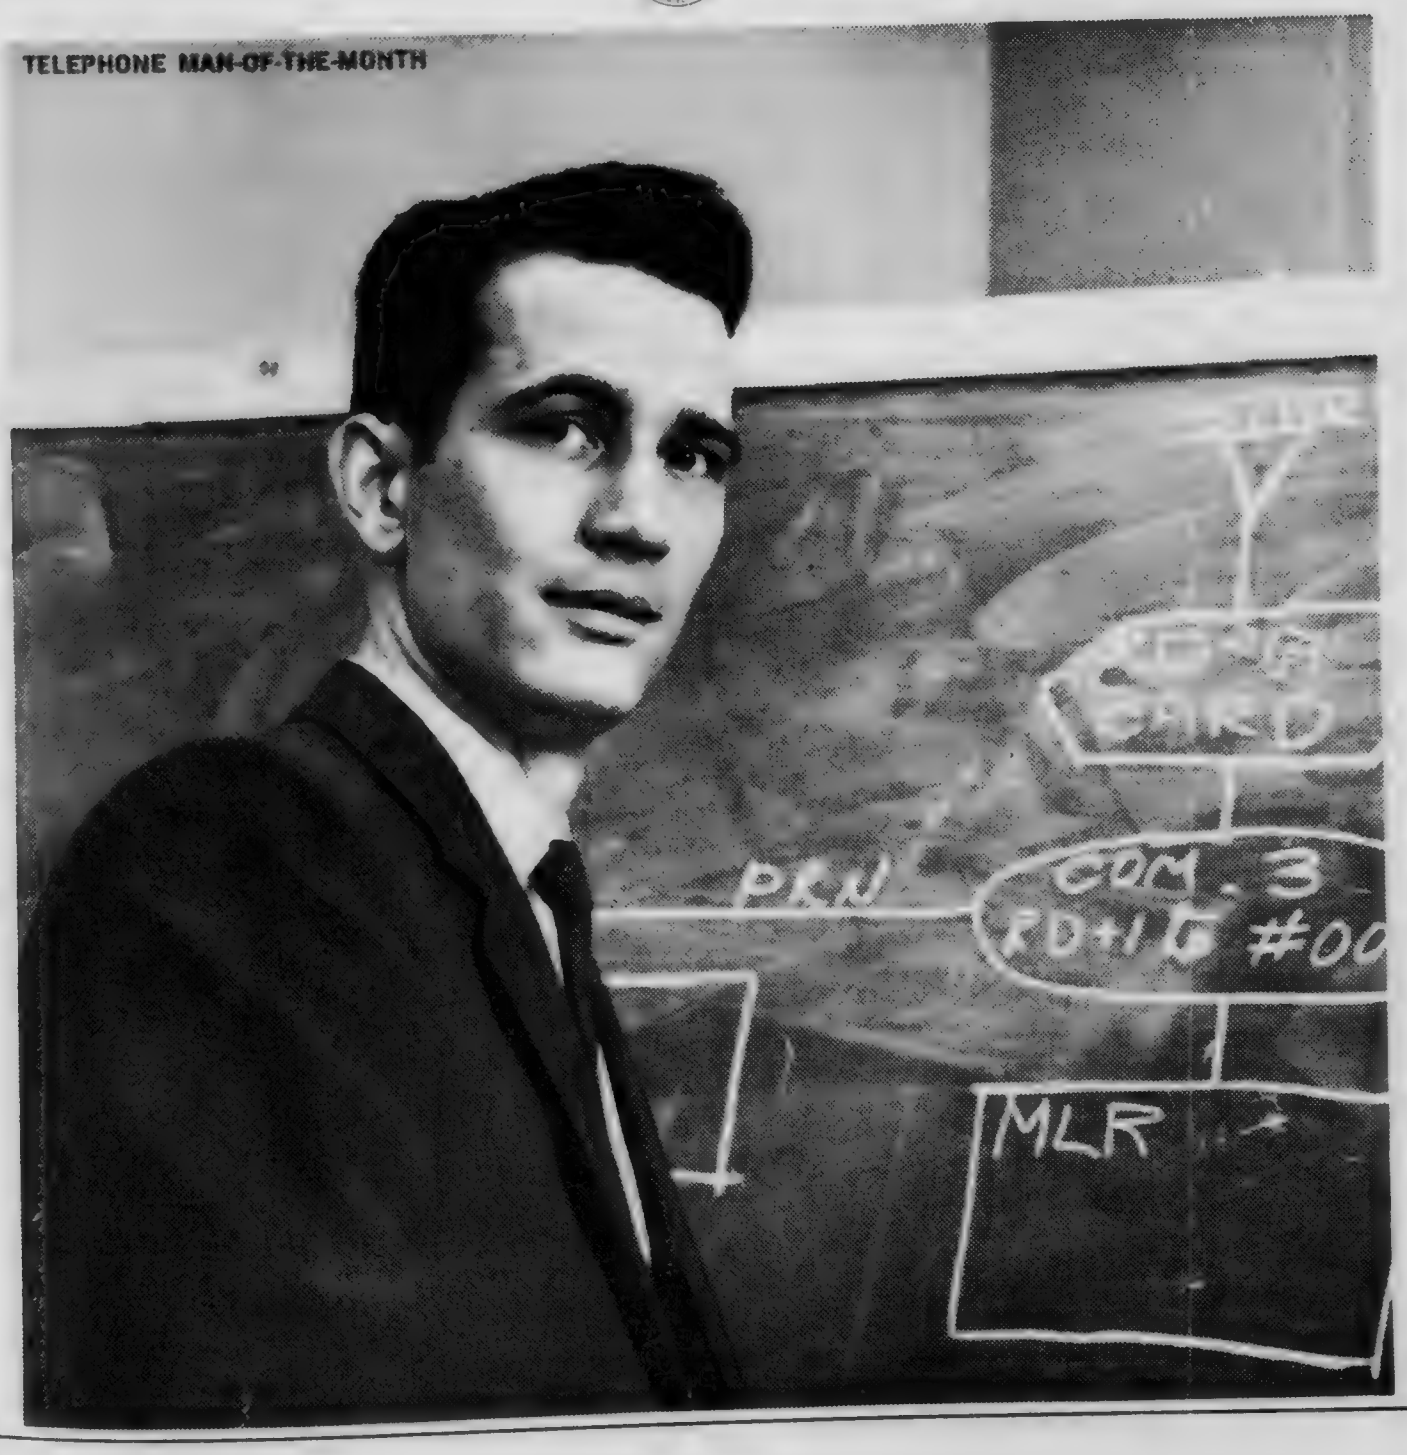
THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: TOM ASHWORTH

Southern Bell Telephone Accountant Tom Ashworth (B.B.A., 1953) is one of his company's most knowledgeable experts on computers.

Tom has harnessed computers to many tasks. After general assignments and five months' training in punched card data processing, Tom was put in charge of converting the existing manual billing of Long Distance calls to a mechanized operation in Memphis. His job was to decide how the work would be done and to develop new procedures for doing it more swiftly.



His reward came in the form of frequent salary increases plus more responsibility.

After following up the first Memphis conversion job, Tom skillfully handled another. As a result, he was promoted to Special Accountant in the Nashville district, where he still teaches computers new accounting feats.

Tom Ashworth, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Language Out For BS Degree

To the Editor:

Bravo! for Russ DeSouza and his comments against the language requirement for a Bachelor's Degree in the Arts and Sciences.(Flambeau of October 15). I know that I for one have an extremely difficult time with my language requirement for a degree in physics. I am like other students, in a class with students who are majoring in languages, many times two or more. I do wish someone could tell me why, in a time of specialization, I should be required to spend four trimesters of my college career taking a course which I most probably will never have any use for.

Of course, it would be nice to impress people with a few foreign idiomatic expressions, but without use and practice even this "knowledge' will soon pass and all I will have to show for my effort will be a reduction in my grade average. There is always the chance that one may need to refer to some work not written in English. To this I note that most of the major works in the sciences are either in English or are being translated. I am also sure that four trimesters of study will not make me a qualified interpreter.

In addition I would like to comment on the article on page five of the same edition, entitled "More Students Study Language.' This article pointed out that there have been a considerable increase in students taking languages. I would like to know how many of these students are taking language for a major or how many are forced to take it as a requirement. There is no wonder that we have this increase. It is due to the tremendous increase in students studying the sciences, not languages.

Stokes Finds College Freshmen More Critical Than Professors

College English professors are more tolerant than college freshmen when it comes to acceptance in day-to-day conversation of such expressions as "It is me.'

A survey of acceptance of 19 such controversial expressions, all of them violating some canon of English usage but all thoroughly embedded in the language, showed the freshmen themselves were more liberal than college seniors.

The Leon county teachers were more conservative than any other of the four groups surveyed on eight of the 19 expressions. In fact, said Dr. Paul Stoakes of FSU's English Department, who compiled the results: "They're even more conservative than their own textbooks.'

At the other extreme were the 46 FSU instructors in English, ranging from graduate assistants to full professors. Twelve of the instructors, accepted all 19 of the expressions as satisfactory in the conversation of educated people.
sation of educated persons.

The 19 expressions and the idea for the survey, Stoakes said, came from an article in the March, 1949, issue of Harper's magazine, "How Correct Must Correct English Be?' The Harper article was the result of a survey of 468 persons.

"There is very little disagreement about forms of expression that are genuinely standard or non-standard," said Stoakes. "Nobody argues about 'knowed' for 'knew' or 'didn't never' for 'didn't ever.'

"The arguments occur when educated speakers sometimes use one form and sometimes another: for example, 'less' for 'fewer,' 'further' or 'farther,' 'will' or 'shall.' When wide use of alternative forms exists among educated speakers then either of the forms must be considered acceptable English."

Stoakes found that 96 per cent of the FSU instructors surveyed accepted "His attitude makes me mad" compared with 84 per cent of the 104 freshmen and 72 per cent of the 187 FSU seniors and 72 per cent of the Leon teachers.

Only 65 per cent of the instructors, though, accepted "The reason I'm worried is because I think she's ill." Seventy-two per cent of the freshmen approved this along with 63 per cent of the seniors and 51 per cent of the teachers.

Even fewer college instructors (43 per cent) accepted "His work is different than mine." This was approved by 66 per cent of the freshmen, 48 per cent of the seniors and 27 per cent of the Leon teachers.

College instructors and freshmen agreed by the same percentage (96) that the expression "We had a nice time at the party" is A-okay but only 90 per cent of the seniors and 86 per cent of the teachers accepted this.

Seventy-eight per cent of the college instructors saw nothing wrong with ' Can I have another helping of dessert, please?" but only 43 per cent of the freshmen, 20 per cent of the seniors and 34 per cent of the teachers approved this.

The college instructors also gave their endorsement to "Everyone put on their coats and went home' (83 per cent) and "How much money have you got?" (89 per cent) but these expressions drew frowns from about half of the other groups.

Coffee Hour To Feature Shaara Today

Michael J. Shaara, who teaches creative writing and some other courses at FSU, will be the English Coffee Hour speaker at 4 p.m. today in the Westminster House.

Shaara will read portions of a new novel he has written, "The Broken Place," announced Dr. Hudson Rogers, who is in charge of the program.

Shaara got his bachelor's degree at Rutgers University in 1951 and took some graduate work at Columbia and University of Vermont.

Some 75 of his short stories have been published in this country, in magazines such as Saturday Evening Post, Cosmopolitan, Redbook and Playboy. Many of his stories and articles have been published abroad and one story was adjudged the No. 1 science fiction short story in England in 1955-56.

Boston Conductor Burgin Named Visiting Professor

Richard Burgin, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has been appointed visiting distinguished professor in FSU's School of Music.

The 70 year old violinist - conductor retired last year as concertmaster of the Boston Symphony. He will lecture, hold seminars and conduct master classes, according to Dr. K.O. Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music.

On Oct. 30 Burgin will appear as violin soloist with the State Symphony of Florida in the first presentation of the season. The concert will be in Westcott Auditorium.

Burgin's wife, Ruth Posselt, also well known in the concert world, has been appointed visiting artist violinist. She will join her husband on the campus later in the fall.

A native of Warsaw, Poland, Burgin was a child prodigy on the violin and as such made his debut on Dec. 7, 1903, with the Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra.

He studied with Joseph Joachim, a celebrated violinist and director of the Hochschule in Berlin and subsequently with Leopold Auer in what was then St. Petersburg, Russia.

On Burgin's retirement as concert master of the Boston Symphony Harrison Keller, violinist and president-emeritus of the New England Conservatory, wrote this about his friend and colleague: "In 1913 upon my arrival in the class, Prof. Auer introduced me to several others, whom he termed very talented youngsters. Among them Jascha Heifetz, then 11, Toscha Seidel, 10, Poliakin, 13. In later conversations with Prof. Auer he spoke particularly and glowingly of a young man named Richard Burgin who had graduated the previous year and who had just been appointed concertmaster of the Helsingfors Symphony in Finland."

After serving as concertmaster of Fitelberg's Orchestra in Pavovsk, Russia, in 1915, Burgin founded a string orchestra and toured Scandinavia for two years. He became concertmaster with the Boston Symphony under Pierre Monteux in 1920.

Sizing Up Southerners

Despite their meager 1-2 record, Southern Miss will have to be considered one of the toughest teams that the Seminoles will face this year. They play a game very similar to that of TCU, with big linemen and big backs to match. They face a similar problem of finding a quarterback and some expericence in the fullback spot. Their passing gme should be helped with the return of two fine ends.

The Southerners' main strength is in their offensive backfield. At Quarterback is James Berry, a two-letter man senior. In two years he completed 8 out of 20 passes for 171 yards, and rushed for 69 yards in 21 carries and scored two TD's. Backing him up are Vic Purvis, red-shirted last year, and the two QB's from the '62 Freshmen, Sid Atkins and Ron Moody, all Sophomores.

At the halfs, Herman Nall, Tom Walters, and Jack White return. Walters ran for 78 yards in 11 carries and a 7.0 average last season. In addition he caught 8 passes for 158 yards and scored 20 points. Herman Nall is being groomed for departed John Sklopan's spot. He ran for 80 yards in 21 carries. White ran for one hundred yards, and caught 3 passes. Soph speedsters Rabbit Brown, Tom Youmans and Tony Palazzo back them up.

At fullback Soph Harman Brannon has won the job from Senior George Sekul. Brannon is a 5-11, 190-pound "human bomb." He has led USM rushers this season. Sekul ran for 318 yards and four TD's lat year and is still very capable.

At the ends, Ben McLeod (6-0, 195) and Wiley Rice (6-1, 191) are the returning lettermen. Between them they caught ten passes for 173 yards and one TD. Wilfred Hultz (6-3, 195) and Tony Skinner (6-2, 205) are the reserves.

The interior line is composed of tackles Sam Bella (6-2, 230) and Charlie Packer (6-2, 230), guards Knick Kolinski (6-2, 230) and Joe Owens (5-9, 200) and center Larry Eucyer (6-0, 205). All are lettermen. They are backed up by Bill Freeman (6-4, 225), Bud Pigot (6-2, 208), Tony DeFranco (5-11, 208), Jim King (6-0, 210) and Dwayne Martin (6-0, 210). Freeman is faster than many backs and has already been drafted by the pros.

The main problem with Mississippi Southern is with their depth. They have to depend greatly on untested Sophomores in the second and third teams.

Shown above is University of Southern Mississippi Head Coach Thad (Pie) Vann, who has compiled an 88-31-1 record in 25 years at the Hattiesburg, Miss. school.

Vann has his sights set on the Southeastern Conference, and would like nothing better than to whip his closest contender for membership.

Just In Case. . . .

What would happen to the Seminoles if they should unexpectedly lose the services of Steve Tensi? This is the question that is buzzing about in the minds of the FSU coaching staff at the present time.

The question was apparently brought up this past week when the "Blond Bomber," Tensi, came down with a mild head cold and missed a couple of days of practice. It was then that Coach Peterson began searching the ranks... just in case.

Tensi has been at the helm of the Seminoles practically all the way this season, which leaves his u studies a little shy in the expe column.

Charlie Calhoun, Tensi's nu one replacement, has served the most part, as a defensive and punter. Last year, he was shadowed by Eddie Feely an Tensi.

The coaching staff's eyes are casting over Ed Pritchett Jim sey, and red shirted Tony All are supposed to have a potential, but the coaches wa know who has the most... just in

Intramural Results

In last night's fraternity intramural action, two thrillers topped the results.

In the first round of games, Sigma Chi slipped by Sigma Phi Epsilon in a sudden death playoff by 25 to 19. The Theta Chi's slapped the Pi Kappa Phi's by 13 to 7 while Delta Tau Delta was handing Kappa Alpha its third loss against two wins.

The second round saw Phi Kappa Tau and Phi Delta Theta battle to a 0-0 tie in a clean, well fought game which had only lone penalty. Pi Kappa Psi topped the Sima Nu's 19-14.

The Delts still top the Gold League with their 6-0 record with Sigma Chi a close second with a 5-0 tally. In the Garnet League, PKT added a tie to its clean slate of 6-0.

"... AND I'D LIKE TO SAY THIS ABOUT THAT"

... continues Chief Justice Kelly Reid in a judiciary session at the Student Government Retreat Saturday.

FSU Student Government Doing 'Great Job' -Martin

By WALT MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

"I think that FSU Student Government is doing a great job in every field," said H.L. Martin, Executive Secretary of the Southern Student Government Association, guest speaker of the Student Government Retreat Friday and Saturday.

Martin, dean of students at Howard College in Birmingham, Ala., delivered a speech titled "The Role of Student Government in College Life."

Martin said that student government brings more mature student leadership, that student government is an important factor in making a great university, and that team work on behalf of students and administration is essential in making student government effective.

Martin related that student government acts as a communication center between students and administration and promotes student activities. He went on to say that student government is a training ground for student personnel, student leadership and is an excellent preparation for effective citizenship.

The guest speaker concluded by saying, "We must look forward to greater effectiveness in Student government. We have done a great job here, but we must again look at our goals and re-establish our position, recognize our limitations and still always keep that 'forward look.'

"Believe in student government. Fight to keep student government. Fight and keep the high plane you have, but always fight to make it better. Always try to make FSU a greater university."

Dean R.R. Oglesby, Dean Katherine Warren, Dr. Edwin R. Hartz and special guests from junior colleges throughout Florida were among those attending the retreat.

The program started with a short orientation meeting, Friday night, followed by an evening of dancing and entertainment. Music for a combo party was supplied by the "Check Mates" and a hootenanny featured the "Watchmen" and the "Ridge-Runners."

Breakfast and late registration began Saturday's schedule. Panels, discussions and meetingstook place throughout the day interrupted only by breaks and lunch.

Every field of student government was represented at the Retreat. Their particular problems, functions and purposes were discussed.

The Retreat ended with words of praise for all attending from Student Body President Johnny Smith. Smith said, "We enjoyed ourselves while learning much. In a philosophical sense, student government acts as the laboratory in producing better citizens in the overall university process."

Dorothy Jackson and Joyce Killian were specially lauded for their work in making the student government retreat possible.

Homecoming Election Set

Florida State University students are tomorrow to select a five-member Court for Homecoming Nov. 15-16 from 34 eligible senior women candidates.

On Friday a run-off election will decide which of the five will be Homecoming Queen. The Queen's identity will be kept secret until the night of the Pow Wow, Nov. 15. FSU's Homecoming Queen will then be crowned and will reign over all major events on Saturday, Nov. 16, with her court, including the 2 p.m. football game between the Seminoles and North Carolina State's Wolfpack.

A O Pi Carnival Brings In $500

Carnival Time netted $500 for the Beta Omicron Pi's last Saturday at Landis Green.

More than 600 people thronged the event whose proceeds will go to the Cradle of Hope School for Retarded Children.

The AOPi's hope to make this charity event much larger next year. The Kappa Sig's won the trophy for the most successful booth.

Gymkana 'Passport' To Open Wednesday

Gymkana this year will be Wednesday through Saturday nights in Tully Gymnasium at 7:30 p.m.

The show will be on the theme of "Passport," a tour of 20 foreign countries.

Tickets will be $1.25 for the public, 75¢ for students, and 50¢ for children under 12. "Passport" will feature the Tumbling Tots; Gail Somtgerath, foremost American woman gymnast in the Rome Olympics; and other of FSU's outstanding gymnasts.

Westcott Doors Not Neglected

The bronze doors at Westcott may be black with age, but not because they have been neglected, FSU Business Manager Rod Shaw told the "Flambeau" yesterday.

Referring to a feature article which appeared in Tuesday's paper, Shaw explained that he had become concerned a few years ago by the condition of the memorial doors, and had tried to have them polished.

He discovered however, that as bronze ages, it acquires a coating called a "patina," which cannot be cleaned away. Thus FSU's "dirty bronze doors" possess an aura of fashionability that only age can give.

FSU's Shaara Reviews His Novel 'Broken Place'

By LINDA SHEPLER

"If I am an authority on anything, it is 'Broken Place,'" stated Professor Michael Shaara as he reviewed his new novel for the English Coffee Hour last Friday.

Shaara has been working on his novel for two years and has written 150,000 words thus far. The title was taken from Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms." When completed, it will have three books or major sections.

"A professor from the English Dept. commenting on his own book shows that either he has an extraordinary amount of faith in it or an extraordinary amount of ignorance," remarked Shaara.

The first book introduces McClain and Tony Wilson who have decided to travel around the world together. Tony and McClain have recently returned from the Korean War where they met. McClain has just recovered from an attempted suicide. He is unable to explain to his psychiatrist the reason for his action. He is a man stripped bare and without faith.

Tony Wilson has dreamed of traveling since he was a child. Together, he and McClain set out to see the world. The second book begins with the travelers in London and follows their adventures through Yugoslavia, Turkey, Jerusalem and Afghanistan.

Shaara read from a portion of the second book. He related the effects of the elements of nature and environment on the two men as they passed through the dry heat of the Iranian desert to the damp snow of the mountains of Afghanistan. Illness, poor food and punished bodies bring about the death of Tony in the mountains. There was no medicine. McClain, himself ill, has to helplessly sit in a cave and watch his friend die.

"We came too far," quotes McClain as the blackness of his mind closes in. He has once again been stripped of Faith...

The third book is set in Vermont and is still to be completed. "the main theme of 'Broken Place,'" expressed Shaara, "is that McClain keeps getting stronger in spite of what happens to him."

Shaara mentioned several problems he found in writing "Broken Place." "When the characters are in a foreign country, you must keep referring to the setting," remarked Shaara. McClain and Wilson move from country to country; and, therefore, they do not have time to really get to know the country or its people. "Another problem in a novel of this type is that the character must be able to carry the weight of the situation in which he becomes involved," reported Shaara.

Dr. Hudson Rogers concluded by announcing that Dr. Olive Cross of the English Dept. will present a program of comments and pictures regarding her two year stay in Siagon, Viet Nam, at the Coffee Hour, Friday, at 4 p.m. in Westminster House.

Five Students On Probation

Five FSU students who participated in a mass demonstration at a Tallahassee movie theatre (Sept. 14) have been placed on administrative probation for the remainder of their academic careers.

The action was taken by the University Disciplinary Committee Friday afternoon.

While on probation they cannot represent the university officially, and any violation of major FSU regulations or any violaton of law or court orders will result in their immediate suspension. While on probation they may not receive any scholarship or financial aid administered by the university.

They are also restricted to the campus for the remainder of the current trimester.

A statement issued by the committee said "The University reaffirms its defense of the constitutional rights of its students but maintains that they must act within the bounds of law and order."

'We Reserve The Right'

A current joke going the rounds of conservative groups has it that the Federal government has decided to replace the Statue of Liberty with a replica of Aunt Jemima.

Although this is an obvious exaggeration of the power that the Negro minority holds with the current administration, its point is well taken. Things have deteriorated in this country to where some men are judged first by their color, then by their personality, etc.

White men are afraid of the federal government and say nothing when a Negro is given a job over them on the merit of his African origin. Too many businessmen knuckle under when they are told whom they must serve. City and county officials go out of their way to satisfy the demands of the Negro minority with welfare payments and priority for high jobs.

Too few people have the intestinal fortitude to stand up for what they believe in. In the name of "civil rights" they give up some of the privileges which their forefathers fought and died for to appease a faceless minority. Those who do stand firm are usually businessmen.

This privilege which men give up so easily is one of the most important cogs in the American way of life, private enterprise.

Since the days of the Mayflower Compact, a man has had the right to start any business he desires, setting his own policies and conforming only to the market price set by others like him.

If he steps on anyone's toes, they have the privilege of refusing him their business.

As one small voice disagreeing with the voices raised against the businessmen around campus who have banded together to "reserve the right to refuse service to anyone," I say thank you!

Thank you for having enough guts and self-interest to continue the right of businesses to select their clientele.

Thanks for not shutting your doors to all students because a few try to tell you whom you should serve.

I admit that these pickets have a right to protest on behalf of the negro students who are as much a part of this university as anyone else.

But, a business trys to please all of its customers. Since the student body of this university has yet to express an opinion as a whole, the businessmen must assume that they are not that interested in eating with the colored students.

Conservatives Fear Federal Powe

President Kennedy, just as Franklin D. Roosevelt before him, is drawing much criticism for favoring strong centralized government.

Among other things his civil rights program bases itself on a solid Washington foundation, and his not too successful "Medicare" bill would have enlarged the already social security system.

Few presidents in the past saw the need for a strong central government as well as FDR. President Roosevelt was the first to cope with the modern problems of a highly mobilized enemy (politically and militarily) and the consequences of a world devastating American depression. He reacted with several programs too, among other things, strengthen the Federal powers. FDR wisely saw the necessity for one capital of the US, not forty-eight.

The right wing of the US politics deplores this tendancy to centralize power. They picture central control from Washington not as a necessity but as an encroachment. Conservatives view the situation as such because of hazy beliefs on what centralized government can and should do.

There are three main reasons we need a strong federal government: For quick effective movement in times of turmoil nationally or internationally to protect the people from big business, and to protect minorities.

The military eminate entirely from Washington. This centralization of power is quite logical and will help determine the winner in event of war. By the same token a single political enemy instead of fifty squabbling components of an industrial giant is a logical must. We need national coordination and cohesion to be politically decisive, and effective in today's world.

The government stands alone as power which can bring big busin to account for unfair and noncom itive practices. Totally unrestra capitalism results not in the Ame can ideal of free enterprise but cut-throat system spawning opolies. A strong central gove ment with both management labor represented on the na national plane is the only hope the individual consumers.

The minorities base their hope the central government with money and other resources to g antee their freedom. The Flo legislature has yet to initiate measures of racial merit that not resulted from Washington pr sures in all forms. Likewise York state or Pennsylvania now to tread lightly in their racial de ings or be set upon by fir waving Southerners shouting, P ctice what you preach!"

The local state legislature will or cannot cope with racial proble The individual legislators are p sonally involved beyond the poin their own comfort. Their efforts hampered by personal prejudice the pure and simple fact that the be unseated by the local red-ne if they try radical revisions national farm mess is a somew similar situation).

Therefore, since no one seem criticize the most obvious centr ization of power, the military, th must be other reasons why the re ulation of big business and centr ization of government in other fie draw so much criticism from t right wing.

Could it be many critics of in gration (Southern segregationis fear the power of the governme in this field? Could it be that p accuse Washington of over-gover ment in every field merely to hin the government's efforts to prot the minorities. Could it be that m segregationists support Goldwa and the Conservative cause sol because he stands for weak cent government?

In addition, let me use this appro as a radical would. Could it be t the John Birch Society the m ultra conservative of the conser tives, is a Communist sponso front used to "suppress the m orities' and 'ferment trouble' America?

Ideas Should Be Honored

To the Editor:

For the past few days, students of FSU have been picketing the off-campus eating establishments. Their purpose is to change the management's policy of segregating their establishments.

Along with the picketers there have also been crowds of students jeering and heckling them.

My point is this. I do not contend that the entire student body agrees either to segregate or desegregate these establishments. I know that everyone does not have the same feeling or sympathies. But -- I do think that the ideas and feelings of others should be honored. If you disagree with what the picket line stands for, go through it, ignore it. If you believe what they are doing is right, honor the picket line.

Either way do not resort to violence. The only thing that violence would prove in this case is that one side is stronger physically than the other, not that one is right and the other wrong.

I don't remember who said it but it sure fits the occasion. "I may not agree with what you say, but I will fight to the death for your right to say it."

Rick Rose

Integration Rally

To the Editor:

I was amazed and rather annoyed that I.F.C. and Panhellenic would contract a travelling show without first seeing them perform. I boldly assume that this was the case as certainly our esteemed Greek governing bodies would never pay $4000 for the demonstration that we observed Friday night.

Oh, I agree that the Modern Folk Quartet was quite good. The next young lady had a lovely voice even though her guitar was difficult to tune. I thoroughly enjoyed the Negro gospel group, Bessie and the Pearls, until she, her Pearls, sweet Lou, and the rest of the gang, hand in hand, began to sing that old picketing favorite, "We Shall Overcome." I immediately began searching for my Handy-Andy Confederate Flag Kit which I had forgotten just when I needed it most. (These may be obtained for $1.98 at The Americanism Center Bookstore.) I partially satisfied my emotion, however, by whistling "Dixie" all the way home.

Peaceful Picketing Is Not Wrong

Several of the previous editorials in the Flambeau have been concerned with the place of university students in relation to the racial demonstrations. Lana Murray wrote that these students broke the court's injunction and are subject to both prosecution and University discipline. Erik Collins feels that our most important mission is to get an education first.

I would like to analyze these concepts a little further. First it is agreed that these students are legally subject to prosecution. But there is a question that goes past the legal question. That is, if a person believes in something strongly enough, doesn't he have a moral right or even obligation to pursue it if it is done in a peaceful nonviolent manner?

Isn't it obvious that demonstrators all over the country believe in something strongly enough to subject themselves to prosecution, beatings, bombings, death, university suspension, etc? It is also necessary to break a law to determine if it is constitutional or not.

There are several cases now on the Supreme Court's agenda concerning public accodations because the law was broken and they would not be on the agenda if these laws had not been broken.

The second concept that we are here to get an education is also subject to further analysis. Such questions as what is an education are in order. Students are supposed to be taught to be independent thinkers. If in this process they feel that there is a social injustice being perpetrated and if they feel that they can do something, isn't this a result of independent thinking or a product of education?

The people, both black and white, who are taking part in peaceful demonstrations all over the country have my greatest admiration. They face virtually insurmountable odds and yet they continue in the face of virtually unlimited repercussions.

The action of the Tallahassee City Commission is by far the most ridiculous action conceivable. It is done under the guise that certain students are not at the university to get education but to ' disturb the pea and tranquillity of Tallahassee. There are any number of studen at FSU who are here to have a g time. Education is secondary many, or either the "education" being obtained simply to inhan the social or economic status. would only be fair that these studen be singled out and investigated als

If one were to walk by several the fraternity houses late some nig or early some morning, I'm sur that one would find that the "peac and tranquillity of Tallahassee" wa being disturbed. These student must also be investigated.

And regardless, why are edu cational goals of any concern business of the Tallahassee Cit Commission? Apparently their ma concern is that a change is inevi able, and they don't like it. Thes people just don't realize that th present movement isn't going to so simple to "snuff" out -- if is possible at all.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs steadily on the rise, more and more undergraduates are looking into the student loan plan. If you are one such, you would do well to consider the case of Leonid Sigafoos.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed bean gleaner in Straightened Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, alas, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but his reading speed, alas, was not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—picking up beebees with his toes—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana College of Lanolin and Restoration Drama and happily began a college career that grew happier year by year. Indeed, it became altogether ecstatic in his senior year because Leonid met a coed named Anna Livia Plurabelle with hair like beaten gold and eyes like two sockets full of Lake Louise. Love gripped them in its big moist palm, and they were betrothed on St. Crispin's Day.

Happily they made plans to be married immediately after commencement—plans, alas, that were never to come to fruition because Leonid, alas, learned that Anna Livia, like himself, was in college on a student loan, which meant that he not only had to repay his own loan after graduation but also Anna Livia's and the job, alas, that was waiting for Leonid at the Butte Otter Works simply did not pay enough, alas, to cover both loans, plus rent and food and clothing and television repairs.

Heavy hearted, Leonid and Anna Livia sat down and lit Marlboro Cigarettes and tried to find an answer to their problem—and, sure enough, they did! I do not know whether or not Marlboro Cigarettes helped them find an answer; all I know is that Marlboros taste good and look good and filter good, and when the clouds gather and the world is black as the pit from pole to pole, it is a heap of comfort and satisfaction to be sure that Marlboros will always provide the same easy pleasure, the same unstinting tobacco flavor, in all times and climes and conditions. That's all I know.

Leonid and Anna Livia, I say, did find an answer—a very simple one. If their student loans did not come due until they left school, why then they just wouldn't leave school! So after receiving their bachelor's degrees, they re-enrolled and took master's degrees. After that they took doctor's degrees—loads and loads of them—until today Leonid and Anna Livia, both aged 87, both still in school, hold doctorates in Philosophy, Humane Letters, Jurisprudence, Veterinary Medicine, Civil Engineering, Optometry, Woodpulp, and Dewey Decimals.

Their student loans, at the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to a combined total of nineteen million dollars—a sum which they probably would have found some difficulty in repaying had not the Department of the Interior recently declared them a National Park.

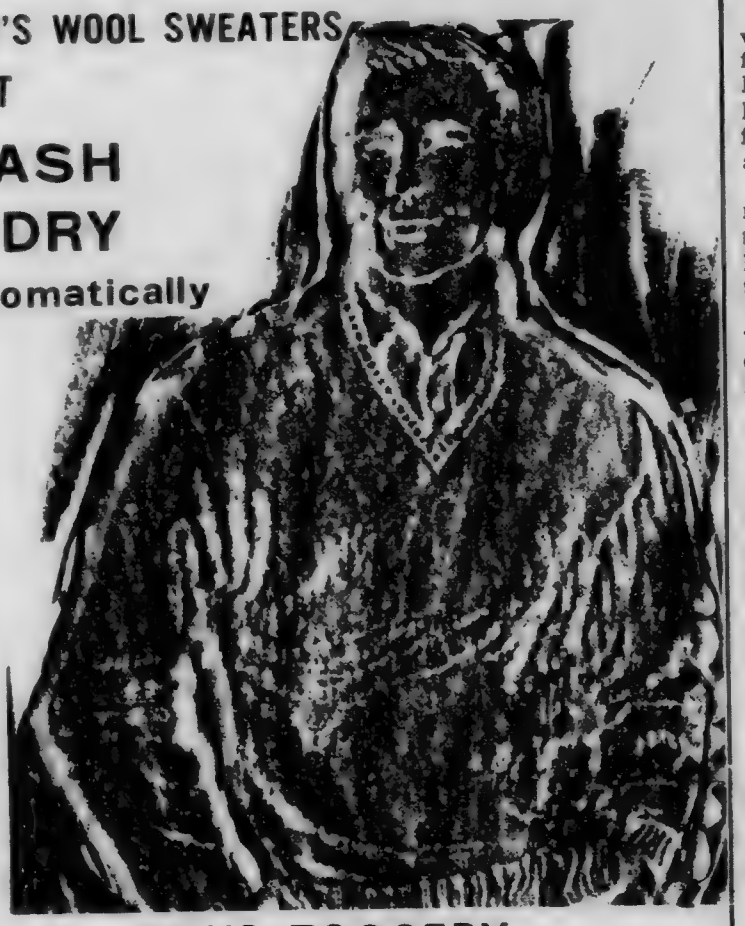
Coeds Travel To New York To View Spring Fashions

While Tallahassee is just getting the first feel of fall, 21 FSU co-eds majoring in fashion merchandising will be getting a preview of the latest fashions for spring in a 10-day tour of New York's merchandising centers.

Under the supervision of Dr. Elisabeth Shannon of the Clothing and Textiles Dept., the group will go by plane tomorrow to Newark, N.J. where they will be met by a fleet of Volkswagens, which will taken them to their hotel.



Early the next day, the students will begin their explorations of the fashion world. They will see the latest shoes at Palizzo; hats by Paulette; gloves by Van Raalte; fashions at Saks; and sports clothes at The Villager.

In addition, they will tour display rooms of well known designers, go to market with the buyers from Florida stores, and visit many of the larger department stores in New York. Their notes and observations will provide the basis for classroom work when they return home.

The seventh annual tour of merchandising centers of New York is sponsored by the Clothing and Textiles Dept. headed by Dr. Hazel T. Stevens.

Trio To Give Music Recital

A trio made up of music faculty members John Boda, pianist; Harry Schmidt, clarinetist and Harry Dunscombe, cellist; will present a recital at FSU Friday.

Part of the faculty recital series of the School of Music, the program will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. It is free and open to the public.

The trio announced the following program for the recital: "Trio, op. 144" by Brahms; "Trio for Clarinet and Cello" by Beethoven; "Sonata for Unaccompanied Cello" by Bach, played by Dunscombe; and a composition by Boda entitled "Sonata."

One of a number of compositions by Dr. Boda, associate professor of piano and composition, "Sonata" for clarinet and piano was composed in 1957. Boda joined the FSU faculty in 1947. A graduate of Kent State University, he holds the master's and doctor's degrees from the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y. He has been accompanist for Albert Spaulding, and many of his compositions have been performed at Composer's League symposia.

Schmidt, a former first clarinetist with the Army Band, has played with both the Columbus and Miami Symphony Orchestras. He has served as assistant and guest professor of clarinet in the music departments of Ohio State, Brigham Young, Auburn University and the Taipei Political Staff College. In 1960 he taught music in Indonesia and Taiwan under the International Educational Exchange Program.

Law Honorary Revived Here

Lambda Alpha Epsilon a national law enforcement honorary, was revived at FSU recently by Mr. Norman Pomrenke, professor of law enforcement.

The fraternity, whose headquarters are in Oakland, California, is organizing to sponsor law enforcement activities and begin an active chapter on campus. The honorary now totals fifty members.

LAE is not only open to students majoring in Criminology and Corrections, but to all local law enforcement and military police personnel.

The newly elected officers of Lambda Alpha Epsilon are: Charles Vann president; Mike Muley, vice president; John Walsh treasurer; and Marilyn Papalia, secretary.

Montgomery Named Chairman

Dr. James E. Montgomery, a newly appointed professor of home and family life at FSU, is chairman of the planning committee for a national housing conference to be held Oct. 30 to Nov. 2 at Pennsylvania State University.

The theme of the conference, being held for the seventh year, is "A Rational Housing Environment."

Participants include persons in teaching, research, and extension in land-grant colleges and state universities.

Coming to FSU from a position of professor and head of the Division of Housing and Home Art at Pennsylvania State University, Dr. Montgomery joined the home and family life faculty this fall. From 1957-59 he was head of Housing and Interior Design at Oklahoma State University and prior to that was an assistant regional economist with the Public Housing Administration.

He is a graduate of Maryville College and holds the master's and tor's degrees from Vanderbilt versity. He had a post-doct fellowship at Cornell, was the pient of a Julius Rosenwald Fel ship and was on a Fulbright Fel ship to the Netherlands.

Bureau Members Begin Travels

The FSU Gold Key's Speaker's Bureau began its first full year as a functioning body recently with a visit to Largo High School to inform high school students of educational opportunities offered at FSU.

The 30 minute program was the first of several similar speaking engagements on schedule for Bureau members who will travel to Orlando, Jacksonville, Daytona Beach and around the Tallahassee area in an effort to acquaint students with the university.

Other programs will be conducted for various honor groups and junior colleges in conjunction with the Administration's Bureau and the Alumni Affairs Office.

Speaker's Bureau, which formerly was under Student Government, was made a responsibility of Gold Key last year.

Membership consists of members of Gold Key, but students who are interested in the program are often invited to join.

Miles Williams, vice president of Gold Key, is chairman of the Bureau.

Interviews Begin Today

Seniors and graduate students participating today in interviews with placement officials through Friday must register in the Placement Office, Room 8 Longmire, for an appointment.

Schedules available today are Kraft Foods for business majors and liberal art majors in sales, Florida Power and Light Company and Kleeb and Bullard Company for accounting majors.

Interviews with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company for chemistry majors and with the Southern Bell Telephone Company for business and liberal arts majors are tomorrow.

Students interested in Southern Bell Telephone Company may attend a group meeting at 4 p.m. in Room 120 of the School of Business tomorrow.

Interviews for business administration, personnel management, education, social science, liberal arts, or public relations majors with the Boy Scouts of America and for liberal arts majors interested in Southern Bell Telephone Company are scheduled for Wednesday.

Scheduled appointments with the Shell Company for chemistry majors (technical recruitment program) and with Southern Bell Telephone Company will be Thursday.

Appointments are available Friday with the Union Bag-Camp Paper Corporation for chemistry majors, and with Crawford and Company, insurance adjusters, for business and liberal arts majors.

Next the BOC is demanding that the universities concerned take disciplinary action. This means that these people will be punished twice for the same "crime.' What if a person were to break a law that was a federal law, a state law a county law, and a city law? I wonder if he would be punished by all of these agencies?

In concluding, I can only ask -- is it wrong to peacefully demonstrate against something you sincerely believe is wrong both morally and legally.

College Grid Roundup

Two Top Ten Teams Toppled

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer

College football settled down somewhat with only two members of the Top Ten being upset. Ohio State and Georgia Tech were upset by Southern Cal and Auburn. They were dropped 32-3 and 29-21. In the Tech-Auburn game, Tech relied on its running game until the final two minutes. Tucker Fredricson intercepted a Billy Lothridge pass on the one yard line to stop Tech's final drive in the last minute.

The major college unbeaten and untied teams dropped to seven as North Carolina State was beaten by a fired up North Carolina team 31-10. The others all had close games as Texas defeated Arkansas 17-13, Wisconsin (4-0) defeated Iowa (2-1-1) 10-7; Pitt. (4-0) defeated West Virginia (2-3) 13-10; Bowling Green (5-0) topped Toledo 22-10; Dartmouth (4-0) took Holy Cross 13-8; Princeton dropped Colgate 48-0; and Auburn (5-0) beat Tech 29-21.

In the East, Pitt, took another step toward the Lambert Trophy by defeating West Virginia. A costly clipping penalty cost West Virginia a 70 yard punt return and the game. Army dropped Wake Forest 47-0, Syracuse shut out Penn State 9-0 for the first time in 54 games, and Navy defeated V.M.I. 21-12 on a tricky field goal attempt. Middie kicker, Fred Marlin, attempted a field goal which was batted down by a V.M.I. player who let the ball drop. Marlin swooped in and pounced on the ball for a T.D.

In the Southeast conference Auburn moved into the driver's seat by defeating Tech. Mississippi defeated a hopeless Tulane team 21-0 to move into second place with Miss. State. Alabama moved into third by routing Tennessee 35-0, L.S.U. stayed in contention by defeating Kentucky. The schedule would seem to favor Mississippi since the Reb's remaining conference games are against L.S.U., Tennessee and Mississippi State. Auburn meets Florida and Alabama, L.S.U. must play Old Miss and Florida, and Alabama still faces Tech.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference North Carolina and Duke moved toward their showdown by defeating Clemson and North Carolina State. It took four TD passes by QB Scotty Glarkin for Duke to overcome a stubborn Clemson team 35-30. North Carolina got red hot in the second half to hand State its first defeat of the season 31-10. It is still possible for a three-way tie. If State beats Duke and Duke defeats North Carolina all will have identical 6-1 conference records.

In the Southwest Conference Texas moved one step closer to another Conference crown and the number one rating with a 17-15 victory over Arkansas. The defeat ruined the Porkers chances, as they were upset by Baylor last week. In key games Texas A&M and TCU shot each other out of contention with a 14-14 tie. Rice subdued a stubborn S.M.U. team, and Baylor's Don Trull led the Bears over Texas Tech. S.-M.U., Baylor and Rice still have a chance at the title since S.M.U. has only one Conference defeat and Baylor and Rice are both unbeaten in conference play. All must play Texas in Austin, however, and Texas has been beaten twice in ten years on their home field.

In the Big Ten, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Illinois, Purdue and Michigan State all advanced up the ladder. Wisconsin needed a last quarter field goal to take Iowa 10-7 and keep the lead. Illinois moved ahead of Iowa and Ohio State into second place with a 16-9 victory over the Minnesota Gophers. Purdue squared its conference record by defeating Michigan 23-12 on Ron DiGravio's passing, Mich. State won its first conference game by defeating winless Indiana 20-3. In non-conference games Northwestern ran over Miami of Ohio and Ohio State was trampled by Southern Cal.

Oklahoma won its first conference game defeating Kansas 21-18 while Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa State made threatening noises. Nebraska dumped Kansas State 28-6, Missouri ran over Oklahoma State 28-6 and Iowa State dumped Colorado 19-7. All have 2-0 conference records, while Colorado has only one conference loss and has won two conference games.

It was banner day in the far West as Southern Cal got into high gear against the Ohio State scoring machine. Willie Brown ran 49 yards for a TD and Tom Lupo ran 40 with an intercepted pass. Pete Bethard ran for 1 touchdown and passed for one more and when the dust settled, there was Southern Cal sitting on top of a 32-3 score. Oregon ripped Arizona 28-12, Wyoming stepped over Brigham Young 41-12, Utah clobbered Colorado State 48-14, California whipped San Jose 34-13, Oregon State beat Washington State 30-6, and Utah State squashed Montana 62-6.

By BOB DENSMORE
Flambeau Asst. Sports Editor

Florida State University--"The Land of Disenchantment" would be an apt title, (post 11 p.m. Saturday night) to designate that area falling under the shadows of "those gothic spires we love so well." The FSU football team had gone to Mobile as two touchdown favorites against a team from Southern Mississippi and came back furtunate to have eked out a 0-0 tie. It was enough to bring back horrible memories of an FSU-TCU catastrophe which had occurred a scant three weeks previous. Only this time there was no rain.

Certainly, one or two tears were shed for the fate of Seminole quarterback Steve Tensi. The fine defensive play of one Mr. Jim Berry and his associates on the SMU Seminole stopping squad made a shambles of the lanky Junior's aerial game. Tensi completed fve out of twenty tosses to roll up a meager 61 air yards. A Southerner defensive back, Jim Berry, gatered in two of Tensi's passes, more than any one player on the field, Seminole or Southerner. It was Tensi's worst night of the season.

As in any defensive duel, punting plays an important part in Saturday night's game. Here the Seminoles need not hang their heads in shame. After a rather embarrassing incident on their first punt attempt (David Brinkley had kicked a punt which he caught himself for a -1 yard gain), Charlie Calhoun came into the game and averaged 37.9 yards per boot on seven assignments. Calhoun had been held out of the game initially with a sprained ankle and was not at full speed.

FSU retained a little luster too from the performance of turf churners Dave Snyder and Marion Roberts. When the Seminole passing attack fizzled, the pressure was on them to get the first downs. Both did their jobs well, considering the fact that the Southerners had bucked up their line when they saw that their secondary could take care of themselves.

The relative brutality of the conflict was established early in the game when Jerry Bruner was taken out of the game with an ankel injury on the first play from scrimmage. SMU's coach, Pie Vann, commented on the way the Seminoles were hitting in return. Said Coach Vann, "I want to commend FSU on the way it tackled. Fumbles will come when a team hits you like that. This was our best defensive effort of the year."

The tribe's defensive effort can be held for no blame also. The Seminole wall caused the Southerners to fumble on four occasions, nullifying time after time SMY's potential scoring drives. This is the second game in a row that FSU has held their opponents scoreless.

Here's the game as it looked quarter by quarter:

FIRST QUARTER... Southern Miss. won the toss and elected to receive, but couldn't move the ball. The Southerners punted and FSU took possession on their own 38. Dave Snyder rattled off runs of 14 and 15 yards, but Tensi's receivers couldn't hold on to the ball. The Southerners took possession on their own 44, and moved to the FSU 39 before punting. FSU received on their own 25 but was tossed back to SMU's 46. From their own 46, the Southerners pushed down to the Seminoles 5 where Dick Hermann recovered a fumble by Rabbit Brown. FSU kicked just as the quarter drew to a close.

SECOND QUARTER... FSU forced a Southern Fumble on their own 46. The Seminoles looked dangerous as Tensi connected fo passes totaling 25 yards and Bibent raced around end f more.

FSU had the ball on the Sou ers' 9 yard marker. The noles couldn't budge past th so Doug Messer came in to charge on their own twenty. Th of the quarter was merely change of punts until Souther fensive back Jim Berry inter a go for broke pass from Te his own thirty. Berry was over ed on FSU's 40 by Howard Eb the busser sounded.

THIRD QUARTER... Marion erts took the kick-off and ran ight up the middle for 58 yard ting the ball on SMY's 42. fought its way to their opponen but were again halted when intercepted on the 4. The Sou ers couldn't move the ball and ed to FSU's 45. FSU found it ly hard to get yardage and punt back to SMU's 34. The S erners caught fire and drove Seminole 10, but were again by a fumble. The Seminoles ed out to their 30 as the q came to an end.

FOURTH QUARTER... The moments of the fourth quarte FSU move on out to their 4 fore being forced to kick. SM possession on the 13. The Sou ers clawed their way out to before they called in their t The Tribe moved to the fifty they again punted. The Southe fumbled the boot however. was recovered by Snyder on S 19. The Southern defense push Seminoles back to the 34 where Murdock tried a forty yard goal. The kick was no good. SMU took possession on the The Southerners moved out to twenty before they were again ed to punt. As soon as the Tri the ball, they lost it on a pass reception.

The Southerners worked the down to FSU's 12 but were asse five yards for delay of the g with twelve seconds to go. SM ed a field goal from the 24 failed.

will be chosen from this court of 21 beauties, e will be crowned the final night of the show. sen from 301 candidates, the contestants are, t row, from the left:
y Alvarez, Barbara-jean Lovejoy, Peggy Har- Sherian Chester, Donna Mueller and Nina Herring. Second Row: Jan Eyman, Jo Etta Lawrence, Connie Gowen, Linda Wilson, Sharon Cody, Susanne Bradford, Charlotte McClaran and Tessie Fajardo. Third row: Frances Smith, Dolores Lord, Sammye Cold, Sheila Clark, Jo Anne Elliott, Fran all and Sharon Johnson.

"Passport" Opens Tomorrow Night

The FSU Gymkana Show for 1963 will open on the theme of "Passport" tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in Tully Gymnasium.

The theme this year is based around an International Beauty Pageant with each member of the Gymkana Court representing a different country. Each act will depict a particular feature of the countries visited. The setting will be in an international air terminal.

Climaxing the show on Saturday will be the crowning of "Miss Gymkana" and her five court members. Miss Gymkana and her court will be picked not only on beauty, but on hours spent helping with the production. The originality of the costume will influence the final decision.

Trophies will also be awarded to the fraternity and sorority who contribute the most to this year's Gymkana production on Saturday night.

Tickets will be on sale in a booth located across from the Home Economics Building. Tickets are $1.25 for the public. Children under 12 will be admitted for 50 cents. Students with I.D. cards will be charged 75 cents admission.

Some of the acts and routines include: Dance, USA; Acrobatics; Jazz Dance, France; Trampoline, Italy; High Bar, Africa; Balance Beam, India; Free Exercise Japan; Parallel Bars, Australia; Hula Dancers, Hawaii; Uneven Parallel Bars, Old Mexico; Tables and Chairs, Andes Mountains; and Tumbling Tots, USA.

Jazz dance routines performed by 15 coeds who have had no previous dance training will add a note of change between the gymnastic acts. These coeds were trained by Bill Henderson, who in 1962 served as choreographer for the "Gary Moore Show."

Gail Sontgerath, a member of the 1960 Olympic Gymnastic team, will be featured in a free exercise with Rick Miller, a professional.

Gymkana is directed by Dr. Hartley Price gymnastics coach. Tracey Torry is chairman of the show. Larry Aaron will serve as master of ceremonies.

Four Arrested For Disturbance

Tallahassee police, answering a telephone report of a disturbance investigated 548 Whitehall St., at 1:28 a.m. Sunday and arrested four FSU students.

Bruce Henry Lucker, Herold Jay Rosenthal, Gordon Arthur King and Matthew Robert Miller were released yesterday on $100 bond each after being charged with disturbing the peace, petty larceny and disorderly conduct.

The officers reported finding a gumball machine, three road signs and four beach chairs. The person who first phoned the complaint to police spoke of firecrackers exploding in the neighborhood.

The four pleaded not guilty yesterday and are scheduled to come before municipal judge John Rudd at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Student Bank Business Better Than Ever Before'

Business is better than ever before," stated Mrs. urine M. Ervin, depository cashier of the student k.

e student depository, more famly known as the student bank, ated in Room 2 of Longmire, is under the control of Student ernment. The bank was destined e eliminated due to insufficient s and need for office space in tcott.

Turner undersecretary of Fice asserted, "If Student Governt had not taken over the bank, student depository would be nonexistent at present and students would have to go uptown for their banking needs.'

To remain in existence the depository had to become self-supporting, and has been placed under SG finances. By the end of the fiscal year, Mrs. Ervin said, the success of the self-support can be determined. Greater participation by the students will insure at stable and more efficient depository for their benefit, she added.

Turner explained that the extra service charge of $1 is part of the self-supporting policy concerning the bank. The remainder of the funds comes from Student Government and interested on invested deposits.

Non-depositors still may cash checks, but there will be a charge of five cents for each check. Students with accounts will not be charged for checks; however, a $1 fee will be required for returned checks.

Cashiers checks, honored at most places, can be obtained for 15 cents.

University Comptroller George Fortin still supervises the bank, but it is operated as a student activity, rather than as an administrative function. This will give students a more direct voice in bank policies.

"It is hoped that these changes will create a friendlier and more efficient atmosphere as well as make the bank self-supportying," emphasized Mrs. Ervin.

Judiciary Restricts Seven

Women's Judiciary last week gave partial restrictions to seven students ranging from three to seven days.

One girl received three days partial for an improper signout.

Five girls received five days partial each for various violations including late entry, going over five miles outside the city limits without signing out, coming in the side door after closing hours, and letting some one else in a side door after closing hours.

One girl failed to sign out for the weekend and received seven days partial restrictions.

Miss Betsy Boote, Chairman of Women's Judiciary, is also chairman of the University Court and Men's Judiciary. A change in the Judiciary Branch this year is that it will operate the full three trimesters.

Circle K To Meet

Circle K" Club will have a rush meeting tonight at 7:30 in Longmire.

The organization is sponsored by Kiwanis International and at the present time consists of 500 clubs with over 10,000 members. The president of FSU's "Circle K" Club is Walter Deese, and among the members of the club is Percy Bell, who is an international officer of "Circle K.'

"Kiwanis Relationship to Sponsored Youth Organizations" will be the topic of the main speech to be given by Robert Stephens, principal of Leon High School.

Stephens is a member of the Tallahassee Kiwanis Club. Several of the local "Circle K" Club members will be participating in the program. All male students may attend this meeting.

Cave Logic

One man, with one club, in one cave, is indeed king. He does things as he chooses -- when he chooses-- and how he chooses. His peculiar tastes and prejudices are his own to please. It would make things delightfully simple if we could declare all contemporary Americans equally as free. But then, for all its simplicity, anarchy is also hell.

Primitive men do all their own food getting, thrill seeking (when they have time), and provide their own housing. When an aborigine wants food, he most certainly has a right to select, prepare, and eat his meal when and where he wishes.

Things change, however, when a group of men get together and begin living as a group. Not all persons are equally adept at getting food, so (to put things in a more familiar context) 180 or so million Americans have handed over the job of producing food for themselves to a few million specialists. Few people would suggest that when people do a service for other people, in exchange for still more services or goods, those who do the producing have the right to tell those who do the using what sort of service they are supposed to enjoy. In other words "the customer is always right."

The American public has a standing contract with the whole of the American food producing machine -- thus since all elements of the public are participating in food production -- all Americans (customers) have a right to partake of the products of that machine.

The American businessman who does not like the idea that he must serve all Americans has the same privilege as does any other American capitalist or consumer -- he can quit. It's time we learn that there are limits to the rights of private property. Socialism offers a governmental system by which the proper functioning of society may forcibly be carried out. Democracy offers men time to recognize their responsibilities and carry them out without first demanding from them their freedom.

Only the sluggishness of American citizens to fulfill their responsibilities voluntarily will bring on the need for the enforced responsibility of government.

'Won't Someone Please Explain

Question Yourself

To the Editor:

My conscience is editing this letter, my convictions are the words, my pen the tool. I think it is about time we all looked a little closer, a little deeper, a little clearer into our souls as Christians our hearts as Americans, and our inner-selves as human beings.

The question before us is not whether segregation or integration is right, but much much greater indeed. We must question what is right, good, Christina, legal, logical and human. How each of us answers this question is what is really important, but only if we do it according to our own inner dictates and not because of the social restraints of our state, university, friends, and family.

Can we do this? Does the average FSU students have the earnest conviction and zeal of a young Negro demonstrator who is beaten, jailed, insulted, spat upon, or killed? Regretfully I feat not--Oh! god, I wish we did. It would make me so proud to hear a logical defense of segregation instead of that worn out cliche "Send 'um all back to Africa," or an organized white protest rather than roving street gangs shouting "Kill the niggar lovers" and "We oughta hang the black ___" or finally that beloved Christian phrase "Love thy neighbor," instead of "Niggars are fine, everyone should own one."

The Negro is visualized as an entity--a ragged, dirty foul-smelling, ill moraled welfare case who lives in a hovel; this is quite the case, but will we improve his lot or can he, if we keep him under social bondage. Sure there will be problems; if there weren't we would be in a utopia or heaven. These problems are coming sooner or later, so why not start now trying to work them out--if we don't our children will.

You who read this are oh so fortunate; by the grace of god you were born white, but does this allow us to be judge over any other man be he black or yellow. Count your one blessing my white children--right now it's the greatest gift you have.

I apologize for the inadequacy of this letter, because even though it means a great deal to me it will leave a very minute impact on you. Question yourself; search out your answer. It could begin now, here at Florida State--this answer.

To the Editor:

My name is Susan Chu. I am Chinese. I have the slanted eyes, the yellow tint to my skin and the straight, black hair which characterize my race. My native language is strange-sounding to your ears, and the way I speak English is broken and not always correct. My native customs often inspire laughter from many of you, although it is a friendly laughter. And I am not yet an American citizen. But in spite of the way I look and speak and although I am not an American, I am able to eat at any white restaurant and attend any white theatre of my choice.

The Negro has a black skin, full lips, and a flat nose. He do always speak correct English h But he is an American. Yet not allowed to eat where he pl to to attend theatres of his c

I am as different from Cauc as is the Negro even more dif in several ways. It is appare the reason why I am allowed where I choose is not beca look and speak differently. am not an American seems to no difference where I am al to eat. Yet the Negro who more different than I am, an is American, is not allowed these things that I, not even a zen of your country am allow do. I can not understand th I were in any other country America I could perhaps unders But not in America where fre of all peoples and equality races supposedly distinguish t other countries.

I ask why it is this way in country? I ask many people a seems that the only reason is judice. But still I do not unders Of course I understand prejud personal or limited reasons cannot understand a prejudice prevents a whole race from h equal rights. And it is more co ing to me how a country which p itself on its freedom and eq and whose foundation is the prin of freedom for all men can this prejudice to exist with the e that it has.

No matter who I ask no one been able to explain why this i And I find that many students i university are asking the same q tion.

I see that some students ask question with petitions and de strations, which I understand always been an accepted Amer practice when it is performed i orderly manner and with observ of the laws. But these students ask in this way are criticized punished by the university for ing. How can this be in an Ameri university?

Many of my professors disc freedom and equality so well they seem to do so with only tongues and not their hearts. I been told that professors will be criticized if they ask this qu tion too loudly and that they--as the students--are urged not to Is this freedom? Is this the Amer that I was told about, the Amer where free speech is encourage above all the right to ask?

I do not understand. Will some please explain?

Respect Rights

To the Editor:

Picketing may or may not be the best way of resolving the restaurant question. There is room for argument. But peaceful picketing is an American tradition, an invaluable American right, and there is no room for the threats and intimidations made by some of our more muscular students to the pickets.

Continue to eat in the restaurants if you so choose--but respect the freedom of your schoolmates to disagree in an orderly and legal manner.

Prof. George Lensen

Just One God

To the Editor:

I emphatically recommend all segregationists, integrationists and undecideds to look over the Sept. 30 issue of 'Newsweek' --more specifically, the article entitled "Birmingham: 'My God, You're Not Even Safe in Church' ", found on page 20.

I have one question with which to challenge: Who in this asinnine world said that a white was better than a Negro, or vice verse? I always thought there was just one God, but there seems to be quite a few others I missed around here and elsewhere.

Perhaps someday my church will be bombed and my four little brothers will be just as dead as those four little Negro girls. Your're not crucifying the Negro, you're crucifying yourselves.

For those of you who think you're God: you may look lily white but you're just as black on the inside as a Negro is on the outside.

Where Did You Get That Slang ?

hip chick is a snicker slicker is art, alert girl dressed in her -it-yourself' oilcloth rain cape hich her friends have scrawled sayings.

hus the language of today? Yes so. Few contemporary chicks ize that the term dates back to as: 1935: "hip" replaced "hep" on knowing tongues soon after World War II, though jazz musicians had the used the word even before that. "Snicker slicker" is new, though--both the garment and most of the phrases on it.

As fads go, it's surprisingly practical--waterproof, a good windbreaker, and loose enough to slip comfortably over layers of heavy winter clothing. From a 54" square of oilcloth, the chick or cat (male) makes a hole in the center just big enough to slip a cool head through.

And that's that--except for trimming the neck and edges with waterproof tape in a matching or contrasting color (a combination of school colors is often favored), and letting friends run wild with an indelible waterproof magic marker.

What do they write? If a girl scrawls "abominable snowman" over her steady's slicker, that's not an insult, but a high compliment--it means he has everything. "Skizzy" and "ginchy" have also been defined as "great" and "wonderful" in the teen lexicon.

On the other hand, only a "bish" or "goopus" (both terms mean "dope") would write "You're the most." That's passe now, and marks the writer as being "out to lunch" (not "with it," a phrase now also deemed moldy among the young).

A teen who is really "neat" (cool and casual) might also make a snicker slicker hat out of oilcloth, something like an updated sou'wester. Those who are extremely "far out" (as opposed to "way in," which is so square as to be a "cube") may even sport matching book covers and umbrella holders. Instructions on making these various items are available from Snicker Slicker, Box 208, Columbus, Ohio.

Though "in" now means "out" and what was "hot" to an earlier generation is now "cool," some slang terms are amazingly durable. 'Kick the bucket," for example, shows no signs of doing so--even though the expression dates from 1785!

Some say it began down on the farm, referring to the cow's bad habit of kicking over a full milk pail. Others trace it to a grimmer source: the would-be suicide who "kicks the bucket" he's standing on after fastening a noose around his neck.

"Okay" has been O.K. since 1840; most scholars date it from the presidental campaign of that year, when the term was used as an abbreviation of Old Kinderhook, Martin Van Buren's nickname. "Phony" has been genuinely popular since 1900--but nobody seems to know just where the word comes from. Some suggest the old British "fawney," slang for a worthless ring.

"Button your lip," a frequent injunction in World War II, was first used as a warning in 1787. "Bones" as a slang term for "dice" is at least as old as the 14th century; the poet Chaucer used it in 1387.

If you still think of yourself as on the ball, you're old hat--but the latter expression is surprisingly new: The Dictionary of American Slang ascribes it to writer Robert M. Coates, in 1949. There's also some indication that "endsville" and similar "ville" terms are not used by the "Mickey Mouse" (square) and not by the true hipster. Nor does a cool cat refer to something as "the end"; to express satisfaction he may now say: "Everything's everything."

But as long as slang keeps growing and changing--the word "slang," incidentally, was used in 1916 to mean "watch chain"!--one thing is sure: whatever is "the end" at any given moment is only the beginning.

Two Platoons Revisited

BLAIK

Col. Earl (Red) Blaik, long-time Army coach, has predicted that colleges would return to two-platoon football in 1964. Writing in the current issue of "Look" magazine, Blaik declared: "When the rules committee (of the National Collegiate Athletic Association) meets at Fort Lauderdale next January, they will very likely legislate for free substitution.

"This will open the way to two platoons and the caliber and tempo of play that the college gwme deserves."

Blaik noted that in the period between 1949 and 1952 when colleges played separate units for offense and defense, this two-platoon football "proved to be the most effective, most exciting and safest football in the history of the college game."

He characterized the present substitution rule as "merely another in a series of complex, ineffectual, tedious compromises."

In his "Look" article, Blaik based his prediction about the return of the free-substitution rule to college football on three developments:

1. A growing conviction among the members of the rules committee that continued opposition to the free-substitution rule in the face of the strong wishes of the majority (75%) of the coaches would intensify discontent and antagonism, and hurt the game.
2. The request of the Ivy League for a free-substitution rule... The about-face of the ivy league will influence faculty people everywhere.
3. Increasing realization among coaches that they probably can help their chances of gaining free-substitution with the approval of professors by also proposing safeguards for current ceilings on player recruitment.

Frosh Recover For USM

Florida State's freshman football team, down two games and racked with injury, steps up preparations this week for an Oct. 31 meeting with tough Southern Mississippi in Pensacola.

According to reports, Southern's frosh team will be just as uncooperative as Florida's and Miami's were Florida downed the Baby Seminoles 21-7 here on Sept. 5 and Miami romped 22-13 in a game in Tampa a week later.

Coach Ken MacLean, whose team is usually taken up with aiding the varsity in game preparations, said after the Miami game that he is glad the frosh had two-and-a-half weeks to prepare for Southern Mississippi.

A medical report showed no less than 13 players added to the injury list, many of them critical, Most of them are to be ready for the Oct. 31 game, however, as well as Larry Green, left halfback from Cairo, Ga., who missed the Miami game altogether.

Green received an ankle and eye injury in the Florida game. He removed a patch from the eye last week and was walking fine. He should return to practice this week. MacLean did find a fullback in the Miami game. Greg Baggett 217 pounder from Bay High in Panama City, led his team with 37 yeards rushing versus Miami and scored a three-yard touchdown. The scoring play was set up by a 35-yard pass to Baggett from quarterback Vernon Korhn.

Baggett's total of 48 yards rushing in two games places him second on the team behind left half Rick Saunders of Macon, Ga. who has 100. 98 of them came against Florida.

Korhn with nine of 17 completions for 97 yards, leads the team in passing. Don Jones, right half, has caught eight passes for 62 yards.

Former President Truman To Speak At Homecoming

The nation's 33rd president, former President Harry S. Truman, will speak at FSU's Homecoming Banquet in the Suwanee Room Nov. 15, President Gordon W. Blackwell announced yesterday.

Homecoming will get under way with a parade on Friday afternoon, followed by the Banquet and then the Pow Wow at Campbell Stadium. The second day will feature a series of other events including a barbecue and a football game with North Carolina State.

Truman, who is 79, will be returning to a state with one of his favorite vacation spots during his nearly eight years in the White House. Every February-March and every November-December, he spent a brief vacation at Key West.

Florida voters apparently liked him better than any recent Democratic candidate for president; he is the last Democratic nominee to win in Florida. In 1948, when he upset polsters by beating Thomas E. Dewey, Truman received a vote of 281,988 to 194,280 for his Republican opponent in Florida.

Born on May 8, 1884, in Missouri, Truman entered politics after World War I, first being elected county judge in 1922, and then US senator in 1934 and finally vice president in 1944. This election followed several years as the hard-hitting chairman of a Senate committee investigating the defense program.

After only 82 days as vice president Truman unexpectedly had the helm of government thrust into his hands with te death of Franklin D. Roosevelt on April 12, 1945. It was left to Truman to finish the war and make the peace.

His responsibility for the Truman Doctrine in Greece and Turkey, the Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance, the Berlin Airlift and the Korean action led Winston Churchill to say to him in 1952: "You, more than any other man, have saved Western Civilization."

Twice since his retirement he has been hospitalized for operations, once in 1954 after a severe gall bladder attack and once last January for a hernia operation.

Senate To Discuss Three Bills Today

Three bills are on the agenda for today's Student Senate meeting.

Bill X, introduced by Phil Watkiss at a special session during the Student Government Retreat, will be given its second reading. The bill adds a section to Article IV of the Constitution, giving the student body president the power to fill court vacancies by appointment, after consultation with the presiding officer of the particular court.

The bill drew fire from senators who felt that too much power would be given to the office of president. Debate will continue in today's meeting.

Bill XI, to be introduced by Clyda Stokes, would change the name of "Inter-Faith Council" to "University Religious Council" in a section of the statutes in order to keep the statutes up to date. The name of the council was changed last spring.

Bill XII, also to be introduced by Clyda Stokes, would remove the representative of student publications from the official delegation to the annual conference of the Southern University Student Government Association (SUSGA). The student publications are represented in another association which holds its conferences in the fall.

Women's Magazine Opens Annual Contest For Coeds

By TERRY GLOECKNER
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Mademoiselle" magazine is holding its annual contest for all undergraduate women.

The competition is in four categories: the college board competition, the art contest, the college fiction contest, and the poetry competition. Coeds can qualify for college board membership by submitting an entry that shows ability in writing, art, fashion, advertising or promotion.

On the basis of a second entry, twenty guest editors are chosen to come to the New York offices, round-trip transportation paid, to spend a salaried month of June helping edit the August college issue.

They will read and write copy, illustrate articles, advise the staff on campus trends, interview well-known artists and writers, represent the magazine on visits to advertising agencies and publishing houses, go to the theatre, and attend parties in their honor.

In addition, the 20 guest editors and the ten honorable mentions receive top consideration for permanent jobs with "Mademoiselle" and other Conde publications.

The College Fiction Contest offers the two winners $500 each and publication of their work. The two art contest winners illustrate the two winning stories published in the magazine and receive $500 each.

In the poetry competition, two prizes of $100 will be awarded. The winning poems will appear in the August issue. Deadline for the contest is March 1, 1964.

In the event that such a notice is signed and is later found to be a forgery, the case will be turned over to the campus security authorities."

Insurance Society

A meeting of the Insurance Society will be tonight at 7 p.m. ... Room 207, Business Bldg. Refreshments will be served. All members and any other persons interested are encouraged to attend. It is not required to be an insurance major to be a member.

Window Contest Rules Given

The 1963 Homecoming Committee has announced that cash prizes will be awarded to university organizations for window decorations. Prizes will be $25., $20., and $10., for first second and third places. Decorations will be placed on windows of selected Tallahassee merchants and will be judged Friday, November 15th. Winners will be announced at the Pow-Wow.

Reservations for windows should be made by contacting Mr. Drew Boggs, Room 323, School of Business. Deadline for reservations is Friday, November 1st.

This year, for the first time, only 15 reservations will be accepted. These will be assigned to groups on a first come, first serve basis.

Fuqua To Be Guest Speaker

The Honorable Don Fuqua, congressman from Florida's Ninth Congressional District will be the guest speaker at the Young Democrats meeting to be held Monday night in the Library Lecture Hall.

"The Eighty-Eighth Congressional Session" will be the topic of Fuqua's speech.

The Honorable Claude Pepper, will make a guest lecture to the Young Democrats on December 6.

URC Compromise

Now that the emotional tension surrounding the picketing of the University Inn has relaxed a bit, it is time to begin looking for an acceptable solution to the situation.

The owners of all the campus-side eating establishments have refused to serve any Negroes. They have said that they fear economic loss to their businesses if they agree even to partial desegregation.

The picketers have based their opposition on the moral argument that segregation is harmful. They have asked that all Negro students--FSU and A & M students alike--be served. They concede that certain elements of both races may be undesirable patrons, but maintain that no discrimination should be made merely on the basis of color.

Each side has indicated its determination to outlast the other. The restauranteurs expect to thrive on the patronage of students who break the picket line to indicate their opposition to integration. The picketers are confident that in the long run, students who are sympathetic to their cause will make their absence in the restaurants felt.

Either outcome will be slow in materializing, and costly to the University and the student body in bad publicity and potential violence. A compromise reached at this point could re-establish FSU's reputation for mature handling of its peaceful integration.

Such a compromise has been offered from the first by the University Religious Council. The Council has affirmed the right of all FSU students, regardless of race, creed or color, to be served in the off-campus restaurants that draw their support almost entirely from the FSU student body. They have not asked total desegregation of the eating places, only that all students' rights be respected.

Admittedly, if the URC compromise is accepted, both sides will be giving in quite a bit, but nothing short of a standoff will be accomplished by stubborn resistance and refusal to try to work out a solution.

FSU is integrated. Though it is now but token integration, the percentage will increase as more Negroes apply and are accepted.

It is impractical and wrong to deny a part of the student body a service whose existence depends on the rest of FSU.

Student Senate Moves To Change Executive

Hooray! The Senate finally passed the recent reorganization of the executive branch that President Johnny Smith made last spring. They had no choice. Someone had already inserted the changes that the bill made into the statutes. Now that is what is called real confidence. Anyway its cheaper. That was the reason Attorney General Gibbs gave.

Things have slowed down a bit as most of the committees have begun to function properly. Legislation is beginning to move at a reasonable pace. One reason was the retreat this weekend. Someone might ask what the Senate has done so far this year.

Congratulations to those few honest students at FSU who have asked where they can find out about the new honor system. It is rumored that the big secret will be coming out soon. Oh well, maybe the Honor Committee will give us a clue.

CRACKER BARREL QUESTIONS--What is this about a "I hate eskimos" campaign?. . .They're recruiting pickets in the Sweet Shop? . . .Why do the girls always sit on the left at Senate meetings?. . .The males are on the right. . .You figure it out. Why don't Senators (male) wear a coat and tie to meetings?. . . It looks like 8 a.m. Government 206 sometimes. . .Has anyone ever heard of Sturgis?. . .He ought to come to the Senate meetings. Why don't they move the fall elections back a week or two and remove the statute that prohibits political parties?

VEILED THREATS TO--Those bureaucrats who are irritated because some poor student doesn't understand the recent reorganization of the executive branch and asks the wrong person. . .either read a Management 315 book or. . .? Those idiots waving Confederate flags in the faces of pickets in front of the University Inn. . .you are desecrating the flag. . .don't drag it down in the gutter with you.

Picketers Harm Own Rights

The most ironic thing perhaps, involved in the picketing of the off-campus eatery is that in attempting to protect the rights of five fellow students the picketers have lost protection of some of their own. Certainly the right of freedom of speech is being battered about in the process of trying to eliminate bigotry and prejudice.

Not only have most of the individual pickets been subjected to the crudities of despairing spectators, but they have also been threatened with physical harm and some of these threats (witness a flying Sprite bottle, one black eye, many hurled eggs, and spattered picket signs and picketers) have been carried out, to say the least, in a mild manner in a curse-filled atmosphere. "Nigger-lover", "Go home Yankee!" etc. are a few of the nicer taunts flowing from the mouths of the anti-picketers who relish contests in who can hurl the most vulgar epithet.

Some of lesser courage find speeding by and honking horns, waving Confederate flags and an off-key chorus of Dixie sufficient to get their message across. Others must stand between the pickets (which is illegal) and block their path, trying to engage in casual conversations among themselves, and bask in their very obvious display of courage.

Though some of these would have others think of them as Southern Gentlemen, no one can be obtuse enough to think any gentleman would disagree in such a manner. Certainly, it is their right to be anti-whatever they please, but expression should be controlled in a dignified and intelligent manner if it is to be effective or constructive.

No picketer has retaliated in kind to the remarks and actions taken by these groups and individuals--this is courage of the highest order. The pickets have respected the rights of the spectators and the picket-breakers. They have said nothing to people crossing their line at any time, and hold nothing but respect for the people who have crossed their line to support the eatery with their purchases. If these spectators were really sincere in their support of the eatery's policy they would go inside and buy to let the management know of their support in his stand. However, the excitement is not inside, profanity is not permitted, eggs can't be thrown, people who disagree are on the outside so they stay outside.

The student body has been asked to welcome foreign students to the American way of life--if this is it please don't.

Science Tough To

To the Editor:

I should like to point out to R DeSousa, whose protest against language requisite appeared in Flambeau of October 15 that next highest basic requirement not the two-trimester Humani course, but the three trime science requirement.

Running a close second to the unit language group, it is techni a 9-unit group but in practic 10-unit one, since a required co is the 4-unit biology.

If it is any comfort to Mr. DeSo I can assure him that this is as painful a hurdle for langu majors to overcome as the lang may be for him.

Theaters Merge Music, Drama

It was noted in the review given "Summer and Smoke" that the soundtrack was a particularly weak element in that production. Only one week later there was a visible lack of acting skill on the Opperman stage (especially among minor characters) as the school of music pooled its efforts to produce "Susannah." In reference to Floyd's music drama we also notice moments when people were singing simply because they were on an opera stage rather than because the singing contributed either to the sense or the drama or to its aesthetic impact.

None will deny that sound has the power to move us more immediately and more noticably than words. Yet, meaningful plays and operas hold much more than simple emotion as demonstrated by the productions of both "Susannah" and "Summer and Smoke."

This shows converging lines of development. The play is becoming more and more like opera with addition of background music and even lyric songs in shows such as "West Side Story," "The Sound of Music," "My Fair Lady" and other representatives of the field of musical theatre. At the same time we see opera moving further and further away from the extreme melodrama, "big-notes," and eternal recitative of the past with composers such as Floyd, Orff, Poulenc and others.

Duchess goes to College

... with FSU graduate student James Elston. Elston is teaching this fall in the Government Dept. while working for his doctorate and his seeing eye dog 'Duchess' goes right along to class with him. A former dog of Elston's went to college with him at Baylor University in Texas and was awarded a diploma at the same time that Elston received his.

Jim Elston And 'Duchess' Work For Another Degree

James Elston has put one dog through "college' and now depends on another to assist him in his teaching assignment at FSU.

Elston, 31, lost his sight in Texas when he was in high school. His first seeing eye dog "Pic" saw him through the remaining days in public school, then went along to college when Elston entered Baylor in 1951.

Since "Pic" had gone with Elston to all the classes he attended for an AB degree, Dr. W.R. White, then president of Baylor University, gave the dog a diploma 'for good service" at the same time Elston received his in 1955.

Jim and "Pic" went on to law school at Vanderbilt University. Jim got his law degree in 1958. The next summer "Pic" died. She was 13 years old.

"Duchess" was acquired from the Seeing Eye, Inc., of Morrison, N.J. She helped Jim in his law practice in Jacksonville, Fla., for four years.

Then, Elston decided to round out his education with a Ph.D. in government. To get back in the swing of things, he came to FSU to do graduate work, but instead found himself teaching a senior course in government, "Constitutional Law in Government." He is a graduate teaching assistant.

"Duchess" likes campus life. She and her master walk everywhere they go, rain or shine. Since Elston, a bachelor, lives in Smith Hall on the extreme west end of the campus the two must walk more than a mile to class and almost that far to the cafeteria.

The only part of it 'Duchess' doesn't like too well is having to stay absolutely still during the 50 minutes of class. But Elston says the students are extra cooperative and "Duchess" plays her role well.

"We're a team," Elston says. "It is not a mechanical process where you wind up the dog and come to class, go to eat, or take a walk. It's a team effort. She takes care of me and I take care of her."

In class a student calls the roll for Elston and a graduate assistant helps him with paper grading.

Many textbooks and courses are now recorded and a blind student does not need "readers" as much as past years. After teaching two trimesters at FSU, Jim will get to work full-time on his Ph.D. Then, he and "Duchess' will be teaching again.

For "Duchess' it's better than a dog's life.

AF-ROTC To Host Student Body

The Air Force ROTC cadet wing is sponsoring two free Friday night dances in the Suwannee Room this Friday (Oct. 25) and the next (Nov. 1).

The dances will last from 8 p.m. to midnight and will feature the "Checkmates' and the "Chaotics" respectively.

All FSU students and dates may attend. Admission and refreshments are free to students and dates with ID's. Men should wear coat and tie.

Ike's Favorite To Appear

A favorite writer of former President Dwight Eisenhower, longshoreman-philosopher Eric Hoffer, 61, will appear on the first of a series fo six half-hour programs beginning tomorrow at 8 p.m. on WFSU-TV (channel 11).

The man who said "It has always seemed to me essential not to own more than I can put on my back" will discuss the role of misfits in a time of drastic social change.

Blind at seven, Hoffer regained his sight in his teens and being uneducated began to read day and night. Throughout his life he worked as a longshoreman part of the time for support and read the rest.

Cagers End First Week

Shirley Sets Pace

Florida State's young 1963-64 basketball team wrapped up week number on of practice Friday and coach Bud Kennedy, who has been at his job since FSU's second year of intercollegiate competition, called it "the finest first week of practice I've had at Florida State in 16 years.

"They came on the floor Tuesday (opening day of practice) prepared to do a job and they've been working hard all week," Kennedy said Friday afternoon. He and assistant coach Hugh Durham drilled their team in basic fundamentals with emphasis on defense.

"We have five basic defensive drills," Kennedy said, "and like to use them every day of the year."

Since becoming head coach in 1947, Kennedy has won 196 games at Florida State. His three teams since 1961 have won 14, 15 and 15 games.

Kennedy said he will continue to work his players at their basics until early November. "Later,' he said, "we'll put the moves and various skills they are learning now into group situations.'

A team captain will be elected by squad members on Nov. 1, he added.

Kennedy hopes that 6-6 center Jerry Shirley, scoring runner-up to Charlie Long last season, will take up the slack left by Long's departure. Shirley who weighed in at 228 pounds in a pre-practice physical checkup, scored 11.2 points a game and led the 62-63 team with 199 rebounds. Consider, too, that Long scored 16.5 a game with a 51.1 percentage on 159 field goals in 311 attempts. Shirley hit 118 of only 235 shots for a fine 50.2 percentage.

Four starters are back; guard Pete Rogers and forward Cal Huge, are with Shirley the best bets to retain their old jobs. Forward Bob Ek and guards Wally Dale and Pete Gonzalez, the latter two splitting time opposite Rogers, must battle a bright crop of sophomores from last year's fine freshmen team.

Bill Peacock, a 6-4 guard who led the frosh team in scoring, and Gary Schull, 6-6 Pompano Beach ace, could make first team berths. Ken Leakey, 6-1 guard, and 6-7 forwards Bill Phillips and Jim Wallace can't be counted out. Kennedy has said that his 1963-64 team could be one of FSU's best if the sophomores can perform capably in varsity-style situations.

Lake Kelly, a former Georgia Tech cager (1952-56) and formerly assistant coach at Morehead (Ky.) State College, has assumed the freshman coaching duties. He will also help with the varsity while he is here working toward a doctorate in Education.

Kelley, 30, will draw a 13-man squad that includes 6-9 1/2 Dick Danford and 6-9 Ken Doyle and a fine local prospect, 6 -5 Bill Glenn.

Glenn, a sharpshooter who will play a forward post, prepped at Leon High in Tallahassee.

Danford, from Clearwater High, and Doyle, out of Tampa's Plant High, give the Baby Seminoles a fine 1-2 punch on the post.

One Foot Saves Sailors

The FSU Sailing Association entering on a weeks formal notice and two week accreditation by the South Eastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association walked off with two of four first place finishes and a second place overall standing in the SEIAC initial meet held at St. Andrews Yacht Club in Panama City Saturday and Sunday.

The Tulane University crew edged the Sailing Seminoles out for first place wih Florida, finishing third. Other entrants in the order of final standings were Vanderbilt. Florida Presbyterian, Spring Hill College and Georgia Tech.

Taking seven fish class sloops with them the team beat the UF club and won the third race by one foot on the five mile course. The Gators had taken the lead when the wind died down, but when the breeze returned the Seminole Sailing Association ship eked out a come-from-behind win over the hapless Gators.

The Association, composed of the same group which provides free instruction at the Reservation on Saturday and Sunday is expecting to make the Baldwin-Wood Regatta in New Orleans their next meet. This meet with 10 schools from all over the South will be followed by the Keel Boat Championships in St. Petersburg in the latter part of November.

Serving as skippers of the 21 foot gaff headed keel boats were George Doughty, Ken Lacey, Stan Stearns, and Ken Lippencott. Team captain is Tom Evans.

The crew members are Barbara McDonald, Sandy Watson, Jane Pope, Glen Schaley, Jim Rushing and Doughty, the assistant security officer on campus who served as a crewman in three of the races and skipper in one.

Things don't look too good for the Seminoles at present. The pivot point of the season was according to Coach Peterson, supposed to be the SMU game. mith, Foss Give Comments n Publication Petition

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

oth Student Body President Johnny Smith and Chairan of the Board of Publications Bob Foss made statents yesterday concerning the Flambeau petition.

ith said, "I feel there is a need modification and adjustment of existing Flambeau policies, the proper solution lies in changing protests through the Board of dent Publications, not in radical uests for curtailment of student ts."

e student body president continued, "I would never be in favor of ing off all of the Flambeau's th." He added that while he disees with some of the present mbeau policies, he did not know at factors went into the formulat- of these policies and could not ize the paper on this basis. is should come under the jurision of the B.O.P."

ncerning the present situation, Foss released the following statement.

No doubt most of the students e heard about or signed the petiow in circulation to cut off ey to the Flambeau. I am amazthat this petition has been start- Amazed because for once somey has finally taken some conte action beyond the usual apatic gripe or occasional letter to editor.

As chairman of the B.O.P., I ld discourage such acts of malent, but in actuality, I am diatically oriented."

oss went on to comment that in past the Flambeau has been noing more, to a greater or lesser ree, than a medium for the edi- and staff to disseminate ideals ews items to unaware and apatic students.

oss added that the Flambeau is posed to be a medium through ich "... each and every student express himself."

oss said that this in itself may be problem. "We have very few that and willing to express themves."

oss instructed students who may agree with present policies of the mbeau to write a letter of protest m with copies to Dr. Reid Montery, Publications Advisor, and Murray, Flambeau Editor.

oss closed his statement with a ssage to the student body, "If you that action should be taken but feel compelled to go through s procedure, I suggest you re- in your labyrinth of apathy and en to your echoing screams die ."

Flambeau Alleged Bias Prompts Student Petition

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Alleged unobjective news coverage in the "Florida Flambeau" of the restaurant issue has prompted FSU student Bob Holley to circulate a petition on campus.

The objective of the petition is to have student funds taken away from the "Flambeau" and have the paper put on a subscription basis.

According to Holley, his purpose is not to put the "Flambeau" out of circulation, but rather to get more objective coverage of news on campus.

Holley said he felt that the "Flambeau" was not only unrepresentative of the student body on the editorial page but that the paper was also biased in its news coverage.

The petition reads: "We, the undersigned students of Florida State University, aware that the Florida State Flambeau has for some time been editorially unrepresentative of this campus and has in general, displayed a tactlessness and rudeness unbecoming of a student supported publication, demand that no further appropriation of student funds be made for this newspaper! In view of the few benefits the "Flambeau" does offer to the campus, we suggest that its publishing be financed by voluntary subscripton or on a purchase basis."

Concerning the sucess of the petition, Holley commented that he had had limited success with over 900 names so far. He added that he felt the students here were scared of this type thing and for that reason he was having trouble.

Lana Murray, editor of the "Flambeau," commented on the petition. "The 'Flambeau' makes every effort to assure that its news coverage is as unbiased and objective as humanly possible. I believe that if Bob Holley had serious objections to 'Flambeau' policy he should have attempted to discuss them with me. He has made no attempt to do so."

Miss Murray added that at her request a meeting has been arranged between herself and Holley.

When asked about his failure to contact the "Flambeau" editor, Holley said, "I don't feel that my views would have carried any weight. With the petition to back me up I will have some ground to stand on."

THE UPCOMING GUBERNATORIAL RACE

... occupies Fred Karl, one of the two announced Democratic candidates for Governor, as he talks with Joyce Killian, Secretary of Intercollegiate & Public Affairs; and Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections. Karl was visiting the campus to meet Student Government leaders and other students.

15 To Compete For Mrs. FSU Title

Fifteen attractive young matrons will vie for the title of Mrs. FSU at the annual contest sponsored by the Dames Club of FSU. The contest will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium. Admission will be 25 cents.

Contestants will be judged on the basis of homemaking ability, poise, personality, speech and beauty. Each contestant will take a sample of her cooking ability and will model three outfits for sports, street and evening wear. She will also give a short speech and demonstration of some hobby, such as sewing or arts and crafts.

Judges for the contest will be Dr. Adolph Karl, associate professor, Art Dept.; Miss Robbie Blakemore instructor, Home and Family Life; Dr. Joseph Pace, Jr., local dentist; and Mrs John Madigan chairman State Symphony Association.

Dr. Ruth Ferguson, assistant professor, Food and Nutrition Dept., will judge the cooking samples of the entrants.

All contestants are the wives of full-time students and some are students themselves.

Along with a trophy and a dozen long-stemmed red roses, Mrs. FSU and her husband will receive an all-expense paid weekend at the Escape Motel in Panama City. Many other prizes have been donated by local merchants.

After the runners-up and winner and announced, a reception will be given by the Dames Club in the Clubroom of Longmire. The public will be given a chance to meet the contestants and refreshments will be served. There will be a drawing for doorprizes during the contest.

Contestants include Mrs. Kenneth Ady, Mrs. Raymond Grant, Mrs. Bertram Burriss, Mrs. Robert Powell Mrs. Kenneth Reynolds, Mrs. Robert O'Donnell, Mrs. Bernard Trammell, Mrs. William Fort, Mrs. John Aronhalt, Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Frank Rhoads, Mrs. Larry Brinkley, Mrs. Sam Cates, Mrs. Charles Robinson, and Mrs. Von Smith.

Voting Tomorrow For Homecoming

Both the Homecoming Queen final election and the Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities election will be held on Friday, announced Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections.

Because of a tie vote in the Homecoming Court Election, there will be six candidates on the Queen election slates. The top five selected will compose the Homecoming Court, and the girl receiving the highest number of votes will be Queen. The Queen's identity will be kept secret until the Pow Wow when she will be presented to the student body.

Queen candidates are Carolyn Duyck, Ley Hulsey, Jackie Mathis, Clyda Stokes, Patty Warren, and Carolyn Wronske.

Kaney said that there was a low turnout for the Court election, and expressed the hope for a better voter turnout at the Friday election.

Convertibles

Students who own late model convertibles which may be used during the Homecoming Parade should call Pete Nealing 507 Kellum Ext. 2520, or Dr. John Vanderoef of the Government Dept., Ext. 2093 immediately.

Senate Approves Bureau Members

Several persons were approved by the Senate through the Elections and Appointments committee to serve on the elections committee, Honor Bureau, Budget Bureau and Funds Bureau.

Members approved to the elections bureau were Joy Ann Jackson, Deputy Commissioner, Sam Ashdown, Assistant Commissioner, Sigrid Debus, Ted DeLa Vergne, Larry Jordan, Bob Perkins, Marty Rankin, Cheryl Rich and Kathy Young.

Honor Bureau members include Alan Roles, Attorney General, Paul Anderson, Andy Olytan, Kay Isaly, Jennie Collier, Floyd Whiddon and Henry Land.

Jim Turner was approved as Undersecretary of the Budget.

Theatre Dance Underway Apprentices Are Picked

By PAT FREEMAN
Feature Editor

"I Could Have Danced All Night" may very well turn out to be the theme song of the 12 Theatre Dance apprentices chosen recently if they count the extra hours spent on practice of modern dance technique each week.

Technique in modern dance is as important to the 23 members of Theatre Dance as erasers are to freshmen during finals. Ability and skill in technique are the results of countless hours of careful and intense concentration during practice.

Most members of Theatre Dance spend an average of eight hours a week in the dance studio at Montgomery Gym, and apprentices have optional special technique classes every Saturday for approximately two hours.

This Fall's apprentices run the gamut in previous dance experience and training from "those tripping the light fantastic" (with up to eight years of professional experience) to "those tripped by the light fantastic," who have no previous experience.

Fran Platts, tapped along with 11 other students trying out for Theatre Dance, had several years of training in classical ballet before coming to FSU.

She started ballet in the seventh grade, attending the Houston Foundation for Ballet for four years. The ballet academy is supported by ballet enthusiasts, and students selected and trained by the academy perform with the Houston Opera and Symphony throughout Texas.

When Miss Platts transferred to FSU, she had to take a course offered in Physical Education to meet general education requirements. Knowing absolutely nothing about modern dance, she nonetheless signed up for Dance 160 (Modern Dance), under Holly Chapman.

Learning about Theatre Dance from Miss Chapman, director of Theatre Dance, Miss Platts decided to attend tryouts although she "hadn't a chance in a million to make it."

Surprised when she was chosen to become a member? "I couldn't believe it, especially since the techniques and disciplines necessary for modern dance are so far removed from those of ballet," Miss Platts explained.

At the other extreme, Donna Garner offered no experience in modern dance, Zulu Rituals or any form of dance other than four hurried and harried weeks of instruction last summer in a ballet course.

"I exercised while the others danced," said Miss Garner. A beginner in an intermediate ballet class, she wasted no time, but found herself limited to quarter turns when others were doing double or triple turns during practice.

"I have taken the 160 dance course here, and I'm in the intermediate course (161) now. We work more with the parts of dance... like taking telephone numbers and making a dance up using them," added Miss Garner.

Asked about Theatre Dance tryouts, she explained the experience from a "tryoutee's" viewpoint. "There were about 40 of us, and we did warm ups to loosen our muscles, then started the real workout. We progres easily, using steps everyone knew, but I was still doing quarter turns when the others were doing triples," Miss Garner said.

Now an apprentice, she meets along with dance members and apprentices from 3 to 5:30 every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon. Theatre Dance President Marilyn Finch and other experienced members aid the newcomers in pattern practice to check weak points and develop technique.

As for the Theatre Dance director, "if you're doing good, she'll tell you... and that helps a great deal," said Miss Garner. "She'll stay after practice as long as students will work, and she always talks to you, not down to you."

Miss Chapman uses Theatre Dance members to assist her Physical Education students in beginning modern dance. Theatre Dance members lead the classes in technique procedure, giving the beginning student a model to follow when practicing.

Other students chosen as apprentices in Theatre Dance include Marylin Barfield, Sharyn Heiland, Roslyn Korb, Marie Lazzara, Kathy Maehlmann, Karen Mayer, Mary Alice Moore, Jodi Preston, Barbara Quinn, and Trish Stalcup.

Alliance Francaise Coming

Students may wake up any morning with the expectation of finding the Eifel Tower securely planted on Landis Green, or of seeing the left bank of Paris behind Campbell Stadium.

If such events occur, they may be attributed to the same determined group now busily engaged in founding FSU's and Tallahassee's first "Alliance Francaise."

The first meeting of students, faculty or staff members and the general public interested in the formation of an Alliance Franciase will be Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

A business meeting for the purpose of adopting statutes and electing key committees will be followed by "La Belle Equipe" a French film starring Jean Gabin, Charles Vanel, and Viviane Romance.

The Alliance is not an underground group pledged to ready the world for Napoleon XXX, but an international organization with chief headquarters in Paris and a membership of approximately 25,000 in the United States alone.

The National President of the Alliance Francaise is a member of the French Academy, and there are over 1,000 Alliances around the world today.

Headquarters for American Alainces Francaises are in New York, with the FSU-Tallahassee Alliance being under the auspices of the cultural services of the French Embassy and of the Consul General in New Orleans.

The Alliance has for its purpose the development of an interest in French language culture, and civilization in collaboration with American communities in an effort to create further links of understanding.

The French Government sends books to every Alliance each month in addition to sending lecturers, art exhibits, movies and concerts around the world for the special benefit of Alliance groups.

According to Dr. Georges-Paul Collet of the Modern Languages Dept. the local Alliance will have lectures movies, concerts art exhibitions, essay contests, roundtable discussions, interest groups and reading groups if plans for the Alliance work out.

The Alliance group at Tallahassee will arrange to share expenses and well-known lecturers with other Alliances in the South.

Collet explained that a core group has already agreed to work for the local Alliance until the committees can be formed. Dr. Jean Charron of the Modern Languages Dept., Countess Helene De Sercey and Victor Cawthon will assist Collet in the first meeting of the Alliance.

Meetings will probably be held once a month, with individual or group activities planned more often.

NEW LOOK ON LANDIS GREEN

. . . might be the Eiffel Tower, according to French lovers. The Tower safely in Paris at the moment but for how long?

Coffee Hour To Feature Slides, Talk On Orient

Mrs. Olive Cross, who spent a year teaching at the University of Saigon in South Viet Nam, will be guest speaker at the English Dept. Coffee Hour at 4 p.m. tomorrow in West-minster House.

Mrs. Cross has been a member of the FSU English faculty since 1939. The trip to Saigon, sponsored by the State Dept., was her third foreign assignment.

Often, the rumble of grenades some 10 miles away could be heard in Mrs. Cross' apartment in Saigon, as Com-munist guerrillas raided the country-side. She said living and teaching in a war-torn land had its difficulties, but she had the highest praise for the courage of the Vietnamese.

At the Coffee Hour, Mrs. Cross said she will not mention politics nor discuss South Viet Nam from the viewpoint of the military.

"I saw it from a different slant-- the colorful life of the Orient," said Mrs. Cross. "I want to show my color slides and give a glimpse of the beauty of the country and show how delightful and charming the peo-ple really are."

Twice Mrs. Cross was within a few feet of grenade explosions. Once in Binh Duong Province at a ceremony dedicating a secondary school lab-oratory an explosion shattered the front glass window and blew up the doorway just as her party started to enter the building. The grenade was thrown by a student, 17, who said he was threatened by Communi-sts and told to throw it. Only his bad aim kept anyone from getting killed.

On Oct. 26, 1962, Mrs. Cross was in an Independence Day crowd with her camera in Saigon when a grenade thrown into the mass of people close to her killed seven children.

FSU graduate student Tran Minh Tam of Miho, 70 miles south of Saigon, will accompany Mrs. Cross to the Coffee Hour function.

Sig Ep Calendars Go On Sale Today

Delayed a week because of a printing error, the 1963-64 Sigma Phi Epsilon calendar will go on sale today.

The calendars will be sold at booths set up at the University Bookstore, the Sweet Shop, Bill's Bookstore and the Seminole Bookstore. In addition, copies will be distributed among the sororities for sale.

Featured in the calendar which runs from this October until next September, are a schedule of special campus events, a different calendar girl for each month, and spaces for daily notes. The price for each copy is $.50.

The 12 calendar girls were chosen last spring at the contest held in Westcott auditorium from 19 entries sponsored by individual sororities.

Calendar girls for this year, with their sororities, are Becky Norcross Miss October, Alpha Chi Omega; Theresia Helmlinger, Miss November Phi Mu; Gerry Bryant, Miss December, Alpha Delta Pi. Nancy Wolfendon, Miss January, Sigma Kappa; Anna Faulds Miss February, Chi Omega; Mary Carolyn King, Miss March, Alpha Gamma Delta; Joan Riordan, Miss April, Alpha Xi Delta; Barbara Monte Miss May, Delta Zeta; Fran All Miss June, Kappa Delta.

Viretta Rozhon, Miss July, Delta Delta Delta; Gail Read, Miss August, Zeta Tau Alpha; and Susan Slaughter, Miss September Pi Beta Phi.

The printing error which caused a week's delay in putting the calendars on sale was a result of the printer's forgetting that 1964 was a leap year. On the calendar the month of February had only 28 days, which affected all of the following months. The mistake has been corrected.

This is the fourth year calendars have been sold on this campus. The idea for a Sig Ep calendar was originated here, and has since been taken up by many other Sig Ep chapters at other universities such as the University of Wisconsin and the University of Connecticut.

'Student Prince' To Play Tonight

"The Student Prince," this week's campus movie, will be shown Saturday and Sunday at 7:30 p.m., instead of Friday and Saturday.

The movie, starring Ann Blyth, Edmund Purdom, Louis Calhern, Edmund Guinn, S.Z. Sakall and Betta St. John, is the familiar tale of the young heir to a European throne in the 19th century who falls in love with a barmaid while at Heidelberg University.

It is based on the operetta by Sigmund Romberg, with the voice of Mario Lanza singing as the prince such popular songs as the "Serenade," "Drink, Drink, Drink," and "Deep in my Heart."

Tickets purchased Friday at Westcott ticket office are good for either night.

Miss Williams reminds students that having the correct change assists the movie's prompt start.

Chiefs To Give 'World Of TV'

The smart-stepping FSU Marching Chiefs take the wraps off another half-time show Saturday when FSU meets Virginia Tech here at 2 p.m.

Theme of the music and formations of the band under the direction of Robert T. Braunagel of the FSU School of Music is "The Wonderful World of Television."

The band will open by turning up the volumn and adjusting the antenna to the music of "Huckleberry Hound," popular comic TV character that is a daily offering for the kiddies.

CBS reports; a tribute to Willie the Weatherman; a salute to the wester, with music from "Rawhide" and "Gunsmoke" and several other formations are on the show.

Drum major is Roger McLendon; head majorette, Janice Eddins; and featured baton artist "Cookie" Winchester.

Sharpshooters 'Gun Down' Competitors

The Army ROTC Team of FSU defeated the Southern Mississippi, Marion Institute and Spring Hill College rifle teams at Mobile Ala., last Saturday.

The FSU Sharpshooters fired 1274/1500 on the international target. The nearest competitor was Southern Mississippi with 1198/1500.

Leading the FSU team to victory were Charles E. Holmes with 280/300 and James H. Moore firing 261/300.

The FSU rifle team, which won the All Florida Match last season, now has five wins and no losses.

Seminole Divers

The Seminole Divers meet tonight at 8:45 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Dual purpose of the meeting will be organizational and to plan a trip down to the jetties.

All persons interested in diving are invited to attend.

Federal Job Opportunities

The Atlanta U.S. Civil Service Regional Office is accepting applications for loan specialist, paying $6,675 to $9,475.

Applicants will be graded on experience, education and training. Applicants will be accepted until Nov. 14, 1963.

Persons interested in these positions may get application forms or information as to where such forms are available at any post office (except the Atlanta, Ga., Post Office) or the Atlanta U.S. Civil Service Regional Office, 240 Peachtree Street, N.W., Atlanta, Ga., 30303.

Applications may also be obtained from Audie Smith, Examiner-In-Charge, located in Room 39, basement, Tallahassee Post Office.

McGee Gets First-Hand Look At Foreign Aid

Three years in the mountains of Ecuador have convinced Charles S. McGee, a new assistant professor of art at Florida State University, that there are some good answers for those who claim our foreign aid program is a waste of money.

McGee is a new teacher of design and curator of the University Art Gallery. For the three years prior to last May he was supervisor of a project for the Agency For International Development whose objective was showing artisans of Ecuador how to use their handcraft skill in fashioning products for the world's luxury market and thereby boosting an income which was hardly above the subsistence level.

The 35-year old native Missourian said that "if other Alliance For Progress programs are getting the same response he has seen among the abjectly poor Indians of Ecuador, then there's plenty of room for such programs among the underdeveloped nations. Aside from economic assistance, a program such as this 'face to face' project establishes a long range rapport, confidence and trust in Americans as being more than rich 'gringos,' " he said.

In 1960 McGee was teaching industrial design at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Detroit and had no thought of foreign service. A student, Hugo Galarza of Ecuador, convinced him, however, that he ought to leave this position and take a job with AID in Ecuador. In July, 1960, McGee went to Quito, the Ecuadorian capital high in the Andes.

A garden spot 9300 feet above sea level, Quito was such a nice place to live that the Incas made it the last capital of their empire, before this was overturned by the Spaniards about 1530. During the long colonial period, many churches and monasteries in Quito became filled with some of the finest art in South America. McGee found that Indian woodcarvers, leather workers, weavers and other craftsmen through the remote villages of the Sierras were pursuing centuries-old crafts with genuine skill.

Although experts at working with their hands for many hundreds of years, the Ecuadorian artisans were still manufacturing the same simple products of everyday life. Despite a wealth of natural resources and the presence of skilled craftsmen, Ecuador was and is a depressingly poor country. His job was to show Ecuadorians how their craftsmanship could be channeled into the production of useful and saleable objects in the world markets.

Craftsmen who had made Panama hats from the grass called toquilla were set to making more saleable lampshades, handbags and slippers, some trimmed with leather. Leather workers were encouraged to make products for which McGee left a design, such as the briefcase of handy dimensions which he carried about these days to art classes in Westcott Building.

One of the troubles in Ecuador, said McGee, is that there are too many artisans--250,000 in a population of about 4 000,000. Living by the work of their hands, artisans in such numbers could not possibly make a decent living and some introduction of machine production was dictated McGee said.

Originally from St. Louis, McGee received his A. B. degree in design from the University of Missouri in 1950, and then entered the Army during the Korean War. After the war he received his master of fine arts degree from Cranbrook Academy in 1954. Two years on the University of Missouri faculty followed and then he received a Fulbright scholarship for study in Finland. Afterward he became head of the department of industrial design at Cranbrook.

Senior Book Collect Contest To Be Held

Florida State University seniors having personal libraries have a chance to win cash prizes in a student library book award contest.

Director of the FSU Library N. Orwin Rush said today that a first prize of $100 cash and $50 in books; second prize of $50 cash and $25 in books; and a third prize of $12.50 and $12.50 in books will be awarded to contestants exhbiting the best book collections. Closing date is Feb. 1 1964.

The collection winning first prize will be submitted in a national contest for the Amy Loveman $1000 award, sponsored by Book of the Month Club, the Saturday Review, and the Women's National Books Association.

Nominees at FSU must present an annotated list of a minimum of 35 books now in their personal libraries. In addition, the nominee will be asked to indicate his avocations, why he started the library his ideal of a complete home library and the next ten books he plans to add to his collection.

Both the local and national contests are judged on the basis of intelligent interest, scope, and imagination shown in creating the collection, and knowledge of the books revealed in the annotations. Collections of any type are eligible.

The collection may be centered on a single subject or may stress a single author or group of authors. It can also be a general collection.

Sponsors of the FSU contest are Friends of the Strozier Library University Bookstore, Bill's Bookstore, and DuBey's Seminole Bookstore.

Judges are N. Orwin Rush, director of libraries, chairman; R.R. Oglesby, dean of students; Paul J. Piccard director of Honors Program; Edward A. Desloge, assistant professor of physics, and John M. Shaw, curator of ' Childhood in Poetry" collection at FSU.

Application forms are available at the FSU library and sponsoring bookstores.

FSU Soccer Team To Host Air Force

A soccer team which has gained new talent and larger numbers during its third year at FSU will take the field at 10 a.m. Saturday, against a team from Maxwell Air Force Base.

The game, first of the year for the FSU team, will be played on the football practice field. Admission will be free.

Adul Boonseat, a criminology student from Thailand, where he was a member of the National Thailand Soccer Team which was in competition with teams over Southeast Asia, is one new addition to the team. He will play center half.

FSU's team is composed one-fourth of graduate students and one-third of the team members are foreign students. Between 20 and 30 players, more than ever before, have been practicing six hours a week.

Co-captains are Douglass Padgett and Dean Sellers. Martin D. Matthews, a graduate student in geology, is coaching the group.

Players expect to have new jerseys for the first affray. The team expects to schedule a match about one week late with a team composed of FSU physical education majors and later hopes to play teams from the University of Florida and other schools.

The informal team gets some help in the way of shinguards and other equipment but members largely pay their own way, including the transportation when the team plays away from Tallahassee.

Racquettes Dominate Weekend Matches

Facing the strongest team on their schedule, members of Racquettes continued their bid for an undefeated season as they swept past a state championship Seabreeze High School team and tennis-minded Rollins College. Rain on Friday in Daytona Beach held the players to seven matches with the Racquettes leading 5-2 and with comfortable leads on the courts.

The beefed up Rollins team suffered their fourth loss in as many meetings against the FSU players. Despite the addition of three ranked players, the Tars lost 10-5.

In the singles Lynda West defeated Rocky Sullivan 6-1, 6-3; Betty Brown downed Cheryl Ann Swift 6-1, 6-2; while Kathy Spence lost to Susan Gerber 6-2, 1-6, 0-6. Chris Padgett lost to Pam Lewis 2-6, 4-6; Lynn Chalmers won over Nancy Wilson 6-2, 3-6, 6-2; and Stella Cunningham took her match with Janice Fransworth 6-1, 6-3.

Irene Washington fell to Judy Brister 6-3, 3-6, 3-6; Mary Helen Johnson split sets with Lin Morss 6-3, 3-6, but won by default; Barbara Steel stopped Sunny Thomas 6-3, 6-2; Susan Smith defeated Ann Davidson 6-2, 6-2; and Betty Allen lost to Stevie Brewer 3-6, 6-3, 4-6.

FSU just missed making a clean sweep of the doubles when Chalmers and Padgett in the number three spot lost to Brister and Lewis 2-6, 4-6.

Two football games were played Tuesday night. Both were "Sudden death" playoffs. Theta Chi beat Sigma Phi Epsilon 12-6. Phi Tau and Phi Delt fought it out until the Phi Tau's squeezed past with a score of 6-0.

Tribe Loses Gene Roberts

Senior fullback Gene Roberts dropped yesterday from FSU for announced personal reasons. Roberts, a two-letterman on the Seminole football squad, led the team in ground gaining last year. He started the first two games for the Tribe, but sat out the Wake Forest and USM tilts.

Commented Coach Bill Peterson on Roberts' sudden dicision to break away from FSU, "Roberts was an offensive specialist, and we planned to use him a great deal this season. However, the new substitution rules prevented us from playing him as much as we wanted to."

Queen To Be Crowned Tomorrow As Gymkana Spectatular Ends

Gymkana's annual show of expert gymnastics, dancing, music and showmanship goes into its last two days. Miss Gymkana will be crowned tomorrow night.

Miss Gymkana will be chosen from a court of 21 girls. In the court are: Kay Alvarez, Barbara - Jean Lovejoy, Peggy Harris, Sherian Chester, Donna Mueller, Nina Herring, Jan Eyman, Jo Etta Lawrence, Connie Gowen, Linda Wilson, Sharon Cody, Susanne Bradfor, Charlotte McClaran, Tessie Fajardo, Frances Smith, Dolores Lord, Sammye Cold, Sheila Clard, Jo Anne Elliott, Fran All, and Sharon Johnson.

Tickets for the event are $1.25 for the public, 50 cents for children under 12, and 75 cents for students with ID cards.

The theme of Gymkana this year is "Passport,' and it relates experiences on a vicarious trip around the world with each act and each person representing some foreign country.

A 15-member dance troupe will get the show under way with a swinging dance set entitled "USA." The number will introduce the Gymkana Court whose members will take to the stage costumed to represent various countries.

"Ireland" will be the next act, featuring 11 gymnasts on the vaulting table. This act will also feature some Tumbling Tot staircase acrobatics by Vicki Freeman and Twinkie Freeman.

A drill team routine by 13 women gymnasts will take the show to "Switzerland.'

Bill Henderson, a professional dancer formerly of Miami, and Kay Cameron will do a jazz dance for "France."

"Italy," a trampoline act, will feature both Tots and Gymnasts, while "Africa" is the title of a high bar performance.

Gail Sontgerath, a sophomore who led all American entrants in the women's gymnastics contests in the 1960 Rome Olympic Games, will team up with Bette Haas and Susan Long to do a balancing beam act called "India."

An act on the flying rings by Warren Dicker, Donald Goddard Bob Gramling, and Mitch Weinstock will be called "Turbulent Weather.'

"Japan" will feature a free exercise demonstration, an act on on the parallel bars.

A hula dance number will take Gymkana to "Hawaii " and an aerial rola number entitled "Latin America" will take the show south of the border.

"Fiesta in Rio" is the title of a comedy trampolette number which will be next followed by "Old Mexico," an act on the uneven bars.

A table and chairs act, which puts balanced acrobats up near the ceiling is appropriately entitled "Andes Mountains."

Holley Urges Student Ideas

Bob Holley, originator of a petition to cut off student appropriations to "The Florida Flambeau," has urged that students express their opinions to the newspaper.

After a meeting Wednesday night with Lana Murray, "Flambeau" editor, Holley said, "I at this time would like to ask that students express their opinions on campus life and campus activities through 'The Florida Flambeau' by writing letters to the editor. This effort should of course give anyone that so desires a chance to speak out and should go far in proving how representative the 'Flambeau' is."

Dr. Howard Baker Will Speak As Sigma Xi Guest Lecturer

Dr. Howard D. Baker, an FSU psychologist who recently returned from a year at Cambridge University's physiology laboratory and study of methods developed by Dr. W.A.H. Rushton for measuring visual pigments in the living human, will be Sigma Xi speaker at Florida State University tonight.

First in this year's series sponsored by the scientific research honorary, the lecture will be at 8 p.m. in 101 Mathematics-Meteorology Building. The public is invited, Dr. A. Gib DeBusk, vice president of Sigma Xi, said.

Dr. Baker has been a member of the FSU psychology faculty since 1950. His work at Cambridge University was as a fellow of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness.

During the year in England, Dr. Baker cooperated with Dr. Rushton in several research projects and it is this research which will provide the subject of the lecture.

It is entitled "Vision and Visual Pigments in Man.'

Visual pigments are the chemical substances in the nerves of the eye which are altered by light and which start the nerve responses constituting vision. Their measurement while the subject is living has been considered important to the understanding of the visual process.

"For some time it had been suspected, but on the basis of the research it is now known,' Dr. Baker said "that the chemical nature of the pigments has an important effect upon the manner in which a person perceives light. Color blindness, for example, is based on deficiencies in the pigments which now can be specified."

Dr. Baker has conducted research at FSU under grants from the Office of Naval Research and National Science Foundation. His studies have been principally in the field of early light adaptation.

Reid Receives Scholarship

Gordon Kelley Reid has been selected by his brothers in Phi Kappa Psi as the Summerfield Scholar of the Year.

This award is available in each of the 63 chapters of the fraternity for presentation to a member who in the opinion of his fellows has achieved an excellent record of good scholarship in combination with demonstrated leadership qualities and worthwhile contributions to his university and to the fraternity.

Along with the certificate goes a cash award of $100.

Women's Judiciary

The Women's Judiciary this week gave three girls seven days partial restrictions for failing to sign out for a weekend trip.

A partial restriction of five days was given to one girl for leaving without approval and erroneous sign out.

Two girls received partial restrictions of five days for entering late from a trip, but due to extenuating circumstances the sentences were suspended.

We Want Letters

As a campus newspaper under fire from a faction of the student body which is at once our consumer and our financial support, the "Flambeau" has been trying to glean from a rather amophous body of chrages some sort of concrete, definable objections that could be called constructive criticism.

Frankly, this has proved extremely difficult. The petition now circulating, while it sets forth clearly the end being sought (i.e., withdrawal of all student activities funds from the newspaper), is vague enough that any individual or group with apersonal axe to grind can use this petition to "get back at" the paper.

To quote the document itself, "In view of the few benefits the 'Flambeau" does offer to the campus. . ." The absurdity of this assumption surely is evident: what organ of communication and protest remains to provide information of campus activities and events or a forum for ideological exchange and growth, if the very instrument accomplishing these needs is abolished?

Bob Holley, originator of the "ban the 'Flambeau' " movement, may be sincere in wanting to represent the discontent of students with their newspaper, but his proposed actions are drastically out of proportion to the complaints he presented in discussing the matter with us. It is too easy for anyone who didn't like the fact that his name was spelled wrong the only time it was in the paper to sign his name to a petition; the comments of students who care enough about the quality of their newspaper to write letters or express their objections personally carry more weight, because they help us find our weaknesses and improve them.

On this campus, as on many others, it has been a tradition to make the newspaper the brunt of jokes, but the student body should at the same time maintain a clear perspective of how the paper compares with other campus newspapers. Without attempting to whitewash our reputation, we will present some food for thought:

"The Florida Flambeau" has repeatedly been rated First Class by the Associated Collegiate Press, and holds three commendations for All American, which we proudly note on our masthead. In the past year, while making the shift to Florida's First Collegiate Daily, and thereby advancing to a more elite category, we maintained our First Class rating.

Without a school of journalism, with a dwindling number of students with pre-training in journalism, with an entirely new and unfamiliar printing process, with just the help of those students who are so concerned that FSU should continue to have a newspaper to be proud of that they are willing to give up hours of free time to devote them to writing, typing, and editing this paper--these are the conditions under which the "Flambeau" has maintained its First Class rating. We expect little compensation for our efforts, but we have a right to expect the same high respect from our student body that we have had from other campuses.

We are asking that all students who care about this newspaper, pro or con, sit down and write us their comments. If we receive the deluge of mail we desire, we realize we will not be able to publish all the letters, but we will acknowledge them all and publish a representative sample.

Pious Display Narcissistic Comple

The amount of indignant self-righteousness still expressed over last spring's Supreme Court decision regarding bible reading in the public schools indicates to me that a fairly large number of people hereabouts are afflicted with a vanity that Narcissus himself would reject. This vanity, coupled with various "pure" motives, is moving certain self-ordained spokesmen of the American people to release irresponsible remarks and draw foregone conclusions.

For example, our own governor was quoted at a press conference then as stating that the Supreme Court ruling banishing mandatory bible reading in the public schools had the effect of "denying the very existence of god." Really? If I took a course in contemporary literature I might be told that "Franny and Zooey" would not be read to me in the classroom. Then J. D. Salinger wouldn't exist.

But have no fear, dear hearts! Immediately following the Supreme Court decision, our state legislature legislated god back into existence in Florida. Now our public school pupils may enroll in a "voluntary, objective. . .' course in bible study.

Justice Black who cast the lone dissenting vote in the decision, did so for the following reason: If we must own up to our constitu responsibility and not officiall cognize religious practices classroom then it follows prayer before sessions of Con must stop, the words "under must be deleted from the Pled Allegiance, and "In God we must be wiped from the face national currency. Perhaps things do follow.

The reaction of the major chu to the Court's decision has bee of acceptance, on the whole, official publications of variou nominations were quick to p that the place to get one's re is in the church and in the h not in the public schools. people who are officially res ble for religious training re decision in this light why others do so?

Now to this matter of vanity. How did this "God-and-co identification get as far as in the first place? Certainly we at least partially agree with senting Justice and say that having the bible read in the schools we have officially nized a religion, then we have wise violated the stipulations First Amendment by adher such other practices as he out.

I suggest that the ster American has a fondness fo double standard that few peoples can rival. He says " Government by the People ment by Constitution." If we continues, any American wo salt is at least "God fearing not a member of a specifi tian denomination. And God is posed to have made our greatest the world has ever k So we must recognize nominally - as an inter America. And if this y Constitution, to hell with the stitution! But leave the First ment the way it is. It looks cratic in print.

Even to this point, the n vanity expressed offi country can be interpreted and innocent. However comes to referring to ourse "God's chosen people' or "a tian nation" (and this is done national pride has surely stepped its bounds and violat principles it professes.

As Americans it might be we us to remember that even only human beings--a of minority groups and cultures all over the world; and that our admittedly imperfe of government, even the 'M atheist" deserves a fair

Local Forces Obstruct Centralized Police State

Our city and community police forces are one of the most important remaining obstacles to the gradual and insidious establishment of a centralized police state. Therefore, we should avidly support them in their struggle against all the dirty tactics employed against them.

The support and encouragement of all good citizens everywhere is becoming especially important now since the racial riots are becoming a regular part of the American scene.

Everyday in the press and over the air waves, the police are condemned for doing their duty. It seems like no matter how cautiously they handle themselves or how carefully they restrain their use of authority, they are discredited. This is, of course, because the more the local police can be harrassed, the more willing the gullible American people will be towards accepting the entry of Federal troops to put down rioting.

One of the more subtle schemes for harrassing the police and discouraging them from wanting to do their duty has been the setting up of Police Review Boards. Their chief function, in practice, is to make every individual police officer afraid of every action he migh criminals in emergency situations. They threaten him with loss of pay or maybe loss of job if he is too unkind to the poor wayward unfortunates who were about to shoot him in the back or stamp in his face, as he tries to interfere with their lawlessness.

In these days of violence and strife, our police department and local law enforcers need our assistance; support and obey them.

Demonstrators Destroy Respect

Recent statements by the University Inn picketers have brought this columnist to the point where he can no longer support either them or the pending consequences of their actions.

At a special meeting of the Religiou Council, representatives of the picketers stated their regret over but resignation to, the fact that the owner of the Inn may be forced out of business. Their avowed aim, is in fact to do this very thing, if it will force the other restaurants into total integration.

The picketers all-consuming passion for the welfare of the Negro has made them insensitive to the moral vacuum which now surrounds their actions as a result of their destructive aim. They seem to have forgotten that the destruction of a man's means of self-respect, dignity and the means of sustenance is, perhaps, just as morally wrong as the indignities they are trying to correct. It is a cripped sort of concern that can be extended to a segment of the Negro community and yet not to one man. . .a white restaurant owner, who also has to eat, to live and even to learn.

Reasonable demands must be made on these owners, such as was attempted by the Religious Council but the destruction of this man's business passes far beyond the bounds set by a true and loving concern for the "rights of man."

It is regretable that the picketers cannot allow someone else to have prejudices, different from their own, when they themselves cannot be so lily white.

There is a group on campus that deserves the commendation of student body and faculty alike. It is the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. The Greek Carnival they sponsored raised $500 for the Candle of Hope School for Retarded Children. This campus is fortunate indeed, to have a group of young women so concerned for the unlovely and unfortunate of this world.

Thanks should also go to all the other Greek organizations who worked hard for the success of the carnival.

Most students at FSU think there are only two extremes on the campus; the far left then the far right, as frequently represented in the "Flambeau" by Thomas Riggins, Keith Garner and others. Well the student government retreat has exposed a third extreme. Attorney General Arnie Gibbs revealed himself as a "middle of the roader' . . .an "extreme middle of the roader."

In addition to his legal duties, General Gibbs serves on the Board of Student Enterprises, the Board of University Union, etc. etc. General Gibbs is one of the "in" group, in fact he is so far "in" that he is way out. General Gibbs has a tremendous talent for always being in the "extreme meddle of the road' no matter where he goes or what he does. Yes, the extreme moderates are a wonderful boon to the world.

* * * * *

President Johnny Smith deserves commendation for his article on the racial situation. Although openly attacked for it, he has spoken and acted in a situation that demanded his leadership and concern. Apparently unable to act in the name of student government per se, he stepped in and spoke as president of the student body in an admirable manner. . .Congratulations.

Wood's Comments Are Unjust

...e Editor:
...Tuesday's "Flambeau" (Oct. 15) ...rts Editor John Wood levied many ...gatory remarks against the Flo... State football team. On Wed...day of the same week he attack... ...e cheerleaders. These remarks ..., are aimed at Mr. Wood.

...gestion: Tomorrow, why not at... President Blackwell for leaving seat during the game? Or the Marching Chiefs for not marching in completely straight lines?

In defense of the cheerleading squad, of which I am not a member, I would point out:

1. There were certainly more than five cheers, John. Perhaps you were out mixing a drink during the others.
2. The students were not quiet when a wrong cheer was yelled, they booed.
3. Attempts were made to get non-Greeks to yell, the attempts failed miserably. I personally feel that yells from the Greeks are better than no noise at all.
4. If the state legislators would respond to an invitation to yell, why not?
5. Heat during an afternoon game limits the activity of young ladies clad in heavy sweaters (i.e., the cheerleaders).

Incidentally, John, did you cheer? Or were you too busy gathering dirt to sling during the next week in your column. Are you willing to miss the action of the game to stand in front of the stands and try to instill an atmosphere of school spirit? Your columns indicate an answer of NO to these questions.

It is easy to criticize, but very difficult to offer suggestions for improvement. Your actions shows that you are obviously more concerned with attacking rather than correcting certain situations. Improvement of your ability in the latter skill would be a desirable change.

If this--seeing that an important segment of our population is not denied the rights which we take for granted--is not our business, then I'd like to know what is our business.

As James Russell Lowell wrote, in his poem "Stanzas on Freedom".

Is true freedom but to break
Fetters for our own dear sake,
And, with leathern hearts, forget
That we owe mankind a debt?
No! true freedom is to share
All the chains our brothers wear,
And, with heart and hand, to be
Earnest to make other free!

Mr. Yates has buried his head in the sand while convincing himself that his bold stand will bring forth cries of 'Bircher, bigot, racist, etc." I think "ostrich" would be much more appropriate.

Student Social Reformers Are Scum Of The Earth

To the Editor:

The "Flambeau" and its motley crew of "journalists" have harped about student apathy to the restaurant situation, confident that Lana Murray, Tommy Riggins, and sundry other "flies" represent the sentiments of the whole student body in their editorials.

Lana, poor child, shouting "disgusting" above the roar of "apathetic" students, is so wrapped up in her sense of moral superiority that she refuses to see the reality reflected in the mob scenes on West Jefferson and Gray Streets.

I hold the notoriety-hungry inadequates and Soda Shop social reformers picketing the University Inn to be the scum of the earth. I patronized the University Inn but frequently before their sidewalk became cluttered with walking garbage, now I shall make it a point to patronize it every day. I've never spat at the feet of a girl before--but gross for the grosser.

"Yes," says Lana, "we'll print your letter. Let us hear your opinions." Well, here it is. Slanderous? --funniest thing.

'This Is The Last Straw'

To the Editor:

Picking up yesterday's issue of the "Flambeau" proved to be the last straw for this reader and many others, I'm sure. The statements made by Johnny Smith and Bob Foss, typify the vagueness of a politician speaking on an issue he's not too familiar with. Pray tell gentlemen exactly what is it you don't like about the "Flambeau?"

Are you mad, Mr. Smith, because you were a bit out of focus in your last picture? And Mr. Foss, aren't you being a bit ridiculous in your claims that the "Flambeau' should be a medium through which ". . . each and every student can express himself." Who in the hell do you think writes those letters they print everyday, or haven't you ever read the "Flambeau?"

Gentlemen I too agree that the "Flambeau" should be a voice of the students, but what more would you propose? Perhaps you would like one of the local red-neck chiefs to make sure that the segregationists are represented when they write in.

Mr. Foss, why didn't you tell the readers that it is your very own board which hired Lana Murray for the position, and not the NAACP as some readers might think. I am so sick and tired of hearing every other radical segregationist yelling "ban the 'Flambeau' " and further nonsense. Do you radicals think this world revolves about your own wishes, or don't you ever read anything but the "Tallahassee Democrat?"

The job of an editor is to write an editorial based on how they feel about a situation gentlemen, not what you or I, or Bob Holley thinks. Obviously most of these radicals running around with petitions have failed to notice that fact although it is printed every time an editorial is printed.

I'm certain that Mr. Holley and his friends would consider the White Citizens Council of the KKK unbiased enough to run the "Flambeau." Well Mr. Holley, if I couldn't double or triple your nine hundred signatures I'd give up, like you should, and be content to writing to the editor any complaints you have, just as I am. How would you feel if some people started a ban Bob Holly petition, or can't you take some of your own medicine?

In conclusion, I want it to be known that the "Flambeau" is put together each day by a lot of hardworking students most of whom don't even get a thank you for their troubles. Any of you two-bit critics who think you can do a better job are welcome to come down and apply; last month they were begging for help. Further, I would like to publicly thank Lana Murray and the entire "Flambeau" staff for doing a fine job, and would like to urge those of you who also think so, to write a note to Dr. Reid Montgomery, Publications Advisor, 12 Longmire and just drop it in the campus mailboxes or by Longmire.

Surely You Jest

To the Editor:

In reference to Mr. Dermott's column of Oct. 16. SURELY YOU JEST—or are you so deviated that the sight of female "lower limbs" is repugnant. We feel the male population on campus enjoys watching those "distracting objects" dangle in mid-air.

Three New Faculty Members In Modern Language Dept.

Three new faculty members were added to the staff of the Department of Modern Languages in September, 1963. The following is a brief resume of each.

Dr. Jose Angeles, born in Valencia, Spain, received a Bachelor of Science and Letters Degree (the equivalent of a high school diploma) at the University of Valencia in 1948, continuing to study there until 1953.

Then he entered the University of Madrid and remained there for two years as a Research Scholar and in 1959 received his doctor's degree "summa cum laude" at the University of Valencia.

After teaching in Valencia for a year, he came to the United States and taught Spanish at Alverno College, Milwaukee, Wisconsin where he was appointed Assistant professor in March of 1961.

He was written several publications and is married and has three children. Apart from this excellent record, he also excels in chess.

Dr. Georges-Paul Collet was born and educated in Geneva, Switzerland, receiving his doctorate at the University of Geneva in 1957. He began his teaching career as an Instructor at Lemania College in Lausanne, Switzerland, where he taught French history, and philosophy.

After his stay at Lemania College he was a lecturer in French at Durhan University in England. From 1951 until 1959 he worked for the United Nations Organization in Geneva as Professor of French, and also taught at the School for Interpreters of the University of Geneva during that period.

He has served as Visiting Professor of French at several universities in the US, including the University of Texas, the University of Alabama, and Tulane University. At Tulane he served as Professor of French before coming to FSU. Likewise he has authored numerous publications and is married and has two children. He still manages to find time for his favorite sport, tennis.

Mr. Wolfgang Sonntag was born in Hamburg, Germany, receiving most of his education there also. In 1954 he began to study German and English philosophy at the University of Hamburg and continued his studies at the University of Munich.

After several semesters of study at the university, he was selected for the position of Assistant Teacher of German at the Hampton Grammar School in Middlesex, England.

HARRY SCHMIDT, JOHN BODA, HARRY DUNSCOMBE ... are shown practicing for the faculty recital to be presented Friday, Oct. 25, in Opperman Music Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Fuqua To Speak To Young Democrats

The Young Democrats of FSU will host Don Fuqua, congressman from Florida's Ninth Congressional District, at the YD meeting at 8:00 p.m. Monday in the Library Lecture Hall.

The topic of Fuqua's speech will be "The Eighty-Eighth Congressional Session."

Fuqua is the first representative of the Ninth District, which is a new congressional district that includes Leon County.

Congressman Fuqua was formerly the vice president of Young Democrats for this congressional district. Therefore, he has displayed utmost interest in the FSU chapter.

Congressman Claude Pepper will be the guest lecturer for the Young Democrats December 6.

The officers of the FSU chapter of Young Democrats are Charles Intriage, president; Walt Martindale first vice president; Gail Woods, second vice president; Joan Hoagland, secretary; and Andy Harshbarger, treasurer.

Business Honorary Selects Members

Florida State University's chapter of Pi Omega Pi, national business education honorary, announced today the selection of three new members.

Mrs. Janiece Rydell, instructor of Business Education and faculty sponsor, said they are Annette Baker, Jeanetee Kent, and Barbara Ann Morrow.

Members are selected on the basis of high scholarship in business and education and for attention to the promotion of business education on a local, state and national level.

The chapter has just been awarded a certificate of achievement from the national past president of Pi Omega Pi for the chapter's place of honor among the top 10 chapters in the National Chapter Award Competition for 1962-63. There are 117 chapters of the business education honorary in the United States.

Hillel Brunch

The Hillel Foundation brunch originally scheduled for Sunday has been cancelled and will be rescheduled at a later date.

Gobblers Are Gifted

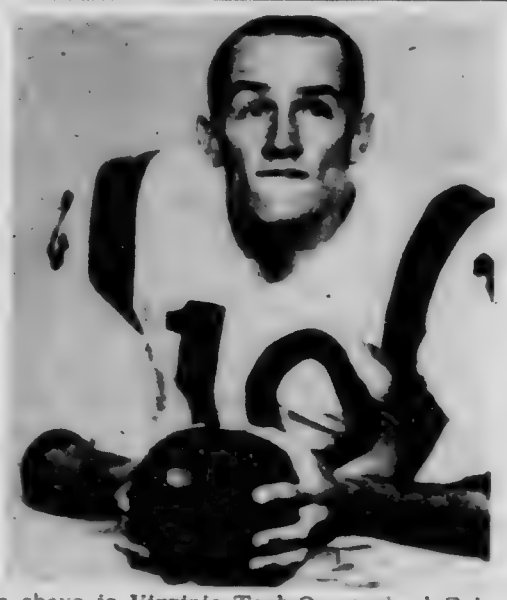
By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer

Virginia Tech meets FSU tomorrow afternoon in a big game for both teams. Each team boasts an excellent quarterback, FSU's Steve Tensi and VPI's Don Schweickert.

This game is especially important for both teams from the standpoint of mementum. Coming into a big game on a winning streak can be very helpful. VPI has won their last four games and should defeat Richmond next week. If they beat FSU tomorrow they would go into the hard part of their schedule (NC State, VMI and West Virginia) with a six game winning streak.

FSU is in almost the same position, having no four game win streak. If FSU beats VPI they should also beat Furman next week. That would mean going to the Georgia Tech game with a 4-2-1 record, considerably more respectable than 3-2-1 or 1-3-1 record. After Tech comes NC State, Auburn and rival Florida.

VPI's main assest is quarterback Schweikert. Anyone who saw last year's game won by the Seminoles will attest to that. Schweikert is a rollout passer like TCH's Randy Howard and Southern Miss's Vic Purvis, only more effective. Last year he ran for a six yard average. He completed fifty per cent of his passes threw three touch down passes and scored five himself. He also punts and runs kickoff returns. So far this year he is ranked number nine in that nation in yards rushed. He is also in the top twenty in total offense.



VPI's other backfield threat, Sonny Utz is a 5-11, for 40 yards. Tailback Phil Cary, the other ball-carryer ran for 283 yards last year and scored two touchdowns.

The Gobblers have a very efficient recieving corps, too. Lead ends Tom Marvin and Jake Adams this group is very imposing indeed.

Marvin lead the team in recieving with 11 catches for 137 yards. Jake Adams is the giant of team at 6-5 can catch almost anything that comes his way. Sophomores Billy Edwards and John Shipley have regulated lettermen Bob Churchill and Winston Holbrook to the bench. Wingbacks Tom Hawkins and Tom Walker are both experienced hands.

The line is lead by All-America candidates tackle Gene Breen (6-1,202) and guard Newt Green (6-1,200). The rest of the first string line is composed of Mike Hvodovic (5-10, 204), Lynn Jones (6-1, 217) and Burten Mack Rogers (6-2, 210), all juniors. Reserves are seniors Dave Green, Ron Frank, Jim Hickam and Kyle Albright.

VPI has experience all the way and will be a very tough team to beat.

Shown above is Virginia Tech Quarterback Bob Schweickert who hit on 19 of 41 passes and ran for a 6.0 average last season, although sidelined the first half of the year with an injury.

Above is Newt Green a 6-1 1/2 and 195 po senior who won All Southern Conference g honors last season.

Gridders Still Groaning

Florida State enters the VPI game in its worst physical shape of the season. Starting tackle Jerry Bruner is definitely sidelined, and tackle Tom West, center Bill Daly, and quarterback Charlie Calhoun have been nursing bruises all week. Their status is doubtful.

Bob Mangan, 231-pound sophomore from Atlanta, moved into the starting position vacated by Bruner. Mangan has been a regular on the Warriors, or offensive unit.

If Calhoun is unable to function Ed Pritchett will probably handle the punting against the Gobblers. Pritchett is a 177-pound sophomore from Decatur, Ga. Jim Massey, FSU's leading tackler in last week's scoreless tie with Southern Mississippi, will fill in for Calhoun on defense.

Although Florida State leads the Virginia Tech series 4-3 it has never been easy for the Seminoles, who have never scored more than 24 points against the Gobblers. Only in 1958, when FSU won 20-0, has the margin of victory by either team been over 13 points.

Freshman Cage Prospectus II

By MIKE BRADY

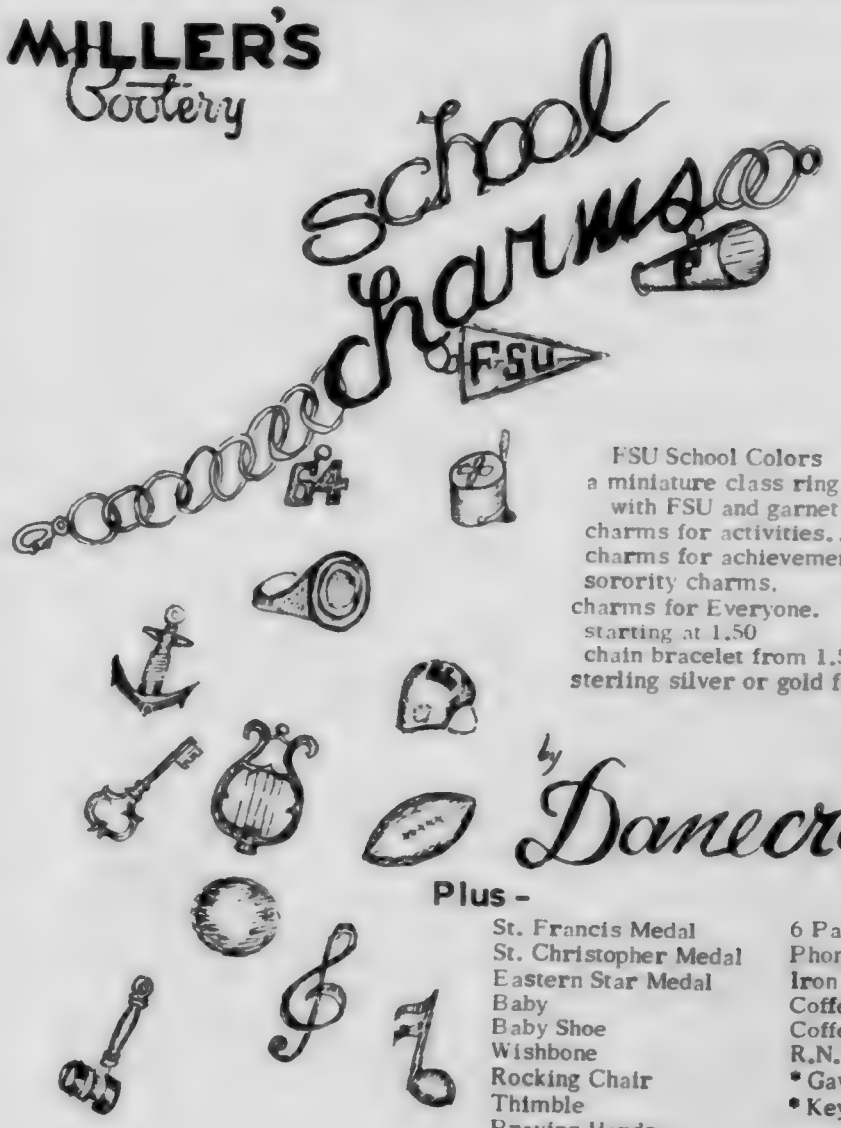
A native of Morristown, New Jersey, Dick Danford played his high school ball for the Clearwater Tornadoes in Clearwater, Florida. In leading the Tornadoes to the championship of the Pinellas County Conference, he averaged over 22 points per game which, coupled with an average of 20 rebounds per game, led Clearwater to many upset wins, including defeats of such notable teams as Dixie Hollins, which finished third in the state, and Tampa's Plant High School, which won the state. The pint-sized (6-10, 210) netter was elected to the position of Most Out-Standing Athlete of the Year at Clearwater.

In addition to his skills in basketball, which he indulged for three years, two of which were spent on the varsity, Danford also three the discus for the Tornado track squad.

As if being the Most Outstanding Athlete of the Year wasn't enough, Danford was a senior superlative and a "Citizen of the Month," certainly one of the high points of his 15 1/2 years of residence in Clearwater.

Speaking on college life, Danford thing the college is "great. Scholastically, it's very rough. Overall, though, I've seen prettier, more convenient campuses." Dick plans to go to all four years here and major in Marine Biology, "If I can make it through."

Dick, a highly sought-after athlete, chose from 124 applications to attend Florida State.



Commenting on the frosh cagers, "The freshman team is exceptionally good. The coaches are great. The team is in pretty good shape."

He recently went through a hernia operation which has, upon being twice reinjured, kept him out of all but two days of practice. "I'm in better shape than I thought I was, but that still isn't saying much."

As a Tornado, Dick's highest outburst was against St. Petersburg's Bishop Barry during his junior year when he scored 20 out of 22 foul shots and thirteen field goals. When the dust settled, Dick had 36 points.

The tall, lanky center likes the life he leads here at FSU. "It's quite a change from high school," he remarks.

Groundbreaking Held Sunday For Gamma Phi Beta House

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Gamma Phi Beta sorority Chapter House of FSU were held yesterday on the site at 633 West Jefferson St.

FSU President Gordon Blackwell and Miss Elizabeth Lynn, associate dean of women and president of Gamma Phi Beta House Corp., were the principal speakers and performed the traditional turning of earth.

Mrs. John Sample of Tallahassee, immediate past president of the Gamma Phi Beta Alumnae Assn., welcomed friends of the sorority. Miss Katherine Van Norren of Jacksonville, president of the collegiate chapter, served as mistress of ceremonies.

The new chapter house is to be erected on the site of a house, recently razed, which was one of the oldest residential structures in the city.

Beta Mu Chapter of Gamma Phi Beta was chartered at FSU in April, 1950, and has been housed in the old Parker Home at 415 W. College since that time.

Charter members who were present for the groundbreaking were Mrs. James Hardy, teacher at Leon High School , Mrs. Don Strickland of Tallahassee, Mrs. Jack Dudley of Havana, and Mrs. Morris Briley and Mrs. Robert Vernon of Tallahassee.

Following groundbreaking ceremonies, there was an informal open house at the present chapter house. Guests were greeted by Misses Lynn and Van Norren.

Selected as runners up for the title were: Jo Etta Lawrence, Barbara J. Lovejoy, Joanne Elliott, Linda Wilson, Charlotte McClaren, and Jan Eyman.

Kappa Alpha Theta received the trophy for a sorority contributing the most work to the show, while Theta Chi, whose members served as ushers received the trophy for the fraternity doing the most work.

Angel Flight sold programs and helped usher at the event.

The theme of this year's Gymkana show was "Passport," a trip by airline around the world. During each "stop" members of the FSU gymkana team entertained students with various physical skills, while a clown, (Mike Weinstock), provided laughs.

The Tumbling Tots of Tallahassee were also on hand to provide entertainment.

Florida's Educational Future Rests On Amendment Passage

By MAX COURTNEY

The future of Florida's educational system may rest upon passage of the Nov. 5 college building amendment. The amendment, if passed, will provide $75 million for improving existing facilities and adding two new state institutions.

The proposed State Constitution amendment authorizes the issuance of bonds for construction of urgently needed facilities at the state's universities and junior colleges. The long-term, low interest bonds would be paid off with revenue derived from the utilities gross receipts tax currently levied throughout the state. The program would not raise the current level of state taxes.

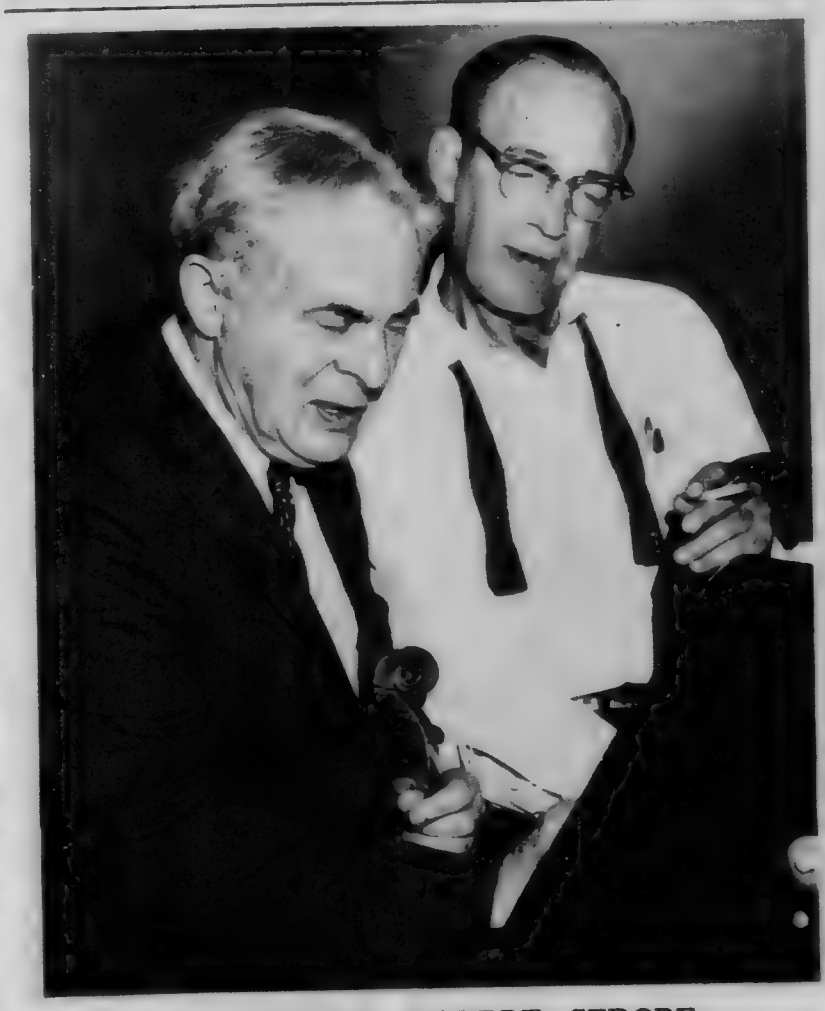
The $75 million amendment would give $45 million to the major universities and $30 million the the junior colleges. The program would give FSU $9.6 million for capital expansion this biennium.

Proposed building and improvement projects for FSU are men's dormitory equipment, chemistry unit 1, library addition, infirmary, social science building, science unit 1 (biology), relocating the greenhouse computer center expansion, a molecular building loading ramp, physical education facilities, women's dormitory, land acquisition, oceanography institute coastal facilities, utilities expansion and other campus improvements.

In support of this amendment, a unified student effort at FSU has taken shape, with several organizations sharing the lead. An extensive campaign of letter writing to parents of students, alumni, and other individuals over the state.

The student speakers bureau provides speakers for civic organizations, service groups and other clubs in Leon county.

Miles Williams, Jackie Mathis, and Johnny Smith have already spoken to some local clubs. IFC president Henry Lamnd has organized a "bumper strip blitz" to get wide distribution of strips for cars on and off campus. All this is done to increase support of the college building amendment.



The Pan-Hellenic council and its president, Clyda Stokes, are helping gain support through sorority alumnae. Various sororities are telephoning local women and inviting them to a coffee hour in Longmire Lounge at 10 a.m., Friday. The Sophomore Council will distribute literature informing the public about the amendment at the University's North Florida Fair Exhibit.

The APO's will distribute similar literature at the FSU-Furman game on Nov. 2. The Freshman Flunkies are also aiding the support drive with people and time.

Commenting on the bond issue and the amendment, Student Body President Johnny Smith felt that, "The inadequacy of present facilities is more alarming when we consider the greater...numbers of students enrolling in our universities.... We must act now to insure a solid progressive foundation for Florida's educational system.

"Higher education will suffer greatly if they (the buildings) are not constructed."

This is the biggest thing to happen to FSU," according to Attorney General Arnie Gibbs. "The money is badly needed for expansion and enlargement of present facilities. The students should take action because they are concerned directly."

CONDUCTOR ROBERT SEDORE

. . . of the Florida State Symphony shed his coat and tie after a few minutes of brisk rehearsal to talk with FSU's visiting distinguished artist, violinist Richard Burgin, who will be soloist in a concert Oct. 30.

Kiddie Matinee

The audience at the past weekend's campus movie behaved with all the maturity that might be expected of an audience at a Saturday kiddie matinee.

"The Student Prince," in case it wasn't obvious, is a lighthearted musical comedy. In a musical comedy people SING, and Mario Lanza had one of the greatest tenor voices in the history of music.

It's too bad that part of the audience was so pseudo-sophisticated that it couldn't enjoy an excellent musical. Those who hissed and booed should have stayed home so that students who appreciate superb acting and singing could have enjoyed one of the year's best movies. As it was, the atmosphere was spoiled for everyone.

There are two movies downtown, and two drive-ins. We suggest to students who feel they must make a disturbance in the campus movie that they pick another movie they can enjoy more.

There may be a kiddie matinee playing at one of the other theatres.

Red China Threatens

Serge Lentz, French magazine correspondent who posed as a textile buyer to enter Red China, presented some very chilling findings at last week's University Lecture.

Asked if China has the potential to create an atomic bomb, Lentz said, "Oh yes, they have the potential--including two Nobel prize-winning nuclear physicists. And when they get the bomb, they're going to use it, probably on India."

He pointed out that a need for large food-producing areas and land tracts to accomodate her exploding population is behind Red Chinese aggressiveness--and also explains the welcome acceptance Australians are given on the mainland. Lentz declared that after gaining control of all of Southeast Asia, their next goal will be the thinly populated Australian land mass.

It's about time the U.S. diplomats who have stubbornly tried to close their eyes on the growing menace of a nation of 700 million people woke up to the facts. Refusing to recognize the Red Dragon and instead bestowing benign favor upon the regime of Chiang Kai-Shek is more than mere naivete; it is becoming ridiculously suicidal.

The U.S. must stop hiding its diplomatic head in the ground; some sort of communication lines should be set up with Red Chinese, and attempts made to break a hole through the Bamboo Curtain as well as the Iron Curtain.

As Lentz noted, the Chinese Communists are sure that in the event of nuclear war, no one will win -- but they plan to be tops among the losers. With a population of 700 million, they have little to lose if half their population is destroyed.

Wishing Red China did not exist does not change these facts. The U.S. is going to have to accept Red China as a world power and begin to treat her accordingly.

Senate Criticized For Inactio

At last! Things are finally running smoothly in the Senate--they should be--so far almost all of the bills before the Senate have been authored by the executive branch. In short, the Senate is sitting on its collective "can."

Eleven bills have introduced thus far. And, except for the new honor code bill which was drawn up by the Student-Faculty Honor Committee, the senators have produced no legislation of their own. Is it because there is no need? Hardly, the problems of year-round student g ment, the Class Officer Pr racial integration, the sad minor sports at FSU, etc., jus "take care of themselves."

Could the cause of this legi lethargy be that very few se know how to draw up a bill sent to the Senate? Might it wise for the Senate to ask itse is wrong, and what can be correct the situation? Two Teams Will Suffice

During the fading days of the Roman Empire, the great hordes of the Leisured Class would journey weekly to the nearest coliseum to watch their favorite athletes compete. These practical Romans soon learned that they could take their weekly doses of healthful sunshine and robust internal liniments while being entertained by their skillful bloodletting teams. But one day all this changed.

One fine Saturday the Rules Committee decided that TWO mere teams of bloodletter playing against each other was not sufficiently interesting to the sophisticated fans. After all, one team would always have to be victorious over the other--how boring! What the game needed was THREE teams. Then there would be some variety.

That afternoon the Purple Turkeys and the White Savages were joined on the field by a third team, gaily bedecked with black and white striped uniforms, cute little caps, and elegant handerchiefs of the finest red silk in all the land.

The trumpets sounded, and a Purple Turkey kicked the stuffed pig toward the opposite end of the field. The game has begun. The White Savages had the pig. On the first "play," an overanxious Savage dropped it, and a monstrous Turkey pounced upon it with unrestrained glee.

And so the game went for the first few drinks... The Savages took turns dropping the pig, and the Turkeys took turns pouncing on it.

Soon the game began to go in favor of the Savages. They heaved the stuffed pig mightily around the field, grinding forward in an unstoppable phalanx and leaving a pile of broken, bloody Turkeys in their wake. This crushing bordeom would have to be stopped. And soon it was.

Several drinks later, the third team took command of the action. As one of the Turkeys stumbled over a small red flag in the corner of the field, one of the striped players threw both hands high above his head. Now the crowd screamed with a new energy. It was no longer bored.

Pleased with his success in arousing the emotions of the spectators, the captain of the third team set out to outdo himself. He and his teammates raced about pitching their elegant red handkerchiefs into the air, waving their arms, and pointing at the Savages. The crowd screamed passionately: "I can't believe it!"

As the sun began to set the Head Savage experienced a burst of genius. He sat down and quickly rewrote his budget. He quickly fired half his team, invented a movie camera, and ordered six of them: One for each goal line, one for each sideline, one to record the action of the Purple and White teams, and one to watch the Stripies.

But it was too late. Oh well, at least the Savages were equipped for next weekend's game.

U.S. Foreign Policy Proves Failure In Latin America

Recent events in the Dominican Republic tend to provide evidence for the total failure of American foreign policy in the Latin American area.

Too often the U.S. has backed rightest military juntas which has seized power under the pretext of "anti-communism."

Juan Bosh's downfall is as much due to the poor record of U.S. policy as to the extremist nature of the Right. The real power in the Dominican Republic has always rested with the military, the same military which Trujillo built with American aid. Superimposing Juan Bosh and his liberal crust on the fermenting military right-wing fanatics was a doomed policy from the start. Presently the U.S. is "shocked' by the overthrow of the only democratically elected Dominican leader in over 30 years. Nevertheless no radical reform of American policy in regard to Latin America is in the making.

To oppressed people in their area the only alternative to Washington backed despots (implicit or explicit) is the Havana government. This type of alternative is what threatens the whole of Latin American with Communist revolutions.

A third alternative is possible, one which would protect these peoples from exploitation via Washington or via Havana. A neutral Democratic Socialist government could allow Latin nations a "middle" way of existence, and a way in which to fully develop the resources, natural and social, of this area.

More News, Less Dirt

To the Editor:

It is my belief that your newspaper should devote more time to news and less time to extremist bickering. It is obvious to me that the 'Flambeau' would rather uncover dirt than print constructive news.

I am writing in reference to Smith Hall. We had our first "Smoker Series" lecture on the night of Oct. 16. Notice was given to the "Flambeau" a full week in advance yet nothing appeared.

At the beginning of the trimester, I was called three times by members of the "Flambeau' staff in reference to some "supposed" impeachment. Naturally our campus newspaper would jump at a chance to print some malicious news about impeachment. Why not print "all the news that's fit to print"!

FSU Divers Club Plans Field Trip

The FSU Seminole Divers Club held the second meeting of the year last Thursday night.

Guest speaker was Nick Fallier, a professional archeological diver of many years experience. His talk concerned his adventures and misadventures in recovering Spanish and Indian relics from the rivers of this area.

The club has planned a series of field trips throughout the year to encompass many of the various aspects of skindiving.

The diving club will welcome as new members any expericenced persons interested in participating in future club skindiving activities.

State Symphony To Present Mozart At First Concert

The State Symphony of Florida, conducted by Robert Sedore, will present its first concert Wednesday at FSU with Richard Burgin as guest violinist playing Mozart's "Haffner Serenade."

Burgin, violin virtuoso and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, was recently appointed visiting distinguished professor in FSU's School of Music. His wife, Ruth Posselt, also an accomplished violinist, will appear as soloist for the last number on the program.

All holders of season tickets, which included the opera production "Susannah," will be admitted at no further charge to both this concert and another with Henryk Szeryng as violin solosit on March 24. Both will be at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Today individual tickets will go on sale at the Music School box office. They will be priced at $2 for the public and $1 for FSU students.

The program will open with "Haffner Serenade," composed at Salzburg in 1776 for the marriage of Elizabeth Haffner. Mozart later wrote the Haffner Symphony for the Haffner family.

The orchestra next will play "Romeo and Juliet Suite no. 2" by Prokofieff, followed by "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in G minor" by Max Bruch. Ruth Posselt will be soloist for the last number.

Burgin, a native of Warsaw, studied with Joseph Joachim, a celebrated violinist and director of the Hochschule in Berlin and with Leopold Auer in what was then St. Petersburg, Russia.

Mrs. Burgin has become well known as recitalist and soloist with major orchestras. In Europe she has made appearances with L'Orchestre Symphonique de Paris (Monteux), the Residentie Symphony of the Hague (Paray and Szell), the Concertgebouw, Prague Philharmonic, Barcelona Symphony and the orchestras of Stockholm and Helsinki. She has appeared as soloist 64 times with the Boston Symphony, and made seven extensive European tours including Soviet Russia where she was the first American-born violinist to perform with the orchestras of Leningrad and Moscow.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

MR. SERGE LENTZ
. . . discusses his recent trip to China during one of his lectures presented at FSU during the past week.

French Editor Reviews Recent Trip To China

By DICK SMITH
Assistant News Editor

Serge Lentz, editor of Paris Match magazine, a foreign correspondent, and one of the few Western journalists who has visited Red China in the past decade, led off this year's University Lecture Series at FSU with his impressions of what's behind the Bamboo Curtain.

Posing as a textile buyer, Lentz received a literal Red Carpet treatment on his exciting three week tour of Shanghai, Canton, Peking and the rural regions of the People's Republic.

Lentz left London by train, went to Peking via East Germany, Poland, Russia and Mongolia. Upon arrival in the Chinese capital, the journalist was assigned a guide named, "Chin," by the China Travel Service to escort him around the communist state.

"Chin" soon received the nickname "giggling Joe" because he would erupt into "riotous laughter over what seemed to a Westerner no provocation.' It was explained to Lentz later by a Frenchman residing in Peking that the laughter was a custom by the Chinese to convey the idea that what was bothering them (the Chinese) should not intrude on their work.

Lentz got his first impressions of the reactions of the Chinese to Westerners when he walked around Peking.

Several times crowds of people would press around him and "giggling Joe" so that they could not walk. The crowd would not look at Lentz, they would just "stare at the space as if we didn't exist" and would suddenly melt away.

At other times the Young Pioneers, the "Communist equivalent of Boy Scouts,' would dance in circles around the visitor chanting nationalistic songs and heckling him in Chinese.

Lentz said that part of his reception by the Chinese was due to an "intense propoganda drive which was initiated against the Russians about 18 months ago.'

"It is not comfortable to be a Russian in China at this time," Lentz related.

The anti-Russian drive has been taken up by Chinese newspapers which only mention the Russian Communists in a derogatory manner. One example of this was an article assessing the gains made by various socialist parties in different countries. The survey found that socialism internationally was not "progressing" at a satisfactory rate. Blame for this trend was laid to the leadership of the USSR.

The propoganda drive is also being spread by the daily "indoctrination" sessions which many Chinese attend.

Lentz related that the greatest motivation of the Chinese at present in international politics is their "hatred and fear of the US.'

"The average Chinese," Lentz said "is absolutely convinced that the US is going to attack tomorrow. And they mean literally tomorrow, not by and by."

The Chinese government utilizes this deep fear to further unify and control the masses, Lentz continued.

Another feature of the Chinese makeup is their "superiority complex" which is also cultivated by the government. The basis of this sentiment is that the Chinese feel they are intrinsically better than any other people on earth.

Though this feeling did not origin-

New Tools For Creative Teache

Today's creative teachers don't teach from the textbook alone. To educate today's children for the fast-moving, scientific world of 1963, they use new teaching aids which flash workbook pages, newspaper stories, magazine pictures, maps and charts on the classroom screen.

Even grade schoolers can now learn advanced mathematics and the principles of atomic structures. They learn how to read faster and better.

High-quality speeded-up education is now possible because teachers are able to take advantage of facts they have long known: Children remember only 20 per cent of what they hear, 50 per cent of what they see and up to 70 per cent of what they see and hear.

With new systems of overhead projectors, or "lightboards," in the classroom, teachers can combine their own voices with visual aids--the most effective teaching combination there is.

This is how the overhead projector is helping bring about a revolution in American classrooms. Teachers and students make transparencies or pictures of the material they want to use in just four seconds, using a small copying machine right in the classroom. The projector can flash the picture on the screen instantly for the entire class to see.

With the lightboard, the day's civics lession or current events course can be as up-to-date as the morning's newspaper. Using wax pencils, teacher or students can add their own lines and colors to the transparency. The entire class can watch the screen while rivers are filled in on maps and while mathematical problems are solved. Using a series of transparencies, the teacher can tell a story. She can copy magazine illustrations showing how food is digested and use her own words to explain it to the class.

The classroom stays fully lighted while the lightboard is used and the teacher always faces the class. It is faster and more effective than the blackboard. And because her back is never turned, teacher needn't worry about spitballs flying or pitails being dipped into inkwells.

Because using the lightboard is so fast, teachers can use the time save to give personal attention to slow learners. Many teachers are now flashing a transparency of corrected homework on the screen and walking around the room to help student who have perticular difficulty. One math teacher says this method saves him the time it would take to correct 180 pieces of homework daily. And since he can take personal time with students, it's more effective.

Here are some examples of the innovations which creative teachers have found:

The leader of the marching band at the University of Delaware uses the overhead projector to teach new band formations on the gridiron just as the coach teaches new plays to the team. Using the lightboard, the band director matches up the music with positions on the field--each member of the band knows he must be at one position on "oom' and at another on "pah.'

A Connecticut fifth-grader one day showed the class transparency overlays of parts of the body, which he had drawn at home using plastic sandwich bags and a wax pencil from the bowling alley. His teacher makes transparencies of "community singing" songs for classes in choral singing. The same teacher flashes quizzes on the screen, instead of having children wait for questions to be written on the blackboard.

A first-grade teacher in New York is having astounding success in teaching reading. Each morning, she presents a new story using the overhead projector which shows words six inches high. Each new story is an exciting experience for the children, free from frustration and tension because the teacher makes everything clear, step by step. Even slow children learn quickly.

This new experiment in New York has promoted a love of reading by the boys and girls in the class. Some of the children last year read more than 60 books outside class. Only three children read fewer than 30 books. Most of them also read the 15 reading textbooks in the school.

Perhaps the most outstanding success with overhead projectors has been in teaching new concepts math to elementary students. The nomial system of math--in which ly ones and zeroes are used computer programming--is made clear to youngsters by teachniques of overlays and manipulating cut outs on the overhead jector.

With overhead projectors the teacher adds excitement to the lesson. Students have more than textbook. They have fresh pictures and information teacher has chosen just for

The busy creative teacher overhead projectors to keep with current events, to meet demands of larger enrollments our increasing store of scientific knowledge. And because the board allows her to use her ingenuity, the best teaching machine remains the teacher.

HOW SMALL CAN YOU GET?

Today let us address ourselves to a question that has long rocked and roiled the academic world: Is a student better off at a small college than at a large college?

To answer this question it is necessary first to define terms. What exactly, do we mean by a small college? Well sir, some say that in order to be called truly small, a college should have an enrolment of not more than four students.

I surely have no quarrel with this statement; a four-student college must unequivocally be called small. Indeed, I would even call it extra if I knew what extra meant. But I submit that there's such a thing as being too small. Take, for instance, a most unfortunate event at Crumscott A and M.

Crumscott A and M, situated in a pleasant valley nestled between Philadelphia and Salt Lake City, was founded by

C. and M. Crimscott, two brothers who left Ireland in 1625 to escape the potato famine of 1841. As a result of their foresight, the Crimscott brothers never went without potatoes for a single day of their lives—and mighty grateful they were! You might talk of gratitude after a wholesome meal of French fried potatoes, hash browns, and au gratin, they decided to show their appreciation to this homely land of potatoes by founding a college. But their generosity contained one condition: the enrollment of the college must never exceed four students. They felt that only by keeping the school thus small could each student be assured of the personalized attention, camaraderie, the esprit, that is all too often lacking in larger institutions of higher learning.

Well sir, things went along swimmingly until one Saturday a few years ago. On this day Crimscott had a football game scheduled against Minnesota, its traditional rival. Football, as you well imagine, was something of a problem at Crimscott with only four undergraduates in the entire college. It was easy enough to muster a backfield, but to find a good lineman was a bad line baffled some of the most resourceful coaches in the nation.

Well sir, on the morning of the big game against Minnesota, its traditional rival, a capricious fate dealt Crimscott a cruel blow. In fact, four cruel blows. Sigafoos, the quarterback, overslept that morning with an impacted molar. Wrichards, the fullback, flunked his taxidermy exam and was declared ineligible. Beerbohm-Tree, the wingback-tailback, got his neck caught in his espresso machine. Yuld, the tailback, was kidnaped by gypsies.

Consequently, none of the Crimscott team showed up at the playing field, and Minnesota, its traditional rival, was able to claim the forfeit. It will be Crimscott was so embarrassed by this humiliating defeat that they immediately broke off football relations with Minnesota, its tradtional rival. This later became known as the Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

So you can see how only four students might be too meagre an enrollment. The number that I personally favor is twenty. Why, you ask. Because, I reply, when you have twenty students and one of them opens a pack of Marlboro Cigarettes, there's enough to go around for everybody, and no one has to be deprived of Marlboro's flavor, of Marlboro's filter, of Marlboro's staunch and steadfast companionship, and as a result you have a student body that is brimming with sweet content and amity and harmony and concord and togetherness and soft pack and Flip-Top box.

ate with the present regime, (it has its roots deep in the traditional China of dynasties) it has been expanded and intensifeid by the Communists.

"Strangely enough," Lentz related, "the opposition to the Communist government is not among the masses, such as the workers or other groups, but among the political leaders." Lentz pointed out that opposition was not socialist vs. democratic, but over differing viewpoints of socialism. There is no democratic point of view in China at present.

Lentz added that there is "no open demonstration of opposing viewpoints, no open criticism of Mao Tse-Tung."

The Chinese have a very effective method of combating the Nationalist Chinese, Lentz said. "They have simply consigned the name Chiang Kai-Shek to oblivion."

Parents don't mention the name to their children. He is never referred to in newspapers as a native Chinese but as a puppet of the West, more especially of the US. Lentz commented that the method seems to be effective in eradicating the Nationalist leader as a Chinese hero.

Lentz discussed the war potential of China in light of the nuclear age.

He said that China "will probably have an atomic bomb soon."

He also saw while he was in China planes capable of delivering such weapons. The Chinese, though they don't yet have aircraft of their own which measure up to Western standards, do have the latest Russian jet bombers and Mig 18's, the newest Russian fighters.

When Lentz asked a Chinese what they would do if they had the bomb now he was answered by "the most chilling curl of the lips I have ever seen."

"China doesn't believe that the next war will have any winners," Lentz commented, "but it hopes to perhaps be able to sort of stand out among the losers in the ashes of the maimed world."

Lentz concluded his talk with a caution to the West not to underestimate the Chinese. "To underestimate the Chinese would be the worst possible thing we could do," he said.

As to the most productive policy the West can now pursue with regard to the Chinese monolith, Lentz recommended establishing some sort of communication.

He said that it appears now to be almost impossible to dissuade the Red Chinese from aggression, but that "we should find some way to at least talk to them" to be able to assess their moves with some accuracy.

Thirteen Nominated As Fulbright Recipients

FSU's Fulbright Committee has nominated 13 FSU students for Fulbright awards.

Passing their first hurdle in a long and exacting screening process for study abroad are:

Bobbie Lou Kaminis, as a teaching assistant of English in Italy.

Lana Gayle Murray, to study French language and literature in France.

Elizabeth Ann Qualls, to study Spanish language and literature in Spain.

Nancy Fleet Bell, to study painting in Spain.

Jacquelin Krause, to study painting in England.

Wendell Robert Houston, to study history in Germany.

Wallace H. Craft, to study Chinese on Taiwan.

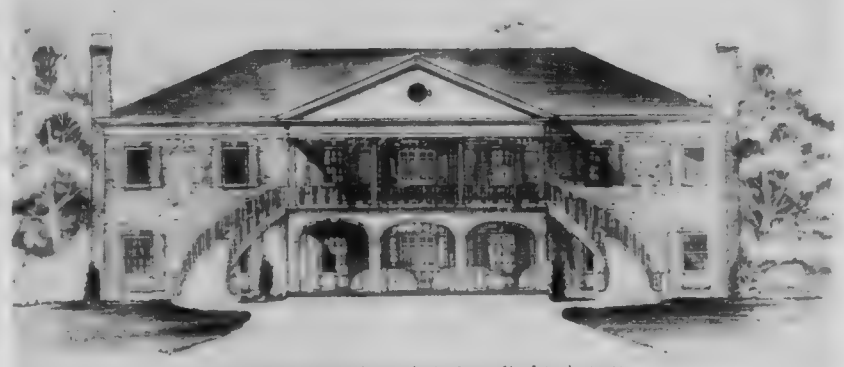
James A. Ramsay, to study international affairs in Australia.

Karla Burger, to study French in Belgium – Luxembourg.

Hedi Svendsen, to study voice in Denmark.

Ted Harvey and Elinor Altes, to work as teaching assistant of English in India.

Franklin Ashburn, to study sociology in the Philippines.



The recommendations were forwarded to the State and National Fulbright committees by the FSU Fulbright committee, which is composed of Dr. R.O. Lawton, Dr. George A. Lensen, Dr. Anne Marie Erdman, Dr. William F. Tanner, and Dr. Vladimir Zernin.

Smith Elected Museum Veep

Dr. Hale G. Smith, head of the Dept. of Anthropology and Archaeology at FSU, has been elected vice president of the Southeastern Museums Conference.

Smith, director of FSU's Museum for several years, has been a member of the organization, which is ending a four-day annual meeting at Miami today.

The organization elected Frederick Sleight, director of the Central Florida Museum at Orlando, as president.

Dr. Olive Cross Is Guest Of English Coffee Hour

"There is a magic about Viet Nam," said Dr. Olive Cross as she spoke at the English Coffee Hour this past Friday.

Dr. Cross, of the English Dept. spet two years in Saigon teaching at the University of Saigon and working for the US State Dept. During her stay, the educator came to know Viet Nam and her people very well.

Dr. Cross began the program by ringing a Buddhist prayer bell and showing several souvenirs. Tran Minh Tam, a business major from Viet Nam, exhibited the national flag. "The three red stripes on the gold background depict the blood these people are willing to shed for their golden country, commented Dr. Cross.

The program featured slides and comments on many of her favorite scenes and people in Saigon.

"Viet Nam is a narrow strip of land bordering Southeast Asia about the size of California. There are 30 million people, 16 million of whom live in the Communist controlled northern section. Last year these people had 10 000 casualties in their war against the Communists while they inflicted 30,000 on the enemy, the lecturer went on to say.

She added, "The Viet Namese are gentil, intelligent people who do not like war." They are excellent craftsmen and are considered to produce the finest laquers in the world.

The gardens of Saigon are notably beautiful. "Each garden has bamboo as it is the symbol of Saigon," she explained.

"I especially remember my students when I think of Saigon," related Dr. Cross. The students would go to her home every Sunday afternoon and consume large quantities of American cookies. Graham crackers were their favorites because they were the largest.

Gobblers Roast Seminoles 31-2

Upon leaving the stadium after Saturday's game the average Seminole fan could hardly be excused for wondering, "What happened?" There was no rain, no bad lighting, no week layover, no overconfidence, just bad breaks. Maybe lady luck was against FSU, but VPI had an awful lot to do with it.

There is an old saying which goes, "The best defense is a good offense." One would have a hard time convincing the 16,500 fans who sat through the game. FSU's offense contributed all 31 points to the Gobbler side of the board. Even so FSU dominated the statistics. They outgained the Gobblers 410 to 175, completed 14 out of 26 compared to 2 out of 7, and led in first downs 21 to 10. They led in all figures except three. Fumbles lost, passes intercepted by, and punting.

Those three statistics tell the story of the game. VPI turned two fumbles into a touchdown and a field goal, two high passes from center on punts into touchdowns, and one out of two interceptions into touchdowns. Their only drive was stopped at the FSU 5 with an unsuccessful field goal.

The first of these blunders occurred on FSU's first play from scrimmage. Dave Snyder cut off right tackle and fimbled. A VPI third string end pounced on the ball and the Gobblers were on the way. Four plays later Dick Cranwell kicked a 40 yard field goal.

Blunder number two came about approximately two minutes later. FSU could not move the ball during their next series of plays so Charley Calhoun came in to punt. A high pass forced a quick punt which was sliced to the FSU 27. Five plays later Sonny Utz became the first player to score a TD running against FSU for the second year in a row.

FSU then mounted their first major drive. This drive covered 85 yards in 13 plays. Steve Tensi completed six passes during the drive including a ten yard pass to Winfred Bailey for the touchdown. VPI 10, FSU 7.

They traded the ball back and forth and quarterback Don Schweickert punted to the FSU 32. On the first play Tensi over threw Biletnikoff, his receiver, and Tom Hawkins intercepted and returned to his own 36. Schweichert got the Gobblers moving but his pass on third and eight was intercepted by Fred Biletnikoff at the FSU 10.

Blunder number three. Tensi was rushed hard and was shaken up on the play, but still got off his pass. Right into the waiting arms of Tech end Tom Marvin. He carried to the three and Utz scored his second touchdown on a sweep. Cranwell added the point and VPI lead 17-7.

Sophomore Ed Prichett came in along with the Warriors on the next set of plays. He carried the ball for a 21 yard gain and passed to Max Wettistine for 22 yards. The Gobblers held on the next series. Les Murdock kicked a 44 yard field goal and the longest in FSU history. Murdock had a very good day, all his kickoffs except one went into the end zone. The half ended VPI 17, FSU 7.

At the start of the third quarter, FSU got a good break but failed to cash in. Quarterback Schweikert dropped back to pass and Bill McDowell hit his arm as he was passing and McDowell recovered.

VPI then staged their unsuccessful drive. They marched from their own 27 to the FSU five. Don Schweikert then showed why he is ninth in the nation in rushing. Twice apparently trapped, he broke loose for long gains. Cranwell's field goal attempt was wide of the mark.

FSU blunders four and five then came about before the eyes of the horrified Seminoles and their loyal following. FSU was stopped and for the second time Calhoun got a high pass from center. Newt Green got a hand on the ball and it traveled fifty yards, straight up. What goes up must come down and it landed in the arms of end Jake Adams of the Gobblers. Surprised, Adams hesitated and then took off for the goal line. None of the Seminoles who had a shot at him reacted in time. Touchdown. Cranwell kicked the point and VPI went ahead 24-17.

On FSU's first play Steve Tensi dropped back to pass, only he forgot something, the ball. Tech guard Vic Kreiter didn't forget and recovered at the FSU 14. Five plays later Schweikert went over from the three for the winning touchdown. Cranwell added his forth extra point to finish up the scoring for the Gobblers.

But FSU was not dead yet. They mounted an eighty yard drive lead by Tensi's passing and Brinkley's running. Brinkley gained 31 yards on the drive including the touchdown. Tensi completed three out of five passes for 47 yards, and Dave Snyder added the rest. On third down Larry Brinkley went over for the score. Tensi's pass for the two points was intercepted by Lacy Edwards, and the game ended FSU 23, VPI 31.

Upsets Are The Word

By RICK ROSE

Upset was the word this weekend as the once might went under in defeat. The nation's second, third, and ninth rated teams (Wisconsin, Pittsburg, and Northwestern) went down the rocky road to defeat.

Ohio State handed Wisconsin its 13-10 defeat destroying a thus far perfect record. Navy, behind the passing and running of Roger Staubach, ran over the Panthers of Pittsburgh to destroy another perfect record. Staubach, the nation's offensive leader, set up one touchdown and went over for another. Michigan State spoiled Northwestern's homecoming by upsetting the Wildcat's 15-7. Sherman Lewis, 150 lb. 5 ft. 9 senior, ran 85 yds, for one touchdown and grabbed a deflected pass for another.

Duke, favored in the game with NC State, went under gasping for air with a 21-7 defeat. Quarterback Jim Rossi stunned the Duke defense by running 55 yds. and then threw a 35 yd pass for the TD. This was the first time the Wolfpack has defeated Duke since 1946.

In other games across the nation things went by the old idiom "The best laid plans of mice and men..."

In the South, LSU handed Florida a 14-0 loss to spoil Florida's homecoming. VPI beat FSU behind QB Don Schweickert's running and passing charms.

Mississippi beat Vanderbilt 27-7, Furman fought past the Citadel 34-25, North Carolina squeezed past South Carolina 7-0, Maryland walloped Wake Forest 35-0, Georgia clipped Kentucky 17-14, Alabama rolled over Houston 21-13, and Georgia Tech tromped Tulane 17-3.

In the East, Harvard snapped the longest winning streak in the country by beating Dartmouth 17-13. Syracuse walked over Oregon State 31-8, Navy upset Pitt 24-12, Penn State beat West Virginia 20-9, Army crushed Washington State 23-0, Princeton beat Cornell 51-14, Yale 31 - Colgate 0, and Brown beat Rhode Island 33-7.

HC Queen, Who's Who Elections To Be Friday

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Staff Writer

Elections for Homecoming Queen and "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" will be held Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

At polls located in the Westcott Lobby, in front of Bryan, in front of the Seminole, and the Student Center, 36 FSU students will be chosen from among 48 nominees for 'Who's Who."

All seniors and graduate students are eligible to vote, and will be able to choose 36 students from each ballot.

Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections, stated that the effect of this was national as well as local, since the students' names, qualifications and pictures will appear in this year's issue of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" which has a nation-wide distribution. Besides this, the students selected will receive certificates and a copy of the national volume.

Nominees for this election have been submitted by presidents of campus organizations, and their qualifications evaluated by a nominating committee tomorrow. In addition, the nominating committee can add nominees they feel are qualified.

To be qualified for "Who's Who,' a student must have maintained a 2.5 overall scholastic average for five trimesters; have shown by his college record his ability to be of service to his community and to society; have shown outstanding leadership in the various activities of campus life; and have shown cooperation and willingness to give time and effort in educational and extra-curricular activities of FSU.

However, a Student Senate Statute makes it possible for a person with below a 2.5 overall who is among the top five nominees to be eligible as long as his overall average does not fall below the all-students average for the second trimester prior to the selection of "Who's Who" nominees.

The nominating committee, which evaluates each nominee's qualifications, is comprised of 12 members, including vice president of the Junior Class (chairman), Dean of Men, Dean of Women, Dean of Students and Athletic Director.

The student body president then appoints members representing these segments of campus activity: music, publications, religious organizations, graduate students, speech and drama, student government and transfer students. All undergraduate members of this committee must be juniors.

All students will be able to vote for the Homecoming Queen, who will be elected on a separate ballot. Candidates for this year's queen are Carolyn Wronske, Jackie Mathis, Carolyn Duyck, Patty Warren Ley Hulsey and Clyda Stokes.

Because of a tie in the preliminary elections last week, there are six candidates who will appear on Friday's ballot. However, Kaney explained that the candidate receiving the least number of votes will be eliminated from the court.

In emphasizing the importance of this election, Kaney stated "I hope that the students will show interest in this election, for the people chosen for these honors should be representative of the student body.'

FSU Art Major Wins Contest

A Florida State University freshman art major, Nancy L. Force, 19, has won first prize of $500 in an international art contest.

Miss Force triumphed over 249 finalists chosen to illustrate top stories for future issues of "Seventeen" in the magazines's 13th annual international art contest.

Her first place oil painting for the story "My Aunt's Career,' depicting a bedroom with aunt and child, was selected on the basis of skill, originality and depth in interpreting the plot. Commenting on the young artist's talent, art director of the teen publication Joan Fenton said: "She showed an extraordinary ability to understand the story and recreate its feeling in a work of art.'

Miss Force's painting will illustrate "My Aunt's Career" in "Seventeen's" January 1964 issue which will be devoted to contributions of talented teens in every field.

A graduate of Ft. Lauderdale High School, Miss Force has won awards at the Ft. Lauderdale Art Museum and at local exhibits and is a recipient of Teachers Credit Union and National Scholastic scholarships. She attended the Philadelphia Museum College of Arts in the summer of 1962 and is now majoring in art at FSU.

She plans to study for a master of arts degree and then do commercial art in a field related to fine art. She will use her prize money for art supplies.

Three Penny Opera Gives Cast Names

The Threepenny Opera will be presented by the Opera Guild and the FSU Theatre Nov. 8 and 9 in Westcott.

The production is by special arrangement with the Tams-Witmark Music Library, Inc. and features Cherry Isabell as Polly Peachum and Charles Stanley as Macheath (Mac the Knife). Arthur H. Dorlag is the production stage director, and Richard Collins, musical director.

Music for the opera is by Kurt Weill, the text and lyrics by Bertolt Brecht with the English adaptation by Marc Blitzstein.

The cast of characters also includes Hugh McElyea, as a street singer; Samuel Welch as J.J. Peachum, Sarah Rideout as Mrs. Peachum, Jenni Black as Jenny, J. Robert Swain as Rev. Kimball, Gene Rowell as Tiger Brown, Jerold Gray as Warden Smith, and Sarah Hanna as Lucy Brown.

Jack Simmons, Dan Kelley, Irv Broughton, Rhett Bryson and James Rayfield compose Mack's Gang, with Ken Richart and Tom Woodruff as the Cops.

Martha Wilson, Martha Myer, Deje Swain, Ellen Whigham, Laurette Kenney and Louise Beddingfield compose "the Family."

Somebody Explains

Flambeau Forum

Let's Be Realistic. . .

To the Editor:

The sincere concern for such an important issue as the civil status of the colored people in this country that was discussed by Sue Chu in the Flambeau Forum (Oct. 22) under the title "Won't Somebody Please Explain?" is very commendable and worthy of respect.

However, coming from a foreign student, your letter appeared to me rather embarrassing to the American readers of the "Flambeau," for it is clear that it would be very difficult to give you an answer both sincere and gentle at the same time.

Because I am a foreign student myself and have been in this country only three years, I am not in a position to supply you with a weighted sociological explanation to satisfy your inquisitive eagerness. I just want to let you know my point of view in connection with the problem and hope that it helps your understanding. As foreigners, our experience in this respect are probably alike.

I come from a country with no color discrimination at all, among other reasons, because there are no colored people living there. Consequently, when I first came to the United States, I experienced the same type of moral confusion that you described so well in your article. I was also confused and questioned many of my former ideas on the American society. My disillusionment, however, did not last too long.

Newspaper headlines provided me every single day with examples of discrimination in all corners of the world. For me, this was a reminder that religious, political or racial discrimination is present nowadays in every country. I realized that racial discrimination was nothing but another variety, more colorful if you want, of discrimination in general. But discrimination as such was nothing new. Now, may I ask you, Susan, would it be fair to judge our American hosts by idealistic socio-political standards that no country in the world actually meets?

In my opinion, Susan, there is a difference here from the rest of the world. The American people recognize their problems and deal with them in the open. This cannot be predicted of many other countries and it is, I think, what makes America a great nation. You must have found, as I have, from your American friends, that all of them are aware of the task ahead and do want sincerely to find a solution for their problems.

My personal belief is that they agree in the ends and that they disagree only on the means. In fact, this is not simply my opinion. Foreign newspaper, all over the world, have credited America's sincere willingness to normalize the civil status of all its citizens.

I think, Susan, that all our American friends are doing their best and that their efforts are being met by a well-deserved success. They are worthy of encouragement, not of condemnation. Social changes take time. As you know, it took Europe fifteen centuries to absorb slavery completely, and we did not have a color problem there.

Do try to understand, Susan, for as the French writer Camus once said, the highest faculty is: not to try to understand.

Logic Doubted

Mr. Johnson, your remarks in Friday's Flambeau cause me to doubt your powers of logic, you sense of perspective, and your sense of good taste.

In the first place, the "logic' of your letter seems to be based upon envoking a legion of "undesirable' adjectives, which may or may not apply to the context in which you use them and which you never qualify or support. I count at least 17 such adjectives.

To my knowledge, "Lana Murray, Tommy Riggins and sundry other 'flies'" do not purport the sentiments of the entire student body, and have never claimed to do so. I challenge you to back up your statement that they do.

I agree with your implied sentiment that Lana Murray does not have all the qualities of a first-class editor -- the fact that she printed your letter which in my opinion is libelous, slanderous and certainly not in good taste, is sufficient evidence, don't you agree? By the way, just what is your conception of the "reality' displayed in front of the University Inn towards which Lana is supposed to be blind.

I would be very interested to see you answer this letter, Mr. Johnson -- publicly or privately -- because I don't believe you are for real.

One last thing -- the 'scum of the earth' has a way of bringing forth vegetation; a few thorns as well as flowers, true, but nonetheless something dynamic and living. Now, isn't that the funniest thing?

Fred Glavin

To the Editor:

I have followed with interest, the articles and events concerning our racial problems as reported in the Flambeau. I have lived in the South for five years. I know something of the way the Southerner thinks and too much of the way he acts. However, he can be offered a warped consolation by the fact that there is hatred on both sides in the North. Often this is a hidden hatred which is deeper and more bitter.

The dialogism between Mr. North, Mr. South and Mr. Negro which aptly presents the two attitudes concludes in this manner... Mr. North: "Actually, Mr. Negro, you can go as high as you want -- just don't come any closer." Mr. South: "I belive you have that turned around, Mr. North. Didn't you mean 'come as close as you want but don't go any higher?' "

The Religious Council's plea for an individual boycott of off-campus eateries was late and unnecessary. We who were distrubed by the restaurant management's refusal to serve all students have been individually boycotting since reading the September 16 issue of the Flambeau. I doubt that anyone who did not begin then will begin now.

Mr. Gentry's letter in Tuesday's edition was slightly confusing. He wishes that FSU students had the conviction and zeal of the typ Negro demonstrator. This is possible, Mr. Gentry. Our stu body is miles from being of a c mon purpose. This is not the wi but the Negro revolt. And they revolting for complete ama mation into this twisted soci

I know that he is wron this generalization. There is room here for a lengthy discus I can only say that I have sh companionship with the Negro, faced common problems by his s

True, a man often is what he see to be to others. But have Mr. Gen or his cohorts ever lived am America's Negroes? Indeed they even had occasion to spea a Negro?

Up until recent years, the Ne in this country has not looked his position realistically. Hu and American rights are com for the Negro and he will wi revolt. He is finally being tru about the life he has. Now possible to achieve the life he wa I support him in this desire.

Send Petition By Mail

To the Editor:

In view of the fact that Flambeau petitions are not available to all members of the student body and that some individuals are hesitant to sign them in a public place, the Chairman of the Flambeau Petition Drive will accept personal signatures through Campus Mail or the US Mail.

A statement of the petition, "We, the undersigned students of Florida State University, aware that the Florida State "Flambeau" has for some time been editorially unrepresentative of this campus and has, in general, displayed a tactlessness and rudeness unbecoming of a student -supported publication, demand that no further appropriation of students funds be made for this newspaper. In view of the few benefits the "Flambeau" does offer to the campus, we suggest that its publishing be financed by voluntary subscription or on a purchase basis," should be followed by a personal signature and student number.

All should be addressed to Robert M. Holley, c/o General Delivery, FSU Post Office.

Robert M. Holley

Purge Paper

To the Editor:

In this time of trial, I have decided to come to the assistance of the student body, Bob Holley and the Flambeau. The big problem seems to be that we have a "biased" newspaper on our campus. Mr. Holley wants to have the student activity funds withdrawn because the Flambeau is not representative of the student body. The fact that this opinion was not founded on any type of scientific investigation does not make any difference; the problem remains that the Flambeau is biased. To appease everyone, we must purge this newspaper of all prejudices and make it pure.

The first thing to do is to omit all editorials, letters, features, cartoons and ads. Greek news is biased in favor of fraternities and sororities and the religious organizations are biased in favor of their own faiths so they must go. Sport news is definitely biased in favor of FSU so it does not represent the voice of graduate students who might have graduated from Florida, Miami, TCU, etc. Sports, must go, too.

The BOP should set up a board consisting of Bob Holley Bob Foss, Thomas Riggins, Keith Garner, Wilson Carraway and Charlie Johns. They will see to it that all news in the Flambeau is altered or omitted in order that it pleases everyone. When we come this far we will probably find that there is not enough news left to merit a newspaper so we just let the Flambeau die a natural death and start reading the Tallahassee Democrat for their unbiased news on FSU.

Robert F. Stanley

'Flambeau' Shows No Bias

To the Editor:

Having been an editor of a junior college newspaper about a year a I find myself in sympathy with the Flambeau concerning the protest bias. As nearly as I can tell the Flambeau is as unbiased in its re reportage as any newspaper I have ever read. Perhaps the protests re to the letter-editorial page, and in this case I wonder if there might be some misunderstanding. An editorial presents a bias and at the s time a dare or a challenge if you will, to anyone who really has an inter in the matter to refute the position adopted.

Maybe Mr. Holley and his cohorts wanted only some notoriety, or a f ture on the front page, because his arguments merely fulfill the old ad that, "Empty barrels make the most noise." Mr. Holley wants the Fla beau to stand "on its own two feet?" I do not "ever" recall encounter any college or university newspaper that stood on its own two feet. Stu funds in every instance I know of -- and I know of several -- support newspaper. For slightly over two dollars per student, everyone on cam may have the Flambeau five days a week for an entire trimester. paper has no backer aside from student funds and advertisements. Co newspapers don't usually have legs "of their own" to stand on.

I have a feeling that what rankles the segregationists on this campus those letters supporting the integrationist side of the racial issue. If is the case I can only suggest that they do some letter-writting of th own.

I personally believe that those students leading the petition-signing wo actually have the gall to write a notice of their intentions in the Flambe I believe that the Flambeau would be unbiased enough to print it.

Staff Should Edit Letters

To the Editor:

The Holley petition refers, in part to the "... tactlessness and rudeness..." of material found in the Flambeau. Ironically, some letters appearing in last Friday's edition were excellent examples of this-- letters leaded with personal vilification and with derogatory conclusions based on quite erroneous speculations.

Perhaps the Flambeau staff should consider the following: reserve the right to edit letters, and to delete those passages -- but only those passages -- which are personal vindictive. Maybe then we will s arguments resembling those expe ted of college students-- argumen remaining germane and sticking the very real issues which should debated here.

Kraft Is Guest Of FSU Geography, History Depts.

Ole Bjorn Kraft, vice president of the Danish Parliament and a delegate to the United Nations, will be at FSU Friday night under auspices of the Departments of Geography and History to speak on "A Small Power's View of Europe and the Future of the Atlantic Alliance." The program will be at 7:30 p.m. in Library Lecture Hall.

Kraft was formerly foreign minister, vice president of the Council of Europe and secretary general of NATO. He is also a chairman of the cultural committee of the Council of Europe and chairman of the economic committee of the Nordic Council.

He has been a member of the Danish Parliament since 1926. During the German occupation of Denmark 1940-45, Kraft was a leader within the Danish Resistance Movement. The Gestapo made two attempts on his life during that time.

On Dec. 30, 1943, awaiting the arrival of an underground courier, he was attacked in his home in Copenhagen, shot and seriously wounded by a Nazi assassin. A second attempt on his life was made later when the Gestapo sought underground leaders in the headquarters of the Conservative Party.

When a coalition of the Moderate Liberal Party and the Conservative Party formed a government in 1950, Kraft was chosen minister of foreign affairs. In this capacity, he, in 1951, signed the treaty between the United States and Denmark on the defense of Greenland. Under this agreement within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the defense of the area became a NATO concern.

Last fall, Mr. Kraft's most recent book, "Woe to the Vanquished" was published in Denmark. It deals with the Communist take-over in Eastern Europe. This spring the books was published in German by the Europa Verlag in Vienna, Austria.

What Has Happened?

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

The students of this university have a right to expect a good football team to represent them in intercollegiate athletics, but as yet they have not seen anything but a half-resemblance to the team of last year. Their financial support and attendance have not produced a team which they can be proud of.

"Everyone loves a winner," but when a team has the potential to win games like the Miami game, and yet loses to a dinky (5,300) school like Virginia Tech on mistakes, it becomes discouraging and students lose interest.

It is not the purpose of this writer to lean back in his easy chair, light up a cigar, and plan the best way to lynch an effigy of Head Coach Bill Peterson. Rather than ignore the plight of the team, students must laud that which is good and uncover that which is clogging up the works.

In order to bring out all the short comings and assets of this 1963 edition of the Seminoles, it will take a four-part editorial, with the writer playing the part of Sam Spade and trying to dig up the answers.

Students are urged to take the time to state their views on what happened to the Tribe and send it in to the Flambeau Sports Editor, Room 213 Longmire by Campus Mail.

An unidentified member of the Seminole Soccer Club is shown stopping a drive ward the Tribe goal by a Camp Maxwell soccer team member.

Dean Oglesby, Miss Adams Are Honored At SG Retreat

Dean Oglesby and Miss Adams with Student Government plaques.

Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby and Miss Jane Adams, director of Longmire, were presented with certificates of appreciation for their services to students by Student Government at the annual Student Government retreat last week.

In making the presentation, Student Body President Johnny Smith said, "At rare times during the Student Government year we find reason to honor various University personnel for their outstanding contributions to Student Government and the University.

"Dean Oglesby and Miss Adams have done a great deal for the student body not only this year, but in years past."

Oglesby hails from Depoy, Ky., and joined the FSU faculty in 1954. Before coming here, he served at Oklahoma A&M, Duke, Berea, Sweetbriar, and George Washington.

He received a BA in English from Georgetown University, and MA in Political Science from the University of Virginia, and a Ph. D. from Duke. In addition, he has done graduate work at Harvard and Heidelberg universities. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha and the Rotary Club.

Miss Adams comes from Tupelo, Miss., and joined the FSU Home Economics department in 1946. In 1949 she became director of Longmire and has since held that position.

She received an AB from Grenada College and a BS and MA from George Peabody Teacher's College. In addition, she is a member of the American Association of University Women, Delta Kappa Tau professional society, and Phi Upsilon Omicron, national home economics honorary.

Two Students Caught Stealing

Two students involved in stealing merchandise from the University bookstore have been recommended for immediate suspension from the University by the Honor Court.

The Honor Court recommendations were passed by the Administrative Disciplinary Committee Thursday night. Honor Court Chief Justice Jim Reed said, "These stealing cases have become quite prevalent during the past two weeks. Consequently, the Court's docket has consisted to a great degree of this type of Honor Court offense."

The maximum penalty which the Court may invoke is the immediate suspension from the University.

Tally-Ho Contest To Start Tonight

The 1964 Miss Tally Ho contest will be held tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Auditorium.

Over 100 coeds will be vieing for the yearbook queen title with each contestant sponsored by a sorority, fraternity or dormitory. Mary Ellen Peggy, last year's Miss Tally Ho, and her Court will also be present. Tonight the contestants will wear cocktail dresses and heels. The semi-finalists who return tomorrow night will wear short shorts sweaters, and heels. The contest is judged on poise, overall appearance grooming and photogenic qualities. The judges will be looking for typical All-American college coeds. Entertainment will be provided by the Minutemen and admission is free.

U N Council

The Collegiate Council for the United Nations, will hold its first meeting of the year today at 4 p.m. in 222 History Bldg.

The FSU chapter of CCUN is a non partisan organization dedicated to the dissemination of factual information concerning the United Nations and its specialized agencies. Plans will be made at this meeting for a model General Assembly.

Senate To Face New Bill

A bill to provide four additional senators to represent the day students will be presented for the first reading in today's meeting of the Student Senate, in addition to three resolutions.

The lone bill, introduced by Mack McKinnon, would change the by-laws to provide for these senators. Representation of day students now consists of four senators, as provided for in chapter 702.2 of the statutes. McKinnon's bill, if passed, would raise the number of senators to eight.

Ed Scott will introduce all three of the resolutions.

On resolution calls for a program to develop a more effective link between international students and the Student Senate, and to promote a campus-wide plan to strengthen our International Student program.

Another resolution calls for filming of a new promotional movie of FSU, replacing "Garnet and Gold," which was last used in 1959.

The third of Scott's resolutions asks for a recommendation that student identification cards include the student's place of residence, to serve as a check in elections by residence precincts. The resolution also recommends investigation of a means to verify the statistics on the card.

A Congressman Speaks Out

By WALT MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

"All 185 million Americans cannot be satisfied. In fact, we can't satisfy some people regardless of what we do," was the reply of Congressman Don Fuqua when asked if he always complied with his constituents' wishes.

Congressman Fuqua, from the new Ninth Congressional District, addressed the Young Democrats speaking on "The Eighty-Eighth Congressional Session" Monday night.

In the speech, Fuqua explained the committee structure of Congress and the particular functions. He also lashed out at the Republican Party when asked how he felt about Barry Goldwater. Fuqua's answer was that he did not know what Goldwater stands for because he keeps changing his tune. He also accused several Republicans of leading blind opposition against some measures in Congress.

The "whip system" used in Congress to rally support for certain legislation was also brought out in Fuqua's speech. Other leading topics covered the powers of the Ways and Means Committee, the tax legislation, and controversial bills.

Questions on a wide range of current legislation were thrown at the Representative during the question and answer period that followed his main address.

One question asked Fuqua's opinion of the Civil Rights Bill. He said that at the moment the bill is too strong, and that the bill has no definite form as yet. Fuqua feels that some civil rights will pass but the bill as it stands may not come out of committee.

When asked about the possibility of the Democratic vice presidental nomination of Senator George Smathers of Florida, the Congressman replied, "Smathers has expressed no apparent view as to the nomination. He is no Judas, and he is politically loyal to vice president Johnson. However, politics does strange things to people, and if the

Burgin, Passelt Appear In Symphony Tonight

MARCI ROBBINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Miss Ruth Posselt, one of America's foremost violinists, will perform tonight, along with Richard Burgin, and the State Symphony of Florida in Westcott Auditorium.

Previous to this performance, she has been acting as visiting professor of violin in the Music School. She and Edward Kelenyi are also rehearsing for another concert to be Dec. 2.

Her early training was done with Ondroc of Prague, and later with Emmanuel and Enesco. Her family tells her that she first started playing the fiddle at the age of 3." As a child she worked with Toscanini.

She has been acclaimed throughout the world as a recitalist and soloist with the major orchestras and has made seven European tours, including one in the Soviet Union. She was the first American born violinist ever to perform in Leningrad and Moscow.

Miss Possult says that "the leading musicians of Europe feel that the United States has some of the leading orchestras and musicians of this generation." Many of the European musicians often think of the United States as being a mass-produced uncultured country.

Miss Possult added that "musicians are very quick to change their minds about American talent in the music field after performing in the United States under American conductors, and orchestras."

Among other notable appearances in Europe, have been those with L'Orchestre Symphonique de Paris (Monteux), the Residentie Symphony of the Hague, the Concertgebouw, Prague Philharmonic Barcelona Sympony, the orchestras of Stockholm and Helsinki.

About a year ago, she was able to obtain a Phillip's Guarneruis del Gesu, violin, made in 1732. The instrument is of a very rare and expensive type and she will be using it tonight.

Her outstanding achievements have been with the Boston Symphony where she has soloed 64 times; she has been a guest of such conductors as Fiedler, Koussevitsky, Burgin, Bernstein, Szell and Munch in 18 different concerts. In addition she has played with the major (25) symphonies of the United States.

Banquet Tickets To Go On Sale

Tickets for the Homecoming Banquet Nov. 15 at which former President Truman is scheduled to be the speaker will go on sale to students, faculty and staff Monday, Nov. 4.

Alumni are being given priority on tickets for the 900 seats at the 6 p.m. banquet, Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, Banquet chairman, said. Only a limited number of tickets will be available for students, faculty and staff.

The tickets, at $2.50 apiece, can be purchased only at the alumni office in Longmire Building and they are limited to two for each purchaser.

Bond Issue Explained

FSU's unique system of mobile classrooms and offices may lose their importance if Florida voters decide next Tuesday to favor the College Bond Amendment to the state constitution.

Although the "temporary" units have provided much needed extra facilities for many departments, they are neither ideal nor adequate for the university's rapid expansion. Makeshift expediencies cannot be expected to meet the requirements of the college population explosion.

The pay-as-you-go plan cannot provide the buildings and equipment that are needed NOW. Borrowing the money on a financially sound bond issue will spread cost of construction over a longer period of time, and would make new facilities available in the near future, when they are needed.

The proposed amendment, summarized: "If approved, this amendment would authorize the issuing of bonds to provide funds for capital outlay (such projects as constructing and equipping buildings) at universities, junior colleges and certain vocational technical schools. The projects to be paid for by proceeds from the bond sales must be authorized by a 3/5 vote in each house of the ligeislature. The legislature has already approved a detailed list of projects. Of these, $75,000,000 worth may be undertaken if this amendment is approved by the voters."

Safeguards to assure that these finances are used properly include: For 50 years, beginning Jan. 1, 1964, gross receipt taxes will be placed in a trust fund, which will be used as the basis for issuing the bonds and the source for repaying them. The State Board of Education will be in charge of issuing the bonds, supervising the trust fund and turning over funds for authorized projects.

The State Board of Administration is named as the fiscal agent of the State Board of Education. Maximum interest allowed on the bonds wll be 4 1/2 percent. Maximum time between issuance and maturity of the bonds is 30 years. Bonds cannot be sold by the State Board of Education at less than 98 per cent par value.

Bonds must be sold at public sale after public advertisement. Detailed provisions are made for the amount of gross receipt taxes collected. No more than $50,000,000 of bonds may be authorized in any future biennium except by 2/3 vote in each house of the legislature.

Protect 'That Bunch'

Not long ago angry Indonesian crowds wrecked a British Embassy in Jakarta. For some inexplicable reason neither the Indonesian police nor the army stopped this crowd until the damage was done. What did these people have against the British? Well it is something like this: With full British backing the Malaya Federation had been formed. This ruined Sukarno's plans to bring these countries into Indonesia. The Indonesian government publicly denounced the federation as neo-colonialism sponsored by the British.

When the Indonesian crowds spontaneously became enraged, and decided to wreck the British Embassy, there was a convenient lack of police; or the police present did nothing to stop the crowd.

Now let's drop from international to local events. Apparently because of the official city policy and personal prejudice on the part of the police, the local police when asked to protect the picketers said that they didn't have time to protect that bunch. It finally got to a point where they had to send several city police.

The particular police captain in charge was most efficient in his duty. When a coed asked if it was illegal to hit people with eggs, he answered-Eggs? I did see one in the air. He then said if you prove who is throwing the eggs, I'll arrest them. Then he walked completely away from the side that was being thrown at, and also away from the side throwing the eggs.

It was certainly obvious to those present that the police would do nothing to stop the crowd. Another incident occurred to reinforce this conclusion. When a group of guys lined up in front of the phone booth "to make a call" and physically blocked the pickets, someone asked the illustrious captain if this wasn't illegal. His answer-Blocking? All I see are some people making a phone call.

To show how much basis the statement had that the police didn't have time to bother about "that bunch" here is an example of their more urgent duties. Several days ago the "St. Pete Times" carried an article about the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority party here at FSU. The sorority wanted a city policeman to "keep out gate crashers and to help preserve the tone of the party." They didn't want just a patrolman, but asked for and got "Captain" Johnny Coggins. Amazing that the police don't have time to protect the legal rights of pickets, but can without hesitation protect a sorority party from "gate crashers."

Incidentally, someone stole the captain's hat at the party. Better call in the FBI because it surely was a communist subversive nigger-loving NAACP organizer getting revenge. These were only some of the names given to the picketers and supporters one night by "freedom loving people."

All Guests Not Treated As Guests

The only thing sadder than the fumbles and foibles of our football team at the "Reverse Thanksgiving," was the seating of the Negro units of the Boy Scouts of America in a separate section from the other units. It must be hard for them to salute the flag under such circumstances; it was for me. Free and the Brave, indeed! Somehow the usual accompanying tingle of the spine was gone when the National Anthem was played that day. I wonder where the University (or is it the Athletic Ticket Office) would have Dr. Ralph Bunche sit if he could ever be persuaded to come here.

I'll be willing to bet good old trash-mouth Harry Truman gets to sit in the President's box. Our University's guests always get the best to be had within reason. Seems to me the Boy Scouts were our guests for the day. Oh well as the old saying goes "Discrimination hits the Spot" (where it hurts the most).

And if there is anything that is sadder than sad, it is that ridiculous child, who precedes the football team and the cheerleaders waving the flag of the dear departed C.S.A. Someone with authority have him stopped, please, before someone decides to take it upon themselves to do it (say like down at that other school at Thanksgiving) and cause a major stir.

And please Miss Undersecretary Head Cheerleader Harris stop this weak and obvious attempt to please both the Independents and Greeks with the "Are there any here" bit. It is annoying as well as absurd and the response is defeating too. Why not something involving THE STUDENT BODY as a whole. Cheerleaders are supposed to [illegible] school spirit not divide it. That too, for just letting Cheerleade lead the yells, but please, no mo roll calls. (If this is tradition please make it transitional.)

Now no one in the Southeast ever done anything but praise t Marching Chiefs, and I can think nothing but the same, however, they must play "Dixie" "Yankee-Doodle Dandy" must played too. Ask the Registrar many of them "damn northerners are in attendance here. You mig be surprised, or get your dand (or a petition) up or get a Gra Jury to investigate them. (It's fas ionable, you know.) Why, Honeychil you know sectionalism is as bad any of them isms.

Parody Of 'West Side' On Tonight

The music is that of "West Side Story," but the words are something else again in a student-written skit called "East Stands Story" which will be shown over WFSU-TV at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

A hilarious story of a footballhero and a cheerleader on the opposing team that rivals a love story between a Hatfield and McCoy provides the script for the Director's Workshop program.

Sam Baker, who has played many comedy roles with University Theater plays Grebby, the college football star, and Pat Bain has the role of the cheerleader.

"East Stands Story" was written by Baker and Jimmy Rayfield of Tampa, who also wrote the lyrics. It is produced and directed for WFSU-TV by D. Keith Carlson, film director and studio superviser of University Broadcasting Services.

Lyrics include such numbers as "Tallahassee, Capital City, City of Southern Tradition"; "Cheerleader"; "My Hair's Teased"; "You're Right"; "There's a School for Us"; "Registrar Krupke"; and "We'll Fight."

Peace Meeting

FSU Students Act for Peace will have their second meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Longmire's Club Room, room 204. A movie will be shown concerning the atomic explosion of Hiroshima and the effects of radioactive fallout. Interested students may attend.

Delta Delta Delta sorority is having a pledge dinner Sunday at the Tri Delt House, 534 W. Park Ave., from 5-7 p.m. The theme is a Southern Plantation and the price will be $1. All students may attend.

Football Is Team Sport

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

A sign in the Seminole Dressing Room reads, "Football is a team sport and requires a lot of concentration and maximum effort by everyone, including men on the bench."

With these words of reminder to spur them on, the Tribe starts its eighth week of practice, and the last one for a game in which they will be the favored team.

The burden of their 2-2-1 season rests on the broad shoulders of the big Chief, Bill Peterson. When asked to explain the losses to VPI, and TCU, Coach Pete stated that there was no specific reason for the losses.

"We just made too many mistakes. In the TCU game, they intercepted a pass and got a break and its hard to recover from a break. That Southern Mississippi team was a lot better than people realize. Also, that missed field goal hurt us."

KICKING, SUBSTITUTION RULE HAVE HURT

"Our main trouble is that the kicking game just isn't functioning as it should. We're working on that in every practice trying to get it to clicking. Most people do not realize how important that kicking can be. In most close ball games, the kicking game can win or lose the game for you."

"Also," Peterson continued, "the new substitution rule has fenced us in. We're not able to get the right boys in when we need them."

"In the middle of the season, the boys are bound to get tired, but we haven't had as great an effort in the last ball games as in the Miami game. Our boys are working hard to overcome this. The morale is real good; they have a lot of personal pride. All of these are things that we can get straightened out."

"The seniors have done a real good job of leadership overall. Hoever, because of exams in the last few weeks they have had to study a lot harder and later and were too tired to try to get the boys up for each game. But, as we tell the, education comes first."

When asked to compare the Seminoles this year to the '62 edition, Peterson said, "It's hard to compare the two. The team last year played under the three team system, which the NCAA Rules committee hurt us by abolishing. Despite this difference, our team last year went after people a little more."

Looking to the future, Peterson feels that the team "realizes the task facing them and will work to improve themselves."

CHARLEY CALHOUN

. . . the Seminole punter, has kicked 29 times for a 38.3 average. The senior from Tallahassee also leads the team in punt returns, having lugged back five for 101.

Mira Widens Stax Lead

Miami's George Mira, even after this week's layoff, still remains at the top of the heap in the state's total offense. The "Matador's" 872 yards are still enough to give him a 252 yard margin over second place Steve Tensi.

Mira also kept his state passing totals at the top. FSU's Steve Tensi has cut the distance, however. Tensi now has 699 yards as compared to Mira's 856, only 157 yards difference.

In the rushing column it's Dupree, Banzak, and Snyder.

In pass receiving, it's still Nick Spinelli in the lead.

Sharpshooters Win Seventh Over Mercer

The U.S. Army ROTC Rifle Team won their seventh match in a row Saturday by defeating Georgia State College and Mercer University. Final scores for Florida State University was 1291; Georgia State was second with 1243 and Mercer last with 1187. Cadet Charles E. Holmes of Jacksonville was high firer with a 265/300. Firers and scores for the other Army Florida State University team members were William D. Wood of Daytona, 262/300, John Reinhardt of Darien, Connecticut, 259/300, James Moore of Tallahassee, 257/300 and Dale Warren of Clearwater 248/300.

This season is the most successful start of any Army Rifle Team since it has been organized and promises to be their finest year ever. Next match opponents are Stetson University and Marion Institute; the match is scheduled to be fired at Tallahassee this Saturday.

Thirty-Six To Be Elected In Who's Who Contest

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Staff Writer

Thirty-six students will be selected in elections tomorrow to appear in this year's "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

The polls, open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., will be located in Westcott lobby, in front of Bryan, in front of the Seminole Club, and at the Student Center. Eligible to vote are all seniors and graduate students.

The 48 nominees for this election were selected by the presidents of campus organizations and their qualifications were reviewed by a nominating committee. Additional qualified students can be added to the ballot by the committee, which is made up of faculty members and students.

To be eligible, a student must have maintained a 2.5 overall average for five trimester; have shown by his college record his ability to be of service to his community and society; have shown outstanding leadership in the various activities of campus life; and have shown cooperation and willingness to give time and effort in educational and extra-curricular activities at FSU.

However, a person who has below a 2.5, who is among the top five nominees, may be eligible as long as his overall average does not fall below the all-students average for the second trimester prior to the selection of "Who's Who" nominees.

Who's Who candidates, with a partial list of their qualifications, are Beverly Acher, president of social sorority, Garnet Key and secretary of Women's Senate; Patricia Bassett, member of the Honor Committee and the Symphony Orchestra; Betsy Boote, Garnet Key, chairman of the University Court, and member of Judiciary; Patsy Brill, president of Mortar Board and of Jennie Murphree, and member of Garnet Key.

Charles Calhoun, co-captain of the football team, senior Justice of Honor Court and a member of Gold Key; Susan Cawthon, president of social sorority, Garnet Key and class officer; Charlotte Christopher, junior counselor and vice president of Mortar Board; Charles Cutajar, member of Senate, Judiciary and Gold Key; Roberta Darragh, president of social sorority and a member of Mortar Board, Garnet Key, and Student Senate.

Pamela Doud, junior counselor and Senior Class Senator; Betty Drummond, president of Broward Hall, member of Sophomore Judiciary and vice president of social sorority; Carolyn Duyck, cheerleader, Circus and Judiciary; Linda Duyck, Garnet Key, cheerleader and president of the Modeling Board; Betty Ann Eastridge, Undersecretary of Student Events, Senate and chairman of the Campus Chest Drive.

Evelyn Flathmann, Sophomore Class secretary, Garnet Key and Secretary of Internal Affairs; Jean Fountain, Senator, Circus, and Village Vamps; Tom Haney, president of Junior and Senior Classes, Omicron Delta Kappa and Student Senate; Dorothy Jackson, Sophomore Council, president Dorman Hall and member of Judiciary; Anne Jamison, treasurer of social sorority, member of the Marching Chiefs and Symphonic Band.

Bobbie Lou Kaminis, major roles in "Hansel and Gretel" and "Kismet," and a member of Junior Council and the University Symphony; Jon Kaney, Commissioner of Elections and a member of the Political Union; Ann Kendall, member of Mortar Board, and the University Symphony; Nancy Lefebvre, member of Judiciary and junior counselor; Beth Ann Legate, president of Garnet Key, Co-Editor of the "Tally-Ho," and Senator.

Daniel Litwhiler, FSU Cadet Corp, Traffic Court and Alpha Council; Alice Marshall, Junior and Senior Class Senator; junior counselor; Marilyn Matthews, Angel Flight, president of social sorority, and junior counselor; Jackie Mathis, Secretary of Senate, Homecoming Court, Chairman of Senate, and Secretary of Study Body; Pat Melton, president of social sorority, Garnet Kay, Undersecretary of University Union, and president of Gilchrist Hall; Van Miller, Alpha Omicron Pi, Sophomore Council and Garnet Key.

Gayle Motes, Board of Publications, Senate, Honor Court and Assistant Secretary of Welfare; Lana Murray, treasurer of Mortar Board, president of FSO Scholarship House, and Editor of the "Florida Flambeau"; Marsha Orth, Garnet Key, President of Reynolds Hall, and Senate; Betty O'Berry, junior counselor, Clerk of Honor Court and Alpha Lambda Delta; Caroline Rawls, president of social sorority, Alpha Lambda Delta, and Fashion Incorporated.

e second resolution asked for establishment of a special comee to investigate the possibili- for filming a promotional movr FSU.

mbers of the committee appointnvestigate the possibilities of movie were Larry Gonzalez, rman, Lee Ewrmer and Cam Kile.

e third resolution was for the rpose of appointing a committee nvestigate and recommend cer- changes in student identificacards. The main faults of the present ID cards are that they do not include the place of residence of the student and the information on the cards is not verified.

Members of the committee on I.D. cards are Sharon Spindel, chairman, Bill Ward and Joy Dickinson.

It was also announced that Matt Miller was appointed as president pro tem of Men's Senate.

The floor was then opened to Bob Holley who proceeded to read a speech he had prepared denouncing the "Florida Flambeau." Holley stated that "other student newspapers support themselves, so why can't the 'Flambeau'?" He also stated his opinion that "not just the editorial page but the whole 'Florida Flambeau' is biased."

Mr. Holley continued that his main objections were of "the front page 'scandels' and the sports stories."

Senator Wood then asked Holley what his purpose was for coming before the Senate with his speech and Holley replied that he had no purpose except to let them know how he felt. Holley concluded that he would have copies of his speech made available for all the senators to have.

International Student Banquet Set For Sunday

"How Big is Your World?" has been selected as the theme for the International Student Banquet to be held at the Wesley Foundation, Sunday, Nov. 3, at 5:15 p.m.

The program has been planned to provide a unique opportunity for students, both American and International, to encounter and relate with one another. The International Students are the Foundation's special guests, and the evening program includes Dr. Melton Ware, Pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, as the guest speaker.

There are students holding tickets in each dorm for the convenience of dorm residents. Names are given on posters in the various dorms.

Non-dorm residents may obtain tickets by calling 223-1119 or by inquiring at the Wesley Foundation office, 705 West Jefferson Street.

FSU Young Republicans Club Votes To Withdraw Membership

In a meeting Tuesday night the FSU Young Republicans Club overwhelmingly voted to discontinue membership in the state federation of YR clubs.

It was confirmed yesterday morning by the Young Republican's Washington, D.C., headquarters that the National Association has withdrawn recognition of the state college groups headed by Thomas Brightman of Winter Park, because of libelous statements made by him and because of his leftist views.

The National Young Republicans have given recognition to a new Florida federation headed by former state chairman Tom Sisco of FSU.

This new federation will resume the conservative Republican movement as it was under Sisco's first administration as state chairman.

Senator Bill Young is planning to address the Young Republicans and the Young Americans for Freedom Nov. 19 at 8:30 p.m.

Young is a conservative Republican member of the Florida Senate from Pinellas County.

He is also a member of Legislative Investigation Committee.

Art Is Fun

By NANCY ZLATIN

"I've always had oil paint smeared all over me,' said the 19 year old coed as she attempted to get the smudge of green paint off her tan jeans.

Nancy Force, this year's winner of "Seventeen" Magazine's art contest, is an art major at FSU. When asked about plans after graduation, Nancy replied, "I'll probably end up as a teacher. I don't want to. I want freedom, but you can't have freedom in art and eat, too!"

"I have been surrounded by art all may life since my mother is an art teacher herself." Mrs. Force teaches high school and junior college courses in Ft. Launderdale.

Although Mrs. Force has taught her daughter much about painting, Nancy refused her advice in working on the winning painting. "I was bullheaded and did it myself."

Her instructions for the contest were to illustrate a scene from a story in "Seventeen's" literary contest. She was judged on the basis of skill and imagination. The first prize painting portrays a small girl hesitating before awakening her sleeping aunt.

"I have developed my own style but I don't feel like I have anything to say in may drawings yet," said Nancy.

"Art is so intangible. It's something you have to learn for yourself. You are on your own.'

Nancy admits that her work is color heavy. "I like large areas of color, mostly dark colors." The blond coed also studied at Philadelphia Museum, College of Art during the summer of 1962.

Besides painting, she likes participating in intramurals, water sports, and she plays the flute.

Gymkana Troupe Saluted

By MARCI ROBBINS

Youth, vigor, vitality and perseverance intermingled with skill, agility, hours of hard work and fellowship all have gone into the makeup of the gymnasts who presented the Gymkana show for members of the student body and faculty during the past week.

The theme of the program this year was "Passport." Passport took the audience to various countries in the world to see outstanding exhibits in gymnastic feats. The girls vie for the title of "Miss Gymkana" represented the beauties of these countries.

Approximately 60 people donated their time to the actual production of the show, not counting those who worked on costumes, promotion and publicity. The coaches for the show were Rich Miller, better known to the FSU populace as Sammy Seminole; and Elinor Miller. Another outstanding member of the Gymkana team was Gail Sontgrath, member of the US Olympic Team in 1960. Florida AAU champion, Jim Goodman was also featured in the pr gram.

An unusual feature during the s was the put on by the "Tumbl Tots of Tallahassee." These t ented tots have been on the "Mic Mouse Show," and have b featured in magazines, movies a TV throughout the country. Six t participated in "fast competi tumbling," staircase acrobatics a other feats in the program.

Students taking the gymnast classes offered by the Physical E ucation Dept. all have a chance try out for the Gymkana Show. Hartley Price suggests a list of t more outstanding students in course. Many of the performers Gymkana have been in the gymna tics PE course at one time.

Most of the gymnasts have had pri experience, before attending FS Many got a first taste of gymnasti through high school PE course

Throughout the year, the FSU Gy kana team will perform either ind vidually or as a team at vario functions and competitive meet

FSU Theatre Entertains Youth

As far back as anyone can remember (so says the director of the FSU Theatre, Arthur Dorlag), the University Theatre has been producing plays for the children of Tallahassee.

In the mid-50's the Junior League of Tallahassee, a women's national service organization which is involved in charity, cultural arts and community services of various types became associated with the University Theatre. Even since then, the League has paid all the expenses for the annual children's play, organized the transportation of the children to FSU, and has served as ushers.

This year there are seven performances of "The Wizard of Oz," running from Nov. 9 to Nov. 23 for the thirds and fourth graders of Tallahassee's elementary schools. Only one performance is open to the public and it is scheduled for the last night.

The University Theatre chooses the play and advanced dramatic students usually direct the children's play. Bill Valle, candidate for a master's degree, is this year's director and script - writer. Likewise, FSU Theatre handles the costumes and setting, and the cast has already been chosen.

Ways to expand the children's program have been under consideration for some time, but as yet Dorlag concedes, "We are still in the process of discussing ways in which we might expand the program."

Dorlag observed that "The children's theatre is one of the most exciting kinds and offers just as much challenge as adult theatre does. Children are so much more responsive yet there is the problem of controlling their response — in getting to laugh or scream at the right minute."

Past performances have included such old favorites as "Alice in Wonderland," "Little Black Sambo," "Cinderella," "Rumpelstiltskin," "Aladdin," and "Sleeping Beauty." Besides these familiar fairy tales FSU Theatre has done original scripts also.

Wonder Who Wore What?

By VICKI ROBRIGUEZ
Flambeau Feature Writer

Anyone curious about what kind of garb Marlene Dietrich might have worn as she slinked across the screen in one of her movies could wait for the movie to come on the Late Show... or go to the Metropolitan Museum of Art... or wade through crumbling copies of "Movie Screen"... or peek into the Home Economics Bldg.

There, on the third floor, is a collection of historic dresses whose oldest member dates to the hoop and parasol era of 1850. Containing over 100 items, the collection was started while FSU was still FSCW and it has especially grown in the last five years. During this span, it has been supplemented by approximately 500 costumes coming from 50 donors.

Some of the more illustrious contributors include Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower and the family of former US President James Polk. Hoping to start a collection of Florida governors' wives inaugural gowns, the department has written to Mrs. Farris Bryant and has received promise of hers.

The costumes aren't kept around just for curiosity's sake, though. Being part of the clothing and textiles department, they're at the disposal of 150 clothing and textile majors and the 500 home economics majors who can obtain from them ready inspiration for fashion design or visual reference for term papers on historic costumes or style trends.

Aside from dresses, there are hats and lingerie, intricate laces and tortoise shell haircombs, fans and elaborate christening robes, sportswear and handbags, men's ties and children's clothes. There's even an orange Indian costume. The garments hang on racks in plastic bags, the more fragile ones being stored loosely in boxes.

Close track is kept of individual articles, each having its "ID" card on file. The card gives a sketchy description of the article, its date, donor and any other information of special interest. Frail members of the collection are photographed and their pictures pasted along side the vital statistics. It has also proved necessary to photograph the shifts of the 1920s on models recruited from the home economics staff — it seems their historical value would otherwise have been lost since on hangers they are easily confused with flowered pillowcases.

As a reflection of style trends, the shoes in the collection are possibly the most fatal giveaway of women's fickleness when it comes to fashions. A pair of flats, looking uncomfortably akin to modern Capezios, shows that square toes were in vogue in 1859. These were followed by pointed toes in 1895, which gave way to rounded toes two years later. And these three fashions were in turn eclipsed in 1912 by the grandest trend of them all -- what else? Boots.

Pardon me if I sound as if the executive position I've landed deals with the whole future of the world.

It does.

Certainly, there's no organization today conducting more vital business than the business of the United States Air Force. And very few organizations that give a college graduate greater opportunities for responsibility and growth.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team—with good pay, a 30-day paid vacation each year, educational opportunities.

How can you get started? For many, the best way is through Air Force ROTC. But if you missed out on AFROTC, or if there's no unit on your campus, you can still apply for Air Force Officer Training School. This three-month course leads to a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

'Fair Weather Friends'

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

"We're looking forward to playing the big teams on the last of our schedule. One of these days mighty soon we're going to bust loose at the seams and run over some big team. When we do, the people who are booing us now will be crawling all over us and saying, 'I knew you could do it. That's why I stuck by you.' There are just too many fair weather friends in the student body here."

The man talking is a Florida State football player. This statement and what follows are his opinions of the students of this University, and more particularly, the football team he plays on. It is not one individual player, but ten in an informal bull session in Smith Hall, where they live.

"This is a different ball team now. We realize we have a good team. Every player knows he has to get up for our next games."

"Everybody's wanting to win bad. We've made a lot of mistakes, but we're not going to let up."

"A football is an oblong ball. It can bounce either way. The game has a lot to do with breaks. So far this season, everything just hasn't jelled. We just have to have breaks."

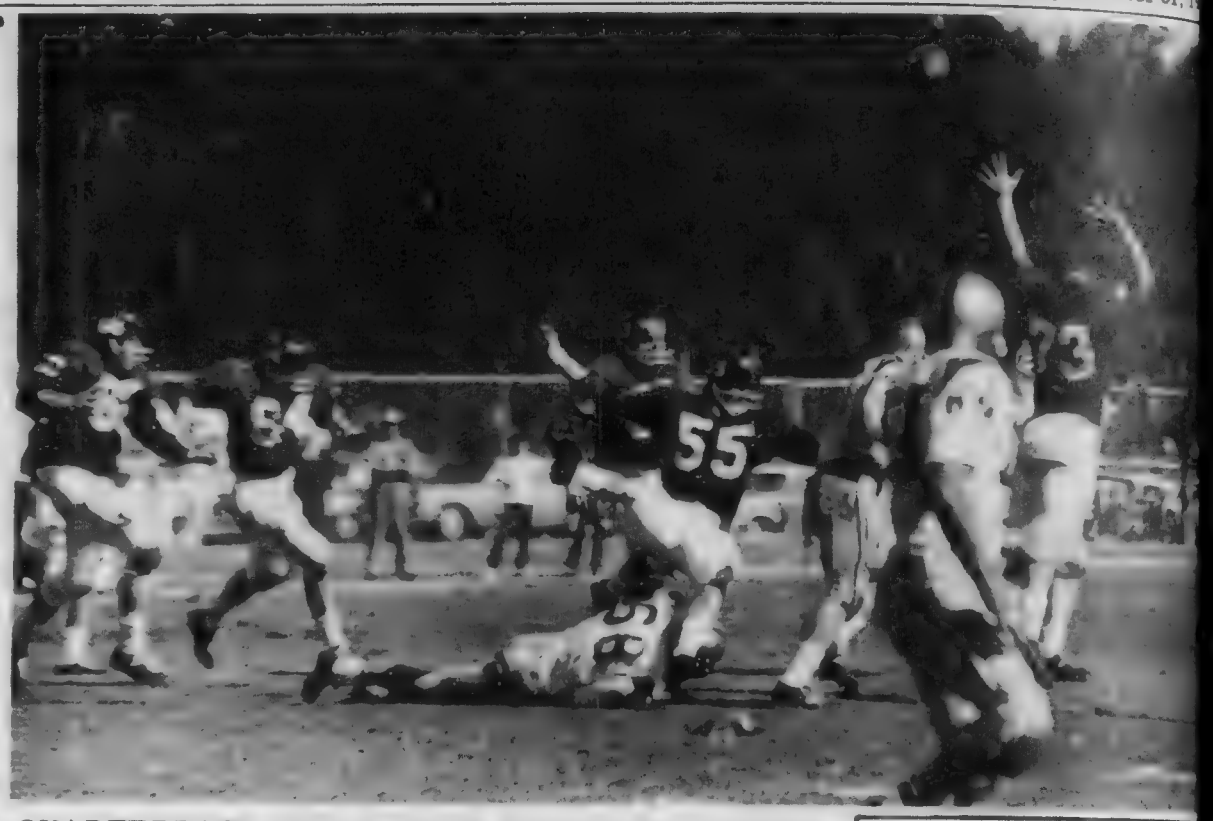
"Students don't know what we go through. Their fathers often pay their way through, but we have to work our way through. While they're getting ready for dates, we're out practicing for over two hours until dark."

"There is not as much excitement this year as there was last year. Some of the boys weren't getting up enough for the last games, and were listening to the radio on the way to the VPI game."

"The student support this year is the worst I have ever seen. A lot of people this last weekend passed up a chance to go to the VPI game to go to the Florida Homecoming game. The students at this university don't deserve a thing. There is more spirit at a high school game than at one of our games."

"It would help the team to knew the student body is behind us, DESPITE our 2-2-1 record. It means something to you to have people in those stands supporting you. As it is now, everybody in the state is down on us."

STUDENTS DON'T ATTEND PRACTICES



"This is the only school Iknowof where the students don't go to a football team's practices as well as games. At Georgia Tech, Alabama, and Auburn to name a few, they can't keep the students off the practice field. I have yet to see a lot of students at our practices."

"Being favared in every game after the Miami trip also affected us. We got overconfident.

"Our seniors, are doing a good job of leadership.

"The substitution rule is more confusing. If we are going to use it, I think they should use the Warriors (all offensive players) unit more.

... for a 13 yard gain in the first quarter of play against VPI. Tensi, hidden behind Gobbler tackle Lynn Jones (73), completed 13 of 23 passes for 185 yards.

Tribe Tackle Corps Hopes To Be Ready

In practice for the next opponent, Furman, who features a 6-1 record, FSU's Seminoles are being shifted around in the line to take up the slack of injuries to tackles.

Joe Avezzano, a one-time third team center, alternated with Avery Sumner on the Chiefs' (both ways unit) at right tackle. Jack Shinholser ran at a Renegade (defensive unit) berth right behind them.

Meanwhile, ex-right tackle Dale Mac Kenzie took up the right guard position on the Renegades. Sophomore Jay MacMatthews took Avezzano's third team spot.

The entire tackle corps is expected to be ready to play in the Paladin game Saturday, with the exception of Jerry Bruner and Ferrell Henry, both left tackle veterans, who have ankle and knee trouble.

A SIXTH PLACE ON THE QUEEN'S WAGON

A logistical problem came up for the high command of FSU's Homecoming Nov. 15-16 when a tie vote resulted in six coeds being elected to the Homecoming Court. The queen's float has places for only five girls to ride, the usual number of the Court. To accommodate a sixth passenger Homecoming General Chairman Warren B. Nation, left, a professor of marketing, and the two student chairmen, Linda Luna and Bill Harnage here are busy with a tape measure making plans for reconstructing the float. The float, used year after year in Homecoming parades (and also in inaugural parades for governor) still has much of the crepe paper and tinsel from last year's parade clinging to it.

Polls To Be Open For Voting Today

By WALTER MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Elections for the Homecoming Court and the Who's Who Contest takes place today from 9 to 5 p.m. at designated polls.

All six candidates will remain on the Homecoming Court announced Dr. Warren B. Nation, Chairman of Homecoming, since there was a tie for fifth place in the runoff voting. This is the first time in the history of FSU that there will be a six member court.

"The only problem that this decision creates is that at present the Homecoming float has places for only five girls to ride. However, this difficulty will be worked out somehow," Nation said.

Jon Karey, commissioner of elections, said that vters should disregard the deleted sentence on the Homecoming ballot since all six candidates will be included on the Court.

Students will name one of the six as Queen in today's election but her identity will be kept a secret until the Pow-Wow on the opening night of Homecoming, Nov. 15.

Thirty-six students will be selected today to appear in this year's "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

The 48 nominees for this election were selected by the presidents of campus organizations and their qualifications were reviewed by a nominating committee.

A 2.5 overall average for five trimesters is required for eligibility. The student must also have shown by his college record his ability to be of service to his community and society; outstanding leadership in the various activities of campus life, and cooperation and willingness to give time and effort in educational and extra-curricular activities at FSU.

A person who has below a 2.5 and is among the top five nominees may be eligible as long as his overall average does not fall below the all-students average for the trimester prior to the selection of the "Who's Who" nominees.

The polls are located in Westcott lobby, in front of Bryan, in front of the Seminole Club and at the Student Center. All students may vote for Homecoming Queen, but only graduate students and seniors are eligible to vote in the "Who's Who" election.

'Pre-Law' Director To Speak Here

Dr. Kenneth L. Black, professor of law at the University of Florida Law School and director of pre-legal education for the state of Florida, will speak here Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Black will discuss "Pre-Legal Education" and will answer questions from the audience at the end of his talk. Sponsored jointly by the Government Dept. and the Pre-Law Society, the lecture is aimed at educating students to the responsibilities and opportunities of the legal profession.

The lecture will be open to the general public, and students especially interested in the legal profession have been encouraged to attend.

Student Killed On Expressway

Claude Thomas Bernard Jr. died Wednesday in a head on crash on the Jacksonville Expressway when his car went out of control. Three other people were hurt in the crash. Bernard was driving west on the Expressway when he lost control of his car and crossed the concrete median strip, crashing into an oncoming auto. He was thrown through the windshield of his car and was dead on arrival at St. Luke's Hospital.

Bernard was a student at FSU during 1961 and was an officer of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

He lived in Jacksonville and worked for May-Cohen Department Store where he was a window decorator. The Housemother and representatives of Alpha Tau Omega will attend the funeral today at 11 a.m. Arrangements for the funeral will be handled by the Robert Nangle Funeral Home.

HC Decorations

All students, float chairmen and house decoration chairmen needing tissue or crepe paper for Homecoming, will meet this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in the Student Lounge of Longmire.

Those unable to attend should call Miss Williams, ext. 2860, before 3:30 p.m. today to let her know the quantity and color needed.

FSU's Minus To Attend Second Vatican Council

Rev. Paul M. Minus Jr., FSU chaplain, will leave today for a three-week study of the Second Vatican Council in Rome.

While at the Vatican Council, Dr. Minus will compile material for a book he is writing on the new Catholic approach to Protestantism. He will attend as reporter for the "Journal of the Methodist Theological School in Ohio."

In order to cover the Council in this capacity, Minus was awarded press credentials by the Vatican Press Office. His agenda will include conferences with many of the bishops and theologians attending the Council.

Minus will go by plane to Rome with a one day stop in Belgium at Catholic University of Louvain. He spent a year there compiling material for his doctoral dissertation on "The Contemporary Catholic Reconsideration of Protestantism in French-speaking Europe."

When he arrives in Rome, he will

Holley Misquoted

In the Student Senate story in yesterday's "Flambeau," Bob Holley was incorrectly quoted as saying, "Other student newspapers support themselves, so why can't the 'Flambeau'?"

Holley's exact statement was "Other student newspapers, despite opinions to the contrary, do support themselves." He said also, "When I claim that the paper is 'editorially unrepresentative,' I do not specifically refer to the editorial page but to the editorial decisions and actions as well." He cited examples of what he considered the "editorial unrepresentativeness" of the paper.

In stating his purpose in appearing before the Senate he said he felt he was speaking for the good of the University in letting the campus know the "true facts about the 'Florida Flambeau.' "

University Inn Closes Down

After two and one half weeks of picketing, the University Inn closed down at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Reports that business had increased since picketing was begun were false said Mrs. Mary Lou Nix, proprietor.

Business had decreased steadily "to almost nothing" since picketing began.

According to Mrs. Nix, the building was just leased so it was not up to her whether or not to serve Negroes.

Dancers From South India Due On Campus Next Month

Shanta Rao and her company of dancers and musicians of South India will perform in Westcott Auditorium on Dec. 12 for FSU students and the general public in a premiere for FSU and Florida.

One of the great dancers of the world, Shanta Rao is a master in the centuries old Indian classical dance forms preserved in remote villages by master-teachers while the rest of the world and even the rest of India all but forgot the existence of the classical dance tradition.

The present tour is being arranged by the Asia Society Performing Arts Program, launched a little more than two years ago in order to give American audiences a first hand acquaintance with the great living arts of theatre, music and drama from the Asian countries.

Now performing in New York City and other major cities of the North, the Shanta Rao dancers have received glowing reports from critics after each performance.

"It is not necessary to understand one thing about Indian dance and culture to appreciate Shanta Rao. Hers is simply great dance," report the dance reviewers.

FSU last March, were highly praised, and requests for additional companies have been numerous.

Tickets are being sold in the office of Dr. George A. Lensen, 215 History Bldg. Tickets will be $2.50 for students and $3 for the general public. All seats are reserved.

'Morally Obligated'

Professor Melvin Mencher of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University said that colleges and universities are "morally obligated" to guarantee full freedom of expression to the college press.

Mencher addressed student newspapermen at the annual convention of the Associated Collegiate Press in New York.

He said too many school administrators do not believe the college press can serve any academic function. Furthermore, he added, officials constitute the major obstacle to freedom of the student press. He listed three "basic truths" which are ignored by those discussing freedom of student expression:

1. Most college publications are not free. Despite administrators who contend otherwise, most college papers "are subject to restraints prior to publication." Administrations limit areas into which the college press can go.

2. Most administrators do not want full freedom of student expression. "These people are dedicated and hard working men, but they are concerned with placating legislatures and donors. The student press is interested in issues, not edifices."

3. The argument that freedom of the press depends on responsibility is "spurious." There is no "definition of freedom of expression which makes freedom dependent on responsible behavior." Actually, he said, the student press acts responsibly but looks into issues which the university might not want examined.

"The point administrators make is that they seek restraints on the campus press to protect the dormitory cook from being libelled and to prevent some disappointed student actor from making broad hints in a play review about the personal life of the head of the drama department. They say, that is, that they are concerned about good taste and libel.

"This simple is not so. Those who want to limit the student press do so for far better reasons and they demean themselves when they talk such nonsense about the so-called irresponsibility of the student press. They really want to keep students from examination of some political and social issues that might embarrass the university," he said.

Mencher said the college's moral obligation to the student press is the same as its obligation to faculty members' freedom of expression and the sanctity of the classroom.

"The university recognizes that one of its major functions is to encourage the expression of ideas and the testing of theories," he said. This recognition, he went on, should be applied to the student press.

Senate Should Think Of Students

Sportswriters, immediately following the Miami game, were pleading for "the real Miami defensive team" to stand up. Meaning of course, that the presence of the Miami defensive squad had not made a serious impression on the FSU offensive squad.

Well, now the plea about campus is, or should be, "Will the Real FSU Class Officers" please stand up? Come out come out, wherever you are. This situation reminds me of the famous book titled, "Where Are You Going?". . ."Out"."What Are You Going To Do?". . ."Nothing."

We are now well into the second month of school and, regretably, student senate is bogged down in the mire of its own statutes and approving appointments has entrapped student senate in a stifling rut, aided greatly though by a sad lack of leadership and guidance from its own elected leaders. . .the three vice presidents: Stokes, Ryll and Procter.

Student Senate desperately needs to become genuinely concerned about the student body and its welfare and get away from its own self-absorption and self-enchantment. If they took this bold step they would not lack for issues or problems to deal with. But the individual senators and the Senate leadership needs to open their eyes.

Well, anyway, some of these problems that need action are: 1. Senate should pass a resolution defending the privileges of the FSU Negro student and at least stand and be counted on this crucial p blem. 2. Obey the student body ferendum passed last spring terminate the class officer progra 3. Pass a resolution requesting fr the administration three gradua ceremonies per year. The stu body also voted for this last spri 4. Reconsider the "re-ap tionment of senate bill" brought last spring. 5. Set up provisions an adequate court system and leg lative body during the third trim ter. Honor Court folded up in middle of the summer and the Se never existed. 6. Limit the num of people from one fraternity can hold top level student gove ment offices.

Need I say more to the senate t is supposed to "Think Big" year?

I guess if Kelly Reid or somebo from Student Senate isn't going announce who the new Honor Co Justice is then this column will h to. The new Justice if James N man, a Pi Kappa Phi from Pan City and a science major. Seems a pretty nice fellow.

• • • • •

Speaking of Pi Kappa Phi's, re checks into the top levels of s dent government reveals a s stantial case of infestation by me bers of the Pi Kappa Phi frater For instance: two of three cheerleaders are Pi Kaps; Bill H nage, Director of Homecom Darry Wood and Chuck Cutajar, s ators; John Kaney, Commissioner Election; Bill Branch, Secretary Finance; Jim Newman, Honor C Justice and Frank Ryll, Men's V President are all members of same fraternity. . .Pi Kappa P My apologies to any Pi Kap key position that I may have miss

It may be possible that top stu government policy is made in the Kap chapter meeting and not in Longmire Bldg. Reminds me of McDonalds farm: here a Pi K there a Pi Kap, everywhere a Kap.

In the short run it may not see unwise to have such a large nu ber of people in the upper brack of student government from one f ternity since most of these fello are doing a good job. But from broader viewpoint of total stu participation or special interest fluence in student government, is not good nor healthy for one f ternity to dominate so many key po itions. Student Senate should co sider a statute limiting the numb of people from any one fraterni This will hurt someone but it w be good for FSU.

Someone Reads Paper

You can't tell me nobody reads the "Flambeau." After Sandy Turner's column last week about senators not wearing ties to the Senate meeting, every single male senator wore a tie to the meeting. Now if we can get Sandy Turner and the news writers to wear ties to the meeting. . .

I'm starting an off-campus newspaper. It will be financed entirely by subscriptions, and will consist of about ten or twelve pages of letters to the editor (me). No news, no columns, no Gort, no ads. Just plain ole biased opinion. If lots of people subscribe (and lots of people will, judging by the number who signed the petition) the subscription probably won't be more than fifteen dollars or so. Anybody who writes a letter will see it printed in the paper, although there's no guarantee anybody will read it. No pictures, even. You can have your name printed in the by-line in 42-point type, if you want to (after all, what is the most important part of your letter, if the truth were known?). If you're interested, let me know.

It's a pity Sam McCall doesn't like rebel flags and other vestiges of folklore. If he went to the University of Denver he would probably lead a "stamp out Indians" crusade. Some people don't believe that regionalism lends color and personality to a nation. One of the most striking characteristics of the American pioneer is the variety of conditions he conquered, and that's why we have rebels in the South, cowboys in the West, and carpetbaggers in the North. Accept it for what it is, Sam.

Has anybody heard of Alpha Council since tapping last spring? The Sophomore Council has been outstanding in its service activities this fall; Alpha Council must be planning something big, they're so quiet. An organization with eighty-odd members (supposedly selected from the most outstanding) contains a lot of potential.

It's about time the campaign posters came down, isn't it? If you were in Senate last week you heard the announcement to take them down, but if you weren't, you ought to know. They've only been up for six or seven weeks; I mean, the election is over.

Columnist Blasted

To the Editor:

Re: Mr. Sam McCall's column of October 30, 1963. Mr. McCall has proven himself to be the epitome of the cult of "sick minds" which have come to haunt many of FSU's publications. Be it social rejection or some other sociological problem with which these pseudo-sociologists-intellectuals cannot cope, the end result is invariably the same. Fight back tear the existing social structure to shreds, and then complain some more.

Indeed, Mr. McCall's slashing remarks against the South and its heritage bespeak of high quality ignorance and callousness--the very same things that Mr. McCall claims to be against. The South is not perfect and doesn't claim to be. But our forefathers fought a war valiantly and were defeated with honor. Our land was ravished by the scum of the North. No one denies these things. But we, the great-grandchildren of these soldiers, were left a heritage that is as indigenous to the South as the clay of Georgia. Out of the ashes of Atlanta has grown what is today--almost a complete economic recovery from nothing.

For all of those "damn yankees," remember this. Your group destroyed the social and economic structure of the South almost totally. You had the power to shape the socio-economic structure that exists today, but you bungled the job. Now your group is an expert on racial relations and is trying to do a job 100 years late. Leave us alone, hypocrites. You have no moral right to cast any stones.

Future Of U.S. Determined By Acceptance Of Socialism

One of the most decisive political decisions the American public is facing today, other than that of race problems, is the amount of Socialism to allow in our governmental and economic system. Our future political relations with the west and indeed our even now evolving relationship with Russia will be direct consequences of this decision.

The American populace has accepted a good amount of big government and Socialism thus far without overt reaction. History has shown us that man is too base an animal to employ unrestricted capitalism honestly. History has also shown us that Socialism has not lived up to its promises.

Seeing this the great majority of Americans have accepted capitalism (government regulated) and socialist flavored measures as a necessity today's world. They have accepte small bit of the "welfare state" order to combat the excesses of J.P. Morgan era and depressi years. The people have also accep ed Social Security, a modified Socialism, in which each individ is nothing but a number, in order have a reliable though small dole later years.

One thing that should be straighte ed out immediately is the differen and coincidental similarities tween big government and Socialis This hazy area is one that needs be clarified in each mind before ea can seriously consider the combin tion of big government and Soci ism, if any combination at all is pr ferred.

...Socialism

The following are a few diverse examples: In some cases both systems have to view the individual as nothing more than a number. This seems to be an integral concept of Socialism, but in big government only a result of attempts at more efficient handling.

In a Socialist state any "welfare" program initiated originates for the benefit of the people. There are no private enterprises to handle things comparable to our Blue Cross, life insurance, etc.

Such a program initiated in our society under a big central government serves oth the purpose of a "welfare' program and "stability of government" program. The TVA was initiated because private enterprise would not move into this area of Tennesssee. Now that the government has done much work in this area, a better class of citizenry is assured thus fulfilling both categories mentioned.

In other fields the government has restricted capitalist interests not because it harbors overt Socialism tendencies but because certain practices harmful to the public (and therefore the government) need to be curbed.

As mentioned before, the public has already accepted some Socialist flavored programs as necessary. Let me point out that they have dumped others ("Medicare') as not necessary. Most Americans reject Socialized medicine as not in the best public interests, either.

Already the American public is choosing its mixture of capitalism and socialism though the citizenry is not consciously aware of it.

We don't have the Socialists (American Socialist Party) themselves to fear. Norman Thomas himself stated here on campus last year that the American Socialist movement today is now almost entirely of an educational nature. The Socialist movement would blossom only in event of capitalism's failure, a rerun of the 1929 experience. (Anyone who confuses Socialism with Communism is lost.)

What Americans need and are coming up with now is a rather idealistic concept I'll call United Statesism (the term "Americanism' has been distorted by radical right wing hate groups.)

This concept when perfected if ever, will put all people on equal footing: All people protected from the ravages of big business big depressions, red tape big debts: anything the lone individual cannot cope with. In addition, this concept would also assure the individual his distinct personality unhampered by a misfortune of economics or any of the personal restrictions normally associated with Socialism.

At Coffee Hour

Flory To Discuss Carpetbagger Governor

English Prof. Claude R. Flory will go back to the troubled times of Reconstruction in Florida for his subject at the English Coffee Hour at 4 p.m. today, in Westminster House, at FSU.

"The Marcellus Stearns Story" will be the subject of his talk about a Carpet-bagger governor of Florida. Last summer while vacationing in Maine Flory met and talked with an aged neice of Stearns, Mrs. Alice Dowell of Center Lovell.

Stearns, said Flory, built what was the finest school building in the state during his term, a school for Negroes called Lincoln Academy.

Mrs. Dowell was living on the old Stearns homestead and was well in her 70's. Flory talked for some length with her about her uncle and her recollections will be a part of his story at the Coffee Hour.

Stearns was a general in the Civil War and lost an arm. He studied law under an education plan for wounded veterans of the Union Army. Moving to Quincy, Fla., Stearns was admitted to the bar in Gadsden County in 1868. He joined the Freedman's Bureau and began working for the Negroes.

Negroes, getting to vote for the first time, found in Stearns a political organizer. Carpetbagger Stearns was speaker of the House in Florida for seven meetings from 1869 to 1872.

Stearns was serving as lieutenant governor in 1874 when Gov. Ossian B. Hart died March 18. Stearns succeeded to the governorship and although Hart died before the mid-term election of 1874, the Constitution then in force permitted Stearns to serve out the unexpired term and he was governor until January, 1877.

West Florida Seminary, now FSU, was on the site of the present Westcott Building. The new governor used state funds and within 200 feet of the Seminary built Lincoln Academy for Negroes.

Stearns ran for re-election in 1876, carpetbagger Stearns was defeated by George F. Drew, Democrat, 24,179 to 23,984.

Leys To Open Lecture Series

A widely known philosophy lecturer and author, Dr. Wayne A.R. Leys, opens the 1963-64 Public Lecture Series of the Government Dept. Monday at 8 p.m. in Strozier Library Lecture Hall at FSU.

The Government Dept. series relates politics and government with other fields. Other lectures to come will be on psychology, economics, law, sociology, anthropology, history and geography.

Leys has lectured in many top universities on the ethical problems of public administration and on administrative ethics in in-service programs of various governmental agencies. In 1962 he lectured in Venezuela, Colombia, and Brazil under the sponsorship of the Office of Cultural Exchange of the State Dept.

At present, he is professor of philosophy and dean of the Graduate Division at Roosevelt University in Chicago. Several of his books have been published by Prentice-Hall and other publishers and are widely used in classrooms.

Leys has served as consultant for various educational organizations and for the Operations Research Office of Johns Hopkins University.

Nine Receive Scholarships

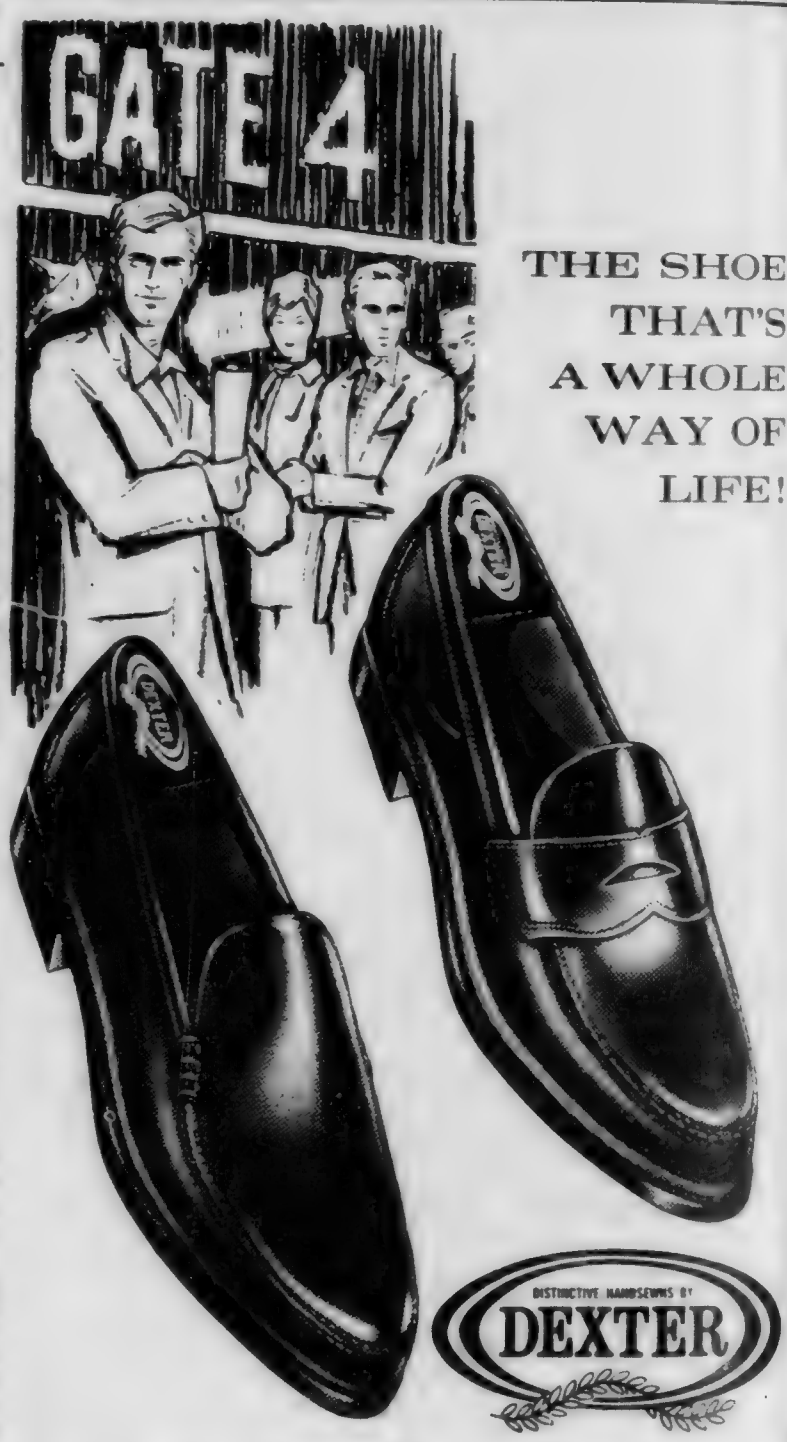
Florida Bankers Association scholarships have been awarded at FSU to nine advanced students in the field of finance in the School of Business.

Scholarships cover tuition and books in the junior and senior years and are limited to the field of banking and finance. Funds given to FSU students brought the total number of scholarships awarded since 1955 to 188, totaling $93,000.

David S. Holden, secretary of the Bankers Assn., made the awards at a luncheon. Holden said recipients were obligated to stay in the state and enter the banking field. He explained that funds came from contributions by the 377 state bank members to the Bankers Educational Foundation.

Grants go to students who excel in scholastic average, ability and aptitude, need, leadership, future plans, personality and character.

AFROTC Dance



The Air Force ROTC cadet wing will sponsor a dance tonight, in the Suwannee Room.

Public Relations Day To Be Next Week

"Public Relations in the Space Age" is the theme for the annual Public Relations Day at FSU next Thursday. Among the speakers will be Cypress Gardens' well known promoter and publicist, Dick Pope.

Don Shoemaker, editor of the Miami Herald, will be the speaker at a luncheon to be held at 12 noon in the Elk's Club. He will be introduced by FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell. After more than 20 years of newspaper work in North Carolina Shoemake became editor of the editorial page of the Herald in 1958. He has been editor since Jan. 17, 1962.

Most sessions of the daylong meeting, which is jointly sponsored by the School of Business and the Hush Puppy Chapter of the Florida Public Relations Association. will be held in the Starry Conference Room (220 of the FSU Business Building. Sessions will get under way at 9:30 a.m. with Dr. Royal H. Ray, chairman of advertising and public relations instruction, presiding. Ray is coordinator for the conference

"The Profession of Public Relations; and Public Relations in Business and Industry" will be the topic of a panel discussion for which James Hunter of the Hotel and Restaurant Commission will be moderator. Panelists will be Howard E. Anderson, executive director of the Council of 100, St. Petersburg; Rollie Hinton, public relations director of Minute Maid, Orlando; Charles A Horrworth of the American Hotel and Motor Hotel Association, Miami; and Alan B. Fields, Jr., president of FPRA and assistant to the supervisor of advertising, Gulf Power Co., Pensacola.

"Public Relations in Government and Service Organizations" will be the subject of a panel at 2 p.m. with Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of public relations, presiding. Pope will talk on tourism and Edward Henderson, executive director of the Florida Education Association, will speak on education.

At 3:15, following a coffee break, the speakers will be Rep. Mallory Horne, speaker of the House, talking on government; and the Rev Walter H. Styles, Faith Presbyterian Church, speaking on religion

A hospitality hour and dinner in honor of speakers and visitors will be held at Skyline Restaurant from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. with the Hushpupp chapter as host. Pat Hogan, director of public relations at FSU, is president of the chapter.

The program committee for Public Relations Day is composed of Hunter chairman; Mrs. Audrey Hayes, William Johnson, Hendrix Chandler, and Dr. Kobre.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES
SALUTE: JERRY SANDERS

Data transmission is one of the most valuable tools of modern communications. And Southern Bell's Jerry Sanders (B.S.E.E., 1959) sees to it that Mississippi businessmen fully benefit from the service. Jerry is Sales Supervisor in charge of data sales and coordination for the entire state of Mississippi.

Outstanding performance on earlier assignments earned Jerry his key promotion. On one job, he engineered cable and microwave facilities. On another, he planned the complex conversion job needed to make Dial Teletypewriter Exchange Service available in his area.

Then came an opportunity to attend the Bell System Data School in Cooperstown, New York, a necessary preparation for his latest promotion.

Jerry Sanders, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

'St. Francis' Shows Tonight

"Francis of Assisi," starring Bradford Dillman, Dolores Hart and Stuart Whitman will be the campus movie showing in Westcott Auditorium tonight.

The story of Francis of Assis concerns a gay blade who become aware of an emptiness in his life He joins the army and during a war, when the army is in retreat, he is commanded by God to leave. He obeyed and in doing so was denounced as a traitor. He is thrown into prison for this crime and upon his release is commanded by God to rebuild a church outside the town

Annual Recital To Be Tomorrow

Members of the Tallahassee Music Teachers Association will present their fourth annual scholarship recital tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Theme of this year's program is the Dance Form. Waltzes, minuets, sarabandes, and sambas will be featured. The program will include piano, organ and vocal solos as well as various ensembles.

Proceeds from the concert will be used for FSU Summer Music Camp Scholarships. Partial scholarships have been awarded for the past three years to deserving young student of TMTA members.

Charlotte Reinke, Betty Jane Grimm, Richard Collins, and Walter James of the FSU Music School faculty will appear as guest artists in the work of Brahms' Liebeslieder Waltzes for vocal quartet.

These FSU students have recently been recognized by the Air Force ROTC Cadet Wing as "Distinguished Cadets."

FSU Cadets Named 'Distinguished'

Eighteen FSU Air Force ROTC Cadets have recently been recognized by the AFROTC Cadet Wing as "Distinguished Cadets."

James Eaves, Wing Assistant Information Officer, explained, "This is one of the highest honors awarded to ROTC cadets. All such cadets have shown outstanding qualities of leadership and high moral character as recognized by the AFROTC Cadet Selection Board."

These cadets are considered "superior" in service to the cadet wing as well as interest, and will be considered for an appointment as an officer in the US Air Force upon graduation.

Paladins Quick On Draw

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer

Lead by little (5-9, 165) Danny Donovan and big (6-0, 195) Ernest Zuberer, the Furman Paladins come to town tomorrow afternoon to try and avenge a 48-0 setback to the Seminoles last year.

Furman, having one of their best seasons ever, have currently won six and lost one. Their only loss was to William and Mary by a 27-17 score. Furman has won all of their away games this year, upsetting Vanderbilt, beating Wofford, and upsetting the Citadel. In the last game against the Citadel, Furman scored three times in the second half to defeat the Bulldogs 34-25.

The offense is sparked by quarterback Donovan and fullback Zuberer, both having very good seasons. Donovan in another rollout passer, and has been very successful. He has completed 34 out of 68 for 519 yards. He has thrown four touchdowns and has run for three himself. To give an idea of his ability, he has carried the ball ten times less than Dave Snyder and has outgained him by 23 yards.

Zuberer is the middle man. He has powered for 409 yards in 94 carries for a 4.3 average. He leads the team in scoring with five touchdowns and running one extra point for 32 points.

John Cook and Sammy Pickens are the halfbacks. Cook is the fastest man on the team and was second in rushing yardage in the conference last year. Last season he was the leading score on the team with 6 touchdowns for 36 points. He is also the punt and kickoff return man.

Sammy Pickens is the most versatile man in the backfield. He is one of the best receivers of the backs, the best defender, and a fine blocker. This year he has carried for 167 yards, caught four passes and scored four TDs. He has been the first string halfback for the past two years.

The line is lead by Captain Doug Stacks, a 6-2, 205 pound center. His coach considers him the best in the Southern Conference. The Ends are manned by Seniors Pete Luongo (6-1, 210) and Doug Shaw (6-1, 205). The tackle spots are also manned with two-lettermen Seniors. Charles Floyd (6-3, 218) and John Gettys (6-2, 205) are second team members of last ye squad. Julian Carnes (6-1, 215 Walter Preston (5-10, 193) are guards, both are Juniors.

Optimism Prevails

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

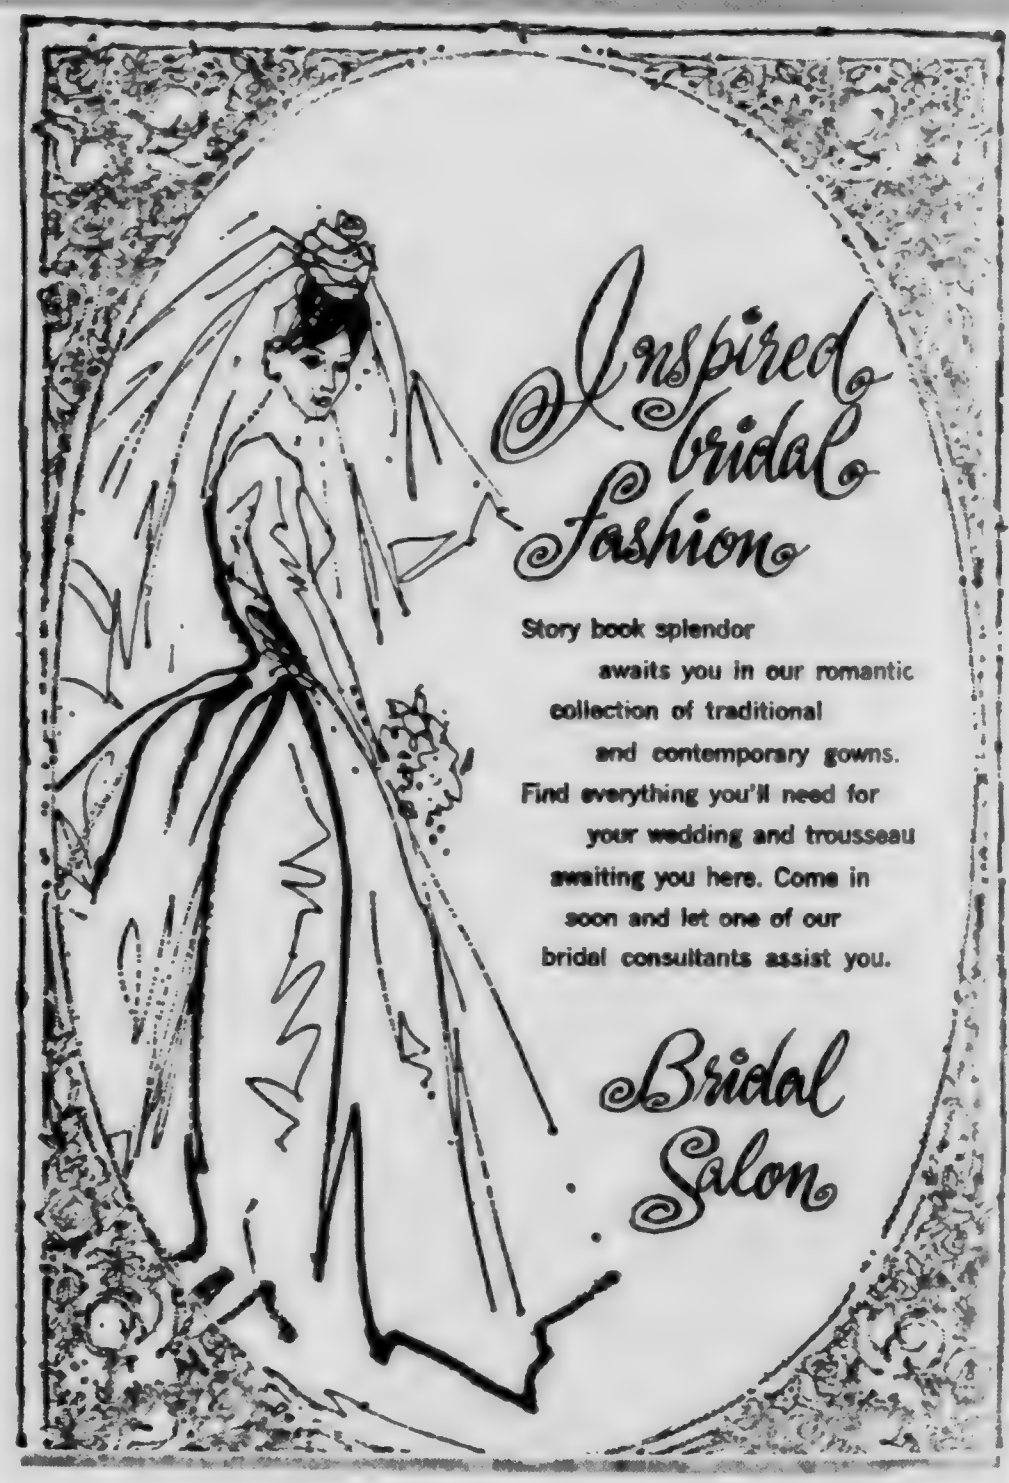
What a difference a game makes!

Florida State's football Seminoles, have returned to Tallahassee Municipal airport twice this season. The first time, they were greeted royally by a crowd of over 2000 persons.

The second time they returned, after the scoreless deadlock with Southern Mississippi, they had to play second fiddle to a local high school team returning from an out-of-town loss.

The Leon Lions, returning from Miami, had a crowd of 200 waiting for them. Their plane, a jet, landed just ahead of the Seminole charter plane. By the time the tired Tribe members hit the ramp, the airport was deserted.

Now, as we are approaching the second half of the season, things are no better. The football team thinks that most of the students have let them down and failed to support them. The students think the team is goofing off and doesn't deserve any support.



One thing is for sure; neither students or players are completely right in the charges, but as long as one is dissatisfied with the job the other is doing, this is going to be a long, long football season.

Maybe I'm a dadburn optimist, but I think things are going to work themselves out. After talking with students, coaches, and players, I believe that the rain clouds are clearing away.

Student support depends on the play of the team, which I believe will improve. Although murderer's row is yet to be faced (Georgia Tech, N.C. State, Auburn and Florida) this team has the potential of realizing the task facing them and getting "up" for each game.

Whatever "getting up" will be done must come from the individual players, just as the individual student must decide that he is going to cheer at a game, for a change. The senior lettermen can help by inspiring the younger players, just as the cheerleaders can help by urging the undergraduates to cheer.

Finalists Are Chosen In Miss Tally-Ho Contest

The 1964 Miss Tally Ho contest was held Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 30 and 31, in the Opperman Bldg., with six women chosen for the Tally Ho Court.

Members of the court are Patsy Burnham, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta; Sheila Clarke, Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Delta Theta; Joanne Elliott, Pi Beta Phi; Linda Goldsmith, Delta Zeta, Alpha Tau Omega; Joanne Goodman, Kappa Delta; Susan Slaughter, sponsored by Pi Beta Phi.

Pictures of the six finalists will be sent to five judges in different parts of the state for further judging. Miss Tally Ho will be announced during second trimester.

Entertainment was provided by the Minutemen on Wednesday night and the Watchmen on Thursday night.

Circle K Elects Officers

Circle K, a campus service organization, have elected executive officers for the coming year last week.

The officers are: Walt Deece, president; Ray W. Hayes, first vice president; Norbert O. Martin, second vice president; Gene White, secretary; and Gary L. Yates, treasurer.

Members of the Board of Directors are: David Coldwell, Harry Rickenbacker, Gene Stevens, and Bob Teel.

"The Circle K Club has experienced a fine response to its fall rush," said Nobert Martin, second vice president, "All of the new members came to us with fine backgrounds in high school and junior college leadership and service to their former campuses."

Dance Tryouts

Dance try-outs will be held on Tuesday by the Cavalier and Cotillion service organizations at the Student Center between 8 and 9:30 p.m.

All persons who are interested may attend. Previous dance lessons are not necessary.

International Club Elects New Officers

Officers of the International Club for 1963-64 were elected recently at the first formal meeting of the club.

Newly elected officers are Rosemary Bukowitz of Venezuela, president; Madhar Khandekar of India, vice president; Khursheed Alam of Pakistan, treasurer; Ellen Ulfarsdotter of Iceland, recording secretary; and Louise Carter of the United States, corresponding secretary.

The purpose of the International Club is to establish international friendship. The members of the club have invited more students to join with them in order to promote this friendship.

Anyone wishing to become a candidate for membership and who would like to have his name placed on the mailing list may send his name, address, and $1 to Khursheed Alam, 327 Conradi Bldg. Bacteriology Dept.

Who's Who Election Results Are Revealed

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Representatives for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities were selected by popular election Friday.

The 36 students chosen are: Beverly Acher, Betsy Boote, Patsy Brill, Charlie Calhoun, Susan Cawthon, Charles R. Cutajar, Bobbi Darrah, Pamela Doud, Elizabeth Drummond, Carolyn Duyck, Linda Duyck, Elizabeth Eastridge, Evelyn Flathmann, Jean Fountain, Thomas Haney, Dorothy Jackson, Bobbi Kaminis, Jon Kaney, Ann Kendall, Beth Ann Legate, Daniel Litwhiler, Alice Marshall, Jackie Mathis, Pat Melton, Lana Murray, Marsha Orth, Kelley Reid, Joe Rogers, Johnny Smith, Clyda Stokes, Kim Stratton, Patty Warren, Ellen Whigham, Ruth Williams, Bunny Worsham, and Carolyn Wronske.

These students were elected from a ballot of 48 students. The nominees were selected by the presidents of campus organizations.

The qualifications of the students who were nominated were reviewed by a nominating committee. This committee was headed by Mike DeVane, President of the Junior Class. Committee members themselves were appointed by the student body president and were drafted from the various departments of the University.

The names of the students who were elected will appear in the publication, "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

To be eligible, a student must have an overall 2.5 average for five trimesters. The nominee must have shown by his college record his ability to be of service to his community and society and to have shown outstanding leadership in the various activities of campus life.

A spirit of cooperation and willingness must also be shown by the student in giving time and effort in educational and extra-curricular activities at FSU.

A student may be eligible even if he does not have a 2.5 average if he is among the top five nominees and if his grade does not fall below the all-students average for the second timester prior to the selections of the candidates.

The winners pictures will appear in a special section of the Tally-Ho, the FSU yearbook.

Mademoiselle To Add Poetry In Annual Contest

"Mademoiselle" Magazine's College Board Competition has added a poetry contest in its efforts to discover and publish talent and ability in art, writing, fashion, merchandising, promotion and advertising.

Each year "Mademoiselle" selects twenty colleges for a Guest Editorship, in which they spend a salaried month helping edit the August College issue of the magazine.

The Guest Editors read and write copy, illustrate articles, advise the Mlle staff on campus trends, represent the magazine on visits to advertising agencies and publishing houses and attend parties in their honor. The 1963 winners flew to Switzerland for six days to be photographed for the issue.

The College Fiction Contest offers two winners $500 each and publication in Mlle. The runners-up will receive Honorable Mentions and Mlle reserves the right to buy their stories at the magazine's regular rates. The finalists will receive personal criticisms of their stories from Mlle's Fiction Editor and their stories will be brought to the attention of top book publishers and literary agents who also are looking for new writers.

The two winner's of Mlle's Art Contest will illustrate the two winning College Fiction Contest stories for the August publication. Each winner will receive $500 for her work.

Details for Mlle's college contests can be found on central campus bulletin boards. Deadline for Art and Fiction Contests is March 1.

Groups Must File

Attorney General Arnie Gibbs has requested that all campus organizations, other than religious and greek, bring a list of present officers and members to the Attorney General's office, 210 Longmire. This list should be in the Attorney General's office by Nov. 8.

"All organizations not complying by Nov. 8 will not be given University recognition. This means that these organizations will not be able to meet or conduct their business on the campus," according to Gibbs.

Pershing Rifles Begin Initiation

Initiation week for the Pershing Rifles will begin November 5 in the Suwannee Room at 6 p.m., when the 28 pledges will eat a "square meal."

The pledges will guard the women's dorms beginning at 7 p.m. Friday night and continuing until 10:30. "All girls are encouraged to check up on the guards and make sure that they are doing their duty," Russ Blumenthal, Company Commander of Pershing Rifles.

At 1 p.m. Saturday the pledge-active football game will be held. The following Tuesday, at 7 p.m., the formal initiation ceremonies will take place in the military building.

Soph. Council

There will be an important Sophomore Council meeting tomorrow at 9 p.m. in Longmire auditorium.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Chiefs Have Spirit

The FSU Marching Chiefs band, rated as the outstanding marching band in the South and one of the tops in the nation, is also one of the most spirited groups on campus.

Their tradition of fun-loving antics in no way stands in the way of serious preparation for top-notch programs, however. Students are always certain of a treat each time the Chiefs enter the playing field.

We would like to suggest that the Marching Chiefs schedule indoor concerts from time to time, of some of their original arrangements. We are sure many students would enjoy hearing the tremendous Marching Chief indoor sound.

In addition to the members of the band, the staff deserves a pat on the back. Robert T. Braunagel, the director, Dr. Cliff Madsen, the assistant director, and Charles Carter, whose arrangements give the Chiefs their "unique" sound, contribute to the Chiefs' claim to fame.

Certainly the Marching Chiefs can look forward to many more years of notoriety -- in work and in play.

University Inn Closes

Last week, the University Inn closed its doors rather than serve Negroes.

The pickets now are receiving the blame for "putting a man out of business." Mrs. Mary Lou Nix, proprietor of the restaurant, reported to the "Flambeau" that it was not her decision whether or not to serve Negroes, since the building was leased.

It was obvious before picketing began that the Inn did no large volume of business. Certainly, however, the picketing must have affected its trade significantly.

We wonder, did the lease agreement specify that the restaurant could not serve Negroes? Or did the proprietors just prefer that someone else answer questions as to why they would not give service to FSU Negro students?

Team Needs Help Of Students

To the Editor:

The student body of this university has witnessed its football team drop two football games it "should" have won, and tie another it was supposed to have won. I was present at the Miami game September 20th, when I would have sworn there wasn't a team in the nation we couldn't have scared to death on the football field. I was also present at the TCU game where a pass interception and a soggy field made the difference between defeat and victory.

I saw this football team clock against Wake Forest in the latter 3/4 of the game resulting in a decisive victory against a surprisingly game opponent. I heard FSU lose a t... Mississippi Southern over the r... and I witnessed probably the w... day last Saturday that a team a... school will ever have.

I think of my parents, my fri... (especially those at Gainesville) ... my relatives that have been kee... a close watch on my team since ... victory in Miami. I want them t... proud of my team and to know t... go to the same school as the me... this team. I am not a member o... squad, but I use the expression "... team" freely for if I, as a mem... the student body, cannot call ... team, then whose team are ...

But somehow, I consider the ... tion of what is more import... me, a senior in college, wh... public thinks of my team, or w... think of my team? I think of wh... season could have been at the ... way mark and I suppose I ... sick. But I don't. One good re... There's nothing I can do about ... past. I, nor anyone else can do ... thing to change our 2-2-1 reco... the halfway mark.

But, if I could plead or beg the ... dent body of this university to do ... thing. I would ask them to sum... their maturity and pride and ... port my team with their comm... their yells, their screams, ... clapping hands, and whatever o... means they have of supporting a ... ball team. We, the student body ... the football team, can do somet... about the future. We can help w... the story of the greatest c... of a team this school or the ... has ever seen. We can defeat ... Racial Assertions Answered

To the Editor:

I would like to answer a few assertions concerning the picketing of near-campus restaurants by FSU student opposing their policy of racial discrimination. These assertions are aside from the childishly defamatory remarks made in letters to the editor which serve graphically to illustrate the caliber not of the demonstrators, but of much of the opposition.

One of these assertions is that the pickets are "picking on" these places by making them suffer from loss of business. Let it be known, however, that pickets alone cannot possibly hurt anyone's business. If the profits of these establishments are hurt under these circumstances it can only be because a majority of people on campus, by not crossing the picket lines, object to the fact that these places will not serve students who happen to be Negroes. In this case a good businessman would seize upon the opportunity to please the majority of his prospective customers. Incidentally, that is still free enterprise.

Another assertion, which is rather unfounded, is that the pickets are hurting the reputation of the university. If the reputation of a university could really be hurt by such exercise of civil liberties by its students as picketing, then such places as Harvard, Yale, Oxford and the Sorbonne would have long ago lost theirs and the reputations of the University of Florida, the University of South Florida and the University of Miami would be on their way to ruin.

No, the fact is that the reputation of a university is much more likely to be hurt by such things as the mob violence that took place here two weeks ago and the fact that restaurants near the campus offer an affront to the University by refusing to serve Negroes who are otherwise good enough to attend the institution itself.

Jim Barfoot, Jr.

Action Commended

To the Editor:

Student Body President Johnny Smith should be highly commended for his actions in the racial crisis. It took real "intestinal fortitude" not to be afraid to publicly voice his views in the "Flambeau" before the critical eyes of 13 000 students and faculty.

With some 20 local hoodlums surrounding him near the University Inn on Oct. 14 he stood with Dean Oglesby and verbally backed down two of their leaders. His proposals to the groups who sponsor the picket lines are the most sensible and realistic I've heard.

This student body has right to be proud that a man like this leads them.

Buddy Johnson Jr.

Gratitude Expressed

To the Editor:

Mr. Steve Vaos, an international graduate student in geology, wishes to express his sincere gratitude to the anonymous student who thoughtfully returned his Greek passport lost early in October. Mr. Vaos was saved much difficulty with the national government through the constructive action of the student who found his passport, and would appreciate the opportunity to express his thanks personally.

Students should be aware of the kind and helpful service they can render by returning lost objects they have found, and are encouraged to take the extra time and responsibility necessary.

Bomb Haunts Black And White

The bomb haunts the Negro citizens of Birmingham, we are told, as they wonder when and where the next explosion will occur--and who, if anybody, will be injured.

The black man is concerned with the safety of himself, his family and his community, so he patrols his area at night to repel a possible bomber or at least to identify him. A local Negro college hires men to protect the campus... a church hires another man to protect a house of God.

The white man fears the bomb aftermath. He imagines himself driving home at night and turning a corner where he is surrounded by angry, riotous Negroes, protesting a bombing.

He recalls the periodic stabbings and beatings administered to luckless motorists.

He reads of a white youth hit in the head with a brick and fears that his child will live in a coma for four days too.

He reads of a detective's daughter being slashed in the arm by a Negro while she rode through a Negro district on a city bus. And he thinks of his daughter and frankly admits he fears a racial war.

Safety is his concern too, and he refuses to bear the guilt for a bombing that could have resulted in the death of his child.

Nonetheless, it is unfair to describe the 600,000 citizens of this area as living in "a city of fear," because 99 per cent of their days are tranquil and it is only after a bombing that the city tenses and jumps whenever the sound barrier is broken by a passing jet.

The city's latest bombing, which featured a "bait" bomb to lure a crowd into a shrapnel trap, is clear evidence that the people are aware of bomb aftermath pattern.

The pattern, which has been established since June, is Explosion--po-

Other bombs been placed in or near densely lated, lower class Negro areas. rthermore, past bombings had rred during the weekend period Friday night to Sunday night. wever, on Wednesday morning, "bait" was exploded in a middle s Negro neighborhood and nobody gregated or protested, and when shrapnel trap went off, no one jured.
did the pattern fail? The neigh- od is characterized by more ued emotions as compared to Negro areas ice point out that the "bait" was weak and exploded harmlessly ome bushes. Confused by the area's jumbled layout, the police drove around looking for a damaged house when the "trap" exploded "almost in our back seat."

A crowd would have had little luck in finding the "bait's" explosion site, since the police were not able to determine it until several hours later. So added to the mistaken "when" and "where" should be "how much" dynamite.

But is the pattern dead? Can the white and black men quit worrying about their families? The last two bombings indicate that both races still have threats to their lives.

Until the church bombing, the explosions apparently were meant to terrorize, on September 15 four died and the bombs became murder weapons.

As in the past, the "trap bomb" is viewed in two lights. On one hand, people consider it the deed of a bigot trying to slaughter the oppressed Negro, while other feel it was planted to envoke the sympathies of General Kenneth Royall and Colonel Earl (Red) Blaik, the JFK emmisaries who are probing the racial problems of this city.

However, despite the purpose of the bomb, its effect, had it been successful in trapping a crowd, can be easily judged. Killed and injured would have been Negroes, who would feel only greater hatred towards racial injustice; policemen, who are segregationists keeping law and order and who would be looking even more intensely for the bombers; and gentlemen of the press, who would brandish their mightier-than-sword tools even more vigorously.

Claude Flory Discusses 'Marcellus Stearns Story'

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Marcellus Stearns, the 11th and youngest governor of Florida, was the last Republican governor," stated Dr. Claude Flory at the English Coffee Hour last Friday.

Stearns was born in Maine and attended Colby College. He left college to join the Union Army in the Civil War, and during the Battle of Winchester in 1864, he lost his arm. Due to wounds or death of his superior officers, Lt. Stearns was placed in charge On the first flurry a musket ball knocked the lieutenant's sword from his hand. A sergeant retrieved the sword and returned it to the lieutenant. On the second flurry another musket ball shattered Stearn's arm below the shoulder.

After the war Stearns studied law, came to Florida, and worked for the Freedman's Bureau. With the help of Negro votes, he entered Florida politics on the Republican ticket. He served as Speaker of the House for seven session, Lieutenant-Governor, and then Governor from 1874-1877 upon the death of Governor Hart. Colby College awarded him an honorary AB degree the year he was defeated for re-election as Governor of Florida. "This was no mere gesture as state documents and papers show he had achieved a high educational level," claimed Prof. Flory.

US President Hayes, a Republican, then appointed Stearns to the Department of Interior. Later he moved to Iowa as President of a bank. He was involved in a train wreck outside St. Louis from which he never fully recovered. "Although only 50, Stearns is an example of an old soldier falling apart," said Flory. The experiences of war and eight years of tempestuous Florida politics took their toll and Stearns died in 1891.

The minister at the funeral maintained that Stearns revealed his character by the things he loved. Flory noted that, "Marcellus Lovejoy Stearns was a modest man who was deeply concerned with the heavy burdened." One of the pallbearers was the sergeant who had handed Stearns his sword at the Battle of Winchester.

This Friday at the Westminster House, the English Coffee hour will offer a program on Southern lore by Dr. William Randall, English Dept., entitled "Delius Sets Cable to Music."

Government Lecture Series To Include Eight Major Areas

Eight major fields of study will be represented by some of the country's top scholars in the Department of Government's 1963-64 Public Lecture Series, opening today at 8 p.m. in Strozier Library Lecture Hall at FSU.

Wayne A.R. Leys, professor of philosophy and dean of the Graduate School, Roosevelt University, Chicago, in the first lecture will focus on the relation of philosophy to government and politics.

Theme of the series sponsored by the Government Department is "Government and Politics in Interdisciplinary Perspective," Dr. Malcolm Parsons, chairman of the Dept. said.

Other fields or disciplines to be represented are psychology, economics, law, sociology, anthropology, history and geography. In addition to lectures, the visiting scholars will conduct seminars for graduate students in government.

Hadley Cantril, chairman of the Board of the Institute for International Social Research, Princeton, will speak on January 13; University of Viginia director of the Thomas Jefferson Center for Studies in Political Economy, Prof. James M. Buchanan, is next on January 27.

On February 10, Harry W. Jones, Cardozo professor of jurisprudence at Columbia University, will appear; and February 24, Daniel Lerner, Ford professor of sociology and international communications and chairman of the Department of Social Science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will speak.

Other speakers include professor of anthropology at University of Calfornia, M.G. Smith, March 9; history professor at University of Illinois, Norman A. Graebner, March 23; and Indiana University professor of geography, Norman J.G. Pounds, April 6.

Debate Squad

Eight members of the FSU debate squad traveled to Emory University last weekend for the Peachtree Invitational Debate Tournament.

Participating in their second tournament of the season, FSU debaters met with other teams from the Southeast.

Debaters who made the Emory trip were: Susan Harrell, Richard Root, Carol Clifton, Paul Brown, Nancy Dale, Frank Natter, Nelson Bailey, and Doug Padgett. Harold Mixon and Gene Hutsell, graduate assistants in speech accompanied the debaters.

Tribe Powders Paladins

Football Through A Woman's Eyes

By NANCY ZLATIN
Flambeau Sports Guest Writer

Bright gold uniforms were certainly not the reason that 12000 eyes were on the Seminole football team during the slaughter of Furman on Saturday. The offensive and defensive fireworks provided by the Tribe were the main source of entertainment for a wind-swept crowd braving the 17 mph wind. The sweater weather provided coeds with a chance to show off new winter coats and finery.

However, it was kind of sad to see the "Purple Paladins" humiliated by having 49 points scored so smoothly against them. With FSU's touchdowns coming so consistently, by the fourth quarter the Seminole fans almost seemed bored with the minor opposition coming from Furman.

The first quarter started with the Seminoles moving down the field wih fullback Larry Brinkley and halfback Dave Snyder supplying most of the yardage. Brinkley's 3 yard run started the Tribe off on the right foot with a 6-0 score.

Surprisingly, Tensi's famous passing ability was not put to use until the third quarter. He even showed the fans that he can run by carrying the ball 19 yards in the third quarter.

The Seminoles did not score again until the second quarter. It was Snyder who carried the ball over on a long run through the middle of the line.

The teams exchanged punts and penalties for the rest of the first half with red-jersied Soph Quarterback Ed Pritchett taking over for Tensi and running the team well.

After the halftime break and Band Day ceremonies, which spalshed the Campbell Stadium field with a rainbow of beautifully colored uniforms, the FSU team took one quarter to double the score of the first half. A bad punt carried only to the Furman 20 and the Tribe scored again, with Brinkley going over from inches out. Later, a jarring defensive tackle by Bill Daly separated the Paladin Quarterback from the ball as he was about to pass. The pass, however, was complete to another Seminole defender named Bill (McDowell). Marion Roberts got his turn to score on a 14 yard short pass from Tensi which he carried over the Goal Line.

As the final quarter began, the Seminoles were deep in the visitors' territory. Brinkley ended his day with a three yard journey through the Paladin line. Messer's kick made it 35-0.

Furman finally scored on a 60 yard pass play. The last Seminole scores came one a pass play to Fred Biletnikoff from Tensi, and a 5 yard run by Soph Howard Ehler.

Texas, Auburn Top Undefeated Team

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Staff

After football's eighth week there are only two unbeaten and untied major college football teams, Texas (7-0) and Auburn (6-0), so the scramble for bowl bids is shaping up to be a great one.

In the "grand daddy" of the bowl games, the Rose Bowl, the Washington Huskies have established themselves as favorites in the Big Six Conference with Southern Cal and UCLA still having a chance. The Big Ten, which sends the other team to the Rose Bowl, has a wide open race between Ohio State, Michigan State and Illinois. All are undefeated with one tie in conference action.

Texas and Baylor meet with the host berth in the Cotton Bowl at stake next Saturday. Both are undefeated in conference play. In the running for the other spot are Pitt, Army, Navy Alabama, Auburn and LUS. Another team could possibly get the nod.

In the Sugar Bowl there is a possibility of a match between the top defensive team in the nation, Mississippi, and the top offensive team, Navy. Auburn still has a shot at the home team, and there are other teams available should Navy falter.

The favorite team for the Orange Bowl is Auburn. The committee has stated that Auburn is their preference, but that they would probably go to a higher bowl. There possibility of a rematch of year's game between Oklaho Alabama must beat Georgia Tec Auburn.

There are several teams w should get bids. Navy, with Staubach, should get a bid somewhere. The other ser teams also have a good chance. State, and North Carolina have one loss in the ACC. Baylor ha a good chance in the Southwest with Rice.

Truman To Speak

Tickets Are Sold Out For Homecoming Banquet

By SALLYANNE HUFFAKER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Tickets for the Homecoming Banquet Nov. 15 featuring former President Harry S. Truman, for students, faculty, and staff of FSU were sold out in the first hour after going on sale yesterday morning.

In accordance with the policy established by the banquet committee chairmanned by Dorothy Hoffman all tickets being held for Alumni and not sold by Nov. 11 will be offered for sale to students, faculty and staff beginning Nov. 12 at 8 a.m.

The tickets will be $2.50 each with no more than two tickets per person. Mail order requests for non-alumni are not being honored.

Former President Harry S. Truman will be the speaker at the Homecoming Banquet in the Suwannee Room Nov. 15. Truman, at 79, is returning to a state which was one of his favorite vacation spots during his years in the White House.

He entered politics first by being elected county judge in 1922. In 1934, Truman was elected U.S. senator and in 1944, he became vice president. After only 82 days as vice president, Truman unexpectedly succeeded Franklin D. Roosevelt as president after the sudden death of Roosevelt. Truman was left to finish the war.

After finishing Roosevelt's term, Truman defeated Thomas E. Dewey for a second term. He was the last Democratic presidential nominee to win in Florida.

President Truman's daughter, Margaret, was in Tallahassee just 12 years ago. Miss Truman (now Mrs. Clifton Daniel of New York) then on an extensive concert tour, was the soprano soloist in the opening concert of the season by the State Symphony of Florida on Monday night, Nov. 19, 1951, in the Leon High School Auditorium.

Miss Truman arrived the Saturday before the concert, received reporters at a press conference at Wakulla Springs Lodge and dodged political questions: "I am a singer, not politician," she said.

She sang with an orchestra, conducted by the dean of FSU's School of Music, Dr. Karl O. Kursteiner. Just before appearing at Tallahassee Miss Truman had sung at Lakeland and her Florida schedule included concerts also in Tampa, Bradenton and Palm Beach.

Nancy Kulp, a television and movie personality, will be toastmistress on the same banquet program on which former president Truman will be speaker. Miss Kulp, best known as the tweedy bank secretary on the CBS TV program, "The Beverly Hillbillies," got her BA degree at FSCW in 1943. Many of her classmates expect to be back for homecoming. It was these same classmates which recognized her as a future success in show business. The yearbook described her as "The most lovable show-off you'll ever get to know."

After receiving her degree in journalism, she worked as a newspaperwoman on the Miami Beach Tropics and served two years in the WAVES, where she was a lieutenant, junior grade. She worked in publicity and continuity departments of Miami radio stations WIOD and WGBS and in TV station WTVJ. In addition to the FSU degree she holds a master's degree from the University of Miami.

In 1951 Nancy left for Hollywood and screen-tests. She has appeared in such movies at "Three Faces of Eve" and "The Parent Trap" and in 1954 made her TV debut on Lux Video Theater. Dozens of roles followed on such other shows as the Bob Cummings Show and Private Secretary.

Homecoming will begin with dismissal of all classes at noon on Friday, Nov. 15. The parade will begin at the university gates preceeding down College Avenue at 3:30 p.m. Friday. After the banquet at 6 p.m., a Pow Wow at 8:30 and an informal dance at 9:30 will finish the day's activities.

Saturday's activities will begin with an alumni breakfast at 8 a.m. followed by a business meeting at 9 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, Distinguished Professor of 1963-64, will deliver the Alumni Lecture. Thiss will be followed by a barbecue at noon and the North Carolina State game at 2. Open houses at dormitories and sororities and fraternities, as well as the Leon County Alumni Club Party will be held at 5 p.m. Two Westcott shows are scheduled for 7 and 9 with a dance to begin at 9.

All tickets are or will be available with the exception of the banquet tickets.

'7 Ways Of Love' To Be Presented At Artist Series

A production called "Seven Ways of Love" starring Joseph Cotten and his wife, Patricia Medina, has been added to Florida State University's Artist Series, the first event of which is scheduled in January.

The entertainment replaces "A Thousand Clowns" starring John Ireland, earlier scheduled for Oct. 23 and 24 but recently cancelled. "Ballet Folklorico of Mexico," has also been changed by two days. New dates are Jan. 23 and 24.

YAF Sponsors Poll

The Young Americans for Freedom club is sponsoring a student poll today between Sen. Barry Goldwater and President John F. Kennedy.

Three polls will be set up for the opinion sample. One poll will be at the student center, one will be in front of the Library, and a third will be behind Westcott.

The results of the poll will be published as soon as tabulation has been completed.

Pre-Med Interviews

Dr. George T. Lewis, chairman of the Admissions Committee at the University of Miami School of Medicine will visit here next Tuesday and Wednesday to interview applicants for medical school.

All students who desire to talk with Lewis may sign up for interviews on the Pre-medical Bulletin Board, first floor Conradi, or contact Dr. R. W. Yerger, Pre-medical Advisor, 126A Conradi.

Black To Speak

Dr. Kenneth L. Black, professor of Law at the U. of Florida School of Law, and director of Prelegal Education, will speak today at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Dr. Black will speak on "Prelegal Education" and will answer questions after his talk. "Many students are ill-prepared for law school," Dr. Black said, "They take the wrong courses because they don't know which ones to take."

The Government Dept. and the Pre-Law Society will jointly sponsor the event.

Radford Bishop a graduate of FSU now at the U. of F., established the PLS last year. Roger McDonald is the current president, Horace Smith is vice-president, and Ann Lavar is secretary.

Scholarships

State Teaching Scholarships and State Nursing Scholarships have come in and have been deposited in the Student Bank to the account of those receiving the scholarships.

Society Of Hosts

There will be a Society of Hosts meeting in 236 Dining Hall at 7:30 p.m. All members are urged to attend.

Dance Tryouts

Dance try-outs will be held by the Cavalier and Cotillion service organizations at the Student Center between 8 and 9:30 p.m.

All persons who are interested may attend. Previous dance lessons are not necessary.

Freedom's Price

The lengths to which some of Tallahassee's adamant citizens will go to rid themselves of the "intellectuals" in their midst (i.e., FSU) are incredible.

In a letter to the "Tallahassee Democrat," signed by 28 local citizens, 10 of FSU's best known faculty members came under fire for using their "spare time and money to finance, promote, encourage, and participate in activities which are contrary to law, and which operate to the detriment of the very source of the tax dollars which furnish the platform from which the activities are promoted."

Basis for the attack, which also suggests "more careful selection of students and faculty, a more thorough investigation into their background and purpose," is a letter from the professors to some of their colleagues, asking for contributions to help pay the fines and bond premiums for students found guilty of violating the court order against demonstrations.

The convictions are now under appeal, but the students, many of whom had to borrow money to pay their bonds, must repay these loans. The professors stated they did not condone breaking the law, but believed the students were trying to serve the cause of justice. Because these professors tried to put their concern for students into action, they have been labelled unfit to "teach and influence American youth."

Is it required that a professor sell himself body and soul to the state? That for the privilege of teaching future generations of Americans, he must first abdicate his rights as an individual? That he be admonished to teach only a body of absolute Truth as accepted by the taxpayers?

HOW DOES A PROFESSOR TEACH HIS STUDENTS TO THINK--BUT NOT TO THINK TOO MUCH?

The issue of whether faculty members are obligated to support the "educational activities, philosophies and purposes for which our institutions are intended and which are desired by their supporters" is the basic argument of those who would destroy academic freedom and perpetuate their own prejudices.

It seems that at present this argument is being used to discredit the urgently needed college bond amendment, which will be voted upon today. We, too, would "question the need for additional funds" for university building purposes if the professors who dare to teach their students to think for themselves are silenced.

Of what use are buildings to a university if it should lose the right to proclaim the truth to its students, and to inspire them to strive for a better world?

Seats Needed

To the Editor:

Attention should be focused on the efforts of a student Senator, Mack McKinnon, to increase the number of Day Student Senators from four to eight. The University has become more and more hampered in handling the problem of on-campus housing in recent years. As a result there are approximately 6,000 Day Students living off University grounds with a little less than half that number living on. There are 24 on-campus precinct senators, an average of 1 senator for each 230 students, and four day student senators, or 1 for every 1,500 students.

An argument has arisen that off-campus students do not take as active a part in student affairs. A look at on campus participation however, shows at least proportionate disinterest. Irregardless 16 candidates ran for four day student senate seats in an obviously agressive campaign.

The addition of four new day senators would mean representation on a one senator for 750 students basis. While still drastically unequal this represents a gratifying change.

Let's hope the Senate lays politics aside and takes this step toward fairer representation.

Brown Mistaken

To the Editor:

I should like to make some corrections upon Mr. Paul Brown's article in the "Flambeau" (Oct. 30), otherwise--more or less--it may give improper information to our readers.

1. The British backed new formed country is called Federation of Malaysia and not Malaya Federation. (Malaysia consists of Malaya, Singapore, Serawak and North Bornea).
2. The Government of Indonesia has frequently stated officially that Indonesia never has any claim upon these countries.
3. Concerning the issue of Malaysia, I would like to quote some sentences from a letter to the editor of the Washington Post sent by our Press Counselor in Washington some time ago.

"First, the Republic of Indonesia is not opposed to formation of Malaysia. We are, however, opposed to the manner in which Malaysia has been brought into being.

In Manila, Indonesia along with Malaya and the Philippines, reaffirmed its adherence to the right of self-determination for peoples of non self-governing territories. We stated that we would welcome the formation of Malaysia provided the support of the people of North Borneo and Serawak was ascertained by an independent and impartial authority, in this case, a representative of the United Nations.

This has been stated in the Manila agreements, those documents so often quoted by the press yet never printed by it. And we would welcome Malaysia. . .if we believed that the ascertainment process has been carried out in accordance with the letter and spirit of the Manila agreements.

However, the conditions surrounding the survey, the total disregard shown the agreements signed with such pride by Malaya, the Philippines and Indonesia, and the obvious flaws in the work of the survey team, unfortunately rob the entire investigation of the meaning it should have had, and reduce the outcome to hardly more than an expression of the will of the British."

Holley Startles Senator

Communist! Fascist! Socialist! These were some of the words used by Mr. Bob Holley in his short tirade on the Senate floor critizing the editorial and news policy of the "Flambeau."

No, he did not use these words to describe the "Flambeau," but they did appear several times in the soliloquy which mesmerized the Senate. For once, the Senate was faced with a situation that didn't take care of itself. Mr. Holley came to them and dumped it in their laps.

Mr. Holley has been running a one-man campaign to have the "Flambeau's" policy changed to a more conservative bent which he claims is more representative of student body opinion; 600 have signed a petition to this effect.

Even more interesting was the acidic reaction of Senator Wood to Holley's speech. He severely censured Holley for coming before the Senate in such an abrupt manner, and questioned the logic behind his action. The rest of the Senate seemed stunned by the whole affair. Mr. Holley may have hurt his chances by his actions, but he did succeed in shocking the Senate out of the mental phlegm which usually smothers the Wednesday sessions.

Senator Mack McKinnor introduced a bill to increase the day-student senate representation from four to eight. There is already one bill (#3) in committee concerning reapportionment, but it has died there because in its present form it is unacceptable. The piece-meal solution is to establish a formula to automatically adjust for population shifts in the precincts. Senator McKinnon's approach is naive, but least someone is trying to corre the present inequities, i.e., day dents have one senator for ev 1500 students.

Senator Cutajar introduced bill which would give religious orga zations on campus the right to an unlimited number of fund-rai projects during the year where other organizations are limite two.

As past president of the New Club, Senator Cutajar is surely iliar with the situation, but is ma exceptions with special inte groups consistent wi the pres policy? There are to man raising projects now. Why c things more by giving special ileges to special interest gr What would the Supreme Court CRACKERBARREL CRUMBS, doesn't the Senate act on the ref endum abolishing the Class Program? .... someone do so thing. New name ... Chipmunk he's a BMOC from Melbourne. co Simplici, half the campus cares) knows who you are ... writing a column consistent the ethics of holding an office the executive branch? Is the Se reluctant to act on the COP ref endum because of pressure p them by the Class Officers? the thought ever occur to any that the COP can just be reduced class presidents and secretar What in the devil is going the registrar's office? Get some who can divide to figure up gra point averages .... the present s uation is ridiculous. Men of Senate ... do you know who Min the Mermaid is?

Both Should Apologize

To the Editor:

Mr. Brannon, I welcomed your criticism of my letter; I know that someone besides myself got something out of my article even though it was a negative response.

I have several items which I must question from your letter, however. If you have lived in the South for only five years and you feel as you do then I feel that you have been keeping too much with the radicals and extremists and not enough with the real southern people.

You use words like twisted and warped to describe the white society; just because people do not see eye-to-eye with you or me you cannot call them twisted.

I have talked to a great many negroes, Mr. Brannon, and have worked with them and under them; when I gave the negro the qualities I did I was speaking of the race as a whole and not of the FAMU student body.

You really should have gone into some sort of discourse, even a short one, instead of saying that I was wrong and leaving it hanging there; maybe then I and others would have profitted from your experiences and knowledge of the negro.

I have no cohorts, Mr. Brannon, wrote that letter from my own pe sonal convictions and I never ref red to "we" as you did in reference to the restaurant bo cotting.

Based on your knowledge of negro you may feel that I am wro in my generalization, but I do feel that you have the right to s that you know that I am wr

By your letter, Mr. Brannon, y seem to be quite well up to date the North, South, negro and w societies--just how did you acqui all this knowledge? By readi watching locally, television, etc., using these as your basis you sho not offer so many generalizatio about so many points yourself.

I was speaking for myself; you a speaking for everyone it seems. h referred to my letter as slight confusing, well this is exactly h I feel about yours--so where a we?

I apologized for the inadequacy my letter, Mr. Brannon, and in a earnestness I think you should do t same.

Frieden Summarizes Work In The "Scientific American"

The chemistry of amphibian metamorphosis is described in an article in the November issue of "Scientific American" by Dr. Earl Frieden, who summarizes half a century of studies in this field including much research at FSU during the past 12 years.

The work at FSU includes that of numerous predoctoral and post-doctoral biochemists who have discovered various chemical changes occurring as the aquatic tadpole develops into a frog living principally on land.

The current article, called "The Chemistry of Amphibian Metamorphosis," is the second by Frieden, Chairman of FSU's Department of Chemistry, for "Scientific American." In August 1959, his article, "The Enzyme-Substrate Complex," was published by the magazine and a thrid article has been contracted by him.

The scientist said: "Classical biology was built on careful observations of animal structures and tissues. On this morphological level the dramatic changes in frog metamorphosis were long ago catalogued and appreciated. In the past 20 years research in expanding field of comparative biochemistry has made it clear that spectacular chemical changes are associated with the morphological events of metamorphosis. A number of these biochemical alterations have now been described and measured. Some of them are obviously of immediate survival value. Others apparently serve as the basis for structural changes. Still others seem to have no discernible adaptive function -- but even these may turn out to be essential adaptations when metamorphosis is better understood."

Roughly the same physiological changes occurred in evolutionary development, covering some 280 million years, as fish became amphibians and colonized the land and the amphibians developed into reptiles, birds, and mammals which made the dry land their permanent home.

Included in the article is reference to several Ph.D. dissertations in chemistry at FSU. In 1955 John Dolphin and Frieden reported a tenfold increase in arginase activity in the liver during metamorphosis. This enzyme is important in the nitrogen excretory system of most animals and is believed to be an important adaptation when animals moved from water to land.

Several years later, former FSU student Albert E. Herner, and Frieden pinpointed significant changes in the proteins of blood serum which are responsible for the better conservation of circulatory fluids necessary for life on land.

Current studies by C.D. Trader, who is now completing his Ph. D. dissertation, on the significant molecular changes in hemoglobin that accompnay metamorphosis, are described in considerable detail.

Accounting Careers To Be Discussed

The annual Accounting Careers Day will be held tomorrow in the Starry Conference Room, School of Business.

The event is co-sponsored by the Accounting Dept. and Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting fraternity.

The program of speakers has been drawn from the various phases of the accounting field, ranging from large C.P.A. firms to governmental units.

The purpose of the conference is to acquaint all individuals with the opportunities in accounting. Introduction of speakers will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The speakers are: Mr. Derrick Brown (Arthur Young & Co.), Mr. Donald Sheffield (Allen, Williams, Sheffield, & Watterson), Mr. Marion Pettit, (Assistant State Auditor), Mrs. Barbara Withers (Rose Printing Co.), and Dr. Homer A. Balck (Professor of Accounting at FSU).

Today

There will be a Biochemistry Seminar at 11:30 a.m. in 555 Molecular Biophysics Institute. Kent Stewart will talk on "Complimentation and Enzyme Hybridization."

* * * * *

Richard T. Brown, Jr., will give a talk on "Some Attempts to Model Atmospheric Convection Phenomena in the Laboratory" at the Meteorology Seminar at 4:10 p.m. in 301 Math-Meteorology.

YPSL Adopts Constitution

Larry Lake presented the FSU Young People's Socialist League Constitution at the Socialist meeting in the Library Lecture Hall last Thursday.

James Clark presented a motion to the club that it pass a resolution against inter-marriage "between civilized people and Southerners." The motion failed by a narrow margin.

Other action taken by the group was to shelve a motion, presented by Thomas Riggins, on sending aid to Cuba as a result of the recent disaster that hit the island.

Chairman Lake suggested that all FSU students support the UNICEF drive for underpriviledged children.

The next meeting of YPSL will be in the Education Lecture Hall Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. The discussion topic will be "Proudhon, Christine Keller, and the Twentieth Century." All students may attend.

Alpha Lambda Delta

The Alpha Lambda Delta--Phi Eta Sigma Banquet will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Suwannee Room.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Alan Thomson of the Humanities Dept.

Tickets can be purchased through Wed. at 5 p.m. at 121 History (Dr. Piccard's office).

Pre-Law Meets

There will be a meeting of the Pre-Law Society at 8 p.m. today in the Library Lecture Hall.

Dr. Black, Dean of the Law School at the University of Florida will be the guest speaker.

Seminole Crew Sinks Indiana U.

By CAROL CHRISTENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The FSU Sailing Association won the third place trophy in the very close competition at the Balwin Wood Regatta hosted by Tulane University at Lake Ponchartrain near New Orleans this past weekend.

The regatta was scored on the low point system with LSU of New Orleans in 1st place with 20 points; St. Johns River Jr. College, 2nd, with 24 points; FSU, 3rd, with 25; Tulane, 4th, with 32; Spring Hill, 5th, with 41, and Indiana, 6th, with 47 points.

The 9 races of the Regatta were held in Gannet class sloops. Ken Lacey and Ken Lippencott were the FSU skippers, with Lippencott also as team captain.

Crewing for FSU were Carolyn Bailey, Beverly Brown, Mark Carroll, Barbara McDonald, Jim Rushing, Eddy Ulmer, and Jim Webster.

There will be a meeting of the Sailing Association Wed., Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at 101 Math-Meteorology Building.

On the agenda are the election of officers, and regatta results and scheduling.

To conclude the meeting Dr. Michael Kasha will present a program of selected slides of national and international regattas.

Cagers Open Dec. 2

Thanksgiving may be simply too much for Florida State followers this time around.

School turns out on Wednesday for the holiday, but football Seminoles go to Gainesville on Saturday to wrap up 1963 with the annual interstate battle with the Florida Gators. The date is Nov. 30.

But that's not all. The 63-64 Seminole cagers, who show signs of being one of the finest FSU basketball teams since Bud Kennedy became head coach 16 years ago, takes the school colors right back to Gainesville the following Tuesday to begin their season against the Gators of Florida.

Both the varsity and frosh will play. Lake Kelly's freshmen, however, will have one game under their belt; they open here on the night of Nov. 30 with Bethany-Lutheran, a touring junior college team from Minnesota.

After Florida, the varsity has to deal with the likes of Auburn, Alabama, Rice, Texas Christian and Tulsa before going to Jacksonville to compete in the Gator Bowl Tournament.

The Dec. 7 date with Auburn, tipping off at 7:45 p.m., will be the Tribe's first home engagement. Season tickets may be purchased through the Athletic Ticket Office, Florida State University, Tallahassee. The t... covers 10 home games ... save the buyer $5, since tickets ... the gate sell for $2 apiece.

The Tribe wound up ... of practice and Kennedy rem... confident.

"We've been going through ... same routine, fundamentals, fun... mentals, for two weeks now, ... these boys are still giving me ... all-out effort," he said.

Tensi Seen As State's Best QB

Facts over fancy for Mrs. Joan Fruend's remarks in the Oct. 30th "Flambeau." Mrs. Fruend who sings the blues (all dressed in blue) relative to her reference to "Footballer, Tensi," who "eats that ball week after week" the phrase in quotation is her own vernacular. Tensi is still the leading QB in the state on completion of passes attempted — 52.4%; Shannon of Florida is second completing 51.5%; and Mira of Miami who has chalked up the greatest yardage has completed 51.4%. If FSU fails to win, it certainly isn't due to Tensi's spot as QB. Pritchett who has the potential of developing into a fine quarterback completed 1 of 3 passes in the VPI game or 33.3%. In varsity competition a coach certainly can't play a 33.3% quarterback in lieu of a 52.4% quarterback.

Pritchett and Gero are still sophomores and have the potential of developing into fine quarterbacks to lead FSU when Tensi bows out. It all depends on their rating which they establish on the practice field.

I'm elated when FSU wins, dejected when they lose -- but win or lose, I always back FSU. Good Luck to Tensi.

Bob Holley Addresses BOP; Complaints To Be Considered

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Bob Holley, sponsor of the petition to withdraw funds from the "Flambeau," presented charges against the "Flambeau" yesterday to the Board of Publications.

Holley listed complaints against the "Flambeau's" news coverage and its policy letters to the editor. He referred to the recent letter from a Miss Sue Chu and asked why the "Flambeau" took so long in informing the students of the fact that no such person existed on campus.

Holley continued that he could not understand why the "Flambeau" waited 13 days to inform the student body of this non-existent person if "it's not trying to hide anything."

He also accused the "Flambeau" of trying to smear things he has done. He referred to the article in which parts of his speech to the Student Senate were misquoted. Holley thought that the article itself was one of the "grossest misrepresentations I have ever seen." He said that the correction the "Flambeau" printed did not fully compensate for the misrepresentation of his views.

Holley went on to say that he felt that the student body had no faith in the "Flambeau." He made four suggestions to the BOP: that an impartial author make the facts known to the student body; that a full and impartial investigation of the "Flambeau," its methods, its editorial judgment, and its problems be made; that a poll be taken of at least 10% of the students on their opinion of the "Flambeau;" and the BOP and the students take further action after the first three actions have been carried out.

He said that he felt the civil rights issue was wrapped up in this and that the "Flambeau" could do a great service by providing communications between the two factions. He said he does not feel that such communication exists now.

Holley accused Lana Murray, editor of the "Flambeau," of breaking faith when she talked to a reporter of the "St. Petersburg Independent." He said he felt that the resulting article slandered him.

He revealed that he had talked to a person in the state government who felt that he had good grounds for his convictions. He said that the state official he conferred with thought that the matter should be taken before the state legislature. Holley said that he was "very sorry attention ahd to be brought before the state."

Concerning the Sue Chu letter, Miss Murray said, "We printed the letter in good faith. It was well written, it expressed an opinion... I personally believe that Sue Chu exists."

Holley said that he was asking for new "Flambeau" policies for their own benefit. Dr. Sidney Kobre said that their benefit is their own business.

When asked to produce evidence of bias in the "Flambeau's" news coverage, Holley produced an article printed in the "Flambeau" Oct. 18 about a poll Student Government had taken concerning the restaurant issue. Holley said that the "Flambeau" did not include the questions from the questionnaire that Student Government used.

Ray Berenguer, an international student, questioned Holley's statement to the effect that the Sue Chu letter had upset many of the international students on campus. Holley said that he received his information from a staff member of the Foreign Student Advisory.

The Board of Publications put off action on Holley's complaints until the next meeting Tuesday. The board did, however, change the letters to the editor policy.

Letters to the editor must now bear the student's signature, student number and address. The board ruled that the "Flambeau" must keep an IBM registrar's student list in its office and must check names on letters printed. Any letters not from FSU students will be carried with the proper identification of the writer.

Organizations Need To File

Attorney General Arnie Gibbs has requested that all campus organizations, other than religious and greek, bring a list of present officers and members to the Attorney General's office, 210 Longmire. This list should be in by Friday.

"All organizations not complying by Friday will not be given University recognition. This means that these organizations will not be able to meet or conduct their business on the campus," according to Gibbs.

Homecoming Blocks

All fraternities and organizations desiring block seating for the Homecoming game must attend the meeting Friday at 3:30 p.m. in the Attorney General's office, 210 Longmire.

THIS YEAR THERE ARE TWO

...Homecoming dances planned for the weekend of the FSU-NC State game. Homecoming Dance Chairman Sandy Staten (right) explains the plans to Jim Beard, Dance Publicity Chairman, (far left), Carol Peters, in charge of decorations, and Gene Stearns, Co-Chairman of the Dance Committee. There will be an informal dance on Friday night and a coat and tie dance on Saturday. Tickets will go on sale Monday, Nov. 11.

Merting To Introduce Procedure Bill

By AL GALBRAITH
Flambeau Staff Writer

John Merting will introduce a bill in today's Student Senate meeting which outlines a procedure for filling vacancies in elected offices.

Merting's bill would affect the Judicial and Legislative branches of student government. A standing nominating committee would be formed for each branch for the purpose of selecting three candidates for each vacant office who meet all the requirements of the office. The president of the student body would then appoint one of the three candidates to the office. The appointment would then be subject to confirmation by two-thirds of the Student Senate.

The bill is sponsored by seven other senators: Ken Cherry, Sue DeShazo, Gary Hurlbut, Judy Longworth, Bruce Robinson, Ed Scott and Jeanie Williamson.

Ed Scott will introduce a resolution calling for a committe to investigate the possibility of placing the compulsory laundry service on an optional basis for the upperclass women.

Another resolution, also to be introduced by Scott, would set up a Food Services Committee to replace one which previously existed.

Bill X, introduced by Phil Watkiss, is expected to come out of the Judicial and Rules Committe. Watkiss' bill sets up a plan to fill vacant offices by presidential appointment.

Bill XII, introduced by Mack McKinnon, is still in the Elections and Appointments Committee. This bill would introduce four new senators to represent the Day Students.

The Organization and Finance Committee will give a favorable report on Bill XIII as it is reintroduced to the Senate floor, according to chairman Alice Marshall. Bill XII was introduced by Chuck Cutajar and would give religious organizations permission to hold more than one fun-raising project per year.

Society Of Hosts To Meet Tonight

The Society of Hosts, a hotel and restaurant management organization, will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 236 Dining Hall.

The purpose of the society is to increase the knowledge and understanding of future hotel and restaurant managers by having various guest speakers and discussions.

Cadets Starving?

A Thursday afternoon for most ablebodied undergraduates on this campus is two hours of participation in the required activities of the Reserve Officers Training Corps of the Army and Air Force detachments on campus.

This session of drilling and marching in sometimes adverse weather conditions consumes a lot of energy which can be replaced only by a good hot meal.

The students are advised to eat before the drill begins at noon, but it is next to impossible to find time to eat, finish preparing the uniform for inspections, dress and get over to the drill area, especially if the student has morning classes.

The drill is scheduled to end at 1:45, but hardly ever does, due to the required final assembly which often takes longer than expected.

Students who try to eat after drill, even if they are dismissed on time, must run to make it to the nearest Food Plan establishment, The Student Center, before the lunch line closes at 2 p.m.

Since ROTC participation is required and involves a large number of students, both in advanced and basic, it would be in the best interests of these individuals to prolong the serving hours of the Food Plan to accommodate them.

The exact number of University students who are on the Food Plan, but can not find the time to sandwich in a meal before reporting to ROTC, is not known. But, every meal that is missed costs them at least 50 cents. This can add up easily and burden a student.

If the operating schedule of the Morrison's Food Plan Service is set up to serve for three hours each meal, it might be a good idea to balance the extra hour around Thursday noon so that the serving lines open at 11:30 and close at 2:30.

This accommodation to students' schedules would not cost too much if applied to one particular serving locality on this one particular day.

Although the number of students involved may not be too large when compared to the student body, it is not good business to deny service because a required class interferes with serving hours set up before a semester has ever begun.

Poor Representation Can Be Solved

By MACK McKINNON

One of the most obvious problems of Student Government is the poor representation of Precinct 14. This may be seen by careful examination of the issue and, with proper consideration, can be remedied.

Precinct 14, which encompasses all of the students living in non-university owned housing, is being denied the right to fair representation in the Senate of the Student Government. This district, with approximately 6,000 students, has only four senators for representation. Each senator from Precinct 14 represents 1500 students compared to the constitutional ratio of on ator for every housing unit of 130 to 360 students and two senators for every housing unit of 360 students and over. Since Precinct 14 does not have a single housing unit of 130 students, the representation of this area must be estimated.

The difficulty of obtaining complete fair representation for this precinct lies in its wide distribution and the unpredictability of the location of these students from year to year. The 4,096 male students may live within walking distance or, if they own cars, anywhere in the city. These students are free to move, at any time, to almost any location, which complicates any attempt a definite area-precincting.

The female students living in th area are confined to supervise residences resembling those of fra ternities or sororities. These re sidences usually have between and 60 women but do not, singly have the required number of 1 students for one senator. These re sidences are located in the sam general area but are, by their ver nature, temporary in that the may be deserted when the new dorm itories are constructed.

It must also be considered that junior colleges increase in bo number and size, there is going t be a constant influx of students th will need housing. These student will prevent any tremendous de crease in the number of student living in off-campus housing.

The problem of representation further increased by a general, a though not predominant, feeling apathy among these students towa some of the functions of Stude Government. This does not, how ever, warrant their tremendou under-representation. It also migh be brought to the attention that there were 16 well-qualified candidates who ran for these four offices t represent 6,000 people. It can a be confirmed that the highest can didate, from the day-students, re ceived a total of 130 votes in th final election in which there wer only eight candidates. This migh well be compared to the eight v received by the unopposed candida from Alumni Village. Interest the lack of it, can never be determining factor of representatio because it is intangible and cann be accurately measured. If interes were the issue, then I ask "H much interest creates the office one senator?'

Within the limitations of my power and at the same time realizing complexity of the problem, I ha proposed that the number of sena tors from Precinct 14 be increase to eight. This increase will tem porarily relieve the tremendo under-representation of day-st dents until some more truly rep sentative measures can be take The increase of day-senators wi by its very nature, stimulate m interest and participation in Stud Government and, at the same time give the students living in Precin 14 a greater, more representati voice in Student Government.

It is my sincere hope that, whe the other senators have considere this bill, they too will see the nee for better representation and vot for its acceptance.

Attacks Unwarranted

Even more frequently now do we hear expressed the view that the federal government is "stealing" rights supposedly belonging to the states and/or to the individual.

It would seem as though many of these attacks on the institution of federal government are unwarranted, and I shall attempt to present some reasons to this effect. Let me further hasten to add that this beligerency of a portion of the populace toward the federal government is not fostering intellectual scrutiny of our governmental operations, but is fostering a climate in which faith in one's national leadership is being constantly strained because of inflamatory and overly critical material circulated by the media of communication.

It seems extremely difficult for people to realize the simple truth (at least as far as our situation here in America is concerned) that with an increase in population, you must have an increase in governmental authority. An individual today cannot possibly exercise the same influence over governmental action that he could have during the days of George Washington's presidency. This is not to say that anyone's freedom has recently been encroached upon, it most assuredly has not; if anything our freedom has been strengthened. I think the populace of George Washington's day would have dealt rather harshly with an 18th century equivalent of one of our present day far-left or far-right splinter groups.

On occasion the federal government has taken it upon itself to intercede in a state's affairs because the state was perhaps carrying on said affairs in a manner detrimental to a considerable segment of its population. Over the past 100 years the "prodding" of the federal government has definitely sustained a progressive influence in the Southern states. On the matter of federal taxation, until a majority of the Southern states begin to give more money to the federal government than they receive from it, I suggest that they calm themselves. We might also note here that the (Southern) states which supposedly maintain the greatest dislike of federal government are usually the states getting the biggest handouts. We are undergoing a centralization of authority not only on the national level, but on the state and local levels as well.

Rather than engaging ourselves in the present pasttime of hate-mongering directed toward the institution of federal government, why not occupy ourselves with a more studious attempt to understand the decisions arrived at by those in the positions of authority, who in most cases certainly have had the benefits of superb education and actual experience.

Of any particular faction or doctrine we may ask the following: Is the pursuance of said consideration likely to lead to a constructively critical evaluation of the present situation, or is the pursuance more likely to result in national disunity, needless antagonism, and political unrest of any other kind?

In facing the trying events surely to arise in the future, a loose confederation of states has no place among competing powers of the world.

New Student Directory Best Ever

The Student Directory put out this year by Alpha Phi Omega--men's service honorary was the best ever. It came out one month earlier than previously and at a two-thirds reduction in price. It was certainly more attractive and had a more complete coverage of phone numbers and included the faculty listings with the students.

Two particular members of Alpha Phi Omega deserve special thanks. They are Bill Smart and Mickey Mc Carthy. Bill got the project for APO; conceived the original form and lay-out and did a lot of the groundwork this past summer. Mickey took over near the end of the summer and carried the project through to a very successful conclusion. Both fellows did an excellent job. . .Thanks again to all APO's.

Whatever happened to the splashy series of columns on the fraternity system at FSU by Bob Rackleff? There were supposed to be eight articles, but after the first two the series sort of pooped out.

Well I guess that after saying that 85% of the people in Student Government are Greeks and that they have a very active social life, there isn't very much left to say about them.

* * * * *

There are on this campus certain Greek groups that do stand out in an exceptional way. One is the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. This past week they have been working with the Tallahassee J.C.'s telephoning Tallahassee property-holders reminding them to vote. A few weeks ago they distributed posters for the Fire Prevention campaign downtown. In addition they have cut down somewhat on their social activities, partially so they could devote more time to service activities.

FSU can really be proud of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

* * * * *

I guess Student Senate showed how concerned it was about one of the most crucial problems on campus. . . the racial crisis. Senate flatly refused to even consider the matter. It must take some mighty tricky mental gymnastics to state why they didn't bother with it. Senate can't ...y it's a student problem as well ...a nation one; they can't deny that ...y do represent the Negro students ...campus although there isn't a ...re in Senate; they can't deny ...there is a sizable block of stu... that feel the Negro students ...uld be able to eat at the restau... nor can they deny that this segregation is somehow wrong and a black mark against FSU. So why are they ignoring the issue?

Senate has the choise of dealing with issues like this in some manner other than ignoring it or it can continue to flounder in the minutiae of statutory revisions and in the seemingly endless round of meetings which all too frequently are barren of significant results. Senators should remember that being a "leader" involves some risk. By ignoring these problems they won't make any mistakes but neither will they do anything constructive.

To date the class officers traditional givers-of-dances, have not sponsored one single, solitary dance for the student body, at a dollar per couple, or at any price.

Well, perhaps it doesn't matter since other groups have taken up the slack. . .AFROTC with two big free dances and the cheerleaders with one at only 50 cents per couple. From these indications, to date, it would seem that class officers have abdicated another responsibility and traditional activity.

FSU's Boda To Appear At Annual Symposium

John Boda, associate professor of piano, theory and composition will appear in the first annual Symposium of Contemporary Music for Brass that will be held at Georgia State College this weekend as part of the observance of the College's 50th Anniversary year.

The Symposium is the result of a need felt by the Southeastern Composers League to separate works for small groups from those for symphony orchestras. The Georgia State College Brass Ensemble, composed entirely of students, was selected by the League to begin this new program.

The Ensemble's past performance include quarterly formal concerts, an appearance on the Georgia Tech professional artists series, a weekly radio series on WSB-FM, programs for the Atlanta public schools, and a performance with the Atlanta Symphony in "Belshazzar's Feast."

Compositions included in the Symposium were submitted by members of the League and chosen by a selections committee headed by William Hill, assistant professor of music at the college. The selected works will be performed by the Brass Ensemble at the Symposium and discussed by their composers.

All concerts will be given in the Recital Hall at Georgia State College except the Sunday afternoon program which will be in the Walter Hill Auditorium at the Atlanta Art Association.

The final concert will be composed of outstanding works selected from the Symposium. At the concert, a comission award of $300 will be presented by the C.G. Conn Corp., Elkhart, Ind., to the composer submitting the outstanding composition in the symposium.

Roger Voisin, principal trumpet with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and nationally recognized for his brass recording, will be guest lecturer, conductor, and performer.

CPA's To Meet For Conference

The conference, presented by FSU's School of Business, will offer a technical program with four top men in their field as speakers.

Dr. Willard Graham, professor of accounting at University of North Carolina, will discuss "The CPA's Role in Management's Operating Decisions." Dr. Graham has been consultant for utility and industrial companies.

Raymond Thompson, service manager with an Atlanta firm, will speak on "Inventory Management Practices." Thompson's background includes work in textile, electronics, citrus, and air transportation industries.

Dr. Fredrick E. Horn, official of a New York City firm, will speak on "Managing Cash." He will cover such topics as speeding up collections, improving control over payables, utilizing excess funds, and forecasting.

Dr. David Green Jr., visiting professor of accounting at FSU, will review "Direct Costing and Seasonalizing." Dr. Green is editor of the Journal of Accounting Research.

Dr. Charles A. Rovettà of FSU School of Business will welcome the confe

ZACHARA'S COMPOSITIONS

. . . will be featured at the piano recital to be given Monday by several members of the music department. Zachara, who joined the faculty in 1948, studied in two Russian conservatories and has made several appearances abroad.

Pianist-Composer To Give Recital

Compositions by pianist-composer Franciszek Zachara will be featured in a rec at FSU Monday with Zachara as soloist for one number and three music fac members and two graduate students assisting with the others.

It will be a premier performance for four of the compositions on the program and the other two have been played only privately. The program will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Joining the pianist-composer for the presentation of the selections will be; Owen Sellers, cello; Harry Schmidt, clarinet; Ronald Waln, bassoon; all music faculty and graduate students Sharon Sauser, oboe, and Paul Svendsen, piano. Svendsen is a student of Zachara.

"Sonata for Clarinet and Piano" will be the opening number by clarinetist Schmidt and Zachara, pianist.

Zachara has given many recitals abroad on tours through Poland, Germany, Austria and France. He has selected "12 Valses for Piano" as his only solo number on the program. Written some ten years ago, the composition is made up of 12 different short waltzes for piano.

Reflected in the music is the personalities of some people Zachara has known. He said, "Most of my compositions are reflections of the wonderful people I have met -- sometimes things might happen 20 years ago but are reflected in my music when inspiration comes to me for my music."

Owen Sellers, assistant dean of the School of Music, and cellist, will join Zachara in the performance of his "Sonata for Cello and Piano" in Allegro, Romanza and Rondo movements.

After an intermission, Sharon Sauser, oboe; Harry Schmidt, clarinet; and Ronald Waln, bassoon will play "Variations on Nursery Rhyme for Wood-Wind Trio" and Sellers will join the composer for "Six Pieces for Cello and Piano."

The final number on the program "Symphonic Variations on 'Happy Birthday,' " is scheduled to be recorded in Europe this season the Warsaw Philharmonic playi and Zdzislaw Gorzynski conduc

Paul Svendsen will join Za for a two-piano performance o composition. It is an extended of a number written for a surp celebration of the late Ernst Dohnanyi's birthday. The new position written for an orches accompaniment consists of 24 ations on the theme "Happy Bi day."

Tour Of Poland Offered As Essay Contest Prize

An all-expense six weeks tour of Poland, valued at $1000, heads the list of awards totalling $2,250, which the Kosciuszko Foundation of New York is offering in an essay contest to undergraduate students of accre- dited American colleges and uni- versities during the current school year. The awards will be given for the best essays submitted no later than May 15, 1964 on the topic: The Meaning of Poland's Millennium.

Manuscripts are to run from 2- 3,000 words, exclusive of footnotes and bibliographies. They are to be typed on 8 1/2 x 11 bond paper. All prize winning essays become the property of the Foundation which reserves the right to publish all or any part of them. A letter from each applicant's registrar is a re- quisite, confirming enrollment.

Awards include a second prize of $500 cash, five third prizes of $100 each, and 10 honorable mentions at $25 each. Winners will be announ- ced on or before October 17, 1964.

This will mark the 1000th year of Poland's official acceptance of Christianity and her entry into the community of western Christian civ- ilization. The contest is designed to stimulate the study of Poland's acheivements throughout ten cen- turies, her contributions to man- kind and her dedication to liberty and self-determination despite a history of domination and partition by other countries at various times.

Thre publications in a Millenium series being sponsored by the Foun- dation have already been issued and have been acquired by many college and university libraries and by his- torians and writers, both in this country and abroad.

Dr. Henry Nobel MacCracken, pre- sident-emeritus of Vassar College, now honorary chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Dr. Stephen P. Mizwa, president and executive di- rector, were the leading founders of the American center for Polish culture.

Dr. Eugene Kusielewicz, on the Foundation's staff as assistant to the President and also an associate professor of history at St. John's University, New York, is in charge of the essay contest.

Complete information on the pro- ject may be obtained from the Kos- ciuszko Foundation, 15 East 65th Street, New York, 21, N.Y.

MACHEATH, ALIAS MACK THE KNIFE

. . . the main character in the ballad-opera "The Threepenny Opera," faces a decision as he is confronted by the two "dames" in his life, Polly Peachum and Lucy Brown. In the production, which will run Friday and Saturday, Mack, confined to jail on a long list of charges, chooses Lucy because she is the daughter of the jaller. Shown here are Sarah Hanna as Lucy, Charles Stanley as Mack and Cherry Isabell as Polly.

Mack's Back In Town For 'Three Penny Opera'

"Mack the Knife is back in town" can be said in all truthfulness Fri- day and Saturday when the Florida State University Theatre-Opera Guild stage their production of "The Threepenny Opera" in Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Popular recordings of the song hit "Mack the Knife" have made that unsavory character practically a household name. Translated and ad- apted to the English theater from the European success of 200 years ago "The Beggar's Opera," the theme is that people in general tend to make heroes of criminals as much as they do any other class of people.

Bertolt Brecht, author of "The Threepenny Opera," felt that the theater should be a place for the airing of ideas and he was even in search of novel and theatrically ex- citing ways of presenting ideas. Sus- picious of anything that was popular, Brect was not particularly happy with the success of his production. He seemed to be afraid that anything audiences liked too much they were not apt to think seriously about.

Director of the FSU production, Dr. Arthur Dorlag, said that the most attractive features of the show were the very devices by which Brecht hoped to prevent pleasure and stimulate thought. American jazz played in the German cabarets of the twenties provides the back- ground for Kurt Weill's music in the ballad - opera.

The two-act musical opens with a street singer telling the townspeople that "Mack the Knife is back in town" and closes with Mackie getting a reprieve from the Queen just as he is about to hang for a long list of crimes, including murder.

Lothridge, Martin Are Top Jackets

B. MARTIN

Georgia Tech football for the past two years has been "Mr. Cool" and "The Jolly Giant." "Mr. Cool," also known as Mr. Everything, is Tech quarterback Billy Lothridge and "The Jolly Giant" is the big end Billy Martin. These two are both on the Football Writers Association of America All-American check list.

These two have played a very big part in Tech success in recent years, and have the pro scouts drooling. Last year Martin was an All-Southestern Conference end and was honorable mention on several All-American teams. Lothridge's list is a little longer. He was an All-Conference player, third-string quarterback on the UPI All-American team and was voted most valuable player in the conference by conference coaches.

These two have played together since the fifth grade at Gainsville, Georgia. After successful high school careers, they signed to attend Georgia Tech.

In their Sophomore seasons, both were forced to share jobs. The Jolly Giant shared his end job with Bob Solomon, plaing on offense with Soloman playing on defense. It was a very good season for Martin. He caught 16 passes for 233 yards for an average of 14.6 yards a catch.

Lothridge shared his quarterback job with Stan Gann, another good quarterback. He ran for 45 yards, passed for a 41% and 371 yards and two Touchdowns. He also punted 50 times for a 33.1 average. He scored 46 points kicking four FG's, 16 XP's and three TD's.

In their Junior year both came into their own. Martin led the team in receiving, catching 21 passes for 323 yards and four touchdowns. In his first year on defense he did a great job.

Lothridge was simply great last year. He led the league in total offense, was second in rushing, fourth in passing and fifth in punting. He was the team's leading rusher gaining 478 yards, he passed 1006 yards and scored 89 points.

Lothridge and Martin are continuing where they left off 1st year. Lothridge has continued his habit of wreaking havoc among opposing defenses. He has been proclaimed Back of the Week once and has been nominated several times. Martin has continued his outstanding all around play and is a cinch to be picked in the first round pro draft.

Centers To Practice

"No changes, just more practice" is the word from the offices at Tully in regards to the lapses of late in the FSU center spot. Last Saturday's romp over Furman saw three snaps from center bounce back to Seminole punter, Charlie Calhoun.

The result is that no changes have been made in the Tribe's lineup, but a lot of stress has been put on the kicking game this week.

Speaking of the shoddy snaps after the Furman game, Coach Peterson said, "It's just like a pitcher in baseball. He throws the ball perfect for six innings, then something goes wrong. After that, he will never get the ball over the plate because it's in his head that he can't."

Stress has also been laid upon the Seminole running attack, which has developed, of late, into a real threat. Larry Brinkley and Dave Snyder have shown themselves to be capable of busting out for the long one, and the Seminoles will probably use their talents to the fullest against Tech.

Rifle Team Breaks 1300

The Army ROTC Rifle Team of Florida State University defeated the rifle teams of Marion Institute and Stetson University this weekend to increase their winning streak to nine in a row. The FSU Sharpshooters were led to victory by Charles E. Holmes of Jacksonville firing 273/300, John O. Reinhardt of Darien, Conn., firing 264/300, James H. Moore of Tallahassee firing 262/300, William D. Wood of Daytona firing 258/300 and Dale Warren of Clearwater 250/300. The total team score was 1307/300.

Phi Tau's Win Again

In the Fraternity Intramural final playoffs yesterday, the Phi Kappa Tau eleven, winners of the trophy last year, waltzed away from a determined group of Delta Tau Delta men by 19-13.

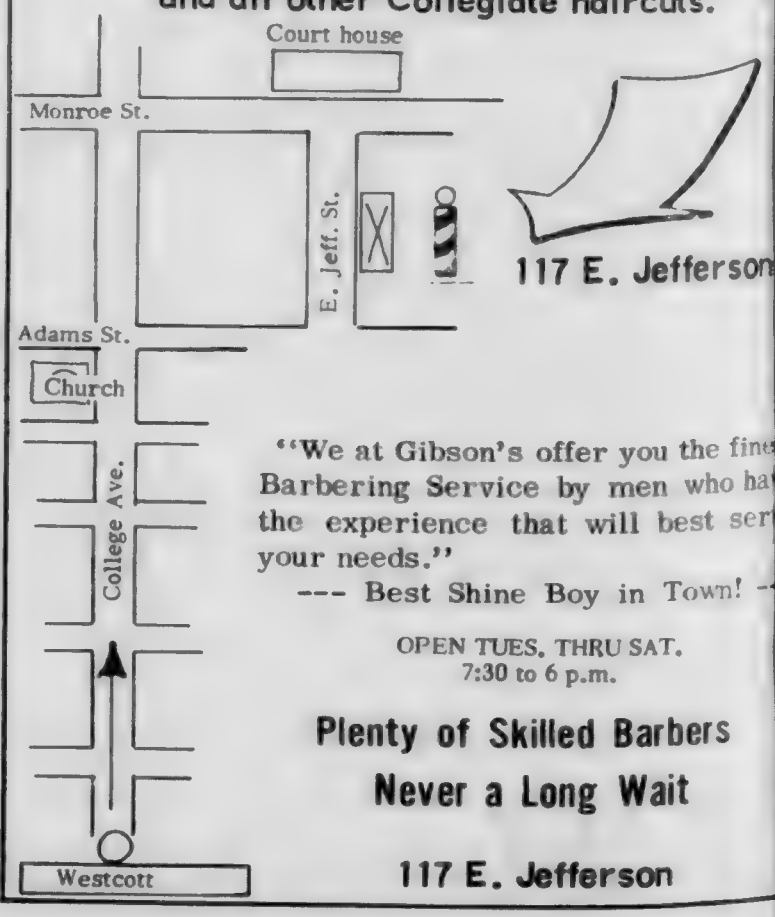
The Delts scored first, in the second quarter, when halfback Rick Dean hit paydirt after a long run through center and pitchout. The try for extra point was no good.

Both teams threatened again, but the half ended with the Delts holding onto their six point margin.

The Phi Tau's, decked out in Harvard Red, kicked off to the Delt end zone for a touchback to start the second half of play. On the second play from scrimmage, Phi Tau right end Mike Marshall intercepted a pass. The Phi Kappa Tau's drove to the Delt 10 with first and goal to go, but could not score for three plays. The tying tally came on a pass from left half Ed Donnelly, the president of the fraternity, to Fred Crowder. The pass for extra point was incomplete.

After a kickoff return to the 50 yard line, the Delt's had the ball intercepted on a second down play by PKT left end Jim High who carried the ball all the way in. The extra point try was again no good.

The maroon bedecked Delts ran the kickoff back to their 40 yard line, but had time for only one play, a 5 yard run through the middle of the Pkt line, before the third quarter ended with a 12 to 6 score, favoring the Phi Tau's.



The deciding PKT touchdown came with three minutes gone in the fourth quarter. The Delts had to punt after a penalty and Phi Tau quarterback Jim Gordon turned in a short runback. The first PKT play produced their last touchdown of the game on a long TD pass from LH Donnelly to LE High. The conversion pass was complete.

The Delts after driving from their to scoring position bounced back on another run by Dean and a pass complete for the extra point.

Florida Voters Approve Education Amendment

Florida voters approved 2-1 the College Building Plan Amendment authorizing the state to issue $75 million in bonds immediately for construction of buildings on state university and junior college campuses.

Issue of another $50 million in construction bonds is planned after July 1, 1965. The program may eventually reach or exceed $300 million.

Of the $75 million in bonds, $45 million is destined for universities and $30 million is earmarked for junior colleges.

Of the $45 million set aside for the state universities, FSU will see $11,118,000.

The $11,118,000 received by FSU will be alloted to various buildings and facilities in the following amounts: men's dormitories will get $229,000; $913,000 will go for utility expansion and other campus improvement; Chemistry Unit I gets $2,750,000; Library Additions, $1,490,000; Infirmary, $250,000; Social Science Bldg., $2,500,000; Engineering Science Unit, $1,300,000; relocation greenhouse, Computer Center expansion; Molecular Bldg. loading ramp and the physical education facilities, $215,000; women's dormitory, $921,000; land acquisition, $350,000 and the Oceanography Institute and coastal facilities, $200,000.

This constitutional amendment which has just been approved has a limited provision which would permit the sale of not more than $75,000,000 of bonds during the current biennium. The legislature also put a limitation of $50,000,000 on the bonds which could be sold during the 1965-67 biennium.

The long-term low interest bonds are to be paid off with revenue derived from the utilities gross receipts tax currently levied throughout the state and would not raise the current level of state taxes. Bonds will be sold through public bidding. Every project to be passed under the bond program must have the approval of three-fifths of the legislature.

Dean R.R. Oglesby commented on the passing of the bond issue by saying that he though it was reassuring for higher education in Florida and that it will help in crises in the future which we will face. He further added, "All of us at FSU are elated at the faith the people of Floriad have shown in the universities and junior colleges of Florida."

The four were convicted last week but sentence was withheld in order to check fingerprint records.

TRESPASSED

Two FSU students and two A&M students, who were identified as members of a movement to integrate local restaurants were arrested for trespassing at the Dobbs House. The students had also attempted to gain service at the Talem restaurant on South Woodward and at the Holiday Inn.

Police received compalints at 9:06 and 9:30 from Talem and the Holiday Inn, but the students left after being asked to leave.

Bill Cox, manager of the Dobbs House, asked the students to leave when they asked for service. When they refused, he then called the police.

Sgt. Herbert Coleman of Tallahassee police force said he arrested the group after they refused two requests to leave. The students, Carol A. Lustgarten, 19, 222 DeGraf and Steve H. Jones, 26, 1320 Hancock, both from FSU and Julius Hamilton and Willie Pinkey, both of A&M

'Space Age Public Relations' To Be Featured Here Today

It's Public Relations Day at FSU today and some of the state's top promoters of industry, government, education, religion and tourism have gathered on the campus to swap ideas.

The get-together is co-sponsored by the FSU School of Business and Tallahassee Hush-Puppy Chapter of the Florida Public Relations Association. The theme of the meeting is "Public Relations in the Space Age."

Dr. Royal H. Ray of FSU was the presiding officer for a morning session, highlighted by a panel discussion on "The Profession of Public Relations and Public elations in Business and Industry."

Moderator was James Hunter of the Hotel and Restaurant Comi s-sion. Panelists were Howard E. Anderson, executive director of the Council of 100 in St. Petersburg; Rollie Hinton, vice president of public relations of Minute Maid Company; Charles A. Horrworth, director of field servies of the American Hotel Association and former managing director of the California State Hotel Association; and Alan B. Fields Jr., assistant to the supervisor of advertising of Gulf Power Company, Pensacola.

Miami Herald Editor Don Shoemaker was the scheduled speaker for a luncheon at the Tallahassee Elk's Club, with Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell of FSU introducing the speaker.

Shoemaker is a former executive director of the Southern Education Reporting Service and former editor of the Asheville, N.C., Citizen. He is on the Executive Committee of the Government Research Council, vice president of the Committee of 21 of the Economic Development Council, member of the Florida Council of 100, secretary of Florida World's Fair Authority and on the Orange Bowl Committee.

During the afternoon session in the School of Business conference room today, Dr. Sidney Kobre of FSU is presiding over a panel discussion on "Public Relations in Government and Serive Organizations."

Panelists reviewing Tourism, Education, Government and Religion will be Dick Pope, owner of Cypress Gardens and one of the greatest all-time promoters in Florida; Ed Henderson, executive director of the Florida Education Association, who has 34 years of work in Florida schools behind him; Mallory Horne, Speaker of the Florida House of Representatives, who has served on the legislature since 1954 and was voted second most outstanding legislator during the 1963 session; and the Rev. Walter H. Styles, pastor of Faith Presbyterian Church, Tallahassee.

Senate Approves One Resolution

A bill establishing the procedure for filling vacancies in the elected offices of the judicial and legislative branches was introduced in Student Senate yesterday by john Merting and was accepted for first reading.

The bill amends the constitution by changing the procedure for the filling of the above offices through the appointment of a nominating committee instead of by the direct appointment of the president of the student body.

The nominating committee will consist of the Chief Justice of the Honor Court (chairman), the Chairman of University Court, the Chairman of Traffic Court, the Chairman of Men's Judiciary and the Chairman of Women's Judiciary.

The committee will submit three candidates for the vacant offices and the president of the student body shall select one of these candidates to fill the office.

Senate also approved the appointments of Dale Dunsmore, Lynn Darby, Carol Jean Lewis, Pat Saur and Walt Martindale to the Student Library Committee. This committee works in conjunction with the University Library Committee.

One out of three resolutions presented by Senator Ed Scott was passed by unanimous vote. This resolution established a committee of five to be known as the Florida State University Food Services Committee to serve "as a liaison or communicative link between the student body and on and off-campus eating establishments."

Banquet Moved To Tully Gym

Florida State University today moved its Homecoming Banquet from the Suwannee Room to Tully Gymnasium, making 600 more seats available for banqueters who are scheduled to hear an address on Friday night, Nov. 15, by former President Harry S. Truman.

A flood of requests from alumni resulted in a sellout of available tickets, according to Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, Banquet Chairman. Suwannee Room can accommodate 900 but 1,500 can be handled in the gymnasium.

The use of Tully Gymnasium for the banquet will make necessary the transfer of the Friday night dance from Tully to the Suwannee Room. This is an informal dance starting after the Friday night Pow Wow.

The banquet, which will be emceed by Florida State College for Women alumna Nancy Kulp, a television personality from Hollywood, will be at 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15.

here will be a Pep Rally to- ht at 9 for this week's FSU- eorgia Tech football game.

e Pep Rally will be held in perman Amphitheatre and feature the pep band, cheer- aders, coaches, and football am.

"Take the time to send the tball team off to Georgia ech in style," said Sherry rris, captain of the cheer- aders.

Student Center Sets New Hours

According to Bill Cullom of the Business Office, the serving hours at the Student Center will be changed on Thursdays. The new hours will be from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. instead of the former hours of 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Cullom stated also that neither the Business Office nor the Director of Food Services had ever been approached about this conflict on Thursdays, and both offices agree that the hours at the Student Center should be extended to 2:30 p.m. He said it was the understanding of both offices that the ROTC cadets did not have other classes after 11 a.m. on Thursdays.

HC Blocks

All fraternities and organizations desiring block seating for the Homecoming game must attend the meeting Friday at 3:30 p.m. in the Attorney General's office, 210 Longmire.

Flambeau Forum

Holley Was 'Misquoted'

To the Editor:

I would like to call attention to the "Flambeau's" misquotation of my recent remarks to the Student Senate. I refer to the article by Jane Franzino in the October 31 "Flambeau."

(1) The "Flambeau": "Holley stated that 'other student newspapers support themselves, so why can't the "Flambeau' ?' "

My statement: "As to the petition itself, I will say this:(1) Other student newspapers, despite opinions to the contrary do support themselves.'

My remarks were obviously misquoted-I did not even mention the "Flambeau' in this respect. My remark was not intended to mean "why can't the 'Flambeau'." I made a simple statement of fact, to explain to others who did not realize it, that other student newspapers do support themselves.

(2) The "Flambeau' : "He also stated his opinion that 'not just the editorial page but the whole "Florida Flambeau" is biased.' "

My statement: "When I claim that the paper is 'editorially unrepresentative,' I do not specifically refer to the editorial page but to the editorial decisions and actions as well."

The intent of my statement was certainly not to say that "the whole 'Florida Flambeau' is biased," but that the editorial page, and editorial decisions and actions are unrepresentative. Does anyone honestly believe that I think that the TV schedule or even every editorial page is biased? I never have claimed and never will claim that the "Whole 'Florida Flambeau' is biased."

(3) The "Flambeau": "Mr. Holley continued that his main objections were of the 'front page scandals and the sports stories'.'

My remarks: I cited eight specific examples of the editorial unrepresentativeness of the "Florida Flambeau" including criticism of the editorial columns, the Letters to the Editor, the scandal series, the sports articles, news "coverage" of the Student Government civil rights poll, the Sue Chu affair, news "coverage' of my petition campaign, and the "Flambeau's" hesitancy to come forward with the facts my investigations have revealed. All criticisms were equally emphasized, and I never made the statement that my main objections were "of the front page 'scandals' and the sports stories.' In fact I think those objections are trivial as compared to the others.

(4) I did not reply to Senator Wood that I "had no purpose except to let them know how (I) felt.' Senator Wood asked me if I thought this speech and action would benefit my petition, and I replied that this was not my intention-that I was not speaking for my benefit or gain but for the good of the University in that I felt that the campus should know the true facts about the "Florida Flambeau.'

The full text of my remarks to the Senate will soon be available, and then it should be obvious to all that the "Florida Flambeau," in spite of perhaps good intentions, is not acting in the best interests of this university or its students.

Robert M. Holley

'Praeco Simplici' Is Defended

To the Editor:

The following is in reply to Mr. Steel's condescending denumciation of Miss Netterfield's letter praising the column "Praeco Simplici."

First of all it is relevent to note that Mr. Steel makes a set of assumptions concerning Praeco's character and motivations a basis of attack--specifically, he slanderously labels Praeco a coward and pointedly implies the column is anonymous because of the author's tremendous sense of guilt. Mr. Steel's telepathic abilities seem to have overwhelmed his reason and his reading ability. Any competent indiyidual who has read carefully has already judged that the information and activities forming the substance of Praeco's news and comments could only be obtained by one of two types of people: someone active in the "decision-strata" of campus life, or someone having a number of confidants firmly entrenched in various phases of campus life (I guess he could be a group). In this case anonymity is essential if Praeco is to obtain necessary information and fulfill his self appointed task. For years such columnists as Mr. Steel have earnestly begged the student body to become more aware of the inner workings of student government so that the electorate might choose their representatives more confidently, and once chosen these individuals might feel a continued, not sporadic, responsibility. Even superficial reading of Praeco's first column this fall reveals that this is his objective.

Concerning Mr. Steel's accusation that Praeco's statements are a group of "unsupported value judgements" this writer, too, was interested this summer in ascertaining the validity of material contained in this newcomer to the "Flambeau." His style was so enjoyable I doubted that he could be accurate as well. Careful checking then and now, reveals that our friend is invariably precise and relates only factual occurances.

Let us end on a note of agreem Mr. Steel. You said, "those who ticize should be held accountabl their position.' I too would li see this individual defend his tion, but not in one of those ti personality conflicts in previous columnists have ind Rather, I should like to see defend himself from the l praise that should be the due modern social critic knowing the ference between constructive cism and the ordinary variety chosen the former. A cursory s will show that Praeco has expe equivalent amounts of energy c cizing, offering solutions to blems he uncovers, and praising ganizations, groups, and pe campus who would work and unpraised otherwise. To few recipients: student goverm poll takers, Religion in Life pl committee, Johnny Smith Omicron Pi, Pi Kappa Phi Kaney, Bob Perkins, Delta Zeta It's too bad, Mr. Steel, that "F beau" contributors don't follo lead in this area instead of w in a negative tone as you and to enjoy doing.

By the way, Mr. Steel, if you still unable to distinguish be value judgements and constr social criticism, an example latter is Praeco's column. your decision concerning the "Praeco Simplici" and my op of your statements amply repr the former. Meanwhile, let us that the object of our attention tinues in the tradition of a "Socratic gadfly."

Abolish It All

To the Editor:

After due consideration of Mr. Garner's article in the paper concerning the Federal farm program in which he concluded, "Therefore, because there is no constitutional authority for them, all our federal government's agricultural programs should be abolished," I have a suggestion that should certainly seem logical to Mr. Garner's rather warped manner of political thinking.

Since in the Constitution it also does not grant authority for the establishment of an Air Force, but only an Army and a Navy, it follows according to his logic that this organization was established without constitutional authority and should likewise be abolished.

Mr. Garner might reply to this that the Constitution also states that Congress shall have the power to "provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States.' This obviously supports the establishment of our Air Force, he might state. But wouldn't this also support our farm program since this can just as easily be interpreted as a common defense against deflationary agricultural prices and in the interest of the general welfare of the consumers as well as the farmers of the United States?

If the former interpretation is correct, so must be the latter. If neither one is correct then the United States Air Force has no constitutional basis and must be abolished immediately. This could be accomplished by a "Liberty" Amendment II.

People Will Be People

To the Editor:

In short — until every traditionalist, southern or otherwise, has been eradicated from the human race, why don't the radicals go somewhere where the integration problem is already in a worse state of chaos. Until then, please be patient. The world and the progress of the whole human race did not take place in one day.

Perhaps you've heard the saying, "Everybody in the world is crazy except thee and mee, and even thou art a wee bit queer."

By the time one reaches college age, his general philosophy of life has begun to form. College brings the final phase of formation, altering the original at times here and there to conform with other people.

Thus it remains that when a person has attained his philosophy, it is extremely hard for any opposing faction to change it. Of course, there are always the "middle of the roaders." But who really needs them? They bounce back and forth so readily that tey cannot be depended upon by either or any side.

Unless Sam McCall is somewhere around the age of 40 years old and can actually remember the Truman presidency, how can he, except from heresay, call Truman "trash-mouth?"

And what do you, sir, mean by "Reverse Thanksgiving?" The symbolism, if any, was so amorphous that I completely lost it before you began!

As for the "child" carrying the CSA flag, it is my understanding that someone in authority asked him to do it in the first place. (It is my understanding.)

Did you by any chance go to the football game on Legislative day? The Marching Chiefs did play "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and have played it several times since. Why do you expect them to play it again? Any performer plays only that whch is demanded and liked by his audience. Many more people stand for "Dixie" than even remember the Chiefs played "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

The rest of your article seemed to have no pertinence to the original ttle but issued some "thought-provoking" questions and unnecessary, but colorful, insinuations.

Propoganda Forever! (It always wins the amorphous "middle of the roader" – but for how long?)

A question in parting to the picketers — I thought that you were in

Purdy will speak to some 200 police officers and administrators on the subject of police professionalization. After the address there will be open audience discussion of the subject.

Conducted by the Department of Criminology at FSU in cooperation with the Florida Institue for Continuing Studies, the two-day institute has a number of sponsors. They include The Florida Chiefs of Police A ...iation, The Florida Peace Officers Association, The Florida Highway Patrol, Fraternal Order of Police, Florida Advisory Council for Law Enforcement Education, The Governor's Council for In-Service Law Enforcement Training and The Florida Sheriff's Association. It is endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Washington, D.C.

Purdy is a native of Belding, Mich. He graduated from Michigan State University in 1942 with a degree in police administration and studied at the Southern Police Institute of the University of Louisville and at the Police Community Relations Seminar at Michigan State. He had a year of training as a police administration student with the Michigan State Police.

During World War II he served with the Army Military Police Corps. He joined the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1946 and was a special agent in Miami. He also served this agency in St. Petersburg, Washington and Albany, N.Y. In 1958 he resigned from the FBI to take the post of police chief of St. Petersburg.

Tech Backs Are 'Rambling Wrecks'

MENDHEIM

AUER

The backfield of the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets will probably be one of the best FSU will face all year. Composed of Billy Lothridge at quarterback, Joe Auer and Johnny Greshem at halfs, and Ray Manheim at full, this backfield is very versatile, and extremely fast.

In rushing, the team lacks the big power fullback, but makes up for this loss in speed and agility. Joe Auer, the Senior left halfback, is the speediest of the backs. He specializes in end bursts and pass receiving. He has caught 31 passes for 379 yards and three touchdowns in his three years varsity career. He currently leads the team in receiving. He is a very dangerous runner who can go all the way any time.

Johnny Gresham holds down the other halfback post. He is of the same mold as Auer. He is 5-8 and only weighs 164 pounds, but can really carry the ball. A Junior, Gresham is having a great season in his first year as a starter. He has carried the ball 27 times for 167 yards, and an average of 6.2 yards per carry. In addition, he has caught five passes for 81 yards. He had his best game of the season last week against Duke when he caught a 36-yard touchdown pass and contributed 26 and 36 yard runs.

Ray Menheim was the third-string fullback at the start of spring drills. Junior Jeff Davis was the starter, and Senior Jerry Barber was slated to relieve him. Well, Dame Fate is very fickle. Davis was injured and was declared out before the season began. Barber was then injured in the second game, and the job belonged to Mendheim.

Every cloud has a silver lining, Mendheim, small for a fullback 6-0,198, has become Tech's leading rusher. He has gained 326 yards with a 5.2 average and is fifth in the SEC in that department. He is second in scoring, having socred three touchdowns for 18 points. He has a career total yardage of 570 yards, more than anyone on the team with the exception of Billy Lothridge and Joe Auer.

The reserve unit of Jerry Bussell, Jerry Barber and Tommy Jackson is almost as capable. Bussell is a speedy back who excels in the long run a la Larry Brinkley. Last year he had an 86 yard run from schrmidge, an 85 yard kick-off return, and a 75 yard punt return. He finished third in rushing with 134 yards in 20 carries for a 6.7 average. This year he has caught 4 passes for 73 yards.

Barber was the starting fullback before being injured. He is a senior and has gained 100 yards this year in 35 carries. The Tech coaches expect him to be in top shape for Saturday's game. Tom Jackson is the reserve halfback. He gained 123 yards last year with a 5.9 average. He has performed at a sub-par effort this year.

Tech has a backfield which likes to run, but can pass when need be. It is the best FSU has faced to date.

Spotlight On Frosh Cagers

By MIKE BRADY
Flambeau Sports Staff

Kenny Doyle, a 6 foot 9 and 1/2 inch center from Tampa, Florida, should prove to be an essential factor in the frosh attack this season. The Tampa Plant High School graduate averaged 26.5 points per game during his senior year, which, coupled with his average of 16 rebounds, explains his being chosen to the All-City, All-Conference, All-State and All-American teams.

In one particular game, he personally ruined Tampa King's hopes of an upset with an astounding 50 point outburst. In fact, he was All-City and All-Conference as a junior!

Doyle dispatched 153 other collegiate offers to come to Florida State. Says Ken of his decision, "It's close to home, and the way I figure it, if you're going to work in a state, you've got to make your name in that state." Doyle believes that his main problem thus far at FSU is the eternal problem of all college frosh, that of adapting themselves to college life. Commenting on the campus, "It's the prettiest campus in the South. It's laid out well, for a school of about 11,000."

A native of Oneida, Ky., Ken has lived in Tampa for four years now. "I like it a lot."

When asked for comments on the progress of the frosh cagers, Doyle replied, "They've got good team morale. They're in great shape, and will improve in time. The coaches are great. Potentially, we've got a good chance to have the best season ever.

"Personally, I'm in great shape myself. I think I'm ready for the oncoming season, but my defense needs quite a bit of working on."

In high school, Ken was a "B" student, also acting as sports editor for the "Pepper Plant," the school newspaper. "It was something to do." He also played baseball (pitcher) for the American Legion, but didn't play for the school's varsity team. "I could have lettered three years in baseball, but basketball was my main interest," which is fairly evident.

JIM CAUSEY has been chosen the Savage defender for this week's Seminole coaches. Causey, a 6' 209 pound junior from Miami m six tackles and four assists and th times threw Furman passes for loss Saturday.

'Threepenny Opera' To Premiere Tonight

By MAX COURTNEY

"The Threepenny Opera," sponsored jointly by the University Theatre and the Opera Guild, premieres tonight at 8:30 in Westcott Auditorium.

American jazz as it was played in the cabarets of Germany in the twenties, provides much of the background for Kurk Weill's music for "The Threepenny Opera," according to stage director Arthur H. Dorlag of University Theatre.

Text and lyrics are by Bertolt Brecht and English adaptation by Marc Blitzstein. Music in the production is under the direction of Richard Collins of the FSU School of Musc. Stage direction is handled by Dorlag.

Dorlag considers the opera an almost direct product of the impact of jazz on the European cabaret. It was under the influence of this curious blending of musical and social forces that Bertolt Brecht adapted John Gay's 1728 English ballad opera, 'The Beggar's Opera.'

First American production of the "Threepenny Opera" was in New York in 1933. The more successful version by Marc Blitzstein, used in the present production, began a record run on Broadway in 1954. This New York production starred the composer's widow, Lotte Lenya.

During its popularity in Europe, "The Threepenny Opera" contrasted with Broadway musicals, Dorlag said, in the presentation of songs by the actors. Directors of American musicals tried to make the songs grow imperceptibly out of the dialogue and action preceding them.

In "The Threepenny Opera," Brecht and Weill insert songs that acquire meaning from the action of the play but which appear with no preparation whatsoever, according to Dorlag.

Brecht's intention was admittedly that an actor would be playing a role and suddenly would become a singer singing a song.

Brecht made liberal use in "The Threepenny Opera" of his concept that theater should teach by forcing the audience to think. He argued that the theater should not lull an audience into the escapist illusion that it is viewing something real. Rather, he wanted the theater to stimulate rational thought.

To prevent illusion and identification with the characters onstage, Brecht used scene description signs illuminated song title boards, the dynamics of music itself, manner of introduction of songs, and abrupt changes of purposes and attitudes by characters.

Abounding in paradoxes of human character, "The Threepenny Opera," pokes fun at social shams and hypocrisy.

Characters will be played by: Hugh McElyea, street singer, Samuel Wiech, Mr. J.J. Peachum; Sarah Ridout, Mrs. Peachum; Cherry Isbell, Polly Peachum; Charles Stanley, Macheath (Mack the Knife); Jenni Black, Jenny; J. Robert Swain, Rev. Kimball; Gene Rowell, Tiger Brown; Jack Simmons, Dan Kelley; Jerold Gray, Warden Smith; and Sarah Hanna, Lucy Brown.

Irv Broughton, Rhett Byson, Jimmy Rayfield, all play Mack's gang; Martha Wilson, Martha Meyer, Deje Swain, Ellen Whigham, Laurette Kenney, Louise Beddingfild, play the family; cops are Ken Richart and Tom Woodruff.

Some of the characters will be recalled from the many versions of "Mack the Knife," one of the songs in the production. The song of the street singer has been popularized through many recordings from instrumental to the finger-snapping vocals.

Six FSU Students Attend Conference

By DICK SMITH
Assistant News Editor

Six FSU students are participating in the University Union Conference now in progress at the University of South Florida in Tampa.

The conference, a part of SUSGA, is considering problems related to college and university student unions. Over 50 higher education institutions form the SE United States are represented at the conference which will run through tomorrow.

Delegates from FSU are Johnny Hunt, student body president; George Miller, Secretary of the Student Union; Bob Bowles, member of the Union Board; and Sandy Staten, Mickey Newman, and Jean Norman, all student government members.

Of special interest to the FSU representatives will be information relating to finances, operation, various recreational programs, and administration of other institutions of student unions.

The delegates will be gathering matters for the operation and maintenance of FSU's Student Union, which is scheduled to open next fall.

An invitation to hold next year's University Union Conference at the new FSU student union will be extended to the SUSGA branch by way of letters from Gov. Farris Bryant, FSU President, Gordon W. Blackwell, and Mr. Sam Teague, Mayor of Tallahassee.

FSU has been attending the union conferences for approximately five years, collecting information to aid in the planning of the FSU student union.

George Miller is serving as vice president of this year's conference.

As yet, no agency or director for the student union at FSU has been decided on. Lyman Fletcher, SG presidential assistant, said that "Student Government is trying to determine what office will be best equipped to administer the student union."

Banquet Tickets Back On Sale

Tickets will go on sale for the Homecoming Banquet featuring former President Harry S. Truman, to students Monday, at 8 a.m. in the Alumni Office at $2.50 apiece.

Tickets which were sold out last Monday have again gone on sale due to FSU's changing of the Banquet from the Suwannee room to Tully Gym making 600 more seat available.

The use of Tully Gymnasium for the banquet will make necessary the transfer of the Friday night dance from Tully to the Suwannee Room. This is an informal dance starting after the Friday night Pow-Wow.

The banquet which will be emceed by FSCW alumna Nancy Kulp, a television personality from Hollywood will be at 6 p.m. Friday Nov. 15.

Inter-Dorm Council Proposed In Men's Senate Yesterday

Senator Ed Scott was elected President pro-tem of Men's Senate in yesterday's Men's Senate meeting.

A bill was introduced by Senator Gene Stearns establishing an inter-dormitory council. This Inter-Dorm Council would relate a closer connection between the Men's Senate and the men's dorms.

The jurisdiction of the IDC would be dervied directly from the office of the Dean of Men and from Men's Senate, which will include all men's residence halls present and future.

Members of the IDC would be appointed by the president or presiding officer in the respective halls.

Functions of the IDC would include acting as an advisory council to the office of the Dean of Men and hearing all disputes involving the residence halls collectively or individually.

According to Frank Ryll, men's vice president, "This bill will draw Student Government and the dorms into a closer knit organization without their losing any of their rights. This isn't to add more restrictions on men but just to have Men's Senate more informed and give them authority to act."

"Problems that may come up as a result of the IDC will be worked out and gripes can be voiced through the dorm's senator in Senate," added Stearns.

ROTC Cadets To March

Cadets of the Army and Air Force ROTC will participate in Tallahassee's annual Armistice Day parade at 10 a.m. Monday.

The Army Brigade, under Cadet Colonel Michael R.R. Odum and the Air Force Wing, under Cadet Colonel Phil Powell, will form at 9 a.m. in front of Campbell Stadium. The combined units will march down town via Pensacola Street to take part in the commemoration of the end of World War II.

The parade will feature bands from FSU, A&M and local high schools. As well as units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and Women's Auxillaries. Military units other than the ROTC are A&M ROTC, and a section of Tanks from the local Marine Corps Reserve unit.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. and will proceed up N. Adams St. to Call St. and back down Monroe St. past the reviewing stand in front of the State Capital.

Flambeau Editorials

Show Respect

In securing former President Harry S. Truman as guest speaker for the Homecoming Banquet, the banquet committee has guaranteed an irresistable attraction to FSU's alumni to attend the 1963 Homecoming activities.

Tickets offered on sale to students and faculty members were gobbled up during the first hour that they were available. The banquet was moved from the Suwannee Room, which seats 900 people, to Tully Gymnasium, where 1,500 will be accommodated.

The Alumni Office has refused to divulge figures on the proportionate number of tickets which are being sold on campus and the number being reserved for alumni. Already the number of requests from alumni for banquet reservations has exceeded the supply. Students, faculty and politicians are clamoring for them.

Certainly ex-President Truman is one of politics' most controversial figures. His colorful personality, not to mention his sometimes intemperate use of profanity in public, drew criticisms from the press of his era, as unbecoming a person of his prominence. But it was also his lively personality and his close contact with the common man that won him the support and goodwill of many of the nation's voters.

Regardless of whether the students of FSU are favorably or unfavorably inclined toward Truman personally, they should show every respect to him in his appearance here as a guest of the University. His prominence as a past holder of the nation's highest office merits him the greatest regard and courtesy this University's student body can show.

LM

Job Well Done

Now that election results are public knowledge, and the College Bond Amendment has been passed by an encouraging majority of those voting, we wish to thank FSU's eligible voters--faculty, staff and student--who did their part to assure the passage of this urgently needed amendment.

The building construction and expansion programs of Florida's state universities should now surge ahead to provide the required facilities for the state's booming college population.

'Time To Set Record Straight'

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to the editorial "Protest, Law and Order,' which appeared in the "Democrat" on October 24 and to the statement by Rep. C.E. Russell made on November 1. Both contain the same type of misconceptions which seem to be widely accepted both on FSU's campus and in the community. It is time that the record be set straight.

The editorial maintained that the disciplinary measures taken against the FSU and FAMU students involved in recent racial disturbances were fair and just. It contends that the students were not punished for exercising their constitutional rights to protest but were punished for failing to keep their protests within the bounds of the law.

It should be noted that the students were never charged with any crime. There never has been a question of their violating a law. This was strictly a civil and not a criminal action.

Second, the students' conviction for contempt of court has been appealed. According to all standards of justice, an individual is innocent until he has been found guilty by the highest court of appeal or until such court refuses to rehear a lower court conviction.

Thus, these students have yet to be found guilty of any wrongdoing and any disciplinary action on the part of the universities is highly arbitrary and unfair.

We should also keep in our minds certain details of the events of Sept. 14 which led to the arrest of these students. The injunction that the students were charged with violating placed no limit on the number of pickets. The original injunction had included such a limit but it was twice modified and the final version did not include such a limitation. The sheriff read the wrong version of the injunction to the students, read the original rather than the current injunction. He then ordered pickets to reduce their number eighteen. Inasmuch as there were only fourteen pickets on the line the students believed that they were acting in conformity with the current injunction, they made no move to disperse and were arrested.

Whether the students are correct or mistaken in their belief that they acted within the injunction currently in effect is yet to be decided by the courts. But it is the courts who should decide. These cases should not be prejudged by the university. The attempt by some members of the faculty at FSU to raise money for the students' fines is partially based on the conviction that these students were acting within their constitutional rights and that they will ultimately win their appeal.

The universities will be in a highly embarrassing position if the appeal is upheld. In fact, they are already in such a position. As word of this high handed and arbitrary action punishing students for exercising their right to protest becomes diffused to other universities, it will become increasingly difficult to recruit self-respecting scholars as faculty members. It will also become increasingly difficult to retain those who are already on the faculty.

Dr. James A. Geschwen

Let's Get Organized

To the Editor:

I made an observation at the game Saturday that is worth commenting on... Monday's Flambeau supported my idea by printing an article by Bill Kent.

In his viewpoint he stresses that FSU's student body lacks spirit and doesn't cheer. A part of this accusation is fair... most of it is ridiculous.

If you analyze where the organized groups (fraternities) are forced to sit you can readily see what the problem is. The fraternities are blocked on the end of the student stand side away from the fine efforts of our cheerleaders. I'm not knocking independents but let's face it. They're not organized and certainly not as spirited many of the fraternities.

My wife and I had to leave the game about five minutes early and clear out in the parking lot, I heard a "wheat... barley" from the KA's that came through loud and clear!

The solution to the problem of our student body not cheering is to reseat the organized groups who DO cheer closer to the 50 yard line. Then the cheerleaders can have a field day of success.

Homecoming is the last chance this season for the stands to let the team know that we're really behind them. Let's get organized gang.

Not Our Intention

To the Editor:

Three short weeks ago, the Social Action Committee of Liberal Forum committed itself to the integration of the four off-campus restaurants: the University Inn, the Mecca, the Sweet Shop and the Corner. Picketing was chosen as our method because of the refusal of the owners to consider negotiation of their discriminatory policies.

The first of these to be picketed, the University Inn, closed down operations last week because of a catastrophic drop in business. This was the final step which the restaurant owner could take in his refusal to serve all students.

The success of the picketing proved a fact that the restaurant owners have continually failed to realize: that outmoded segregationist policies result in greater loss of business than if discriminatory barriers are dropped.

We thank the student body of Florida State University for exhibiting their belief in freedom as opposed to segregation by not supporting segregated establishments. On the other hand, we view with extreme regret that a business would cease operations rather than desegregate. This was never our intention.

The Social Action Committee will continue to picket the Mecca until it desegregates. We are not asking each of you to publicly picket, but to show to our faculty and administration, to other colleges, and to our parents that FSU student believe in freedom for all, "without respect to race, creed or color."

'Student Prince' Criticized

To the Editor:

I can only believe the editorial aptly entitled "Kiddie Matinee" was meant as a prank, on the part of the writer. No person in his right mind would believe that anyone accepted that hodgepodge of dated melodies and syrup-sweet dialogue as an "excellent musical."

In the first place "The Student Prince" is not a musical comedy, it's an operetta. I wish someone who has seen both "The Mikado" and "The Pajama Game" would inform the editor of the difference between the two plays. Secondly, this particular "movie" is hardly classify as anything, because most of Romberg's music was cut out and Strauss' was added in. For instance, that exciting masked ball, near the end, where the two lovers skip around like spastic children in search of a fortune cookie, was overloaded with tunes from the second act of "Die Fledermaus," but not heard nary a note that came from the pen of Ole Sig Romberg.

To say that Mario Lanza had one of the greatest tenor voices in the history of music, shows that either you are a close friend of the late Mr. Lanza or that you have never heard any other tenor. However, I will agree that for singing flat and for sliding up and over notes, few tenors can hold a candle to him or would want to. I think, just as a sign of good taste, you should write a letter of apology to Mario Del Monaco and Leopold Simoneau as well as put flowers on the graves of Caruso and Slezak.

The acting was indeed superb. Ann Blyth had the grace and poise of the 1874 Miss Reingold. I suggest that if the editor wishes to see more of this type of "superb acting," she refer herself to puppet shows and TV beer commercials. I really think that the "Flambeau" should stick to publishing campus news and stay away from dramatic criticism.

I understand that the "Kiddie Matinee" this week at the State is "The Student Prince." I'll see you there L.M., and this time I'll try to keep a straight face.

SAC Methods Are Protested

To the Editor:

Today I received a letter from the Social Action Committee asking me to help you in picketing those off-campus restaurants refusing to serve Negro students. It is my understanding that a substantial number of those mimeographed appeals were delivered to FSU students.

I am submitting a written protest to your methods of soliciting help. Gentlemen, those of us attending the Florida State University are certainly aware of the picketing the Social Action Committee is currently conducting. It did not take your appeal to remind me of that fact, since I, as a student attending FSU, am directly and vitally concerned.

Let me ask a question of you. What if several students were to take it upon themselves to form a committee, mail written appeals for help in curbing the desegregation attempts now being conducted, and upon its request 'receive such aid? What if this committee were to take action in the form of physical persuasion, as your committee has done? Well, sir, our theoretical committee would promptly be labeled a mob, en-ave wondered why Mr. Marsh d it so very convenient to re- in from remarking of the dis- teful seating of the Negro Boy ats at the game. Certainly, in my nion, such insulting discrimina- deprives FSU of respect, and I see how a flag so intimately ociated with racial prejudice can e a "positive contribution to- d school spirit" when in fact the s for school spirit, self respect pride, does not exist. The very stence of the policy of segre- ed seating at FSU activities make the presence of that flag objection- able. I have also wondered whether this is one instance of where "the South is not perfect" or whether it is in fact a perfect reflection of Southern ideals and principles.

Like many other regionalists interested in defending the South so chauvinistically, Mr. Marsh garnished his letter with the usual trite, though meaningless remarks about Southern tradition, heritage and chivalry. I wonder of one of those young men whose fraternity embodies these ideals would explain them to us "damn yankees." Unfortunately most of us "northern bigots" must judge these traditions and this heritage by what we see, that is to say, Birmingham, Governor Wallace, University of Mississippi, etc. Also while explaining these ideals and principles to us, would someone let us know what or who the real typical Southerners are.

Further, Mr. Marsh, I think it would behoove you to correct, if possible, a current "rumor" which strangely enough has found wide acceptance, which is that it was the president of that fraternity "which is based upon the ideals set forth in the Southern code of chivalry as embodied in Robert E. Lee" who was waving the Confederate flag in the face of the integration pickets.

You can, I hope, see how there is some confusion over Southern tradition, social degenerates, chivalric codes of the South, and white trash.

No Basis

To the Editor:

The sign, "We reserve the right to refuse service to anyone," when translated means, "We won't serve colored people."

The prejudice of the store owners, who display this sign, is not toward the Negro race, but toward a dark shade of skin. To prove this, dark-skinned Indian students have been refused service in some off-campus eating establishments. The owners have no basis for not admitting these Indian students. They are too ignorant to understand that a black skin does not always mean a Negro.

Realizing that only shallow-minded people judge a person by what he looks like, then the store owners must be shallow-minded. They are using the restrictive signs as an excuse for their ungrounded prejudice.

Another "excuse" the store owners use, is "public opinion." They believe that most FSU students, being from the South, think that Negroes are odious, and therefore will not frequent their stores if integrated. Any intelligent person would realize that the percentage of "bad" Negroes is the same as the percentage of "bad" Caucasians; the same percentage are vulgar (remember Dobbs House?), and the same percentage destroy property.

FSU is integrated, with a larger white enrollment than ever before. Why not the off-campus eating establishments?

Team Should Respond

To the Editor:

This has been on my chest since September 21, 1963; the welcoming of our ball club after the unbelievably great win over the Hurricanes.

Recent articles about school spirit now move me to get something off my chest. As 2,000 well wishers, very proudly cheered as the players departed from the plane, 35 football players walked right past us as though nobody was there to cheer.

Any fan there will tell you it was a great letdown. The players ignored the fans because they were embarrassed themselves. Or because of instructions not to let loose. The fans suddenly stopped cheering when it appeared that they were cheering for themselves. We felt silly. A solid core of loyal fans went home flat.

I think that the day had an effect on general campus spirit. After all, enthusiasm is contagious and 2,000 fans were less enthusiastic after September 21.

When we beat Tech (we will because our team is a money team), 2,000 fans will again greet the ball club. If the team responds to our enthusiasm at the terminal, there won't be any more of those spiritless accusations circulated around campus, in the future.

One of those fans, whether the ball club wins or loses, who cares,

Why Don't We. . .

To the Editor:

Isn't the University Food Service good enough for our Negro students? Integrationists should picket our segregated senates, their segregation by sex is detrimental to our university.

Support Free Love. Segregationists, you need leaders. You should also learn how to sing "Dixie" with more fervor. The Collegians need blazers. Fight integration by patronage of picketed establishments. Help stamp out Gamma Delta Iotas.

Are they going to stop construction around West Hall during finals? Why aren't there any Negro pickets? Why are all the big games away? Is it because of the paltry capacity of Campbell Stadium? Maybe that's the reason S.E.C. doesn't like us.

Stock Westcottpool with piranhas. Ban the ban the ban. Let's revive some old institutions: school spirit, panty raids, The Confederacy, graveyard parties, semesters liberal faculty and Hell week.

Polish the Memorial doors. Award the Women's Senate with a gold chastity belt. Does the SAE lion really roar if a virgin walks out of the house? Stop controversial articles in the "Florida Flambeau."

deavoring to keep the Negro in servitude. This would be an organized mob, to be sure, but it would nonetheless be termed a mob.

It is not my purpose here to say that the actions taken by the Social Action Committee are wrong; neither is it my purpose to say they are right. My grievance lies with the method used by that committee to solicit aid in its purpose. I am aware of the situation. If I were interested in aiding the committee, I would have offered my services long before this date. Since I have not contacted the committee, it could have been safely assumed that I have no desire to aid in its purpose.

Scholarships Are Available

Two scholarships are offered to senior women for 1964-65 by the Katherine Gibbs School.

Each scholarship consists of full tuition ($985) for the secretarial course, plus an additional cash award of $500. The winners may select any of the four Gibbs schools for their training -- Boston, New York, Montclair, or Providence.

Winners are selected on the basis of college academic record, personal and character qualifications, financial need, and potential for success in business.

Each college or university may recommend two candidates, and each candidate must have this official endorsement. Students desiring information concerning this competition may contact the placement office.

Speech Meet Held

The third event in the FSU Intramural Speech Tournament was held Wednesday.

Fourteen students competed in the preliminary round of the persuasive speaking division of the tournament, with three finalists being selected from the group.

The finalists, Anna Angell, Joan Corey, and Sandra Schick, will be guests of the Optimist Club Tuesday, when the finals for this event will be held.

Schwarz Named APS Fellow

Dr. Guenter Schwarz, professor of physics at FSU has been informed by the American Physical Society that he has been elected a Fellow.

Only about ten per cent of the members of the American Pysical Socity are elevated to the level of Fellow. Physicists are considered who have contributed materially to the advancement of physics by research or by developing new teaching methods.

Schwarz, whose research field is x-ray spectroscopy and the determination of natural constants, is best known at the present for his development of equipment for demonstration and teaching undergraduate physics and last summer served in Texas as the instructor in an Institute for teaching college professors the best methods of presenting the subject to their classes.

He also serves the American Institute of Physics as a visiting physicist to liberal arts colleges to give them guidance in the development of their curriculum and in setting up standards for courses leading to a major in physics.

He has taught courses for high school teachers in line with the new curriculum developed by the Physical Sciences Study Committee and he is recognized as one of the leaders in this country in modern methods of teaching physics to undergraduate students.

Gypsy Boots has appeared 16 times on the Steve Allen Show during the last year. He has also appeared on the Groucho Marx Show, Pople are Funny, Dave Garroway Show, Funny Films, Jack Linkletter and the Untouchables. He is joined by Rovin' Grove who plays 12 string and six string guitar and Thomas Everett (Tumbleweed Tom) who plays the guitar and sings.

Yvan is a 20 year old native of Tahiti who has only been in this country three months. He worked with Marlon Brando in "Mutiny on the Bounty" which was filmed in Tahiti. The young Tahitian accompanies himself on the guitar singing calypso, American, French and Italian folk songs.

The Pine Valley Boys specialize in old fashioned Blue Grass music and their instruments include the mandolin, guitar and banjo. They appeared recently in the Hootenanny at Carnegie Hall.

The Wellynbrook Singers first met at Los Angeles Valley College where they were music majors. They provide a wide range of musical expression from classical, musical comedy to jazz and spiritual. They do their own vocal and instrumental arrangements.

The Villagers are Elaine, Janet Harvey and Steve.

Peter Evans plays the Flamenco music of the Spanish tradition with a modern feeling. In Spain he was hailed by Madrid's newspapers as "El rubico fantastico de California" (the fantastic blond from California).

Purdy Emphasizes Raises For Well-Educated Policeman

One of the nation's best known police administrator's, Col. E. Wilson Purdy, told 150 southern law enforcement officers meeting at FSU yesterday that premium salaries ought to be given better educated recruits to the police force.

Purdy, the former police chief of St. Petersburg and now commissioner of state police in Pennsylvania, keynoted the opening session of the two-day first annual Southern Institute for Law Enforcement which is considering professionalization of the police field by declaring:

"To encourage the college student, credit should be given in terms of salary scale to attract their entrance in the police field. For example, in a five-step salary scale, the high school graduate might be started at Step A, the two-year college applicant in Step B or C and the four-year graduate in Step C or D."

Why, he asked, "Should a man spend two to four years in college to become a cop?" The answer, he declared, is this, "Our work is as complicated, exacting and technical as almost any profession today. The local or municipal officers' work is far more difficult and complicated and requires more know-how than that of a federal law enforcement officer, and yet our qualifications are usually no higher than a high school education and no previous employment training."

Purdy added that "there is no place on the police force for a high school graduate who finishes 299 in a class of 300."

Professionalization will never come about, he said, "until we actively seek or are willing to accept assistance from the college and university level." He added, however, "The general public and the city fathers of law enforcement itself are apparently not yet ready to fully accept the concept of college education as a prerequisite."

Madrigal Singers Set Performance

The Madrigal Singers, small specialized singing group at FSU, will present a program at the Stephen Foster Memorial at White Springs, Fla., at 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 17.

Walter James, director of the eight member group, says madrigals, secular songs of two or more voice parts, originated in Italy. They were however popular also in England during the early part of the 16th century and the early part of the 17th century.

Included on the program will be "Matona, lovely maiden" by Orlando Lassus (1520-1594); "Sweet Suffolk Owl" by Thomas Vautor; 'The Nightingale" by Thomas Weelkes; and a group of songs by Stephen Foster with banjo accompanist Cherill Heaton of Homestead.

Members of the Madrigal Singers are Sarah Hanna, Lana Paulk, Elaine Clark, Sarah Rideout, Harold Chapman, Mark Riechmann, Thomas Adair and Thomas Brannen.

New Rush Procedure Brings Many Changes

By BOB RACKLEFF

One of the most important and crucial phases of operation in fraternities at FSU and elsewhere is rush.

The lifeblood of a fraternity is new manpower, which is essential for the continued existence of a chapter.

Many chapters on this campus lose 20-30% of their members during the year, particularly over the summer months, because of graduation and dropouts. Because of this, chapters devote a major part of their finances and energies to the first few weeks of the fall trimester when formal rush is held.

Although fraternity rush is a year-round activity, most of a chapter's pledge class is generally obtained during formal rsh.

In the formal rush system initiated this year by IFC, the movement of rushees from house to house was accomplished on a more systematic basis than before, mainly with the use of the platoon system.

During their initial visits to the 17 fraternity houses here, rushees were led around in platoons of about 30, and spent 20 minutes at each chapter.

After this first round of visitations which lasts two days, informal open houses were held.

During this time, the fraternity members reviewed the rushees who had been through and decided which would receive party bids--invitations to return for a second round of three rush parties where rushees and members could become better acquainted.

After this hectic and exhausting week of rush functions, fraternities issued bids--invitations to pledge--and rushees fill out preferentials, on which they designated the three fraternities they chose to pledge. After the bid cards and preferentials were matched in the IFC office, formal pledging was held.

This year there were 548 openings for new pledges in the FSU fraternities--each chapter is held to a mixiumum number of 75 brothers and pledges by IFC regulations. Of the 475 students who signed up for formal rush, 389 received bids and 191 pledged.

To evaluate the results of this new rush system, IFC appointed a rush critique committee, composed of Ronnie Arthur, Pi Kappa Alpha; Arnie Gibbs, Tau Epsilon Phi and Toby Harris, Sigma Nu. In their report which was released recently, they endorsed the platoon system but recommended several changes in it and other phases of formal rush.

More publicity should be used for attracting rushees, using such media as the Flambeau, radio, and posters. The low number of men who signed up for rush was due partly to inadequate publicity and bad weather conditions.

There was also some confusion among rushees over locations for registration and card signing, due to complex IFC regulations. The rush critique committee recommended that rush rules, particularly concerning registration, should be simplified and emphasized more.

There were many complaints by both rushees and fraternity members that 20 minutes at each house during the initial visitations were not enough, and should be extended. In addition, the committee proposed that a better routing system from house to house be devised to facilitate the movement of platoons.

The committee's report noted that the fraternities acquired approximately the same number of pledges as they have under previous rush systems.

Although several chapters fared poorly in formal rush, most of them recovered by gaining additional pledges in informal pledging. In addition to the 191 pledges acquired in formal rush, about 130 more have pledged in informal rush, which is now going on, according to Steve McCutcheon, assistant fraternity advisor.

In commenting on the platoon system, McCutcheon said he felt it was beneficial because it allows the rushee to visit each house and gain a knowledge of each chapter, although the time in each house should be increased to 30 minutes. Other benefits of this system are that it helps the rushee make his decision, and also allows him to drop out of rush at any level he wishes.

McCutcheon also stated that the fraternities should be allowed to sign rushees up for parties, instead of the present party bid system, which is too formal and complex, and encourages violations of rush regulations. Observing that formal rush interfered with studying at the first of the trimester, he recommended that formal rush be extended over a longer period of time, and start earlier in the fall.

Two Dances To Be Held

There will be two dances in place of one on this year's Homecoming Program being planned for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 15-16, at FSU.

The first will be held Friday night, Nov. 15, following the Pow Wow. It will be an informal dance in Suwannee Room.

The other is from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight Saturday, Nov. 16, and is a coat and tie affair also in the Suwannee Room.

Tickets will go on sale in Westcott Ticket Office Monday, Nov. 11. The Friday night dance is $2 a couple and the Saturday night dance $1. Tickets will be sold at the door.

A giant teepee, extending nearly to the ceiling, will be the principal decorative motif for the informal Friday night dance, at which about 1,500 couples are expected.

Both dances are open to students and alumni. The Chaotics and Checkmates will provide music for the first dance and the Rick Powell Orchestra will play for the Saturday night event in Suwanne Room. About 1,000 couples are expected for this one.

Sandi Staten is student chairman for the Homecoming Dance Committee, of which Miss Marie Williams is the faculty chairman. Gene Stearns is co-chairman; Jim Beard is publicity chairman; and Carol Peters is in charge of decorations.

Coed To Be In Paper

Eleanor "Bookie" Reynolds, an FSU freshman coed, will appear in the "All Florida" magazine of the "St. Petersburg Times" Sunday.

Bookie, who comes from Cairo, Ga., is majoring in art, and has pledged Alpha Chi Omega sorority. She is a Village Vamp and a majorette with the Marching Chiefs.

Bookie isn't quite sure why she was chosen for the magazine; she said, "They just called and said that they wanted to do a story on me."

Wrecks Ready To Ramble

By GENE BALLARD

Tomorrow afternoon the Florida State Seminoles begin their journey through "murder's row" with a trip to Grant Field to meet the twice-beaten Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets. The Jackets are making a bid for Florida state football champions. They have already beaten Florida 9-0.

Georgia Tech has had a very good season. They have won five games and lost two. Their losses were by a total of nine points, 7-6 to LSU and 29-21 to unbeaten Auburn. Their victories have come over Flories, Clemson, Tennessee, Tulane and Duke. The latter was by a 30-6 score last week.

On offense, Tech is extremely versatile. Despite the presence of Billy Lothridge, Tech likes to run. In fact, the rushing yardage per game is more than passing yardage. Tech has average 150 yards per game on the ground while averaging only 93 yards through the air.

Joe Auer, Johnny Gresham, Ray Mendheim, Gerry Bussell, Jerry Barber, and Tommy Jackson form a crack group of ground-gainers with speed and agility. They can also receive passes; in fact, Auer leads the team in receptions.

One reason for the decline of the passing game was an injury to Billy Martin, and the resignation of Ted Davis, rated the the best pair of ends in the nation. Lothridge has been deprived of one or both of his favorite targets since the LSU game. Martin's injury has healed, however, and he will see action tomorrow. Senior Frank Sexton and Junior Dave Austin share Davis's post at the other terminal. They have caught eight passes between them for 128 and two scores.

Tech's biggest offensive weapon is Billy Lothridge, Tech's superior quarterback. This season he has accounted for 103 of his team's points. He has thrown eight touchdown passes scored two himself, kicked 13 extra points and kicked 10 field goals. He has also punted 33 times for a 42.0 average. His coach, Bobby Dodd has called him the best quarterback he has ever coached. Duke Coach Bill Murray, who has seen Lothridge three times too many, calls him the best player in the entire country.

At the ends, Martin does a great job on defense, while Sexton (6-1, 190) does an adequate job. Austin (6-3, 218), Steve Copeland (6-0, 200) and George Morris (6-3, 196) are all juniors with one letter.

Bill Farrington (6-3, 215) and Tom Ballard (6-0, 215) form a senior-junior combo at the tackles. They had 29 and 25 tackles respectively last year. The reserves are John Battle (5-11, 234) and Bill Paschal (6-1, 231).

John Seward (6-2, 217) and George Yates (6-0, 221) form a junior combo at the guards. Yates excells on defense, making 49 tackles last year. He is tops among returning linesmen.

Dave Simmons has taken over the center berth. At 6-3 and 228 pounds, Simmons, a Texas boy, has all the tools. He has been a surprise this season, taking the first-string job away from senior John Matlock (6-0, 219). He has made most of his progress at linebacker, however. Nominated for liemen of the week honors for his play against Duke, Simmons in the words of his coach, Tech defensive coach Charlie Tate "The best linebacker in the Southeastern Conference."

Season statistics reveal bad news for Steve Tensi, Larry Brinkley, Dave Snyder and crew. Tech has allowed an average of only 83 yards a game passing, and Tech has played against some good quarterbacks. Pat Screen of LSU, Tommy Shannon of Florida, Jimmy Sidle of Auburn and Scotty Glackin of Duke to name a few.

Their average against rushing is only 120 yards a game. Also to be considered in this figure is thatBilly Martin has missed four out of seven games. Martin is the Jackets best pass rusher.

Booters Bound For Gators At G'ville

The FSU soccer team will leave tonight on a trip to Gainesville to take on a University of Florida Soccer aggregation. The match will be played Saturday morning at 10 and will be the second for both teams. The Gators fell to Georgia Tech last week while Camp Maxwell was taming the Seminoles 3-1. The Gators will repay the visit next week.

Oglesby To Resign As Dean Of Students

By LYNN BISSLAND
Flambeau News Editor

Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby's resigna- - to return to fulltime teaching as approved Friday at the Board of Con- meeting held in Jacksonville.

Ogles came to FSU in 1954 as Dean of Men after serving at Oklahoma State University, Duke, Berea, Sweetbriar and George Washington. His resignation is effective July 1964.

Dr. Harry Lay, associate dean of students since January of 1962 when he went to Salzburg, Austria, to be the director of American Seminars, will be Oglesby's successor.

Oglesby received a B.A. in English from Georgetown University, and M.A. in political science from the University of Virginia, and a Ph.D. from Duke University.

In addition, he has done graduate work at Harvard and Heidelberg Universities. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha and the Rotary Club.

"After ten exciting years of working with FSU students, I feel my own interests can best be served by going back into full time teaching," stated Dean Oglesby concerning his retirement.

"Great things have been accomplished at FSU in the past decade. I am confident that still greater years lie ahead.

"As I leave this post I can say that I have always thought of my role as one of supporting the interests of students, and hoping for the best for them.

"I have not often been disappointed in them. Florida and the nation should be proud of the ideals and motivation of the young people who seek an education here," concluded Oglesby.

Jon Kaney

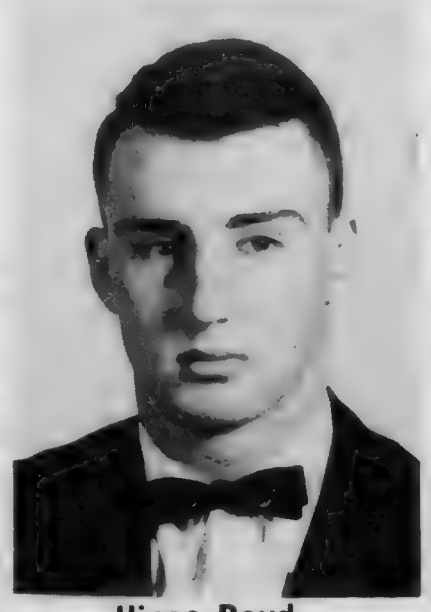
Hines, Kaney, Proctor Tapped For Gold Key

By NANCY ALMOND
Flambeau Staff Writer

Gold Key tapped three students for membership last night. Tapped for the leadership honorary were Jon Kaney, Hines Boyd and Julian Proctor.

Kaney is active in Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity, Policy Board of the Florida State Promotional Committee and is the Commissioner of Elections. He was elected to the Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Kaney transferred to FSU from the North Florida Junior College where he was vice president of the student body, a member of the Student Government and was in a junior college dramatics honorary.

Hines Boyd is the Chief Defense Council of the Honor Court, in Men's Judiciary, the Alpha Council and a Phi Delta Theta social fraternity officer.



Julian Proctor is vice president of the student body, past president of the Sophomore and Freshman classes, a Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity officer and an officer of the Alpha Council.

Present officers of Gold Key are Joe Rodgers, president; Miles Williams, vice president; Frank Ryll, secretary; and John Jones, treasurer.

The Gold Key was founded in 1947 for the purpose of recognizing outstanding character, leadership and service among junior and senior men. It requires of its members a 2.3 overall grade overage plus active participation in several areas of campus life.

'Biology At Nine' To Host Debusk

Dr. A. Gib Debusk, Dept. of Biological Sciences and Associate Director of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, will speak on "Life is a Three Letter Word" at 9 p.m. for the "Biology at Nine" series.

The program, which will be in Westcott Auditorium, is designed for students in biology 105.

"However," said Robert Reeve, instructor of Biological Sciences and host for the series, "the scope and content of the series is such that both students and faculty not taking or teaching biology can learn about interesting and significant facets of the biological sciences."

Students and faculty are invited.

BOC Withholds Building Funds

The Board of Control, meeting in Jacksonville Friday, withheld immediate approval of university projects financed by the $45 million bond issue authorized in the Nov. 5 vote.

One of the reasons for withholding approval, besides a desire of BOC members to have time to study the effects of the bond issue, is the chance of the passage of a bill pending in Congress which could free millions of dollars in matching funds for Florida universities.

Architect Forrest Kelley, Jr., presented to the BOC a revised schedule of the projects which he said had been submitted to him by the presidents of the universities.

The revised list cut items proportionately from the various universities as listed in the legislature's implementing act for the bond referendum.

FSU's cutback was from $11.1 to $9.9 million, or $1.2 million. Slashed was $229,000 for equipment for a women's dorm and $921,000 for a women's dorm. $350,000 for land acquisition was sliced $215,000.

Expansion Vetoed

The BOC also squelched a plan for $50,000 addition to FSU's football stadium.

The plan, which has not formally been presented to the BOC, has encountered an undercurrent of resentment. The addition, which would have increased seating at Campbell Stadium from 24,000 to 38,000, is not entirely "now or at any time in the near future," now that the BOC has gone on record against it.

Perhaps the most important side effect to FSU students of the BOC's opposition will be that FSU will be unable to realize the manditory increased seating requirement imposed by the University of Florida before the Gators would meet the Seminoles in Tallahassee.

Ten FSU Professors Are Criticized By BOC

By LYNN BISSLAND

Ten FSU faculty members who signed a letter soliciting money to pay fines of students convicted of contempt of court were criticized by the Board of Control Friday.

The letter was an appeal for funds to pay fines of students arrested in integration picketing.

Dr. Charles Foreman, BOC member, asked FSU President Gordon Blackwell if he approved the faculty members' action.

Blackwell emphasized the faculty members "in no way" acted in an official capacity in the fund campaign.

The president said, "They were trying to act as private citizens," and that "my own feeling is that they were motivated by humane considerations."

Blackwell stated, "I would not have signed a letter of that kind myself," adding the university's official position is that students should adhere to the law.

Foreman said he felt "academic responsibility was breached" and that "these people have to understand they are on a pedestal."

He said he felt they acted without serious advance thought and recommended in the future they use the same methods of thorough research they use in their scientific research before taking such action.

Board member John Pace, also was critical and said he thought the faculty members deliberated their action.

Delius Sought To Put Opera In Place Of Religion: Randall

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER

"Delius felt people were tired of being preached to, and he hoped to replace religion with opera," quoted Dr. William Randall at the English Coffee Hour last Friday.

The composer Delius was born and raised in Yorkshire, England, but became a traveler as an agent of his father's wool business. At an early age he could play Mozart works he had heard but once. In 1884 and 1885 Delius lived in Jacksonville. He enjoyed the natural beauty and charm of the South.

Delius felt that George Washington Cable's book "The Grandissimes" was interesting material for an opera. Cable's story explores the injustices of the Black Code of Reconstruction days in Louisiana.

"Cable elevated the slave story of Bras-Coupe and created a novel of idea," stated Randall. Randall also added that "The Grandissimes" has recently been reprinted and is excellent reading.

When returned to Europe, Delius adapted this story and wrote his opera "Koanga." This opera has only been staged twice because it does not realistically portray the life of the slaves during this period. The diction in "Koanga" is strained because Delius and his critic friend, Carey, tried to make it too poetic. Other reasons for the lack of popularity are the long musical passages without any movement.

"If Delius had read the articles on slave songs and Creole dances that Cable had published, "Koanga" might have profited," the speaker added.

The score to "Koanga" was lost three times, but was finally presented to the Delius Society in Jacksonville by the London Society. Because most of his American sojourn was spent in Jacksonville, that city produces a week long festival of his music each year. Jacksonville University moved the composer's cottage to their campus and restored it.

Many of Delius's other works such as Appalachia and the "Florida Suite" (which he dedicated to the people of Florida) reflect his susceptability to American influences.

Dr. Townsend, English Dept., announced that there will be no Coffee Hour this Friday due to Homecoming. On November 22 at 4 p.m. in Westminster House, Dr. Mary Witt will speak on her two years in South America in the field of elementary and secondary education.

Giant Among Men

Throughout the past 10 years, FSU students have received the unflagging support of a giant among men in the field of educational administration.

As his resignation is being made public, we recall the high praise and regard that generations of students have had for Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby. The student leaders who have worked in close contact with him have recognized his stature as a visionary with the added gift of seeing that his optimistic dreams were fulfilled.

His dreams were the dreams of students. With student leaders and other foresighted administrators, he dreamed of a gigantic University Union complex which would serve as the living room of the University.

He envisioned a gradual shifting of responsibility for management of student affairs until it should rest primarily upon the shoulders of the students themselves.

In casting his lot with the students, he risked a loss of personal prestige in the eyes of those who deplored the giving of so much power into student hands. Yet he has continued to work with and for students, even when student leaders have themselves feared to press for more self-government.

Dean Oglesby's decision to offer his resignation was made, we are certain, only after tortuous months of consideration. His resignation is a tremendous loss to the student body. Yet, much as we regret it, we cannot question his decision to surrender the tensions of the Dean of Students' office and return to active teaching.

We have heard excellent recommendations of his successor, Dean Harry P. Day, and we hope they are all justified. It will take another giant to follow in Dean Oglesby's footsteps.

Editor Blames Confusion On 'Communications Lag'

A newspaper editor said here yesterday that confusion and indecision in America must be blamed on a "communications lag."

Miami Herald Editor Don Shoemaker, luncheon speaker at the annual meeting of the Florida Public Relations Association at FSU, said to solve this long and tough problem "We should bear our responsibility as communicators. When do we start?"

Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, president of FSU, welcomed those attending. He introduced Shoemaker and noted that both were transplants from North Carolina.

As to confusion among the people about important issues, Shoemaker used this week's school bond issue as an example of how public relations people in Dade County through communications made the facts clear and got out the vote.

The newspaper editor said that Americans were bruised by social upheaval, hit by vast technological changes, and caught in cold war tensions.

The average citizen realizes his nation has its neck out today, said Shoemaker, but "we're not so sure we're winning because we're not sure of our goals."

One good example of the indecisiveness of the people was the fact that the last president of the United States was elected by a bare 51 per cent, Shoemaker pointed out. "There seems to be a pride in not understanding the issues, and then not going to the polls to vote," he stated. "We are the best read people in the world and in many respects the least informed."

Campus 'Fire'

Tallahassee firemen answered what seemed to an alert passerby a fire at the Geological Survey Bldg. yesterday at about 12:39 p.m.

However what appeared to be smoke was actually steam pouring from a broken pop off valve on the bottom floor of the building.

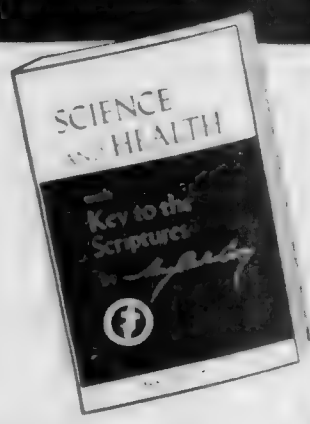
There were no reported damages.

Magazines Are Missing

Miss Jane Adams, director of Longmire, requests that the binders and magazines from Saturday Evening Post and Look be returned to the Student Lounge, Longmire.

"All magazines in the lounge are purchased with Student Activity funds," Miss Adams said, "It is a shame that some students seem to regard them as their own personal property."

Several of the more popular weeklies have disappeared from the lounge.



Miss Adams said that the magazines are turned over to the infirmary after being in the lounge for some time for the enjoyment of students who are bedridden.

She requested that students not take them from the lounge.

Supreme Court Handcuffs Agencies Barnes States At Law Institute

Local law enforcement agencies are being "handcuffed" by recent Supreme Court decisions regarding search and seizure, arraignments and confessions, Chief of Police William Barnes of the West Palm Beach Police Dept. said at FSU today.

Barnes addressed 150 southern law enforcement officers on the FSU campus for a two-day institute devoted to the professionalization of the police field. He said:

"In 1914 the US Supreme Court handed down its now historic decision in the case of Weeks vs US, 232 US 383. This decision rejected the firmly established common-law rule and substituted for it what has become to be known as the 'exclusionary rule,' which is that evidence seized illegally by Federal officers will not longer be admitted in Federal Court."

Barnes said that more restrictions were added in successive decisions until "we come to the coup de grace, the decision of the US Supreme Court in the case of Mapp vs. Ohio, 81 S. Ct. 1684 in 1961. In this case the Court decided that freedom from illegal searches and seizures is a part of the 'due process' guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to the Constitution, which applies to the States, and that the exclusionary rule is the only method by which this freedom or right can be enforced.

"The result of the decision is to bring the same handcuffing 'rule of evidence' that has been a burden to Federal officers and make it a 'requirement of due process' and make the minimum acceptable requirements of the law of search and seizure for state officers the same as those for Federal officers, regardless of any constitutional provision, law or decision of your state to the contrary.

"This then has been the history of the courts' crippling decisions in the one area of search and seizure," Barnes said. "We find ourselves asking now, 'Who will determine the unreasonableness of our searches?'

"Will it be our State courts or will it be the Federal courts, courts that have held as in Work vs US, 243 F.2d 660 (DC Cir. 1957) that looking into a narcotic peddler's garbage can was an unreasonable search. Two officers entered the home of Work, she walked past the officers and out of the house and to an area under her porch. The officers followed her and saw her put something (which turned out to be narcotics) into a trash can located in the porch area. It was in this case that Fred Inbau made his now famous statement that the case 'establishes the sanctity of the garbage can.'"

The speaker traced also the history of decisions in relation to preliminary hearing or arraignment. "This is the area of restrictive decisions," he said, "where we find the now famous (or infamous) McNabb, Mallory and Waterman cases."

In the McNabb ruling (318 US 332, 1943) the US Supreme Court laid down the judicial rule that a confession obtained from the arrested person after the onset of unnecessary delay in hearing is inadmissable in Federal Court. Barnes said:

"What, may I ask you, will be the inevitable result of the McNabb, Mallory and Waterman decisions if used to decide a single case? There could be no questioning after arrest and before preliminary hearing or arraignment, nor could there be any questioning after this judicial proceeding started. In effect you would be prohibited from questioning the arrested person at all."

The speaker said that one method of offsetting some of the limitations would be adoption of the Uniform Arrest Act.

"At this time the States of Delaware, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts have adopted this Act. It allows a peace officer to stop any person abroad who he has reasonable grounds to suspect is committing, has committed or is about to commit a crime and may demand his name, address, business abroad and whither he is going.

And it also provides: (2) any person so questioned, who fails to identify himself or explain his actions to the satisfaction of the officer, may be detained and further questioned and investigated. It also provides: (3) the total period of detention provided for by this section shall not exceed two hours. The detention is not an arrest and shall not be recorded as an arrest in any official record. At the end of the detention the person so arrested shall be released or be arrested and charged with the crime."

Class Of 1913 To Hold Reunion At Homecoming

There's nothing unlucky about the "13" in the name of the Honor Class holding a reunion at FSU's Homecoming next week-end.

Thirteen of the original 17 members of the Florida State College for Women Class of 1913 still are around, a good 76 per cent and eight of them expect to be at Homecoming Friday and Saturday, Nov. 15 and 16.

A streak of luck began for Alma Parlin, the permanent class president, even before she got her diploma and a bachelor of science degree in tat spring commencement 50 years ago.

She was lucky, that is, to get off with only a frown and some harsh words from Business Manager J.G. Kellum when she climbed the roof of Westcott Building to plant the class banner.

As Alma Parlin, now Mrs. Elroy W. Neate of Apalachicola, recalls the incident today, it went something like this:

"The seniors wanted to put their name on top of Westcott Building so I made a small banner out of a sheet and the class printed 'Class of '13' on it.

"I took the banner and went up by way of Mr. Kellum's office through a closet and trapdoor to the roof. From a flat part of the roof I shinnied up the tiles to the ridge and planted the banner.

"But Mr. Kellum came back earlier than I had expected and I had to stay on that roof for three hours in the hot May sun. Finally, when I came down, he said, 'Don't do that again.'"

Another piece of luck for Mrs. Neate so far this year's Homecoming is concerned is that a granddaughter, Barbara Cline, in enrolled as a freshman and will be on hand to greet her. Barbara's mother also went to FSCW, entering in 1941.

Mrs. Neate, whose husband is a banker and was once mayor of Apalachicola, was a chemistry and home economics major. Her father has been surveyor-general for the state. She taught home economics for a while at Tarpon Springs after getting her master's degree at FSCW in 1914.

In addition to Mrs. Neate here are the graduate of 1913 who have indicated they plan to return for the class reunions: Mrs. J.R. Choate (Hallie L. Deaton) of Tallahassee; Mrs. T.C. Hobbs (Clarine Isabel Hoyt) of Tampa; Mrs. George L. Kelly (Gladys Esther Short) of Corona Del Mar, Calif.; Mrs. William Clark Little (Lola Mitchell Snider) of Greensboro, N.C.; Miss Bessie Wells of Tallahassee; Miss Fannie Alex Watson of Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Bernard L. Jefferson (Irma N. Williams) of St. Petersburg and associate member of the class Mrs. R.W. Gramling (Ruth McIlvaine) of Tallahassee.

Other members of the class are: Miss Irma DeSilva of Pensacola; Mrs. Betha Langley Moore of Lancaster, Pa.; Mrs. T.E. Landvoight (Lucile Stanley Mitchell) of Jacksonville; Mrs. C.B. Miller (Amanda Crystal Wainwright) of Miami; Mrs. Richard Taylor (Clyde Hunt) of Tampa.

Plainsmen Bite The Dust

By GENE BALLARD

And then there was one. Texas is now the only unbeaten and untied major college football team. Auburn and Princeton were upset by Mississippi State and Harvard. In other upsets, Ohio State was upset by Penn State 10–7, North Carolina was upset by Clemson 11–7.

The Top Ten will undoubtedly be shaken up this week. Navy and Mississippi both won big and should threaten Texas's hold on the top spot. Texas defeated Baylor 7–0 and Navy routed Maryland 41–7 and Mississippi ran over Tampa 41–0. Number two Illinois was upset by Michigan, and number five Auburn was upset by Miss. State. Oklahoma, Pittsburgh and Michigan State won convincingly over Notre Dame and Purdue. Number ten Ohio State was upset by Penn State.

In the East, Navy and Pitt kept abreast in the race for the Lambert Trophy. Both have one loss, but Navy has played eight game and Pitt only seven. Army lost much prestige in beating Utah on 8–7. Penn State and Syracuse are still in the picture with 6–2 records. Syracuse lost a little luster by defeating West Virginia 15–13.

In the South, Auburn's loss to State puts Mississippi in the kriver's seat in the Southeastern Conference. The Rebs are the only undefeated team in the Conference. Auburn, Alabama, LSU and Mississippi State have only one loss. Clemson's defeat of North Carolina has thrown the Atlantic Coast Conference into a three-way tie between Duke, N.C. State and Carolina. Wake Forest scored for the first time since their first game, but it was not enough as Duke routed the Baptists 39–7. North Carolina State defeated VPI 13–7.

Ohio State and Michigan State are still battling for the Big Ten lead and a Rose Bowl trip. Michigan State routed Purdue to gain a half game lead on the Buckeyes. Both have one tie, but Ohio State has lost to Southern California and Penn State. The title will probably be decided at the Illinois–Michigan State game. The Illini were upset Saturday by Michigan 14–7.

Oklahoma and Nebraska advanced to their showdown in the Big Eight Conference by defeating Iowa State and Kansas. Missouri stood by in case one of the leaders should fall by defeating Colorado 28–7. Oklahoma must still face Nebraska and Missouri, while Nebraska has already beaten Missouri.

Texas has clinched the Southwest Conference title, barring on upset by TCU or Texas A&M. Baylor and Rice have both lost only one conference game and could tie.

If Florida State Head Football Coach Bill Peterson could bring up any two motions before the NCAA Rules Committee, his first suggestion would be to shorten any FSU–Georgia Tech football game to one half in duration.

The second exhortation would be to place one Mr. Billy Lothridge at the top of the FBI's list of the ten most dangerous men in the U.S.

In defense of the first suggestion, Peterson could point to Saturday's Tech–Tribe tussle in Grant Field at Atlanta. When the halftime gun sounded and the FSU circus took the field to draw the native's minds off the game, Bill Peterson walked off the field with a 7–3 lead hanging out of his back pocket. His high-flying footballers had scored the first time they got their hands on the ball and then proceeded to hold Mr. Lothridge and company to a 22 yard field goal.

However, the second half, as they say around the offices of the Post Magazine, was a different story. The armed and dangerous Lothridge took only three and one half minutes to blast his way onto the scoring board again with a 23 yard aerial to his old high school teammate in Gainesville, Ga., 6–4 1/2 end Billy Martin.

Lothridge made himself notorious to Peterson by piling up 246 yards passing and 28 net yards rushing in the game. The record-breaking "Mr. Everything," Lothridge, also shattered four Yellow Jacket records in one day's work.

Briefly, Lothridge managed to:

1. Create a Tech record for most passes, 34.
2. Set a Tech completion record of 20.
3. Establish a total yards gained passing record, 246.
4. End up with a new yards gained standard 274.

The Seminoles' Larry Br took the opening kickoff and re ed it to the Tribe 32. Three by running-mate Snyder plac ball on the Tech 39. Steve Tens into the act with a 21 yard pa Red Dawson of Valdosta, Ga., Jacket 21. On the churning le Brinkley, who hacked out 12, 1 yards in three plays, the moved to the Tech two yard st from where lanky Tensi flipp Dawson for the touchdown, acti in 4:14 minutes.

The Engineers went around cles until the change of quar when they took the ball on their 28 and plooded against the Tri fense for 67 yards in 14 plays to the visitor five yard line. Seminole defense broke throu throw Lothridge for a loss a senior quarterback had to ca his talented toe to put Tech scoring column with a 22 yard goal, the 20th of his career in lege and a national record.

Coming out after the FSU F High Circus had received a sta ovation from the Grant Field c of 49,804, Lothridge again too the spotlight by moving the Ja 77 yards in nine plays and hi paydirt on the pass to Martin, missed the PAT try.

Continuing to dominate the se half, Tech clinched the game w four yard pitchout from Lothrid fullback Ray Mendheim in the fo quarter.

THE CHECK-MATES

will be one of three bands appearing on campus this weekend for the Homecoming dances to be held Friday and Saturday nights. Members the group are (l to r) Gene Watson, John York, Rick Wheeler and Gibs Willis.

Three Bands To Play At Weekend Dances

Homecoming will be highlighted this year by two dances featuring the Check-Mates, Rick Powell Orchestra and the Chaotics.

Tickets are on sale in the Westcott Ticket Office or may be bought at the door.

The Chaotics and Check-Mates will alternate in the spotlight Friday night from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. in the Suwannee Room. Late permission has been extended on this night until 1 a.m. Admission has been set at $2 per couple.

The Rick Powell Orchestra will be featured at the Suwannee Room dance Saturday night from 8 p.m. until 12 a.m. There is no late permission and the admission is $1 per couple.

The Chaotics have been organized since December, 1962, including members Bill Moon, Paul Messer, Bob Kerce, Ned Hafner, Sammy Boykin and Mark Illerbee.

They have performed throughout the south at such universities as Auburn, Georgia Tech, the University of Georgia and University of Florida. Presently the group is engaged in recording.

The Check-Mates have had professional experience in either nightclubs or road-show engagements. Members are Gene Watson, John York, Rick Wheeler and Gibson Willis. Watson has recorded with Dixie of Nashville, NRC of Atlanta and Ram of New York. York has played road shows throughout the southeast. Wheeler has had nightclub experience since being a teenager. Willis has travelled the southeast playing road show engagements.

The Rick Powell Orchestra has been organized since December of 1962 including members Rick Powell, Cliff Madsen, Dave Franklin, Tom Brannon, Gary Bennett, Jack Gibson and Cal Hasbrouck. The group has played on the FSU campus, campuses of colleges in nearby states and in local and neighboring communities.

Each of the members either has or is working toward a degree in music at FSU. Past experience of the members includes performing with such names as Connie Francis, Vic Damone, Bobby Darin, the Four Saints, and Stan Kenton.

The dress for Friday night is casual but no shorts, slim jims, etc. Dress for Saturday night is coat and tie.

FSU, A & M Students Make Integration Try

By DICK SMITH
Asst. News Editor

Witnesses reported yesterday that two white FSU students were asked to leave the Mecca, an off-campus restaurant, because they were joined by two Florida A&M students.

John Parrott and Dennis Flood entered the Mecca and ordered two cups of coffee apiece, according to observers. When the coffee was placed on the table, two A&M students, Sidney Daniels and Calvin Bess, entered the restaurant and sat down with the two FSU students.

The restaurant manager, who was unavailable for comment yesterday, reportedly then took the coffee away from the Negroes and called the police.

The manager then went back to the table and requested the whites to get up and let the Negroes out (the two A&M students were on the inside seats), whereupon the FSU students reportedly replied that the Negroes could leave if they so desired.

Observers said the Mecca manager then grabbed Parrott by the arm and dragged him into the aisle. In attempting to take the coffee from Parrott, the manager reportedly spilled some on the FSU student.

A Tallahassee police officer arrived and the A&M students were asked to leave in the authority's presence. They agreed to do so.

Tallahassee police said yesterday that neither the two FSU students nor the two A&M students were booked.

Thirteen other graduating classes at FSU and FSCW will be holding reunions during Homecoming, including the Honor Class of 1913, eight of whose 13 living members are expected back by parade time at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

The eight golden anniversary graduates and one associate member of the 1913 class will ride near the head of a parade moving from the FSU gates down College Avenue to Monroe Street and then past the Capitol, where there will be a reviewing stand. They will be seated in the stand to watch the rest of the parade.

Alumni have a breakfast and business meeting Saturday morning and expect to learn the result at that time of a mail ballot election for Alumni Association president.

Open Bids Close

Panhellenic open bidding closes today for sororities at FSU. This will be the last day that girls will be allowed to sign preferential cards to be pledged.

Open rushing will continue, but no bids will be issued after Nov. 12 until second trimester.

Young Democrats

The Young Democrats will hold a short meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Final plans will be discussed for the reception to be given to President Truman on his arrival. All persons interested in participating may attend.

Any further information may be obtained from Charles Intriago at 222-3607.

Weekend Parties Must Be Filed

Fraternities are reminded to pick up application forms for off-campus parties in Miss Marie Williams' office on the ground floor of Longmire.

Applications for Homecoming weekend must be filled out and returned by 4 p.m. today.

Parties consisting of more than five couples must have two chaperones. The chaperones must personally contact Miss Williams before the party. Senior women may act as chaperones and must be cleared by noon of the day of the party.

A list of the attending coeds must be submitted to Miss Williams.

Parties may last no longer than midnight on Fridays and Saturdays and no later than 9 p.m. on all other nights.

FSU To Be Location Of Next ACU Meet

FSU was selected as the site for the 1964 convention of the Association of College Unions, Region 4, when the association met at the University of South Florida last weekend.

Six delegates from FSU attended the convention. Johnny Smith, student body president, was chairman of the delegation which included George Miller, Bob Bowles, Sandy Staten, Mickey Newman and Jean Norman.

Beginning on Thursday night and lasting through Saturday afternoon, delegates met in discussion groups and panels. Ideas, problems, administration and organization of student unions were discussed.

"FSU went with the idea of bringing back the position of host school for the next year's convention," according to Smith. To help accomplish this plan, letters from the Governor, the Mayor of Tallahassee and President Blackwell inviting the delegates to Tallahassee, accompanied the FSU delegation. They also took information concerning transportation and motel accommodations.

In addition to obtaining the convention site, FSU backed all the candidates who won conference offices. The delegation did not nominate any officers from FSU because they preferred to concentrate on the convention site.

The convention was not "all work and no play." Delegates were treated to a performance by the Four Preps and the Gateway Trio.

Asked for his opinion of the convention results, Smith said, "The entire convention was a great success. Our student body should be proud of the way the FSU delegation represented them. We were able to receive a great deal of information from the convention, but I think that we probably contributed more than we received."

RICK POWELL

... and his orchestra will be playing for the semi-formal dance in Suwannee Room Saturday night. The group includes Rick Powell, Cliff Madsen, Dave Franklin, Tom Brannon, Gary Bennett, Jack Gibson and Cal Hasbrouck.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Editorials represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Flambeau with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Profs Criticized

In condemning the 10 FSU professors who signed a letter soliciting funds to pay student fines, several Board of Control members did just what they accused the professors of doing -- they "went off half-cocked."

They attempted to place FSU President Gordon Blackwell on the spot by asking him if he "approved or disapproved" of the professors' action. They would not accept his answer that the professors were acting as private citizens and were in no way acting in an official capacity.

Clearly, they were trying to put President Blackwell in the position of joining their condemnation of the professors. It is much to his credit that he did not yield to their pressure even though he has said he personally would not have signed the letteer.

The controversial fund letter states specifically that the signers do not condone illegal procedures. But most people would agree with them that there are better climates for students than jail cells. Yet the contention is that the professors' action "impeached the court, the faculty disciplinary committee and the board of control."

It is unfortunate indeed that members of a political governing board should, in the name of academic responsibility, criticize the private actions of citizens who also happen to be fine university professors.

LM

Hands Slapped

When the Board of Control withheld approval of university projects last week, good reasons were given for the benefit of the Florida taxpayers who recently voted yes on the $45 million bond issue (Nov. 5).

The "reasons" for squelching FSU's planned request for a $500,000 addition to the Campbell Stadium last week merit serious consideration, especially when the plan had not even been formally presented to BOC for approval or rejection. Rumor rides on strong winds in the state of Florida.

The "to-be-proposed" addition would have increased seating from 24,000 to 38,000 fans, making it possible to meet mandatory increased seating requirements imposed by the University of Florida before the "Gators" face the "Seminoles" on Tallahassee territory.

The BOC's veto of the plan literally slammed the door to any near future realizations of the stadium addition.

It is an unfortunate coincidence that the BOC should have slammed the door in the face of Florida's academic freedom at the same time by severely criticizing 10 FSU professors for exercising the unpardonable sin of trying to lead private lives after hours.

Such "slapping the offender's hands" actions by an educational Board of Control supposedly composed of educated, responsible citizens reminds us strongly of the little boy who hid the dough from his mother when she refused to make his kind of cookies ... expensive cookies this time.

Senate Ignores COP Mandate

Will the Senate obey a mandate placed upon them by the student body or not? The case in point -- the Class Officer Program. Last Spring the students of FSU voted in a referendum to abolish COP in its present form. It was the will of the student body. Yet, to date the Senate has ignored this mandate of the student body.

Why? One reason is the pressure applied by the class officers upon their friends in the Senate. At the recent student government weekend retreat the class officers grouped their forces for their fight for survival. Whether or not they survive in their present form depends upon their ability to get the Senate to disobey the will of a majority of its constitutents.

Don't blame the class officers. They sincerely believe that they can justify their existence. For one thing they do provide a class with a focal point from which to act or express opinion. Class officers are the head of the body of students comprising the various classes. The possible alternatives to the present situation are either turn the present COP duties over to the executive branch, or modify the present system to a more acceptable form. If the COP is modified it should be submitted to the students for approval as they have already voted to abolish it once.

If the individual students have opinions they would like to express before the special senate committee considering the problem, they should contact Mike Wegelius (presid... the junior class), or Senators... Green Light, Red. . . .

For years I've had this burning desire, this insatiable thirst to do something really outstanding for FSU. Many times I've though I have had the ideal thing, but after more thought, all these things were discarded. Not to discredit any of these ideas maybe I should mention a few.

Charge an admission to get into the Soda Shop and use this money to build a fence around FSU, a picket fence. (2) Cement up Westcott pool to put an end to pool parties, but everybody has been having too much fun getting hurt. (3) Write a letter to the editor, but most everyone would think that I am radical and besides, I don't have enough time because I go home every weekend. (4) Start a dating service for all the poor guys from down at Mother Gator's Kindergarten and Boarding school in Gainesville. (5) Write a book titled "How to be a sorority girl and still be popular."

To digress, however, let us return to my original reason for being here. I have a worthwhile item to be brought up. Why not go about getting a traffice light put on Copeland and West College in front of Westcott gate? Stop and think a minute, isn't it beautiful, isn't it fabulous, isn't it humanitarian? Another big thing to consider. Homecoming is just around the corner and you do know that this school has a long list of female alums. Well you get a bunch of sentimental old alums and women drivers on top of that, on this university. Well I don't need to say anymore.

To get back to my traffic light, why it wouldn't even have to be green and red, it could be garnet and gold. If it was I'm sure that it wouldn't cause any more confusion than is already quite prevalent at this corner at the present time. As a secondary advantage, we could all go stand around the garnet and gold light for pep rallies and sing the Alma Mater, if anybody knows it.

Papers Have Obligations To Reade...

What should a newspaper contain, and what are its obligations? These two questions are certainly interrelated. Basically a newspaper is a virtual monopoly. Although the number of newspapers is increasing in the US, independent ownership is decreasing. Or stated in other terms -- fewer interests are controlling more papers. Most cities have only one paper and usually three papers espouse a conservative philosophy because they are both big business and supported by big business.

Since there is usually just one daily paper in each fair sized city, this paper has an obligation to try to serve all the people. It should be remembered that, although there are numerous papers available, the citizens of a particular area must read the local paper because of news of local events, sales, announcements, etc. Now just how is it possible to serve all the people? There are several ways.

In the writer's opinion, the editorial page makes up the most important single section of the newspaper. In this section there are three main subdivision: (1) editorials, (2) columnists, and (3) letters to the editor. In the editorial, the paper has the right to express its own bias. If the paper is public minded, the editorial will usually advocate what the editor sincerely feels is best for the greatest number.

An important way in judging a paper is in observing the columnist it carries. There should be a wide selection, and there should be columnists on both sides of the "fence" as well as some on top of it. Another criterion is the section containing letters to the editor. Does the paper print all the letters possible; does it "cut" the letters and possibly change their meaning; and finally does the paper write editor's notes at the bottom of each letter to either agree with or counteract the view expressed?

Another criterion for judging a paper is whether or not it carries sufficient national and international news. In reporting the news there should be as much objectivity as possible. Sometimes a paper prints an editorial as if it were news. An editorial off the ditorial page should be clearly marked as an editorial.

Another criterion is the news service it carries. Some papers like the "Democrat" carry mostly the AP and UPI services. A paper like the "St. Pete Times" carries releases from the "New York Times," "Los Angeles Times," "The New York Herald," "The Washington Post" in addition to AP and UPI. The limited use of wire service in turn limits the views expressed in the news. The very fact that a w... service selects what it sends o... the wires limits the objectivity ... scope of reported news events.

In summary a paper has an o... gation to be as objective as possi... to offer columnists of all views, ... to allow its readers to express t... opinions without hinderance. I... paper fulfills this criterion, it ... probably meeting its obligation ... its readers.

Student Given Number 100,000

Florida State University has just assigned its 100,000th student number, Registrar Murray W. Kenna said last week.

A student number is assigned to a prospective student when he applies for admission to FSU, according the Earl Turner, who is in charge of machine records for the registrar's office.

The first number was assigned during the Florida State College for Women days but not long before the changeover to coeducational FSU in 1947.

Does a man really take unfair advantage of women when he uses Mennen Skin Bracer?

All depends on why he uses it.

Most men simply think Menthol-Iced Skin Bracer is the best after-shave lotion around. Because it cools rather than burns. Because it helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Because it helps prevent blemishes.

So who can blame them if Bracer's crisp, long-lasting aroma just happens to affect women so remarkably?

Of course, some men may use Mennen Skin Bracer because of this effect.

How intelligent!

Reserve Plan Of Attack Needed

To the Sports Editor:

Saturday's game proved that FSU knows how to play football... for a little while at least.

During the first half of the Tech game, FSU looked like a great ball team, executing great running plays. Any FSU fan would have been proud of our team even if Tech had been ahead (naturally, a 7-3 lead made us happy).

Then came the second half and the teams returned to the battlefield. Suddenly our Indians were playing a completely offensive game. Repeating the same attack; only this time the enemy knew our tactics and capitalized on them. A good chief would have had a reserve play, a surprise attack to confuse the enemy. Where was our surprise attack? Our reserve play?

Perhaps Chief Peterson believed Georgia Tech wouldn't try to stop our runs around end. Maybe he thought Tech would let our men continue their fine offensive attack without attempting to stop us. When Peterson finally realized we needed to try new strategy, he reverted to Tensi's passing. It seems that the emphasis on the running attack was too much as Tensi apparently forgot how to pass and his receivers how to hold the ball. (Prichard, incidentally, warmed the bench.)

So, what could have been a victorious massacre turned into a bloody redskin retreat. Our warriors returned home, battle-worn but with unwounded pride. And well they should be proud, for we are proud of the fine job they performed with the tactics they had to use. But it's the chiefs who should sit in their wigwams with their wilted feathers and wonder "What happened?"

It's only a week until our next game, our last home game. Can FSU fans expect again to see half a football game or will they get to see a whole game? How 'bout it, Coach?

Dodd Lauds Tech Defense

(By the Associated Press)

ATLANTA - Head Coach credited defensive coaches Charlie Tate and Dick Inman yesterday with working out a defense for Florida State's end sweeps which hurt Tech in the first half of Saturday's 15-7 victory.

"I didn't have anything to do with our halftime adjustments," Dodd said on his television program. "Coaches Tate and Inman worked that out and we stopped them much better in the second half."

Dodd said FSU has a very versatile attack. "They hit you hard on throwing, line plunges and end sweeps," he said. "Coach Bill Peterson is one of the top coaches in the South."

Dodd had high praise for quarterback Billy Lothridge who set three Tech passing records by completing 20 of 34 pass attempts for 246 yards. He also threw his ninth touchdown pass of the season.

"Lothridge sets a record just about every time he handles the ball," Dodd said. "Other quarterbacks may throw more passes than he does, but he's up among the leaders in touchdown passes."

Truman Cancels Homecoming Visit

Florida State University received word from former President Truman yesterday that "by reason of some personal circumstances" he will be unable to fill a speaking engagement at FSU this Friday night.

Truman, scheduled to be the Homecoming Banquet speaker, wrote President Gordon W. Blackwell from Independence, Mo., in a letter dated Nov. 7:

"I am sorry to tell you that by reason of some personal circumstances I have had to beg off some firm commitments that I had previously made and will, therefore, be unable to come to Tallahassee on Nov. 15 for the Florida State University's Homecoming Banquet.

"I had looked forward to this visit for a long time and hope I will have the privilege of making the visit there at a future date."

Blackwell was in Chicago attending a meeting of the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges but Dr. John Champion, University vice president, said another speaker will be announced for the Banquet.

Nancy Kulp, television personality from Hollywood who will emcee the banquet, has informed FSU officials she'll arrive Thursday night. She's an alumna of Florida State College for Women.

Private Parties Only Need File

Fraternities do not need to file applications for their Homecoming parties as was incorrectly stated in yesterday's "Flambeau."

The applications need to be filed only for off-campus parties.

Parties consisting of more than five couples must have two chaperones and these parties must be filed by 4 p.m. of the Tuesday before the weekend of the party. The chaperones must personally contact Miss Williams before the party.

Senior women may act as chaperones.

Parties of less than five couples may file as late as noon of the day of the party and are required to have only one chaperone. A list of the attending coeds must be submitted to Miss Williams.

Parties may last no longer than midnight on Fridays and Saturdays and no later than 9 p.m. on all other nights.

Students are reminded that there will be no Greek or large organization parties, on or off-campus, on Friday night because of the Homecoming Dance which will be held in Suwannee Room from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Late permission has been given for Friday evening until 1 a.m.

'Oglesby' Bill To Face Senate

By AL GALBRAITH
Flambeau Staff Writer

A resolution proposing that the new Student Union building be named "Oglesby Hall," in honor of retiring Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby will be brought before the Student Senate today.

The resolution is being sponsored by Senator Mack McKinnon. Text of the resolution reads:

Whereas: Dean R. R. Oglesby has resigned as Dean of Students of FSU; Be it resolved by the FSU Student Senate: "That the 'Committee on the Names of Buildings' be asked to name the new Student Union 'Oglesby Hall' in honor of his many years of dedicated service to the students of Florida State University."

Chairman of the Elections and Appointments Committee, Pam Doud, will introduce a bill to limit the size of Student Senate to fifty senators. There are now 44 members in the Student Senate.

The Elections and Appointments Committee will introduce an amendment to Bill XII, creating a new precinct consisting of nineteen off-campus women's housing units. The precinct would be represented by one additional senator in Student Senate, who would be representing 238 women. Bill XII as it now stands would add four new senators to Student Senate.

Garnet Key, women's honorary, tapped 18 women students Monday night. Eleven seniors and seven juniors were selected for their outstanding contributions of leadership service and spirit.

Concert, Recital, Planned Tonight

Westcott and Opperman Music Hall will ring with the notes of Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Gershwin and others, as a graduate recital and the Symphonic Band's first concert of the season are presented tonight.

Both programs begin at 8:15 p.m. and are free and open to the public.

George Lucktenberg, who has appeared in several previous concerts will be featured in Opperman. Lucktenberg, who studied in Vienna on a Fulbright scholarship, will include Bach, Chopin and Beethoven in his program.

The Symphonic Band, under the direction of Dr. Manley Whitcomb, plans to play portions of Gershwin, Bach Wagner and others.

Club To Model Fran's Fashions

"Fashions by Fran's," an FSU Dames Club presentation, will be in the Faculty Club of the Suwannee Bldg, tonight at 8.

All student wives and married female students are invited.

Models are Pat Aronhalt, Laura Blanchard, Barbara Calleja, Sandra Nettles, Jill Valentine, and Judy Xander. The program will be narrated by Peggy Arnold.

The FSU Dames Club is a member of the National Association of University Dames. It is a social and service club with its members consisting of student wives and married female students.

Also sponsored by the Dames Club are the Dames Mixer and the Mrs. FSU contest.

Admission is free and door prizes will be given.

Where's Truman?

The disappointment of FSU students, faculty members and alumni at the cancellation of former President Harry S. Truman as banquet speaker will put a damper on the Homecoming weekend.

An extra effort was made by this year's homecoming and banquet committees to generate wider interest in the interest in the Homecoming banquet, and the blame for Truman's withdrawal cannot be theirs. It seems inconceivable, however, that Truman could have agreed to the Homecoming arrangements so far in advance and then, during the week immediately preceding his speaking engagement, discover that he had other commitments for that time.

To many of the 1500 people who have purchased tickets for the sell-out event, $2.50 a plate without Harry Truman as the drawing card if more than they care to pay. These tickets should be made refundable for those who ask it; they should not be "stuck" with the tickets if Truman was their only interest in the banquet.

Inviting nationally-known guests to speak or appear at University-wide functions publicize FSU's growth in importance and prestige. But care should be taken in the future to invite guests who will fulfill their engagements, or who at least will give sufficient reasons for being unable to do so.

Why Frosh Fail

"Most freshmen failures in college are caused not by stupidity but by shock."

"Student Life," Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., took this quote (by Dr. Jules Coleman, Yale University psychiatrist) to Donald Zytowski of Washington University s student counseling service.

"It's true unfortunately,' Zytowski said. "WU attracts some very able students from a great many excellent high schools. Each of these freshmen is a 'top banana" in some way: editor of the yearbook, president of the student council, winner of an award for high achievement in math science or poetry writing.

"After the first glory of freshman camp, new students' day fraternity and sorority rush wears off, and around the time of the first class quizzes the freshman begins to realize in some vague way that he is no longer the exclusive star he used to be, but is surrounded by stars. He may be just an average Joe in this crowd.

"This is when the shock begins."

Zytowski indicated it is not the shock which is dangerous but how it is handled.

"Those who cannot admit to themselves that they are not still the star they were in high school are the ones who stay in shock " he said. "They suddenly develop a consuming interest in something like dorm politics, Greek competition for trophies, the finer points of bridge, writing a great play or anything to divert themselves from their fear that they cannot compete successfully with the other freshmen.

"Their grades fall, and at the end of the semester or year they claim they know they could have done better but they felt they had to do this job that nobody else could do."

Legal Terms Defined For Senat

Some people in student government are, understandably enough, not quite sure where their duty lies in carrying out the student body referendum of last Spring rejecting the COP. The confustion seems to center around the precise, legal meanings of the terms, "referendum" and "mandate." Perhaps these comments from Black's Law Dictionary will help.

On page 1312, under Plebicite... "The principle of the plebicite has been incorporated in the modern... constitution under the name of "referendum" by which a revision of the constitution must be undertaken when demanded by a vote of the citizens." On page 1114 under mandate... "A command, order, or direction which court is authorized to give and person is bound to obey." On page 1446, under referendum... "reserved to the people to reject any act or measure has been passed by a legis body."

From the above information be noted that such a "Refer constituting a Mandate" is binding upon student senate ing to article X of the consti

Senator McKinnon is g searching for that very elusi ter... Senate Reapportionme good that someone is attemp correct one of the more forms of misrepresentation, Day Students. But there are instances just as acute, for in The total ratio of men to wo this campus is very nearly 50- in Senate the ratio is ab women and 44 men and the would favor women even all the Day Student Senators women.

Too Much Thought

It is interesting to note that the BOC has taken notice of the FSU professors who wished to help some FSU and FAMU students who were unjustly sentenced by local authorities in connection with freedom demonstration in Tallahassee.

BOC member Charles Foreman is quoted in the "Flambeau" as feeling this way about the whole affair:"He said he felt they (the FSU profs) acted without serious advanced thought..." I would venture to assert that just the opposite is the case. I feel that many members of the FSU faculty are all too well aware of the nature of the corrupt and immoral system of government that prevails in much of the state of Florida.

A growing minority of students at FSU are slowly becoming conscious of the immoral laws and lawmakers who have for so long denied to the Negroes of this state their rights as citizens and as human beings.

The Board of Control is itself a part of the anti-democratic system that prevails in this state.

The Johns' Committee witch hunts have made fools of the legislature and disgraced Florida's universities in the eyes of the nation, the fight against re-apportionment has revealed the vested and undemocratic interests of many of our elected officials, and most important of all is the way that civil rights have been tampered with by university and BOC officials.

The list of authoritarian measures used by Florida officials could go on. It is my opinion that the action undertaken by the professors in question is not the result of too little thought, but of too much.

Reward Offered

To the Editor:

Last Tuesday the posters announcing the meeting of the Young Americans for Freedom were vandalized within two hours after they were posted. The time, date and meeting place cards were removed and the pamphlets about the organization were destroyed.

I find this disgusting display of vandalism so personally offensive that I am offering a reward of 10 dollars for the name of any person seen tampering with the YAF posters. Persons desiring to collect the reward must be willing to sign an affidavit prepared by my attorney attesting to the truthfulness of the report. The reward offer will remain in effect as long as I attend FSU.

This information is for my personal use only and will not result in any official action.

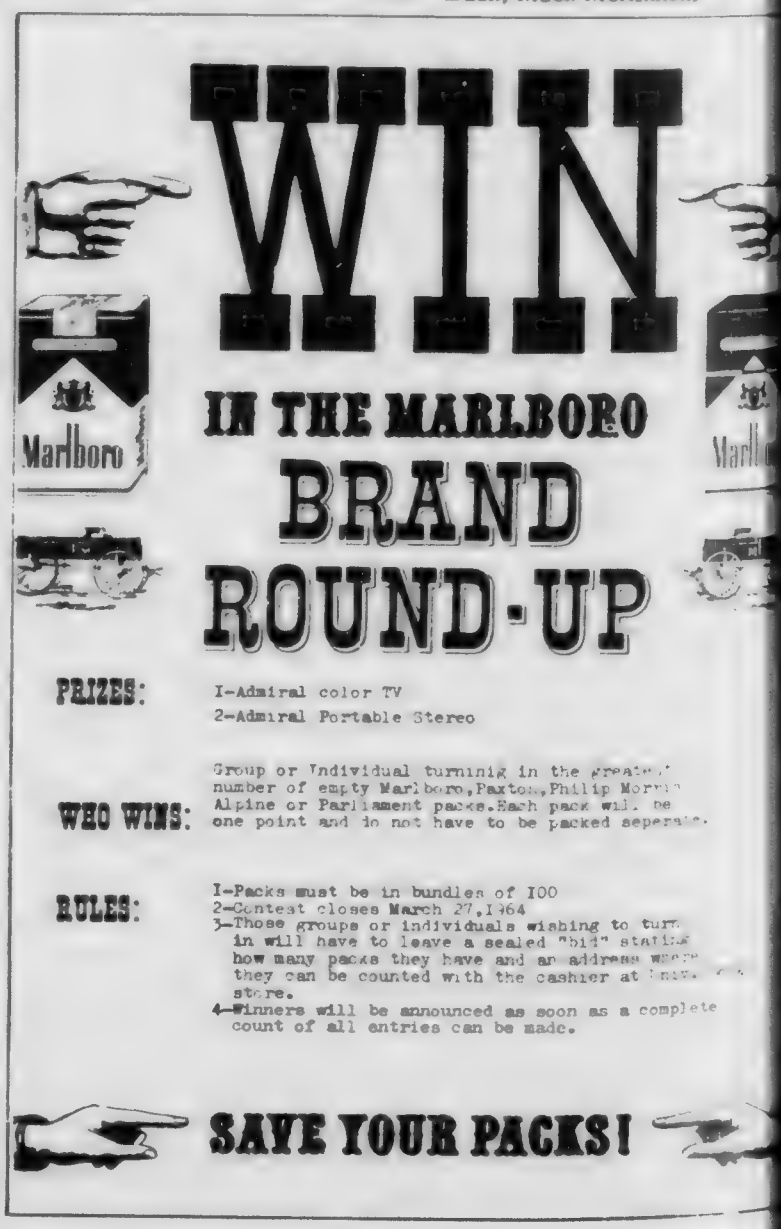
Praeco Criticized

To the Editor:



Why would someone write a newspaper column under an anonymous title? I considered this question and came up with a few possibilities. It is obvious that writing an anonymous column would have its advantages. The writer can speak favorably of his friends, his personal interests, and even of himself without being associated with the opinions expressed. He can also cut down people, organizations, and ideas without exposing his own merits and purposes to criticism.

Writing anonymously may also give the writer a feeling of power. The only other possible reason that I can think of would be that the writer fears personal harm. But being realistic, this possibility hardly exists for a contributor to a student newspaper in a free nation.

Concerning your dig on the class officers, the class dances were planned last year, as usual, to follow home basketball games which are held during the second trimester. The class dances will be January 11, February 8 and February 22. If you had asked me for this information I would have gladly given it to you.

Class officers are directing their activities toward university public relations. I am happy to see that other groups have followed the lead of class officers and are sponsoring dances for the student body.

Citizens Gravely Mistaken

To the Editor:

The 28 members of the Tallahassee community who have suggested that certain FSU professors are not dedicated to education are, in my opinion, gravely mistaken. These citizens may find it difficult to understand that Justice (spelled with a capital "J") is not equivalent to law (with a little "l") embodied in a few minds as narrow as the latter letter). Somehow the Golden Mean of just enough knowledge to make us students educated but happy and purposeful has the distasteful aroma of medieval obscurantism.

It is perhaps unfortunate but quite apparent that as of yet there has been no "Truth" mimeographed and sent around to these men to instruct their students with.

Inculcation and education are two different concepts. If, as the letter in Sunday's (Nov. 3) "Tallahassee Democrat' suggests, an indoctrination in "the philosophies and purposes for which our institutions are intended" is inconceivable objective, I can only suggest that there might be some "Democratic-type" disagreement on this point.

Finally, syncopation as "academic freedom" has any meaning, value or merit, I would accuse any persecutor of my favorite professors of deliberately obscuring a theoretical issue for "purposes" that can more easily be recognized by reading very methodically through the signatures of the letter to which I have alluded.

Garner's Farm Program Questioned

To the Editor:

Once again Keith Garner's myopic viewpoint has been expressed with astounding vapidity. I do not deny Mr. Garner's right to publicly flaunt his ignorance and in so doing stultify the intelligence of the "Flambeau" readers, but I would venture to suggest that Mr. Garner re-examine the constitutional authority of the government farm program.

Mr. Garner contends that there is an argument questioning the constitutionality of the farm program. He even goes so far as to state that "in our government there is no grant of power to the federal government for any of its agricultural programs. And no matter how well intentioned a government program is, when our federal government does not have the constitutional power and still proceeds to carry it out, it has become a dictatorship."

He further states that "Therefore, because there is no constitutional authority for them, all our federal government's farm programs should be abolished." Not only is his "reasoning" (and I sincerely shudder at the thought of implying a hint of logic by the use of the word) faulty, but his facts are wrong.

Evidently Mr. Garner has never read those parts of the Constitution which give Congress the power "To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;" and "To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution. . ." that power. His opinion would deny that agriculture is a part of our United States commerce. This denial is contrary to the facts.

The facts are that agricultural goods produced for sale, the transportation of those goods for the intention of sale, and the actual transaction of the sale itself are all a part of commerce. They are a part of our commerce with foreign nations, with Indian tribes, between the states of the Union, and of the commerce inside the states themselves. In all three categories agriculture is a part of our commercial system, and therefore it is a constitutional power of Congress to regulate agriculture. This proves that it is a power of Congress under the Constitution to regulate agriculture. To verify the constitutionality of the laws made under this power, they must be necessary and proper.

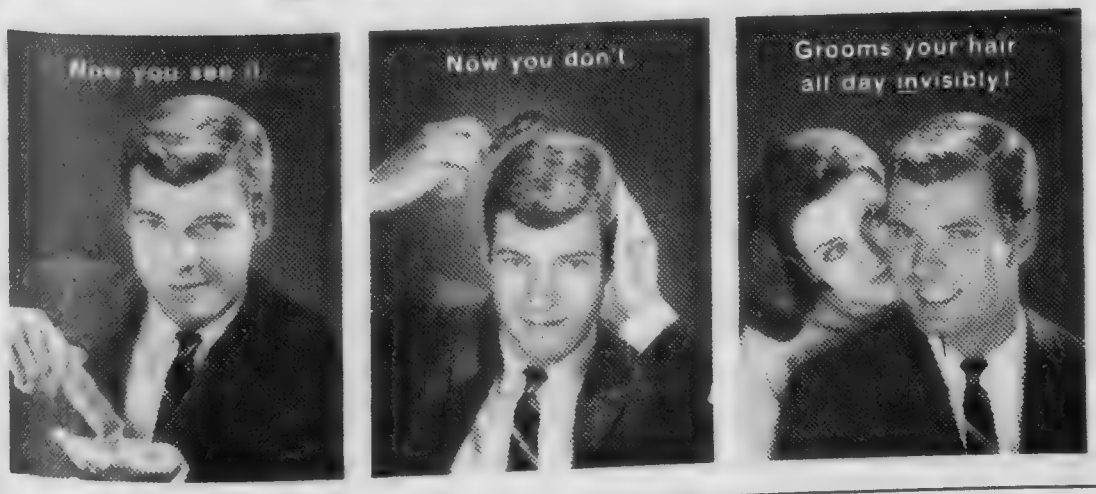
Are the laws made under this power necessary and proper? Of course they are. The United States is an urban nation in which roughly 160,000,000 people are totally dependent upon the agricultural products of our farming community. The responsibility for continuing supplies of food for those 160,000,000 people is sufficient quantity and variety and at reasonable prices is a part of the promotion of the general welfare for which the Constitution of the United States was intended. Laws protecting the public from the avarice of the farming minority are necessary in order to fulfill this basic responsibility of government to the people.

The opponents of the agricultural program inanely contend that the farmers will fulfill the responsibility of adequate food production at reasonable prices under a free market without government regulation. If this is so, then nobody went hungry during the depression. Food was not plowed under the earth to keep the prices high so the farming community could prosper at the expense of the rest of the country. Just who in the hell do they think they're kidding?

Farmers farm not for their health but for money. The first responsibility of the farmer is to himself and his family. Farmers are not interested in reasonable food prices and the general welfare, but farmers are interested in high prices for the products of farmers. Farmers love farmers. To deny that farmers are human in this respect denies the Billy Sols and the corruption in the farm programs as they are. The failings of farmers are not rare individual exceptions to the rule, for the farmers as a whole are milking the federal government for every penny they can extract. There would be no farm problem if the farmers did not try to defeat the protective purpose of the government regulation as it now stands through every means of cheating and over-population they can use.

As a city dweller and a dependent upon the agricultural production of others, I consider it distasteful and unwise to leave the planning of farm crops to the farmers. I want an adequate and varied supply of food and a reasonable price to pay for it.

Furthermore, if the variety and quantity of the crops were left to the discretion of farmers, they would necessarily have to rely on their own judgement as to what crops they should plant and how much land should go into the production of those crops. If the farmers as a whole decided to put primary emphasis on a particular crop, there would be a glut of that particular crop on the market and a scarcity of the others. The effects of this would obviously be to produce waste and low prices for the scarce foods. This would work to make some rich, i.e. those who were lucky or farsighted enough to plant scarce crops, harm the economic welfare of the others who had guessed wrong, eliminate from competition those whose holdings could not stand the loss of a year's profit, and affect the economic stability of the people as a whole.



In the long run the rich would get richer and the poor poorer. This is what happened here in the past (specifically during the 30's), and it has

Brecht Fails To Show World Of Misery

By WAYNE COWART

"The world is a vale of misery and woe," or so Bertolt Brecht would tell us with his signs, chorus and characters in "The Three Penny Opera" which played in Westcott Auditorium last Friday and Saturday nights--but if he hopes to convince anyone of that dark vision with "Three Penny"--he has rather miserably but happily failed.

It doesn't seem possible to derive such an ugly view of life from such an entertaining show. The final effect of Brecht's dialogue and Kurt Weill's music was so light it almost entirely negated the omnious theme repeated throughout the play. Still, for its own sake the play provided one of the most entertaining evenings in Westcott in quite a while. As was stated in the program notes, "Three Penny's" "message does not seem so important as its pure entertainment value."

Unfortunately, Mr. Brecht failed to realize that the "message" of the play must arise out of the way the play affects an audience emotionally. He evidentally is trying only to put logical argument in a different form. Perhaps if it were possible to sway the human mind with logic alone there would be no need for theatre in the first place. Theatre derives its impact from its ability to show men that abstract things are real and relevant to themselves.

Even much of philosophy, which might be called the science of abstraction, begins with observations in terms of aesthetics. The playwright then is just reversing the process by taking an abstract idea and trying to communicate it by means of human emotion (aesthetics). In simpler words, if Brecht wants to tell me how miserable the world is I should get a miserable feeling from his play or I won't believe him. I didn't.

Having been denied all conventional means of appraising any production of this play by Brecht's approach, it can only be said that the University Theatre and Opera Guild put on a most enjoyable production.

happened repeatedly in the history of the modern world.

Furthermore, what would happen to the public during a crop failure? Where would government surpluses be in a so called free enterprise society? I for one would rather have government surpluses than not.

The necessity of government regulation is rather obvious. It is for the protection of the farmers and the public and is designed for the betterment of an American society that can no longer live under the abstract theories of the 18th century. . .a society that in fact never has lived under those theories of "free enterprise."

Are we to let the farmers combine to decide what they should produce? The answer is emphatically NO! It would be just like allowing General Motors and Chrysler and Ford combine to decide how many cars are to be produced. Agriculture has long been out of any relation to free enterprise.

What is needed in our farm problem (I don't think anyone denies there is a problem) is not the abolishment of government regulation, but a system of regulation that is effective. What we need right now is constructive criticism and offers of a workable solution other than the ridiculous idea of abolishment. We cannot say that because government regulation is not working in its present form that government regulation is not necessary. We cannot fabricate opinions that the Constitution forbids or does not empower Congress to act, when the opposite is true.

In short, I totally disagree with Keith Garner. He does not present any facts and does not support his opinions. He cannot support them because they are wrong. We don't need and cannot afford Mr. Garner's idea of abolishing the agricultural program.

FEA Meeting

There will be an F.E.A. meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the Education Lecture Hall, room 201, Education building. The guest speaker will be Robert Stevens; the title of his talk is "Mistakes New Teachers Make."

Gibson Named JRS Director

Florida State University announced today the appointment of Dr. Juanita Gibson as director of the office of Institutional Research and Service.

Originiated by Dr. W. Hugh Stickler in 1951, the office was the second one of its kind in the South. Stickler served as head until recently when he requested relief of duties to spend full time in the Department of Higher Education of which he is head.

Dr. Gibson, formerly with the Department of Government, began her duties Nov. 1. For the past two years she has been administrative assistant to Secretary of State Tom Adams. This experience she credits with giving her new insight with respect to higher education.

The office of Institutional Research and Service is an adjunct to the Office of the President of the University. It helps the University to determine and analyze some of its problems relative to providing quality education at the lowest cost.

Working with Dr. Gibson will be Edward Elkman, associate director; Mrs. Sue Williamson, administrative assistant; Mrs. Pat Anderson, statistician; and Robert Ellis, graduate assistant on leave as registrar from the University of Mississippi.

An alumna of both Florida State College for Women and FSU, Dr. Gibson joined the FSU faculty in 1948 as instructor in the School of Public Administration. Prior to that she served as personnel supervisor for Pan American World Airways in Miami.

Dr. Gibson holds the B.S. degree from FSCW, the M.S. from FSU and the Ph.D. from the University of Michigan. She is a member of Pilot Club, American Society for Public Administration and Southern Political Science Association, League of Women Voters, and is on the Democratic Executive Committee of Leon County. Her publications include "Estimates of Revenue from Present Sources and Analysis of New Sources' (co-author, 1949); "Role of Public Administration in Schools' in ' Trends in Social Education" and "The Governor in Florida" (dissertation. She's listed in Who's Who of American Women.

FSU's Zerbe Shows Art In Washington Gallery

An exhibition of paintings, brush drawings and wood cuts by Karl Zerbe of FSU is presently open in the Mickelson Gallery in Washington.

The works, which include several done as a result of a summer vacation in Brazil, will be on view at the Washington gallery through Nov. 27. All of the works are recent ones.

A native of Berlin, Zerbe for many years after coming to this country headed the department of painting at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Since 1954 he has been professor of art at FSU.

One-man exhibitions by the 60-year-old painter have included shows at the Germanic Museum of Harvard University, 1934; Art Institute of Chicago, 1945, 1946; Colorado Springs Fine Art Center, 1952; M. H. de Young Memorial Museum of Art, 1952; and at the Nordness Gallery in New York.

He is represented at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of Modern Art, Whitney Museum of American Art and Brooklyn Museum, all in New York, and in many galleries across the country.

Zerbe's South American trip, which followed the spring commencement at FSU, was primarily to take motion pictures of hummingbirds. He went first to Lima, Peru, and then to various parts of Brazil, which has about 80 species of hummingbirds.

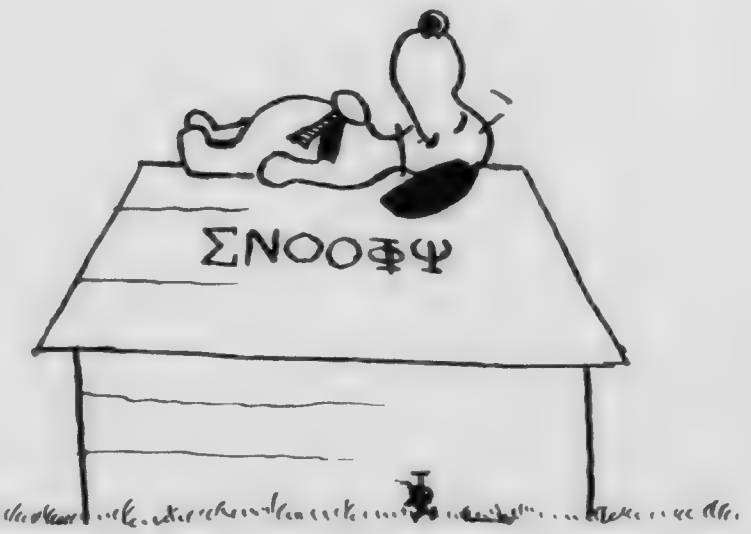
Plyler Awarded Physics Citation

Dr. Earl K. Plyler head of the Physics Department at Florida State University, has been selected for the award of the Society for Applied Spectroscopy meeting in New York, Nov. 13-15. The citation of the award is for "outstanding accomplishments in the field of infrared spectroscopy."

Dr. Plyler has conducted extensive research in various field of infrared physics and with colleagues has published 174 papers. He has carried out researches on the emission spectrum of flames, calibrating wave-lengths for the infrared region, optical properties of materials, and high resolution spectra of gases. In the high resolution researches he has almost completely resolved the spectra of many compounds in the aseous state.

These researches have made possible the determination of the molecular configuration of many molecules. Dr. Plyler is well-known for having established the structure of nitrous oxide, ethylene, and carbon suboxide. At Florida State he is now setting up a program of research in the far infrared.

FSU Named Test Center



Florida State University has been designated a testing center for the 1964 nationwide administration of the National Teacher Examinations next February, Dr. G. Emerson Tully, director of the University Test Service, announced today.

College seniors preparing to teach and teachers applying for positions in school systems which encourage or require applicants to submit their scores on the National Teacher Examinations along with their other credentials are eligible to take the tests. The examinations are prepared and administered annually by Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey.

The designation of FSU as a testing center for these examinations will give prospective teachers in this area an opportunity to compare their performance on the examinations with candidates throughout the country.

At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the Common Examinations; which include tests in professional information, general culture, English expression, and nonverbal reasoning. In addition, each candidate may take one or two of the thirteen optional examinations which are designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter in the fields in which he may be assigned to teach.

Applications for the examinations and Bulletins of Information describing registration procedures and containing representative test questions may be obtained from Dr. Tully, 203 Education Building.

The Pack's Backs

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Writer

One of the big reasons for the success of the North Carolina State Wolfpack is their offensive backfield. State's starting backfield, with the exception of fullback Pete Falzarano, have played together since their freshman year.

Quarterback Jim Rossi is the leader of the backfield. Judged too small (5-10, 175), to play college football Rossi is having his second productive season. He is zeroing in on two Wolfpack records. With two games left to play he needs only one touchdown pass to tie Roman Gaberial's record of 8. He needs 7 more to tie Gabriel's record of 15 TDs responsibility. He also needs only 400 yards in his last three games to tie the school record for most total offense.

Jim has a history of being good. In his freshman year he lead the freshmen team to an undefeated season, and threw nine touchdown passes, one more than Gabriel did as a frosh. In his junior year, he became the fourth player in State history to gain 1,000 yards. He passed for 792 yards and four touchdowns passing, and ran for an additional 216 yards and two scores.

This year he has been just as good. He has gained 853 yards after seven games, 627 yards passing, and 226 yards rushing. In addition, he has thrown seven touchdown passes, and scored one himself, and has hit on 57% of his passes.

Running halfbacks Mike Clark and Tony Koszarski have done their share in leading the Wolfpack to a 7-1 record. Koszarski is third on the team in rushing and Clark is fourth. Tony has gained 176 yards in 57 carries for a 3.1 average. He has caught 7 passes, and leads the team in scoring after seven games with 4 TDs including a beautiful 74-yard run with an intercepted pass. Last season he had six runs of 15 yards or more called back, but still managed to lead the team in rushing with 251 yards. He is the fastest man on the team, and has real good balance.

Mike Clark is another two lettermen back. He has played halfback and wingback in his varsity career. He leads the team in average gain with a 5.0 average after 34 carries. In all total he has gained 167 yards. He has also caught 7 passes for 47 yards. The highlight of his career was an 83 yard runback of a punt against North Carolina in 1961. He alternates with Koszarsky at the halfback slot.

Wingback Joe Scarpati is the best all-around member of the backfield. Named captain for 1963, Joe leads the '62 Wolfpack in receiving, scoring, punt returns, and interceptions. In addition, he had a 3.4 average rushing. For these accomplishments, he was named to the 2nd team All-ACC. He has also been academic All-A.C.C. for the past two years.

This year he is well on the way to surpassing these marks. He has already set a career record for pass catching at State and is closing in on the one season mark. He leads the team in receiving with 19 catches for 212 yards and one TD. He leads in punt returns with 6 for 21 yards, and in interceptions with 3. He has also scored two touchdowns while gaining 88 yards. The Football Writer Association have placed him on their All-American check list.

The only junior member of the backfield is fullback Pete Falzarano. He has been stopped for a loss only once in his varsity career. In his sophomore season, he gained an even 200 yards for a 3.7 average. This year he has surpassed both marks. He has gained 223 yards for a 4.4 average. He also caught four passes for 19 passes for 19 yards and has scored two touchdowns.

N. C. State will have a very dangerous backfield. It is interesting to note that N. C. State has lost only two lettermen from their 1962 season. That spells trouble.

WOLFPACK QB ROSS at left, will direct the N State visitors at the home coming game Saturday. T 5-10, 175 lb. senior fro Asheville, NC is a furni ture manufacturing major and is only the fourth Pa player to gain over 1,0 yards in a season (196

Tribe Lacks Offense

To the Sports Editor:

An offense is vital to winning ball games; this is what FSU is lacking. After seeing the films of the Georgia Tech game and other FSU games, I have come to the conclusion that FSU has only three offensive plays. The first is the end run with either Brinkley or Snyder carrying, then either of the same two go over tackle, and finally we have the famous Tensi spot pass.

This offense was good for 68 yards against Georgia Tech and a touchdown, but it didn't take long for Tech to set their defense against this attack. The Seminoles need to add some different offensive plays to keep the opposing defense honest. For example, FSU fans haven't seen much of the reverse, screen pass, quarterback option or even the pitch out series. There are plenty of potential plays, but they just haven't been used.

I realize there is more to coaching than meets the eye, but from a fan's viewpoint there is a lack of variety in the FSU offense and if there isn't any improvement, FSU may not see another victory this year.

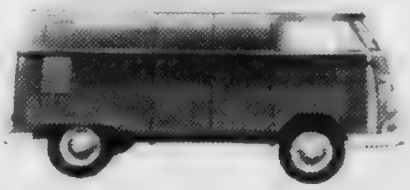
How much longer can it stay in business?

The delivery bicycle was a great time and money saver in its day.

As long as the crate wasn't too big for the basket. And other orders weren't piled up waiting. And it wasn't raining too hard.

Anyway, there wasn't much competition in those days.

Today, more and more small businesses are using the Volkswagen Panel Truck.



Almost no order's too big for the VW Panel with its 4 ft. wide side doors.

And no order's too small. With this truck you can deliver one order or one hundred efficiently and economically. (Operating costs average around 2¢ a mile.)

Orders don't pile up. The VW Panel carries over 1,800 pounds. (Nearly twice the load of a standard half-ton truck.)

Weather doesn't matter.

Besides, where can you find room on a bicycle for your company name in letters a foot high?

Parade To Open Weekend Activities

A 50-unit parade with 20 competitive floats, seven bands and three marching units starts off the pageantry of FSU's 1963 Homecoming at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Eight graduates from the Florida State College for Women class of 1913 will ride near the head of the parade, along with one associate member. They'll get off at a reviewing stand in front of the capitol to see the floats go by.

The parade will move away from the Westcott gates promptly at 3:30 p.m., according to the parade chairman, John S. Vanderoef, assistant professor of government.

It will move east on College Avenue, then south on Monroe Street past a reviewing stand. The parade will end at Gaines Street.

President Gordon W. Blackwell and guests will ride behind the ROTC color guard, followed by cars carrying the class of 1913, alumni officers and student government officers, all of whom will get out at the reviewing stand.

Following them will be the FSU Marching Chiefs, FSU cheerleaders and a car bearing the 1962 Homecoming Queen, Mrs. Kitty Miller Risenburg.

Six candidates for 1963 Queen will ride on the Queen's float, which will be next. They've drawn straws for the places they will occupy on the float.

Floats will got to Campbell Stadium after the parade and will be viewed by judges again before they announce the results of judging for the best all round float, most original, most beautiful, most humorous and most appropriate to the Homecoming theme, "Greater Goals for Seminoles."

Judges are Ralph Hurst, assistant professor of art education, chairman; Mrs. W. E. Woodward and Miss Ann Kirn, assistant professor of art. Kenneth M. Shaver, assistant professor of business law, is float chairman.

Sororities and fraternities, two of them joining together on one float, put their Homecoming energies into the floats this year rather than house decorations. Some of the Greek Houses may have decoration but they are not competitive.

There is competition, however, among women's dormitories, men's dormitories, off-campus residences and non-residence student centers for the best Homecoming decorations.

Judges for the decoration are Dr. Gregory Choppin, professor of chemistry; H.C. Satterfield, architect; and Mrs. Nancy Gunn, artist. The results will be anounced at halftime during the North Carolina State game Saturday afternoon.

The usual round of Homecoming events follows the parade: the Banquet in Tully Gymnasium at 6 p.m. Friday, and the Pow Wow at Campbell Stadium at 8:30 p.m. There's a dance afterward.

On Saturday at 8 a.m. alumni hold their annual breakfast, followed by a business meeting at 9. Dr. Dorothy Hoffman will deliver the alumni lecture in Longmire by 10:30 a.m.

A barbecue for 2000 in Tully Gym at 12 Saturday noon will be followed by the game at 2 p.m. After the game Leon County alumni will hold their party at Holiday Inn and Greek organizations will hold open houses for old grads. Two Westcott Shows will be held at 7 and 9 p.m., and at 8 p.m. the final dance will be held in Suwannee Room.

A bill enlarging the off-campus students representation from four senators to eight was amended to add one more senator to represent the women's off campus multiple housing (precinct 24) and the entire bill was unanimously passed.

A bill establishing the maximum number of student senators to 50 was then put up for first reading, accepted, discussed and put into the Judicial and Rules Committee for further study.

Reasoner To Be Banquet Speaker

Harry Reasoner, a member of the CBS television news team, will be guest speaker at the Homecoming Banquet tomorrow at 6 p.m., it was announced last night.

Eugene Blount, manager of the Mecca, had posted a man at the door of the restaurant since a previous incident, and would not permit the five to enter.

The students lined up outside the doors to the restaurant. When one of the FSU students attempted to enter he was blocked by the doorman and asked to leave.

The manager said the students were blocking the entrance and turning other customers away. He then called the police, who arrested the five students.

They were released on $100 bond each. However, the Dean of Men's office was not contacted after their arrest. Usual procedure in the arrest of FSU students is that the Police Dept. contacts the university and releases students into the custody of FSU.

The five will be arraigned Monday at 9 a.m.

Boda's 'Ballet For Band' To Be Half-Time Show

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Ballet for Band," an original composition by Dr. John Boda of the FSU School of Music, will be the theme of the Marching Chiefs' half-time show Saturday.

According to Robert T. Braunagel, director of the Chiefs, this is the first time than any band has ever done this type of thing.

The music was composed especially for the FSU band and is divided into three sections. The opening section is strongly rhythmical and features the brass and percussion groups.

While playing the band forms constantly changing patterns which gives the impression of looking through a kaleidoscope.

The second section is a waltz. Music and formations in this section "gives the impression of a Martian Carousel" said Braunagel. The finale comes on unexpectedly and features the same groups as in the opening sections.

Another innovation to be used by the Chiefs at the Homecoming game is a reversible FSU formation.

Late Permission

Late permissions for women's dorm closing hours has been extended for Homecoming to 1:-30 a.m. Friday night. On Saturday the regular 12:30 a.m. closing hour will be observed.

HC Parking

Members of the faculty, staff, guests and alumni may park on the lawn located west of Ivy Way and between Jennie Murphree Hall and the Home Economics Bldg. tomorrow and Saturday during the Homecoming activities.

HOMECOMING .... IS IT WORTH IT?

. . . yes! or so say FSU alumni, students and friends.

It Comes But Once A Year

By MAX COURTNEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

Inscribed over the gate this week should be the words, "Abandon hope all ye who enter here." The reason? HOMECOMING.

Homecoming, ah ha! Classes over at 12, dances, luncheons, the big game, oh why couldn't every week be homecoming week!

Yes, things are for one week of the year, very different, very exciting and very rushed. Hope, there is no hope — only madness, gaiety and hard work. A cloak of crepe paper, tape, paint, string and color engulf the campus. Any identity wih academics is lost.

The homecoming parade, the Pow Wow, the main banquet and campus decorations all have to be completed prior to the game. The hustle and bustle of the fraternity houses, the rush of student government, and general upheaval on campus.

Calculus classes, who goes to calculus classes?

One group can't be topped by any other group and so it goes. Religious houses join the frantic crowd in a last minute dash for poster and crepe paper. No one is left out in the festivities.

English, who goes to classes this week?

Certainly not the "sorors" who must not only help with their house decorations but must look "Picture perfect" for the game and the dance afterward.

The campus cops even have an unusual air of frivolity this week. saying please and thank you. Yes, homecoming has captured the capturer.

Russian, nobody studies Russian.

Student Government members have tried to but it didn't work. What with welcoming guests, checking campus activities and organizations, the only language spoken is madcap English. Everyone on second floor Longmire is pulling his hair out trying to solve last minute problems that pop up. Nerve racking, isn't it?

Chemistry, who has time to finger test tubes?

Too bad, but the fraternities can't because they're trying to outshine each other with superb floats and dazzling decorations. The floats that feature "their girls," naturally have to be the best.

"Did I get the assignment in government? Of course not, I'm not going to class Friday."

Classes, bah, the rush of the week pushes out assignments, lab work and library time, for who can really study when it's homecoming? Even YPSL and YAF forget all differences ... (well, some differences at any rate) and help with changing the atmosphere and appearance of the campus.

"The Impeach Earl Warren" or "The Let's Back Rocky Campaign" is dropped for the slogan, "Higher Goals for Seminoles."

Gee, some poor fellow just ran past the door with some streamers. I hope he gets them up in time.

A whirlwind of affairs catching everybody and everything. Combining the lights of New York, the gaiety of Paris, the uniqueness of Brasilia, the color of Honolulu and the splendor of Rome, FSU for one week represents an apex of activity. An apex of pomp, spirit and life that happens one once a year.

Good thing too, who could stand it for longer than a week....

Knowledge For College Has A Past

By MARY ANDERSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Communications by signs, spoken, or written messages with any person loite on or outside the college premises is strictly forbidden." With this rule and ot which were located in back of a book entitled "The Constitution and By-la Student Government Association, the decorous little freshman of Florida College for Women began her first year.

This momentous year was 1914. Common rules covered such facets as lights out at 10 p.m. (with a 15 minute extension to allow time for the toothbrush line). Slamming doors or walking heavily was strictly forbidden. There was even a reminder to maintain strict quiet in all areas of the library.

In order to leave the college grounds one had to register before 1 p.m. and be back on the grounds by 4 p.m. in the winter months (5 p.m. in the fall and spring months). Students could not go to town more than once a week, seniors being the exception. No FSCWer could go to town on Saturday, the reason being that people from rural areas came into Tallahassee and the town would become too congested if students ventured forth on market day, too.

Attendance at daily chapel was required, as well as church attendance on Sunday morning. Students could not receive calls from men on Sunday without frst getting permission from the head resident. Actually gentlemen callers were forbidden to students excepting juniors once a month and seniors once a week. (Study became a popular pastime.)

Attendance at breakfast was required on all days except Monday. Two absences from breakfast was the same as one class cut. Seniors got six unexcused absences from breakfast each year. As an extra treat, one Monday out of each month all underclassmen could attend the movie matinee downtown (if chaperoned by an upperclassman, or in a group of three or more). Why the Monday movie matinee? Simple! There were no classes on Monday, but oh, those Saturdays!

Study periods were from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. in the dormitories. Written permission from the house president had to be obtained if one was out of the dorm during this time. Girls had to sign out before going to town, church, or the library at night.

Time passed quickly. It is now in the 30's ... to be precise, the era between 1932 and 1936. There have been some noticeable changes at FSCW. Freshmen women may now have dates on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, as long as they have no more than two dates in one week. The idea was not to invite Ambrose, Dudley and Mortimer all over on the same evening. Seniors were more fortunate, for the time had arrived when they could have an unlimited number of dates.

Students could not dance with men on campus or in Tallahassee unless permitted by college authorities. Some informal dancing was held in the physical education building on Friday nights.

It was strictly forbidden any student to sit in a parked car at any time with a man. One had to file a general riding permit before going riding in a car. Without signing up students could ride between places of residence with men.

Although chapel attendance was still required, the only rule on Sunday church attendance was a request that students behave and conduct themselves properly on the Sabbath.

Incorporated in the old rules for dorm behavior was a new rule which could be anticipated with the passage of time. It was the prohibition of playing radios in the rooms. Also, freshmen could now keep lights on until 11:30 twice a month. They were allowed two weekend absences after the first quarter.

In these days there was no homecoming as such. The closest occasion was graduation when the families and alumni would come. Certain alumni were invited back in certain year. The style of the day was "Sunday type" dress.

The special event of each year was the "sports day," usually held in November. It was initiated by the intramural program. The highlight of "sports day" was when the odds played the evens. Freshmen and juniors palyed the sophomores and seniors one year, while the next year freshmen and seniors would play the sophomores and juniors.

On the previous day, the prominent event was the race up College hill. The odds and evens would race up the hill to a certain point at Westcott and whoever reached the point [illegible] ing for "sports day."

Let's leave the era of 1932 to 1934 for another significant change in the the dos and don'ts of FSCW. It is [illegible] into existence. This little gold covered book served as a combination Pow Wow, Constitution, and Rules and Regulations booklet.

The first Pow Wow as such, appeared around 1948, with rules and regulations [illegible]. One of the changes occurred in this momentous year: men's rules and regulations. It wasn't a printing error, but rather FSCW had become FSU... with men. Now coeds, except fresh[illegible]en, have until 11 p.m. on week and until 12:30 on Friday a[illegible]urday evenings to stay on the side of the dormitory walls.

At present the "Knowledge for College" is a dignified booklet co[illegible]ing a few thousand don'ts college women, with one "[illegible]" in just to confuse matters.

Placement Office Helps Students Find Jobs

By MARCI ROBBINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Acting as a spring board for many careers is FSU's Placement Office, where many graduating seniors, graduate students and some alumni, are interviewed for prospective jobs.

All seniors are requested to come in, open a confidential file, and arrange for an appointment with Placement Officer James C. Hardy.

Presently the Placement Office is in the basement of the Longmire Bldg., next door to the Soda Shop. It will have a new location in the Student Union upon its completion.

With the exception of the nursing and education branches, all schools operate through, or are in cooperation with the placement office.

The Placement Office is equipped with a bulletin board which is filled with listings of job openings, information and interview schedules.

In addition to these aids is the "College Placement Annual," which is given to the student free of charge. The annual is a guide book affording the reader an insight to what employers are looking for in interviewees, interview ethics, and job information. It also serves as a directory for companies and the armed forces, listing technical and non-technical job openings, and giving company location and job types.

"Company officials coming to FSU to interview students are very inquisitive about the trimester sytem, but they aren't apt to be overly sympathetic about its headaches; lower grades and that sort of thing," says Hardy.

He added that "FSU is very highly rated by our country's leading industries; in fact, this rating has gone up since I've been here (Hardy came to FSU in 1956)."

Fellowships and grants often are the result of a favorable representation and overall picture given interviewers while visiting FSU students.

The timetable for interviews is usually heavy during the months of October and November, slacking off after Thanksgiving because of exams. More interviewers will come during the summer than in the past, as industries become more aware of the trimester and its idiosyncrasies.

"We don't guarantee a job, but we do all possible to bring students and employers together, and place the student in a position commensurate with his aptitude, ability and interest," Hardy concluded.

Thanksgiving Holidays

Classes will be let out at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 27 for the Thanksgiving Holidays, Dean Oglesby announced today.

KASHA TAKES THE TILLER

... as FSU's director of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, Dr. Michael Kasha, goes for a sail on Lake Bradford. Kasha is one of the faculty advisers for the FSU Sailing Association which began on campus this fall

Sailing Storms FSU Campus

Sailing is taking the Florida State University campus by storm this fall. More than 300 persons have taken sailing lessons at Lake Bradford.

The FSU Sailing Association has entered several regattas during the school year. In the first regatta, at Panama City's St. Andrews Bay Yacht Club, FSU came in second in a seven-school competition.

The thing which started the racing fever was provision by the University for six Flying Dutchman Junior sailboats at the reservation.

According to one of the organizers of the sailing organization, graduate assistant Tom Evans of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, the preliminary organizational work occurred at two meetings in August.

Subsequently as students returned in greater numbers for the school year, George Doughty, a criminology major who also is a security office investigator on the FSU staff, was elected commodore pro tem.

The FSU Sailing Association now has about 50 member. Through the club's efforts FSU has become an associate member of the Southeastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association (SEISA), which is affiliated with the Inter-Collegiate Yacht Racing Association of North America.

Next Feb. 1-2, the association expects to host a business meeting of SEISA. Through the school year FSU's skippers and crews will participate in intercollegiate regattas throughout the Southeast.

Intercollegiate races are held, usually over triangular courses, or else in a straight windward-lee course, for distances of usually less than a mile. Various types of boats are used. The crew usually numbers either one or two persons in addition to the skipper.

Although initial efforts in racing have been unusually successful, Evans says the most important thing the newly organized sailing association has done is to provide instruction for people wanting to learn to sail.

"Unlike so many sports, sailing is an art one can use during an entire lifetime," Evans said. Instruction in sailing is open to FSU student, faculty, staff and their families for free.

Classes are held at 10 a.m. every Saturday. The first part of every course consists of an hour of "dryland" lecture on sailing nomenclature and theory. This is followed by a minimum of four hours of sailing experience in a boat, with an instructor present.

Griffin Named AEA Chairman

Dr. John A. Griffin, director of university relations and professor of sociology at FSU, will serve as chairmar for the 13th Annual Conference of the Adult Education Association this weekend in Miami Beach.

A nationwide organization of adult educators meeting for the first time in the South, the AEA will focus on television and adult education.

Gov. Farris Bryant is scheduled to give the welcoming address at the Deauville Hotel via television.

John F. White, president of National Educational Television, will open the conference with an address on "Communications For What?"

The some 700 adult educators expected at the meeting will see numerous video tapes on adult education made at FSU during the past several months especially for use at the conference.

'Three B's' Available In Music

By DORETHEA HARRISON
Flambeau Feature Writer

Know any of those die-hard purists who still believes that the "Three B's" of music are Bach, Beethoven and Brahms (rather than bop, be-bop and be-bop-a-lula)? If so, you are probably already aware of the services of the music library.

Heard of it, but don't know exactly where it is? Guess? It's in the School of Music building (you know--that building connected to the place where the pep rallies are held).

You may be a new music major who finally found the Library and then ran away when you saw so many graduate students who obviously knew what they were doing--and you were afraid to ask how to use the library. Or you may be one of the hundreds of students who is already using it.

The "music library" is a library of music scores and phonograph records which is housed at the north end of the third floor of the School of Music Bldg. It is a part of the Humanities Division of the main library and its collection is catalogued in the main library. It is properly referred to as the Warren D. Allen Music Library.

In 1935 approximately $2500 worth of music scores and records and one phonograph came to the School of Music as a gift of the Andrew Carnegie Foundation. Then in 1956 the library bought the collection of Olin Downes, a noted New York Times music critic for over 30 years. Also in 1956, Dr. Warren D. Allen, who is a retired professor of musicology (science of music), donated a large portion of his personal collection to the library. Allen came to FSU after retiring from Stanford University in California to teach music history and musicology here.

Mrs. Alice Ward has been Head of the Music Library since 1951 and is aided by one full time assistant and six student assistants. Mrs. Ward is a graduate of FSCW and was on the piano faculty here for two years. She received her library training at Columbia University.

Although the library is used mostly by students in the School of Music, it is open to all students. In addition to recordings, its collection includes scores, tape recordings of some programs and doctoral seminars given at the University, microfilms, microcards of music, collection of reference books, and historical editions which date back to the 16th century or before.

The library has current periodicals of a selected list which is highly specialized for music students. Books on music and composers and music magazines of general interest may be found in the main library.

Each Tuesday afternoon student recital is taped and kept in the library for two weeks.

Student circulation has more than tripled in the last 10 years. Last year 14,000 scores were checked out of the library. There has also been an increase in the library's use by graduate students in research work.

The library contains the complete works of many composers including Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Chopin, According to Mrs. Ward, "It's a monumental task -- and a costly one -- to compile the complete works of a composer."

Listening facilities include 14 record players, a tape machine and three rooms for group listening. There is also a microfilm room and a special collections room.

Special Collections include books of special value, oversized, fragile or autographed scores. Some of the holdings are "A Message to Posterity from Ernst Von Dohnanyi," "Annals of the School of Music," "Florida State University," by Ella Scoble Opperman, the original "Susannah" score by Carlisle Floyd, an autographed score by Kurt Weill, and a complete scrapbook collection of all the faculty and student programs and artist series programs from 1911 until 1944 which was given to the School of Music by Miss Ella Scoble Opperman who was Dean of the School during that period.

The staff keeps a musical display which is changed periodically. The current one is "Songs of Praise," a collection of hymns appropriate to the Thanksgiving season.

The circulating collection (scores) may be checked out for three weeks. Records and other library materials must be used in the library. Library hours are 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday; 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday and 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Sunday.

Tennis doubles and weightlifting deadlines for entry blanks for the intramurals program have been extended to Friday.

Also the basketball roster for the intramurals program is due in the intramurals office, 124 Tully Gym, by Nov. 18.

Pecking Order Exists On Campus

by NANCY ALMAND
Flambeau Staff Writer

Among chickens there is a definite peck order constructed like a rough pyramid. The teaching staff at FSU has a hierarchy similar to the peck order of the chicken.

The bottom or base consists of the masses. Above the pyramid gradually slopes in until the top is reached. Since there is room for only one at the top, this one becomes the sole commander of all he surveys.

The base is made up of the graduate assistants. And a magnificent base it is, consisting of around 586 members who teach, grade tests, make up tests and what-have-you.

The next step is made up of the professors, teachers, and assistant professors. FSU boasts approximately 514 professors many of whom are continueing to work for their next degree. Just in case one of these professors is late getting to his appointed class, custom requires that his student wait for him ten minutes. They are only required to wait five minutes for a graduate assistant.

Towering above the entire teaching staff (as such) are the Doctors. These individuals usually teach upper classmen and graduate courses. Students are required to wait a full 15 minutes before leaving their class. FSU has a flourishing group of about 400 instructors with a doctor's degree, many of whom are widely known for having written various books. Dr. Bartlett of the history department and Dr. Irish of the government department, are two such examples. FSU employs so many other instructor writers that it would be impossible to recognize all of them here.

But even the worthy doctor has someone about him - the Heads of Department. There are about 51 departments each of which employs its own staff of instructors - who are consequently employed by the university (confused?). Each of these departments has a head responsible for his subsequent department's welfare.

Ranking next are the Deans of the Schools. There are eight: School of Education, Mode L. Stone, Ph.D.; School of Home Economics, Hortense M. Glenn, Ph. D.; School of Music, Karl O. Kuersteiner, Ph. D.; Library School, Louis Shores, Ph. D.; School of Social Welfare, Coyle L. Moore, Ph.D.; School of Business, Charles A. Rovetta, M.B.A.; School of Nursing, Vivian M. Duxbury, MA; and the College of Arts and Sciences J. Paul Reynolds, Ph.D.

At the top of this pyramid is the President of the University, Gordon W. Blackwell, Ph.D., L.L.D., D.H.L.

Yet even the president has an advisory committee ... close co-operation ... welfare of the University ...

To be classified as year ... calendars must have at ...weeks of classes, terms ... ...tatus, approx... ...al enrollments, and equal ... members of the faculty

...ut some pro... ... is changing to a year-round calendar. One of these is with the faculty. Regular faculty leave will have to be established since there will be no annual summer vacation. The colleges will have to give equal pay for equal work instead of cutting the salary in summer as is now generally done. The twelve-month contract may emerge as the standard pattern of faculty remuneration.

Another main problem will be the summer session. The enrollment for it will have to be increased and it will have to be made equal in character and status with the other academic terms. Enrollment is a problem because Americans habitually attend school in winter but not in summer. This custom will have to be broken before year round campus operation can be successful. Pressure for admission may help change this habit.

A third problem is that the academic excellence may suffer. The authors believe that year-round operation could enhance the academic program but made no further statement on the matter except that more evidence is needed before firm conclusions can be drawn.

One of the advantages of year round operation is economy. "The cost per full time equivalent student will not be increased as a result of year round operation and it probably will be decreased," state the authors. "The major economy would result from more efficient use of facilities and long term savings in capital outlay for buildings and equipment. There will probably be savings in operations once the program gets fully under way. There are also potential benefits to students attending year-round."

Probably no one system of year-round operation will be established. The authors believe that the most widely used plan will be the trimester system. In theory, it is the most efficient plan and it seems to be the plan easiest to change to. It has balance among the terms, as the summer session is on equal status with other sessions. And it has other required or recommended qualities.

The authors state that, "Although it has many supporters, the year-round calendar has not met with universal acclaim in Florida's public universities." Around FSU this seems to be a vast understatement. Francis G. Townsend, a faculty member here, in an article in the "Tallahassee Democrat" put up arguments against the claims of supporters. He said that the trimester system does not save space because the classes are longer and so each classroom can be used fewer times each day. As for graduating faster, Townsend stated that "Less than half of the students have enrolled for the summer trimester." He added that tuition and fees for the trimester are the same as for the semester, an increase in cost to the student.

Dr. Hale Smith, head of the Anthropology Dept., said his main objection to the trimester system is that it does not mesh with the other systems. "If I want to get a research grant at another college, I get off in April; they begin in July. It's too long a time span without pay."

Joe Rice of the English Dept. said, "I can say only one thing in praise of the trimester system -- possibly it forces the student to discipline his thinking by creating more deadlines."

Luther Kramer, Secretary of Internal Affairs at FSU and author of the Kramer Report published last year, said that the trimester system has caused a cutting down of social activities. The Greek organizations have shorter weekends; there have been no class dances this year. He pointed out that many organizations must now operate to through the summer.

Service organizations now extend their operation to cover the summer months. All three branches of student government must now have year round operation. In the Kramer Report, a study of the effect of the trimester system on class officers, Kramer concluded that class officers ought to be abolished because the trimester system made class distinctions meaningless.

"The trimester isn't so bad once you get used to it," said Sue Mauger, a junior. "It keeps the professors from long dull ramblings and encourages them to drop some of the unnecessar detail."

MA-3 Program Seeks Students

The English, history, government, mathematics, modern languages and philosophy departments are offering the MA-3 program during this present academic year.

The MA-3 program links together the last two years of college with the first year of graduate work in such a way that the scholar is better prepared for further graduate training and better prepared for college teaching. New programs in other areas than those operating this year should be available for the next academic year.

In the three year period the students who have pursued successfully outlined requirements will receive both the B.A. and M.A. degrees in their field of study. Only students who are looking ahead to graduate work and to college teaching will be accepted in the program. The program is open to outstanding students who have maintained a 3.2 average through their first two years of college. Transfer students may also apply for this program.

The successful students in these programs receive honorary stipends of $100 for the junior year, $200 for the senior year, and a guarantee of adequate financial support for the graduate year, if needed. Present first trimester sophomores who are interested in the existing programs should contact the departmental directors for the MA-3. These directors are English, Dr. Russell Reaver; history, Dr. Richard Bartlett; government, Dr. Elke Frank; Mathematics, Dr. Howard Taylor; modern languages, Dr. Vladimar Zernin; Philosophy, Dr. Robert Beard. If interested in this type of program and the specific area of study does not have a program as yet, the student should contact Dr. Thomas R. Lewis, Associate Dean of the Graduate School.

Circle K

Circle K, campus service organization, will kick off its new service program during Homecoming with assistance from Student Government at the traditional "Pow Wow" Friday night, according to the President Walt Deese.

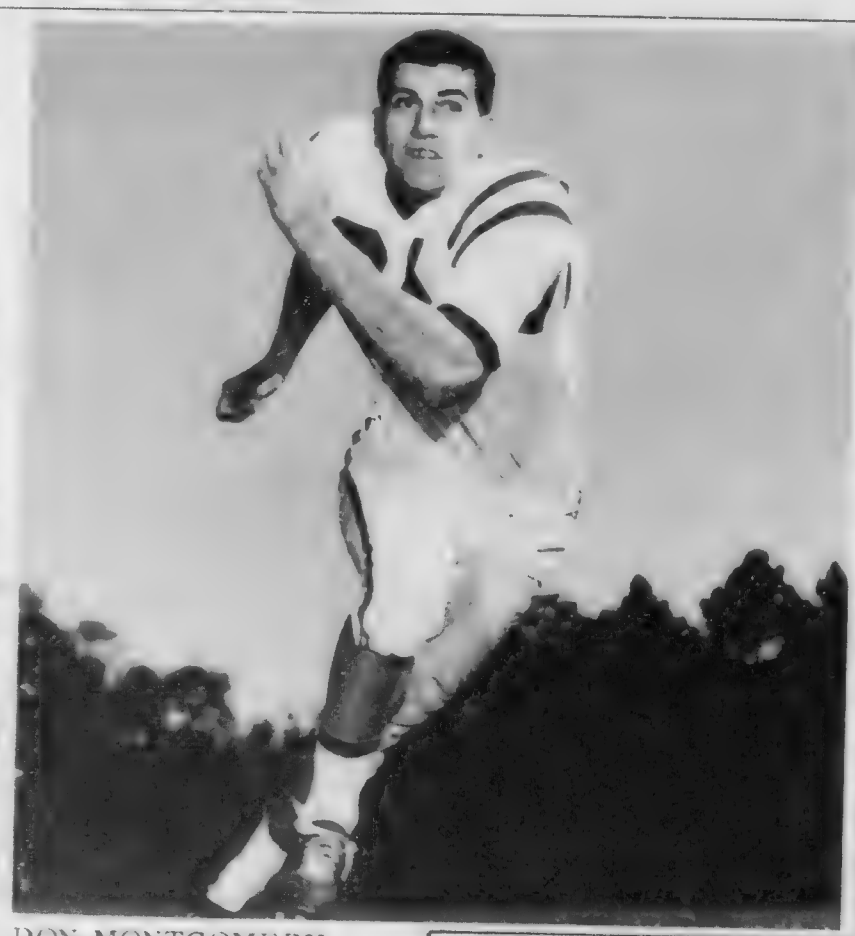
Pete Seeks First Homecoming Win

The Florida State Seminoles will be out to "break the jinx" against the North Carolina State Wolfpack Saturday. The tribe has lost their last four Homecoming Games by a total score of 57-0. Since 1959, the Seminoles have lost to William and Mary 9-0, Kentucky 23-0, Southern Mississippi 14-0, and Houston 7-0. The last FSU victory occurred in 1950 when the beat Tampa 43-0.

It wasn't always this way. In fact, under Coach Tom Nugent, they never lost one at all. Before 1959, the last loss was in 1952, with only a 14-14 tie to Wake Forest marring the record. Since Nugent left, FSU has experienced trouble at Homecoming.



During Coach Perry Moss' term of only one year, FSU was riding the strength of three victories and a 7-6 decision against Miami, when they ran into William and Mary. At that time W&M was sporting a 3-5 record. The Indians snapped two streaks, a Homecoming streak of six and nine straight victories over Southern Conference opponents. The clobbered the Seminoles 9-0.

In Coach Peterson's first year the Seminoles brought a 3-2-1 record into Homecoming. The defeats were by 3 points to Florida, 2 points to Mississippi Southern and the tie was to Citadel 0-0. In marched Kentucky with a 3-5 record. Quarterbacks Jerry Woolum and Jerry Eisama filled the air with passes over, around and throught the Seminole defense as Kentucky smeared the Seminoles 23-0.

In 1961 the Seminoles carried a 4-3-1 record into Homecoming. The losses were to Mississippi, Kentucky and an upset by VPI. This was the year that FSU tied Florida and upset Georgia. When the Southerners left, they left the carcus of a winning season. Don Fuell put on a passing show as the Southerners manhandled the Seminole defense, and held the offense. The Seminoles were upset by Houston 28-6 to end the season 4-5-1.

Last season hopes were very bright indeed. After beating The Citadel, Furman, Georgia, VPI, and outplaying Miami, and Kentucky, the Tribe had a 4-1-1 record. A victory would assure a winning season. Fate and the Houston Cougars ruled otherwise. The rains and the Cougars both visited Doak Campbell Stadium on Homecoming Day. At the end of the day the Seminoles were lucky to escape with a 7-0 defeat. Bobby Brezina scored from 1/2 yard out, and Frank Brewer rushed for 122 yards as the Cougars third straight against FSU. Once again the defense broke down as Houston gained 236 yards.

Will it be the same this year? One thing will not be the same. Coach Peterson in an effort to bring luck has moved the team across the field to the "paid" side. This means the students get NC State on their side. It should be fun if the Wolfpack brings cheerleaders.

DON MONTGOMERY ... is the top all-around end in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference this year, after gaining all-ACC honors in '62. The 6-2, 208 pound senior education major from Albemarle, N.-C., caught nine passes for 108 yards and a touchdown last year as a tight end.

Greeks Plan Big Weekend

By BOB RACKLEFF

With the en masse return of many alumnae and alumni for Homecoming, the FSU Greek organizations have planned a weekend filled with social functions.

Preparations for this weekend began weeks ago when sororities were paired with fraternities to jointly build floats for the parade today. With construction of the floats coming to its final stages this week, many of the groups took a few hours out to relax and enjoy dancing and refreshments.

The Greeks will attend the Pow Wow tonight at 8:30 p.m., which will feature the crowning of this year's Homecoming Queen. Adding to the spirit of the occasion will be the music of "Dixie," accompanied by the unmusical, but traditional Kappa Alpha cannon.

Before and after tomorrow's game with N. C. State cookouts and buffets will be held to host returning alums. Parents, alums and dates will have the opportunity to tour fraternity houses during open house from 5 to 8 p.m.

Tomorrow evening, combo parties will be featured by the fraternities to round off Homecoming weekend. The Delts and KA's will hold a dance at the Florida Hotel, music provided by Roy King's Rocking Royals.

In addition, several Greek groups will host distinguished guests. The Pi Phi's will be visited by Nancy Kulp, Pi Phi FSU alum and TV actress, and their province president, Mrs. Derringer.

The Zeta's province president, Mrs. Robert E. Hardaway, will visit the chapter this weekend. The ADPi's will host their traveling secretary, Ann Rausher, and the Sig Eps have Ted Stroud, national staff representative, as their guest. The Alpha Gam's will host Mrs. Eloise Cameron.

Showing that all their efforts this week were not directed toward Homecoming functions, the fraternities reported 16 new pledges while the sororities obtained six.

No Grecian Column

Due to a limited amount of space, the Grecian columns will not be run this week. The columns will return with next Friday's "Flambeau."

Count Basie Brings Jazz To FSU

By PAT FREEMAN
Feature Editor

Jazz fans across the country cast envious eyes toward the students, faculty, alumnae and friends of FSU as world-renowned Count Basie and his orchestra bring the "most explosive force in jazz" to enliven FSU's campus next month.

Sponsored by the Alpha Tau Omega and the Phi Delta Theta fraternities, Count Basie will be performing two big shows in Westcott Auditorium on Tuesday, Dec. 3, at 7 and 9 p.m. Admission will be $2 for students and the general public.

Voted the "Greatest Ever" recently in the "Encyclopedia Yearbook of Jazz" by over 62 top musicians, Basie and his band have won the International Jazz Critic's Poll. American awards include topping several reader's polls held in "Down Beat," a nationally known jazz and musician's magazine. Basie and his band have also captured the "bon esprit" of the French monthly, "Le Jazz Hot," by winning several French awards.

A firm believer in the old adage "Never do tomorrow what can be done today," Count Basie began playing the piano at an early age, and was soon working night spots around New York City.

Working in a silent movie theatre after his first touring escapade folded in Kansas City, Count Basie joined Walter Page's "Blue Devils," later switching his talents to Benny Moten's band. Basie was voted leader of Moten's band when Benny died in 1935.

Discovered by John Hammond, a noted music critic, in 1935 when Hammond heard Basie and his 10-piece band on a small Kansas City radio station, they were soon on their way to the windy city, Chicago.

Except for a period in 1950-51 when Basie led a "swingin' sextet," he has been leader of a jazz band for over 25 years.

In 1954, when the band made its first tour of Europe, the Count was flyin' high on an organ, and jazz a la organ was born.

Having played at such obscure out of the way theatres as Carnegie Hall (1959), Basie has personally led a crusade for jazz through his many concerts. Such hits as his "One O'Clock Jump" gained converts by the hundreds.

Recipient of the first testimonial dinner to be given a jazz band leader in 1954 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Basie celebrated his 20 years as a band leader with old and new band members paying tribute to his career.

While in England, Basie gave a royal command performance for Queen Elizabeth, then returned in time to headline all the major jazz festivals in America.

In 1961 Count Basie and his band were invited to play for the Inaugural Ball for President-Elect Kennedy. Basie's style of jazz reached the White House by personal invitation.

Basie and his crew have been rediscovered by a younger generation of jazz enthusiasts through summer engagements at popular youth resorts in addition to personal appearances at innumerable college campuses.

Longmire's Many Faces

By NANCY ZLATIN
Assistant Feature Editor

"I stood out in the rain to supervise the landscaping," said Mrs. Frank Moor, permanent chairman of Longmire building.

"We had a dream for a long time. We needed a building for student offices more than anything else." To fill this need, the Rowena Longmire Student Alumnae Building was built.

The formal opening took place on Oct. 11, 1940. It was then the Longmire building was presented to the students and faculty of FSCW.

Longmire even provided eight bedrooms on the third floor to accommodate various guests of the college and visiting alumnae. According to Thomas Waits, the Director of Alumni Affairs, "I still get calls from Alumnae asking to reserve rooms in Longmire."

The main floor of the building contains the formal lounge with the same Elizabethan furnishings that it had in 1940. Although this lounge is mainly used for receptions and teas, one of the major controversies in the 1940's was, "Should we use the formal parlor for dating purposes?"

One of the understanding directors, in favor of using the lounge for this purpose, had this to say -- "There are very few places where the girls may have a little privacy in dating. I don't think they'll ever find satisfaction in the large dormitory parlors where the lights are pretty bright."

Today the first floor lounge is rarely used for dating. It does provide a quiet place for study purposes when not in use for meetings and receptions.

Miss Jane Adams is the present director of Longmire. She is in her 15th year of service as director, in which she has complete charge of operations and activities.

The ground floor contains the Soda Shop, Placement Office, Student Bank and Student Activities offices.

The main floor is used for Alumni offices, the director's office and the Lost and Found Department.

On the second floor are found the student government offices, "Flambeau" offices, Panhellenic Council, the Club Room and Committee Room.

The fourth floor is used for Honor and Judiciary Courts, Student Publications Ads, Alpha Phi Omega, the Production Lab, "Tally Ho" and "Smoke Signals."

'63 Queen To Be Chosen At Pow Wow

By WALT MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

The 1963 FSU Homecoming Queen will be crowned tonight at the Pow Wow.

The queen will be chosen from among the six finalists, who are Carolyn Duyck sponsored by Kappa Alpha, Ley Hulsey sponsored by Pi Kappa Phi, Jackie Mathis sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega, Clyda Stokes sponsored by Sigma Chi, Patty Warren sponsored by Phi Kappa Psi, and Carolyn Wronske sponsored by Alpha Gamma Delta.

Crowning the queen will be last year's Homecoming Queen Mrs. Kitty Miller Risenburg.

Dr. Warren Nation, Faculty Chairman for Homecoming, has directed this year's homecoming operations, while Mrs. J.R. Shearer, Home Economics Department, and Miss Rovanna DeParc were Faculty Chairmen for the Homecoming Queen Committee. The student chairman for this committee was Margaret DeHoff.

The committee was responsible for handling the Homecoming Queen elections and the finalists.

There are six finalists in this year's elections instead of the usual five due to a tie vote in primaries for the Homecoming Queen between two of the candidates.

CBS' Harry Reasoner To Speak Tonight

CBS-TV news analyst Harry Reasoner, who has traveled the globe on top assignments, will give the major FSU Homecoming Banquet address on the subject "Reporter on the Move" at 6 p.m. in Tully Gymnasium.

The banquet speaker arrived in Tallahassee early today.

Reasoner was with Nikita Khrushchev on his tour of the United States in 1959 and went with President Dwight Eisenhower on his trip to the Far East in 1960.

As commentator on "CBS Reports" Reasoner is known to millions for his reporting and analyzing of international and national news.

Reasoner, 39, was born in Dakota City, Iowa, attended University of Minnesota and Stanford University. He took his first news job with the Minneapolis Times from 1941-48. During this period, he took time out to serve three years with the army in World War II.

In 1950 he worked with radion station WCCO in Minneapolis as a news writer. Reasoner went overseas for three years with the US Information Agency's Far East Production in Manila shortly after the radio stint and while there traveled extensively in Asia. He then returned to Minneapolis and joined KEYD-TV station as news director. In 1956 he joined CBS-TV. One of his first major assignments a t CBS was to serve as narrator to the popular "Eye Witness to History" series.

The CBS-TV newsman replaces former President Harry S. Truman, who was forced to cancel his trip to Tallahassee because of "personal circumstances."

Another CBS-TV favorite in another vein, comedienne Nancy Kulp of the popular "The Beverly Hillbillies" show, will act as toastmistress at the Banquet. Miss Kulp arrived in Tallahassee yesterday. She is a member of the Florida State College for Women class of 1943 and will meet many of her classmates at the FSU Homecoming Banquet.

Governor Farris Bryant will give the welcoming address following introduction of guests by FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell.

One of the highlights of the Banquet will be recognition and honoring of the grads of 50 years ago, Class of 1913. Alumni Association president Edward M. Eissey will officiate.

Music will be furnished by Robert Glotzbach, Don Michel, and Robert Sedore of the FSU School of Music faculty.

Headlines in November, 1940, said "FSCW Girls Are 'Practical' Claim Unromantic Gators." A questionnaire revealed the opinions and biases of university of Florida males. It also seems that in March of '41 a bad outbreak of measles threw a monkey wrench into weekend thrills as well as studies.

In 41-42 and 42-43 air raid sirens and drills were initiated. Along with the rest of the nation FSCW went on Daylight Savings time Feb. 9, 1942, and class schedules were set up half an hour.

On a lighter vein, in October of '42, 113 students received unlimited cuts based on an average of 2.3 or above. But now the ideal dream is Johnny Doughboy instead of Old Joe College.

The Class of '59 saw the registration fee raised from 75 to 90 dollars and FSU lost its School of Journalism. Hollywood Groups To Give Hootenanny

By SANDI MILLS

The multitude of folksinging talent seems to be finding a home in the Los Angeles and West Coast area and it was there that the ABC-TV show "Hollywood Hootenanny" assembled the varied group who will perform for the Westcott Homecoming Shows tomorrow at 7 and 9 p.m.

Each year the Westcott Homecoming Shows are sponsored by the Student Artists Series Committee. This year, with Sue Mullis as chairman, the committee has brought to FSU the Hollywood Hootenanny talents of:

The Villagers, a group who first came to Southern California, in pursuit of a classical music education but became influenced by other art forms and began singing folk songs. Elaine and Janet provide the feminine touch while being accompanied by Harvey and Steve on guitar and banjo, respectively.

Peter Evans, 20 year old Californian and son a jazz authority Frank Evans, brings the music of the flamenco guitar to the audience.

The Wellynbrook Singers from the San Francico Valley met while attending Los Angeles Valley College as music majors. The group's instrumentalists, Mike Post and Pete Frankson both play twelve and 6-string guitars with Pete also on banjo. Mike, the leader of the singers, sings baritone and Pete doubles with tenor and bass. Ellen Lerner, alto and Sue Hayward, soprano, add a feminine note to the group.

In the spring of 1959, four members of the Long Beach City Choir, Carl Berg, Bill Reed, Kevin Shipman, and Mickey Elley, formed a group known as the Yachtsmen Quartet. They are currently appearing in their fourth season at Disneyland. Carl, leader and arranger for the group, sings baritone and doubles on guitar and banjo. The Yachtsmen have been featured with Louis Armstrong, Count Basie, The Firehouse Five Plus Two and were special guests of Benny Goodman on his TV Spectacular.

Yvan, a 20 year old native of Tahiti, has been in this country for three months. He sings calypso, American, French and Italian folk songs while accompanying himself on the guitar . True to the stereotype of a lounging islander, Yvan is billed as a happy go lucky young man who would rather sing and tell stories than work.

Folk Singers To Perform

The Christy Minstrel Singers, the "Big Band of Folk Singers," will perform in Westcott Auditorium Monday evening, at 8 p.m.

The performers, sponsored by the Tallahassee Jr. Women's Club, have four albums to their credit, including hits such as "Green, Green" and "Saturday Night."

The folk group has appeared as a regular on the Andy Williams Show and is scheduled for appearances on the Bell Telephone Hour and Grammy Awards.

All proceeds from the two hour show will help finance philanthropic projects in the community and the Big Bend area. Among these projects are an annual $250 scholarship presented to an FSU student and a $300 loan given to a worthy college student.

Tickets for the show are available until show time at the University Book Store for $2.50. Students may also buy tickets from members of the Junior Womens Club in front of Bill's Book Store all day Monday.

Homecoming Begins Today With Parade

By BILL KENT
Flambeau Staff Writer

The long-awaited FSU Homecoming begins today with a 50-unit parade starting from the Westcott Gates at 3:30 p.m. The parade will move east on College Avenue, then south on Monroe Street past a reviewing stand, ending at Gaines Street.

The parade will be led by the ROTC color guard, followed by President Blackwell and guests, the class of 1913, alumni officers, and student government officers.

The Marching Chiefs, the FSU cheerleaders, and the 1962 Homecoming Queen, Mrs. Kitty Miller Risenburg, will follow. The Queen's float will bear the six candidates for the 1963 Homecoming Queen title. Next will be the combined fraternity - sorority floats

The floats will be judged by Ralph Hurst, Mrs. W.E. Woodward and Miss Ann Kirn, and will be graded in categories including the best all around, most original, most beautiful, most humorous, and most appropriate to the "Greater Goals for Seminoles" theme. Results of this judging will be announced during half-time at the game Saturday afternoon.

Pow Wow To Include Fireworks

By BETSY BRANDT
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Everything is different," said Carol Ann Grizzard speaking of the Pow Wow to be held today at 8:30 p.m. in Campbell Stadium.

Tom-tom music will be played from Westcott Towers prior to the Homecoming Parade, followed by the Pow Wow and Indians who will overun the campus.

A spectacular firework display, costing $1,000 will be used to climax the rally.

Seating for special guests will be in reserved box seats. This year's guests include the class of 1913 and the stars of the Hootenanny. There will be block seating for organizations and all students will sit in special areas.

Cmcee Arnie Gibbs will introduce Coach Peterson and the Fighting Semfnoles. Senior members of the team will be introduced individually.

The highlight of the Pow Wow will be the crowning of the Homecoming Queen by last year's queen. The queen and her court will review the winning floats.

In October of '61 the Board of Control chose the trimester system over the quarter system by five to one. The Class of '62 didn't get to graduate under this system but the Class of '63 did. In the spring of '62 FSU tromped University of the South (Sewannee, Tenn.) in G.E. College Bowl, and the fall before the Math-Meteorology Building was dedicated. The Molecular Biophysics Building was dedicated the fall of '62 and Florida became the first state ever to enter the trimester system on a state-wide basis.

The "Flambeau" became a daily in the fall of '62 through the use of offset, which uses Justowriter machines instead of linotype.

All returning Alumni may see the continued progress of FSU in the construction of the Student Union and new Men's Dorms, or in the work just begun on the new addition to the Psychology Bldg.

Bonfire Kindling Goes Up In Smoke: Wood Badly Needed

Wood for the Pow Wow bonfire was burned last night and has created an emergency local possesors of kindling could alleviate by calling Carol Ann Grizzard at the Alpha Xi Delta house, phone 224-1510 or U-3055.

Wood contributions are desperately needed and would be appreciated.

Dorothy Hoffman Chosen FSU's Outstanding Profess

By CAROLYN CHRISTENSEN

FSU's Outstanding Professor for 1963, Dr. Dor Hoffman, things that the best way to learn a m language is "... to relax, to let it flow in... and t be afraid to make mistakes."

Dr. Hoffman's speciality is 17th century, Golden Age Spanish poetry and drama. She points out that a knowledge of modern language is most important today in a world rapidly growing so small that a personal understanding of international neighbors is necessary.

"If you can't get a feel for their lovely literature, you will never understand the people, for it expresses the people. Languages just don't translate, you miss the innuendoes of humor and emotion."

Perhaps one reason that Dr. Hoffman was chosen Outstanding Professor is the way she puts into action her belief that "the joy of teaching is the student, in adding your bit to the development of such fine material, and to help in the molding of his character. A teacher must always remember that someone in the class may have potential, which can far surpass the teacher herself."

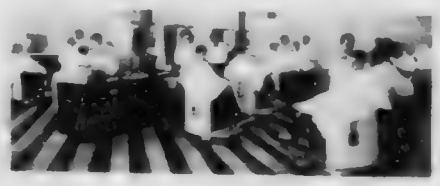
In this belief Dr. Hoffman has chosen as her guest speaker address "Partners in the Quest of Excellence" to present at the Alumni Lecture and Faculty reception tomorrow morning at 10:30 in Longmire Bldg.

Growing up in a little town near Indianapolis, Ind., Dr. Hoffman remembers the Speedway, and how she and her older brother used to ride around the track with famous drivers.

When she was in the fifth grade, her school began an exper program of teaching Spanis elementary grades, and this i she first came into contact wi language. She followed it t high school and to the Univers Illinois where she graduated highest honors, and where sh er received her M.A. and Ph. grees.

Since coming to FSU, Dr. H has taken several leaves of an to do graduate study, and spent mers at the National Univer Mexico, the University of Sa cos at Lima, Peru, the Univer Guatemala and did resear National Library of Madri

Travel is one of Dr. Hoffm favorite activities, and she has to nearly all of Central Ameri South America and Western Eu



"It is wonderful," she said, able to speak the language of the ple in the countries you visit. I you speak badly, the people flattered you try that they do a can to help you."

During the last eight years th Hoffman has been secretary FSU Credit Union and is of Directors, they have in assets to over a million dollars student aid.

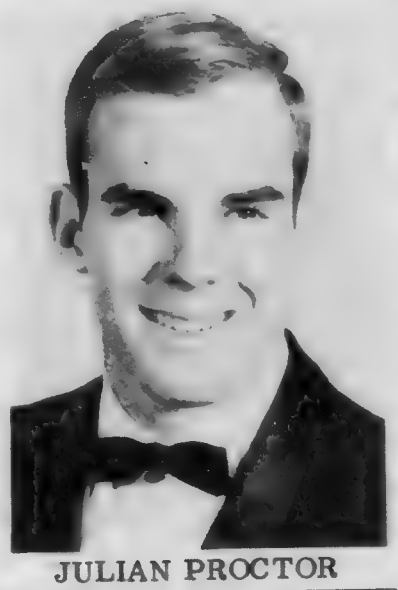
JOHNNY SMITH

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER
Flambeau Feature Writer



Johnny Smith, FSU Student Body President, is a young man with mature and high ideals. When asked what he felt his responsibility was, Johnny stated, "the Student Body President is the symbolic head of all student activities; and, as such, he has to act in a representative capacity in light of the greatest benefit to the student body. He forms decisions on the basis of a broad influx of ideas, suggestions, and advice from every phase of campus life and activities. The President must also watch out for minorities as well as majorities."

Johnny began to develop his leadership abilities in Melbourne High School where he lettered in three sports. His teammates labeled him "crab" because of his ability on the football field.

President Smith, a Sigma Chi, has a notable record of service and achievement at FSU. Affectionately referred to as "Chipmunk," he has set himself the task of improving the functions of student government. John has become addicted to scuba diving and spends most of his spare time exploring the caves and sinkholes around Tallahassee.

A bad knee he received during high school football will determine his immediate future after graduation. If the military service will not accept him, John will work on his MA or enter an executive training program.

Julian Proctor, Student Body Vice President, hails from Tallahassee where he graduated from Leon High School. Julian, a junior, has one sister and five brothers, the oldest of whom is a law student at Gainesville. Besides working with the Senate and assisting the student body in administrative relations, Vice President Proctor serves in SAE, Alpha Council, and was recently tapped for Gold Key.

JULIAN PROCTOR

After graduation, Julian will enter law school in preparation for work with the State Department.

Clyda Stokes, Women's Vice President, has lived all her life on the same block in Jacksonville. She graduated from Paxon High School where she was active in student government. Clyda has one older sister and a younger brother, Parkie, whom she says is her buddy.

Vice President Stokes feels that her main function involves guiding women's government of all kind in relation to the student body as a whole.

After graduation, Clyda will travel as field secretary for her sorority, Delta Gamma, and then she will return to school for a MA in Sociology to enable her to go into university administration.

CLYDA STOKES

Frank Ryll, Men's Vice President, will head for law school at Gainesville after graduation where his main interest will be in the corporate and trust field.

Frank has recently introduced a bill into Senate which will create men's inter-dormitory council.

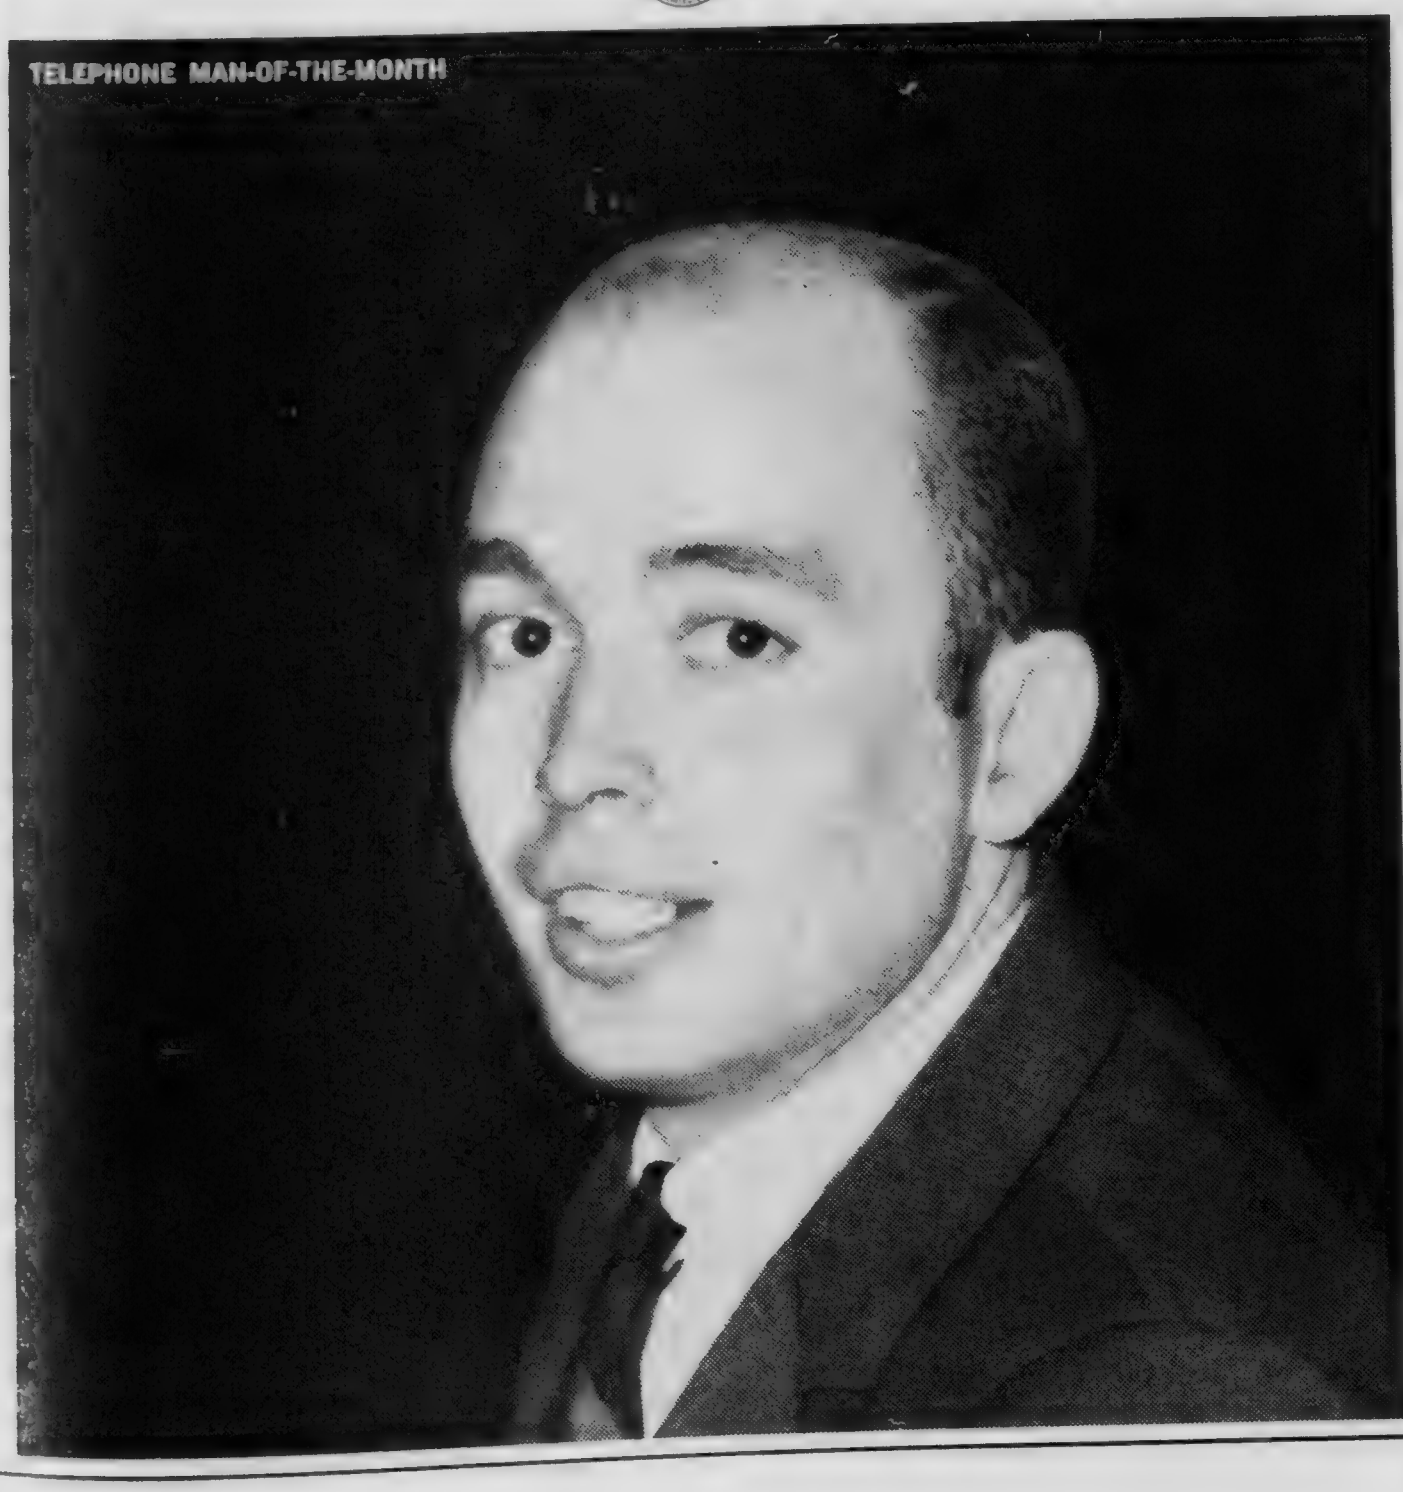
THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: BURL RAINWATER



When Burl Rainwater (B.A., 1958) reported to Southern Bell in 1961, he coordinated the Bell System Census Project in Tennessee. Working out his own guidelines for collecting data, Burl analyzed his results to forecast household growth during the Sixties for each telephone exchange in Tennessee.

Success on this assignment earned him a new one where he also had to pioneer. When told to study the possible application of teaching machines to telephone training, he and another employee programmed an entire basic electricity course to show what the new devices could do. The textbook the two men developed for the machines was later copyrighted and published.

With such achievements behind him, Burl is now carrying out other interesting assignments in the Knoxville Commercial Office.

Burl Rainwater, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Student Union Addition Shows Progress

By SUE BOYLE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Completion date for the first part of the new Student Union complex is set for August.

Ground was broken on June 10, 1963 by FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell and Johnny Smith, Student Body President. Five years of planning took place before actual construction began.

Former FSU President Robert M. Strozier appointed the first Union Committee in 1959. Porter Butts and Abe Hesser were the early planning consultants. After the final plans were approved, the contract for construction was let to Coble Construction Co.

The Student Union complex will include the present Student Center and four new adjoining buildings.

The building constructed nearest the present Post Office is scheduled to be the first finished. This will be a two-story cafeteria. The downstairs will seat 800 and the upstairs 1000. The upstairs will be used for many University dances.

A 400-seat auditorium will be another of the four buildings. Campus movies, lectures, conventions, and other programs will be held here.

The third unit will house an 8-lane bowling alley and other recreational facilities.

The main building of the complex will be a three-story one. The first floor will contain a branch of the book store, a beauty parlor, barber shop, and Travel Information center. Administration offices, reading rooms, and listening rooms will be located on the second floor. Student government and student publications will be on the third floor.

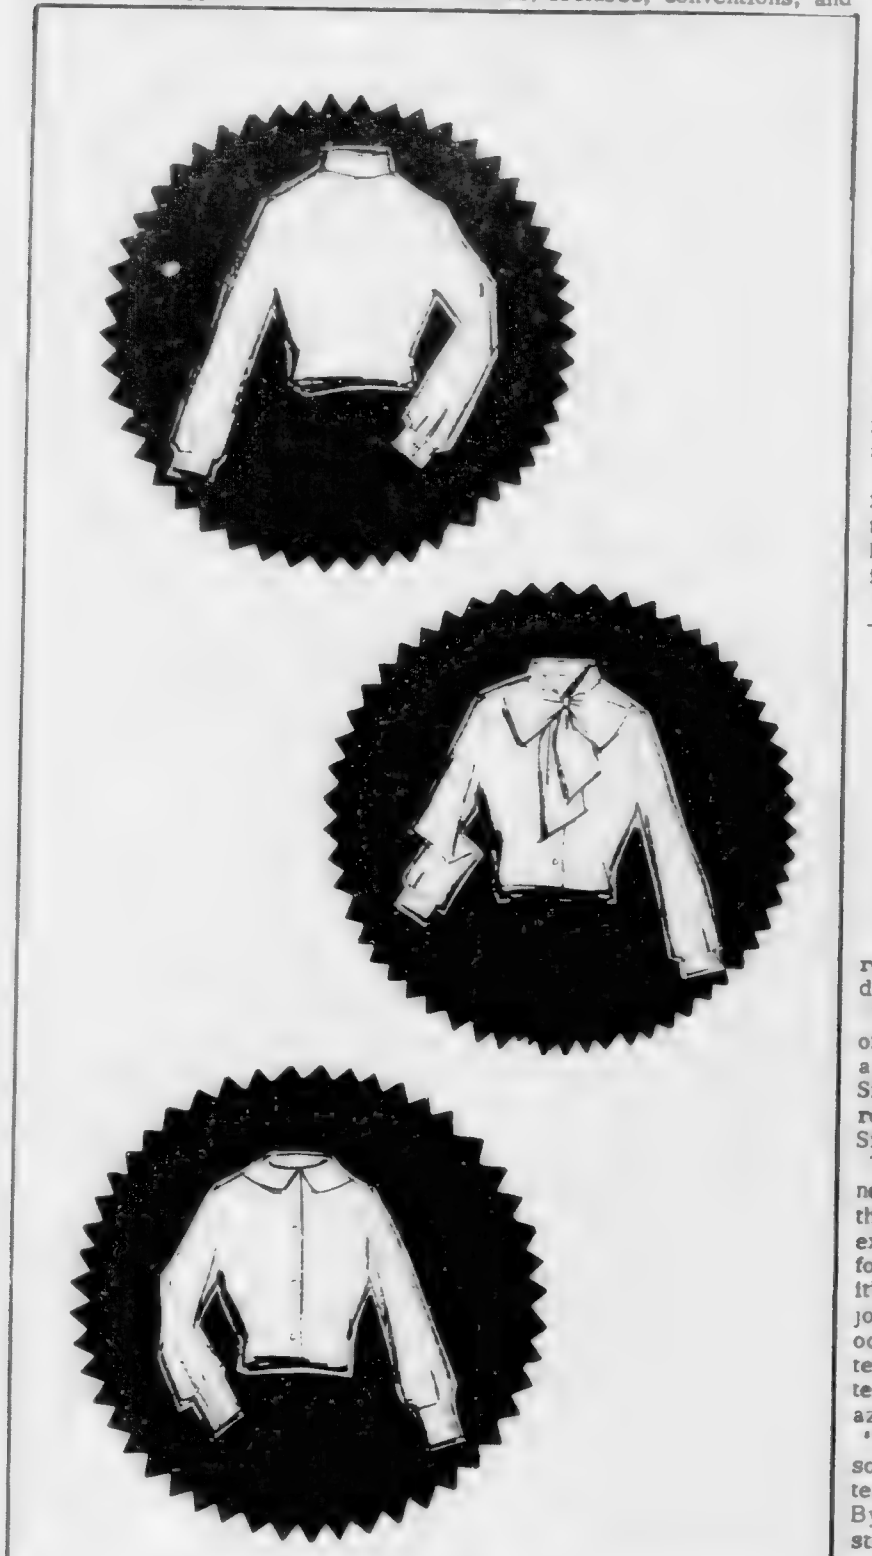
The present dining area in the Student Center will be the new Post Office. The old Post Office will become a branch of the book store.

Ground will soon be broken for the olympic size, U-shaped swimming pool to be built south of the Student Union on Call Street.

A contract for the pool was let to Coble Construction Co. Bids will open in a few weeks for construction of the lockerroom facilities. Completion date for the pool is set in August, 1964.

The heated pool will be the training center for the FSU swim team. It will be open at certain times during the day for recreational use by students and faculty.

Also under construction at this time is the Physics building. Located between Smith Hall and the Education Building, this building should be open in 18 months.



Construction has begun on an addition to the Psychology Bldg. Financed by State and Federal funds it will be finished in January, 1965.

A Field House now under construction at the Doak S. Campbell Stadium should be finished before the end of the year. Lockerroom[illegible] facilities for both the home and v[illegible] teams will be provided. Al[illegible] cluded are offices for the c[illegible] a movie projection r[illegible] trainer's room.

'Smoke Signals' Offers Humor, General Interest

By JIM PRESTON
Smoke Signals Managing Editor

"A New England cemetery epitaph reads: 'Here lies an atheist. All dressed up and no place to go.'"

Thus reads a joke in a 1951 copy of "Smoke Signals." And thus reads a joke in the 1958 edition of "Smoke Signals." And thus, you will find, reads a joke in the issue of "Smoke Signals" coming out Nov. 26 or so.

This point serves, perhaps, as a negative introduction to the type of thing that makes "Smoke Signals" exactly what it is today (we're great followers of tradition). But though it's tradition which states that the jokes in campus magazines must reoccur in endless cycles of retelling, it is also tradition that determines the format of a good magazine.

"Smoke Signals" has been, for some five of its many years in existence, a general interest magazine. By this, we mean that we don't restrict our content to the beat type of stories and scatological type of humor that prevail in all but the best of the so-called campus humor magazines. Instead, we follow in a tradition of giving the magazine a wide variety of features, many of them humorous, which should have general appeal to the student body.

It's for this reason that "Smoke Signals has such features as "After Hours," where we interview in each issue a student who we think is interesting because of his extra-curricular life. The student may be one known by many people on campus (as in the forthcoming issue, we interview Steve Tensi, FSU's first string quarterback) or one known by very few, and in each case the student chosen has some vocation or avocation that we think the student body would like to know about.

And it's because of our desire for general appeal that we feature an interview with a noteworthy and interesting member of the faculty in each issue. This is also why we continue in the coming issue a series of articles on FSU life as it affects our foreign students: in this issue, for instance, we have the second of a series by Indian student Krishna Menon, "As I See It."

Our interest in meeting the wishes of the student body, of course, sees that we keep the magazine lighthearted. We have our own cartoonist, Scooter Rawls, for instance. We feature a full section of jokes, not all of them old, and at least two pages of Screeming Meemies, photos with captions, all of which are completely new.

"Smoke Signals" also has, usually, a couple of articles put in just for good, light reading. In this issue you'll find "Saint Gandol[illegible] meeting this need.

So we round it off with our [illegible] popular Feature Girl, in this [illegible] it's Miss —— ah, but you'll [illegible] wait for that, and with a [illegible] story or two, in this case [illegible] really excellent one, we think, [illegible] "Saturday Morning" by FSU s[illegible] John McCotter.

This gives us what tradition [illegible] should be a pretty good m[illegible] one that holds something for [illegible] member of the student body [illegible] ulty. And if all this back pat[illegible] sounds suspiciously like the "[illegible] boy Philosophy," well, that's [illegible] we get for going through that m[illegible] azine and looking at more than [illegible] pictures.

'Legend' To Add Color

The 1964 edition of the "Legend," FSU's literary anthology, will appear for the first time with color when it is issued this spring.

The "Legend's" editor, Bill Adkinson, plans to make use of color as an art supplement throughout the magazine for added interest.

This year the "Legend" may also feature a contest for the best short stories and poetry, in which the award for the best work may possibly go as high as $50.

The contest will be judged on an overall basis, with the rules soon to be released. Among the judges will be Michael Shaara, creative writing instructor in the English department and an unofficial advisor to the "Legend's" editorial staff.

Plans are also underway to have the "Legend" copyrighted for the first time, in order to protect student writing from plagerism.

The staff is developing an exchange program with other colleges, t[illegible] large their collection by trading [illegible] other schools who publish liter[illegible] anthologies. Along with the excha[illegible] of thought and ideas, the "Lege[illegible] will become better known an[illegible] collegiate literary circles.

The "Legend" stresses qua[illegible] instead of quantity, and its c[illegible] goal this year is to develop a "[illegible] end" that will have wider inter[illegible] and appeal than ever before.

In a forward to the '61 "Lege[illegible] President Gordon W. Black[illegible] wrote: "The 'Legend' focuses atte[illegible] tion on the humanities in these da[illegible] when emphasis tends to be in oth[illegible] directions. A campus such as ou[illegible] if it is to live up to the highe[illegible] traditions of a university, m[illegible] foster creativity and an outlet [illegible] the expression of such creativi[illegible] is the first and most essenti[illegible] step. The anthology is thus a mea[illegible] ingful expression of the University[illegible] purposes."

'Sammy Seminole' Keeps Things Hoppin'

By JUNE BECK
Flambeau Staff Writer

Florida State University scored 49 points against Furman. After the game, the most exhausted person on the field was probably not a football player, but Sammy Seminole, FSU's mascot, who went tumbling down the field after each touchdown. Between touchdowns, he personified the school's winning spirit by doing forward flips, back flips and other gymnastics.

Sammy Seminole is Rick Miller, a five foot nine inch senior majoring in Latin American studies. Rick, FSU's fourth Sammy Seminole, is from Long Beach, Calif. He received a scholarship to FSU in gymnastics after spending the last part of his senior year at Terry Parker High School in Jacksonville. Last Thanksgiving Rick married Ellanor Daniell, also a tumbler.

The Sammy Seminole tradition started in 1958 with Chick Cicio, a National AAU free exercise champion. Chick was one of the most colorful showmen on the tumbling team (which used to perform before the football games). He came up with the idea of a tumbling Indian mascot and was the first Sammy Seminole. Chick did such a good job that he sold the idea to the school as a tradition.

Jack Ryder was Sammy Seminole in 1959 and 1960. He was an NCAA champion in tumbling. In 1961 and and 1962 Joe Greene was Sammy. Joe won the Georgia AAU Tumbling Championship twice and the Georgia AAU Trampoline Championship twice.

Our 1963 Sammy Seminole, Rick Miller, was selected by Sherry Harris, the head cheerleader; Dr. James Carr of Financial Aid; Dr. Hartley Price of the gymnastics department; and Joe Greene, the former Sammy.

"Rick has a wonderful competitive record," said Price. "He has had a lot to do with keeping gymnastics alive here." Sherry Harris commented that "Rick is the best Sammy Seminole since the first edition."

On the field, Rick is entirely on his own. He tumbles for a first down, a run, or a touchdown. He keeps moving all the time. "I feel it gives the students spirit when I tumble," Rick says, "and that's what Sammy Seminole was created for."

Rick carries a feathered javelin and wears the costume he bought from the '62 Sammy. He has two white breechcloths with sequined Indian designs and pants with a strip of sequins down each leg. Above the waist he has arm bands with streamers, and warpaint. He uses red theatrical makeup put on with water. After it dries, he wife makes designs on him with colored chalk. "I have a multicolored jacket I can wear when it's cold,' but the cold doesn't bother me as long as I keep moving," he says. "Rain, though, causes my makeup to run."

Rick says he enjoys being Sammy Seminole and would do it even without the $250 scholarship he receives. "I get to go to all the games. I can run along wherever the ball is placed, and watch the plays.

"And," he says, "Little kids get a big kick out of Sammy Seminole. After the game I give my feathers to the kids--if they haven't already taken them."

Last year at Gainesville some students took Sammy's $30 javelin. He had to chase them to get it back. Rick says, "If they take my javelin this year, they won't get much. I'm carrying a bamboo pole decorated with feathers."

As the student body grew, the need arose for more than one performance per series. Season tickets were made available to underide the additional expense of having the artists for two nights.

According to Mrs. Kathryn Vernon, director of Special Events, attendance has dropped somewhat due to the increased pressure of the trimester.

This year it has been decided to reduce the number of events and to put more money into each attraction, making approximately three for each trimester.

Mrs. Vernon stated that in the past few years there have been many cancellations. Artists have some difficulty getting to Tallahassee because it is off the usual path of travel.

Almost all of the Series will be in the spring trimester this year. Mrs. Vernon feels that it may be better to have the presentations during the spring because there are fewer activities than in the fall.

"It is also easier to get the better artists at this time because they come to Florida for the tourist season.

"Ballets always draw the biggest attendance, with symphonies next," says Mrs. Vernon. "Solos are not as well attended."

Among Artist Series performers FSU has had, some of the most outstanding have been George London and Roberta Peters (two greats from the Metropolitan Opera), and Charles Laughton, whom Mrs. Vernon considers to be "one of the most delightful."

Artists are selected by a faculty-student committee, which establishes the policies. Booking is done about a year in advance.

The Artist Series is financed from money allocated from student fees and from the season and individual tickets sales.

This year the Artist Series is presenting the Ballet Folklorico of Mexico, which has a thrilling reputation and the Pittsburgh Symphony. Also, a new play on a pre-Broadway tour, starring Joseph Cotton and Patricia Medina, is replacing "A Thousand Clowns."

FSU has also seen Brother Dave Gardner, the Kingston Trio, Louis Armstrong, and Bennett Cerf

Homecomings Go Way Back

By SHEILA APPLEBY
Flambeau Staff Writer

Homecoming celebrations have been in existence (in one form or another) since 1910, when FSU was known as Florida State College for Women.

At this early period a spirited rivalry between the women marked the beginning of festivities similar to homecoming, though the occasion wasn't termed "homecoming" until 1926. That year a masked ball was held honoring the ladies, faculty, parents and alumnae. (However these dances must have been markedly different from those of today, for students were not allowed to dance with men nor sit in a parked car with a man.)

These holidays lasted a full week during Thanksgiving. Instead of leaving campus, the parents came and joined their daughters. Entertainment varied. A likely program on the agenda was the "Demonstrations" -- plays produced and directed on alternate evenings by the 'Odds' and 'Evens' -- two opposing factions on campus. The Odds were composed of the freshman and junior class, and the Evens the sophomore and senior.

Added to the activities in 1930 was the first faculty-alumnae basketball game and as enthusiasm for the sports world grew, volleyball was likewise added.

In 1932 a noticeable improvement in the rules appeared: women could now date on Friday, Saturday and Sunday as long as they had no more than three dates a week.

This was followed by a headline in the homecoming edition of the 'Flambeau' in 1934 which proclaimed "Dancing with men soon to be permitted." Only with special permission could men previously attend dances held from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. in the college gymnasium, so this marked a big step forward.

A remnant of bygone days is the bus in front of Bryan Hall which was used by those needing transportation to the dance.

The year 1936 saw homecoming abolished in favor of Parents' Day with the swing becoming a popular dance form throughout the country.

The 1941 celebration was a real adventure for 14 students (12 Evens and 2 Odds) who made history when they were "buried alive" in the Landis elevator 2 feet below the ground floor. Naturally they remained 'calm and composed' throughout the ordeal and were rescued safe and unsuffocated (but exhausted).

However, no one heard much about the Odds; the Evens' "fight" song drowned them out.

Another date in the past, 1942, was influenced by the depression during the war -- as was obvious when the groceries were rationedfor the traditional Thanksgiving dinner for students and parent in the Suwanee Room.

"Color rush" was instituted in 1944. The object was to get your team's colors highest on campus and no fair pulling down those of worthy opponents. A bell sent students dashing toward every tower, lamp post, or telephone pole in sight; and the winning side received a trophy.

During one homecoming celebration in 1947 the rivalry between the Odds and Evens reached such a peak that the floor of the gymnasium collapsed under the strain.

It was the custom for the Odds to have a Japanese parade and to wear their most elaborate pajamas but this had to be discontinued when unfavorable criticism suggested that FSCW women were wearing pajamas on the streets of Tallahasseel

A remembered year was 1948 -- when FSCW became FSU and celebrated its first "big" Homecoming weekend. A queen was elected (though sophomore counselors may not have worked at the polls for the Homecoming elections, they did sell 500 pounds of peanuts to FSU students and parents) to reign over such familiar festivities as a football game, a pep rally, entertainment by celebrities and a dance.

This trend of even bigger and better homecomings has increased yearly until they have approached today's magnitude.

Marching Chiefs Come No Better!

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

For over 11 years the FSU band, Marching Chiefs, has held the unique position of being consistently rated as the best band in the South. This position has been reaffirmed time and time again by such newspapers at the "Atlanta Journal," the "Miami Herald," and the "Florida Alligator."

Many people have wondered what makes the Chiefs better, year after year, than other bands. "Other bands may put in the same amount of time in practicing but they don't have the esprit de corps (86 proof) that the Chiefs have," is the reason one staff member put forth.

Although the band's history goes back to 1940, the school did not begin to take notice of it until 1948 when FSU went co-educational. Sometime after that, the administration decided to go all out for the band. Dr. Manley Whitcomb was called in from Ohio State University. At the same time they boosted the band's budget from $500 to over $10,000

With a nationally known director and some substantial financial backing the band membership rose from 90 Chiefs to the 170 piece band of today.

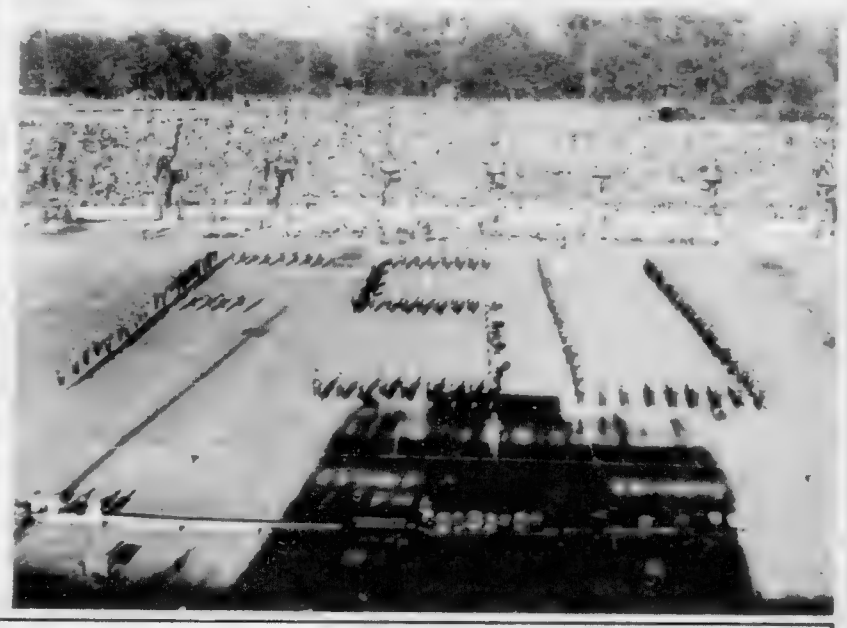
The first big chance for the Chiefs to be seen out of the South came in 1956 when they went to Philadelphia for the FSU-Villanova game.

In 1958 the Chiefs journeyed to El Paso, Texas for the Sun Bowl where, according to Robert T. Braunagel, "They received a tremendously enthusiastic reception."

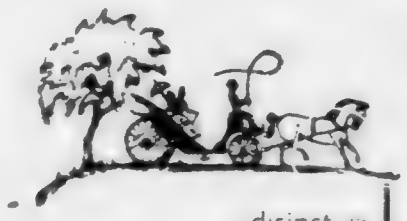
In 1961 the FSU band went to Mobile and appeared at the Senior Bowl, nationally televised.

This year the band is under the direction of Robert T. Braunagel, who has worked with the Chiefs for over 11 years. Braunagel received his B.A. in Music from the Conservatory in Cincinnati. In 1947 he received his masters at the University of Texas and then came to FSU.

Roger McClendon, drum major for the Chiefs for his second year is a junior in music education.



The Chiefs feel that some of their best shows are performed off the football field. After a production at the Fountainbleu Hotel in Miami September held privately for University of Miami Ibis mascot school insured the "bird" Lloyds of London for $1,000.



Tau Beta Sigma for women Kappa Kappa Psi for men are two honorary music organizati which are the trustees of the ba spirit. These two groups per such duties as publishing a pa called the "Chieftain" for the b selling fudge and apples on t (although some band members doubted the sanity of eating fudg 4 in the morning), and kicking Freshmen.

omecoming Decorations Feature Future FSU

By SALLYANNE HUFFAKER
Flambeau Staff Writer

n the future really be predicted? That's what house orations will try to do for FSU in accordance with "Greater Goals for Seminoles" theme for the 1963 necoming at FSU.

Judging of the decorations is based on four main points: theme for idea, general appearance, workmanship, and overall impact. Sketches must have been approved for the decorations; however, the plans remain a secret until the last moment. For weeks now coeds (especially in the Freshmen dorms) have been whispering about 'their dorm's' decorations. Rivalry has been almost as high as team spirit before the game. Most decorations are expected to follow the theme for homecoming.

Winners are chosen in five categories -- best men's residence, best women's residence, best off-campus residence, best non-residence student center, and best all around. Sororities and fraternites may have decorations, but these are not judged.

Judges for the decorations are Mrs. James Gunn, an artist; Mr. H.C. Satterfield, an architect; and Dr. Gregory Choppin, professor of chemistry at FSU.

Results of the judging, which will take place today at 5:30 p.m. and during the Pow Wow, will be announced at the game tomorrow.

Each Homecoming celebration brings back memories of the past. This will be the second Homecoming FSU has celebrated while on the trimester system. With the inauguration of this system last year changes were made in the decorations for Homecoming.

Instead of judging all residences including sorority and fraternity houses, it was decided that only dorms, off-campus residences and non-resident student centers would enter the competition. Greeks enter floats in the parade rather than work on elaborate house decorations.

Decorations of the past have always been original and are often elaborate. "Dixie Fun in '61" was the theme for the year the Seminoles played Mississippi. Decorations included such typical Old South scenes as Confederate flags, girls in hoop skirts, fried chicken, watermelon, steamboats, and cotton gins. Individual themes like "Southern Chicken is Easy Picken" and "Rousing Rebel Welcome" were used.

Last year the theme was "Future View of FSU," with the Seminoles playing the Cougars from the University of Houston. Contest decorations featured such things as super-duper space ships and IBM machines. Non-contest decorations either followed the Homecoming theme or represented something special about the group displaying them.

This year decorations have proved to be as interesting and unusual as those in the past, but who will the winners be?

'Mafia'-Led Pack 6 Point Favorites

N.C. State Press Release

North Carolina State, the only football team in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a clean record against non-conference opponents, meets strong Florida State at Campbell Stadium Saturday. The pack is paced by its backfield of Rossi, Scarpati, Koszarsky and Falzarno, called the "Mafia" in North Carolina.

The Wolfpack, tied for first place in the ACC with Duke and North Carolina, all with 5-1 records, has defeated Southern Mississippi, 14-0, and Virginia Tech, 13-7, in its only games against outside foes.

The Seminoles, annually one of the strongest independent teams in the South, shutout the heralded George Mira and Miami, 24-0, and last week led Georgia Tech at halftime, 7-3, before bowing, 15-7.

The Wolfpack and Florida State have met six times in the past, with the Seminoles holding a 4-2 edge. The last game was in 1957, and was one of the seven victories (7-0) scored by the Wolfpack in its ACC title-winning year.

FSU uses a pro offense, featuring the passing of quarterback Steve Tensi. Tensi, called the "tallest quarterback in the nation" at 6 ft. five ins., has tossed nine touchdown passes this year and has accumulated 851 yards passing.

"Their line is big and fast," says Wolfpack scout Ernie Driscoll. "Tight-end Bill Dawson, a 6 ft. 3 ins., 210-pounder, and captain Chuck Robinson, who plays right guard and linebacker are impressive linemen," adds Driscoll.

"Dave Snyder, at 5 ft. 10 ins. and 184, is the best runner I've seen this year. He's fast and runs like he hates people. Snyder is a lot like Duke's Jay Wilkinson, but runs much harder," continued Driscoll.

The Seminoles, with 29 lettermen, have won three, lost three, and tied one game thus far. Saturday will be Homecoming Day at Tallahassee, and a capacity crowd of 25,000 is expected.

N. C. State's seven victories tie the most games won by a Wolfpack team under Earle Edwards, equalling the 1957 record of 7-1-2. A solid defense, which has directly produced six touchdowns, and some timely offensive plays have been vital to the Pack cause.

BOC Action Prejudiced

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

Last Friday in Jacksonville, on the eve of the annual rida-Georgia game, the state Board of Control, ch governs Florida educational institutions, went n on record against the expansion of FSU's stadium 10,000 seats.

his is an obvious attempt by the UF alumni on and the Board to keep FSU from fulfilling its contract tting at least 35,000 seats by next year so the h-FSU game could be played in Tallahassee. The rs are afraid to take on a Bill Peterson-coached in Tallahassee, so they try every possible nuever to keep the FSU fans in the end zone of Field.

t is high time the people of this state realized that rida State is indeed the equal of the University of da--scholastically, athletically and otherwise. Any all team which leads Georgia Tech in Grant Field Atlanta at halftime should be allowed to schedule the s. in Campbell Stadium.

The UF also argues that they will lose money on the FSU has traveled to Gainesville to play for five rs now and lost money on every trip. Surely one trip the capital city at decreased profits wouldn't put the of business.

here is more to the stadium expansion than the shness of the UF alumni, however.

Bill Peterson is in the process of building a big-time football team for FSU, but he lacks two ngs--tradition and a winning year. He has already the tradition groundwork by having the team come gh the goal posts onto the field with Sammy Sem- and the Confederate flag leading the way. And a ng year against some of the toughest competition e country seems closer to reality every year. order to play other big-time schools on a home- basis, there must be a stadium available hold enough people to make the game pro- le for the visiting team. Without such a stadium, will become "off limits" to other football s. It is hard to compile a winning season when ard games are always played away from your .

there is only one way to put FSU football --through stadium expansion. It is a gamble. was the construction of Florida Field to its ous proportions.

St-UF clash has grown to become the biggest ball game in the state, cramming close to 50,000 into Florida Field every year. It is extremely r for one school, which holds the edge only in of operation and tradition but not football talent, opolize the benefits of this fierce rivalry and its sister state-supported-school the crumbs. will be remembered that only after the distinct of political action in the state legislature put sure on the gentlemen of the board did they move r the athletic directors of FSU and UF to get nd schedule a game.

Evidently it will take more pushing and shoving on tal hill to get them to make the rivalry they created r and equal proposition for both schools.

Clyda Stokes Chosen Homecoming Queen

CLYDA STOKES, 1963-64 HOMECOMING QUEEN

By DICK SMITH
Asst. News Editor

"I was really surprised and excited," said Miss Clyda Stokes, 1963-64 Homecoming Queen, who was crowned Friday night as the culmination of this year's Pow Wow.

Miss Stokes was crowned before a stadium filled with FSU students and alumni by Kitty Miller Risenburg, last year's Homecoming Queen, as fireworks splashed the night sky over Campbell Stadium in colorful patterns.

Miss Stokes was chosen from a court of six made up of Patty Warren, Carolyn Wronske, Jackie Mathis, Carolyn Duyck, and Ley Hulsey.

The blond , green-eyed Homecoming Queen will reign until next year's Pow Wow, when she in turn will crown her successor with the traditional white-feathered Indian headdress.

Miss Stokes, a senior, is a history and sociology major. She hails from Jacksonville.

She's been on the Dean's list many times and was elected to Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's scholastic honorary, which requires a 3.5 average.

The Homecoming Queen is a member of Mortar Board, honorary for outstanding women in leadership, scholarship and service, and also is in Garnet Key, another leadership and service honorary for women.

She is Women's Vice President and president of Panhellenic.

Miss Stokes is a sister in Delta Gamma sorority and was sponsored by Sigma Chi fraternity.

Swimming and tennis rank as two of her favorite sports.

Miss Stokes has been active in student government since her freshman year when she ran for, and was elected to, the post of senator. As a junior she was president of Reynolds Hall.

Also included in the Pow Wow program was the announcement of this year's float winners as they paraded slowly past the stands.

After the crowning of Miss Stokes and a skit entitled "Beatnik Seminole," the crowd moved to the golf course and a snake dance around a rebuilt bonfire at which North Carolina wolf was burned in effigy.

BOP Votes To Stop Anonymous Column

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Board of Publications moved Thursday to prohibit the Flambeau from allowing columnists to appear without their names accompanying their columns.

The action was taken in response to a complaint lodged by Arnie Gibbs, students government attorney general, who challenged the right of a Flambeau columnist writing under the pseduonym of Praeco Simplici to continue his anonymous columns.

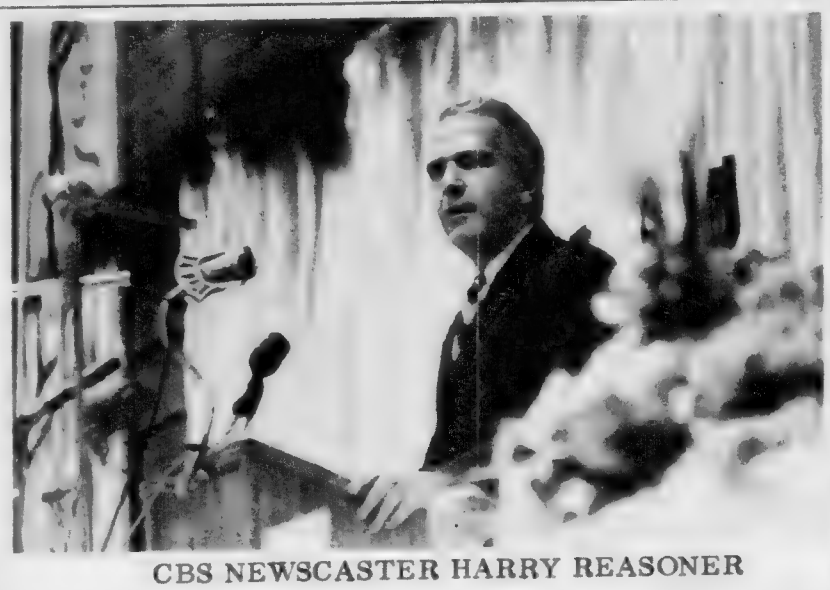
Gibbs objected to the Praeco Simplici column, which included many comments on personalities in student government, claiming that he slandered student leaders by taking their statements out of context and putting them in a bad light.

The SG official also charged that the columnist used his column in a misleading and biased manner by including praises of a service fraternity of which he a member.

Gibbs stated that columnists should be identified so thatthey can be held responsible for their statements.

Gibbs also questioned the Flambeau editor's right to withhold the names upon request of persons writing letters to the editor, claiming that the authors of letters should have enough strength of conviction not avoid responsibility for their views.

In response to this, the BOP appointed a committee made up of Ben Bryant and Pat Gurley to clarify the Flambeau policy on withholding names of authors of letters to the editors, since there is now no written policy as such.



At the same meeting, Bob Holley delivered a speech entitled "Reforms in the Board of Publications," calling for a more editorially representative newspaper.

He proposed that a poll be taken of student opinion concerning the "Flambeau," in order to clarify student complaints, which were, he said, "leading to a lack of faith in the 'Flambeau' as an objective organ of communication on this campus."

Holley then proposed that this poll be used by the newspaper and the BOP to increase students' faith in the newspaper as an organ of objective and rational communication."

Because of time shortage, the BOP called for an adjourned session to meet Thursday to further consider Holley's proposals.

The BOP also put off until Thursday action on three proposals by Bill Adkison, editor of the "Legend." Adkison's suggested improvements were copyright all work published in the "Legend"; leave the charging of copies up to the editor; and sponsor a contest for outstanding stories and poems.

CBS NEWSCASTER HARRY REASONER

... was the main speaker at the annual alumni Banquet held Friday night. His topic was "Reporter on the Move." Mistress of Ceremonies for the dinner was Nancy Kulp, 1943 FSCW graduate.

At Homecoming Banquet

Keys Tap Karl, Robinson, Rogers

By LYNN BISSLAND
Flambeau News Editor

Gold Key men's leadership honorary of FSU awarded an honorary membership to Rep. Fred Karl of Volusia County and Dr. W.W. Rogers, history professor, Friday night at the annual Homecoming Banquet in Tully Gymnasium.

Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary, selected Miss Sarah Robinson, assistant dean of women, as honorary member at the same time.

Nancy Kulp of Hollywood, a FSCW graduate of 1943 and now appearing on the Beverly Hillbillies program on CBS-TV, was toast mistress for the banquet, encompassing 1,500 students, faculty and alumni.

Harry Reasoner, a CBS newsman from New York City, spoke on "Reporter on the Move" as the guest speaker.

Gold Key President Joe Rogers made the presentation to Karl for "his integrity and ability as a state representative and for his devoted service to the Florida school system."

Karl received his law degree at Stetson University in 1949 and was first elected to the Legislature in 1956. In 1959, 1961 and again in 1963 he was selected as among "the 10 most outstanding legislators" in the St. Petersburg Times poll. Karl, a leader in education and re-apportionment, was named by his fellow legislators as one of the top three in 1963. He is presently running for Governor in the 1964 primaries.

Rogers, also tapped for honorary membership, is a native of Alabama and received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Auburn. His Ph.D. was from the University of North Carolina. He came to the FSU campus in 1959 after two years as director of the FSU Bootstrap Program at Moody Air Force Base.

"He has received recognition for his work with students both in and out of the classroom," spoke Rogers in reading the citation to Dr. W.W. Rogers. "He was recognized in April of this year for his contributions to Florida State, when he was awarded the Coyle Moore Award for excellence in teaching."

Beth Ann Legate, president of Garnet Key, read the citation awarding honorary membership to Miss Robinson.

Miss Robinson came to FSU in Sept. of 1959 as head counselor to day students and adviser to Panhellenic and sororities. In July, 1963, she was appointed assistant dean of women.

She received B.M.E. and M.M. degrees while at Northwestern University. Before coming to FSU she taught music at Hendrix College in Arkansas and was choral director of New Hanover High School in north Carolina. She was also assistant profesoor of music at Wesleyan, Macon, Ga.

Alumni Association President Edward M. Eissey recognized 14 classes which returned for a reunion Homecoming Weekend.

Governor Farris Bryant was on the program to welcome guests and Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell spoke briefly.

Hoffman Urges Alumni Support

Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, professor of Spanish, was chosen as FSU's Distinguished Professor of the Year.

Speaking in Longmire Lounge to the faculty and Alumni as Homecoming alumni lecturer, she said, "If you would be a true friend or benefactor of a university, give to it, not that your opinions may prevail, but in order that the truth may prevail. Sever it, not to promote your own ideas, but in order that there may be ideas."

In a speech at the alumni breakfast, she talked about the collapse of values in the world today, and asked alumni for a very special and generous kind of loyalty.

"The alumni," she said, "in addition to helping establish better public school education in their connuities of offering money for scholarships, and making contributions to foundations, can help immeasurably by interpreting the role of the university to the public. They must do so, least the university be brought down to mediocrity.

"A university is a school of intellectual leadership; it is an institution dedicated to seeking the truth, and once found, to be guided by it. The money changers must be kept out of the temple of knowledge. It is better that a university should be a museum of antiquities than that it become a mere corner of the market place.

"Challenge to ideas is not an evil in a university. It is a by-product and symptom of its proper spirit and genius.

"It is ironical that it is now our destiny to live in a day when every hour the orbits of encircling man-made satellites survey the universe anew, and painfully remind us the same space-ship, itself a lesser satellite of a minor sun in the vast reaches of cosmic space, and that through our idolatries we have no moral and religious solidarity as a human family.

We share no common home of meaning and value, or common horizon of purpose which can give shape and direction to the world culture, which is now a condition of human survival."

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the student body as a whole or the administration of the Florida State University. Editorials represent the opinions of the editorial staff of the Flambeau with the initials of the writer following the editorial. Columns and letters to the Editor reflect only the opinion of the writer.

Cynicism Threatens

Harry Reasoner, in his talk Friday at the Homecoming Banquet, imparted a number of serious thoughts to an essentially frivolous occasion.

His topic, "Reporter on the Move," is one at which he is an expert, for as a CBS television newsman, he has traveled from one hot spot to another throughout the nation. He noted that he became more than ever a "fervent American" when he witnessed the successful solution of difficult problems.

He expressed alarm, however, that what he called the threat of cynicism should be fatal to the nation. The prevalence of an attitude that nothing is real, that everything and everyone can be manipulated, can wreck our future.

"There should be more politicians with just one face," Reasoner declared. There is a great discrepancy between news that is discussed in private and that which is revealed in public; today's political leaders seem afraid to voice opinions that do not correspond to the latest poll findings.

"Why not be cynical? That's the way life is," one might say. But just as the giver of a bribe is equally guilty with the receiver, those who encourage cynicism are equally guilty with the manipulator.

When one stops to think at how Reasoner's "threat of cynicism" has encroached upon every level of American living, the cause for alarm is glaringly obvious. This attitude is not confined to national politics, nor even merely to politics. Cynicism is a present aspect of daily liing, even at FSU.

Students beliefs that Student Government leaders are in office for personal gains rather than to serve the student body; that students "don't matter" to the administration; that the newspaper uses (or is used by) its position to unjustifiable ends: these are all evidences of cynicism. That there may be times when this cynicism is justifiable does not make its prevalence any less a threat to the future of these phases of FSU life.

As Reasoner reminded, "Just remember, no respectable public servant always serves YOU."

U.S. Gratified By Anti-Diem Revol

"Sink or swim,/ We're stuck with Diem." Variations of this short rhyme were consistently heard in the State Department through the summer months and early fall, that is until All Saints Day, November 1. The successful revolt which began on this day, headed by the military junta of General Duong Van Minh and General Tran Van Don, has already been recognized by the US and the West. Full military and economic aid has been restored to the South Vietnamese government, and in the midst of changing governments, another crisis in American diplomacy and foreign policy has been passed.

A question continually being asked is what was the role of the US in the overthrow of the despotic Ngo Dinh family. President Diem, his brother and special assistant Ngo Dinh Nhu and his petite "Dragon Lady" sister in law, Madame Nhu, were all giving US officials more than a slight headache. The US found it was backing a totalitarian regime at a cost of 1.5 million dollars a day to fight the Viet Cong Communists while this regime was not doing its best to win the war.

If this was not enough to sour US attitudes to Diem, new restrictions on religious freedom in South Vietnam resulted in the now famous self-sacrifices of Buddhist monks. Police state repressive measures were used by the aloof and isolated Diem in jailing protesting students and professors. A power - hungry Madame Nhu was also imposing her tastes on the people, banning twist and cha - cha records and disallowing the wearing of tight fitting dresses and slacks. To querries about how she felt about the Buddhist suicides by fire she responded that she would be glad to see more of these "barbeques."

Even the persuasiveness of a Henry Cabot Lodge could not induce Diem to correct these ills with even the slightest social reforms. Therefore, economic and military sanctions were enforced by the US. Rather than bowing to the US pressure, Diem surreptitiously began negotiations with the North Vietnamese, or at least refused to deny that such negotiations were going on.

A revolt then broke out and one observer noted that three batallions of Marines had "spearheaded the revolt... for eighteen hours" in Saigon. Apart from actual physical participation, the exact extent of US activity in the covert planning stages (which were noticeably well drawn) has not as yet been uncovered. As a minimum, it is apparent that the take over had at least the unofficial blessing of the US. Otherwise, how could Diem go undefe[illegible] while as Madame Nhu tensely as[illegible] "Do you mean 16,000 Americ[illegible] troops are guarding the US e[illegible] bassy?"

The events in Vietnam pose a [illegible] questions for us to ponder:

FSU Now Is Country Club

With the addition of a doorman to one of the off-campus eateries, FSU nas established itself once more as a Country Club school.

Just imagine, for an eleven cent coke, you get an un-liveried doorman to admit and exit you! What price elegance? It's not the Stork Club for sure, but it gives the air of being elite and oh-so-selective. A real status symbol as well as an added attraction; you can eat in Southern comfort with all the trimmings if you can forgive the color of the butler.

Oh, and you might get in a few sly words to those picketers who look like they just came off stage from "The Threepenny Opera." These are not the singing type, if it makes any difference. How long until the two other off-campus restaurants invest in elegance? This may revive the gentility of eating out, who knows?

While Sandy Turner stews over the COP Mandate, this columnist is still stewing from a recent "cop order" (University Police type) to handover ID, driver's license, any other pertinent documents (birth certificate, passport, Bible School diploma), give real and present address, tell somebody else that you commute 106 miles per day to attend FSU, just answer the questions, shut up, and come with me to the police station, and shut up three more times, and what were those two girls' names?

Ther ar explanation and a pleasant chat with the officer in charge, after another shut up and come in by the "arresting" officer.

It's all cleared up now, however, if you can stand or you head and not congregate or have a friendly chat on "Freedom Hill" by the Psychology Building, you can in safety and without fear co-ordinate the picketers. The state of seige is now over, return to yourhaunts in peace.

ATO-DG Float Takes Top Place In Parade

By CHARLES DeFOOR
Flambeau Staff Writer

Alpha Tau Omega and Delta Gamma took top honors in the float competition last Friday with their "Pot-of-Gold" float.

The ATO-DG float had a rainbow with its "potful of gold" being thrown to the crowds by a ring of beautiful girls. The gold was symbolic of the money which FSU needs to expand.

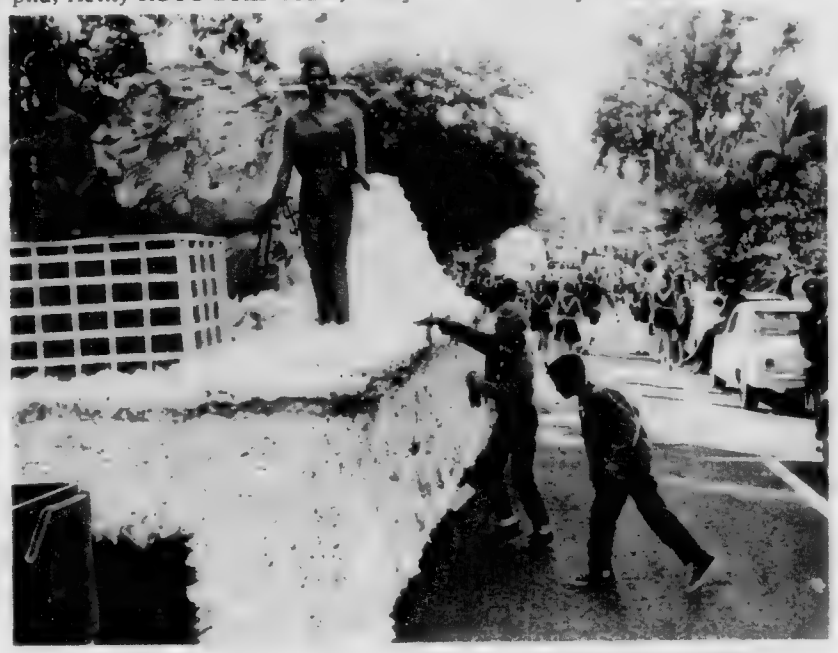
"Greater Goals For Seminoles" was the theme of the floats, which were judged by Ralph N. Hurst, Mrs. W. E. Woodward and Miss Ann Kirn.

The float judged most beautiful was Zeta Tau Alpha and Kappa Sigma's on a dragon theme with striking colored foil. Most Humorous was SAE-ADPi's portrayal of a fat woman "Holding That Line."

The most original float was Gamma Phi Beta and Alpha Kappa Psi's entry. In it, a bowling ball was knocking down pins labeled "Wolfpack," "S.E. Conference."

Most Appropriate to the Theme was the Lambda Chi Alpha-Alpha Chi Omega float, which pictured the stairway to success and the seal of the University.

Chi Omega and Theta Chi got an honorable mention for their huge dog chewing a bone (N.C. State).



The parade was led by the ROTC color guard. President Gordon W. Blackwell followed with honored guests, including Governor Farris Bryant, Rep. Fred Karl, Attorney General Richard Erwin, State Comptroller Ray Green, U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper, Sen. Wilson Carraway and members of the Board of Control.

They were followed by eight members of the FSCW Class of 1913, and the Alumni Officers: Charles F. Mixon, Jr., of Tampa, president; Mrs. Randall Chase of Sanford, secretary; and Grady W. Rea, Jr., of Tallahassee, treasurer.

Next came the Student Government officers, the Marching Chiefs, and the Cheerleaders. The 1962 Queen's Car followed with the Queen, Mrs. Kitty Miller Risenburg of Chapel Hill, N.C., and the 1963 Queen's Float.

Here is the order for the remainder of the parade:

Alpha Xi Delta and Tau Epsilon Phi, Sigma Kappa and Pi Kappa Alpha, Army ROTC Drill Team, Army ROTC Brigade Car, National Society of Scabbard and Blade Car, Kappa Delta and Kappa Alpha, Leon High School Band, Chi Omega and Theta Chi, Garnet Key and Gold Key (car), Phi Mu and Sigma Nu, Politics Club (car), Alpha Phi and Alpha Phi Omega, James Rickards Junior High School Band, Delta Sigma Pi and Phi Chi Theta, FSU Dames Club (car), Alpha Delta Pi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, FSU Collegiate 4H Club (car), Pi Beta Phi and Pi Kappa Phi, Florida High School Band, Alpha Omicron Pi and many others.

GOLD FROM THE END OF THE RAINBOW
... attracts these two young boys as the ATO-DG float goes by leaving a trail of dollar bills in its wake. The float won the over-all prize as best in the parade.

Keitt To Lead Biology At Nine

"Biology at Nine" will feature Dr. George Keitt, Dept. of Biological Sciences, for tonight's lecture at 9 p.m. in 228 Conradi.

Dr. Keitt will address students and faculty on "Growth Regulatory Mechanisms in Plants--Some Concepts and Problems."

Bob Reeve, host for the series, said the lectures "...provide an opportunity for biology 105 students to meet and learn about research studied from a professional biologist carrying out investigations in this subject area."

Freshmen Flunkies

There will be a meeting of all freshman women living off campus and interested in Freshman Flunkies tomorrow night at 7 p.m. in Room 411 Longmire.

Any student interested may contact Margaret Alison in Jennie Murphree.

Minstrel Singers Perform Tonight

The New Christy Mintrel Singers, the "Big Band of Folk Singers," will perform in Westcott Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m.

The performers, sponsored by the Tallahassee Jr. Women's Club, have four albums to their credit, including hits such as "Green, Green" and "Saturday Night."

The folk group has appeared as a regular on the Andy Williams Show and is scheduled for appearances on the Bell Telephone Hour and Grammy Awards.

All proceeds from the two hour show will help finance philanthropic projects in the community and the Big Bend area. Among these projects are an annual $250 scholarship presented to an FSU student and a $300 loan given to a worthy college student.

Tickets for the show are available until show time at the University Book Store for $2.50. Students may also buy tickets from members of the Junior Womens Club in front of Bill's Book Store all day Monday.

Modeling Board Adds 15 Coeds

RUN TO DAYLIGHT!

Vince Lombardi with W. C. Heinz illustrated by Robert Riger

In the literature of sports, "Run to Daylight!" may well become a classic. Vince Lombardi, the outstanding coach in professional football, describes a week in his life as he prepares the Green Bay Packers for an important Game. The book is a candid close-up of pro football behind the scenes, and vividly demonstrates why it has become one of the most popular sports in America.

Nine FSU seniors made their last home game a great one as the Seminoles defeated North Carolina State 14-0. Charlie Calhoun played his usual spectacular kicking and defensive game; Dave Snyder and Marion Roberts contrivuted hard runs and played great defensive games, Larry Brinkley scored the first touchdown, Bill Daly recovered the fumble which led to the first TD, Chuck Robinson, Ferrell Henry and Jerry Bruner all played a vicious game on the line. Doug Messer kicked two extra points.

The FSU defense won the game. State quarterback Jim Rossi just could not get loose. When he went back to pass, his linemen couldn't give him enough time. When he bootlegged, his interference was knocked down. N.C. State was limited to 113 yards total offense (82 yards rushing and 31 yards passing), and Rossi, who had averaged 120 yards per game, was held to only 60 yards. The Wolfpack was able to gain only nine first downs, two of which were the result of roughing the kicker penalties.

The sophomores [illegible] their share of the limelight. Maury Bibent had four good runs in the first [illegible] Seminole scoring drive of the game. Bibent is still ill and [illegible] first quarter time. Ed Pritchett came in to replace quarterback Steve Tensi. In the final minutes of the third quarter and throughout the fourth quarter Pritchett had the crowd upon their feet. Pritchett ran for 14 yards and completed five out of seven attempts through the air for 55 yards. He scored the second touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

North Carolina State Coach Earle Edwards jumped on the Ed Pritchett bandwagon. He had this to say, "I think that boy (Pritchett) is more dangerous than Tensi. He is more trouble to defend, because he runs real well. He has some pretty good

In the second period, FSU made the break which led to the winning touchdown. Quarterback Rossi sprinted around end and was hit hard by three Seminoles, with center Bill Daly recovering the ball on he Wolfpack 31.

The Seminoles scored in seven plays. Bibent covered nine yards. Dave Snyder moved three yards for the first down. With Third and five yards to go, Tensi handed off to Snyder who handed to Biletnikoff who ran 12 yards to the N.C. State 3. Larry Brinkley drove in from the one and Doug Messer kicked the extra point.

The second Seminole score, the clincher, came in the fourth quarter under the direction of Ed Pritchett. FSU had [illegible] at the Wolfpack nine, but was penalized five yards on the defense. Instead of field goal position, Pritchett called a quarterback sneak; field goal position was not needed. Pritchett drove into the end zone. Messer kicked the extra point and the score read 14-0 for the Seminoles.

FINAL STATS for the game will be released in Wednesday's issue of the Democrat. Brinkley was the leading ground gainer for the Seminoles, carrying 12 times for 55 yards in 12 carries and scoring the first touchdown of the game.

Annual Pre-Game Concert Scheduled By FSU, UofF

Florida State and the University of Florida will meet tonight in the annual Football Concert as a prelude to the FSU-Fla. game to be held during the Thanksgiving holidays.

The concert featuring the men's glee clubs of both schools will be held in the University Auditorium in Gainesville at 8:15 p.m.

The first concert of this type between Florida's Singing Gators and the FSU Collegians was set last year by directors Guy Webb of Florida and Ramon E. Meyer of Florida State for the eve of the FSU-Fla. game. This year's concert is being held early because of the holidays.

The Football Concert is divided into five parts. Each glee club will sing two groups of numbers. The program will close with the combined glee clubs, ninethy voices strong, singing a medley of FSU-UF school songs arranged by Richard D. Powell, assistant conductor of the FSU Collegians. Mr. Powell, who is a graduate student in the FSU School of Music, will conduct the combined glee clubs as they sing his "Football Medley." Mr. Guy B. Webb of the U of F music faculty is conductor of The Singing Gators, and Dr. Ramon E. Meyer of the FSU School of Music faculty is conductor of The Collegians.

The Collegians will sing "Tenebrae factae sunt" by Palestrina; "Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite" by Handel; "Coronation Scene" from Boris Godounov by Moussorgsky; "What Sweeter Music" and "As I Outrode This Enderes Night" by Halsey Stevens and three lighter selections arranged by Ollie Dale Jelle; "What Kind of Fool Am I"; "The Sound of Music"; and "Ebb Tide."

The Singing Gators will sing "Non Nobis Domine" by Quilter; "O Bone Jesu" by Palestrina; "Te Deum" by Flor Peeters; "The Boar's Head Carol" and "What Shall We Do With a Drunken Sailor" arranged by Robert Shaw; "Colorado Trail" arranged by Luboff; "Plank Round" by Leonard Bernstein, and a spiritual, "Climbin Up the Mountain."

The FSU glee club will present twelve concerts this year including performances in Daytona Beach, Ft. Lauderdale, and Miami. Under the direction of Dr. Meyer and accompanied by Harold Gray, sophomore piano major from Atlanta, the Collegians will make their first Tallahassee appearance this Friday in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m.

The Tallahassee concert will feature the Coronation scene from Mourssorgsky's opera, "Boris Godounov," three contemporary Christmas carols by Halsey Stevens, and Howard Hanson's "Song of Democracy" which based on a poem by Walt Whitman.

Both the Football Concert and the Collegians' concert in Tallahassee will be free of charge.

FSU Jaycees Open Fall Rush Tonight

The FSU Jaycees will hold fall rush tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the first floor lounge of Longmire for all interested men students.

Bill Malloy, President of the local Jaycee chapter will be present to speak.

This is the first collegiate chapter of the Jaycee Club established in Florida. It began in March of 1963. Creating a Jaycee Club composed entirely of FSU students was the brain child of Florida Jaycee Prexy Ty Tarby. He was aided by the Tallahassee Jaycees in making the initial contact with the FSU students.

From the initial meeting January 15, 1963, other meetings were held with the FSU steering committee and the extension committee headed by Jaycee Bill Malloy and composed of past officers Jim Dye, Wilson Wright and Bill Reed.

The steering committee composed of graduating seniors recommended an election of temporary officers. These officers were later ratified as permanent officers for the coming year.

This new extension of Jaycees to a club composed entirely of college students could well start a trend which could change the complexion of the national Jaycee organization.

Mike Wigelius, vice president of the FSU Jaycees stated, "The primary purpose of this new club is to provide a vehicle to hurdle the gap and ease the transition from campus extracurricular activities in the American community. By familiarizing the college student with the activities of a community service organization it is expected that they will seek out a Jaycee club at a younger age. As a direct result of this program it is expected that leadership potential will rise while at the same time the average Jaycee age will be lowered."

Present FSU Jaycee officers are Don Thigpen, president; Mike Wigelius, vice president; Vic Yates, treasurer; Don Livesey, secretary. The Board of Directors includes Rick Frost and John Brown.

FSU's Business Fraternity Seeks Outstanding Instructor

Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business fraternity, is conducting a contest to select the outstanding classroom instructor in the School of Business. Students are to make nominations beginning today at the booth in the main lobby of the Business Building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Annual Instructor Efficiency Award will be presented Sunday, Nov. 24 at the AKPsi Initiation Banquet at the Elks Dining Room. The award will consist of a 9 x 15 plaque with spaces for 10 yearly winners, which will hang in an honored place of the School of Business, and a personal memento for the winner.

The winning instructor will be selected by an impartial committee of graduating seniors of the Business School. The criteria which will be used by the committee and the students will include the following requirements:

The instructor should be thought provoking in his lectures, and have a clear and understandable presentation. He must "strive to develop and maintain a high level of student interest." The instructor should also be aware of current professional practices and have an interest in his students' welfare.

The booth will be up today and tomorrow.

Indian Dancers To "Recreate" World

BY PAT FREEMAN
Flambeau Feature Editor

Dancing is one of America's favorite pastimes, and has been ever since some character named Washington did the "Cherrytree Rag."

Today's modes of dancing (as yesterday's) bear a remarkable resemblance to some of the ritual dances perfected by such "moderns" as the Ubangi-bangi, the Watusi (sound familiar?) or the No-Akers back in the days when Darwin's swinging adolescent "Harry Ape" pounded out a beat in the primordial slush.

When Shanta Rao and her company of Indian dancers bring a one night only graduate level course in Indian dance to FSU next month, however, the audience will be seeing a dance that vies with the "Amoeba Bop"... for Indian dance goes back to the moment of creation.

The Indian God Shiva danced the world into being, stamped the ground beneath his feet, lifted the skies and drum in hand, created the oft-talked about, seldom heard cosmic rhythm ... by which the earth moves and humans live, die and are created.

Indian lore recounts how Vishnu played on his flute and caused the trees to grow, the flowers to bloom and the sounds of nature (basis of the Indian musical system) to be heard.

Thus, when Shanta Rao and her South India dancers and musicians appear in Westcott Auditorium Dec. 12, FSU'ers will have an opportunity to see just where the Surfer's Stomp really had its origin.

Indian dance is the basis of India's vast history of arts, each a composite of music-dance-drama which was supposedly created in heaven by the Gods, who were themselves artists for their own pleasure. They soon decided such a beautiful gift should be shared with all creatures, and Earth acquired ancient India dances through Bharata, the Sage, who was personally invited up to learn the arts and teach them to the world.

Bharata became an expert, and was invited back to the theater-in-the-round heaven to enact the universe. His efforts resulted in a "Big Bang" when a group of dancers decided to crash the affair. The result speculation is where the Surfer's Stomp, but one knows for sure.

The pure dance forms which Bharata learned will be similar to the ones Shanta Rao and her dancers will share (minus the demons) in Westcott.

The South India Dance Company is being sponsored by the Asia Studies Program, which has offered a first-hand acquaintance with the great living arts of theatre, dance, music and drama from the Asian countries to America for the past two years.

Shanta Rao will bring an introduction to Indian dance which both dancers of the "Big Apple" and the latest "Camel's Twist" should be able to understand and appreciate.

Called the "foremost performer of classical Indian dance" today, Shanta Rao holds the "copyright" to two "lost" forms of Indian dance, one of which was so recently discovered that India has yet to see it performed within her boundaries.

Tickets are now on sale for the performance in Room 215, History Bldg., from 1-2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Student tickets are $2.00 and general admission is $2.50.

DANCE FROM CREATION TO DOOMSDAY

. . .will be represented in dances performed by the Shanta Rao dancers from South India to be presented at FSU Dec. 12. The troupe is being sponsored by the Asia Society Performing Arts Program.

Fire Drills Are "Necessary Evil" At FSU

By AVE DEAN
Flambeau Staff Writer

An average FSU coed thinks, "what is that persistent ringing noise? Just turned off the alarm clock so it couldn't be that. Besides it's impossible for it to be morning yet. Oh, now the light dawns, a Fire Drill. Jump - out - of - bed, shoes, trench coat, close window, towel. . . (where under the sun is that towel?) So out into the cold at 2 a.m. and hope not to meet the occasional prowler who has been making himself evident lately.

Due both to constant fire drills and to checking of equipment none of the housing at FSU has had a fire of much extent. This entails the cooperation of the students and careful planning.

The women's dorms and the sororities have one practice drill and two regular fire drills per trimester. Fraternities do not have them and the men's dorms have only one practice drill.

As for fires this year, there have been three alarms. A dryer motor burned out in Reynolds and in Florida. Also Florida had some smoke escape from a fire in the incinerator room, causing an alarm.

Why are all the fire trucks in Tallahassee sent when an alarm is turned in? The Fire Department wants to take no chances. Besides this precaution, the fire chief periodically brings his entire force and goes through all the buildings in order to discover all the 'ins and outs' on campus.

Every summer all fire extinguishers are checked and refilled. As well as the fire hoses being checked for leaks and all the sprinkler heads being checked each time a room is painted. The reason the fire alarm sounds at 10 a.m. six days a week is that one time they found a clapper detached in a fire bell. (Someone wanted to sleep!)

Though insurance would restore a building and furniture, there is no coverage on clothing, and other personal property of students.

THIS IS THE WAY TO BURN A HOUSE

. . .or to show why fire drills are an integral part of every coed's life for alarms have been frequent this fall.

The University president said:

"Most of our leaders as well as our students, have their roots entrenched in Florida soil. We cherish this city, this county, this state and this nation. We recognize full well our duty to conduct ourselves as men and women who are aware of the obligations and responsibilities that we ever incur as privileges as free men in a democratic society.

"But we also desire to do what scholars have always done--to provide reasons for thoughtful leadership so that 'town and gown' can move forward peacefully together; that a free society will continue to exist long after we have passed through this state.

"At the same time, we expect the same code of conduct to be upheld by others. We expect reasonable men to disagree reasonably. I say to all who interest themselves in the Florida State University and in what we are doing here: we welcome, yes we urge you to interest yourselves in us. We seek your advice and your counsel. We want to know what you find good in what we are doing. Also, we want to know what we are doing that you find objectionable...

"Our doors are open; our minds are open; our hearts are open to all who would share with us in making the Florida State University what it can be, what it should be, and what it must be."

Blackwell asked alumni to tell people about the faculty: "You can point out that these men and women are loyal Floridians and loyal Americans who cherish the same dreams for themselves and their children as you do for yourselves and your children.

"Finally, you can provide financial support that those who come after you can enjoy an even better education. You can advise our legislators that you are willing to pay the taxes required to meet the true needs of higher education. 'Susannah' On The Road

Eighty members of the cast and orchestra will take "Susannah" on the road this week, allowing audiences in three communities to see Carlisle Floyd opera which was brought back to FSU Oct. 17-19.

It will be performed in Panama City Thursday with Ethel Donaldson in the lead role. Miss Donaldson has performed in numerous operas at FSU and was one of the finalists in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions last spring. It will be at the Civic Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

On Friday the opera will be presented in Valdosta, Ga., with Hedi Svendsen in the title role. Mrs. Svendsen has sung in many of the FSU Opera Guild productions and sang the "Susannah" role as an undergraduate at Converse College. It will be at the Ritz Theater.

On Saturday the opera will be taken to Albany, Ga., where Miss Donaldson will sing the title role. It will be at the Municipal Auditorium.

Composed nearly ten years ago by Floyd, the two-act drama gives a modern twist to the old apocryphal story of Susannah and the Elders. It is set in the Tennessee mountain country. The FSU production and the tour presentations are under auspices of the State Opera Association of Florida.

The opera was premiered at FSU in 1955 but since then has become well known and is in the repertory of the New York City Opera Co.

Pritchett Pleasing

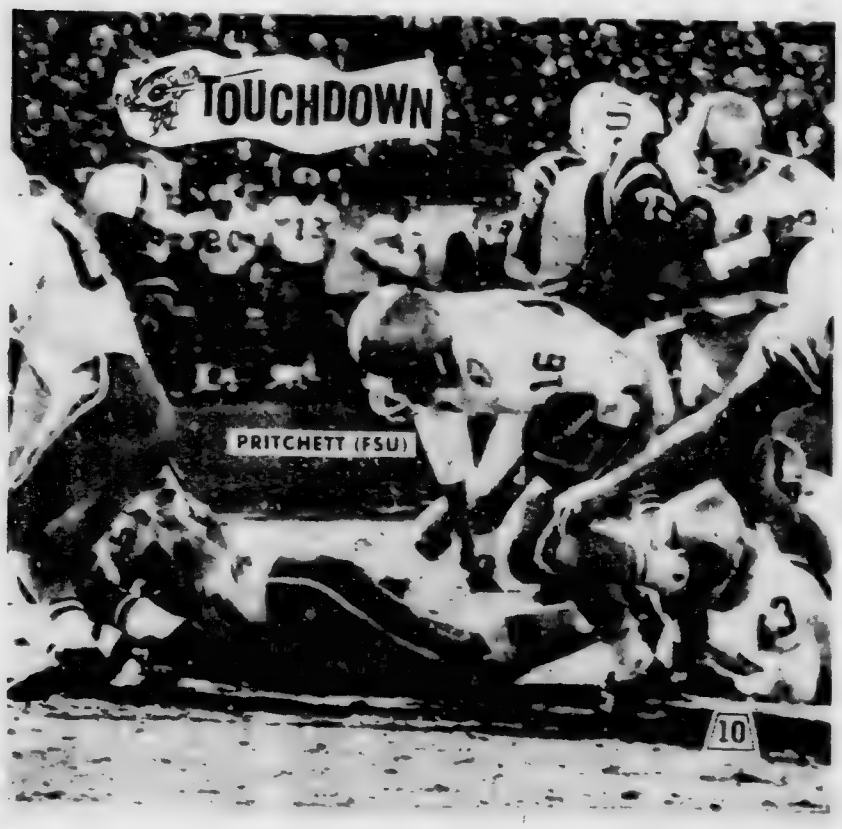
PRITCHETT

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

Head Coach Bill Peterson just can't win! A new star appears on the offensive horizon during a homecoming win, but an old stand-by key player gets racked up in the same game and is a doubtful starter in the next game, which is even tougher. Will these Seminoles ever be at full strength before a real tough game?

The new star is the brightest to shine over dull Tallahassee in a long time. For those intellectuals who spent the Homecoming weekend in a book and missed the game, the star is 6-2, 177 pounds worth of Ed Pritchett, who came in for wounded Steve Tensi in the third quarter and sent alumni diving for their programs to find out who number 16 was.

While Pritchett was carrying the team into scoring position three times, completing 5 of 7 passes for 55 yards and running for the second Tribe touchdown, Steve Tensi stood twiddling his jammed finger beside Dave Snyder, the old stand-by, who was humoring his injured knee.



Although overshadowed by towering Steve Tensi, Pritchett has always been regarded highly by the coaching staff since he came here from Decatur, Georgia's Avondale High.

Highly touted as a prospect, Pritchett quarterbacked FSU's 1961 freshmen to an undefeated season, then was moved to fullback in spring practice, 1962. A serious knee injury incurred while playing badminton kept Pritchett out of action last year, so he is a sophomore in eligibility.

He was listed as the No. 3 quarterback in this year's pre-season depth chart, but was shifted to every other backfield position, before getting his shot there against VPI.

Bill Peterson was a proud man when he paused after the tremendous homecoming victory to remark to the press, "Ed Pritchett looked better than ever at quarterback and scored our second touchdown on a 12 yard sneak. We told him to keep it in the middle of the field for a field goal attempt, but he took it upon himself to score a touchdown."

He continued, "We have three quarterbacks now, and its a good feeling."

Longhorns, Middies To Pick Cotton?

By GENE BALLARD
Flambeau Sports Staff

With the end of the college football season only three weeks away (Alabama meets Miami on Dec. 7), the Bowl games are beginning to shape up.

The big battle of the year will take place in the Cotton Bowl. Texas has cinched the host spot by winning the Southwest Conference title, and needs only a victory over Texas A & M on Thanksgiving Day to wrap up the National Championship. The most likely opponent for Texas are the Middies of the Naval Academy.

If Roger Staubach and company defeat Army this will wind up number two in the nation, which would set the stage for another one-two battle. The only catch is that Navy must defeat Army, for Naval Academy policy is not Army nor a Bowl.

In the Rose Bowl, the contracted team will be decided next week, with the winner of the Illinois-Michigan State game winning the Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl bid. On the West Coast things are not so easy. If Washington (5-4) defeats Washington State (3-5-1) they will wrap up the title and the bid. If State wins, and they have one of the best passers in the nation, then the winner of the Southern Cal (7-3--1 CLA 2-1) game will go.

In the Sugar Bowl, a rematch of Mississippi (7-0-1 and Memphis State is shaping up. The only blot on either record is a 0-0 tie which these two teams fought in the early part of the season. Ole Miss must first dispose of Mississippi State. The Bulldogs are (7-2-1) and their defeats have been to Tennessee. With Halfback Ode Burrell out, they lost to Alabama by surprise and to Memphis State by seven points. In their last two games the guest Auburn and LSU. Outside possibilities include Auburn, and Alabama.

The winner of next week's Nebraska (8-1--Oklahoma (7-1) game will send a team to the Orange Bowl. Oklahoma will have the services of Nebraska's talented quarterback Dennis Claridge may miss the game. The Ole Committee has expressed a preference for Auburn (7-1), making possible a Claridge-Sidle battle or a Grisham (Oklahoma's great fullback)-Hendrickson battle. Either way it would be a great game. Mississippi would like to go, but it is doubtful that the Rebs would be allowed, for both Nebraska and Oklahoma have colored players on their teams. Alabama (7-1) still has a shot if they beat Auburn and Miami. Georgia Tech was in the running until a defeat by Alabama last week, but if Auburn and Alabama should slip they might have a chance. Outside choice might be Pittsburgh.

As for the Gator Bowl, Bluebonnet, and Liberty bowls, there appears to be a wealth of talent available. Thus far, 13 teams have lost only one game, and 11 teams have lost only two. Of these the most likely to play in bowl games are Alabama, Auburn, Navy, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Pittsburgh, North Carolina, Penn State, Mississippi State, Texas, Mississippi, and Syracuse. Air Force (7-2) and Georgia Tech (7-3) also have fair chances.

The Gator Bowl likes the Southern teams and so will probably get Alabama, Auburn, or Tech to face another team, probably Pittsburgh if the Panthers don't go to a major bowl. The same is true of Memphis State, Nebraska, North Carolina, and Syracuse have outside chances.

Booters Bopped

Saturday morning at 10 a.m. FSU soccer team will meet the University of Florida booters in a return match. After a hard fought match, the Tribe yielded 4-3. Of three contests the Seminoles came from behind to tie the match. At one point, the score stood at 3-2 in favor of the Gators. FSU tied the match [illegible] minutes of the game on a penalty kick by Manfre [illegible] determined defense held until the final minutes when a drive [illegible] scored the goal.

Allen Drury To Speak On 'The Political Novel

Allen Drury, author of "Advise and Consent," will talk on the subject "The Political Novel: Brickbats and Bravos," at FSU's Opperman Music Hall at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

The Pulitzer Prize winning author's lecture is free and open to the public. Dr. Paul Piccard, associate professor of government, will introduce the speaker.

Drury spent some 15 years as a newspaperman covering national politics and the Senate before he wrote "Advise and Consent." He worked for United Press, Pathfinder Magazine, the Washington Evening Star and the New York Times.

A native of Houston, Drury moved to California, where he attended Stanford University and worked for the Stanford Daily. His first professional newspaper job was as editor of the Tulare Bee in California. His editorials on this weekly won for him the Sigma Delta Chi Editorial Award in 1941. Later he served as county editor of the Bakersfield (Cal.) Californian. He went to Washington in 1943.

"Advise and Consent" was published in 1959 and soon became a best-seller. It was adapted for the stage and had a successful Broadway run before its production as a motion picture.

Drury's second political novel, "A Shade of Difference," was published in 1962 and also became a best seller.

"If there is one essential purpose in this novel," Drury said, "it is to say two things concerning which both the UN and the US should put their respective houses in order, and soon.

"However justifiable in terms of the past, the racial attitudes of certain sections of the country give it an enormous handicap in the present day world.

"However justifiable in terms of the past, the sick obsession with race of far too many of the new states of Africa and Asia has brought the UN to a point very close to disaster."

Conventions and campaigns form the subject of "Capable of Honor" and he has used the opening days of the new administration to provide material for another book, "Preserve and Protect."

We Apologize

D.E. "Buz" Lukens, chairman of the National Association of Young Republicans Clubs, has reported that statements in the "Flambeau" to the effect that the Young Republican National chairman had withdrawn recognition from the Florida College Federation headed by Thomas Brightman of Winter Park, and had given recognition to a new Florida federation headed by former state chairman Tom Sisco of FSU, are erroneous.

Lukens explained that the Young Republican National Federation has chartered the Florida Federation of Young Republicans and it in turn has chartered the Florida College Federation. He made it clear that he has not withdrawn recognition from any federation nor giving recognition to any new federation.

The "Flambeau" story (Oct. 31) reported that the FSU Young Republicans Club had voted to discontinue membership in the state federation of YR clubs. This much of the report was fact. However, the reasons given for the discontinuation of membership were false.

Charges that Brightman made "libelous statements and took "leftist views" were incorrect. The "Flambeau" apologizes both to Mr. Brightman and to the State Federation of YR Clubs for any misrepresentation of facts.

Financial Office Accepting NDEA Loan Applications

By BOB MITCHELL

The office of Financial Aid is now accepting applications for National Defense Education Act Student Loans for 1964-65.

Forms may be obtained at Room 304 Longmire Bldg., Dr. James F. Carr, director of Financial Aid, said.

Applications for loans received before March 1 will receive first consideration. New applicants must have at least a 2.5 average. Because of the heavy demand for NDEA loans, special consideration shall be given to students with a superior academic background who express a desire to teach in elementary or secondary schools, and students whose academic background indicates a superior capacity or preparation in science, mathematics, engineering, or a modern foreign language.

The NDEA makes it unlawful for any member of an organization under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1960 to apply for, use or attempt to use any National Defense Student Loan funds.

As of October 31, 1962, the following organizations were registered under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950: Communist Pary of the United States of America, California Emergency Defense Committee, and Connecticut Volunteers for Civil Rights.

Winters Tonight Series To Host

Dr. Stephen S. Winters, associate professor of geology, will give the last lecture series sponsored by Mortar Board tonight in Opperman Hall at 7:30.

"Reflections from a Rocky Past," will be the topic of his lecture, as he regards life as a geologist, as a professor and as a human being.

As associate professor of geology, Winters has done research primarily involving the main mountain regions of the US, and he was an engineering aide in the US Geological Survey.

During the summer of 1961, he engaged in research and teaching in the Republic of Panama. He has also served as director of the FSU Science Camp.

PART OF THE PROCEEDS

. . . from the FSU-UF football game will be used in the University Scholarship Program. Mr. Lee Young, president of the Capital City Kiwanis Club, is shown presenting a check to Dr. James Carr. The money will be used with other funds to make available approximately $11,000 in the United Student Aid Fund to FSU students.

Drama Club Play To Open Tonight

The Florida High Drama Club will present Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" tonight through Saturday.

The play will begin at 8:15 p.m. each night in the Florida High School Auditorium. Anyone arriving late will be asked to exchange his ticket for another night's performance because of the nature of the play, according to Stan DeHart, director.

Tickets are being sold at the Florida High Ticket Office at 60 cents for Florida High students and all children under the age of 12. They are priced at $1 for the public. They will be available at the door on the evenings of performance.

The play is double cast by director DeHart because "double casting may be the answer to giving students with crowded schedules an opportunity to participate in dramatic activity."

Selected as cast members for the performance on Wednesday and Friday nights were: Alicia Smith as Amanda; Eddie Levine as Tom; Carol Hopke as Laura; and Bob Parrish as Jim.

Cast for Thursday and Saturday nights includes Dianne Janes as Amanda; Mike Brown as Tom; Bertha Pepper as Laura; and Bobby Williams as Jim.

Indian Dance Tickets

Tickets for the Shanta Rao Indian dancers are now on sale in 215 History Bldg. from 1-2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Cost for students will be $2 and $3 for the general public. All seats are reserved.

Conservatism Not Answer To Communist Domination

Recently I was reading a pamphlet from a down-trodden organization on campus that is combatting tremendous well organized and financed opposition. Their only resources are "youth, enthusiasm, faith in the future of our nation and and an understanding of the great issues which face us." Now who can resist joining an up-coming organization which is fighting against such tremendous odds.

In the booklet's own words, we are "bucking a tremendous Liberal opposition which is well financed and has the experience of almost thirty years of activity among the youth of our nation. Our resources, when pitted against the massive liberal establishments, seem almost negligible in terms of finances and facilities. However, we have a great advantage over the liberals--a dynamic philosophy which is capturing the imagination of American youth. Liberalism--stemming from socialistic theory and often serving at an un-witting handmaiden of Communist subversion"...

Just what dynamic philosophy is this? YAF, naturally.

The YoungAmericans for Freedom, like most ultra-conservative groups, see communism lurking in every corner, and they feel that conservatism is the only answer to the communist threat. I personally see just the opposite. If conservatism of the YAF brand were to replace liberalism in most of the free world, I feel that the communists would make great gains. The countries which have the greatest trouble with communism are usually the ones which are the most conservative.

The countries in Latin America which are having a great deal of trouble are the ones in which wealth is held in a few hands. But of course it must be realized that the people with the wealth had the initiative and ambition to inherit it. The Alliance for Progress urges the redistribution of land, but it hasn't been very successful in this area. Conservatism usually represents the views of the minority elite. This gives the communist a great dissatisfied majority in which to spread their seeds of discontent.

I would like to know just how conservatism is going to wipe out the threat of communism. AuH20's answer is going to be something like if the communists don't do as we say simply wipe them out (The Bomb). There is diplomacy and the art of compromise in its highest form! But since God sanctions all that the conservatives advocate....Naturally God belongs to the John Birch Society and the YAF, supports the Americanism Bookstore, is a Protestant, is in favor of the oil-depletion allowance, and is there any doubt that He is white--in other words, he is a 100 percent American.

Keith Garner

Russians Control U. N.

The United Nations Charter, with parts copied directly from the Soviet Constitution, was written by two State Department officials who were later shown to be Communists.

Their names are Alger Hiss and Leo Pasvolsky.

Furthermore, Alger Hiss and Molotov made a secret agreement whereby the post of Chief of the U.N. Military Staff Committee would be permanently held by a Moscow Communist. This is particularly important because with a Moscow Communist as head of the most important U.N. post, they are in a position to stop any U.N. interference with Communist plans (101 vetoes to date) and are able to keep the Red Commanders fully informed of all the plans and movements of the U.N. forces.

This is what happened in Korea. General MacArthur had to submit all his battle plans to the Chief of Staff in Washington. They in turn had to submit it to the U.N. Military Staff Committee with Arkady Sobelov in charge. Of course, Sobelov then promptly relayed it to Moscow; who in turn informed the Red Commanders in North Korea.

There is more to this revolting story and I shall cover it in a future article. Let it suffice to say for now that five of our greatest fighting men--Gen. Clark, Gen. Van Fleet, Gen. Stratemeyer, Admiral Joy and Lt. Gen. Almond, while testifying before the Jenner Committee in 1954 summed it up in these words: "We were required to lose the Korean War" and the U.N. was the reason why.

'Lucky 238' Vote Twice

Are you one of the "lucky 238," or are you one of the "unlucky 750"? If you are a girl and live in one of the several off-campus housing units you are one of the "chosen ones" which means that your vote counts twice as much in Senate as any other student's that lives off campus.

The source of this inequity is the amendment attached to Senator Mack McKinnon's bill doubling the size of the day student delegation in Senate from 4 to 8. With 6,000 day students that means approximately one Senator for every 750 voters. This is still unfair compared to other precincts, but to add insult to injury the very committee that supposedly was in the process of correcting some of the inequities in the present apportionment made a special effort to defeat the original purpose of the bill, i.e., equal representation.

No reason was given for the amendment when it was brought before Senate other than that these girls lived under approximately the same rules as the girls in the dorms. A glance at the Elections and Appointments Committee shows six women and two men. Of the 6,000 people under question two-thirds of them are men. Over half of the Sixteenth Senate is female. There were more men than women registered at FSU last year. Simple logic using the aforementioned facts shows that a woman's vote counts more than a man's at FSU. Why has the committee overlooked or ignored these facts? Before such a move is allowed to come into effect many more questions need answering. Maybe a guest column in the Flambeau is appropriate explaining the move to the students.

It seems that the Elections and Appointments Committee is determined to ignore Senate reapportionment. The committee has yet to produce any significant legislation toward correcting such gross inequities, such as there is one Senator for over 1,000 graduate students. The students of FSU have the right to demand action on Senate reapportionment. Maybe SGPresident Smith will veto the bill in hopes that the Senate will tackle the problem as a whole rather than the unwieldy pork barrel approach. It's time someone took the bull by the horns.

Crackerbarrel Crumbs: Flash from Men's Senate...Bill #1 is about to pass... it's the the sixth bill in sixteen years... it must be important. To all girls who don't like the early closing hours now in force for the dorms... go see your senators and ask them to change them... the men on the campus are behind you. Goodbye to the senate coat and tie fad... back to the fruitboots troops. Will someone please turn on the lights... it's a safety hazard.

West Ignores Masses

"The Black Man Judas... who has stepped into the imperialist master's shoes and taken on his most wicked attributes" is the common characterization of many middle class Negroes who rule in the former colonial countries and in colonies awaiting formal independence.

It is a characterization formed by the majority of their own people--the vast peasant masses of the Third World--who have suffered irreparably under Western exploitation and see little hope in the rule of a native European oriented elite which maintains itself within the social structure established by the colonial rulers.

This seething peasant population wishes to bring about a total transformation in the social conditions left as a heritage of colonialism. In China, Vietnam, Cuba, Kenya, Algeria, Brazil's Northeast and Angola, to name but a few, the majority of peasants radically react to all forms of Western bourgeois culture, a culture viewed as "sick, immoral, dishonest, and filled with hate for non-whites."

The most radical forms of Marxism appeal to these people because Western socialists and Marxists have too often ignored their problems, or supported their own country in its colonial policy in an effort to redistribute wealth among the members of the Western proletariat. Many of the points are part of the "Buchanan Thesis" which sees the civil rights struggle in the U.S. as analagous, in part, to peasant uprisings in the Third World.

Because of the lack of interest in the Third World by Western socialists, the triumph of more radical Marxists is almost assured. The peoples of these regions hate and fear their bourgeois overlords, who have been called by Frantz Fanon "a

Group Approved

To the Editor:

The FSU Students Act for Peace was approved as a campus organization November 13, by the University Student Senate. The group organized for the purpose of pursuing every peaceful avenue to establishment of world peace, law, and a universal understanding among people as opposed to militarism and its by-product war.

FSU Students Act for Peace believes that world conflicts and international differences should be resolved by peaceful processes and negotiations. That because of the destructiveness of modern weapons war has become an obsolete means which no longer serves nations or individuals as an instrument of force or means to a political end. We are not advocating surrender or annihilation, but another form of defense based on the higher principles of world law, discussion and negotiation and the principles of non-violent resistance.

We also feel that no one party being served by a run-away arms race because it increases the possibility of accidental nuclear catastrophe and promotes further military buildup on the part of the nations of the world. Also that the continued testing of nuclear devices adds to the dangers of radiation to international relations and that the ever-increasing radioactive fallout has contaminated our atmosphere to such a degree that it endangers the life and health of individuals the world over.

In order to make people aware of the importance of peace the group will hold student seminars and discussion forums. University professors and national speakers will speak at the groups' meetings.

is it me...or Jack Winter!

It's you, princess, when you have the Jack Winter look. But whoa... take a minute to learn about the subject of stretch. Because once you put yourself in Jack Winter stretch pants, you are going to get the eye test. Be darn sure you can pass. Questions. Should you wear stretch pants? What kind of figure does it take? Most all figures are flattered by stretch, whether angular, triangular, or a figure eight. Even if you have an hourglass figure where all the sand has sunk to the bottom, stretch pants can do quick subtracting. You won't need a grease job to slip in, but there's no sag, bag or bind either. Jack Winter cuts 'em just right...lean and ladylike...proportioned in your proper leg-length. So it's you and Jack Winter getting all those straight-on, slant-eyed, turn-about-face looks. You and Jack Winter causing that campus stir.

Brinkley Takes Scoring Lead

Larry Brinkley's one foot dive for FSU's first touchdown in last Saturday's tilt made him the leading Seminole scorer this season with 32 points.

Fred Biletnikoff, who caught three passes for 38 yards against NC State, upping his season total to 18 receptions for 291 yards, is second in the scoring column with 30 points.

Brinkley was also Saturday's leading ground gainer with 37 yards, boosting his total output for the season to 322.

Dave Snyder continues to lead the Seminole rushers with 465 yards worth of rushing.

If Snyder is out for this weekend, the left halfback position is up for grabs. Maury Bibent, Joe Petko, and Jim Loftin look like the top prospects to fill the vacancy.

Fred Biletnikoff's 12 yard reverse run from Snyder is the first time a Seminole flanker back has carried this season. Fred now sports a 12.0 rushing average.

A FRESHMAN CAGER PREPARES . . . FOR Friday's clash with the varsity squad in Tully Gym. The 16th annual game, which is open to the public, will feature an advantage in size for the freshman, but an edge in knowledge for the varsity members.

Freshman Prospectus IV

By MIKE BRADY

Lee Canter was a member of last year's conference - champion Tampa Plant basketball squad. As a senior guard, he averaged 13.5 points per game and snagged a total of 50 rebounds. His highest scoring punch came against a top contender, Tampa Hillsborough, when he added 22 big ones to the Plant scoring column.

Hailing from Pocatello, Idaho, Lee has resided in Tampa for the past six years. "I like it a lot there," he says. He came to Florida State on a basketball scholarship.

In addition to spending three years on the court, two of which he was on the varsity squad, Lee pitched for the Plant baseball team. Lee won the Optimist Award for being the most outstanding basketball player that he is.

Planning to "drag through" four years of FSU and major in medicine, Canter thinks the FSU campus is "beautiful, better than most college campuses I've seen. College life is different, of course, but it's not the big jump from high school that I figuered it would be. As far as the studying goes, the material is covered faster. I have to do a lot more studying. The professors are much better than they were at Plant."

Lee feels that the frosh team should win 19 of its 21 games this season. "We're in excellent condition. The coaches are good, especially on the fundamentals. There's certainly a lot more competition than there was in high school."

"I'm currently having my trouble on some of the offensive moves, mainly because I've been shooting at the wrong time."

"My years at Plant prepared me pretty good for the freshman team here, especially on defense. I'd say the weakest point in my high school basketball background was the conditioning. Right now I'm in average shape for the oncoming season, which about all I ever was in high school."

When asked how the frosh cagers are improving at the present time, Lee replied, "We've played the varsity seven times and beaten them twice. We're pretty proud of ourselves."

AUBURN HEAD COACH RALPH JORDAN LOOKS TO FSU....

Frosh Face Cagers Friday

Friday night, the 22nd, Head Coach Bud Kennedy will unveil the 1963-64 edition of the Seminole basketball team as the varsity takes on the freshman squad for the 16th annual freshman - varsity clash on the floor of Tully Gym.

Kennedy foresees a "real good game. The score will not be indicative of the relative strengths for we have only worked with the freshmen since October 15 while the varsity has had three or four years to pick up our patterns."

Kennedy continued, "The varsity is usually a little better prepared and will have knowledge on their side, while the freshmen will have the size advantage over them.

Rifle Team

The Army ROTC Rifle Team of Florida State University climaxed their Homecoming Weekend by defeating the Rifle Team from Spring Hill College, Mobile, Ala. FSU scored 1234 out of a possible 1500 points. Spring Hill scored 1181 out of 1500.

The high man for the Homecoming Match was Charles E. Holmes of Jacksonville with a score of 264 out of a possible 300 points.

Goldwater Leads In YAF Poll

Results of the presidential straw vote taken on November 5 by the Young Americans for Freedom showed a narrow margin between J. F. Kennedy and Barry Goldwater.

Total votes cast were 971. Kennedy received 455 for 46.9% of the votes. Goldwater received 483 for 49.6 .

The remaining 33 votes were cast as write-in votes. Among those receiving votes were State Sen. Charles Johns, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Gov. George Romney, Adali Stevenson, Harry S. Truman, Henry C. Lodge and Tom Sisco.

'Children' Panel To Give Talk

"Home Life and Trends of Children in Tallahassee Today" is the topic of a panel discussion to be held at a meeting of the Tallahassee Branch of the American Association of University Women at 8 p.m. tonight in the lower lounge of Tallahassee Federal.

The panel will include Mrs. Pat Vance, case worker for the Children's Home Society of Florida, who helps to place adopted children; Wayne Emerg, chief counselor for the Leon County Juvenile Court; Sheriff Bill Joyce of Leon County; Harold Hunter of the Florida State University School of Social Welfare, specializing in juvenile delinquency prevention; and Dr. Nancy Douglas, assistant professor of human development at FSU, who teaches in the campus nursery school. Moderator will be Mrs. Nona Goodson of the FSU Home and Family Life Department, whose specialty is child development and family relations.

Appointment Restriction Bill Defeated By Student Senate

By JANE FRANZINO

Student Senate defeated a bill yesterday attempting to limit the power of the student body president in appointments to vacancies occuring in the elected offices.

Failing to reach necessary the two-thirds majority of those senators present and voting, senate votes tabulated 27 voting for the bill and 17 voting in opposition. The required ...ority was 29.

Chief opposition to this bill was stated by Senators Ed Scott, Lyman Fletcher and Men's Vice President Frank Ryll.

"The passage of this bill will give student government its first step backwards in seven years," stated Ryll.

"Our student government is patented after the federal system of government which accounts for a system of checks and balances. It is the proper role of the senate to approve or turn down presidential appointment. This is the proper place for a check on the presidential appointive power," Ryll concluded.

Senator Merting, sponsor of the bill, stated that the bill "provided a nominating committee whose candidates were judged solely on qualifications."

Merting also stated that "the bill will come up before Senate again in the near future."

"I think the senate made a very intelligent decision in defeating this bill. Its passage would have meant a serious disruption in the system of checks and balances in student government," said President Johnny Smith at the conclusion of the meeting.

Another bill limiting the number of senators to be elected to senate to 50 was passed. There was sharp objections to this bill also because of the approaching reapportionment of the senate.

Secretary of Senate, Pam Cornely, read a letter announcing her formal resignation from this post due to her proposed entrance into medical school. This resignation will be effective in two weeks.

Senator Larry Gonzalez, chairman of the promotional film of FSU, stated the importance of this film, and elaborated on the worth and necessity of this film to Florida State. He stated that it was especially vital for the students of FSU to understand the purpose of this film in influencing taxpayers and other persons of importance to FSU.

Gonzalez further stated that work had been done by the Administrative Promotional Committee through beginning the production of this film and that a flexible script had been already written. Any student with a speical interest in this film should contact Senator Gonzalez.

DORM BILL

A bill establishing inter-dormitory council was passed unanimously in a brief meeting of Men's Senate last Thursday.

The bill was introduced by Senator Gene Stearns, and sponsored by Senators High McElyea, Luther Beauchamp, Bruce Robinson and Pete Dowling.

Under the limitations of the bill, the inter-dormitory council derives jurisdiction directly from the Office of the Dean of Men and the Men's Senate over all the men's residence halls, including those to be built in the future.

The council would function as an advisory council to the Office of the Dean of Men in such matters as the personal, social and academic growth of the dorm residents and would also hear all disputes involving the residence halls collectively or individually.

Members of the council will be appointed by the president of each resident hall. Each hall will be represented by three members in the council. The presiding office will rotate among the dormitories, beginning with Smith Hall.

Honor Court Tries Six; All But One Found Guilty

Honor Court met last week to try six cases involving alleged plagiarism, stealing, illegal use of I.D. card and food plan card.

A junior was found guilty by Honor Court of a violation of the honor code (plagiarism), and was suspended from school, with eligibility to apply for re-admission in Jan., 1964. The decision was upheld by the Administrative Discipline Committee.

A freshman found guilty of stealing was put on honor court probation for the remainder of the trimester. The student is then to withdraw and will be eligible for re-application at a later date. This decision was also approved by the Administrative Discipline Committee upon furhter hearing.

In another case involving theft, a senior admitted stealing a billfold. Honor Court moved for immediate suspension with eligibility to re-apply in Jan., 1964. The decision was upheld by the Administrative Discipline Committee.

A third case of stealing involved a freshman student who was found guilty and given one trimester of honor court probation. The Administrative Review Committee approved the decision.

Another freshman was charged with deliberate deception in the illegal use of an I.D. card. The student was found not guilty on a technicality, but received an honor court reprimand to be placed on the record for gross negligence in allowing the I.D. card out of the student's control under circumstances which would permit its illegal use. The Administrative Discipline Committee approved the decision.

A sophomore was found not guilty of a charge of deliberate deception in the alleged illegual use of his food plan card. The Administrative Discipline Committee approved the decision.

Advertising Fraternity Celebrates Anniversary

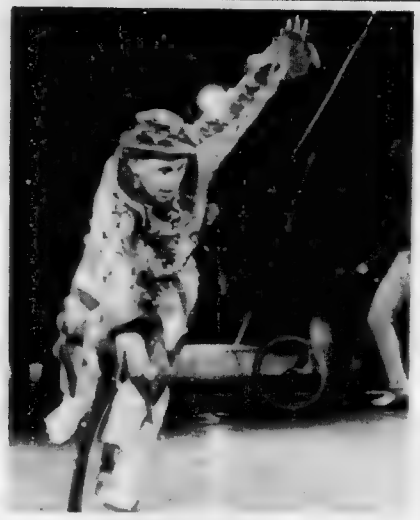
Alpha Delta Sigma, National Professional Advertising Fraternity, is celebrating its 50th Anniversary this week.

A special program commencing at 8:30 tonight in the Starry Conference Room, School of Business will present the 18 best TV commercials of 1962 on film. All interested students may attend.

Pledges are carrying sandwich boards around campus, advertising local merchants; prospective members must solicit a business firm, sell the board, design and make it, and wear it around campus for two days. Invitation to membership is open to all male students interested in advertising and professional men already in the field.

The 50th anniversary pledge class of FSU's Elon Borton chapter is especially significant. Roger Stake, Assistant Director of the Florida Development Commission, and Joseph Ressa, Advertising Manager of the Tallahassee Democrat, will be initiated. Student pledges are Gary Douglass, Pat Fuller, John Morgan, Mike Mullins, Sam Rawls, Richard Sanders, Robert Shalley, Charlie Stone and Gary Wakeman.

ADS was founded in 1913 at the University of Missouri. There are 51 active chapters. Professor Richard Joel of FSU is the Southeastern Regional Vice President.



Participating merchants are the Holiday, University Esso, the Fountain Restaurant, Nic's Toggery, Quaker House, Pike's Studio, Cities Service, Pocket Billiards #2, Gilgers, Mike's Texaco, Chanelo's and the Talem.

Alliance Francaise

Monsieur Maxime Vitu, attache at the Miami office of Tourism of the French Government, will speak tonight at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Title of his address will be "France 1963."

The speech will be given in French. Anyone interested in hearing Vitu and in affiliating with the FSU organization of the Alliance Francaise is invited to attend. A reception will follow the lecture.

FSU Circus May Go To Europe

By ELLEN THOMPSON
Flambeau Feature Writer

When most students think of a Physical Education course, they seldom (if ever) think of performing before thousands of people, or of including a trip to Europe as part of the department's program (somewhere between exercises and the showers).

Several FSU'ers who optimistically enrolled in a PE one hour credit course under the heading of an individual sport - Circus, may have just such an opportunity.

There is a good chance that the nationally known "Flyin' High" FSU Circus may take a trip to Europe. It all started a few years ago when they did a show for a CBS Sports Spectacular. Following the successful showing, CBS suggested the troupe do a show in a more scenic setting -- say Europe, for example.

FSU Circus members wholeheartedly agreed. (After all, it would be an educational opportunity for the 30 performers who would make the trip if plans became definite.

Director of Circus, Coach "Ad" Gilbert, stated, "I can't say we definitely are going. I am very optimistic and hope things work out so that we can go. However, we are still speculating."

The FSU Circus began in 1948, under the direction of Jack Haskin. Since then, it has toured most of the southeastern states, its reputation increasing. The most difficult feat boasted by the student circus is that of the triple somersault, performed by Adrian Catarzi, the twelfth person in the world to successfully complete the near impossible task.

Practice starts in September and runs through the school year. Many students take part simply because of an interest in the big top life. However, they may take a course in Circus and get university credit for it. Coach Gilbert considers Circus an extracurricular activity and would rather have students take part because they enjoy it.

This year, the Circus performed in Melbourne on Oct. 5 and did a show in Perry Oct. 19. They plan to go to Panama City Nov. 23 and to Orlando near the end of February.

Last summer the Circus was employed by Calloway Gardens in Pine Mountain, Ga. They did nine shows a week for 11 weeks, and hope to return there again next year for a repeat performance.

Circus is financed by Student Activities fees and from ticket sales of Circus shows. Coach Gilbert would like to see a more stable plan. "Dependence on gate receipts and performances guarantees tends to cause the activity to become commercialized."

Students must have a 2.5 average to participate in Circus. Grades as well as the will to work must be a little above average before students can afford so much time away from campus. They should also possess a little "stoicism."

There is much "dirty work" involved in Circus. The students do everything from setting up stages, (the ladies' job), to moving all the equipment (a man's task). Coach Gilbert feels "no performer should work on a piece of [illegible] he knows how it [illegible] way to know how it [illegible] put it up yourself."

Cavalier, Cotillion Are Dancers

By BETTY LYNN GRISSOM
Flambeau Staff Writer

Although Cavaliers and Cotillion are often thought of as one organization, they are two different groups that work closely together in many areas.

Cavaliers is a National dance fraternity, organized for the purpose of developing and recognizing outstanding male dancers on the FSU campus. It promotes better dancing skills among students by conducting open dance lessons and sponsoring campus wide dances. The Beta chapter of Cavaliers was established on campus in 1950.

Officers for the 1963-64 year are: President, Richard White; Secretary - treasurer, Eddy Mancino; and pledge trainer, Bruce Fisher.

Cotillion, like Cavaliers, is a National dance honorary. It is open to all FSU women students. Along with the Cavaliers, Cotillion conducts open dance lessons in the student center at the beginning of the fall and spring trimesters. Lessons begin four weeks before actual tryouts and are held every Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Women who try out for Cotillion are judged in the categories of ballroom slow dance, swing and cha-cha-cha. These are also the areas in which male dancers are tested. Along with dancing ability, the women must possess good posture, a neat appearance and demonstrate ease in meeting people.

Cotillion's new officers for 1963-64 are: President, Sara Lu Mackin; Vice president, Randia McGregor; Secretary, Della Rodriguez; Treasurer, Lynn Colvin, and social chairman, Helen Drake.

Recently Cavaliers tapped 10 new members and Cotillion tapped 16 new members.

Together, Cavaliers and Cotillion usher at dance programs at the university and annually sponsor a Valentine dance. The dance lessons they give twice a year are not solely for those interested in becoming members of these two groups but for anyone who wishes to gain helpful tips on how to improve their style of dancing.

What Will Man Find To Do With 110-Year Life Span?

What will man do with his spare time when the average lifespan is 110 years?

An FSU social work professor, Dr. Daivd L. Levine, says that man in the future may have 35 to 45 years of "golden years" after retiring. Levine says medical laboratories are reporting that the lifespan of the future, if uninterrupted by accident or unusual stress, may be averaging 110 years.

He says that even though man has been taught through the years to work, work, work, there is something to be said for play.

His thoughts appear in the October issue of "Age Wise," a publication of The Florida Council on Aging, in an article entitled "Creative Activity: Challenge to Later Years!" He says:

"Play itself may be the elaboration of what was once essential activity, work, as we have seen with fishing. On the other hand, there is a form of play that does not grow out of a polished work skill, but rather is an activity invented to use time, requiring skill, but with no economic return. This is 'the activity directed to the attainment of a pointless objective in a difficult way.' Golf is such an activity.

"The cultivation of the arts has two forms: the producer of art and the appreciator of art. The painter may derive more intense satisfaction from his painting than the art museum spectator, but it is the enjoyment of art which is their common denominator.

"It is the enjoyment of the activity for its own sake that is the common thread between play and the cultivation of the arts.

"We have reached that point in the development of our American society where we are able to make our masses affluent. For if we look at the retirement plans of government and industry we recognize that large groups of people will be emancipated from drudgework activity.

"Freed from such work they are to be seen as the affluent class of today. Their task is to find creative activity."

The full page article appears in Volume V, No. 2 of the publication on aging in Florida. It is based on the keynote address given by Dr. Levine at the 4th annual Senior Citizens Conference held at the Greater Miami Jewish Community Centers.

A member of the FSU faculty since 1953, Dr. Levine has attended two of the National Seminars on Social Work for Aging, (Aspen, Colo., 1958 and Princeton, 1962). He holds the master's degree from University of Pennsylvania and the Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Mary Witt To Speak At English Coffee Hour

Dr. Mary Witt will discuss her experiences in Columbia on a two-year assignment with the US Agency for international Development at the English Coffee Hour in FSU's Westminster House at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Using slides as illustrations, Dr. Witt, who is an associate professor of education at FSU, will review a program of work that provided opportunities to become acquainted with places of interest in different sections of the country and some of the local customs.

During her assignment, Professor Witt worked directly with classroom teachers and children, with state supervisors and principals of normal schools, and with national educators. An important part of her work consisted of the preparation of materials in Spanish for the teaching of courses in general supervision and the social studies.

Dr. Witt said the drop-out rate was 80 per cent by the beginning of the third grade because too many rural schools and some urban ones only offered the first two years of primary education.

"Such a limited time in school does not allow them time to assimilate fundamental subjects correctly and they later become illiterates," said Dr. Witt.

Only one per cent of each 100 students reach the sixth year of secondary school. Only one tenth of one per cent finish college.

On a trip to the mountains, Dr. Witt saw a Peace Corps man working with an Indian group to build a road so they could better market their chief crop, potatoes. Dr. Witt also crossed the border into Ecuador and took pictures of street markets, beautiful churches, and landscapes.

There were two trips into jungle areas, one in a dugout canoe with an outboard motor. "The people use dugout boats much as we use cars on our streets and many children have their own little boat to go to school," she stated.

One of the most impressive things in Colombia, thought Professor Witt, was the knowledge the people had of the country's history. She said even the children knew all the places of historical interest.

Newcomers To Have Exchange

"Holiday Encore Exchange" will be the theme of the next meeting of the Newcomers Club of University Women at the home of Mrs. Richard Joel, 1510 Argonne Rd., at 8 p.m., tonight.

"Members should bring the following: 2 dozen cookies and/ or candies; one dozen cookies and one decoration idea, or one dozen cookies and one dozen candies for the 'holiday encores exchange.' Each person will take home her choice of the above selection. Please bring along a recipe or directions for making what you have brought," emphasizes Mrs. Joel. Containers for the delicacies will be provided. Paper will be needed, however, for copying recipes.

Members needing transportation may call Mrs. Paul Whipp at 385-3265.

The US Coast Guard will set up a table today at the Student Center to interview seniors interested in applying for Officer Candidate School.

Barrow Delivers Overseas Lecture

Colin Home Barrow, assistant professor of physics, will deliver the first overseas lecture in FSU's Physics Department Colloquium series.

Barrow started an exchange of colloquium speakers with nearby universities in 1961 when he became Colloquium chairman. The schools included University of Florida, University of Miami, Georgia Tech., University of North Carolina, Duke, Vanderbilt and the University of South Carolina.

Seven or eight of FSU's faculty members spoke at these universities and they in turn sent faculty to speak at FSU. Most of the subjects of colloquium addresses at FSU have been on nuclear physics, radio-astronomy, theoretical physics, upper atmosphere physics and high energy physics.

Tigers Ranked Ninth In Nation

By GEORGE GARDNER

Managing Editor "The Auburn Plainsman"

(Auburn, Ala.) When the ambitious Florida State Seminoles invade Cliff Hare Stadium Saturday to do battle with ninth ranked Auburn, they will have their work cut out for them.

Among their chief chores will be attempting to contain hard-running quarterback Jimmy Sidle, one of the leading rushers in the nation with an average of six yards per run.

In last Saturday's homecoming-spoiling 14-0 win over Georgia, Sidle again personally outgained the entire backfield of his opponents. He picked up 93 yards rushing and 82 passing to win the fabled "battle of the quarterbacks" with Larry Rakestraw. The Tigers held Georgia to minus nine yards rushing and let Rakestraw complete less than half of his passes for only 60 yards.

While trying to contain Sidle and his powerful end sweeps and options, the Seminoles must not neglect the rugged inside running of halfback Tucker Frederickson, who at 215 pounds is one of the strongest backs in the country. He has averaged 4.5 yards per carry while suffering from painful leg inkuries.

Ralph "Shug" Jordan, head coach for the Tigers, is mindful of the fine showing the independent Seminoles haye made this fall. "They certainly must have a fine team," stated Jordan, "although they have had their ups and downs. Their wins over Miami and North Carolina State were particularly impressive."

In warning his 7 win-1 loss Tigers that must be in the right frame of mind to beat FSU, Jordan said that "they (FSU) will certainly be inspired to play a team ranked as high as Auburn. Coach Peterson will have every psychological advantage and I'm sure that he will good use of it."

Coach Hal Herring, in charge of the Auburn defense, stated that "we know they have a capable passer in Tensi. "Their other quarterback, Pritchett, is a fine runner--better than Tensi and more dangerous to defense. We will have to play our defense differently, depending upon who is in there."

For the eighth time in nine games the light but mobile Tiger line will be out-weighed. According to Herring, "Florida State has a large line... they will be about 10 pounds heavier than us. However, this doesn't bother our boys--they are about used to it." He feels that the Seminoles have "good team speed... and excellent backfield speed."

Other Tiger weapons that the Seminoles must attempt to stop are Jon Kilgore, punting specialist who is leading the SEC with an average of 43.5 yards per kick. Woody Woodall, the Auburn placement kicker, has kicked 23 consecutive PAT attempts straight and true. He has hit on five field goal tries this season, while establishing a new school record with 18 thus far in his career.

Larry Rawson, one of the four native Floridians on the starting Tiger unit, is considered perhaps the best blocking fullback in the Southeastern Conference. He and Frederickson have teamed up all season to clear the way for Sidle on his "bread and butter" play, the run or pass option around end. Sidle must be considered a triple threat, since he has also pitched out t[illegible] trailing halfback with increasing effectiveness on this same basic play.

The Tiger line will be anchored by all-SEC guard Bill Van Dyke, one of the only seven seniors on the entire Plainsman squad. He will receive much defensive aid from tackles Jack Thornton and Bobby Walton, another Floridian who is filling in for injured John McAfee.

Since I was born and raised in nearby Panama City, I have always supported the independent Seminoles.

Saturday, however, I will be sitting on the other side of the field (in the pressbox) pulling for the Tigers.

Woodward Donates $3,000 To FSU

by the AI

Bill (Woody) Woodward, former FSU baseball star who signed a $50,000 contract with the Milwaukee Braves recently, donated $3,000 to FSU last week for lighting at the baseball field.

"I'm happy to have a chance to help the school," Woodward said in presenting the check to University President Gordon Blackwell, "Florida State has been good to me; and this is one way I can show I appreciate it."

Seminole Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha said of the donation, "We hope that Wood's generosity will stimulate a drive to bring night baseball to Florida State."

Woodward, 21 year old Coral Gables native, participated in the college World Series with FSU and was named a third team All-American by the NCAA last summer.

After signing with the braves, he was assigned to the Denver Club of the Pacific Coast League where he was named one of the top rookie prospects for next year, and sent up to play with the parent braves near the end of the season.

Woodward planned to finish college during his off season.

BOP Decision

Student Opinion Of 'Flambeau' To Be Determined By Poll

By MARCI ROBBINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

A student opinion poll concerning campus views toward the "Flambeau" was the chief result of the Board of Publications meeting yesterday.

A committee composed of Ben Thornal, Susan Fincher, Lana Murray and Bob Holley will work in association with the Institute of Social Research or similarly qualified group to develop a poll to be given during Trimester II to the student body. This poll will act as a guide for the Board of Publications and the editor of the "Flambeau."

Bob Holley feels that "this poll is the only way the 'Flambeau' can get an accurate idea of the student attitude toward the paper." Furthermore, Holley feels that the improvements that have been made during the past month in the "Flambeau" have been noteworthy. He "feels that if the poll is run correctly and accurately, this could be a definite aid to the paper."

A clarification of current policy was made in regard to "Letters to the Editor." All letters must be signed and give clear identification but, the editor may withhold the name of the author, upon his request.

Bill Adkison, editor of the literary magazine, "The Legend," was given permission to run a contest in the magazine after the BOP approves the making of plans for the event. The purpose of this contest will be to further interest in the magazine through the effort of student entries; prizes will be offered.

He was also permitted to use a color cover if additonal cost does not exceed $50.

Lana Murray, at the conclusion of the meeting, offered her resignation as editor of the "Flambeau," effective the end of Trimester I. She explained that she will be interning in Fort Lauderdale through most of Trimester II. She asked that the election be held Dec. 5.

Announcements will be made soon regarding the qualifications for editorship.

FSU Engraving Being Shown

Thirty-one plaster, wood and lucite engravings by Arthur Deshaies of the FSU faculty are on exhibit in a one-man show at St. Armands Gallery in Sarasota until Nov. 29.

The exhibit opened with a reception on Friday evening from 8 to 10 p.m.

Included in the exhibit are: "The Alchemists," "The Mystic" (wood engravings); "The Bull and the Vulture: Yucatan;" "A Cycle of a Small Sea" (lucite engravings); and "Cycle of a Large Sea;" "Night Sea Rider's Love;" "Woman;" "Mother and Child" (plaster engravings.

Deshaies' work is being shown concurrently in New York City at the American Federation of Arts Gallery. His graphics are included in an exhibition entitled "Mother and Child in Modern Art."

Deshaies, before joining the FSU faculty, taught at Pratt Institute in New York and at Indiana University. He has been visiting artist and lecturer at the University of Michigan, Yale University, Pratt Contemporaries Graphic Workshop in New York and Newcomb College in New Orleans.

The artist has received numerous fellowships including a Fulbright grant for painting, Macdowell Colony Fellowship, Tiffany Foundation Award for Printing and a Guggenheim Foundation Grant for printmaking.

The coffee will begin at 10:15 a.m. according to Dr. Gregg Phifer, president of the Faculty Christian Fellowship, sponsor of the event. FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell will be the speaker.

Invocation and benediction will be by Dr. Robert O. Lawton, associate dean of Arts and Sciences. Miss Betty Jane Grimm will sing with piano accompaniment by Miss Mary E. Winslow. Both are of the School of Music faculty. Dr. James C. Smith, associate professor of psychology is chairman of the coffee and vice-president of the Faculty Christian Fellowship.

How to make a '54 look like a '64.

Paint it.

See? It looks like next year's model.

And next year's model looks like last year's model. And so it goes.

VWs always look the same because VW only changes the car to make it work better, not to make it look different.

So the people who bought '63 VWs aren't nervous about what the '64s will look like. (And neither is Volkswagen.)

Volkswagen has made over 5 million cars, and they've made lots of changes.

Not enough to make you run out and buy a new car every year.

But enough to notice the difference when you do. (114 changes for '64 alone.)

In the meantime, no matter what year VW you own, you can always get parts easily; many of them are interchangeable from one year to the next.

So if you want to, you can keep your old VW running forever.

Just spray it every few years.

Old paint rides again.

FSU Opera Guild Plans 'Carmen'

"Carmen" will be the next production of the FSU Opera Guild. It will be presented Feb. 28 and 29 in Westcott Auditorium.

Auditions are now being held for the Bizet opera, which is about the tragic love story of a gypsy girl in Seville. There will be both solo and chorus roles to be filled according to Richard Collins, director of the FSU Opera Guild. The tryouts will be held Monday, Dec. 9, from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. Robert Desore will be conductor of the opera.

"Carmen" was first performed in Paris in March of 1875. In its original form it included spoke dialogue.

Militant Pacifist To Speak

The newly'organized FSU Students Act for Peace will present their first national speaker, David McReynolds, field secretary of the War Resisters League, at the Liberal Forum Sunday, 7:30 p.m., in the Unitarian Chapel.

McReynolds graduated from U.C.-L.A. with a B.A. in political science. Active in the pacifist movement snce 1949, he served as chairman of the youth section of the Fellowship of Reconsciliation in Southern California.

The pacifist led a fight to abolish compolusory ROTC there, and during the McCarthy period organized a state-wide conference for civil liberties.

He was denied classification as a conscientious objector and was arrested in 1954 for refusing induction, but later the case was dropped by the government on the basis of technical errors in its case.

In 1956 he went to New York where for several years he served as editorial secretary to "Liberation" magazine, of which he is now associate editor. In 1958 he was the Socialist Party's candidate for Congress from lower Manhattan; he is presently a member of the National Committee of the Socialist Party.

He was arrested again in 1959 during the Civil Defense protest in New York, where he was also serving as staff co-ordinator of the Civil Defense Protest Committee. In 1961 he was arrested for refusing to take shelter during the Civil Defense alert, and chose to spend 25 days in Hart Island Prison rather than pay the fine.

He has traveled extensively, speaking to student and adult audiences and appearing on radio and tv to argue for non-violence and social change.

YPSL Meeting

Due to the Thanksgiving break the Young People's Socialist League will not meet next week.

Meetings will resume the Thursday following Thanksgiving. Students who wish to subscribe to the Socialist Party paper "New America" are urged to attend the next meeting. The rate is $3 a year.

Varsity To Face Big Frosh

By BOB DENSMORE

Excitement is high as the best spirits in the town await Frosh-Varsity game which will take place in the Bowl of Tully tonight. At 7:45 p.m. the whistle will blow and the story will be told. Anticipation is high.

The Varsity, under Coach "Bud" Kennedy, will have plenty of experience going for them. In fact, all five starters are returning from last year's contenders. At the forwards will be Cal Huge, and this year's team captain, Pete Rogers. The guard slots will be handled by Pete Gonzalez and Butch Lovell.

Coach Kennedy says the vets will be in fine physical condition for the game. They have worked rather hard since the loss of Huge and Shirley. Huge had been plagued by a bad [illegible] and Shirley had been working on a bad ankle. Both have made full recoveries.

The Frosh point will be Jerry Shirley. Jerry promises to be the key position for the varsity. The veteran center, who last year had [illegible] points and [illegible] rebounds per game average, will face a freshman, Ken Doyle who has almost a half foot height advantage.

The Frosh will be coached by a new man around the offices of Tully, Coach Lake Kelly. Kelly's starting five will be composed of forwards Ron Malone and John Rogers, guards Mac Blankenship and Bryan Murphy, and center Ken Doyle.

A point of interest which might be some close watching will be the duel at front between Pete and John Rogers. The two brothers are both starting as forwards.

As usual the Frosh are under the gun.

A NATION MOURNS

The nation is mourning today the death of the late John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, who was assassinated Friday in Dallas, Texas.

In one of his first official acts as President, Lyndon B. Johnson, proclaimed today a national day of mourning for his predecessor and urged the American people to assemble in churches for prayer.

A pontifical requiem Mass will be celebrated at 12 noon today by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop at Boston, in St. Matthews Cathedral, a few blocks north of the White House. Services there will be followed by graveside services and a hero's burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

The late President Kennedy is being buried at Arlington as a "wish of the family." The only other president buried there is William Howard Taft.

Rep. James Roosevelt revealed he would ask the Congress to award Kennedy the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously.

Leaders from all over the world are expected to attend the funeral, including Mayor Will Brandt of West Berlin, President Charles DeGaulle of France, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada, President Eamon de Valera of Ireland, and United Nations Secretary-General U Thant, heading an eight-man delegation.

Kennedy was struck down as he was riding in the Presidential motorcade with Mrs. Kennedy, Texas Governor John Connally and Mrs. Connally. The Texas governor was also wounded by the sniper's fire, but is now listed as out of danger.

The late President was taken to Parkland Hospital immediately after the shooting. He died there 35 minutes later at 1 p.m. (CST), after futile efforts to save his life.

Johnson took his oath of office in the presidential jet place while it stood on the runway at Dallas Love Field. The body of the late President was aboard and immediately after the oath was administered the place took off for Washington, D.C.

The Kennedy family, leaders of the world, past presidents, governors, and members of the Congress, filed silently past his closed bronze casket in the black-draped East Room of the White House Saturday.

Yesterday, the body was taken to the Rotunda of the Capital, where it lay in state for 21 hours for public respects.

CAMPUS STUNNED

With Americans all over the nation, FSU students, faculty and staff members were caught up in stunned disbelief Friday at the death of President Kennedy.

The news of the assassination spread in minutes through classrooms, laboratories and residence halls.

The American Flag on the Westcott Bldg. flagpole was lowered to half mast seconds after the death of the President had been confirmed. Oth-

Bryant Declares Day Of Mourning

The following statement was released by Dr. R.R. Oglesby, Dean of Students:

"All classes at the Florida State University and the University School will be suspended today, in accordance with President Johnson's and Governor Bryant's proclamation that Monday shall be a day of mourning for the late President Kennedy.

"A memorial convocation will be held this morning at 10:30 a.m. in Westcott Auditorium. Students, faculty, staff members and friends are invited to remain after the convocation to view the procession and services from Washington, D.C."

There will be a large screen for viewing the funeral in Westcott, and facilities will also be set up in Opperman if necessary.

'Profile In Courage'

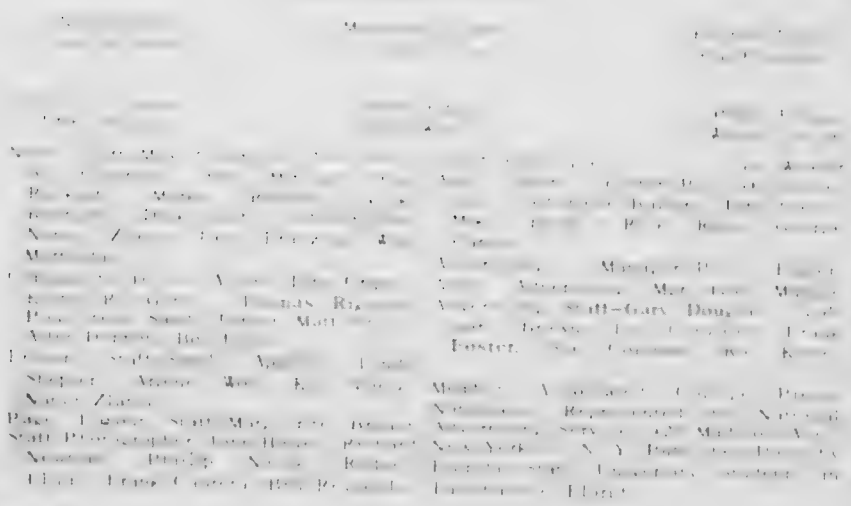
The American flag, symbol of liberty and justice, but now stained with the blood of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, flies at half-mast above a sorrowful nation.

The grim finality of the message, "The President is dead," shocked and numbed an unbelieving world. John Fitzgerald Kennedy, the 35th President of the United States, and the personification of our young and virile country, fell victim to an assassin's bullet.

The death of our courageous president has made him a martyr to his beliefs. And JFK, whose days were spent in an unending fight against bigotry, prejudice and injustice, is now forever silenced.

In other places and other times, we have seen violence used as an instrument against government--but Kennedy's death was senseless murder, incomprehensible to a civilized people.

The profound grief of his mourning people--America's people--will water John Kennedy's grave. His tragic assassination will be history's climax of the "Sorrowful Sixties." Yet, that his death will not be entirely with reason, we must accept the challenge of his courageous life, and his death, as a personal challenge to our own lives.



Mr. Kennedy himself would have mourned, too, the awful miscarriage of justice in the death of his accused slayer, Lee Harvey Oswald... for Oswald's death, too, is a blot on our flag and our beliefs. His was the right to trial; instead, his infamous death has robbed the world of the truth as to the death of the late President, and has made a mockery of justice.

Wherever the beliefs of our forefathers are upheld; wherever liberty and justice for all are prized above all else; wherever great men speak with unwavering and fearless voices; there will the memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy take its rightful place as a "Profile in Courage."

May God keep John Kennedy. May God have mercy on the soul of his assassin. And may God lead President Johnson and the United States through one of its blackest hours of sorrow and trouble.

Columnist Answers Critics Of 'Lower Limbs' Article

Ever since my column "Lower Limbs Spell Danger" appeared in the October 18th issue of the "Flambeau," I have been asked three questions: (1) "Are you serious?" (2) "What do you have against girls' legs?" and (3) "What is it you have against girls' having legs?"

To answer the latter one first, may I say that I have absolutely nothing against girls' having legs. As a matter of fact I think it's dear kind that they have legs, just think what the world would be like if all the females suddenly did not have legs. Why, our whole economy and social [illegible] would be completely upset. [illegible] for a moment. Can you imagine all the college men "panty-raiding" hopeless females across campus to the latter's classes? Furthermore "panty-hacking" for long distance runners and their arms around the legs of those long carriers. If the girls are [illegible], all their [illegible] little weight would be concentrated on the necks of the carriers. Thus the men would be struggling to keep up the girls and their [illegible] without transportation to their classes. What a sad, sad world it would be without college men and [illegible]

Now for the second question, "What do you have against girls' legs?" I wish to assure all the readers that I have nothing against girls' legs, except that they are sometimes distracting. The natural question to follow now is, "Why are they distracting?" The answer is very simple: at the [illegible] are part of nowadays, the natural span of the [illegible] it [illegible] see your legs.

It cannot be entirely removed, but [illegible] free advertising or free sampling sometimes [illegible] a little glance now and then. Also, it cannot be completely denied that more "joy" is experienced by males (I have established [illegible] a girl crosses when they see a little [illegible] of someone's than a daily observation of the same [illegible] legs. (May be I might disagree with this latter conclusion, perhaps the young ladies might use a little more psychology if they're looking for a real male prospect. Anyway, I don't believe I'll ever hear one male say to another, "Gee, what I saw today--a girl's knee!"

Now to answer the question, 'Are you serious?' Ever since that column appeared, I have been called everything from a preacher to a prude, so may I here clearly and precisely give my answer. If you are one of those who thought the moral or psychological issue in my column was worthy of note, please take the column seriously and you will be blessed. On the other hand, if you (as a girl) wish to give free advertising or you (as a male) wish to be entertained while studying (and at other times), please take the column as just [illegible] and perhaps some day you will be blessed. I have your choice.

I hope that my clear, precise statements have eliminated any confusing thoughts or ambiguities in my "legs" column.

New FSU Honor System Explained

by JOHNNY SMITH
Student Body President

There has been much confusion in the minds of many students over the passage of the new honor system revision in Student Senate. The purpose of this article is to clarify, in as practical terms as possible, the questions which exist in regard to this new honor system.

In its structural form, the system is divided into six sections:

1. Code of academic honor.
2. Academic dishonesty defined.
3. Student responsibilities.
4. Faculty responsibilities.
5. Court responsibilities; penalties.
6. Supervision of honor system.

The Honor Code is based in the premise that the student must practice the highest standard of academic honesty in own work, and that he is to refuse to tolerate dishonesty on the part of any other person.

Academic dishonesty includes:

1. Receiving written or oral information from another student.
2. Referring to written information not specifically condoned by the instructor.
3. Plagiarism.
4. Stealing, lying, selling or referring to a copy of any exam before it administered.
5. Possession of evidence by a student that any of the above offenses have been committed and failing to report this evidence to the Court.

An instructor who observes or otherwise detects cheating in his classes may impose whatever academic penalty he deems appropriate. In addition, he should submit to the Honor Court a written report of each instance of cheating. The Chief Justice shall then determine if grounds are sufficient to bring the student before the Honor Court.

If the Court decides to consider the case, it is referred to the prosecution staff, which is under the direction of the Attorney General of the student body. This staff prepares a full report on the base which is submitted at the Honor Court hearing.

If he wishes, the student accused of cheating may select a member of the defense council to assist him in presenting his case. The [illegible] tem of defense council [illegible] tion staff prevents their [illegible] courtroom floor.

In addition, the new system [illegible] the Honor Court [illegible] bility than before, giving [illegible] the opportunity to fit the [illegible] punishment to the individual [illegible]

Much of the blame [illegible] fectiveness of the honor [illegible] in the fact that the Faculty [illegible] never officially rec[illegible] existence of the present [illegible] new revision is presently [illegible] sideration by the Faculty [illegible] it is passed, it will be [illegible] student body in the spring [illegible] for a referendum vote.

The Honor Court is [illegible] pamphlet explaining the [illegible] scope, powers, and [illegible] the entire FSU student [illegible] tem. The pamphlet will be [illegible] ed to the student body, [illegible] student will be able to fully [illegible] stand student government [illegible] operation, the proposed honor [illegible] tem revision and his [illegible] rights in the student court system.

Kennedy: Vanguard Of His Age

By MAN COURTNEY
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Ask not what your country can do for you, but ask what you can do for your country," said John Fitzgerald Kennedy in a memorable inaugural address Jan. 20, 1961.

These words uttered on a bitter, cold, and snowy day by the 35th President of the United States will live in the hearts of men as his death will be recorded in history.

THE FIRST FAMILY ATTENDED EASTER SERVICES ...in Palm Beach, Fla., last April. President John F. Kennedy, his wife Jacqueline, and their children, John Jr., and Caroline, are shown as they left the Kennedy family home for a private Easter service. (AP Wirephotc)

Kennedy was born in Brookline, Mass., May 29, 1917. He had an elder brother, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., who was killed in World War II, and two younger brothers, Robert F. Kennedy and Edward F. Kennedy. John also had younger sisters, Rosemary, Eunice, Jean, Kathleen and Patricia.

The presidency of John F. Kennedy was born and nurtured by a millionaire father and by the man himself. His father, once ambassador to Britain, was determined to have one of his sons in the White House. Just as Joseph P. Kennedy had pushed his way to the top, he demanded the same of his sons.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was a product of Choate, Harvard and the London School of Economics. He published two books, "Why England Slept," in 1940 and "Profiles in Courage." The latter book won the Pulitzer Prize in 1956.

He began his political career by winning a seat in the US House of Representatives. After six years in the House he ran for the Senate, and defeated Henry Cabot Lodge.

Kennedy's World War II record became a national conversation piece. The sage of the PT-109, how Kennedy commanded a PT boat that was rammed by a Japanese destroyer in the Solomons, was celebrated in books, a motion picture and countless retellings by magazines, newspapers and television.

Dumped in the South Pacific near New Georgia Island in August, 1943, he and his crew were rescued after spending many hours in the water and five days on a tiny island. The experience aggravated an old back injury and resulted in his contracting malaria. After several months in a naval hospital in Massachusetts, he was released from the navy early in 1945. Between the war and the start of his political career, John F. Kennedy tried his hand at news reporting.

As a Congressman, Kennedy kept state issues in the forefront. He was considered more of an independent liberal, rather than a straight line Democrat. Starting in 1948, Kennedy's stature increased in his home state until by 1952 his was a common name in Massachusetts.

The 1956 Democratic convention was the beginning of his national political career, and it served as a launching pad for his campaign for the Presidential nomination.

Kennedy entered office on a surge of towering personal popularity. The new President, his strikingly attractive wife Jacqueline, and their children made one of the most appealing and photogenic families ever to occupy the White House.

Newspapers, feature writers, night club and television comedians, composers, and recordings spread the name and actions of the Kennedys. Their styles, their tastes, their sports preferences, all swept across the nation. The pillbox, water skiing, touch football, two-button suits, and Oleg Cassini all came to be associated with the Jack-and-Jackie. The initials JFK were perfect for the news media, and John Fitzgerald Kennedy became JFK, the 35th President.

His great problems at the start were foreign policy and economic areas at home. Both were later overshadowed by the Negro revolt of 1963, which presented the nation with one of its greatest domestic crises since the civil war and reconstruction. Kennedy's overseas problems went from the Bay of Pigs fiasco to an unprecedented October, 1962 triumph, with the Soviet Union, Laos, the Congo, Viet Nam and Red China.

At home, Kennedy assumed a middle of the road or liberal stand on various issues of national interest. The "New Frontier" pushed through several major administration accomplishments legislatively, but it was done with extensive effort and close margins.

Kennedy was married Sept. 12, 1953 to Jacqueline Bouvier, at Newport, R.I. in a wedding that made many eastern society columns. They have a daughter Caroline who will be six Wednesday, and John Jr., who is three today.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy is a Catholic, as was her husband.

At the beginning of the 1960 campaign the religious issue seemed to be a major one, but after Kennedy's series of victories in state presidential primaries, he expressed the belief that the religious issue had been removed from the campaign.

At the 1960 convention the toughest opposition came from the forces of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Baines Johnson of Texas. The result of this convention was a merger between Kennedy and Johnson. And for the first time in the nation the television political debate became a part of a presidential campaign. As a result of this new innovation, the name Robert Kennedy grew to be a familiar name in the JFK camp.

With the largest voter turnout in history, John Fitzgerald Kennedy defeated Richard M. Nixon, the Republican nominee for President, by scarcely 100,000 ballots. The electoral college vote was 33hto 219.

Presently, Kennedy's two main bills before congress were his tax-cut bill and the civil rights bill. Passage of either bill this year was considered questionable.

Had JFK lived, he would more than likely have been the 1964 Dem-

Novelist Drury Speaks Tonight

Allen Drury, author of "Advise and Consent" and "A Shade of Difference," will address FSU students and faculty on "The Political Novel: Brickbats and Brayos" tonight at 8:30 in Opperman Music Hall.

America's leading political novelist will be sponsored by the University Lecture Series.

Drury has had years of experience with political events and personalities, having as a journalist for the fifteen years prior to the publication of "Advise and Consent," the novel which earned him the coveted Pulitzer Prize.

As a newspaperman he covered national politics and the Senate. He has been employed by the United Press, Pathfinder Magazine, the Washington Evening Star, and for five years, the New York Times. He is now the Washington contributor to the Reader's Digest.

Born in Houston, Texas, Drury grew up in California, where he attended Stanford University and worked on the Stanford Daily before assuming his first professional newspaper job as editor of the Tulare Bee in California.

For his editorials on this weekly paper, he was granted the Sigma Delta Chi Editorial Award for 1941. He was subsequently county editor of the Bakersfield Californian and served in the Army before coming to Washington in 1943.

"Advise and Consent," published in 1959, was a Book of the month Club selection and soon was on the top rungs of the nation's best-seller lists. It was adapted for the stage and had a successful Broadway run before Otto Preminger brought out his star-studded motion picture production.

In 1962 Drury's second political novel, "A Shade of Difference," was published and soon duplicated the success of its predecessor. Revolving around the new African nations and a crisis of the US prestige at the United Nations, the sequel features many of the characters from his first book.

Drury chose the United Nations setting for "A Shade of Difference" because, he says, "It was inescapable. Nothing in our times is more important to the world than the United Nations, and nothing would more logically concern the men of government and politics than what goes on there."

The novel was a selection of the Literary Guild of America. Because of the issues involved in the plot, it has not been available for sale to motion pictures.

Drury announced that he felt the condensation involved in a movie version might produce a film that would be highly damaging to the United States abroad.

As Washington contributor to the Reader's Digest, Drury remains in an excellent position to observe the shifting political scene. This point of vantage will be evident in his research on conventions and campaigns that form the subject of "Capable of Honor" and the opening days of the new administration that make up "I reserve and Protect," the third and fourth books of his projected tetralogy.

Aldous Huxley Dies Of Cancer

Aldous Huxley, British novelist, biographer and essayist, who was scheduled to speak to FSU students later on this year, died in Los Angeles Friday of cancer.

He was 69 years old.

Huxley had lived in Los Angeles for many years and was one of the intellectual leaders of the West Coast. His lectures at the universities in the west were always well attended.

He is survived by his wife, Laura, a son, Mathew, and a brother, Sir Julian.

Huxley once described himself as an "essayist who sometimes writes novels and biographies." One of his best-known "novels" was "Brave New World," an ironic forecast of a future world of automation.

He never won the Nobel Prize for Literature, although his name was considered several times. But in 1959 he won the Award of Merit of the Arts and Letters, a prize awarded only once every five years.

Last year he was elected a companion of literature of the British Royal Society of Literature, one of the highest literary awards in Britain. It is restricted to ten living British authors, of whom only seven now hold the title.

Infirmary Has Polio Vaccine

Dr. C.R. Gentry, chief physician at the FSU infirmary, has advised that, because of the increased incidents of polio in Duval county, all students from Duval country should receive either oral vaccine or a Salk booster prior to returning to Duval county for the holidays.

The oral vaccine can be secured at the Health Service by students from Duval county. The Health Service hopes to be able to make oral vaccine immediately available to all students in the near future.

READING THE TICKER

. . .for news of Kennedy's assassination, two students bend over the teletype in the WFSU-FM Wire room to get every piece of information available.

Coat Lost

A full length women's beige cashmere coat was lost at the Saturday night Homecoming dance last weekend. The coat was accidentally picked up and another left in the switch.

Will whoever got the beige coat coat bring it in to Lost and Found on the first floor desk, Longmire, and exchange it for the correct coat.

Smoke Signals

Smoke Signals, FSU's general interest magazine, will be distributed tomorrow in back of Westcott Auditorium and in front of the student center.

The magazine is available to any member of the student body who presents his ID card. Extra copies may be purchased at twenty-five cents apiece.

Two Professors Present Papers

Dr. Harry F. Brubake, associate professor, and Alfred R. Pannbacker, assistant professor, in the FSU Dept. of Geography, will present papers at a meeting of the Southeast Division of the Association of American Geographers in Knoxville, today and tomorrow.

Serving as chairman of divisional committees at the same meeting will be Prof. Henry F. Becker, head of the Geography Dept. and Dr. Burke G. Vanderhill, associate professor. Paul D. Whippo, instructor and Emmett F. Stallings, graduate assistant from Tallahassee, will attend.

Gator Wagon

The Kappa Sigma pledge class has announced that the annual Gator Wagon, held on Landis Green to commemorate the FSU-U of F football game, has been rescheduled to tomorrow.

It will be held tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The windshield will be auctioned to the highest bidder at 2 p.m. The proceeds will go to the Campus Chest.

All students, faculty and staff are invited to participate.

Coeds Take Part In Fashion Meet

Two FSU coeds recently spent two days at the national headquarters of Sears, Roebuck and Co. in Chicago where they participated in a seminar on college fashions.

Miss Lee Davenport, a senior, and Miss Connie Gowen, a sophomore, along with two Duke University students comprised a student panel which met with Sears merchandising executives from all parts of the country.

During the meeting the students expressed their views on style trends and preferences among college students in general and Southern students in particular.

Robert Martin Elected President

Dr. Robert D. Martin, assistant professor of education at FSU, has been elected president of the Florida Unit of the Association for Student Teaching.

Martin, a member of the FSU faculty since 1958, was elected to the post at a meeting of the group in DeLand. The nationwide organization of 4,000 numbers 100 members in the Florida unit.

Dr. Robert Blackmon, assistant professor of English education and internship, will be editor of the state newsletter of the organization. Both posts are for one year.

Here Is Dr. Rogers' Book Review Of

RUN TO DAYLIGHT!!!

RUN TO DAYLIGHT! is an exciting study in prose and pictures of professional football. Detailing a week in the lives of Coach Vince Lombardi and the men of the Green Bay Packers, the book reveals the glory, anguish, effort, and excruciating tension of America's most popular spectator sport.

The reader becomes a participant in the preparations for Sunday's game, and after reading the book is convinced that while football's basic requirement of strength is implemented by intelligence, champions like the Green Bay Packers are forged in large part by pride and dedication.

The illustrations are uniquely arranged in the text and seem a part of the narrative. The book's appeal extends from those unacquainted with football (because of its dramatic qualities) to active players and coaches (beause it is knowledgeable and presents important insights concerning some of the game's most famous personalities).

Original and interesting, RUN TO DAYLIGHT! should win a large audience.

...st heard," one girld would ... and say. "When did it happen?" Time and time again the words and details were repeated – more often than not with a lump in the throat and through tears being fought back in an effort to remain calm.

And then the words of the newscaster. "Ladies and Gentlemen," the voice came, "The President of the United States is dead."

"I'll never forget those words as long as I live," one girl asserted, "they were so final."

School was forgotten. Teachers, too, were filled with the emotion of the event; classes were cancelled – often in the middle of the lecture. Somehow physics and experiements, French literature and mathematical theorems were not very important any more. Homework, dates, suppers were forgotten. Students sat for hours before the TV screen, silent, yet feeling a strange kinship in their sorrow. Whenever the TV station had a break for a local minister to offer a prayer for the Kennedy family, heads would bow and tears fell without hesitation or shame.

As Dr. Joseph Hooten, Principal of the University School said yesterday, "From now on our lives will not be the same. Now and for years to come, people will ask us- "Where were you when you heard?" Our parents were asked this question concerning Pearl Harbor and World War II and we will be asked this about the assassination of President Kennedy."

We do not know yet how the death of John F. Kennedy will affect the lives of all of us, but one thing is certain – this was a weekend we will never forget, it was a weekend our grandchildren will ask us, "What were you doing? How did you feel? What did you thnk?" And even now most of us are not sure...

er flags across the campus followed suit.

On behalf of students and faculty, FSU President Gordon Blackwell sent a personal message of sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy.

Students streamed into nearby campus religious houses of various denominations for spontaneous memorial services. Large numbers of students and faculty joined with Tallahassee resident in the special memorial service at the First Presbyterian Church.

Students also gathered Friday evening at Westcott Circle for a silent march to the Florida Capitol Bldg., where they were led in prayer for the late President John Kennedy and for President Lyndon Baines Johnson by Rev. George Bedell. They sang the national anthem, received a benediction, then quietly dispersed.

Several University events scheduled for the weekend were cancelled. Immediately following the official announcement of Kennedy's death, faculty members joined the picket line at the Mecca, but picketing was layer suspended until after the funeral of the late President.

Suspected Assassin Killed Yesterday

Lee Harvey Oswald, pro-Castro Marxist and former US Marine charged with the murder of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy, was shot yesterday in the basement of the Dallas jail.

Oswald was being taken from the jail to a maximum security jail when Jack (Ruby)Rubenstein, operator of a Dallas night club, emerged from a crowd, ran to within a foot of the 24-year-old prisoner, and shot him in the stomach. He died at 1:06 p.m. in the same hospital where Kennedy was taken Friday. Rubenstein was arrested immediately.

Oswald, an employee in the building from which the President was shot, is chairman of a "Fair Play for Cuba Committee." He went to Russia as a tourist after his discharge from the Marine Corps, said he wanted to then renounce his American citzenship and become a Soviet citizen. But he never did so.

He stayed in Russia three years, met and married a Russian girl, then in the summer of 1962 he applied for and received a US passport, saying he bed become disillusioned with Communist life.

Shortly after the assassination of Kennedy, police were notified that a suspicious character had entered a movie theatre. When they tried to arrest him, he tried to escape and police fired at him, he returned the fire and killed Policeman J.D. Tippett.

He first was arrested and charged with the murder of Tippett, but was identified as the prime suspect in the presidential assassination.

During questioning he was often sullen and arrogant.

He had denied both slayings. But authorities appeared certain that they had the right man.

A Sportsman Lost

Today, the relative importance of athletics shrinks beneath the shadow of a nation's sorrow. The sports staff of the Flambeau shares in that sorrow.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was a great sportsman as well as a great President. A scrub on the Harvard football team an amateur athlete and devotee to physical fitness, he knew the value of athletics and life, their importance to each other.

Just as life and athletics will go on, so will the memory of our late President.

Gators Nip 'Canes

By BOB DENSMORE

The game which held second spot in the minds of the FSU grid fans this weekend had to be the Florida-Miami clash. Always a good game, this year's edition of the classic has to be placed among the best.

The game, as it turned out, was a clash of the offenses in the Nth degree. As expected, Miami owned the air, through the talents of quarterback George Mira, and Florida assumed command of the ground game.

The opposite methods of attack were well matched. All through the tilt, players on both sides of the field shifted anxiously on their benches. Florida lead 7-6 at the half. Miami came back onto the field to make the scoreboard read 14-7 in their favor. Going into the fourth quarter, it was anybody's game still, with the score tied at 14 points.

The game began dully enough, with both teams in possession of the ball twice, in th first quarter. Neither team could scrape up enough momentum to light the scoreboard.

The second quarter was something else again. In possession of the ball on the Miami three, Dupree, Florida's workhorse, bulled over a TD wit only two seconds elapsed on the clock. From then on, the quarter was Miami's. Mira, the Miami quarterback, gave the Gator secondary sore necks from watching the passes sail by. On a fake field goal attempt, Mira hit end Hoyt Sparks in the end zone. The PAT, a two pointer, failed to connect.

The third quarter saw Miami take up where thy had left off. The Hurricanes marched 76 yards in only seven plays to put Mira in position to throw a 20 yard TD aerial. Miami lead 14-7 with the aid of a two point PAT from the arm of Mira to the hands of Spinelli.

The Gators then replied with their own drive of an equal 76 yards. High points of the drive were a forty yard jaunt by Trammel and a seven yard TD burst by Larry Dupree. Florida played it safe on the point after and tied in at 14-14.

Florida was playing for a tie, however. Shortly after Miami punt in the early minutes of the final quarter, Florida back Haggood Clark put another score on the board with a 70 dash into the Miami end zone. With a good PAT it was 21-14, Florida.

Rushing yardage	54
Passes attempted	11
Passes completed	5
Passes intercepted by	1
Number of punts	5
Punting average	40
Fumbles lost	1
Yards penalized	45

The point hungry Gators, on some beautiful running by Mac Lee, again added to their side of the ledger to make the score 27-14, the most lopsided point of the game.

Miami didn't give up, however, and Mira again had the Gators looking into the air. After 82 yards worth of Hurricane offense, the Gators were worrying with the score reading 27-21.

With 2 1/2 minutes left to play the Gators were able to run out the clock.

The most interesting aspect of the game, from the FSU viewpoint, was the fact the Florida was so weak in pass defense. Something for the Seminoles to keep in mind for next Saturday.

Plainsmen Put Down Tribe

By GENE BALLARD

Auburn stopped a second half Seminole uprising to defeat FSU 21-15.

The Tigers, after a Bowl Bid, set out to crush FSU by scoring the first two times they had the ball. FSU was unable to move after taking the opening kickoff and punted to the Tigers down to the Auburn 18. Auburn quarterback Jimmy Sidle directed the Tigers to the FSU goal line in 16 plays, 15 on the ground. The two big plays of the drive were a 3rd and six at the Auburn 46, with Sidle hitting Howard Simpson with a [illegible] pass, and on a 4th and two at the FSU 28 Sidle got four to keep the drive going. Sidle carried the last eight yards himself, Woody Woodall kicked the extra point and Auburn lead 14-[illegible].

On FSU's next series disaster struck. Steve Tensi's pass to Red Dawson was intercepted by Doc

Griffith at the FSU 44. On the next play, Griffith fumbled for an 8 yard gain and the Tigers were in the drive. On an important 3rd and 7 at the 16, Sidle got eight to set up the score. Four plays later, Sidle brought Seminoles over the line with him and Auburn lead Woody Woodall again kicked the point.

After FSU could get nowhere and were forced to punt. Number two quarterback Mullen Kent came into run the Tiger offense. .. Three passes later and Auburn had a first down at the FSU 28. Two passes were incomplete, and a run netted only four yards. Woody Woodall missed a field goal from the 36.

FSU then gave its first start of an offense. A Pritchett pass inbounds to Joe Petro, and an offsides penalty moved FSU to the Auburn 49. Pritchett was dumped for a ten yard loss, and Steve Tensi's forth down pass was short of a first down.

Auburn ran out the clock and the half ended 14-0.

After a punting duel between Auburn's Joe Kilgore and the Tribe's Charley Calhoun, the Seminoles got their first touchdown. Maury Bibent intercepted a Sidle pass and returned it to the Tiger 40. Bibent and Pritchett ran for a fist down at the 2". Pritchett faked a jump pass and hit John Wachtel for a 27 yard touchdown pass. Doug Messer kicked the point, and Auburn lead 14-7.

Calhoun fielded a punt and ran into Winfred Bailey and fumbled. Jerry Powell recovered for the Tigers at the 14. Jimmy Sidle again scored from seven yards out to make the score 20-7. Woodall again kicked the point.

On a fourth and inches at the 33, Auburn punted. Winfred Bailey took it and ran it back 56 yards to the Tiger 21. A pass interference call at the 2 was called against Auburn and gave FSU a first down. Pritchett sneaked three times before getting the six points. Charley Calhoun ran for the extra two points to close out the scoring.

Woodall missed another field goal and Steve Tensi and Ed Pritchett could not connect on their passes as the game ended FSU 15, Auburn 21.

Little Grid Action Seen

In a day in which most football games were called, what little action there was close. The biggest game was Nebraska and Oklahoma, won by Nebraska 29-20. Nebraska will now go to the Orange Bowl Jan. 1.

In the South, Florida defeated Miami and George Mira 27-21. Tennessee defeated Kentucky 19-0, LSU beat rival Tulane 20-0, and Vanderbilt won their first game, defeating George Washington 31-0.

The only game in the Southwest was won by Arkansas at the expense of Texas Tech 27-20. The other major college game was won by Utah as the upset Utah State 25-23.

In Friday night action, NC State won a share of the Atlantic Coast title by defeating Wake Forest 45-6.

Of the games cancelled, some have been rescheduled. The Big Six games will be played on December 7. The Illinois-Michigan State game will be played Thanksgiving. The Ivy Leage games were scheduled for next week, and the Army-Navy game is still in doubt.

Students Gather To Pay Respects

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, left Washington for the last time yesterday to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

FSU students gathered quietly in Westcott Auditorium during the morning hours for a memorial convocation.

FINAL RESPECTS TO PRESIDENT KENNEDY

... were offered in a University-wide Memorial Convocation in Westcott and Opperman Halls yesterday. Choral selections were performed by University Singers and Choral Union (shown here). Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell delivered the eulogy and Dr. Paul Minus the invocation and benediction. (Photo by Cowart)

After an organ prelude by Dr. Ramona Cruikshank Beard, special music was presented by the University Singers under the direction of Dr. Wiley Housewright, and by the University Choral Union, directed by Dr. Herman Gunter. Selections by the Singers were 'Vesterae solennes de consessori"; "Dixit," "Confitebor," "Laudate Pueri," and "Laudate Dominum," from Mozart; the Choral Union chose "Messa de Gloria"; "Kyrie," "Santus," and "Agnus Dei," by Puccini.

A Scripture and prayer were read by Dr. Paul M. Minus, Jr., University Chaplain. Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, FSU president, delivered the main remarks. The full text of his address follows:

"The shocking, unbelievable events of the past three days must have special meaning for each of us. Each has his own interpretation; each, his own emotional reactions; each, his own thoughts on the import of all this.

"For those of you who are away from the comforting mooring of home and family, it has doubtless been a particularly trying time.

"Many well chosen words have been written and spoken in these days. Impressive and richly deserved tributes to our late respected leader have been made by many who are eminently capable of so serious a responsibility.

"Now, as these tragic events reach their denouement, one wonders what more of significance can be said. Perhaps we can look beyond the confusion of the moment, the personally felt shock, the deep feeling of sympathy for the bereaved, the clear impression of Mrs. Kennedy's devotion and courage. And as we look beyond these fleeting, transitory emotions, perhaps we can see something which will give comfort and hope.

"Certainly the opportunity to participate intimately in these tension-filled events through the miracle of instanteous communication has left each of us emotionally drained. But perhaps also the experience has left us stronger, better persons.

'We have had the intimate experience of corporate sharing of deep grief, not only with Americans but with all men who believe in human goodness and the dignity of man. The familiar words of John Donne have never been more poignant: 'and, therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.' Perhaps through this tolling we shall come to be less self centered as individuals.

"Especially have the young among us, I believe, experienced a renewed dedication to the principles upon which this country must stand if it is to remain the world's chief bulwark of freedom for the mind and the spirit. For John Fitzgerald Kennedy, as few other presidents in American history, was identified with the vigor, the imagination, the excitement of the young at heart and the young in action. His familiar face was that of a young man. His courageous wife, the epitome of youthful beauty and creativity, typifies the cultured, well educated woman. With their two lovely children, the image of the first family has been that of the ideal young American couple.

"So Mr. Kennedy and his wife had a profound meaning for young America. As the news of his death spread around this campus on Friday afternoon, students began to gather at the religious houses and a few hours later crowded into the First Presbyterian Church for a memorial service. It was clear that these young people had been profoundly affected by the news of the President's death.

"There can be no question but that the late President caught up the enthusiasm of the young with his warm personality, the brightness of his mind, and his love for sports and the out-of-doors. He carried them forward with the vigor of his thinking which matched his vibrant personality. He said to them, as to all of us: 'Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country.' This question which he posed was no idle rhetoric, for he provided not only the inspiration but also some of the avenues by which many young Americans could find their own answers to the question. I think particularly of the Peace Corps, an instrumentality through which Mr. Kennedy brought into reality the proposition, advanced by William James three generations earlier, that for young people there should be a moral equivalent for war. Through the Peace Corps, self-sacrificing young Americans have moved into the far corners of the earth to represent their country on the front lines of ignorance and sickness and poverty.

"But in an even larger measure President Kennedy helped to identify public service in government as a proper career ambition for youth, a career, like the other professions, deserving its fair share of the best talent and the best brains coming from our colleges and universities.

"And so we mourn today America's youthful President, one of the youngest ever to hold the office, the one leader of modern times more than any other with whom young people could identify most closely, the one whose own life charted courses for them of both inspiration and action.

Pre-Registration To Begin Monday

By SHEILA APPLEBY
Flambeau Staff Writer

Pre-registration from Nov. 25 to Dec. 12 is not a new idea.

It was only discontinued three years ago because "the multiplicity of changes" made it so impractical. At that time there were 8,500 students in school and 11,000 separate changes of schedule had to be made.

Therefore, according to Murray Kenna, Registrar, "we decided we would discontinue pre-registration when we felt it practical. Now we are purposely trying to make it difficult to change a course for other than academic reasons." There is a $2 fee for every drop and add. However, there is no charge if the student's dean and advisor recommend a change.

There are presently 11,000 students in school--about 8,000 will be qualified for pre-registration and Kenna hopes "we will have 6,000 or more pre-registered." Only those with a 2.0 average or above can register early because students on probation will probably have to make the most changes and will be waiting to see the outcome of their grades.

The schedule for pre-registration were, according to Kenna, "arranged in order of need." Seniors were considered first since they have more time than anyone, then freshmen who need General Education courses, juniors, and lastly sophomores who have more time to make adjustments. Likewise, students were arranged in descending order of grade point average by class to reward good scholarship.

The schedule for regular registration will be announced after pre-registration. If many pre-register, 3 days may be unnecessary for regular registration and perhaps some may enjoy a longer vacation.

Kenna noted that "we will make the fee payment for those pre-registered as late as possible." Why not pay the fee during pre-registration? The reason is that it might be a hardship for many to pay the fees right before Christmas.

Students will receive a timeschedule arranged alphabetically and Kenna emphasized that this time schedule would be rigidly enforced. If the student is more than 30 minutes late, he will be charged the late registration fee of $5.

Students are encouraged to make out their schedules carefully, for no changes can be made until after the regular registration period.

Kenna pointed out that FSU has the computers necessary to make registration simpler for all by giving students absolutely no choice in arranging their schedules.

It is a difficult matter to obtain both convenience and efficiency for "there's a certain point when you have to sacrifice the convenience of students to obtain maximum efficiency. We haven't crossed that line yet for we want to give the student a choice in making out his schedule."

It is hoped that this experimental program will result in a smoother operation--and less trouble on the part of students.

University Singers 'Love To Sing

By SHIRLEY MOONEY
Flambeau Feature Writer

University Singers is one of four choral organizations in the School of Music and "the most highly select choral group on campus," according to Dr. Wiley Housewright, director of the group.

When Dr. Housewright organized the group in 1948, it was an all woman's chorus. For their first group appearance they sang Debussey's "Blessed Damozel" and Pergolesi's "Stabat Mater." The soloists in the first performance were faculty members.

Now, 15 years later, there are 64 men and women in University Singers. Eligibility for Singers is determined by a series of auditions held on the basis of voice and musicianship.

"It is the rare combination of the two we're looking for," say Housewright. "University Singers has some of the best voices and finest musicians on campus... People who are singers in their own right. At the campus operas usually more than half of the cast is composed of people who are in University Singers."

Tryouts for University Singers are held at the beginning of each trimester. The number of altoes, sopranoes, tenors, and basses chosen depends on the number of people already in Singers who graduate or who can't return for other reasons.

On tour, Singers will sing their way down the east coast of Florida. The first schedule performance will be at the Stephen Foster Memorial in White Springs. Other scheduled performances are: Riverside Park Presbyterian Church in Jacksonville; Maynard Evans High School, Orlando; Park Temple Methodist Church, Fort Lauderdale; Riverside High School, Sarasota; Manatee Junior College, Bradenton; and St. John's River Junior College in Palatka.

Music for the tour will consist of Bach and Mozart works and a group of French works by Florent and Schmitt. In addition to these, the Singers will do a set of Negro spirituals by Fela Sowande, who is a well-known organist now living in London, England.

Famed composer, Pablo Casals, who was a guest conductor at FSU last Spring, has lived in Puerto Rico since a self-imposed exile from Spain. Each June in Puerto Rico there is a Pablo Casals Festival, at which Casals conducts some of his works, along with works by other composers.

On the basis of the University Singers' performance when Casals conducted them at FSU, he has invited the Singers to be the choral group he'll conduct at the festival this year.

After singing for the festival in Puerto Rico, Casals wanted the Singers to fly with him to New York to perform at Carnegie Hall. Though the University Singers liked the idea, FSU can't finance an operation of such magnitude. Singers are presently looking for an interested donor with $50,000.

University Singers practice on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 3-4 in the afternoon. They're busy rehearsing now for the Christmas Concert which will be Dec. 6, and their tour which will by March 1-7. Bach's "Magnificat" and Mozart's "Vesperae solennes de confessore" are two of the main works to be performed for the Christmas Concert, along with some contemporary works such as "A Christmas Contata" by Daniel Pinkham.

The University Singers have previously sung for conventions of the Professional Organists: The Music Teachers' National Association in Atlanta; and Music Educators' National Conference in Chattanooga, Tennessee. The University Singers recorded an album of Stephen Foster Music on the "Request" label.

Singers have been conducted by such well-known composers as Howard Hanson, who composed "Lament for Beowulf; Halsey Stevens, American composer from California; and Roger Session, known for his "Mass Choral Work."

Last spring, when Pablo Casals was on campus, he conducted 140 members of the various music organizations, University Singers being the nucleus of the group. They performed Casals' "El Pessebre."

Officers of University Singers are: president, Ken Schwartz; vice president, Byron Smith; secretary-treasurer, Katherine Hendry; librarians, Joe Napoli, Barney Ingram, and Sarah Rideout; assistant conductor, Lou Mize; accompanist, Mary Carol Warwick.

Other members of University Singers are: Jarvis Rose Allen, Omar Allen, Virginia Alonso, Lillian Amos, Lucille Ann Bishop, Jennifer Black, Gail Brown, Billy Joe Bullock, Laura Bunte, Harold Chapman, Paula Cheshire, Curtis Clarke, John Cooksey, Tom Cavendish, Michele Ann Davenport, James Davis, Willard DeLara, Linda [illegible] Dooley.

Mortar Board's Brilliant 'Mortified' Keeps Trying

By BETSY BRANDT
Flambeau Feature Writer

The Torchbearer Chapter of National Mortar Board was begun at FSU in 1931.

There are 16 active members at the present time. Juniors are tapped for membership the second trimester on the basis of scholarship, leadership and service. The grade-point average required this year is a 3.0. The average required changes yearly and based on the overall campus average.

Mortar Board aims to promote an appreciation and striving for the goals of scholarship, leadership and service among University women. They hope to raise the standards of the University in this way.

Mortar Board's successful Last Lecture Series, which has presented Dr. Lawrence Chalmers and Dr. Stephen Winters this trimester, will feature Dr. Allan Thomson, assistant professor of English on Jan. 29; and Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, FSU's Distinguished Professor of 1963, on April 1.

Another of Mortar Board's projects, "Penny-A-Minute Night," this year provided over $600 which will be used for scholarships to FSU students. The scholarships are administered through the Financall Aid Office.

In connection with ODK, Mortar Board will initiate a new experimental program of student advisers. They will be seniors or qualified upperclassmen who will assist in advising undecided freshmen.

Most campuses which have a Mortar Board chapter have an organization which corresponds to FSU's Mortified.

Members are selected on the same basis as Mortar Board except the scholarship requirement. Mortified taps the day after Mortar Board and is "more selective" since they have one less member.

Mortified is an organization for those girls outstanding in leadership and service, but who lack the average to be eligible for Mortar Board. Jackie Mathis, a Mortified member, said, "Our only purpose is to heckle Mortar Board. We try and mess 'um up in general."

Mortified's activities are meeting at the Corner, having parties, and pulling pranks on Mortar Board. In the past year Mortified has crashed their initiation, officers meetings and stolen their yearbooks.

All the dastardly deeds which Mortified pulls on Mortar Board are all in the spirit of fun. For Mortar Board members think that it is fun and would probably be lonesome without some excitement once in a while.

Reunions Follow 'Dix' Plan

By AVE DEAN
Flambeau Staff Writer

When will the class of 1963 hold its first reunion?

What about the mechanics of the Dix Plan of Class Reunions? A rotation plan for class reunions that is used at FSU? Yes, rather than reunion after 5, 10, 15, 20, on up to 50 years after graduation, this play provides for classes to reunion at the same time with three other classes that were in school the same time. And next time the reunion is held it will be with a different set of four classes.

Can this plan be changed? In 1957 the Alumni Office polled all the classes and even though there had been previous complaints the Dix plan was approved by all the classes. Any complaints that are made are considered and appreciated said Director of Alumni Affairs, Thomas A. Waits.

In 50 years time all the classes will have reunioned the same number of times. Often it seems that only the more recent classes get by reunion but every year there is a [illegible] of more recent classes as well as some older classes.

For instance, this year the classes of '63, '62, '61, '60 and '50 will meet with the classes of '43, '42, '41, '40 and '24, '23, '22, '21. The Class of '13 is having its fiftieth reunion this year. These are the special reunions, with everything provided free by the university.

The permanent presidents of the classes make the arrangements along with the Alumni Office for the reunions. And if a class wishes to reunion sometime when it is not scheduled on the Dix Plan it has only to make its arrangements and plans with the Alumni Office.

DECK THE HALLS

It's never too early to think of Christmas shopping, for the year will be upon us quicker than you can say Jack Robinson. Have you ever wondered, incidentally, about the origin of this interesting phrase "Quicker than you can say Jack Robinson"? Well sir, the original saying was French: "Plus vite que Jacques Robespierre." Jack Robinson is as everyone knows, an Anglicization of Jacques Robespierre who was, as everyone knows, the famous figure from the French Revolution who, as everyone knows, got murdered in his bath by Marat, Caligula, and Al Capone.

For some reason people started saying "Quicker than you can say Jacques Robespierre" or Jack Robinson, as he is called in English-speaking countries like England, the U.S., and Cleveland, but that's quite an interesting little story. It seems that Robespierre's wife, Georges Sand, got word of the plot to murder Georges and in his bath. All she had to do to save his life was phone and warn him. But alas, quicker than she could say Jacques Robespierre, she received a telegram from her old friend Frederic Chopin who was then [illegible] Majorca setting lyrics to the immortal "Warsaw Concerto." Georges realized Georges Sand's help desperately needed to round out the lyrics. But Warsaw—Natch, Georges could not refuse such an urgent request.

She set off to Majorca with Georges but before she left, she told her little daughter Walter that some bad men were coming to murder Daddy as he bathed. She instructed Walter to shout Robespierre's name the moment the bad men arrived.

So Walter, alas, had been practicing that morning on the piano and she had come home with a bag full of salt water taffy but when the bad men arrived to murder Robespierre, Walter, alas, was chewing a wad of taffy and could not get her mouth unstuck in time to shout a warning. Robespierre, alas, was murdered quicker than you could say Jacques Robespierre or Jack Robinson, as he is called in English-speaking countries.

Here is, I am pleased to report, one small note of cheer in this grisly tale. When Georges Sand got to Majorca, she did succeed in helping Chopin find a rhyme for "Warsaw" as everyone knows who has heard those haunting lyrics:

In the fair town of Warsaw,
Where Napoleon's force was Scraping cuckles and mussels, over easy or

But I digress.

We were speaking of Christmas gifts. What we all try to find at Christmas is, of course, unusual and distinctive gifts for friends. May I suggest then a carton of Marlboro Cigarettes?

What? You are astonished? You had not thought of Marlboros as unusual? You had regarded them as familiar, reliable smokes whose excellence varied not one jot nor tittle from year to year?

True. All true. But all the same, Marlboros are unusual because every time you try one, it's like the first time. The flavor never palls, the filter never gets hackneyed, the soft pack is ever a new delight, and so is the Flip Top box. Each Marlboro is a fresh and pristine pleasure, and if you want all your friends to clap their hands and cry, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus!" you will see that their stockings are filled with Marlboros on Christmas morn.

Choral Union, Youth Symphony To Give Thanksgiving Concert

Choral Union and the Tallahassee Youth Symphony will present a Thanksgiving Concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Herman Gunter, Jr., is director of the 92 member choral group made up of male and female students. The Tallahassee Youth Symphony is directed by Dr. Jack Swartz, associate professor of music, and Glenn Heinlen, associate professor in the university school.

The concert will open with a group of Thanksgiving humns arranged by Dr. Irvin Cooper of the music faculty. The collection is being published by Carl Fischer Company under the title "Festival Processional." Accompaniment will be by Thomas K. Brown, organist, Dr. Cooper, pianist; and the Brass Ensemble from Phi Mu Alpha Fraternity.

The second number on the program will be Vaughn Williams' "Psalm 100." A setting of the 100th psalm, this composition builds to a climax with a unison stanza of the faimilar hymn-tune "Old Hundredth" commonly referred to as the "Doxology." Accompaniment will be a string ensemble from the University symphony.

The last portion of the program will be devoted to Puccini's "Messa di Gloria." Written by Puccini at the age of 18, it is one of the few ecclesiastical compositions by the composer, who turned his attention to the writing of opera shortly after composing the work. The Tallahassee Youth Symphony will assist in the presentation of the work.

Soloists will be James C. Davis, James Haygood, Barney Ingram, Richard D. Powell, G. Alan Benson, Samuel Welch and Mark Ellerbee.

Applications For Editor Available

Applications for editor of the "Florida Flambeau" are now being accepted, according to Bob Foss, chairman of the Board of Publications.

The new editor will be selected at the next Board of Publications meeting, Dec. 5, to replace the "Flambeau's" present editor, Miss Lana Murray, who has resigned effective at the end of the trimester.

The editor has an option of remaining in office for from one to three trimesters without running for reelection. Miss Murray is resigning because internship next trimester will prevent her fulfilling the editor's duties.

To qualify, a candidate must have a 2.3 academic average and must have held a responsible position on the "Florida Flambeau" for two trimesters. Application forms may be obtained from the Student Activities Office, Room 18, Longmire Bldg. A paper detailing plans for the operation of the newspaper and three letters of recommendation are also required with the application.

Smoke Signals, campus humor magazine, will come out Monday instead of tomorrow. The magazine will be issued on the presentation of student I.D. cards.

. . .Pay Respects

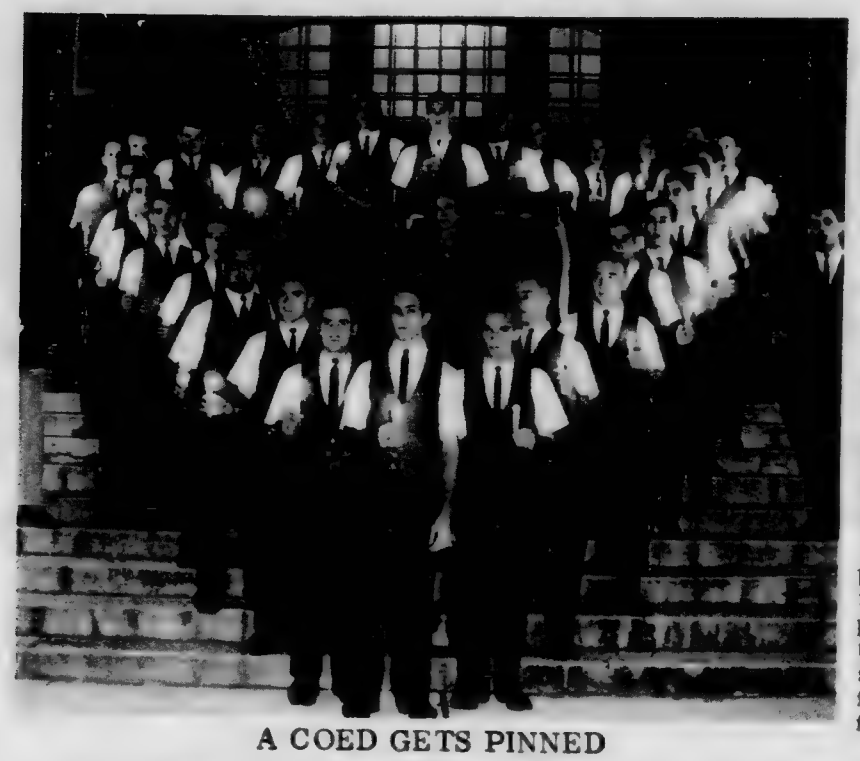
"As an institution of learning, too, we respect and honor the qualities of his intellect, a mind that was well trained, quick to perceive, able to penetrate the complex problems that were his daily routine. He stood for the right of all to educational opportunity which would enable them to develop to the fullest of their God-given talents. His leadership made brighter the prospects for strengthening higher education as a vital national resource.

"Scholar, author, Pulitzer Prize winner--John Fitzgerald Kennedy, in the short number of years in which he lived such a full life, helped to create a new respect for intelligence, for the disciplined mind. For this all colleges and universities are grateful.

"As students and teachers we mourn this man who was both an interpreter of the American way of life and a warrior for American ideals. Against the background of war we saw his profile of heroism; against the background of national crises, we have seen him move with courage no less inspiring. Time and time again he desperately sought to bring to America and to the world an understanding of the larger meaning of the ideals for which he first risked his life in the service of his country.

"And I believe it took no less courage for him to make decisions on the domestic issues which confronted him than it did to swim through the hostile waters to save the men in his command. Walter Lippman observed some months ago that seldom in American history has a leader been so quick to perceive the true nature of major social changes. He faced issues squarely; he laid his political future on the line without hesitation as he attempted to lead the Nation through a most difficult stage in its domestic development. He took what he believed to be a sound middle course, one that was both legally and morally based, and, as a consequence, he was fiercely attacked from both the far left and the far right. At the end, it was only a question from which side the bullet had come.

"As we ponder the kind of climate which is conducive to assassination and counter murder, we see anew the danger of extremists who preach fear, hatred and bigotry without regard for law and order. The divisiveness which threatens our country can be laid directly to such extremists. Perhaps we have now been shocked into seeing these groups for what they really are.



"The late President's violent death appears in one light as yet another incident where people who differ resort to violence rather than reason. Especially in a University do we have a responsibility to stand for the resolution of differences around the conference table, not on the streets, through negotiation, not the bomb or the sniper's bullet. But the opportunity of the conference table must be provided, and representatives of groups in conflict, no matter what the issue, must be willing to sit down to reason together. This is the civilized way, the intelligent way. This is the only way by which violence can be avoided.

"In this memorial convocation, then, we pay homage to the memory of the youthful and martyred president who gave so much; who in his shortened life symbolized the values that we are charged with teaching and learning; who in his death has challenged the Nation to re-examine its deals and how they shall be achieved.

"The slaying of the President was an aggression against all free men. In mourning this senseless and tragic death, let us re-affirm more boldly our belief in a purposeful life, in liberty and justice for all, and in the dignity and brotherhood of man. As students and teachers of new generations, let us move firm resolve to replace fanaticism with tolerance and prejudice with understanding, so that each of us may retrieve from these tragic days something of personal significance and lasting value that this community, this state, this nation—yes, even this world will become truly a better place in which to live."

Chaplain Minus delivered the benediction. After a brief intermission, most of the students, faculty and friends present remained to view the procession and funeral services from Washington, D.C., for the late President on special wide screen television facilities.

Sig Ep Men Serenade FSU

A COED GETS PINNED

... and the brothers of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity form a heart as they honor her with a serenade. (Photo by Frank Cabrera)

By BOB RACKLEFF

One of the most colorful and elaborate pinning serenades on the FSU campus is given by the members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

The serenades are given three or four nights per trimester after dorm and sorority house closing time, and usually six residences are serenaded per evening.

In addition to pinning ceremonies, the freshman dorms are serenaded at the beginning of the Fall trimester. Also, Gov. Farris Bryant's wife was serenaded this Fall, and a serenade for Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell is planned.

For each serenade the brothers and pledges dress uniformly in ties and red vests. At the beginning of the pinning ceremony, the "Brothers of the Golden Heart" march to the residence and form a large heart, flanked by torches and fraternity flags.

Candles are lit by the members and, after a series of songs of brotherhood, traditional drinking songs and a popular song, the pin and a bouquet of red roses are presented while the "Sweetheart Song" is sung.

During this, the name of the pinmate and fraternity initials are written in the middle of the heart with flour. At the ceremony's conclusion, the candles are slowly blown out, and each member puts a small deposit of flour where he was standing, leaving the outline of the heart on the lawn after the members march off.

Leading the Sig Eps in these serenades is Jimmy Harrison, chapter song chairman and a sophomore majoring in sacred music. Besides his efforts for the chapter, he directed Smith Hall to second place in Campus Sing last year.

Harrison is enthusiastic over the improved quality of the serenades and stated that he hopes to reach every women's dorm and sorority house by the end of the year. Also, joint serenades with the Florida Alpha chapter at the University of Florida are held yearly.

Grad Assistants Are Workers

By NANCY ALMAND
Flambeau Staff Writer

"I think we should have the same library privileges as the faculty."

"It's hard on the faculty because they have us as students and as assistants."

"Our positions should not be the same as that of a faculty member."

These and numerous other comments by the graduate student assistants, the silent workers, drew the attention of various groups on campus. The graduate student assistant forms the base of the faculty's heirarchy pyramind. He may be the quiet guy who takes the roll or the young lab instructor. The grad student assistant holds a variety of positions, all very important but none very prominent. They perform an invaluable service for the university by providing everything from assistant teachers to silent "work horses." They also have their gripes--

A graduate teacher in the school of music said that "grad students who instruct classes should have the same library privileges that faculty members enjoy. If this cannot be arranged then at least graduate instructors should have more library privileges."

Graduate instructors do have more library privileges than the undergraduate student but many of them feel that these privileges need to be extended.

A graduate instructor from the chemistry department felt that the biggest problem was in the faculty-grad relationship. He explained it as "being in a professor's class one period as his student and the next working with him as his assistant." Under these circumstances it's hard to maintain proper respect and yet have a working relationship other times.

Generally all the graduate assistants agree that the biggest problem is time. In addition to their own studies they are responsible as instructors to their individual classes. Besides the grading of papers, lesson plans, etc., these grads also have the contact class period: the time they actually conduct class.

Graduate assistants do not actually hold a position on the faculty as such. They do not have an official title. They are referred to as instructors for lack of a better name. They are, however, not instructors in the political sense of the word.

Applications for a graduate assistantship is made to the head of the major department. Once he receives an assistantship he must discharge his duties satisfactorily in addition to maintaining an A or B average in one half of his courses to remain eligible.

Even among the graduate instructors there is a heirarchy which is to a large degree based on seniority. First year grads being the lowest, second next, and on up to fourth year grads who have completed the series of four tests and consequently hold the highest status.

The graduate assistant has three distinct roles. In his own class he is master; in his "assistanting" a professor he is a subordinate; and in class he is a student. Master, subordinate, or student, the graduate instructor serves as the silent worker at the base of the faculty's heirarchy pyramid.

SUMMER BITES THE DUST

Winter Is Here Again

Winter presents a bleak and bleary appearance over the once beautiful campus of FSU as Summer gathers her greenery. Autumn scoops up armfuls of her multi-colored leaves fallen from trees and the two pleasant seasons slip away for another year.

Sycamore trees stand naked and white against the grey skies as the month of November whirls into the past. Tons of yellow and red leaves scamper before students' footfalls.

Brisk winds howl around classroom buildings and dorms as coeds wrap their scarves warmly around wind-pinched cheeks. The air smells of football, Thanksgiving and basketball... with final exams looming as menacingly for some scholars as the wintry blasts of December.

Maintenance men cease watering the sidewalks and being mowing leaves in a vain though courageous effort to staunch the leafy tide now flowing FSU's grounds.

Seminoles Sharpen Gator Gigs

By BOB DENSMORE
Assistant Sports Editor

The scalping knives are being honed to a keen edge as the Seminoles prepare to break camp for their annual quest into the land of the Gator. Strong medicine is being brewed within the sheltering walls of Doak Campbell Stadium, in hopes of a successful gigging expedition.

The earth has revolved around the sun four times since the Florida Legislature, against the pleading cries of the Gator population, declared the reptiles a fair Seminole game.

Each year the hopes of gigging the Gators have been thwarted. Only once have the Seminoles come close to filling their quota of scalps. This was in 1961 when the reptiles were morally wounded with a 3-3 tie.

In 1958 the series opener, the Gators whipped the Tribe 21-7. In 1959 it was the same story only a different score, 18-8. 1960 saw the score narrow. 3-0. Last year was a relapse of the '58 game, as the score read 20-7. Totaling up the points for the series, the G'Ville reptiles have accumlated 65 compared to a lowly 25 for the Tallahasseeans.

This year doesn't look too much different than any of the previous ones. The Gators are still the favored team as far as everyone in the state, excepting the Associated Press, is concerned.

The Gators do have weaknesses, however.

Florida's ends have the potential to be, as a well known MC might say, really great. Their performance, to date, however, has been lackluster. Gator halfbacks have caught more passes than the ends.

The Gator backfield consists of one man, Larry Dupree. If it weren't for Dupree, known to his teammates as "Deputy Dawg," Florida's rushing would be nowhere near its present average of over a hundred yards per game.

Tom Shannon, the Gator quarterback, is in the minus column when it comes to rushing and has been known to become flustered when faced with a heavy rush. Florida is especially lacking in good halfbacks; as a result the Gators have been blanked three times this season a rarity which has not occurred since 1945.

The Gator secondary is one of the strongest in the South. Bruce Bennett and Ken Russel are its bulwarks. Until the Miami game last week, Gator opponents had completed only 39 percent of thir passes. Miami's Mira proved, however, that they were far from invulnerable.

The linebackers are another strong point on the Gators side of the slate. Middle linebackers Jack Katz and Bill Richborg back up every play and very rarely grant an opponent over ten yards on a rushing play. Syd Maclean and Dennis Murphy are good at rushing passers, but are not too agile when it comes to cornering a roll-out quarterback.

Florida's corner linebackers are light which compounds the weakness of the defensive ends.

The strongest part of the Gator's

US Must Stop Playing 'Let's Pretend' - Drury

By MARCI ROBBINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

"We must stop playing the game of 'let's pretend;' we must be willing to [illegible] in a nuclear way all that we hold dear in order to keep it," Allen Drury -- Pulitzer prize winner, journalist, and author -- told a capacity crowd Monday night in Opperman.

Drury deviated from his original theme, "The Political Novel," to talk generally about the nation and its system of government; reserving til the question period novel writing. Instead, he spoke on a more serious question. "Too often, we are distracted from the clear view we ought to have by the game of "let's pretend." He elaborated by saying that "Children play this game for a while and then discard it, but grown men play so they won't have to face the hardened reality of a world placed upon the intoxication of words without meaning."

This "will o' the wisp" concept has developed out of the growing complexities of te word, and in particular since th end of World War II when our military forces decided not to take Berlin. Today, the same "let's pretend" concept may be seen in the handling of the South Eastern Asian countries.

Drury stated that "we must take a stand; I don't know where or how and by the time it occurs our position may have been whittled down to one square inch." He said that the US often is baffling to her allies because of this indecisiveness.

He emphasized that our leaders must realize that our enemies are not nice; these people need to be handled wit firmness.

Drury asserted that when we do stand firm for something we believe in, the Russians will back down; we can come out on top without a nuclear holocaust.

"Firmness is the solution," Drury said, "the same kind of firmness that was used in the confrontation of the Soviet over Cuba a year ago."

When raising the question of war, Drury stated that "Only by being unafraid of war, can we avoid it; we must accept it and go on from there.... Then conquer we must, for our cause it is just.' " He said that usually "there are alternatives other than war, but the quickest way t get into war is by being weak.

"A job has been given us," stated Drury. "The job of savingfreedom because what is right is right and what is wrong is wrong. If we come to the support of right it doesn't matter how many horrors are threatened against us. History has come along and tapped us on the shoulder and said, 'You're it'."

Drury has had many years of experience in Washington as a political reporter. He began covering the Senate on November 26, 1943, and has known President Lyndon Johnson since this time... "He is an able legislative tactician and technician and very able legislative leader. He's probably better equipped than almost any man who has entered the office. He won't be as adept as John Kennedy at stating goals; he is more apt to get on the phone and ask Joe Blow to get out the vote."

In answer to a question, Drury said his advocacy of firmness doesn't rule out the idea of co-existence as understood by the West.

"I'd be perfectly happy if the Soviet Union would just leave us alone," he said. "Peaceful co-existence encourages the game of let's prentend." "We (the US) mean it to be peaceful, while Russia means peace right down their lines."

He declared, "The Russians are more patient than we are, we need to hit tight in what we believe in; we are too apt to get an agreement for the sake of having an agreement, rather than maintaining firmness."

Wadsworth To Lecture On Permanent Peace Prospects

James J. Wadsworth, former United States ambassador to the United Nations, will speak on "Prospects for Permanent Peace" in Westcott Auditorium Wednesday night.

He will appear at FSU in the University Lecture Series. The address will be at 8:30 p.m. The public is invited.

James J. Wadsworth

Wadsworth's lecture is planned in honor of the 672 students expecting to receive degrees following the completion of the first trimester. Thomas Haney, senior class president, will preside. FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell and Joe Rodgers, class vice president, will aslo be present.

After the lecture Dr. and Mrs. Blackwell will be hosts at a reception for graduates, their families and friends in Longmire Auditorium.

As head of the American delegation in 1960, Wadsworth parried Khrushchev's shoe-pounding thrusts at an historic October General Assembly meeting.

He is author of a book, "The Price of Peace," published in 1962. The "Saturday Review" said of it: "This book is required reading for those who search for ways to work constructively for the survival of mankind."

Wadsworth has served as chairman of the national Citizens Committee for a Nuclear Test Ban, and is past president of the Peace Research Institute. This agency serves as a private non-profit agency outside government to undertake and stimulate research in fields relevant to peace, security, disarmament and international order.

From 1953 to 1960, he was deputy to Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. From 1958 to 1961 he was United States representative on disarmament and acted as chief negotiator for the US in international discussions on disarmament. He also was chief of the US delegation to a conference which drafted the statute of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Wadsworth saw service in a number of posts in federal government prior to his appointment to the UN. He was deputy and later acting administrator of the Federal Civil Defense Administration; director of the Civil Defense Office of the National Security Resources Board; American senior representative on the United States -- Canadian Joint Civil Defense Mission. For two years he was special assistant to the administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Gator Paper Loses Editor

Editor of the Florida Alligator, David Lawrence, Jr., was removed from office Monday by the Board of Publications at the University of Florida.

He was suspended for "repeated irresponsibility," "violations of publications policies," and "breaches of sound journalism policies."

Lawrence, a journalism senior from Oneco, Florida, recently received an award for good reporting at the Sigma Delta Chi national convention.

The statement from the board read, "Mr. Lawrence has been considered for removal on two previous occassions. His former violations and breaches played a major role in today's action."

A University spokesman said the board was "a good Board" and predicted that Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, president of the University of Florida, would uphold the board's action.

John Askins, journalism senior from Bradenton, has been appointed acting Editor.

Faculty Coffee Set

A Thanksgiving coffee will be today for faculty and staff of FSU in the large lounge of Longmire Building.

The coffee will begin at 10:15 a.m., according to Dr. Gregg Phifer, president of the Faculty Christain Fellowship, sponsor of the event. FSU president Gordon W. Blackwell will be the speaker.

Invocation and benediction will be by Dr. Robert O. Lawton, associate dean of Arts and Sciences. Miss Betty Jane Grimm will sing with piano accompaniment by Miss Mary E. Winslow. Both are of the School of Music faculty. Dr. James C. Smith, associate professor of psychology is chairman of the coffee and vice president of the Faculty Christian Fellowship.

Gator Gigging

FSU's unpredictable Fighting Seminoles once again venture into Gatorland this weekend for another try at falling their smug arch-enemy.

In the years since FSU's first football team tackled the University of Florida, the rivalry between the two universities has been fierce and merciless. While the Seminoles have yet to celebrate a win over the Gators, their 3-3 tie in 1961 was hailed as a "moral victory," and a revolving trophy (a section of a goalpost enthusiastic FSU fans hauled down) was set up to be claimed each year by the winner.

We confidently expect to "Stomp the Hell out of U of F" this week, all in the spirit of good clean fun. The team is eager to turn in its best performance to wreak vengeance on the foe, and this weekend's victory will make it a Happy Thanksgiving for FSU students.

But a victory over The Other University transcends the fleeting satisfaction of putting the Gators in their place. It will take a victory on the football field to awaken the people of Florida to a fact that has been evident in academic circles for several years: that FSU is no longer willing to be thought of as second-best to the U of F. . .or to anyone else.

This impression has been fostered by FSU's short history as a coeducational institution, and by the prominence in Florida politics and business of UF graduates. But FSU now offers stiff competition in terms of prestige (if not yet in terms of alumni dollars) and is tired of being slighted.

Some sports writers have predicted FSU will win over UF in football only when we have them on our own territory. The hoped-for stadium expansion plan, recently crushed by the Board of Control, would have facilitated bargaining for alternating the game site, so that every other year FSU could rake in the profits of what is rapidly becoming the biggest and most exciting game of the season for Floridians. Denying FSU even the opportunity to present carefully formulated proposals at an opportune time, the BOC has--wittingly or unwittingly--perpetuated the myth of the Giant Gator.

A victory Saturday would help dispel that myth. We are looking forward to seeing the fallen Gator served up with the left-over turkey.

Garner's U.N. Column Questioned

To the Editor:

In reading Keith Garner's column on the United Nations in the "Flambeau" for November 20, one receives the impression that here is a young man who has done his homework. How many of his readers are familiar with the names Pasvolsky or Sobelov? Yet not only is Mr. Garner at home with these foreign-sounding names, he apparently has done much original research in order to cull the facts which he presents to his readers. Or has he?

It just so happens that the first three sentences of his column were lifted almost verbatim from a little pamphlet, "Know the United Nations," put out by The Watch Washington (D.C. not George, I suppose) Club. As they say, the proof is in the pudding. So here is the documentation for my charge that Garner has lived up to his name and indeed has garnered information from a more or less reliable source, a secondary and not a primary source, and has not given credit where it is due.

Garner: "The United Nations Charter, with parts copied directly from the Soviet Constitution, was written by two State Department [illegible] who were later shown to be Communists. Their names are Alger Hiss and Leo Pasvolsk..."

Original source: "[illegible] the U.N. charter, with parts copied directly from the Sovier Constitution, was written by two State Department Communists--Alger Hiss and Leo Pasvolsky. . ."

In all fairness to Mr. Garner it should be pointed out that whoever edited his column before it appeared in print made two, and only two, changes in the wording. Whereas Mr. Garner's column originally read with "Do you know that. . ." (which is the exact same way in which the first sentence in "Know the United Nations" begins) and Mr. Garner used the word, proven, which was replaced with the word, shown in his opening sentence.

More evidence:

Garner: "Furthermore, Alger Hiss and Molotov made a secret agreement whereby the post of the U.N. Military Staff Committee would be permanently held by a Moscow Communist.

Original source: "[illegible] by secret agreement of Hiss and Molotov, the Chief of the U.N. Military Staff Committee was [illegible] permanently a Soviet Communist.

Where the original source asks "Why important?" Keith Garner states, "This is particularly important. . ." In addition, the last sentence was taken almost verbatim from the last page of "Know the United Nations."

In a less ambivalent age Mr. Garner would be considered a plagiarist. If he lifted words from the pamphlet, he does not deserve to remain as a regular member of the "Flambeau" staff. If he read the pamphlet and later unconsciously used many of the words contained within that pamphlet, then certainly his judgment should be questioned and he ought to acknowledge publicly his source and the fact that he made no such acknowledgement without attention being focused upon his error.

In his column Mr. Garner promises us another article on the U.N. for those of one of his faithful readers, I would suggest that he could make a more valuable contribution to our understanding of the U.N. if he would do independent research in primary and reliable secondary sources.

'Your Actions Betray You'

To the Editor:

. . .yes, I saw it spread over the campus like a plague. THE PRESIDENT IS DEAD!! These four words reached deeper, twisted tighter, and moved more people in more different directions than any other recent nation crisis. Our scattered country must now draw together, unite around our nation's principles.

Please, you who have mourned our dear President so devotedly this past weekend, tell me. What did/do you mourn? Do you mourn Kennedy the man, country, or policy? Shouldn't you mourn all three? Kennedy, the man, represented the individual U.S. family citizen. Kennedy, the country, represented these United States before the eyes of all the world. Kennedy represented a very dynamic internal policy.

I am ashamed by the false pretense under the guise of which so many mourn. Hypocrites! How can you support segregation based on prejudice: a definite breech of Kennedy's and our nation's civil rights policy. Grieved hypocrites, your actions betray you to all.

Letter Not Factual

To the Editor:

In a letter to the editor, Mr. Eko Purwoto attempts to whitewash the actions of the Indonesian government in regards to its policy on the Federation of Malaysia.

I find that the statements numbered "two" and "three" are inconsistent with the facts as reported by such informational media as "Time," "Newsweek," and "U.S. News and World Report," each of which has, it might be noted, referred to President Sukarno as belligerent and as violently and "bitterly opposing the federation."

This quotation alone would seem to nullify Mr. Purwoto's statement that "The Republic of Indonesia is not opposed to formation of Malaysia," since Mr. Sukarno himself has loudly proclaimed "I am Indonesia" to assembled crowds throughout his country.

In regard to his statement number "three" in which Mr. Purwoto stresses Indonesia's unqualified sense of fair play, here is something from "U.S. News and World Report" which serves to demonstrate to the world Mr. Sukarno's and therefore Indonesia's idea on what Mr. Purwoto refers to as the "adherence to the right of self-determination for peoples of non-self governing territories."

"At the insistence of . . . Sukarno . . .Malaysia's independence had been postponed two weeks beyond the original August 31 starting date, while a United Nations team investigated whether or not North Borneo and Sarawak really wanted to join (both were reported by the U.N. as favoring federation).

Hoping to influence opinion against federation, Sukarno began moving paratroop along his 900 mile long border with the two territories. Some Indonesian guerrillas even sneaked through the jungles into Sarawak to stir up trouble; they were relentlessly hunted down by tough little British army Gurkhas, aided by halfnaked Iban tribesmen, who hung up at least one Indonesian head in the rafters of their long houses."

If Mr. Sukarno would only work in a logical and constructive manner to improve the internal conditions in his country, he might not have to resort to the age-old ruse of cranking up visions of imaginary aggressors to divert his people's attention from their own poverty, misery and privation.

Dislike Expressed

To the Editor:

I have long been in disagreement with the editorial policies of the "Flambeau," but a number of recent issues of the paper have prompted me to write this letter. I cannot in good conscience willingly lend support to a school newspaper whose only criterion for selection of its columnists is an expressed willingness by the columnist to contribute material.

This discerning policy has given us such Expounders of Enlightenment as Matt Straub who can in one breath inanely inform us that if Senator Goldwater were elected president he would get us out of the U.N., abolish the income tax, ad nauseam, and in the next breath condemn supporters of the Senator for not knowing anything about their candidate!

The policy has produced columnists such as Paul Brown (Flambeau, November 20) who is able to analyze Conservatism in six paragraphs (a task which took Russell Kirk 600 pages) and conclude that Conservatism's answer to Communism is "The Bomb." The policy has in essence given us writers who are for the most part uninformed and certainly not of a caliber befitting a college readership.

I consider it personally offensive when the Flambeau published the opinions of socialist Thomas Riggins and yet refused to publish a letter in which I took the time to challenge his opinions. And all the while I am forced to subsidize the Flambeau.

Furthermore, I do not believe the editors of the Flambeau accurately reflect the opinions of the majority of the student body. In short, it is time for a change.

I do not agree completely with Mr. Holley that the Flambeau's funds should be withdrawn; I recognize the value of a school newspaper and realize that the paper probably could

Writer Finds Final Answer

To the Editor:

I've given the race problem [illegible] thought lately, but no answer seems to be resulting from the [illegible]. Attempting to survey the [illegible] on a national basis didn't seem how bring me to a solution. It was the international scene which gave me the insight. Now, I have the ultimate answer.

All those who firmly believe in total segregation call yourselves to arms in a mass meeting; likewise for those of you who say total integration is the only answer. From your desire to demonstrate for either cause, in separate camps, and from the influence abroad--you all will burn yourselves at the stake.

This will leave the remainder for us who will solve the problem anyway, incidentally, on an [illegible] basis. This is the ultimate answer, my friends, as individuals (black or white) and with individuals (black or white).

National Social Fraternity Offers Graduate Fellowship

Alpha Xi Delta, national social fraternity for college women, is again offering a graduate fellowship of $1,500 for advanced study in the field of social service.

This annual award was first made in 1959 because the sorority agreed with the civic authorities and juvenile court officials that there is an increasing need for trained personnel to work with youngsters.

The history of Alpha Xi Delta's first national philanthropy began in the early twenties. However, it was not until 1948 that a definite trend was established and the decision made to support the American child through local and national projects.

Following this trend, combating juvenile delinquency was approved by the sorority's National Council in 1958. It was believed by the Council that not only would this type of program help the members as individuals by accomplishing rewarding philanthropic work, but would also make a contribution to the whole country through local and national efforts by fighting one of the greatest of the ever-increasing problems of twentieth century living.

To be eligible for this fellowship award, an applicant must be a graduate of an accredited college or university, have an outstanding scholastic record, and be interested in pursuing a career of working with children or youth to prevent or combat delinquency in the U.S.

Interested persons may obtain an application for this fellowship from Kay Isaly, Alpha Xi Delta house. Completed applications should be sent to the National Philanthropy Chairman and postmarked no later than March 1, 1964.

FSU Coed Vies For Cotton Title

Mary Alice Leonard, nineteen-year-old FSU coed, is the Sunshine State's first entry in the 1964 Maid of Cotton contest, the National Cotton Council announced.

Miss Leonard is from Blountstown, Fla., and is majoring in elementary education. The Maid of Cotton candidate is on the dean's list and belongs to the Florida and National Education Associations.

Miss Leonard also serves on the Christian Science Organization Executive Board, and was a delegate to the organization's International College meeting in Boston, Mass.

At Blountstown High School Miss Leonard was a member of the National Honor Society, president of Future Homemakers of America, a Cheerleader, and in the Homecoming and May Day Courts. She was awarded the Blountstown Rotary Club Senior Scholarship.

If she is named one of the 20 finalists in the national Maid of Cotton selection, Miss Leonard will receive an expense-paid trip to Memphis, Tenn., for two days of interviews and public appearance, Dec. 29-30. The girl chosen as the cotton industry's fashion and good will emissary will make an exciting world-wide tour for King Cotton.

To be eligible for the Maid of Cotton title, a girl must be between 19 and 25 years of age, at least five feet and one-half inches tall, have been born in a cotton-producing state, and have never married.

Applications for candidates may be obtained from the National Cotton Council, 1918 North Parkway, Memphis, and must be returned by Dec. 1.

STAR GATOR GRIDDERS WHO BLOCK TRIBE'S CHANCES OF A STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

"Bunch Of Rejects?"

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

As the Seminoles start down the football home stretch for the finale Saturday against arch-rival Florida, things are looking bad.

The Tribe is favored over the reptiles, but not by much. Ends Red Dawson and George D'Allesandro, key men in the Seminole defense are out of the game, while end Jim Causey and halfback Dave Snyder are doubtful starters.

Florida State has managed to win only one game which they entered as the favorite, Wake Forest. The Gators have shown their ability to rise to a fever pitch this year by thumping Alabama at Tuscaloosa, and consider it much to their advantage to be the underdog.

Even Head Coach Bill Peterson is as nervous as a long-tailed cat in a room full of rockers. He says, "I think that the UF is, after winning their last two games, coming up to the potential they were supposed to have at the beginning of the season. For us to win, we have to hit like we did after halftime at Auburn."

He continued, "Our defense must be superior, for they have great backs who can beat you on any one particular play." This statement automatically brings to mind the action in the game last year when FSU was ahead 7-6 after the half but saw the lead go down the drain on a 62 yard punt return by Hagood Clarke.

Peterson is confident, however, of one thing, "Florida is going to play their greatest game. If they won, it would be their greatest victory of the season. Frankly, we're not good enough to hold our own with a good team like this if they get high for us. We're going to have to play sound football the whole game to have a chance."

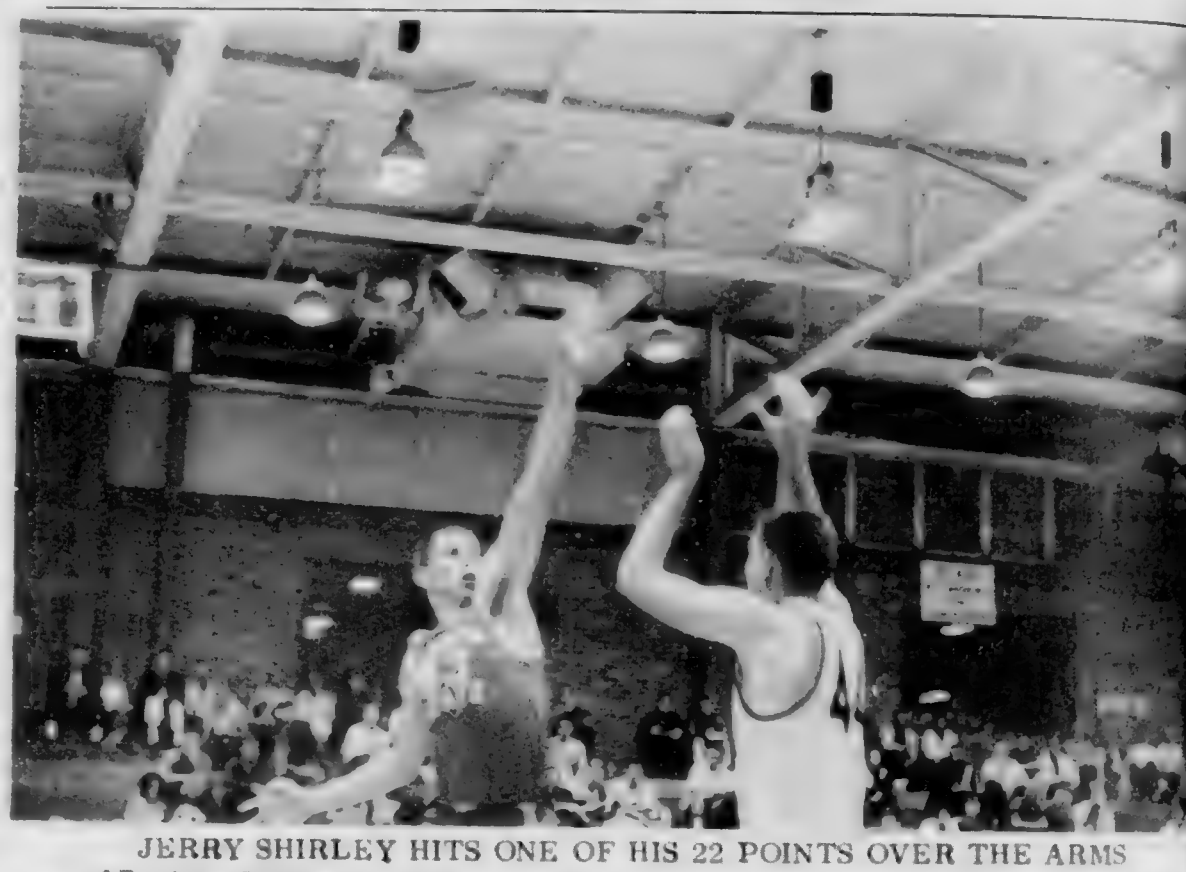
"This is our biggest game this year. Since we have beaten Miami, we will have the state championship if we hold the Gators. We want to be the best in the state."

Can the Seminoles hold that Gator? Ask your friendly football player. It's up to him!

Gator Quotes

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

After a stinging 20-7 victory last year, University of Florida Quarterback Tom Shannon declared that it was his impression that Florida State football players were a "bunch of rejects," players that the U of F did not want.



Other Gator players to give unbiased opinions were tackle Gerald Odum, end Billy Cash, guard Larry Travis, and senior end Floyd Dean. Odum quipped in the jubilant Gator Dressing Room, "They (FSU) have been asking for it. They've been blowing their own horn for a long time and now someone finally took it away from them."

"They can't say we were lucky, Cash added. "I didn't think they even deserved their touchdown and we could have scored two more."

"We just knocked it out," senior guard Travis chimed in. "We really wanted it and it was a great team win. They moved well but I didn't think they hit very hard."

Dean got into the ax act by saying he hoped, "they don't think we got the breaks. It was a good game. They did what we thought they would. We made mistakes and still beat them."

272 pound Frank Lasky added, "They had a real good defense, but offensewise, they weren't as good as they were cracked up to be. FSU has a good hustling team, but we could beat them ten out of ten times."

JERRY SHIRLEY HITS ONE OF HIS 22 POINTS OVER THE ARMS . . . of Freshman Bill Glenn of Tallahassee. Shirley played his usual good game to be the evening's high scorer while Glenn was second only to Ron Malmen for freshman point honors, had g[illegible] kers.

Varsity Drubs Freshmen

Florida State's young varsity basketball team, featuring seven sophomores and only four seniors, overcame a few scares from the surprising freshman team to post an expected victory, by the margin of 95-7. A large crowd of over 1500 witnessed the first annual meeting between the two squads.

Junior Center Jerry Shirley led both squads with 22 points, with frosh standout Ron Malmen close behind with 20 points. Other high scorers were Larry Bulger with 10 and Jim Wallace with 8 for the varsity, and Bill Glenn with 11 and Ken Doyle with 9 for the yearlings.

The varsity jumped off to an early lead and maintained at least a five point spread throughout the contest. The closest point of the game came with 39 seconds left in the first half when the Freshmen pulled up to a 35-30 deficit.

Head Coach Hugh Kennedy was pretty well pleased with the overall play although both showed it was their first game in their nervousness and mistakes. Malmen and Shirley were standouts.'

"This is a pleasant type game to play," he added, "because you can't lose when you have an intrasquad game. This one tonight was a real crowd pleaser since we played a 'run and shoot' game with zone defense." Both Kennedy and freshman coach Lake Kelly were well pleased with the "good turnout and fine student support which was a fine tribute to the boys."

JAZZ GREAT

...Basie will be appearing in Westcott Auditorium tomorrow night ... shows at 7 and 9 p.m. Tickets are $2 and may be purchased at The ... and the Sweetshop and at Nic's Taggers.

Jazz King Count Basie To Perform Tomorrow

The "most explosive force in jazz" will be at FSU tomorrow, when Count Basie holds two shows in Westcott at 7 and 9 p.m.

Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Theta fraternities are sponsoring the FSU performance of Count Basie and his band. Tickets are on sale in various locations on the campus for $2 for students and the general public.

Count Basie began playing at an early age and was soon working night sports around New York City. He joined Walter Page's "Blue Devils," and then became a member of Benny Molten's band. When Molten died in 1935, Basie was elected leader of the band.

Basie and his 10-piece band, whle playing on a Kansas City radio station, were discovered by John Hammond. The group was soon on its way to Chicago.

Except for a period in 1950-51 when Basie led a "swingin' sextet," he has been a leader of a jazz band for over 25 years.

Through his many concerts such as the Carnegie Hall performance in 1959 Basie has personally led a crusade for jazz. Such hits as his "One O'clock Jump" have thrilled many.

Besides being a crusader, Basie has been an innovator in the jazz field.

Jazz a la organ was born in 1954 when Basie and his band toured Europe.

At the Waldorf-Astoria in 1954, Basie celebrated his 20 years as a band leader at the first testimonial dinner to be given a jazz band leader. Both old and new members of his band helped the leader celebrate.

Basie's fame is international. He has given a command performance for Queen Elizabeth, and has won several French awards.

American renown has not been far behind. In 1961, Count Basie and his band played by invitation at the Inaugurla Ball for then President-Elect Kennedy.

Basie and his band have won many honors among them the International Jazz Critic's Poll. They have topped reader's polls held in "Down Beat," a jazz and musician's magazine, and headed the major American jazz festivals.

'Maids,"Dumb Waiter' On Stage This Week

"The Maids" "The Dumb Waiter" will be presented on Thursday and Friday at 8:15 p.m. in Conradi Theatre.

"The Maids," a play written by Jean Genet, is the story of two maids who play both at being Madame and maid, only to discover in their illusionary game that reality and illusion can and do meet. Playing the maids are Julie Baldwin as Claire and Rosemary Miniham as Solange. Ann Angell will be seen as the Madame.

"The Dumbwaiter," written by Harold Pinter, presents seemingly ordinary events charged with profound, but elusive, meaning, haunting pathos and hilarious comedy. In the play a pair of gunmen, Ben and Gus, await the arrival of their unknown advisor, Mr. Wilson. Pinter gradually displays the inner strains and fears of these men by uncovering their hidden loneliness.

The two characters, Ben and Gus, are being played by Keith Carlson and James Morrison respectively.

Sammy Kilman, a graduate student in theatre and a master's candidate, is directing the two one act dramas as part of his thesis project. Mr. Kilman is from DeRidder, Louisiana and received his A.B. degree in theatre from FSU after attending Centenary College in Louisiana. Kilman directed the annual children's show in 1962, "The Cobbler and the Little People," which he adapted for the stage. In addition he has received two Best Actor awards. One was for his role of Gant in "Look Homeward, Angel" and another for Falstaff in Henry IV, Part I.

He was recently seen on the FSU stage in the role of Archie Kramer in "summer and Smoke" and just last week played the part of the scarecrow in "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz." Last summer he was with the Asolo Theatre Comedy Festival in Sarasota, Florida.

The Angel Flight Commander is a senior majoring in Spanish, a sister in Kappa Delta sorority, and was selected to be among the 36 FSU students to appear in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

She is a member of both Phi Kappa Phi, education and arts and sciences honorary, and Sigma Delta Pi, Spanish honorary. She has maintained a 3.7 overall scholastically.

She serves as a senior justice on the Honor Court, is a member of Garnet Key and Mortar Board and has been chosen twice successively as Angel Flight Commander.

The "Little Colonel" was selected on the basis of beauty, poise, personality, extra-curricular activities, scholastic achievement and her dedication to both Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society.

To complement this honor FSU was selected as the new Angel Flight Headquarters. As of April, 1964, the FSU Angel Flight and its officers will coordinate all Angel Flight activities of the ten colleges and universities in this area.

As Area Headquarters, FSU will be able to send two delegates to the National Conclave in Denver.

The new Arnold Air Society Area Headquarters will be at the University of Puerto Rico. The FSU delegation announced that they would be sponsoring an area drill competition for all Angel Flights some time in March.

Drinking Cases Tried By Court

University Court tried several cases involving alcoholic beverages among coeds and men of FSU last week.

One man was given the remainder of the year on University Court probation for drinking on university property and giving an alcoholic beverage to a coed.

Another male student was given one trimester of University Court probation for having a woman student in his apartment on several occasions.

A coed has been given four weeks full restrictions and the remainder of the year on University Court probation for being in a man's apartment on several occasions and drinking alcoholic beverages.

Another woman student received three weeks full restrictions for drinking an alcoholic beverage.

Women's Judiciary also issued partial restrictions to six women student for four violations of rules.

Three coeds received three days partial restrictions for improper sign outs. One coed received five days restriction for returning late from a weekend trip.

One woman was given seven days partial restriction for leaving the university without her counselor's approval and without proper permission.

Another received five days partial restriction for failing to sign out for a weekend trip.

A Flaming Example

(From The Tampa Tribune)

Despite the rattle of gunfire, there was a festivé air in Caracas yesterday, for Venezuelans were proud and confident that presidential elections would come off as scheduled today. They had ample cause for pride, too, for the country has endured an unceasing torment of terrorism from Communists and Castro-ites seeking to disrupt the democratic process.

Although there were last-minute killings, bus burnings, and tack-tossing, thousands of people swarmed onto the streets defying the last-ditch ultimatum of the Castro underground to stay under cover until Tuesday, or be shot down.

There was every indication that the elections would take place as planned.

* * * * *

It was an explosive climax to the stormiest siege of harassment any nation has had to endure in years. The value of the vote was underscored for Venezuelans as it seldom is to Americans who view the ballot too casually and apathetically too often.

But the sturdy Latin Americans paid for their right to vote in blood. Government police were not the only victims of the FALN (Armed Forces for Liberation). Scores of innocent people were cut down by bullets while going about their daily tasks.

The Communist objective was a massive boycott of the ballot by fear, so that the election would be voided.

Retiring President Romulo Betancourt, himself the target of repeated assassination attempts, has declared repeatedly that the terrorists have been goaded and financed by Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba. Last week, he was able to produce damning evidence that perhaps could prove his case convincingly.

A cache of three tons of modern automatic weapons was discovered on Venezuela's Paraguana peninsula, and the markings definitely established their origin in Cuba.

Betancourt formally called for "joint definite action" against Cuba by the Organization of American States, "to finish with this bridgehead of communism in America." In seeking a meeting of the Council of the OAS, he said, "There will not be peace in this hemisphere as long as Fidel Castro exists in Cuba."

The State Department in Washington has reaffirmed US support of the Betancourt regime as well as the belief that the weapons "beyond doubt" came from Cuba.

Judging by its past actions, the Organization of American States is unlikely to produce much decisive "action" against Castro. Too many of its member nations seem to have viewed foot-dragging on Cuba as a way of showing they don't always have to go along with the Yanqui colossus of the north.

But they will be ignoring as plain a case of intervention in the affairs of another nation as even existed on the South American continent -- perpetuated by Communist subversion, not the US.

* * * * *

Venezuela is a flaming example of the lengths to which the Red underground will go to overturn an existing government that has displayed reforming abilities of its own. Betancourt's regime is proving its pliability, though, with the apparent support of the masses. Its land reforms and efforts to do away with illiteracy have paid off, it the election goes through as scheduled.

The plucky republic has been through its "baptism of fire" in the effort to continue a government elected by the people. May it be lucky enough to elect a president who will prove as resolute as Betancourt in fighting for the people's rights--and persuasive enough to convince his Latin American colleagues of the danger of permitting a Communist canker in the Caribbean to remain untouched.

Voting By Uninformed Is Senseles

It's unbelievable the way the American people have pulled the wool over their own eyes. More unbelievable still is the vehemence with which they defend their right to hold it there. The wool to which I refer is that erroneous precept of our "democracy" that every qualified voter should be obligated, pushed, prodded, or even coerced to perform that sacred ritual: TO GET OUT AND VOTE.

Humbug!

The October 26 issue of "Post" Magazine carries a challenging article entitled "Stay Home and Don't Vote." John Keats' opening paragraph follows:

"Nothing is more ludicrous than the idea that all citizens must vote. The present fact of the matter is that most Americans should not be allowed within 10 miles of the polling booths (this November 8), when they turn out to vote for the usual, faceless gaggle of county assessors, district aldermen, and similar satraps."

The very basis of the alleged "rule of the majority" in this country is that the vote of one citizen is as good as the vote of any other. We accept this fact, without [illegible] that is, until someone [illegible] this "democrat[illegible] other organiz[illegible] we scream that [illegible] newly independent r[illegible] est Africa, for example, be considered as [illegible] of the US. We see [illegible] must be amiss [illegible]

The fact is that [illegible] political qualifications at all eligible to vote [illegible] backwoods re[illegible] once a month and [illegible] judicial "convict[illegible] time carries the same weight as vote of a Professor of Polit[illegible] Science who has dev[illegible] life to the study [illegible] this apparent anom[illegible] to bother us at all!

In fact, during the[illegible] mediately preceding [illegible] every influential voice [illegible] waves with such tr[illegible] matter for whom (or [illegible] -- but VOTE." It does[illegible] Then why?

Why could we let ourselves pushed to the polls [illegible] without any idea of what we're for? Why should we get the that by pulling these levers we somehow fulfilling our "[illegible] citizens of a "democracy" [illegible] we encouraged to discharge our h[illegible] duty in a few minutes [illegible] wrestling and not encouraged informed of issues the bearing

The responsibility of citizen[illegible] a full-time job. Voting sh[illegible] result of as thorough investig[illegible] as is necessary to uncover [illegible] guarded issues; it should be result of of careful, rat[illegible] eration; it should not be regard[illegible] (as it is today) as an end in itself, the alpha and omega of conscientiou[illegible] citizenship.

But who in the world has [illegible] time to be a full time citizen[illegible] make what I consider to be [illegible] great effort to be informed [illegible] itical issues, but it would be [illegible] for me to think that I were informed. Except for independently wealthy scholars, political scientists, [illegible] politicians, one simply doesn't have enough time to be a legitimate citizen! Carpenters must carpent, farmers must farm, lawyers must lawyer, demonstrators must demonstrate, and students must student.

Why then should the politically naive and ignorant masses (including most of us who are supposed to be 'educated') be even PERMITTED -- let alone encouraged -- to regularly indulge in the soul-cleansing ritual of casting ballots? Why should we be pressured to believe that we are an informed public having a say about the way we are governed? We are not!

If we put away the erroneous concept of mass-majority rule and left politics to those who are somehow qualified to be politicians, I suggest that we could stop helping others to mislead us. It seems likely that -- in addition-- there would be more people attempting to qualify themselves as legitimate citizens instead of erringly believing that they already are. Perhaps we might even attain representative democracy. Who knows?

Time To Take Stand

The picketers are peacefully picketing the Mecca. There has been no trouble perhaps because students have been prohibited from congregating around the picketers. The high tension which resulted in front of the University Inn has passed, and the majority of the students have returned to their normal apathy.

But I would hazard to guess to that many students, who are apparently apathetic, have very strong convictions. The racial issue is the foremost national issue of the day and has little sign of diminishing in the near future. Now to further speculate, I feel that it is undoubtedly true that many students are maintaining neutrality because of the repercussions of taking a stand. Harry Reasoner recently pointed this out in regard to politicians. But perhaps we can excuse politicians because their thinking is supposed to conform with the thinking of the majority of their constituency.

Whose thinking is the student's supposed to conform with? Is it to conform to the particular fraternity church group, club or group of associates? Is it really best not to rock the boat and simply go along with the crowd? It is probably certainly the easiest.

There already appears to be considerable faculty support in favor of the integration of the off campus eating establishments. The Liberal Forum has taken a precedent-setting stand for integration. There has been some investigation and poll taking by some student groups, and finally a few organizations have passed resolutions in support of integrating these establishments.

The question is just how far must some organizations, individuals, and groups go before the 'mass" is willing to commit itself? It should be clarified here that it is certainly agreed that there are any number of students on campus who are unequivocally against integration of any kind. This isn't the group that is being considered here. It is the group who would favor integration, but because of social pressure they will not give open support. These are the people who normally give their support after the crisis is over and it is a popular issue.

Woman suffrage might be used in comparison here. It was obvious that there was much dissension over giving women the right to vote. Woman's place was in the home. If the ladies didn't demonstrate and use other 'pressures" it would have been some time later when they finally got the right to vote. Now woman suffrage is thought to be a self-evident right and is popularly accepted.

I see the rights that are now being denied the negro as rights which will be regarded as self-evident in the future. Why not give him his rights now?

If your are against integration of the off-campus eating establishments, then cross the picket line and give your financial support. But if you feel that they should integrate, don't go against your convictions because of social pressures. If you can't stand up for your convictions in the university pseudo-utopia, when and where will you be able to?

Seek And Ye Shall Find

To the Editor:

This is in response to a letter written to the "Flambeau" November 8, in which Grant Neie expressed the desire for the "Flambeau to stop publishing articles which involve controversial issues.

Aside for reading the "Flambeau," I wonder if Mr. Neie ever reads any nationally syndicated columns, listens to radio, watches television or even engages in either formal or informal conversation at all. Has he taken part in the various institutions of society, at least enough to be considered one of its active members?

When Mr. Neie makes such a statement as "Stop controversial articles in the 'Florida Flambeau,' " he gives one the impression of being an individual of extreme narrow-mindedness ad one who is out of touch with society and reality. To tell the "Flambeau" or any newspaper, for that matter, to curtail controversial articles is ultimately to tell all people engaged in daily social interaction to stop communicating, to play dumb -- in effect, to submit to becoming mere vegetables. Hypothetically speaking, assuming this takes place, what will remain? Well, the world, at least, will still be turning -- or will it?

I am sure that Mr. Neie has no current ambition to stop the world from turning, or deny man the freedom to think, speak, and write criticially and/or along controversial lines -- not when man is only beginning his quest for what constitutes truth, meaning, purpose, and th nature of tings.

It goes without saying that our world is not a perfect one. Nearly every opinion, idea, irregularity, or imperfectability creates concern and ultim-

Society Of Hosts To Give Dinner

The Society of Hosts have issued invitations for a Traditional Southern Christmas Dinner, to be presented at the FSU Faculty Club, Thursday at 7 p.m.

The dinner, a Black tie function, will feature a menu of authentic old Southern holiday delicacies. Holiday music for the occasion will be furnished by the Strolling Strings and several members of the University Glee Club.

The Hosts, formerly the Scullions, is sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant Management Dept. at FSU and is the country's first and oldest collegiate gourmet society. A popular project of the organization is the annual "Gourments' Tour of the World," now in its tenth season on campus.

A limited number of reservations for the Christmas Dinner have been held open for new subscribers. These are available, at $2.50 per person, from Mrs. Ridley at 599-2157.

IFC Elects New Officers

By AL GALBRAITH

The Interfraternity Council has elected its new officers for the coming year.

They are: Arnie Gibbs, president; Rick Frost, vice president; Ronnie Arthur, secretary; and Jim Brandt, treasurer.

New IFC President Gibbs is president of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity, attorney general of the student body and a former senator.

Frost is President of Theta Chi fraternity serving his second term. He is also a member of Traffic Court.

Arthur is president of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, a member of the Marching Chiefs, and Phi Mu Alpha.

Brandt is president of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He is on Men's Judiciary, a member of Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Council.

Delegates to the National Interfraternity Conference will be Gibbs, IFC President; Dean Hugh Adams, fraternity counselor; Steve McCutcheon, assistant fraternity counselor; Henry Land, past IFC president, and Ray Whitehead, junior delegate.

The Conference will be held Thursday through Sunday. The annual conference involves representatives from all college campuses in the nation, and is an opportunity for the delegates to learn more about the fraternity system.

ately breeds controversy, differences of views, or whatever one wants to call that resulting manifestation of sudden or deliberate response to a situation or thing.

Neither I nor anyone else should have to tell Mr. Neie to learn to develop tolerance, see both sides of the coin, or accept the sweet as well as the bitter. But for the sake of humanity, Mr. Neie, do not go so far as to deprive man of his very existence, which is exactly what is done when such matters involving controversy, criticism, or conflicting views are totally disregarded or banished to the vacuum of nihilism.

The fabric of a democratic society is, in an essential aspect, a manifestation of conflicting controversial views and actions in transit. The movement of these ideas and actions represents the virtual heartbeat of communication. If you fear the truth, do not act for all of mankind by blocking off those vital channels of communication which supply information and food for thought, and which assure the perpetual existence of a dynamic order based upon realization, experience and progress. If you do mankind this injustice you may very well create several million enemies for one thing.

Thus, I do not thnk that you can afford to sanction an idea which implies the antithesis of dynamism -- stagnation. Be thankful that you are one of those fortunate few who possesses the precious opportunity to live and prosper in a society which sees the right to dissent, conflicting opposites, and controversy as normal expectations, and as possible grounds for throwing new or added light on subjects or areas of vital importance.

Seek and ye shall find, or seek not and ye shall most assuredly find nothing.

Tribe Holds UF To 7-0 Win

Some football game stories you read talk about a game being closer than the score indicates, but not this one.

Florida's galloping Gators wrapped up a 6-3-1 season with a mythical state championship and a 7-0 runaway victory over hapless FSU Saturday before 45,000 Florida Field visitors.

Florida was inside the visitor's five yard line five times, but managed to score but once. The Gator touchdown came on the third play of the second quarter, with Larry Dupree, whose 31 carries for 131 yards set the rushing pace for both teams, boring through left guard from the two yard line. The score capped a 48 yard Gator drive and was set up by a fake field goal. With the Gators lined up in Field-Goal formation, QB Jimmy Hall took the snap at the seven and sprinted around right end to the Tribe three for a first down.

The defeat was the fifth in six meetings for FSU and left the Seminoles with a season record of 4-5-1. (The 1961 game ended in a tie.)

FSU could mount only one serious threat to tie the game up, with 5:07 remaining in the third quarter. After a Gator field goal attempt was wide, Ed Pritchett, who quarterbacked the Seminoles for three-fourths of the game, teamed up with fullback Larry Brinkley to spearhead a drive to Florida's 47, where the downs ran out and Charley Calhoun had to come in to punt. The kick was off the side of Calhoun's foot and traveled only eight yards, but a personal foul penalty against Florida gave the ball back to FSU with a first down at the Gator 32.

Brinkley, on three straight carries, moved the ball down to the Gator 11. As the third quarter ended, Pritchett was picking up six yards to the five. An offsides penalty pushed the Seminoles back to the Gator 10, with a third down and 7 yards to go situation. Two stright passes by Pritchett, the first coming after a run from one side of Florida Field to the other to avoid tacklers, fell incomplete. The last pass, thrown in the end zone to FB Marion Roberts, was dropped.

The saurians had their first scoring opportunity when a punt by Hal Seymour was bobbled by Calhoun and recovered by Gator center Jimmy Morgan at the Tribe 23. Quarterback Shannon took the Gators to the five, but was tossed for a five yard loss and fumbled the snap on a field goal try which Avery Sumner recovered to stop the drive.

On the next possession, Florida drove from the day's only score.

The Seminoles took the kickoff after the score and marched from their 23 to the Gator 18, where a Pritchett pass was intercepted by Hagood Clarke, the Senior halfback who beat the Tribe last year on a 64 yard punt return.

Florida returned the compliment and mounted its third drive of the day, down to the Florida State five, where a first down pass was intercepted by Calhoun.

State couldn't move the ball and gave the Gators another chance to score when Calhoun kicked out to the 48. The Gators rode the churning legs of Dupree to the ten, but Calhoun came up with another big play, a fumble recovery at the five, to save the day.

After the second half began and FSU made a gesture at the Florida goal, the Gators had their last whack at the scoreboard and moved from their own nine down to the three of Florida State, where Dupree rambled to the two yard line, but left the ball back at the three with Seminole end Don Floyd.

Pass specialist Steve Tensi replaced Pritchett and moved the Tribe to the Gator 38, but fumbled and ended any chance of a tie. Florida took over with 1:29 left to play and ran the ball out.

Pritchett took passing honors for the game, completing four of nine attempts for 50 yards, and adding another 36 yards on nine carries. Larry Brinkley and Dave Snyder played their last game for FSU in typical slashing style, with Brinkley lugging for 38 yards in eight carries and Snyder three yards behind with 35 yards on 11 carries.

Nebraska—Auburn In OB

With but a few scattered games left Dec. 7, College football is putting the finishing touches on its 1963 season. The perennial icing on the cake, Bowl games, will be definitely decided after Saturday's games, but the probable lineup is already set.

The closest bowl, the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, has signed 8-2 North Carolina and will choose between Pitt and Syracuse for opposition.

The Orange Bowl in Miami has lined up Auburn, which ended a famine against Alabama with a 10-8 victory last weekend, to go against the Big Eight Conference champs, Nebraska.

By Paying Fees Early

New Plan Adds 4 Days To Christmas Holiday

Students who have picked up their class cards and completed registration forms may pay fees before leaving for the Christmas holidays and return for classes beginning Jan. 7, 1964, under a plan announced today by Comptroller George Fortin and Registrar Murray Kenna.

The plan, which would give most students three or four entire days, is organized in the following steps:

1. Beginning Monday, December 9, payment of fees will be accepted at the Bursar's office. The student should have with him his fee card (no. 5), check or money order for exact amount shown on fee card. Checks should be dated on or before day submitted; HOWEVER, THEY WILL NOT BE DEPOSITED UNTIL JAN. 6, 1964.

Those living off campus should have with them permission slips as required by the housing office.

2. I.D. cards will be stamped "paid" on back. They should then be taken to the Registrar's Office, room 102-A Westcott, where they will be validated for Trimester II.

3. The Student should then report to his first class on Jan. 7, 1964.

Dean Oglesby, Dean of Students, and Dr. Kenna, both expressed enthusiasm over the new system. They also feel that it will give extra time to the staff, as well as to students.

Fortin said that he hoped, "that the rush of registration would be less for the students."

Pre-registration is continuing through Dec. 12. Only those with a 2.0 average or above can register early. Students are encouraged to make their schedules carefully, for no changes can be made until after the regular registration period.

Students are warned to have all material brought to the registrar's office signed and properly filled out.

Basie Rocks Tonight

The jazz musician who combined the beat and the blues into an unbeatable "jump rhythm," Count Basie, will come to town tonight for two shows at FSU.

The Count has been internationally famous since 1938, when his first Decca records brought to the music world a simple, swinging, elliptical piano style and the driving impetus of a great rhythm section. Since then, his music has remained contagious.

The two fraternities sponsoring the jazz show, Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Theta, have arranged for the 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. shows to be presented in Westcott Auditorium, where more than 1,600 persons can be accommodated. Tickets are $2 for both students and the general public.

Ticket booths have been placed outdoors adjacent to the campus at the Corner and the Sweetshop on Copeland Street and Nic's Toggery will handle downtown ticket sales.

The Count's real name is William Basie. He was born in Red Bank, N.J., in 1904. In 1935, he was discovered with a new kind of music, "jump rhythm," that astounded music lovers. His fame spread so quickly that Basie appeared in Carnegie Hall in 1939 in a jazz concert that started the trend to jazz concerts.

His "One O'Clock Jump" is a classic in jazz. He has appeared in movies with such greats as Clark Gable, James Stewart, Bette Davis and Bob Hope. Attendance records have been broken time after time on Basie tours. While in England on tour in 1961 he gave a Royal Command Performance for Queen Elizabeth.

Basie has been on many television shows in guest spots.

Tally Ho Gets 'All American'

The 1963 Tally Ho has been awarded an All American Honor Rating by the Associated Collegiate Press.

The award was given in the forty-third National Critical Service of the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota, School of Journalism.

All American, the highest rating a yearbook can receive, was awarded after analysis of content and display. Mr. B. W. Allnutt, judge of the Tally Ho, stated that the '63 Tally Ho was fine in many ways, and that there is always room for improvement.

ACP judges on three principles. The yearbook must fulfill five functions as record of the school year, memory book for students, public relations medium, student project, and reference book. Good planning and production should be observed. Finally effective use of originality and imagination should be apparent.

Yearbooks awarded All American are asked for copies of their books to be used for ACP's Loan Service. These copies are loaned to staffs all over the U.S. to give help and inspiration. The Tally Ho has been asked to submit from one to four books.

Honorary Taps 47 Members

The campus-wide honor society, Phi Kappa Phi, initiated 47 graduate and undergraduate students at Florida State University yesterday in Longmire Lounge.

The FSU Chapter of the national honor society was established in 1925. Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1897 for college students with high scholastic standing and good character.

After initiation ceremonies, initiates were honored at a banquet. President of the chapter, Dr. Marian Black, greeted the new members. FSU Dean of Faculties E. Laurence Chalmers was guest speaker. His subject was "The Price of Scholarship."

Owen Sellers and Thomas Wright entertained with a musical composition for cello and piano, "Sonata in G Minor."

Others on the program were Dr. Milton W. Carothers, who gave the invocation, and Wendell R. Houston, a student, who will respond to Dr. Black's greeting.

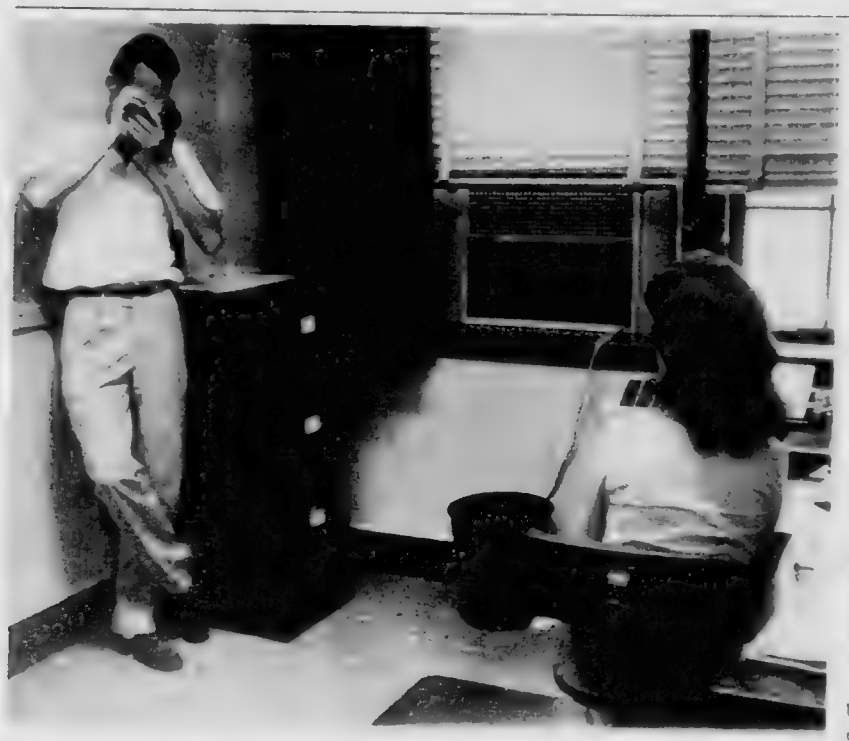
Initiates are graduate students Laszle Janos Gutay and Stanley Eugene Payne, Weldon Vernon Barton, Francis Joseph McCormack and Charles Bradley Russell.

Graduating seniors, Joan Leila Beardsley, Milton F. Callero, Genevieve Cecka, Roberta Darragh, Lucretia Ann Fingar, Susan Lea Hume, Mrs. Evelyn Blathmann Kuttler, Ronald Earl McFarland, Judith Gail Napier, Susan C. Patchin, Carolina DeMontigne Rawls, Joyce Richardson and Steven J. Schang, Jr.

Other seniors are Barbara Harrell Carson, Robert Gene Carson, Elizabeth Anne Qualls, Mrs. Roxanna Albury Smith, James Ansil Ramsey, Boyd Emile Roth, Patricia Sue Warren, Martha Ann Redus, William Francis Strazik, Nancy Ann Ballard, Janice Orion Brandewie, Elaine Lytton Coffin, Elizabeth Adeline Gentile, Dorothy Lou Lord, Nancy Margaret Mann, Lucy Laura Moon, Wilda Ruth Murphy, Lana Gayle Murray, Carol Virginia Nelson, Alan Roger Price, Patricia Wilson and Robert Victor Zupkis.

Juniors are Wendell Rogert, Maureen Cathy O'Neill, Winston Stevens Priest, Laura K. Snyder and Mrs. Nancy Ann McCowan Sumner.

Women's Senate



The Women's Senate will meet today in the Honor Court Room at 4:30 p.m.

The members of the AWS Executive Council should attend to pick up copies of needed material.

Swimming Lessons

A demonstration of teaching techniques for instructing handicapped individuals to swim will be given Thursday at 8 p.m. in Montgomery Pool.

Interested Faculty members may attend.

Tally Ho Improves Each Yea

By WALT MARTINDALE
Flambeau Staff Writer

The first edition of an annual publication for FSU was the "Flastacowo" in 1910, when FSU was FSCW.

This name was adopted one year after the name of the school was changed from "Florida Female College" to Florida State College for Women. So the seal of the three torches was first lit by members of Miss Abernathy's Art Class who "burned with inspiration and school spirit," while girls' mail was being inspected by the president or matron.

In the first volume of the "Flastacowo" the seniors numbering an even dozen were complimented by a caricature and poem in addition to their formal photograph. There were pictures of every organization on campus including the Loafer's Club, The Mimicry Beasters, The Indiana Tormenters and The Mary (Merry) Club composed of all the girls named Mary on campus. Their motto was "I think and be Mary", and "To be Mary" and the club flower was Mary-gold.

Group shots of the biology classes proudly displaying their woodland specimens of ferns and grasshoppers enlivened the pages.

The Flastacowo's predecessor of the FSCW era was called the "Argo." This publication was somewhat less extensive in its scope and had a quaint habit of labeling class photographs "a group of students." It might be added here for the benefit of any recent aliens that "Flastacowo" was the abbreviation for Florida State College for Women.

The new name glistening upon the college gates by this time was by no means the only new one. There were new names every where. Bill, Fred, Wally, and Ralph were new names on the class rolls. Even some of the girls were lucky enough to change their names. Oh yes, it was now called FSU and thrill, it was not co-ed.

There was one more new name to add to this ever-increasing list, and that was the name of FSU's new annual which joined the chase and charge with the resounding cry of "TALLY-HO!"

Housing Bureau Aids Students

Performing as a function of communication between the student body and administration in the field of student housing is the FSU housing bureau.

Formerly designated as a student government committee, the housing bureau works in close cooperation with Mrs. Dot McCollum, director of housing, and allows students to have a voice in the formulation of housing policies.

Meeting monthly, the bureau discusses current problems and new developments in university housing. Student interest set up the bureau at the suggestion of Mr. William Sewell, dean of students.

At the present time the annual stipend is reckoned upon the candidate's base salary which he is receiving at the time of application. He will receive one-half that salary plus one-sixth for each living dependent listed in his income tax return for the year previous to his year of graduate study. The maximum grant is $4,000 and the minimum grant $2,400. In addition, the Danforth Teacher is given tuition and official fees at the graduate school of his choice.

The teacher nominated must be from 25 to 40 years old with the date of the 41st birthday not earlier than November 5, 1964. He must have at least one year of successful graduate study and must be in at least the second year of teaching at the time of nomination. At the time of applying, as well as the following academic year, he must have full faculty status and a minimum of half-time classroom teaching within his total load.

All nominations from the Deans should be in the hands of the Foundation by April 1, 1964. Those interested in this program as a means of increasing their effectiveness as teachers should see the Dean of Faculty of FSU.

Walking Wounded Now Running

Bud Kennedy may have said it a little prosaically, but he got his point across.

"The wounded walking are now running," he said last week.

Kennedy, entering his 10th year as Head Basketball Coach at Florida State, meant by that to say that his 1963-64 team, racked by injury during six weeks of pre-season practice, has now recovered from all its aches and pains, and is "in top physical shape" for the Dec. 3rd opener with Florida's Gators in Gainesville.

Three juniors who started for last year's team, center Jerry Shirley, forward Cal Huze, and guard Pete Gonzalez, are now running at full speed after recovering from ler ir-juries, and Larry Fulger, guard who transferred from Pensacola Jr. College, is over a charley horse.

"Those injuries were cause for concern for a while," Kennedy said, "but the boys are ready to go now. We're pleased, very pleased, with this team's progress since practice started."

Kennedy makes no bones about who he'll build his team around; it will have to be Shirley and captain-elect Pete Rogers, he says.

Shirley, a Mobile, Ala. lad who was the team's leading rebounder as a sophomore last year and is now matured to a robust 6-foot-6, 228 pounds, will take over his old center post. He scored 21 points in his first varsity game last year and 22 in the season finale, and averaged 11.2 for the year.

Rogers, captain-elect, started as a 6-4 junior guard last year after transferring from Georgia Tech (he was a high school all-American at Daytona Beach's Seabreeze High), has moved to forward. Kennedy hopes the switch will offset the loss to graduation of 6-4 Charlie Long, forward who scored 12.5 points a game for last year's 15-10 team.

The rest of the starting lineup hasn't been settled yet. A five-way battle is going on for the starting guard slots, and Kennedy said it may never end. He says he'll use whatever combination is most effective against the opposition.

Frosh Cagers Top Bethany-Lutheran

Florida State's Freshman basketball team got off to a good start by defeating the Bethany Lutheran Junior College Vikings 112-56.

The Baby Seminoles got off to a quick 13-1 lead on baskets by Moe Bloomworth and Ken Doyle.

it was three minutes before the Vikings were able to score their first point. After that start the Frosh carried a 57-27 lead.

After the second half started, the Vikings began to press the Seminoles. The strategy was "Will the referee call it?" After [illegible] over two minutes of play, Moe Bloomworth netted the Vikings' first free throw. Ken Doyle added the second free throw to the score 100-51. Marty [illegible] added another point to the Frosh score. Ken Goodle and Moe Bloomworth were scoring in the [illegible] scoring for the night, each netting [illegible] free throw percentage.

Ken Malmen and Ron Rogers were in double figures. Malmen netted [illegible] and Rogers had 11, and [illegible] each. Bill Wallace led the Seminoles in rebounds, while Tom Marsh had [illegible] free throw percentage.

13 Football Deaths Called Preventable

Fourteen football players died in football-related accidents in the nation during the 1962 season, according to the November 25th issue of Sports Illustrated. The article, says the article, is the result of well-designed rules to protect the player from needless violence, it can be a disastrous heat accumulator.

The essential research into the subject has been conducted at Ohio State University.

Heat exhaustion and heatstroke, to which football players are particularly susceptible and which have led to such fatal results in the sport, can be brought on when sweat is prevented from evaporating properly: instead of cooling as it should, the body temperature rises rapidly. When it reaches 106 degrees, the central nervous system cannot cope with the load. Death is very likely to occur when the internal temperature reaches 110 degrees. Half the cases of heatstroke are fatal; even in cases where a life is saved by quick attention, brain damage may occur.

The OSU team found by comparing athletic activity in a scrub suit (a loose-fitting garment and activity in a football uniform that both temperature and water loss increase markedly when the uniform is worn. More important, the article reports, "the temperature of the subject in a football uniform continued to rise after he stopped exercising and dropped to a level much more slowly." It pinpointed as the most vulnerable areas of the uniform the padded sections and the helmet. Means of allowing greater air circulation are indicated.

The hazard of heat stress, Sports Illustrated reports, can be reduced

--Players should remove their helmets in hot, humid practice or game conditions.

--Players should be allowed to drink water freely while practicing and playing, provided they continue to have salt along with it.

--Practice and game sessions should be adapted to weather conditions.

US Ambassador Wadsworth Speaks Tonight On Peace

"Prospects for a Permanent Peace" will be the subject of a lecture Wednesday night by James J. Wadsworth, former US ambassador to the United Nations. He advocates that this nation take the lead in organizing the world for peace.

Wadsworth will be the University Lecture Series speaker in Westcott Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. today. The occasion will honor FSU students getting degrees at the end of this trimester.

Wadsworth, the son of a New York congressman and senator and grandson of a secretary of state, John Hay, was deputy ambassador to UN for several years and had become ambassador in October, 1960, when he parried a shoe-pounding with Premier Khrushchev. Wadsworth also has served as US negotiator on disarmament.

In his 127 page book, "The Price of Peace," published in 1962, Wadsworth advocates as a goal an "effective agreement on minarmament."

"What I am proposing is perhaps too simple for much credit," he says. "It is that we take the lead in organizing the world's instinct for survival — organizing it in such a way that no power, great or small, will be asked to relinquish one iota of its security until effective agreement on minarmament can be reached, and carrying out a multi-pronged program that will have that result."

Wadsworth said he did not know whether the Communist powers would go along but he added: "I believe that the people of the Communist nations want this world of real peace just as much as we do. It should be possible for them eventually to make known their yearnings to their governments."

The speaker will be introduced by Dr. Richard B. Gray, associate professor of government.

There will be a reserved section (front center) for all seniors, their families and friends.

After the address President and Mrs. Blackwell will have a reception for December graduates and their families in Longmire Lounge.

'Jazz King' Basie Joins Picket Line

Count Basie, "the most explosive force in jazz," made a brief personal appearance yesterday at 5:20 p.m. at the Mecca, where picketing against segregation is in progress, and walked with other picketers for a few minutes after being refused entrance to the restaurant.

Escorted by Tony Skiff, chairman of the Social Action Committee, and James Geschwender, assistant professor of sociology, the Count walked to the restaurant door and waited while his escorts asked the doorman if they would be permitted to bring the world famed musician in as a guest for dinner. The doorman replied "No."

Skiff then asked the doorman if he was refusing service to Count Basie, whereupon the doorman answered that he "most certainly" was.

Count Basie, after being given a picketing sign, began walking with the other picketers.

Basie marched for about two minutes while cameras clicked, then left the line to sign autographs for the small crowd which had gathered in front of the restaurant before returning to his car.

The Count said of the attempt that he was "happy to have been able to participate" because he had not had a chance to previously "due to my schedule."

No one working at the Mecca had any comment on the integration attempt.

2 Late Entries Are Suggested

A resolution was proposed in Women's Senate yesterday afternoon to set up an all-night entry on Jan. 2, for those students registering in January, and Jan. 6, for those students who have already registered and who have paid their fees before the Christmas holidays.

During the discussion it was restated that checks paid for fees in December will not be cashed by the university until Jan. 6, (Friday), so students could pay fees early without fear of their being cashed before the sixth.

The resolution will be brought before the faculty review committee for passage this week, and the results will be presented to the students immediately.

Within the next few weeks a poll, composed by Senator Sharon Spindel, will be distributed to all women students.

The poll is to get an accurate opinion on the compulsory payment of laundry fees by the women students.

Glee Club Slates Christmas Vespers

...l Christmas Vespers ... Following a processional arranged by Dr. Irwin S. Cooper and a prelude by the Brass Choir, the invocation will be given by the Rev. Virgil Bryant of the First Presbyterian Church of Bainbridge. The scripture will be read by Tom Cavendish, assistant director of the Glee Club.

Performing in front of a "Triptych" backdrop, the Glee Club will open the concert with Benjamin Britton's "A Ceremony of Carols." Soloists will be Martha Schubert, Virginia Alonso, Laura Bunte, and Lillian Amos. The Madonna Triptych is the work of Mary Elizabeth Stout of Huntington, West Va., a friend of Miss Grimm's who was left blind by multiple sclerosis.

The second part of the program will evolve around around the coming of the Christ Child, with the presentation of "Scripture Magnificat" by R. Vaughan-Williams. Soloist will be Rose Wildes, contralto; and flutist will be Ann Wicks.

Included in the other numbers in the program will be "The Cherubic Host" by Gaul; "In the Stillness of the Night" by Wilson; "Alleluia!" by Porter and "Hiding Place," a spiritual. The program will close with "Silent Night" recessional. The arrangement is by Dr. Cooper.

Diana Roland will be soloist for the Wilson number; Susan Jekel for "Alleluia" and Lucille Bishop and Miss Schubert for the spiritual.

There will be no meeting of ... Delta Pi during December.

International Club

There will be no meeting of the International Club for the month of December.

Nothing New In SG Senate

There will be no new legislation introduced in today's meeting of the Student Senate, according to Secretary of the Senate Pam Cornely.

Bill 17, which revises the function of the Board of Directors for Unallocated and Reserve Funds, will be given a favorable recommendation by the Organizations and Finances Committee. Chairman of the Organizations and Finances Committee is Sen. Alice Marshall.

A bill establishing definitions of money-making and charity projects is in the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee. Sen. John Merting is chairman of the committee.

Christmas Concert Planned By Singers

The University Singers will present their annual Christmas Concert Friday evening.

The 76-voice group directed by Dr. Wiley Housewright will appear at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. The public is invited.

The program this year will feature three major works; "Magnificat" by Bach; "Solemn Vespers" by Mozart and "Christmas Cantata" by Daniel Pinkham. It will also include a group of Christmas carols from other countries.

Soloists for the Bach "Magnificat" will be Judy James, soprano; Michele Ann Davenport, alto; Rose Wildes, alto; John Cooksey, tenor; James Davis, tenor and Willard DeLara, baritone.

Soloists for the Mozart "Solemn Vespers" will be Frances Easterling, soprano; Joyce Graham, soprano; Sarah Fuller, alto; Sarah Rideout, alto; Omar Allen, tenor; Barney Ingram, tenor; Billy Joe Bullock, bass and Ervin Gatlin, bass.

Christmas carols from other lands include "Dark the Night," Welsh; "Star of Bethlehem," Czechoslovakian; "Angels We Have Heard on High," French; "The Zither Carol," Czechoslovakian; and "I Wish You a Merry Christmas," English.

The Singers have appeared with the Jacksonville Symphony Orchestra and on Artist Series Programs at colleges throughout the state. They have made several professional recordings and have appeared over Mutual Broadcasting Company's radio network in Christmas programs.

The Singers are selected by competitive audition from among student singers on the campus. Their programs are planned to give them choral literature ranging from the masterpieces to lighter music.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

Honor Graduates

The student body's chances of obtaining graduation ceremonies at the end of each trimester could be influenced a great deal by student response to the trial program being presented.

If the turnout of students, especially seniors, for the lecture and reception in honor of December graduates is great, it could be seen as an indication that future ceremonies for graduating seniors would meet with equal success.

On the other hand, a mere handful of students at the functions would support contentions that students have no real interest in the commemorative ceremony, or that the exercises are more trouble than they are worth to students.

Surveys taken by Student Government have indicated that both students and parents strongly prefer that this highlight in students' education be recognized. A large attendance in tonight's lecture and reception would show an evident interest in seeing that all students, no matter at what time year they graduate, have equal opportunity of recognition.

The lecture, which is sponsored by the University Lecture Series in honor of the 672 graduating seniors, is open to the general public, but reserved seating (front and center) will be provided for all seniors, their families and friends. FSU President and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell will be hosts at the reception which will immediately follow and to which graduates, their families and friends have received invitations.

James J. Wadsworth, former United States ambassador to the United Nations, should present interesting and thought-provoking ideas. The subject of the U.S.' continued support and participation in the UN has long been a hotly-debated subject. Wadsworth has chosen for his topic "Prospects for Permanent Peace," also a highly controversial issue which ought to provide intense general interest for the entire student body.

Student leaders have been working with the administration to show the merits of holding graduation exercises each trimester in honor of those completing degrees. But the primary factor in deciding whether to continue to have only one graduation or to switch to three exercises per year will be student interest.

Strong student support of trial commemorative programs may tip the balance enough to convince the administration that a three-graduations plan is not only feasible, but also highly desirable.

Honesty, Simplicity To Continue

By LUTHER KRAMER
Flambeau Staff Writer

In keeping with the meaning of the words "Praeco Simplici" (to proclaim honestly and simply) this column will continue to appear in the "Flambeau" dispite the efforts of "the great dragon killer."

The basis of this column is as follows: (1) to help destroy the cynicism which many students have toward SG, by pointing out SG objectives and accomplishments, nearly all of which deserve student support (2) to help prevent SG from losing contact with the great majority of students, by pointing out where and possibly how SG can come to grips with real, authentic, significant issues that concern the students of this campus (3) to puncture, from time to time, the personal balloons of pomposity inflated by the hot air of self-importance which generally is the result of becoming a BMOC.

Fourthly, to praise deserving students, regardless of group affiliation, and organizations who might not otherwise get the recognition they deserve. This includes many Student Government people who do excellent jobs in their positions (5) and to otherwise serve as an inconoclast and "gadfly."

Naturally this means the column will have a strong, obvious "bias." In more accurate terms, it will have a definite viewpoint.

• • • • •

It ain't the things you don't know what gets you into trouble; it's the things you know for sure what ain't so." . . . . . old saying

Quote from Zoology Dept: "Birds of a feather fly."

• • • • •

A Chapter 601, section B of the student body statutes, concerning the Who's Who nominations, states that the Who's Who nominating committee "shall notify the presidents of all officially approved [illegible] organizations" so that they shall be able to nominate students for Who.

The big question in [illegible] is the Dorm presidents were notified and sent these [illegible]. According to the SG [illegible], only those organizations which [illegible] a constitution and membership on file in his office are [illegible] approved. This would seem to exclude fraternities and sororities. Bill Devane, junior class president, and chairman of the nominating committee made sure all the presidents got the forms.

If he wasn't going to [illegible] torney general's definition of "officially approved" but instead [illegible] that of the University administration, then why didn't he send forms to all religious house presidents, scholarship houses, campus women's houses under the Dean of Women, etc. And [illegible] again, why not to the [illegible] have officers and/or [illegible] approved by the University.

It just may have been [illegible] well qualified students [illegible] dorms and yet not be [illegible] a Greek group nor have their [illegible] on file in the attorney general's office. Evidently "fairness" [illegible] to be written into the [illegible] cerning the matter and "discrimination" stricken out.

Crime Wave Hits Campus

A definite move toward iniquity has been indicated on the FSU campus this past week. It looks as if a crime wave has hit the campus. It had never ever before occurred to me that students at this university drink alcoholic beverages. How utterly nasty! How could any upstanding student in pursuit of knowledge and learning stoop so low?

If that sounds bad, what about a woman student being in a male student's apartment? Apartments are bad, they are worse than haunted houses and deans' offices, much worse.

Women's judiciary with their black robes, "Knowledge for College" [illegible] and orders of [illegible] righted the scales of justice with sound decisions [illegible] clever rulings of partial restrictions and one ruling on full restrictions for severe infractions of university policy and women's rules.

These restrictions were issued for such severe infractions as: not [illegible] waiters/waitresses, leaving lights in the halls, throwing sand while [illegible] in the sandbox, saying naughty words, yelling, talking loud and [illegible].

Three women were [illegible] for signing out on the wrong line and one woman was punished for not asking to go to the bathroom.

May I appeal to you as students of this fine university to put a stop [illegible] to decrease the crime rate. The offenders were [illegible] and are now serving their debts to society to remind us of [illegible].

[illegible] hope that [illegible] how the crooked, down [illegible] of [illegible] will be ever obedient and follow the [illegible] of [illegible] rules!

"[illegible] hearts, and [illegible]
[illegible] that [illegible] of [illegible]
[illegible] have [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]"

It is with [illegible] that I [illegible] the [illegible] of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, [illegible] President of these United States. A man who [illegible] to [illegible] the burdens of the world and who sacrificed his life on the altar of freedom and peace. He asked not what his country could do for him, but what he could do for his country. He never feared to negotiate, but did so never from fear. He called for the United States to think internationally, instead of continentally. He helped the poor, comforted the sick, befriended the friendless, supported the weak, and healed the lame.

What ever led some misguided wretch to murder our first citizen will never be known. But this much is known, all Americans who have allowed extremism to fester on these shores have to some degree failed as citizens. Look at extremism: those misguided patriots who call themselves Americans but do more to destroy this celestial land that do all the external forces of evil in the world combined.

Let all of us highly resolve that our beloved President has not died in vain and that this nation under God shall rise to even greater heights. Let his dastardly act serve to teach all of us a hard, hard lesson.

Let us all, with prayerful resolution, unite behind our new President, [illegible], and make America the land of the brave and the home of the free.

Suggests Naming Union For JFK

To the Editor:

It is impossible to describe one's sorrow and utter despair at such a tragic moment as this. The death of our magnificent President is most certainly a damaging blow to all the world. We cannot understand why such a great leader, so devoted to the advancement of all, so resolved to his just convictions, and so dedicated to the tenets of our constitutional government, was called upon to offer the supreme sacrifice.

As President of the Young Democrats here at FSU, I now propose that we dedicate the Student Union complex to the memory of our former President. Naming it The John F. Kennedy Student Union, is but a minute gesture on the part of this University on behalf of a man who epitomized the ideal product of every institution of learning.

We sincerely hope this proposal will meet the approval of all here at Florida State University.

Descendant Of Liszt, Wagner To Be Guest Music Speaker

[illegible] Wagner, a granddaughter of Richard Wagner who [illegible] Germany at 19 in protest against Hitler, will be a guest speaker, attend a music class and be guest at a reception at [illegible].

Miss Wagner's principal appearance will be at 8 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall when she will lecture on subjects ranging from the operas of her famous grandfather to the role of music in Europe today. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

Now an American citizen, Miss Wagner is well known as an author and lecturer. She grew up in the Wagner family home in Bayreuth. Adolph Hitler visited this home as early as 1923 and as a girl she was able to observe the rise of Nazism.

In 1937, at the age of 19, she seized the first opportunity to leave Germany. With the help of the late Arturo Toscanini, she made her way in 1941 to the United States. Many of her experiences during the early years are recounted in her autobiography, "Heritage of Fire," published by Harper and Brothers in 1945.

She is not only the granddaughter of Wagner but the great-granddaughter of another famous musician, Franz Liszt. Her own musical education began at six. Subsequently she studied acting, singing, staging and music and art history in Berlin, London, Paris, Buenos Aires and New York.

While in Tallahassee Miss Wagner will be guest of Dr. John Boda for his 12:40 p.m. Tuesday class on operas and will be guest of the music faculty at 4 p.m.

Math Seminars Scheduled Today

[illegible] C. Carter of New York will present two seminars at FSU on the subject of applied mathematics.

Carter is manager of systems [illegible] advanced systems with the Systems Division of International Business Machines Corporation. He is speaking at FSU under the auspices of the student chapter of the Association for Computing Machinery.

Carter will speak on "Mathematical Analysis of Large Volume Sampling Methods" in Room 301 of the Math-Meteorology Building at 4 p.m. At 8 p.m. in the same room he will speak on "Careers in Data Processing." The night addresses will be at a combined meeting of the student chapter of the ACM and Pi Mu Epsilon, undergraduate honorary mathematics fraternity. [illegible] McDonald of Tallahassee, president of ACM, said that the interested public is invited to the seminars.

Praise Brings Better Results

A new study by FSU psychologists shows reproof of grade children hindered performance on simple learning and perception tasks, while praise resulted in better performance.

Wallace A. Kennedy and Herman C. Willcutt of the Human Development Clinic at FSU conducted a motivation experiment with 720 elementary junior high and high school children from the Mobile county, Alabama, schools under a $10,000 grant from the US Office of Education.

The praise or reproof was administered the children between sessions on a simple perception task. Those children who received praise increased their performance the second trial, those who received blame went down in performance while those who received neither performed between the other two.

The results of the study are summarized in an 85 page monograph, "Motivation of School Children" just published by the Office of Education.

is it me...or Jack Winter!

It's you, princess, when you have the Jack Winter look. But whoa . . . take a minute to learn about the subject of stretch. Because once you put yourself in Jack Winter stretch pants, you are going to get the eye test. Be darn sure you can pass. Questions. Should you wear stretch pants? What kind of figure does it take? Most all figures are flattered by stretch, whether angular, triangular, or a figure eight. Even if you have an hourglass figure where all the sand has sunk to the bottom, stretch pants can do quick subtracting. You won't need a grease job to slip in, but there's no sag, bag or bind either. Jack Winter cuts 'em just right...lean and ladylike...proportioned in your proper leg-length. So it's you and Jack Winter getting all those straight-on, slant-eyed, turn-about-face looks. You and Jack Winter causing that campus stir.

TWO POLICE SIRENS

. . .are being used in a concert at FSU on Saturday evening by the Percussion Ensemble and Brass Choir. Getting the sirens ready for their new role are, from left, Walter Pittman, Dennis Silkebakken, and Diane Bishop.

Brass, Percussion Ensemble To Feature Sirens In Concert

Don't leave the hall abruptly if you hear shrill sirens during the joint concert of the Percussion Ensemble and Brass Choir at FSU on Saturday evening. The sirens are part of the concert.

Two sirens were loaned by the Tallahassee Police Department, according to percussion ensemble conductor Ramon E. Meyer. They came from the repair shop and were loaned through the courtesy of Capt. Johnnie Cummins.

They will be added to the standard percussion instruments such as snare drums, bass drums, cymbals and chimes for the concert at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The program is free and open to the public. The brass choir will be conducted by Dr. William F. Cramer of the music school.

The percussion ensemble will play "Ionization" by Edgar Varese, one of the best known percussion ensemble works; "Hoe Down" by Josha Mitsal; "Three Dance Movements" by William Russell and "Music for Percussion." The latter number was written by Gen Parchman, a member of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra and a graduate of the College-Conservatory of Music (Cincinnati).

Included on the Brass Choir program will be "Canzona per sonare" by G. Gabrieli; "Concerto Grosso" by A. Corelli; "Three Pieces" by Robert D. King.

Peace Corps Announces Enlarged Spring Program

With 7,164 volunteers at work in 46 countires, the Peace Corps recently announced plans for the largest spring training program in the agency's history.

Volunteers scheduled for assignments in 18 nations will enter training at US colleges and universities in February-March, said Peace Corps Director Sergeant Shriver. An estimated 1,500 prospective volunteers have entered mid-year training programs, Shriver said. While the peak input period will continue to be the summer months he said this year's large spring group will fill urgent requests from countries in Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

The sping training programs will prepare volunteers for service in Somalia, Malaysia, Nigeria, Ecuador, Nepal, Thailand, India, Jamaica, Togo, Colombia, Panama, Iran, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Venezuela, Tanganyika and the Dominican Republic.

Teachers will be especially needed at all levels -- elementary, secondary, and university -- and in all subjects, with particular emphasis on English, science and mathematics. Some physical education and vocational teachers will also be required.

Other volunteers will be enrolled in agricultural extension, community development, construction, engineering, and geology programs.

Peace Corps volunteers serve for two years, including training. They get a modest living allowance designed to let them live at a level equal to that of the people with whom they work, plus a $75 monthly readjustment allowance, paid at the end of their service.

Dictionary Gets Praise, Scorn

Webster's Third New International Dictionary was greeted by angry sneers from newspaper and magazine reviewers when it was published two years ago but was almost universally praised by language scholars.

Why this was so will be the subject of the last English Coffee Hour of the calendar year at 4 p.m. Friday in Westminster House. The speaker will be Dr. Paul Stoakes, professor of English, and his subject will be "The War on the Dictionary."

American critics were particularly vehement about acceptance into the language of such expressions as "ain't" and "finalize" and "irregardless" although if they had checked Webster II, published in 1934, they would have found "ain't" in this edition he said.

The editor of the New York Times Book Review, Jacques Barzun, went to the extent of saying about III that he would "never consult it again," Stoakes said.

He added that linguists, who were familiar with developments in the theory of language which have occurred during the past two or three decades, were warm in their praise of the new dictionary. So, he said, were English magazine and newspaper reviewers after the edition came out in Great Britain in February, 1962.

Caroling Groups Should Register

Groups planning to carol at the home of President Gordon W. Blackwell are requested by Miss Williams to register with the social activities office, ext. 2860, so that the number of carolers may be distributed evenly over Sunday and Monday nights.

Kappa Kappa Psi, band honorary, will provide music for the carolers on both nights from 7-9:30 p.m., while members of Omicron Delta Kappa will assist Mrs. Blackwell with the courtesies both evenings.

Montgomery Named Judge

Dr. Reed H. Montgomery, director of student activities at FSU, has been named the judge for the contests of the Women's Division of the South Carolina Press Association.

A former South Carolina newspaper man, he served last year as judge for the contests in the non-daily division of the state press. The awards are made at the annual mid-winter convention in Columbia.

See? No springs.

Volkswagens have torsion bars instead of springs. They run horizontally between the wheels.

This is how they work.

Take a 3-foot steel ruler.

Hold it firmly in each hand and twist.

Let it untwist.

It returns to its original shape, without going limp, bent, broken.

That's what happens when your car goes over a bump. Each wheel can react independently of the other.

The Volkswagen has separate torsion bars for each wheel. Each wheel feels its own way over the road, and there is no spring to break.

It's not a new, untried rule, with exceptionally good performance.

Torsion bars alone aren't unique.

Neither is 4-wheel independent suspension.

But the combination of both systems is extremely rare.

You can count all the sedans that have it on one finger.

League Hears Speech On American Revolution

"If the American Revolution was conservative, what it conserved was liberal," FSU assistant professor of history William I. Hair said at the last weekly meeting of FSU's Young People's Socialist League.

Dr. Hair in his talk on the "American Revolution--Conservative or Radical," pointed out two recurring problems in the study of the American fight for independence.

1. Its relations to other revolutions, such as the French, and
2. Its nature as conservative, radical, or liberal.

Jefferson wrote in the "Declaration of Independence" that all men were created equal. "Was this equalitarian or not?" Hair asked. Both major parties no doubt claim to derive from Jefferson's philosophy, different as they may be in many respects, Hair noted.

Every group from the John Birch Society to the Communist Party claims descent from the founding fathers. The Revolution itself contained men of such wide divergencies as Paine and Jay. While many liberals were Tories, so were the most militant conservatives, the speaker continued.

"Moy historians are divided on how to classify the Revolution," the speaker noted. The great dilemma is of course its relation to the very radical French revolution. "If the American Revolution was conservative, the French could not claim rightful descent from it," Hair said. William Buckley, prominent conservative writer of the "National Review," has claimed that the French revolution was the beginning of all the woes that now beset the world.

"The liberal view," Hair concluded, "is that many social forces were intentionally set free by our Revolution which have still to end their effect even in the modern world."

Special Overseas Program To Be Conducted In Paris

A special spring semester in Paris program is to be conducted in 1964 by the Institute of European Studies, a nonprofit institution specializing in overseas programs for US college undergraduates.

IES President Robert T. Bosshars said the new program was developed in response to inquiries abut a shorter program incorporating most of the characteristics of the Institute's present two semester programs in Paris.

He also said that growing academic interest in the Paris center was typified by a team of US professors who recently inspected in and described the IES program there as "the strongest now being conducted in Paris."

The program will stress French language study and other courses taught entirely in French by French university professors. The fee for the program will be $1,230 or $1,590 including transatlantic passages.

Applicants must be sophomores with three semesters of college French or juniors with five semesters in that language and must have B averages. The applications are due Tuesday, December 10.

Courses will be offered in contemporary European history, politics and economics, in art history, the European novel and modern European poetry, as well as in French.

Students accepted for the program will sail February 1, 1964, and return after the end of the program late next June.

Further information is available from the IEX 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois. The Institute also conducts four-year and spring semester pograms at the University of Vienna and the University of Freibury, West Germany.

Blackwell To Light Giant Tree At Annual Christmas Party

A Sunday afternoon party at the home of President and Mrs. Blackwell next weekend will be followed by the traditional Christmas tree lighting and carol sing on Sunday and Monday nights at the president's home.

Dr. Blackwell will press a switch which will light up the giant Christmas tree on the lawn at 7 p.m. Sunday night. The lights will signal the beginning of caroling by groups of students. The first group will be organized by the undergraduate class officers.

Dr. and Mrs. Blackwell will be at home Sunday and Monday from 7 until 9:30 p.m. to all caroling groups. An instrumental group from the School of Music will accompany the carolers. Other groups may bring instruments. Members of the Omicron Delta Kappa fraternity will assist Mrs. Blackwell with hospitality arrangements on both evenings.

At 3 p.m. Sunday undergraduate officials and guests will be entertained at a Christmas party at the Blackwell residence.

Some 100 guests are expected for the event which lasts until 4:30 p.m. "How Come Christmas?" by Roark Bradford will be read by Dr. Griffith T. Pugh of the English Department. Music will be by the G-Bach string trio.

Receiving at the door will be the four class presidents: Tom Haney (senior); Mike Wegelius (junior); Tommy Garwood (sophomore); and John Mixon (freshman).

Officers of the senior class will pour. They include Susan Cawthon and Kathy Mosely.

Special guests at the undergraduate Christmas party will include the student government president, his cabinet, class sponsors and a number of administrators.

Included in the guest list are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loucks; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Adams; Mrs. and Mrs. R. R. Oglesby; Mr. and Mrs. Griffith T. Pugh; Mr. John Griffin; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hogan; Miss Katherine Warren; Miss Elizabeth Lynn; Miss Sarah Robinson; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace W. Adams Slates Piano Recital

Julie Adams, senior at FSU, will present a piano recital at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in Opperman Music Hall.

A student of Dr. John Boda, Miss Adams is a candidate for the bachelor of music degree in piano. In 1961, she won first place in the Florida Composers League Composition Contest. She is editor and president of Sigma Alpha Iota.

Fallon To Direct Asolo Theatre

Florida State University's co-director of theater, Richard G. Fallon, will again direct the Asolo Theater Summer Festival in Sarasota, the newly elected president of the group, Richard W. Cooney, said today.

During Fallon's first season as director of the Festival last summer total attendance for the four plays for 13,264. The income of $30,156 was double that of 1962, with atendance nearly doubled. There were 21 performances played to standing room only. Audiences included people from 16 foreign countries.

The Asolo Association is sponsored jointly by Florida State University, Ringling Museum in Sarasota, and a group of theater-minded people from Tampa, St. Petersburg and Sarasota. It was formed in 1959.

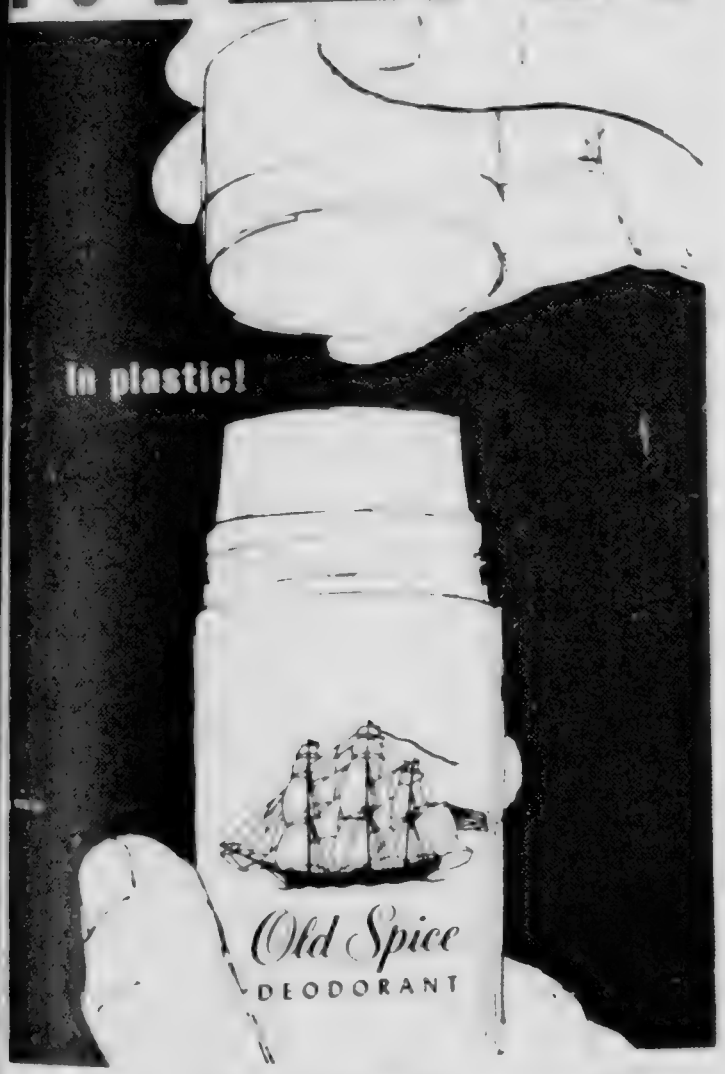
Fallon said that top personalities of the theater world would be guest artists or lecturers. He also announced four plays to open July 9 and run through August 29, with performances daily, including Sunday.

Plays to be presented are Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," Sheridan's "School for Scandal," Moliere's "Imaginary Invalid," and Fry's "The Lady's Not for Burning."

Season tickets will go on sale in about six weeks, said Fallon.

At a recent meeting of the association, Dr. Paul J. Reynolds, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at FSU, and Dr. Wayne C. Minnick, head of the Department of Speech, were elected directors.

FSU To Add 13 Fellowships



Florida State University will have 13 new NDEA fellowships from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare during 1964-65, associate dean Dr. Thomas R. Lewis of the Graduate School said today.

The 13 will bring the total to 32 National Defense Education Act fellows at FSU next year. Nineteen fellows presently on campus will be here for the new academic year.

Departmental programs getting the supplementary support are economics, three; French, three; philosophy, three; sociology, two; and statistics, two.

All NDEA fellowships are granted for the 3-year period and involve stipends for the student of $2,000, $2,200 and $2,400, plus $500 for each dependent. A $2,500 cost-of-education allowance is granted to the institution attended by the fellows.

AP Picks All-SEC

With the end of each football season comes the inevitable hair pulling associated with picking the "dream teams." One of the first organizations to quit tugging at their locks and come up with picks was the Associated Press which annually puts forth an All-SEC squad.

On this year's All-SEC team are four former FSU foes, end Billy Martin of Georgia Tech, quarterback Billy Lothridge of the same, back Jimmy Sidle of Auburn, and Florida's Larry Dupree. The Seminoles can well attest to the wisdom of AP's selection, for on each occasion that the Tribe faced their respective teams, the selected individuals were the deciding factors in handing FSU a defeat.

Of the six players FSU did not get to see this year, three were from the University of Mississippi, end Allen Brown, tackle Whaley Hall, and center Kenny Dill. The remaining three were guard Steve Delong of Tennessee, guard Robbie Hucklebridge of LSU, and back Benny Nelson of Alabama.

The only repeats from last year's team are Florida's Dupree and Tech's Lothridge. This year's backfield averages 187 pounds and the line tips the scales at an average of 221 pounds per man. No sophomores were selected for honors this year. The team is made up of five juniors and six seniors.

Second team members selected who saw action against the Tribe are end Howard Simpson of Auburn, tackle Dennis Murphy of Florida, center Dave Simons of Georgia Tech, and back Tucker Frederickson of Auburn.

SAM McCALL

Senate To Investigate SG Attorney General

By AL GALBRAITH
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Young People's Socialist League was approved; Miss Sandra Brooks' appointment as the new secretary of the Senate was referred to the Elections and Appointments Committee; and Sam McCall, FSU student, addressed the Senate at the last Student Senate meeting of 1963 yesterday.

Acting upon a proposal presented by Sam McCall, the senators appointed a committee to investigate Attorney General Arnie Gibbs.

McCall charged that the Attorney General has "mis-used the powers relegated to his appointed position in selfish and uncalled for manners for his own personal benefit as well as the benefit of certain groups to which he belongs either as an officer or a member."

Gibbs is also charged with bringing about "a gross injustice to Mr. Luther Kramer... as well as to the governmental system of the student body," by demanding the discontinuance of "Praeco Simplici," an anonymous Flambeau column. "Praeco Simplici" was authored by Kramer.

McCall further charged Gibbs with holding positions which affect his ability "to perform the duties of the Attorney General's office properly and apart from his other activities and concerns." He urged consideration of removal of Gibbs from office.

McCall further charged the Student Senate with failure to comply with the mandate abolishing the Class Officer Program, and with refusal to "take a stand other than neutrality in the racial issues facing our student body and university."

The senators voted unanimously to set up a committee to investigate the charges and statements made by McCall. Members of the committee, appointed by President of the Senate Julian Proctor, are Senators Darry Wood, chairman, Ruth Doud, Karen Williams and Hugh McIvea. Sam McCall is an ex-officio member of the committee.

In other action, Proctor introduced Sandra Brooks, newly appointed Senate Secretary. The appointment is subject to consideration by the Elections and Appointments Committee.

The constitution of the Young Peoples Socialist League came out of the Organizations and finances committee with a recommendation for approval. The recommendation was accepted by a majority of the senators by a voice vote.

Bill 16, defining money-making and charity projects, passed unanimously after recommendation for approval by the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee.

The Organizations and Finance Committee recommended approval of Bill 17, revising the function of the Board of Directors for Unallocated and Reserve Funds.

The resolution recommending three graduation ceremonies per year is still under consideration by the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee.

'Dumb Waiter','Maids' Go On Stage Tonight

The FSU productions of "The Dumb Waiter" by Harold Pinter and "The Maids" by Jean Genet will be presented tonight and Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Conradi Theatre.

Sammy Kilman, director of the plays, announced that tickets will be available at the History Bldg. box office between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and also at the door. Price is $1.00 per person.

"The Dumb Waiter" tells the story of a pair of gunmen who wait the arrival of their unknown victim. The two men are played by Keith Carlson, producer-director of WFSU-TV, and James Morrison.

"The Maids" portrays a view of life in which we are all entangled in a mirage of illusions. Ritual is condemned as the repetition of an action depriveb of reality. Cast as the maids are julie Baldwin and Rosemary Minihan, with Ann Angell as the Madame.

These plays are representative of two of the world's leading playwrights.

Holiday Season To Open With Concerts, Caroling

A Christmas Concert by the University Singers Friday night, opens a season of special Christmas music at FSU.

Following the concert at 8:15 p.m., Friday in Westcott Auditorium, the Women's Glee Club is next on the calendar with its 5 p.m. Sunday vespers program.

On Sunday night student carolers will gather on the lawn of President and Mrs. Blackwell for a carol sing and the traditional lighting of the Christmas tree at 7 p.m. This officially opens the Christmas season on campus. There also will be caroling Monday night.

A soloist who will appear with both the Singers and Glee Club will be Rose Wildes. A winner in the Southeastern Conference division of the National Association Teachers of Singing, Miss Wildes is studying with Miss Betty Jane Grimm, director of the Women's Glee Club. She sang the lead role in the Opera Guild production of "Kismet," and has appeared as soloist with three campus choral groups.

She will be in a sextet of soloists for the Bach "Magnificat" on the University Singers program. The 76 voice singing group, directed by Dr. Wiley Housewright, will sing Mozart's "Solemn Vespers" and "Christmas Cantata" by Daniel Pinkham. A group of Christmas carols from other countries will also be on the program.

The Women's Glee Club will sing Benjamin Britton's "Ceremony of the Carols" and the R. Vaughn-Williams "Magnificat." Miss Wildes will be soloist for the latter number and Ann Wicks will be flutist. The program will be dedicated to FSU composer John Boda and his "An Oft Sung Song" will be a featured work. Soloists will be Jennie Black and Talka Lupkiewicz.

Other numbers on the Glee Club program include "Ave Maria" by Dr. Harry Robert Wilson of Columbia University; "Alleluia!" by Porter; "Hiding Place" (a spiritual); "List the Cherubic Host" by Gaul; and "In the Stillness of the Night" by Wilson.

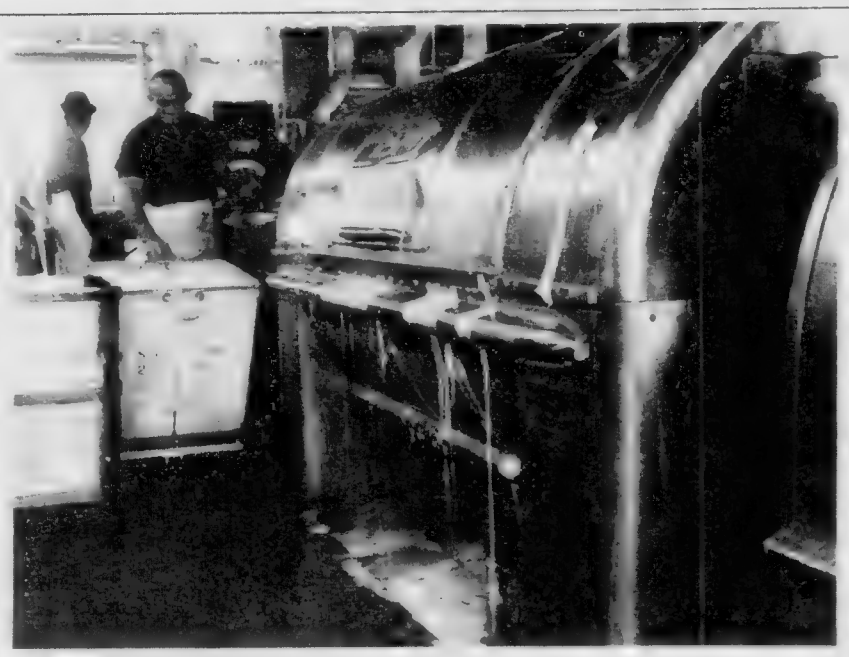
"The Innocents" starring Deborah Kerr and Michael Redgrave will be shown as this week's Campus Movie in Westcott Auditorium Fridan and Saturday evenings at 7:30 p.m., not Thursday and Saturday as announced in "This Week."

FSU Initiates M L Exams

By CAROLYN CHRISTENSEN
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Modern Language Proficiency Tests for Advanced Students and Teachers of Foreign Languages are being offered for the first time by the FSU Modern Language Department Jan. 11.

The results of the tests this year at FSU will be used primarily for information and guidance for students and counselors, but the inclusion of the test is planned as a prerequisite for internship in the future.



The tests have been adopted by 25 different states as a prerequisite for teacher certification, and other states are now considering taking the same step. Several universities require a satisfactory achievement on the tests for graduation with a major in a foreign language.

Although the tests are not compulsory at FSU, 18 foreign language majors who are preparing for internship have signed up. The tests are offered in German, French, Spanish, Italian, and Russian, with a cost of three dollars per language.

The tests were developed during the past three years by the Modern Language Association of America with the support of a United States Office of Education grant. Dr. Wilmarth Starr, of New York University, was in charge of the development project.

The tests are different from any other published materials in that they include a section on speaking in which the student's speech is recorded on tape. Other sections of the test include an understanding of recorded native speech, a timed test of reading with comprehension, writing with structural accuracy, applied linguistics, the culture of the area, and techniques of teaching the language.

Dr. John B. Conant, former President of Harvard University has stated in his new book "The Education of American Teachers" that "these tests are the first real advancement we have yet made toward definitive teacher preparation criterion in foreign languages." Conant further recommends that all teacher education institutions adopt the tests.

Campus Building To Boom

By SUE COMBS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Through the approval by Florida voters of the College Building Plan Amendment, FSU will receive $11,118,000 for construction and improvement of buildings and facilities.

This money has already been allotted to various buildings and facilities on campus.

Plans for the construction of these new buildings have not yet been completed. First, architects are assigned to each building. Then a Building Committee from the department which is to occupy the building is appointed to work with architects. Plans for new buildings must be approved by the University Building Commission and the Building Commission of the State Board of Control.

Funds are prepared, money is released by the governor's cabinet to award the contract, and construction is begun.

Plans are in the offing for construction of a new men's dormitory to the west of Keller Hall. Allotted to this area by the bond issue is $229,000.

An addition to the steam plant on Jennie Murphree Drive, the expansion taking place on campus will be benefited by the $811,000 set aside for this purpose. Also included will be underground pipes and wires.

$1,490,000 will be used for the addition to the Library. The addition will be built to the present Library perimeter.

A new Chemistry building, to be located west of the Molecular Biology building, will receive $2,-750,000 from the bond issue. The total building will cost $4,100,000.

Additional money, $861,000 will be financed by $250,000 worth of bonds, $476,000 from a Federal loan and $135,000 from the Infirmary reserve.

A Social Science building will be built with the $2,500,000 received from the bonds. It will be west of the Library on the present Women's Basketball courts.

A $1,800,000 Engineering Science building will be constructed near the circus lot.

Bonds will furnish $215,000 for the relocation of the greenhouse to the dairy, for the Computer Center expansion.

World University Service Helps Others

By NANCY ALLEN
Assistant Feature Editor

The Registrar's office reports an alarming rate of dropouts due to TB with no sign of relief in sight!

Fortunately this is not the situation on the campus of FSU but this situation does exist on the campuses of the seven Chinese language refugee colleges in Hong Kong.

When FSU students need flu shots, they go to the University infirmary. When a student in Southeastern Asia is threatened with disease (one in eight persons in Hong Kong is a TB suspect) he has nowhere to turn.

WUS, World University Service, is a student sponsored organization which is helping to meet the health and educational needs of students in many different parts of the world. It is not merely a charity organization, but a "help to self-help" program.

The funds collected are used for "bigger projects which are then supplemented through individual and corporate gifts."

In countries lacking books, WUS establishes mimeograph centers where students themselves translate textbooks and reprint them and other study material.

WUS has solicited gifts of drugs from pharmaceutical firms and uses them in the University WUS Health Centers in Asia and Africa.

To prevent the spread of TB in universities, WUS supplied x-ray equipment and subsequent treatment of suspected cases in Thailand and established a 37-bed student TB ward in Korea.

WUS is an international student service organization of 57 countries. Its basic budget is dependent upon the support of the university community.

Recently, Stephanie Stillwell, a WUS Field Representative, visited FSU's campus to acquaint religious and service organizations with WUS projects. FSU Campus Chest has sponsored WUS in previous years.

WUS operates on the principle that it is more than a personal tragedy when a young man or woman has to drop university studies because of poor health or lack of funds. "It is the entire world, sorely in need of educated, intelligent leadership, which feels the loss."

Laundry Comes Clean

By JUNE BECK
Flambeau Staff Writer

"It tears up your clothes." "It's not too rough. I send all my clothes to it." These two statements seem to include the general opinion about the school laundry.

Wilmer Gerrell, manager of the laundry, thinks that it is a part of the student's broadening education. "We operate on a scientific basis. We take tests periodically to see if we are washing clothes too hard, or not enough, and other things."

What happens to the clothes that are sent to the laundry? Each student has a bundle of dirty laundry. At the receiving station the student puts the canvas basket on wheels (called a truck) and loaded into a truck. The truck transports it to the main plant. There, it is thrown into a bin.

A man takes each bundle from the bin and removes the student's laundry. He puts the bundles into canvas trucks, 48 bundles per truck. He then checks each article for damage. Any rip or tear is recorded. When the torn article has been washed and finished, it is sent to the mending department where it is fixed with no extra charge to the student. Gerrell said, "Some students are pleased, but others didn't want us to mend."

After checking the garments for damage, the laundry marks them with the student's number. The marking is done with invisible ink which can be seen only under an ultra violet lamp. When each bundle is marked, the clothes are separated into wearing apparel, linens, flat work, and further separated by color or texture. It all goes into the washer to protect it from undue wear and tear. The clothes are then loose.

After being separated, the clothes go into the washer. It takes about an hour and fifteen minutes to load, wash, and unload. After the clothes are washed, they are put into a centrifugal extractor, a 800 pound extractor. Fast drying articles, which fade, are washed in a smaller machine with soap, not detergent. When they are taken out of the machine they are separated according to the finishing required.

Sheets and some flat spreads go through the ironer which has successive rollers which iron and dries them. Fancy spreads, are put into the drier-cabinet.

The big drier is 30 years old - the only piece of equipment in the laundry. The separated clothes, uniforms, work shirts, dresses, are put into the washer, towels and clothes in the drier.

When the clothes have completed their cycle, they are checked with the student's number and returned to the laundry list with the student's number and the number of pieces. The sorters here have ultraviolet lamps. The laundry is put in the right compartment.

The flat work is wrapped in paper at the ironer and put into the truck which carries the finished clothes to the receiving room.

The laundry has four main finishing stations. Each garment goes through this station. The garments sent for delux finish are pressed by the regular ironers. However, they go through the experienced workers.

The dry cleaning unit has the largest $2,000. The dry cleaning department is received at the finishing department. The articles are separated according to finishing required. The control on the dry cleaning machine is similar to the washing machine.

Before the articles are washed they are checked for stains. The dry cleaning is done in Stoddard solvent. There is a special machine for woolens. There is a special machine for silks.

Gerrell said that complaints are few. The complaints received are usually about lost articles. "If we can't find it, we pay for it." Sometimes the complaint is about articles.

Invisible ink does not show up on dark garments. Fiber tags are attached to the garments with a safety pin for identification. comes off in the washing. There is no way to know when articles are lost. Sometimes they figure it out by elimination, but who it belongs to, they have to wait for the student to identify it. If a bundle is short, it is sent back to the articles are sent as soon as they are located.

The laundry fee is a topic that most girls are interested in. Before the girls had been sending their laundry out to wash and iron, do it and bring it back. Too often, they also received the administration set up the fee to encourage the students to send clothes to the school laundry.

When the school was opened to boys, the fee was dropped because the laundry could not handle the volume. Gerrell said, "The laundry does not drop the fee because without it, they could not do all of the services. The fee is not extended to the boys now because the laundry still could not handle the volume.

How do the girls feel about the fee? From the talk in the dorms one would believe that they thought it extremely unfair. However Gerrell said, "Last year a poll was taken on the girls' opinion of the laundry fee. The results were that 76% of them are happy with it as it is."

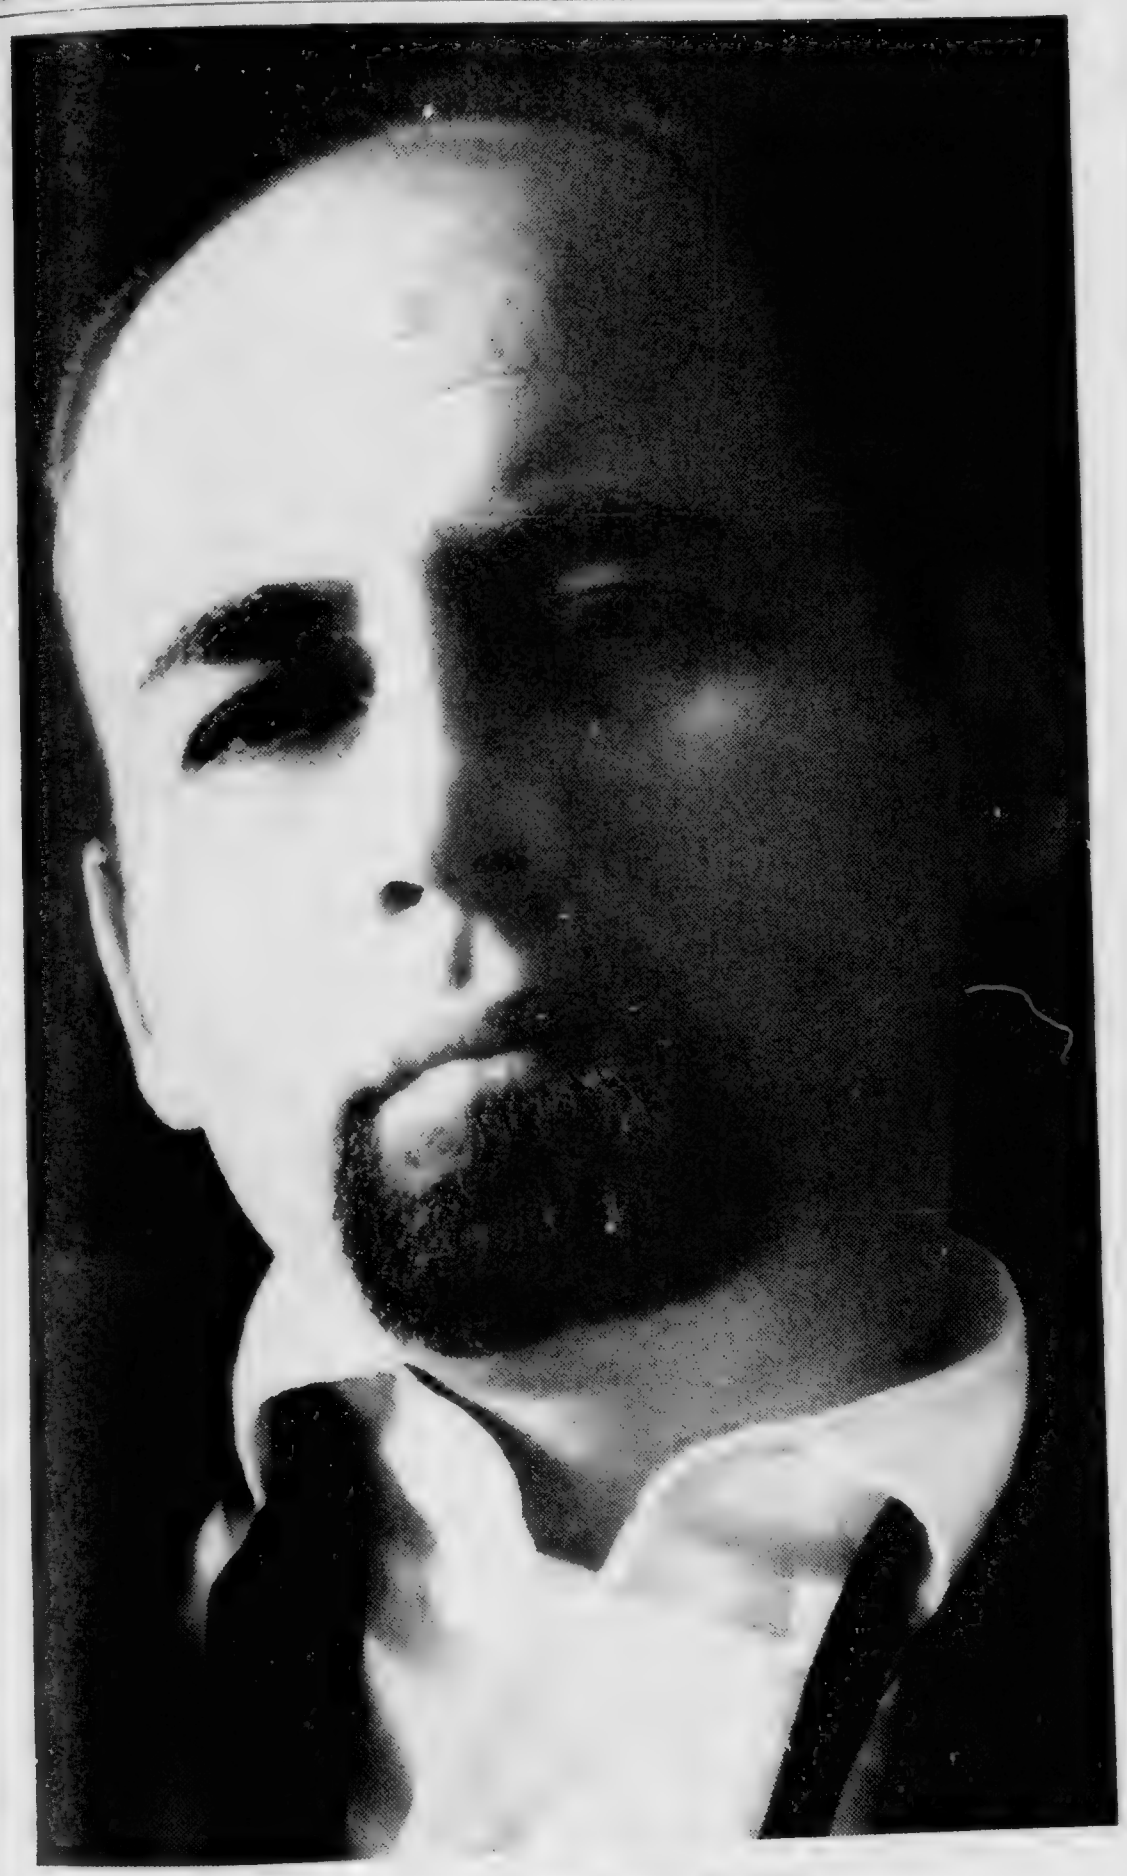
The laundry fee does not include fine finishing or dry cleaning. This would require too much bookwork. Mr. Gerrell said "Any extra money above maintenance goes into things to benefit the students. For instance we made a sizable contribution to the new physical education building."

Gerrell added, "The student fee is less than half of the revenue needed for operation."

Some girls are here on a shoestring. They can't afford to contribute to any facilities which they will never use. Neither can they afford to pay $17 for less than $7 worth of laundry. They can't send their dry cleaning apparel to the laundry because it takes about a week to get it back. If most of the girls are happy with the laundry fee, why not make the fee voluntary, like the food plan? Let the ones who want to and who can afford to pay the fee. Let the others pay for the services they receive, as they now do. If less than half of the laundry's revenue comes from the fee, it should be able to operate with less fees and more pay-as

Landis Green To Be White Christmas Scene

White Christmas" will be held on campus next Wednesday with a 25 ft. tree on Landis Green.



The tree will be roped off and campus organizations will deposit their gifts in the designated area, with members of the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity to assist.

The gifts will be wrapped in white tissue paper with each can labeled with its contents. Any money collected by organizations should be placed in envelopes with the group's name on it, unless it wishes to remain anonymous.

The food and money collected will be used to feed as many less-fortunate people as possible.

The collections will continue from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and at 7:30 the campus as a whole will gather around the tree for its lighting to reveal all the gifts.

Following the lighting the Air Force ROTC glee club will lead the students in a Christmas songfest. Dr. Paul Minus, university chaplain, will then give a convocation, followed by a message from Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students. After this the caroling will continue, concluding with the Alma Mater.

ME? A POET? HECK NO!

I'm an economics major hinting that I want a REMINGTON® LEKTRONIC II for Christmas.

(It costs a little more than most electric shavers, but it's worth it.)

There's a simple, sound reason why the REMINGTON LEKTRON C II costs more: It delivers more of a shave.

There's the cordless feature. Sealed-in, rechargeable energy cells let you shave anywhere without a plug. And what shaves they are! 348 cutting edges of high-carbon steel (sharper and tougher than stainless-steel) whisk whiskers off. The edges are honed on an angle. So whiskers get sliced off instead of plowed up. 756 whisker gathering slots in the big shaving head feed whiskers to the cutters faster. And on top of the shaving head are the REMINGTON Roller Combs. Adjust to any skin or beard. Push skin down, pop whiskers up into the cutters.

Forget to recharge? There's a cord. Plug it in and shave anywhere. With a cord, without a cord, with the LEKTRONIC II you're never without a close, comfortable shave.

REMINGTON LEKTRONIC II

East-West Scholarships Available To Students

The East-West Center graduate scholarships, considered one of the leading grants available in Asian and Pacific area and language studies, are being offered again to American students.

President Lyndon B. Johnson sponsored legislation establishing the center, a national educational institution located on the University of Hawaii campus and affiliated with other institutions in Asia, the Pacific areas and the U.S.

Applications for the 100 scholarships offered for 1964 must be submitted as soon as possible. The deadline is January 1, 1964.

The expense-paid scholarships, each valued at about $8,500, include round-trip travel costs and a small personal allowance.

American students will engage in Asian or Pacific Islands' studies offered by the University of Hawaii, long noted for these fields. Students will augment their studies during the most unique part of the Center grant, a three to six-month field study in an Asian or Pacific area.

Grantees from the U.S. will join students from 27 Asian and Pacific countries in cultural and social activities, as well as in regular classroom studies.

Other Center institutes provide interchanges for technical participants and for advanced senior scholars-in-residence.

Full information and application forms may be obtained by writing: Director of Selection, Institute for Student Interchange, East-West Center, University of Hawaii, Honolulu, Hawaii (96822).

Gymkana Goes On The Road

Florida State University's Gymkana troupe takes to the road this weekend for a presentation of its fall show "Passport" at Perry, Ga., Saturday night.

Under the auspices of the Perry Club Council, the student troupe of gymnasts and other performers under the direction of Dr. Hartley Price, professor of physical education, will give its show at 7:30 p.m.

Earlier this year Gymkana traveled to Thomasville to Veterans Domiciallary to give a charity show for them.

Some of the members--Rick Miller, Ellanor Miller, Donna Carner, Roy Schroeder, Betty Haas, and Dolores Lord, the 1963 Miss Gymkana--will leave Friday to appear on a TV show to publicize the event in Perry.

Bob Gramling, road show chairman, organizes the trips, while Larry Aaron acts as master of ceremonies.

Women's Club To Host Dance

Christmas in "Old Mexico" will be the theme for the University Women's Club Annual Christmas Dinner-Dance to be held Friday, Dec. 13, at the Holiday Inn.

The festivities will begin at 7 p.m. with a Smorgasbord Feast and dancing will begin at 9 p.m. The music of the G-Bach Quintet, led by Robert Glotzbach, will continue until 1 a.m.

Door prizes will be plentiful, and will be drawn from the colorful Mexican pinatas which will be a part of the festive decorations. During the intermission the guests will be entertained with Mexican dances.

Reservations should be made before noon Tuesday, Dec. 10, by calling Mrs. R.K. Godfrey at 877-4732.

Freshmen Flunkies

Last year's Freshman Flunkies can pick up their pins in the main lobby, Longmire, today from 3-5 p.m.

Seminole Chiefs To Give Concert

The FSU Marching Chiefs and concert band will share the program in presenting an end of the season concert Wednesday night in Westcott Auditorium at 8:15.

The concert band's program will consist of four selections: First Suite in E Flat by Gustav Holst, Hansel and Gretel by Engelbert Humperdinck, Divertimento for Band by Vincent Persichetti, and Peachtree Promenade from "The Atlanta Suite" by Don Gillis.

The Marching Chiefs will perform the second half of the program and will feature selections from their 1963 season.

Director of both groups is Robert T. Braunagel.

Home Ec. Tea

A School of Home Economics tea honoring graduating seniors will be held on Tuesday from 3-4:30 p.m. in Sandels Lounge.

All Home Economics students and faculty are invited.

AN UNUSUAL CHRISTMAS PRESENT

FSU Campus Santa To Visit

Acting as emissaries for St. Nick, members of the FSU Marketing Club the Student Center parking lost and begin distributing gifts at modest prices Monday.

On sale will be items such as dolls games and other toys and novelty gifts, at prices ranging from ten cents to $5. Santa's "hours" will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Proceeds of the sale will go to the Marketing Club Scholarship Fund. Established in 1961, the scholarship is unique in that it is the only scholarship fund available on campus for students with academic averages from 2.0 to 2.5.

Dr. Kobre To Present Film In Winter Haven

"Client File," a motion picture in color and sound dealing with the public relations training program at FSU, will be presented by Dr. Sidney Kobre to the Florida Public Relations Association in Winter Haven tomorrow.

Pat Fuller and Gary Douglass, public relations and advertising majors who will accompany Kobre to the annual meeting of the organization, will assist with the projection of the film.

The motion picture, which has been shown to more than 700 students and members of the FSU faculty, was produced and acted by students under the direction of Kobre.

This will mark the first time the film has been shown to a state organization.

The film shows students in classrooms and as they develop public relations projects for "clients." Tallahassee business concerns, state government agencies and education institutions in the area have cooperated.

The 16 mm picture, which is narrated by students and Kobre, also shows field trips which students take to local printing plants and state information departments to get background and see public relations in action.

"The film will show graphically the kind of public relations program we have at FSU," Kobre explained. "Instead of telling the several hundred public relations men from all over the state about the activities of the department, we can show them the program pictorially."

JERRARD HONORED BY BUSINESS CLUB

Chairman-director Wendell Jarrard of the Florida Development Commission, second from left, was presented an honorary membership in the Master of Business Administration Club of Florida State University for starting and strongly supporting the MBA internee program for graduate students. Dean Charles A. Rovetta, center, dean of the School of Business, praised Jarrard for "his effectiveness in developing these opportunities and for his helpfulness to students." The MBA Club is composed of graduate students in the School of Business. At the presentation, from left, Dean Rovetta, Jarrard, Charles L. Daly Stanford Upped To Major

An assistant professor of military science at FSU, Daly H. Stanford, was promoted this week from captain to major in the Army.

Promotion ceremonies for Major Stanford were held in the office of Lt. Col. Milton J. Tankersley, professor of military science at FSU and head of the Army-ROTC training program.

Stanford is a native of Eufaula, Ala., and received his bachelor's degree from Auburn University in 1952. Subsequently he served in various commands in this country and in West Germany, where he was a member of a reconnaissance unit along the border. He is in the Armor Branch.

Townsend Put On Committee

Dr. Francis G. Townsend, head of the English Dept. at FSU, has been appointed to the advisory committee of "College English," a monthly journal.

The journal is published during the school year by the National Council of Teachers of English, which also publishes "English Journal."

Dr. Townsend, as editorial counselor for "College English," will be responsible for the field of Victorian literature.

Townsend has been on the faculty and head of the English Dept. since 1958.

How Are We Doing On Schools?

...ere are 1,200,000 classrooms ...e United States--but before this ...ade is over, we will need an ad...nal 1,600,000. This year alone, ... school construction bill in this ...try will be $8 billion.

...e big question is: Are Americans ...ing the best schools for their ...ey?

...efore this question can be ...wered we should have some idea ...hat makes a good school.

...lliam W. Caudill, a prominent ... architect, said a good school-...se is an efficient 'teaching ...ine.' If a good school could ... Mr. Caudill declared, here's ...t it would say:

... have ... to do. I do it well. ... learning, not deter it. ... effective, efficient edu... I am more than a dead ... I am dynamic. I ... the students and their edu... ess. I provide a pleasant, inspiring environment for study. I am a machine for learning."

Just what does this mean in terms of the size, shape, building materials and costs of new schools?

The idea of the cellular school--individual classrooms in which students are taught most of their subjects by one teacher--has been losing ground for some time.

The trend is toward team teaching in large areas which can be partitioned by movable interior walls. Children of different grades can receive their own levels of instruction, but when a lecture or motion picture which is appropriate to all is to be shown, the teacher need only push a button to roll back the wall.

Larger rooms mean fewer exterior walls. This offers the opportunity for more efficient construction and equipping. For example, some of today's best new schools have natural ventilation, made possible through advanced design and construction techniques. A natural ventilation system allows air movements deep within the interior of the building to exceed the speed of outside breezes without the use of blowers. Buildings can also be designed to reverse air flow, thus insuring circulation of fresh air to all parts of the school.

Good lighting and acoustics and air conditioning are now accepted as essential elements for better student performance.

With increasing emphasis on college programs, high school officials are finding a greater need for larger lecture halls, seminar rooms and independent study areas. In addition, space is needed for more audio-visual aides, language and scientific laboratories, and even for those much-talked-about teaching machines.

The shell of a modern schoolhouse is only about one-third the total cost of the educational facility. Good schools can be built efficiently because of modern mass-produced structural units which can minimize the amount of space not used for educational purposes. Lower ceilings, for example, can reduce the total volume of a building by as much as 30 per cent.

The best designed new schools combine beauty and economy with the balance of structural mass, clean lines and proper proportions of steel, glass and stone.

To offset the impersonal egg-crate feeling that modern building materials can sometimes give to a building, school architects are using more and more natural stone. Stone not only enhances a structure but also gives it strength and means substantial savings in maintenance costs.

The United States is blessed with vast and varied stone deposits. According to the Building Stone Institute, quarries in this country yield many types of natural stone: Sandstones, which range in color from light to dark gray and from light to dark buff; Quartzites, whose tones run from gray and blue-gray to shades of brown, beige, olive, rust, pink, buff, and purple; Limestones, which can be white, blue, gray, brown, buff, pink or yellow; and the multihud and finely grained Granites, Marbles and Slates.

School construction costs have given community officials and taxpayers some of their biggest headaches. Since 1934, the cost of building schools has risen 150 per cent.

Although this is nearly 50 per cent lower than the rise in the cost of all types of construction for the same period, it doesn't necessarily mean taxpayers are getting a bargain. Probably the main reason for the smaller rise in school costs is that politicians ofter prefer cheaper construction bills in order to make it appear that they are saving the taxpayer's money.

To keep contracts low, school boards sometimes authorize the use of poor grades of cement and asphalt, cheaper locks on doors, 10-year roofs instead of 20-year bonded roofs, and one-coat paint jobs.

School architect Caudill notes that time and again city officials have said with concern, "I hope the school won't look expensive.' They are afraid their political opponents will accuse them of squandering the taxpayer's money.

When told that marble wall panels and stairs would cost less, Mr. Caudill said, one school board member replied, "We don't care whether it is cheaper or that it lasts longer, don't use any marble any place." Again, they were afraid of what persons who didn't know the facts might say.

In the long run, poorly designed, cheaply constructed schools cost much more than if they were built properly. Sectional outside walls are likely to leak, cheap roofs need constant attention, and "bargain' hardware and fixtures need frequent replacement.

What can taxpayers do to see they get good value for their school construction dollar?

Civic leaders not it takes more than just a passing interest in local affairs. They urge frequent attendance at municipal and school board meetings, especially by taxpayers armed with questions aimed at getting the facts about building and maintenance costs.

Only then will officials and the public begin to realize the practical, educational and cultural advantages of constructing schools of lasting strength and beauty.

INCREASED COSTS OF BUILDING SCHOOLS ... spur many politicians to curry favor with constituents by authorizing cheap construction. The Building Stone Institute points out that cheaper schools cost taxpayers more in maintenance and eventual replacement, while sound structures, such as this modern school plant of stone and glass, save dollars in the long run.

Auburn Here Saturday

Cagers Open Home Season

By HAPPY CLARK
Flambeau Staff Member

Saturday night at 7:45 the Auburn Tigers will invade Seminole territory. It will be the tenth meeting of the two schools in basketball; Auburn has won nine of them.

In their openers, Auburn won in a warm up over Howard College 102-44, and FSU lost to Florida 78-55.

A typical Auburn team consists of good ball control, high shooting percentage, and tough boardmen. This will be a typical Auburn team and the battle of the shuffle offenses should prove exciting. Both teams use the shuffle to great advantage. The object is to work the ball around and move, or shuffle, your men around to confuse the offense and open a hole for an easy layup.

Auburn's two guards are among the best in the SEC. Larry Chapman and John Blackwell are experienced and will be tough to guard. The key to Auburn, however, will lie in the ability of the three big men to pick up polish which only comes with experience. They have height and ability to do so.

The rangy front line runs Lee DeFore (6-5), Freddie Guy (6-7), and Joe Newton (6-7). In the shuffle it is hard to say who plays what underneath but Joe Newton will jump at center.

FSU's poor shooting ability displayed against Florida should not reappear against Auburn so badly. In the past Seminoles have always been tough in that phase.

If the Seminoles start to hit, they could very easily wind up with an important victory as they are picked to lose and Auburn is rated high.

Jerry Shirley, Bill Peacock, and Pete Rogers hit in double figures against Florida and with this to go on, they will carry the load again against Auburn. Larry Bulger, a junior transfer from Pensacola Junior College, also hit nine against Florida and may see a good deal of action against Auburn.

Coach Kennedy sums it up by saying, "Auburn always has a well disciplined, well coached team. It should be a rugged battle for us."

Auburn is only the first of ten home games. The schedule runs:

Dec. 7 Auburn
Dec. 21 Tampa
Dec. 23 Tulsa
Jan. 11 Miami
Jan. 16 Memphis State
Jan. 18 Georgia
Jan. 23 Florida
Jan. 29 Alabama
Feb. 6 Furman
Feb. 22 Jacksonville
All games will begin at 7:45.

The freshmen will have a game at 6:30 just before the varsity tilt, with Chipola Junior College. The freshmen will be sporting a little with 6-9 1/2 Dick Dantord and 6-9 Ken Doyle. Chipola always has a good team and the FSU-Chipola games have always been tough.

Tribe Mermen Swim Friday

By JOHN WOOD
Flambeau Sports Editor

The Florida State Swimming team, perennially one the strongest in Dixie, will preview the 1963-64 season Friday night with an intra-squad Garnet-Gold meet at 8 p.m. in Montgomery Gym. Coaches split the squad down the middle and attempted to match the most powerful swimmers against each other.

Making their appearance for the first time as varsity members will be the best group of freshman swimmers ever to come to FSU, who compiled an outstanding season last year. They will be led by freestyler Fred Abbott, called by Assistant Coach John Simmons, "one of the best all-around swimmers ever to come here." Other outstanding sophs will be John Kohrer, the 50 yard freestyle champ of Florida in 1962; Dan Jefferies, the former State butterfly champ of Iowa; and Jim Meuleau, a top swimmer at Georgia Military Academy last year.

Lettermen from last year's varsity squad include three seniors--free-stylers Dale Smith and Alan [illegible] and Backstroker Ben [illegible].

BOP Elects Collins As 'Flambeau' Editor

ERIK COLLINS

By BOB MITCHELL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Erik L. Collins was elected editor of "The Florida Flambeau" by the Board of Publications in a meeting late yesterday afternoon. Presently associate editor, Collins will begin his new duties in January.

Collins was the only applicant for the position which will be vacated at the end of the trimester by Miss Lana Murray.

According to the Student Body Constitution, applicants must hold a 2.3 average and must be junior or senior standing. Applicants must also have served on the "Flambeau" for two semesters.

In a paper written to the Board concerning his plans for the "Flambeau," Collins stated that he felt that there had been little communication between Student Government and the newspaper.

Collins said, "I propose to unlock the door that has stood between "The Florida Flambeau" and student leaders in order to give them the opportunity to propose new laws and explain issues to their constituents."

Lana Murray said of the newly elected editor, "I feel that he is well qualified and I am sure that he will do a good job."

Concerning the purpose of a college newspaper Collins said, "The purposes of any college newspaper are to inform the students, faculty, and staff about events relating to the campus and campus life, and at times, to galvanize the student body to action when the newspaper or its editors, using their capacity for obtaining news not readily available to the average student, see an issue which they believe should be called to the attention of the students."

Collins' qualifications were listed in his paper to the BOP. He was editor of his high school newspaper which won first prize in the Gannet Publishing Company's contest for high school newspapers in New York.

Collins also has worked for the "Flambeau" in various positions. He has served as reporter, assistant managing editor, sports editor, and associate editor.

Bob Foss, chairman of the Board of Publications offered his resignation at the same meeting yesterday. Also offering resignations from the BOP were Ben Thornal, and Pat Gurley.

Foss said that while he did not wish to resign that circumstances had made it impossible to attend school next trimester.

The BOP acted on a proposal made by Jim Yon, editor of the Smoke Signals to change the distribution date of the Smo0e Signals.

Under the new system, outlined by Yon, the Smoke Signals would not put out an issue during the summer trimester. However, three issues of the magazine will still be published and will be distributed in September, November and April.

The board voted on and approved this proposal. Yon said that there was just no demand for the Smoke Signals duing the summer months.

He called human beings the "most quarrelsome animals in the animal kingdom. Tigers and lions have learned to live with one another, but homo sapiens has continually made a botch of this matter of getting along with his fellow man."

Wadsworth continued, "The one thing we haven't learned as a people is that it pays to get along. There will always be a desire on the part of one individual to hurt another.

"But," he asserted, "Fighting is not the way to change people's mind. You can't have a male fist under someone's nose and say, 'from now on believe what I believe and nothing else.'

He added that the only reason for the failure of all the disarmament attempts was the "inability to get the agreement made on terms advantageous to each side. Both the US and the USSR want 'peace -- on our terms' I will be much surprised if formal negotiations for disarmament succeeds."

Wadsworth called the United Nations, which he served as ambassador from the US between 1958 and 1961, "Merely one step on the road from the cave to the kind of world you want to live in. If it could only be half as successful as it can be, it would eliminate the need for Civil Defense."

Wadsworth closed the University Lecture address by saying that "Knowing what we do about our enemies weapons, and knowing what the leaders of both sides have admitted about possible war between us, let us hope that someday man will learn to live with man."

A reception followed the address for the seniors in Longmire Lounge.

ODK Taps 4 New Members

By BOB RACKLEFF
Flambeau Staff Writer

Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership honorary, yesterday tapped Dr. William Rogers, FSU assistant professor of history, and undergraduates John Jones, Jon Kaney, and Joe Rogers into membership by ODK President Kelley Reid.

Those tapped were selected as outstanding in scholarship, leadership, and services.

Other officers of the FSU ODK chapter are: Doug Davis, vice president; and Bill Cullom, secretary.

Rogers, recipient of the Coyle E. Moore award in 1963 and a member of Gold Key, was tapped, Reid said, "For his outstanding ability and contributions as an educator."

John Jones is serving presently as secretary of state, and treasurer of Gold Key, past co-secretary of finance, and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Presently serving as Commissioner of Elections, Jon Kaney was also selected for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," a Gold Key member, and president of the Senate and Freshman Class president at North Florida Junior College, and is now a member of Pi Kappa Phi.

Joe Rogers is presently president of Gold Key, past junior justice of the Honor Court, a "Who's Who selection, vice president of the Senior Class, and is a member of the Phi Delta Tehta social fraternity.

ODK was founded in 1914 at Washington and Lee University, and a chapter was established at FSU in 1950. ODK selects its members from junior and senior undergraduate men, outstanding faculty and staff members, and prominent state or national government officials.

Club Sponsors Santa Sale

The annual Scholarship Santa Sale sponsored by the FSU Marketing Club will be held Mondary through Saturday at the student center parking lot. Proceeds of the sale will go the the club's scholarship fund.

Toys, games, and novelty gifts ranging in price from five cents to $10 will be on sale. They will be on display in an FSU circus trailer. Hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Band, Chiefs State Concert

The Concert Band and the Marching Chiefs will present a joint concert at Florida State University's Westcott Auditorium Wednesday evening.

Selections from the 1963 season will be presented by the Chiefs, according to Robert T. B... unagel, director. The program will be at 8:15 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

The 90 member concert band will open the program with "First Suite in E Flat" by Gustav-Holst followed by a Hansel and Gretel selection from the work by Engelbert Humperdinck. The band will also play "Divertimento for Band" by Vincent Persichetti and Peachtree Promenade from the "Atlanta Suite" by Don Gillis.

The seond part of the program will be by the Marching Chiefs. Opening with pregame drums, fanfares and fight song, the Chiefs will present "Lover," "Celito Lindo," "Boda" and "Mr. Touchdown." "Muskrat Ramble" will feature Janic Eddins and the majorettes. Solo twirler Cookie Winchester will be featured in "Officer Krupke."

Other numbers include "Huckleberry Hound," "Siboney," "Beverly Hillbillies," "Mr. Ed," "Rawhide and Gunsmoke" and "Espani Cani." The program will end with "Hymn to the Garnet and Gold."

Roger McLendon is drum major for the Chiefs; Charles Carter, arranger and Clifford Madsen, associate director.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer following the editorial.

A Free Voice?

The removal of David Lawrence, Jr., as editor of the University of Florida newspaper, "The Florida Alligator," is disheartening and somewhat frightening to all who value the power and necessity of a free press.

Not that Lawrence had not stepped on a few officious toes while editor--without knowing all the facts behind the editorials he wrote, it is unfair to attempt to judge whether he stepped a little hard at times. But justification for removal of an editor should require proof that leaves no doubt in anyone's mind that the action was absolutely necessary.

This sort of proof the U of F Board of Student Publications did not exhibit; or, if they did, they did not publicize it, which is far worse. The Publications Board removed Lawrence "on the grounds of repeated irresponsibility, violations of publications policies and breaches of sound journalistic practices." The Board's statement continued that Lawrence "had been considered for removal on two previous occasions this trimester. His former violations and breaches played a major role in today's action."

What apparently triggered the Board's reaction was a Lawrence editorial blasting the Board in its selection of next trimester's "Alligator" editor. (Lawrence will be graduated in December with a degree in journalism.) Lawrence assailed student politicians who he said "decided they had to step in and try to obtain control of the students' free voice on campus."

He further charged that "these student politicians decide time and again that the Alligator is a threat to their every whim. Frankly," he declared, "these politicians are right." He added, "It is a disappointment because politics of one sort of another again unnecessarily interfered with a newspaper's responsibility to the public."

The signed editorial so infuriated Board members that, on a day of national mourning, when all other activities were cancelled, and knowing Lawrence to be out of town on a class trip, they eagerly gathered together to assert their authority, and to show once again that there are some toes too sacred to be stepped on... especially when the party to the dispute also is judge and jury.

We're sorry, Dave, to see you booted on flimsy charges and previous hassles; as a third-yeard scholarship student of the St. Petersburg Times trainee program, and as a winner of awards for newswriting excellence, you appear to us to meet qualifications for editor. But we're also glad that you had the courage to say what you thought, regardless of personal consequences. The Board of Student Publications' action should be investigated completely because of your record of competence.

Freedom of the press will not be lost, so long as responsible journalists dare to say what needs to be said, without fear of recriminations.

LBJ - New Force In White House

A currently popular anecdote across the nation recounts a 1958 conference between then President Eisenhower and the Senate Majority Leader, Lyndon B. Johnson. At the conclusion of their talk, Ike looked at the dark leather presidential chair, and prophetically uttered, "One day, Lyndon, you'll sit in that chair."

Today that brief remark has been conformed into reality; the steady and experienced tall Texan has reassured our country in an hour of grave crisis. Many pseudo-philosophers and analysts have been asking each other the logical question, "What kind of man is the new President?"

Physically, Johnson towers over six feet tall and weighs 190 pounds. He suffered a severe heart attack in 1955, from which it appears he has fully recovered his health. Personally, he is a man accustomed to rough and tumble politics, directed most often by phone, his cherished weapon and informant. Like former President Kennedy, Johnson is a pragmatist, able to compromise, but a shrewd negotiator. His training and battle tactics were perfected in the U.S. Senate, where he is still viewed with awesome respect. As one veteran Democrat remarked, "As much as anyone around this town in my lifetime, Lyndon Johnson has the ability to sense when to give and when to get tough." Another colleague remembers his favorite saying when in the Senate: "Come, let us reason together." Hopefully, Johnson is anticipated to be most effective in dealing with Capitol Hill.

A man of action, a relentless driver known for the energy with which he tangles any new job; in many ways these Presidential qualities are those admired and practiced by business men. It is true, Lyndon Johnson does get along well with business leaders, and like then he is often wary and skeptical of the intellectual. One of his closest associates declared, "I'll bet you'll see quite a number of business types in his administration." To many of the New Frontier this may spell disaster. The result could be a more than substantial increase in the 1964 size of the Harvard faculty.

The new President is not known for either original thinking or deep intellectual capacity, but as a man who can get things done. As a President some adjustment may be necessary, for as one long time associate stated, "He's going to have to learn to listen and to read."

On the bi-polar system of liberal and conservative to which so many Americans attach so much importance (almost as much as which candidate is on the bumper of their car) Johnson seems to be "liberal." His strong endorsement of civil rights and tax revision bills in a masterful speech to a joint session of Congress last Wednesday, Johnson left few doubts as to his endorsements of the New Frontier policies.

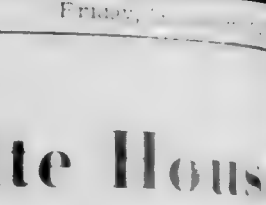
Zeal Can Destroy Freedom

To the Editor:

Having just returned from a meeting of the Young Republicans, at which Senator W. C. Young spoke, I am in a mild state of shock. I was not shocked by what Senator Young, a former member of the Johns Committee, had to say but at the fact that people not only believed but actually became enthusiastic over what Senator Young had to say.

The main theme of his speech, although it was not its title, was Communism. He said that the Communists used spies in order to steal secret information from the government of this country. In another part of his speech he mentioned the fact that a committee in Louisiana, similar to the Johns Committee, had confiscated the records of a "Communist front" organization. I asked him what was objectionable in these records. He evaded my question by saying that they were associated with other "Communist front" organizations.

But this is not the point. The point is--aren't such means as are employed by committees such as this very similar to the means employed by Communist spies in this country? Although their goals are different (maybe) aren't they achieving them by the same means? Are we, in essence, giving our support to local police states over a national police state?



Senator Young also called the American Civil Liberties Union a "Communist front" organization because the chapter in California advocated the removal of "under God" from the Pledge of Alligiance. Does he mean that in order to be an American one must believe in God? Why? Is this country run by men or Divine revelation?

I am inclined to believe that it is run by men--men who have human failings. Factions of this country are run by men who, like Senator Young, want to follow their convictions and do what they believe is best for the country but, in their zeal, can ultimately destroy real freedom.

The next announcement was the return of the Russian and Soviet troops. When the broadcasting station picked the radio station back, the record announcement was put on the air from which Hungary learned that J. The Hungarian people however felt different and heavy fighting was going on in the whole country, especially in the working class districts in the name of whom the proletarian dictatorship was supposed to be set up.

While the fighting was going on Premier Nagy and his closest associates took refuge at the Yugoslav Embassy.

As the days passed and more Soviet troops poured into the country from Czechslovakia, Rumania and the Soviet Union, the preponderance of the Russian army and complete absence of any western or UN help brought the military resistance to an end. The resistance movement was taken over by the workers councils which in the absence of Kadar's civilian authorities were the sole civilian administration and authority in Hungary. Their weapons were the general strikes and demonstrations.

The death penalty was declared for possession of arms and the slaughter of the most active revolutionists started. Simultaneously the borders were closed off by barbed wire and mine fields to seal off the country from the west. Kadar still talked of the withdrawal of Soviet troops and free election in his efforts to calm down the people's fury against his regime.

Because of the complete nationalization of the economy, the Kadar dictatorship could "starve" the workers resistance to an end after arresting the elected leaders of the workers council. The final drama of Kadar's brutality were the judicial comedies by which professors, writers, actors, religious and political leaders were killed or imprisoned. This lasted for six years after the revolution.

The most outrageous of all was the case of General Maleter and Premier Nagy. The Kadar regime gave safe conduct to Nagy so he left the Yugoslav Embassy. Russians, however, arrested him and his associates and later handed them over together with Maleter to Kadar's police. Two years passed after the ... then it was known about the ... that they were kept in Rum... finally Moscow radio broke the news by announcing that the Hungarian authorities had sentenced and executed them. (The trial was of course secret.) Cardinal Mindszenty who was liberated from prison three days before the Russian attack, sought the asylum of the U.S. Embassy and is still there.

Perhaps, to outdo his predecessors, Kadar pushed through the complete collectivization of the lands. That created such a flight from the lands that 20 per cent of the total population lives in the capital city alone.

After killing and imprisoning the hard core of opposition (200,000 already had left the country as refugees) and controlling completely the economy, there was a turn in the Kadar policy. It was clear that the people who were first class terrorists were not the ones who could run the country's economy. Good paying jobs became available not only to party faithfuls, but also for experts. Among party members promotion was not completely on the basis of servility but also on the basis of education. The "class discrimination" was toned down. The "socialist legality" became a slogan.

The system however had a very bad reputation abroad. To regain the prestige a "foreign aid" program was started to African and Asian countries. Even though the Kadar regime had enormous difficulties in agriculture they send "help to Cuba." There are not enough doctors and hospitals in Hungary, but Algeria still got a hospital as a gift. As it is well known, Hungary is the poorest country in Europe in energy resources. In spite of that, Hungarians are constructing hydro-electric plants for India and Egypt.

A U.S. led opposition had successfully blocked the acceptance of the present puppet government as Hungary's representative to the United Nations. It was one of the prime objectives of the Hungarian Moskovite to break up this opposition. As the number of new independent nations increased from Africa their chances became better and better. In their hatred towards Europeans they "see" to think that the Russians are not white, but red. Especially the "positive neutralists" (who are usually negative democrats) like Indonesia, Guenea, and Ghana, whose representatives always start their speeches with colonialism and end with imperialism -- consistently supporting the Soviet colonialization of Hungary in speeches and votes at the UN.

This spring, with great fanfare, the imprisoned communist, Marxist politicians and writers were released from prison--primarily those who were deported to the Soviet Union--the common freedom fighters, who actually took part in the fightings, the non-Marxist socialists, social democrats, religious leaders like Mindszenty, and other protestant bishops, like Ordass, former vice president of the World Federation of Evangelical Churches.

I think the best way to illustrate the Russian-Hungarian relation is to consider the military and economical relations between the two countries.

The Hungarian Institute of Statistics does not publish the prices of the exported and imported products. Not without reason. The Soviet publications do give the prices. On the basis of that the difference of the prices between the prices for which the Soviet Union sells and buys in the satellites and western markets can be compared. The difference totals a staggering $2,395,000 between 1955 and 58.

This handsome profit is actually greater because the whole calcula-

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: CLEM PATTON

From the time he joined Southern Bell in Nashville, Clem Patton (B.S.E.E., 1958) has continually impressed his management with his engineering ability.

Given the job of designing telephone cable connections between the central office and new residential subdivisions, Clem found ways to design connections that expertly met the engineering problem, and yet, kept costs to a minimum.

Because of such creative engineering talent, Clem was selected by his company to attend the Telephone Operating Engineers Training Course at Bell Labs. On completion of the course, Clem will return to Southern Bell and the increased responsibilities that await him there.

Clem Patton, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

tion is based only on such articles which the Soviet Union exports and imports both to the satellites and to the free world. (55 per cent of her export and 12 per cent of her import.)

A specific example would be the Hungarian bauxite and uranium which Hungary exports to the Soviet Union in enormous proportions.

Another aspect of the Soviet colonialism is the military one.

Significantly, the Soviet troops are stationed around Budapest, forming a double ring around the capital. The inner ring was set up to form a circle with a radius of 15-20 miles near the suburbs of the city. In case of emergency the well equipped armored and mobile infantry can cut off the city in minutes from the rest of the world. Every unit has its task as far as to which building, radio, or railway station, bridge or intersection they have to occupy. This can be executed between 10 to 30 minutes.

The outer "security" ring surrounds the city at a distance of about 40 to 120 miles. Stationed in the neighborhood of big cities and providing a double purpose. The fourth motorized Soviet divisions controls the Hungarian coal and uranium in Southern Hungary. The third ring is stationed around the Czech, Austrian and Yugoslav border.

In the western mountains the Russians set up concrete bases. The largest and most modern airfields are exclusively in Russian hands. The Russians maintain at least 550 jet planes of the most modern type.

This definitely shows how great is the support the Kadar regime enjoys in Hungary. As a contrast one has to mention that Czechslovakia and Rumania has no Soviet troops. They are not needed there.

The Soviet and their chief agents seemed to be determined to exterminate the Hungarian nation. Free abortion is allowed. 800 abortions per work day in Budapest alone. The newly born babies death rate is rising, and the birth rate is still falling and further "illuminating" courses are organized for women.

After the war, in exchange for appointing communist ministers, Rumania obtained part of Transylvania as a reward from the Soviet Union, where 20 per cent of Hungaria's populations lives. After 1956 the Rumania communist abolished the Autonom Hungarian Region, closed the ancient Hungarian universities, and forbade the use of of the Hungarian languages in offices, and the first form child is allowed to go to Hungarian elementary school. In spite of that Kadar would not protest and what is more those who tried to protest in Hungary were arrested for conspiracy.

That is the present status of the nation which was for a thousand years the "antemurale Christianitatis" of the West.

Strickland will serve in St. Petersburg. He joined the faculty in 1948 after serving as a member of the P.K. [illegible] School in Gainesville, principal of the school in Chattahoochee, and principal of the Milton High School. In addition to his academic duties, he is a member of [illegible] Kappa Phi, honorary professional education fraternity.

Dr. Witt, assistant professor at West Palm Beach, joined the faculty in May, 1962. She received her B.S. degree from the University of Florida, her M.A. degree from the University of Miami, and her Ed.D. degree from Florida State University.

Carson will serve at Fort Lauderdale. He joined the faculty in 1958, he received his B.S. degree in the field of business administration, and his M.A. degree in education, from Duke University. He taught at Lake Worth and Winter Park High School.

Serving at Pensacola will be Maly, who has been a consultant on guidance and testing for the State Department of Education since 1959. Previously he had served as counselor, dean of boys, director of guidance activities and assistant principal for curriculum in Escambia County secondary schools.

School Funds Appropriated

State legislatures across the country appropriated close to $2.1 billion in state tax funds for higher education in 1963-64, a gain of 26 percent over a two year period.

This is reported by Professor M.M. Chambers of Indiana University for the Joint Office of Institutional Research, this is an increase of $427.7 million over the total of $1,640.4 billion appropriated in 1961-62.

Percentage increases in state tax appropriations have moved up steadily from the 22.7 percent increase for the two-year period ending in 1960-61, to 24.5 percent for the period ending 1962-63, to 26 percent for the period ending 1963-64.

In terms of dollars, appropriations increased from the $1.3 billion appropriated in 1959-60 to almost $2.1 billion for 1963-64, an increase of 61 percent over the four year period.

State by state gains ranged from a high of Alaska's 59.3 percent increase to a low of Mississippi's 8 percent. For the first time in several years, no state showed a decline in appropriations.

Covering over 400 colleges and universities in the 50 states, the report is based on appropriations of state tax funds for operating expenses and does not include reappropriated income from tuitions, dormitories, athletic events and other auxiliary enterprises.

Senate To Continue Investigation Concerning Attorney General

By BETTY LYNN GRISSOM

"I think that the accusations made against Arnie Gibbs are completely unfounded and based on misunderstanding," was the comment made by Student Body President [illegible] Smith in reference to the charges brought against Attorney General Arnie Gibbs by Sam McCall at the Student Senate meeting last Thursday.

McCall, an FSU student, charged Gibbs with "misusing the powers relegated to his appointed position in selfish and uncalled for manners for his own personal benefit as well as the benefit of certain groups to which he belongs either as an officer or as a member."

He also said that Gibbs had brought about an injustice to Luther Kramer as well as to the student body governmental system by demanding the discontinuance of "Fraeco Surplus," an anonymous "Flambeau" column which was written by Kramer.

The senators unanimously voted to set up a committee to investigate the charges made against Gibbs. Chairman of the committee is Senator Barry Wood. Other members are senators Pam Doud, Karen Williams and Hugh McIvea, with Sam McCall acting as ex-officio member.

The Student Senate Investigative Committee will start its investigation upon return to school in January. The committee will seek to determine if the charges brought against the SG Attorney General are valid. Testimony of the various parties involved such as Arnie Gibbs, Luther Kramer, Sam McCall and all other parties who might have pertinent information will be heard.

Senator Wood, chairman of the committee said, "We hope that the truth concerning the charges against Attorney General Arnie Gibbs can be brought to proper light and made known publicly to all who heard the charges."

Webster's Dictionary Subject At Coffee Hour

By LINDA RUE SHEPLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

"No other book has ever been received with such hostility as has been the Third Edition of Webster's International Dictionary published in 1961," remarked Dr. Paul Stoakes at the English Coffee Hour Friday.

Stoakes continued by explaining that Webster, III has been universally applauded by linguists but almost universally condemned by editors and critics. From the 450,000 words in this dictionary, critics have pounced on nine which they consider slang.

The main target of animosity is the word "ain't." The gathering of forces against one poor harmless word is astonishing," the speaker stated. Critics such as the New York Times aim their "anti-ain't guns" and label Webster, III as "Webster's Way-Out Dictionary." What appalls Stoakes is the lack of research into the criticisms. If the Times had examined the word "don't" in the 1934 edition of Webster's, they would have found it labeled colloquial; yet the Times and other critics urge the modern public to stay with the outdated 1934 edition.

In presenting the case for the defense, Stoakes explained that Webster, III was 25 years in preparation at the cost of $350 million. Over 200 consultants and 75 editors (who put in the equivalent of 757 editor years) completely rewrote the outdated 1934 edition. It is the only dictionary published that was not a generation behind on the day it was published. In the language critics use to condemn "III" they show that "III" is the book for them. In the very article written to condemn and criticize this modern edition, "Life" magazine uses 40 words that are not in the "34" edition but which are in Webster, III.

Stoakes feels that the main trouble lies in the fact that most critics expected the new Websters to be a copy of the old. "What they didn't realize is tha the modern rests upon a completely new science about the study of language," he added. This new science proposes that: 1. All languages are systems of human conventions; 2. Each language is unique in pronunciation, grammar and usage; 3. All languages are dynamic rather than static; 4. Correctness can rest ony on usage and usage is relative.

Since usage is relevant to times and places Stoakes summed up his case by suggesting that a dictionary can only report, not judge.

Dr. Hudson Rogers announced that the English Coffee Hours will resume after the Christmas holidays on Friday afternoons in Westminster House.

Mrs. Reiber Dies At TMH

Mrs. Stanley Robert Reiber, 44, of 1884 Summit, died early Saturday at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital following an operation.

Mrs. Reiber was the wife of the Rev. Stanley Robert Reiber, a former Naval chaplain and onetime acting chaplain at Florida State University who is a doctoral student of marriage and family living at FSU.

Mrs. Reiber, the former Hilda Otis, was a native of Lake Placid, N.Y. She received a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and from 1943 until the end of World War II served in the Women's Marine Corps as a captain. She was executive secretary of the FSU Office of Public Relations at the time of her death.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by three daughters, Deborah, Cynthia and Pamela, and by two brothers, Jay L. Otis of Cleveland, and Raymond W. Otis of Valley Forge, Pa.

Court Convicts Two Students

Two FSU students were convicted of trespassing charges in City Court Dec. 5.

John Parrot and Dennis Flood were sentenced to pay a $100 fine or to serve 30 days in jail They attempted to integrate the Mecca, an off-campus restaurant.

Three A&M students were acquitted by Judge John Rudd when their attorney argued that the restaurant owner did not identify himself to the students when he ordered them to leave. Henry Jones, John Truesdell, Jr., and Thelma Austin attempted to leave later when a policeman ordered them to do so.

A&M student Ira Simmons was arrested immediately after the trial and charged with using profane and indecent language in court.

Bond was set at $50.

YAF Selects 1963-64 Slate

White Christmas

Caught up in the whirl of partying, present buying and Christmas-carol reading of the pre-Christmas season, we sometimes forget that the true spirit of Christmas lies in giving, and not receiving.

The FSU White Christmas project is a reminder of the love that comes from helping those who are less fortunate than we. The organizers of Lewis Green, serves as a symbol that we must not become so selfishly involved in activities as to be unaware of the wants and needs of others.

Every student owes it to himself to participate in the White Christmas project and place it under the White Christmas tree on Westcott Lawn. FSU has a responsibility to share the warmth of true Christmas spirit with Tallahassee's needy people.

We urge that everyone participate in the White Christmas gift-giving project. It is the least we can do to help those less fortunate.

LM

Quiet Descends

Thanksgiving holidays are over and Christmas vacation is fast approaching, but there is yet the matter of final examinations to be survived before students can raise their feet to a well-deserved rest.

Dead week begins today, and a semblance of general quiet will descend upon the campus. Some students will welcome the quiet. Most of them will not. Dead week is to students what election day is to politicians. It is a last-minute effort to pull their grades up . . . or keep them up.

During the coming week and during next week's finals, students should be more than generally considerate of one another, realizing that the tension of test-taking causes short tempers. The spirit of Christmas is somewhat incongruous with the atmosphere of pressure and tension, yet the two can be combined to quiet the nervousness of others during the next two weeks.

It students remember to talk quietly outside classrooms where last-minute reviewing is in progress, if drivers and motor-cycle riders will keep the noise of their vehicles to a minimum, or if campus and all residents will enforce strict observance of quiet rules in the living units, more hours can be spent in preparing finals and less in calming jangled nerves.

Jefferson's Letters Answer Anson

To the Editor:

I read Dennis Anson's "Voting by Uninformed Is Senseless." In answer I should like to submit the following quotations from Thomas Jefferson:

From the First Inaugural Address, March 4, 1801.

"I know, indeed, that some honest men fear that a republican government cannot be strong; that this government is not strong enough; but would the honest patriot, in the full tide of successful experiment, abandon a government which has so far kept us free and firm, on the theoretic and visionary fear that this government, the world's best hope, may by possibility want energy to preserve itself? I trust not. I believe this, on the contrary, the strongest government on earth. I believe it is the only one where every man, at the call of the law, would fly to the standard of the law, and would meet invasions of the public order as his own personal concern. Sometimes it is said that man cannot be trusted with the government of himself. Can he, then, be trusted with the government of others? Or have we found angels in the forms of kings to govern him? Let his history answer this question."

To: J. Moor, 1800.

'My opinion has always been in favor of (a general suffrage). Still I find very honest men who, thinking the possession of some property necessary to give [illegible] of mind, are for restraining the elective franchise to [illegible] lieve we may lessen the [illegible] of buying and selling [illegible] ing the number of [illegible] for any means of [illegible] further say that I have [illegible] men's honesty to incre[illegible] riches."

To: H. Lee, 1824.

'Men by their constitution are naturally divided into two [illegible] 1. Those who fear [illegible] people and wish to draw all [illegible] from them into the hands [illegible] er classes. To Colonel Yancey, 1824.

Tribe Edges Auburn 69-67

By HAPPY CLARK

The Florida State Seminoles took an early lead away from Auburn as they posted their first victory of the season.

It was not until 1:04 had elapsed before Auburn's Lee Newton hit a jump shot to put Auburn in front 2-0. For about 9 minutes Auburn looked real good. Florida State was slow on getting into position and Auburn was fast-breaking and getting open under the boards for easy layups. One of the biggest advantages Auburn has at this stage was the height. Auburn controlled the boards like they owned them.

Then Coach Kennedy sent in big Gary Schull. The 6-4 sophomore from Pompano Beach added the spark needed so badly by the Seminoles. He made great defensive plays and began to give Florida State more rebounding strength. The Seminoles came fighting back closing the gap to one point with 8:29 left. They stayed within one point at 24-25 and 26-27 until big Gary Schull put FSU ahead to stay at 28-27.

Pete Rogers then took the offensive load into his leadership and during the first half. The halftime score showed that Florida State had made a 36-29 lead.

Three [illegible] made the difference for Florida State. First, floor [illegible] were reduced tremendously from the Florida game. Second, [illegible] was more impressive as the Seminoles connected on 18 of 36 attempts for 42.5 . Auburn, usually real fine in this category, hit only 10 of 29 for a poor 34.4%. The poor Auburn percentage can be attributed to the third major improvement; that being the fine defense of the Seminoles. At the half, the lead was slim and though FSU had been playing well, Auburn would not give them a victory so easily. The almost full house waited and one could feel the tension as the two teams got ready for second half tip-off.

Auburn got the ball and moved down quickly. They were behind and wanted the lead back real bad. Jerry Shirley began to hit and the Auburn surge was flaunted. GRANDDAUGHTER OF RICHARD WAGNER

... and great-granddaughter of Franz Liszt, Miss Friedelind Wagner is herself active in music as head of the Bayreuth Festival Master Classes. She will speak today in Opperman Music Hall.

Founder Of Bayreuth Classes To Give Music Lecture Today

The founder and director of the Bayreuth Festival Master Classes, Miss Friedelind Wagner, will present a lecture this afternoon at 3 in Opperman Music Hall.

Heiress to a great and envious musical tradition, Miss Wagner is the daughter of Siegfried and Winifred Wagner, granddaughter of Richard and Cosima Wagner, and great-granddaughter of Franz Liszt and the Countess D'Agoult.

Wagner has informed the world of her youth in Germany in her autobiography "Heritage of Fire," published in 1945. She grew up in "Wahnfried," the Wagner family home, where she came to know the famous and infamous who journeyed from far and near to visit the renowned Wagner Festival.

Bayreuth has been an attraction for music lovers since 1876, when the first Wagner Festival was held. The Festival has provided high standards and significant innovations in musical ensemble, staging and lighting since the first event.

Adolf Hitler visited "Wahnfried" in 1923, and Nazism brought the hard steel of reality into the musical world Miss Wagner had known. She rebelled against it, and at the age of 19, seized an opportunity to quit Germany. With the help of Arturo Toscanini, Miss Wagner reached the United States where she soon became a citizen.

Friedelind Wagner returned to Germany only in 1953. Since then she has traveled extensively in Europe and her knowledge of the European operatic scene plus her special interest in the American artist are of particular value to Americans with a growing interest in operatic problems.

Having seen over 500 performances of opera in Europe since 1953, Miss Wagner has attended world premieres of operas by leading contemporary composers, meeting and talking to several of them personally.

The lecture is being sponsored by the School of Music and is open to the public.

He is working on the last chapter of his book now and will soon send it to the publisher.

Dr. Baker is also the Commanding Officer of a Naval Reserve Intelligence unit at the Naval Air Station in Jacksonville. He is active in outside consulting for businesses.

A believer in the old saying that "you don't get something for nothing," Dr. Baker "attempts to make my students aware of the fact that in order to enjoy the rewards of an economic society, they have got to contribute something of value to the society. I try to develop an awareness of purpose."

A non-believer in the merits of the trimester system, he considers classes in themselves to be "unbeneficial to sutdents. Classes only stimulate the student to think for himself and use his own time for reading, et. I try to make my classes an interesting experience."

Charges Set For Sailboats

Fees to be charged for the use of the six new Flying Dutchman Junior sailboats at the Reservation were set by the Camp Committee at its last meeting.

Fees for each trimester are as follows: individual student, $3; student family, $5; individual faculty member, $5; faculty family, $7. These fees will entitle the person or persons named to reasonable use of the boats on Thursday afternoons, and on Saturdays and Sundays while school is in session.

The Camp Committee extended through the first trimester the free use of the sailboats on the days indicated. More than 200 persons have been given instructions so far this trimester in the use of these sailboats.

Bus transportation, formerly provided to and from the campus by buses from the Reservation, will not be continued during this trimester.

FSU CONTRIBUTES TO A WHITE CHRISTMAS

...as APO nati[illegible] to the [illegible] "white Christmas."

On Green Tonight

APO To Sponsor White Christmas

By DICK SMITH
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Alpha Phi Omega "White Christmas" program will be topped tonight with caroling and the lighting of a 25 foot Christmas tree in the middle of Landis Green.

The purpose of "White Christmas" is to collect food for needy families in the Tallahassee area. Robert Malyk, chairman of the APO project asks that all "students and organizations bring canned food wrapped in white tissue paper to be placed under the tree," between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. today.

APO's stationed at the Christmas tree will assist in collecting the gifts.

For those who don't have canned food or would rather contribute in another way, money donations will be accepted. The money will go towards buying turkeys for the families.

The tree which was cut Friday is decorated with a star, sprayed with artificial snow, and hung with Christmas tree lights. Electricity for the project was donated through the office of Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby.

At 7:30 the White Christmas "sing fest" program will get underway. All students, faculty and staff are invited.

The program will open with the carol "White Christmas" by the Air Force Glee Club, under the command of Cadet Captain David A. Garbrick, Ralph Rittenhouse directing.

Malyk, as emcee, will thn welcome students and explain the purpose of "White Christmas," after which the tree will be lighted.

Two Christmas carols will then be sung by the Glee Club and students, followed by an invocation by Dr. Paul Minus, university chaplain.

"Angels from on High" the next selection by the Glee Club, will be followed by a Christmas scripture reading by Minus.

"Carol of the Bells" and ten Dean of Students R.R. Oglesby will deliver a Christmas address for FSU students.

After this everyone is invited to join in in singing more Christmas carols. The Alma Mater will also be sung, followed by the benediction by Minus, and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" by the Glee Club for their closing number.

This year marks the first time APO has had a "White Christmas" program. Malyk says he hopes to make it "a tration at FSU."

Johnson: Reassurance

(Guest Editorial by Janet Herzog)

The weekend of Nov. 22-25 marked both an end and a beginning: an end to violence and confusion and a beginning of calm. These four days shook the world--shook and then ended at the graveside of our late President.

For those of us who had spent the long weekend in front of our television sets, it was time to begin once more where we left off, to attend to our daily tasks, to prepare of a solemn, if not diminished, Thanksgiving. But for another American, the week that followed was a time of tremendous responsibility, both grave and urgent, for thrust upon him was the task of healing a nation's wounds.

Lyndon Baines Johnson threw himself into his new role with such swiftness and certainty that in that first week he inspired the admiration of most all who saw or heard him. Over and over again, we saw his face flashed on the television screen, heard his name linked with the nation's highest office: "Today, President Johnson will receive the foreign dignitaries..." "President Johnson speaks before Congress today..."

And on Thursday, a brief message to the American people was introduced with "Here, speaking from the White House, is the President of the United States .." On that Thursday many Americans must have paused to give thanks that in a time of great uncertainty such a man was there to take over--to bring sense to confusion.

But, admittedly, on that previous Friday some of us were not so sure that he was the man for the job, mainly because the man, Lyndon Baines Johnson, as vice president had practically disappeared from American view. I say American because in the eyes of the rest of the world he was most definitely in view: traveling to many countries throughout Europe and Asia as President Kennedy's personal representative. But here on this continent questions arose concerning Johnson's health, his ability as a world leader, and his competence in continuing Kennedy's policies.

However, once the first so-called "week of trial" was over, and President Johnson had begun to establish for himself a firm grasp on the presidential office, relief was evident everywhere. Reassuring us was his word--strong, confident and sincere; and his performance, forthright. His very message to the foreign dignitaries, that our policies abroad would remain the same, had a calming effect.

Though more a politician and less an intellectual than his predecessor, President Johnson has thus far shown such a willingness and capacity for his new office that, though through tragedy, the presidency itself has profited in the sense that the world has been reassured of the continuity of United States leadership.

'Anti-Red' Committees Harmful

Politicians may occasionally be forgiven for idiotic stands. I am not too sure that this should be the case for those who do this consistently and for long periods of time. An example of this is, of course, those muddle-headed "representatives" of the people who can find nothing better to do than look for "communists" under every stone, and label every progressive group "subversive."

A few weeks ago I had the rare "privilege" of hearing state senator Bill Young (Rep.-Pinellas), a member of the discredited, so-called John's Committee, speak on the FSU campus. Insurance 'Necessary' Program

As part of the bid specifications of the Student Insurance program, the Student Government has arranged that the insurance company receiving the bid would pay for the expenses involved in hiring a secretary to carry out the administration of the insurance claim forms as they arrive at the infirmary.

SG has recently received this money from Bigham, Neilson, Whitridge & Reid, Inc., insurance agents, which will be turned over to the infirmary for the expenses incurred in handling claim forms. The amount for this trimester has totaled to $1826.00.

Jane Smith, SG president stated, "This money is a necessity for the proper handling of the SG insurance program. Without this stipulation in the contract, SG or the University infirmary would be forced to hire a secretary from their staff to handle the immense number of letters and technical medical forms involved in administering the insurance plan.

"As per the insurance program ... premiums over $70,000 for the first trimester, which tops the future for the entire previous year. More ... of the eligible students have ... participation plan, which is one ... highest in the nation. I am very pleased with this high percentage, and the more students who participate, the better chance we in the student government have to negotiate for better benefits in the plan for the coming year."

The plan is underwritten by American Life Company ... is administered ... Tallahassee agent, Mr. Tom Overstreet.

Antioch College Seeks Answer To Stealing

(ACP) - Students living in dorm rooms at Antioch College, Ohio, will be issued keys to lock on their dorm doors "under special circumstances," thanks to a new student government regulation recently passed on campus.

The campus newspaper, "Record," noted that this ended over 15 years of debate involving the only college in the nation without lockable dorm rooms. But... do locked doors solve the problems?

When the securities problem first arose, securities subcommittee members were so busy seeking ways to keep outsiders off campus that they gave very little consideration to lock alternatives.

The subcommittee gave insurance a second glance, however, but then gave up when Jean Jarvis, housing director at Antioch, informed the world that the annual premium would be extremely high even if the group were successful in finding a company willing to underwrite it. At this point, record a further discussion seems to be lacking. These plans were cut.

From the depths of the Antioch wilderness there came a whispered question: Why couldn't the students start a fund of their own that would reimburse those who were robbed? A "Lloyd's of Antioch." The answer remains unsolved, and the plan hasn't been considered.

Thefts in the 1961-62 school year amounted to losses of an estimated $3,385. In 1962-63, the approximate total was $3,382. The loss per student didn't exceed three dollars per year, but the "goodie collectors" were raking the most in valuables and equipment taken from students.

Something had to be done, so a special five-dollar insurance charge was collected to cover the losses. The plan would still net more than enough money to take care of thefts from rooms and also it could pay for losses suffered when property is removed from storage rooms or other locations.

The $5 premium per student was $2 over the amount lost per student but the rates were not exorbitant. When the fee went up another $5 recently, there was a great cry of protest only from the thieves, while the students decided locks on doors or no, "Lloyd's of Antioch" was proving to be a better plan.

Bama Bruises Tribe

By HAPPY CLARK
Sports Writer

The Seminoles suffered their second loss in three games Monday night when they were out-hustled and outshot 62-53. The agressive Alabama defense and hot-hitting offense produced many mistakes from the Seminoles throughout the contest. Alabama didn't miss a shot until they had a 7-0 lead. The Seminoles seemed to be lacking the fire than won them the game against Auburn.

Despite the fact that Alabama was the more agressive team, FSU collected numerous fouls in the critical early moments of the ball game. Cal Huge had three in less than three minutes. Rogers had three by the end of the first half. It seemed odd that everytime that there was a scramble for the ball FSU would be fouling. In the second half the fouls began to even out as Alabama pulled ahead and most of FSU's top men were crippled by them.

Despite the fouls FSU managed to pull back up and actually go ahead at one point, but Alabama would move again and grab a lead up to five and six points before FSU could hit again. Alabama simply outshot the Seminoles and took a 36-31 lead into the locker rooms at halftime.

The second half was much the same as Alabama began to pull away. The Seminoles would rally but simply could not keep up for long. Gary Schull, a demon in the first half began to tire. Shirley tired. Rogers had four fouls and Peacock fouled out The pressure Alabama put on the Seminoles was to great as the relatively inexperienced Seminoles went down to a 62-53 def. at.

Coach Kennedy said after the game that though his Seminoles lost he had seen improvement and that the future looked good if the improvement continued. He said also that Alabama had a much more agressive team than did Auburn and together with the foul trouble, the Seminoles were certainly defeated.

HALFTIME Alabama 36 Florida State 31

Mira Is Top Senior

DAYTONA BEACH (AP) -- By unanimous choice, Miami's quarterback George Mira is Florida's outstanding senior college football player of the year.

Bernard Kahn, sports editor of the Daytona Beach News Journal, announced that Mira won the votes of all 16 state sports editors participating in the Daytona Beach quarterback club poll.

The Hurricane passing ace is the fourth player to be chosen unanimously. The others were Charlie Lapradd, Florida tackle (1952); Steve Delatorre, Florida center (1955); and Bill Miller, Miami end, (1961).

And he is the fifth Miami player tmwin the award. Florida has had five winners and Florida State two.

Mira was placed on the Associated Press second All-American team and was a second round choice of the San Francisco 49ers in the National Football League draft.

Jack Katz, Florida guard who was Mira's teammate in high school at Key West, was second in this year's balloting. Each writer voted for three players in order of preference, with tree points being scored for a first-place vote, two for a second and one for third.

Mira received 48 points, Katz 23, Dave Snyder, FSU halfback was third with eight points.

Hagood Clarke, Florida halfback, got six points; Charlie Calhoun, FSU defensive specialist, and Dan Conners, Miami tackle, three each; and FSU guard Chuck Robinson, Miami back Nick Spinelli, Tampa end Jim Galmin and FSU back Marion Roberts, one each.

Gridders Going BOWLin

By GENE BALLARD

This week's battle between Miami and Alabama will be the last football game [illegible] year, with the bowl season following.

The first two bowl games will take place on December 21 at Houston and P[illegible] delphia. The Bluebonnet Bowl at Housten lists Baylor (7-3) vs. LSU (7-3). a[illegible] Liberty Bowl lists NC State against Mississippi State (6-2-2).

The first game lists two passing teams. Baylor's Don Trull, the nation's leading passer, will be ready to pass to his favorite target, Lennie Elkins. LSU features the passing of Bill Ezell and the running of Joe Labrozzo, plus a rock-like defense leady by Billy Truax. LSU lost to Rice, Mississippi, and Mississippi State. Baylor lost to Oregon State, Texas and Kentucky.

North Carolina State will parlay its experienced backfild against the Cinderella team of the year, Mississippi State. The Maroons upset Auburn, LSU and tied ten second ranked Mississippi. They lost to Alabama by one point, and to Memphis State by a touchdown. They also tied Florida. The Wolfpack lost only to North Carolina and to Florida State.

The Maroons are lead by their backfield of Quarterback Sonny Fisher, halfback Ode Burrell, and fullback Hoyle Granger. Fisher doubles as a defensive back and was high in the nation on interceptions. The Wolfpack counters with their backfield of Jim Rossi, Joe Scrapatti, Tony Koszarski, and Pete Falzarano. Other Wolfpack trump cards are end Don Montgomery, and tackle Bert Wilder.

The following week, North Carolina (8-2) takes on the Air Force (7-3) in Jacksonville at the Gator Bowl. The Tar Heels have lost only to Michigan State and Clemson, while defeating Virginia, Wake Forest, Maryland, South Carolina, Georgia, Miami (Fla.), Duke, and North Carolina State.

Air Force has played a considerably tougher schedule. They have beaten Orange Bowl bound Nebraska and Rose Bowl Bound Washington. The Falcons lost to SMU, Army and Maryland in the last two minutes.

The Falcons base their attack on Terry Isaacson. A champion wrestler, quarterback Isaacson is truly one of the great quarterbacks in the country. He ranked high in both rushing and total offense in nation wide statistics.

North Carolina bases their attack on a combination of the passing of Junier Edge to Bob Lacey and the running of Ken Willard.

In the Big Bowls on New Year's Day, the biggest will be the Cotten Bowl. 1st ranked Texas (10-0) will take on second ranked Navy (9-1) in the battle of the year. Texas became the first national champion from the Southwest Conference in many a year. They faced stiff battles from Texas A&M, Baylor, and Rice to get there tough. Except for a dropped pass, Navy would also be unbeaten, their only loss came at the hands of SMU. They scored no fewer than 21 points in ay single game.

The averaged 30 points a game in becoming the highest scoring Navy team in history.

Texas relies on its ball control game. Quarterback Duke Carlisle, and halfbacks Tommy Ford and Joe Dixon, plus fullback Ernie Koy form the Texas backfield. All are proven runners. Carlisle is also a fair passer. The line lead by Scott Appleton is big and fast.

Navy's team is lead by Heisman Trophy winner Roger Staubach. Also in the Navy backfield is the most underrated player in college football, Pat Donnely. Donnely has lead in the Middies in rushing for the past two years, and is also a top-flight pass catcher. The halfbacks are speedy John Sal (9.4 100 yards) and Kip Paskewich (9.5). Also overlooked is Navy's fine line.

Religion's Role On Campus

By MARCI ROFFINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

"Religious activities in a university resemble those of any local church, but the distinctive emphasis is on study" stated Dr. Lloyd M. Mims, University Chaplain, when asked to expound on the "Role of Religion on Campus."

Mims went on to say that "the student has a unique opportunity while in college to grow and the basic issues of life take on life itself."

Paul Minus Leaves FSU To Begin Professorship

Dr. Paul M. Minus, Jr., will leave his post as chaplain at FSU this month to [illegible] of the Methodist Theological School in Delaware, Ohio. Chaplain Minus will assume his duties in the new position Jan. 1. As an assistant professor of church history, he will be responsible especially for the consideration of church history. He will be responsible especially for the consideration of the Methodist Church's relation to the movement for Christian unity and to the changing patterns of the contemporary world. He joined the FSU faculty in 1952.

[illegible] Reformation" he will assist a [illegible] Dean Cecil Hobbs at [illegible] semester of the school [illegible] Council. The subject will be at [illegible] A.M. in Langford Lounge and the public may attend.

As a graduate in Term. Chaplain Minus was chief executive and the official selection [illegible] Board, Methodist Council. In this capacity he attended many policy meetings of the Council and was able to keep in touch with many developments at St. Meinrad.

During his stay there he [illegible] was developing the organization of Bishops on a national level. He organized of the Bishops in the Roman Curia (Pope's Cabinet), political theory, and the Catholic attitude toward jews.

One of the meetings he attended was the Inaugural of [illegible] new Archbishop of Boston. Chaplain Minus [illegible] was invited to the social [illegible] and by the [illegible] Cardinal of the Catholic Church. Interesting more effective to the modern world. Gift Of The Modern Magi

The wisest of lights and gifts upon
Some heavenly point lights the star of Bethlehem.
There they, the ancient magi's — gifts' gain.
Christ, the King, to earth again for them.
For them with other hopes, other gifts
Other lights before, these lights progress,
The modern magi, bearing gold, myrrh with
With gift of wild, and an anguish of ardent grace
Through gifts of gold and myrrh and frankincense.
[All] [illegible] employed to sacrificed
This is greater gift, this recompense
From modern rules never settles,
These answered pure in [illegible] seeking will.

The next class reunion for the '34 class is scheduled for Homecoming in 1959, when all members of the Alumni Association attend a five-day [illegible] leisure service, banquet, and a social party.

The alumni office has put out biographical forms to provide material to help establish a permanent file for each alumni, including a photographical record. The association office urged all members who have not filled out their forms to complete it and send it to the alumni office. Be [illegible] Longwise along with the membership contribution. All checks should be made payable to the FSU Alumni Association.

The office also urged all graduates to be sure to keep them posted of any changes of address so that the alumni will receive all publications.

The alumni association serves as the main link between the graduate and his Alma Mater after he leaves the campus. Its purpose is to stimulate the service to the university and to promote fellowship among its alumni.

Profs Deserve 'A'

Yesterday's "Flambeau" contained a petition movement sponsored and signed by [illegible] of the faculty in support of the integration of all [illegible] eating facilities for all Americans.

We salute the "Flambeau" for its timely stand in connection with educators of distinguity. It took courage to stand up to the forces ignorance to expose it took fortitude to take the voice of [illegible] out of the security of the classroom and proudly display them to the face of flag-waving, violent segregationists.

No American can support segregation. No American can support any action where the rights of any citizen are denied.

Segregation is wrong. It has no place in a great university. It is a product of ignorance, stupidity, and intolerance. The only means to fight evil such as the American recession is through education, and segregation policies designed to foster bigotry and prejudice.

With professors who take [illegible] stand for what is right, [illegible] will not be able to [illegible] in the institution and the students [illegible] of the [illegible].

We are behind you 100%.

An Editor's Note

A farewell editorial is always a difficult article to write, for it represents the ultimate conclusion of an integral part of the editor's experience.

As I realize from the editorship of "The Florida Flambeau," I regret having to dissolve [illegible] three years of close association with the newspaper and with scores of staff members. Some of whom I have graduated, and others who still stay on after I left [illegible]. In the work as a college journalist I have made the acquaintance of hundreds of other people who have helped to make my work more enjoyable and rewarding.

The few humble things I have been entrusted have been extremely essential. The responsibilities of writing or whatever can be expressed, the freedom of the press and freedom of speech are charges which must be carefully cherished. Yet I have tried to remain loyal to preserve the integrity of your college newspaper, and especially to keep it free from the students' voice that is to best characterize college publications.

I wish to express publicly my sincere gratitude to [illegible] and editors of the "Flambeau" [illegible] staff. I also endorse [illegible] new editor-elect, Bob Collins, and wish him and the new "Flambeau" administration a successful [illegible].

It's going to be strange to [illegible] "Flambeau" but I have not helped to produce it.

Advantage Ignored

To the Editor:

As I looked at the voice of the sparsely filled auditorium, shame occurred. The speaker, Dear James J. Weber, was another example of the abuse alleged to us as students at Florida State University. It was a fine advantage, it was ignored.

Why am I ashamed? Because occasion was to be given to us graduate theatre students by the alert of the university for those hundred seats. Both of the graduate plays were graduates and [illegible] successful in the arts and world. We have [illegible] guest. One hour of [illegible] still to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

End Of Year Brings Re-Evaluation

Every year about this time, with the old year racing to the wire and the new year shining in Mother Nature's womb, it pays to take the proper time to reassess, reorganize and remember the dying year and all its events, crises and happenings, and the new year's eve, with the hope that the new year will be better because of the learning from the experiences of the last year, and with the deep desire that we and the world have suffered enough and is ready.

This past trimester at Florida State has been a period of learning and re-evaluation. There's a multiplicity of ideas, thoughts and remembrances are calmly brought to the fore to make evaluations. It would have been best to take out, ponder, analyze and re-do the last trimester and failure is conspicuously thought to be compiled with. I am piddling up. Since the race issue has been in the fore of much of the campus turmoil and discussion, it is the obvious area and child to start our evaluation.

At the time of the trimester the racial issue centered on the point of hiring school and university personnel and responsible parties working for the overall goal of removing the racial problem of Florida State. Many sacrifices would have to be made by all the members of the university community — administrators, faculty members and students. Hopefully, all would be willing to make the sacrifices for the betterment of the whole. Some of the sacrifices would be in the form of time, money and energy. Others would be in the form of pride, ego and prejudices.

The Religious Council worked a Student Government committee formed, some professors worked the anti-integration school, and on the warpath. A group of armed men from Georgia picketed the Florida Theater where they stood by with their guns. Police from several towns were all arrested, some reportedly ill with contempt by the arresting officers. The charges were dropped but for a while, this had indeed happened before at FSU.

The coming trial and PE and A & M incidents escalated until after an unusually long time, eight hours were set for the "rally." FSU students were requested and subject to immediate suspension by the University for an indefinite period. The Tallahassee City Commission voted to hold a three jury committee the reasons or purposes behind" some students being at the two universities. Another picketing took place. Liberal Forum, formed to picket the University but after two years existed there could not serve better purposes and had formed a picket of sorts by "Old Students" organized a petition asking for interposition. Sadly, disgusting epithets were hurled at the picketers, unruly antics and disgusting behavior as the scene made the entire campus appear like several weeks.

DELTA DELTA DELTA--

'Twas the week before exams,
And all through the school
Tri Delta's were hustling, preparing,
For the upcoming YULE
The tree was trimmed nicely,
All sparkly and shiny
The presents under it were decent
At the party on Monday
And we wish to say
For this festive holiday season
Merry Christmas to all,
And to all a Good Night.

Pipe Puffin' Presents Problems

(PUFF) - Velma Wadsworth, feature editor of "The Forty-Niner," Long Beach State College, Long Beach, California, admitted in print that she was fond of pipe smoking. She even furnished testimonial letters from all sides.

Said her mother: "It just isn't done my dear."

"Oh! You're the one..." and another feminine acquaintance disappeared as though Velma were the sole carrier of the black plague."

An instructor: "reason to leave school" phrase reached her desk. But in her mail box she found such notices as "What do you think you are doing?" and "Uncle Sam Does Not Need You."

Fellow staff members also found ways to needle Velma. But she has been able to keep her pipe lit, and so far no power has refused to sell her tobacco.

She looks forward to reading and puffing and, years from now, giving her secret for longevity.

There guesses.
